Present: Hon. ARTHUR L GUERNSEY Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Harmon Fowle, deceased.

Orris J. Fowle Administrator having filed in said court his final administration account and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is ordered: That the 9th day of November A. D., 1926, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition.

It is further ordered That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the North Adams Advocate, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county. ARTHUR D. GUERNSEY
2013 Judge of Probate

Hillsdale-Jackson Bus Line

Four Round Trips each Day
Two Round Trips Sunday

NORTH BOUND

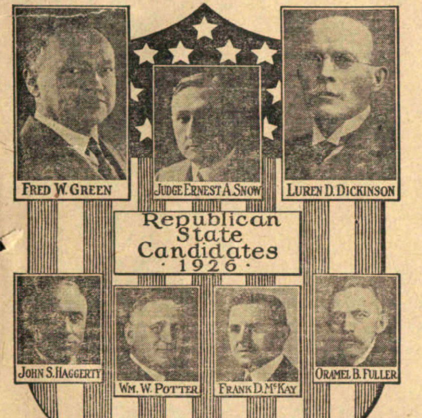
Leaves North Adams ....6:45 a. m
" " " .... 1:15 p. m

SOUTH BOUND

Leaves North Adams....8:15 a. m.
" " " ....4:20 p. m.

SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS

Bus north at ....5:15 p. m
Bus south (via Jonesville).....11 20



State Farm Groups To See Corn Borer

Agricultural interests of Michigan will gather at the special European corn borer experiment station in Monroe County on Thursday October 21, to inspect the test work.

County agricultural agents, farmers, farm organization heads, and business men of the state have all been invited to view the work of the corn borer at first hand, and to learn of the methods being developed to combat the pest. The M. S. C., the State Department of Agriculture, and the U. S. Department of Agriculture are all interested cooperatively in the special work of Monroe station.

Seriousness of the corn borer menace was reflected in the appointment last week at the college of an emergency corn borer committee with all agricultural heads and agricultural division executives at M. S. C. included in its roster. The work of this committee will include the pushing of experimental and research projects and the extension of educational material on the corn borer to the farms of the state.

It looks at this time as though the corn borer would become the greatest menace which has ever faced American agriculture, said Dean R. S. Shaw of M. S. C. in appointing the special committee.

The fact that the borer has penetrated as far west in the state as Kalamazoo County was emphasized recently by Prof. J. F. Cox, head of the crops department at the college. Fourteen days of east and northeast winds in July are held responsible for the unusually rapid spread of the pest this summer.

The fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Michigan State Grange will be held at East Lansing October 26 to 29 with the East Lansing People's Church as headquarters for the convention. About 350 delegates are expected with a total attendance of 500. Mrs. Dora H. Stockman, State Grange Lecturer is chairman of the local committee in charge of the arrangements. Other members of the committee are Miss Jennie Buell, N. P. Hull and C. H. Bramble. WKAR, the M. S. C. radio station will broadcast the programs of the meeting on Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday afternoon and Wednesday evening. An old fashioned hay ride will be a feature of the program when the college will conduct an inspection tour for the visitors with teams and wagons taking in the points of interest about the campus, The college committee is composed of Ralph Tenny, Thomas Gunson, J. B. Hasselman and A. H. Lavers,

---

Spoonerism

How is this for spoonerism? The perpetrator raced to the station to get a train and arriving breathless, whipped out a pocketbook, looked into it and exclaimed: "Ji Borge! I've faust my live-bollar dill." This spoonerism was actually uttered right in this city. Of course, the translation is: "By George! I've lost my five-dollar bill."—Springfield Union.

"We Serve Michigan

This Railroad Plant of Ours and What it Means to You

AMERICAN railroads are hauling more freight than at any time in their history.

They have averaged over a million loaded cars per week during the current year.

This service consists in moving commodities from the point of production to the one of consumption.

It is a tremendous work that has been done and it establishes a new high transportation record for the world.

That service has been performed with regularity, uniformity and dispatch.

Through these, the business of the country has been given added impetus.

It has been estimated that through the improved service a saving of one and a half billions of dollars per annum has accrued to the people of the United States over the service that obtained in 1920.

This sum represents the advantages gained through the orderly manner in which our railroads are now functioning.

Our railroads have attained the highest record for the average daily movement of freight cars ever reached, and, likewise the best performance in use of fuel.

So much for the new record of the railroads of the United States.

THE plant, which comprises the railroads that serve Michigan's varied industries, has contributed its share in this proud national achievement, and in the saving of one and a half billions of dollars, through lessened inventories carried by our business institutions and made possible by the accelerated service. This has been achieved, too, while facilitating the even flow of production as well as the orderly diffusion of commodities.

Michigan has received great tangible benefits, since it is now a veritable beehive of industrial activity.

Michigan will continue to progress only so long as it's railroads continue to enjoy the undivided support of the communities they serve.

Michigan people, as a whole, farmer and manufacturer, preacher and teacher, office employee and laborer, are cashing in through this new outlook on transportation, so vital to the public weal and welfare. Our people will continue to cash in only so long as this understanding is maintained.

We have much to gain — the people and the railroads alike — in prolonging this understanding.

We can keep Michigan in the vanguard of economic importance only through the continued expansion of our industries and by keeping our railroads just ahead of the country's transportation needs.

MICHIGAN RAILROAD ASSOCIATION

Registration Notice For General Election, Tuesday November 2, 1926

To the qualified electors of the township of Moscow, county of Hillsdale, state of Michigan.

Notice is hereby given that in conformity with the Michigan Election Law. I, the undersigned township clerk, will, upon any day except Sunday and a legal holiday, or the day of any regular or special election or official primary election, receive for registration the name of any legal voter in said township not already registered who may apply to me personally for such registration. Provided, however, that I can receive no name for registration during the time intervening between the second Saturday before any regular or special election or official primary election and the day of such election.

The last day for general registration does not apply to persons who vote under the absent voters' law. (See Registration by Affidavit.)

Oct. 23 1926—Last Day For General Registration By Personal Application For Said Election

Notice is further given that I will be at Gochanour's Store, Moscow Mich,, on third and fourth Saturdays before said election to review the registration book and register electors on Oct. 9th and Oct. 16th A. D,; 1926, from eight o'clock a. m. until 8 o'clock p. m. on each said day for the purpose of reviewing the registration and registering such of the qualified electors in said township as shall properly apply therefor.

The name of no person but an actual resident of the township at the time of registration and entitled under the constitution, if remaining such resident, to vote at the next election shall be entered in the registration book.

REGISTRATION BY AFFIDAVIT

Sec. 10—Registering of Electors: Regular session of 1925—Any absent voter, as defined in this act, whose name is not registered and who shall claim the right to vote by absent voter's ballot at any election or primary election, may at the time of making application for absent voter's ballot, present to the township clerk an affidavit for registration which shall be in substantially the following form:

AFFIDAVIT FOR REGISTRATION

State of Michigan } County of............... } ss.

.... being duly sworn, depose and say that I am a duly qualified elector of the township of Moscow, county of Hillsdale and state of Michigan, that my postoffice address is ...., that I am not now registered as an elector therein and that I am voting by absent voter's ballot at the election (or primary election) to be held upon the .... day of..............., 192...., the application for which ballot accompanies this application; that I make this affidavit for the purpose of procuring my registration as an elector in accordance with the statute; that I make the following statements in compliance with the Michigan Election Law: Age........; Race..................; Birthplace .... Date of naturalization...................... I further swear or affirm that the answers given to the questions concerning my qualifications as an elector are true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Taken, subscribed and sworn to before me this ....day of...........A. D. 1926.

Signed...
Notary or Justice

Note—If this acknowledgment is taken outside the state, the Certificate of the Court that the person taking the acknowledgment is a notary must be attached.

REGISTRATION OF ABSENTEE BY OATH

If any person whose name is not registered shall offer and claim the right to vote at any election, and shall, under oath, state that he or she is a resident of such township and has resided in the township twenty days next preceding such election, designating particularly the place of his or her residence and that he or she possesses the other qualifications of an elector under the constitution; and that owing to the sickness or bodily infirmity of himself or herself or some member of his or her family or owing to his or her absence from the township on public business or his or her own business, and without intent to avoid or delay his or her registration, he or she was unable to make application for registration on the last day provided by law for registering of electors preceding such election, then the name of such person shall be registered, and he or she shall then be permitted to vote at such election. If such applicant shall in said matter, wilfully make any false statement, he or she shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and upon conviction, be subject to the pains and penalties thereof.

Provisiou in Case of Removal to Another Precinct

Sec. 11—Any registered and qualified voter who has removed from one election precinct of a township to another election precinct of the same township shall have the right on any day previous to election or primary election day, on application to Township Clerk to have his or her name transferred from the registration book of the precinct from which he or she has removed to the registration book of the precinct in which he or she then resides. Such elector shall have the right to have such transfer made on any election or primary election day by obtaining from the board of inspectors of such election or primary election of the precinct from which he or she has removed a certificate of transfer and presenting the said certificate to the board of election inspectors of the precinct in which he or she then resides. Dated Sept. 20, A. D. 1926

FORD McCOWAN,
Township Clerk.

REGISTRATION NOTICE
For General Election Tuesday, November 2, A. D. 1926

To the Qualified Electors of the Township of Adams, County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan.

Notice is hereby given that in comformity with the "Michigan Election Law," I, the undersigned Township Clerk, will, upon any day, except Sunday and a legal holiday, the day of any regular or special election or primary election, receive for registration the name of any legal voter in said Township not already registered who may apply to me personally for such registration. Provided however that I can receive no names for registration during the time intervening between the Second Saturday before any regular, special or official primary election and the day of such election.

The last day for General Registration does not apply to persons who vote under the Absent Voters' Law. (See Registration by Affidavit) October 23, 1926-Last day for General Registration by personal application for said election.

Notice is further hereby given that I will be at C. S. Wertz store the third and fourth Saturdays before said election to review the Registration Book and Register Electors on October 9 and October 16 A. D. 1926. From 8 o'clock a. m. until 8 o'clock p. m. on each said day for the purpose of reviewing the Registration and Registering such of the qualified electors in said Township as shall properly apply therefor.

The name of no person but an actual resident of the precinct at the time of registration, and entitled under the constitution, if remaining such resident, to vote at the next election, shall be entered in the registration book.

REGISTRATION BY AFFIDAVIT

Sec. 10—Registering of Electors

Regular Session of 1925 — Any absent voter, as defined in this act whose name is not registered and who shall claim the right to vote by absent voter's ballot at any election or primary election, may at the time of making application for absent voter's ballot, present to the township clerk an affidavit for registration which shall be in substantially the following form:

AFFIDAVIT FOR REGISTRATION

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Hillsdale SS. I, ------------------ ------being duly sworn, depose and say that I am a citizen and duly qualified elector of the -------- precinct of the township of Adams in the county of Hillsdale and State of Michigan; that my postoffice address is No. -------- Street-----------, or R. F. D. No------- P. O.-------------; that I am not registered as an elector therein and that I am voting by absent voter's ballot at the election (or primary election) to be held upon the ------------ day of ------------ ------, 192------, the application for which ballot accompanies this application; that I make this affidavit for the purpose of procuring my registration as an elector in accordance with the statute; that I make the following statements in compliance with the Michigan Election Law: Age---- Race-------------; Birthplace ------- --------; Date of naturalization---- ---------- I further swear or affirm that the answers given to the questions concerning my qualifications as an elector are true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Taken, subscribed and sworn to before me this ---------------- day of -------------------- 192-----.

My Commission expires ------192----
Signed ---------------------------------

Notary Public in and for said County, State of Michigan.

Note—If this acknowledgement is taken outside of the State, the Certificate of the Court that the person taking the acknowledgement is a notary must be attached.

REGISTRATION OF ABSENTEE BY OATH

Sec. 9. If any person whose name is not registered shall offer and claim the right to vote at any election or primary election, and shall, UNDER OATH state that he is a resident of such precinct and has resided in the TOWNSHIP TWENTY DAYS next preceeding such election or primary election, designating particularly the place of his or her residence and that he or she possesses the other qualifications of an elector under the constitution; and that owing to the sickness or bodily infirmity of himself or herself or some member of his or her family, or owing to his or her absence from the TOWNSHIP on public business or his or her own business, and without intent to avoid or delay his or her registration, he or she was unable to make application for registration on the last day provided by law for the registering of electors preceeding such election or primary election, then the name of such person shall be registered, and he or she shall then be permitted to vote at such election or primary election. If such applicant shall in said matter wilfully make any false statement, he or she shall be deemed guilty of perjury and upon conviction, be subject to the pains and penalties thereof.

Provision in Case of Removal To Another Precinct

Section 11. Any registered and qualified voter who has REMOVED from ONE ELECTION PRECINCT of a TOWNSHIP to another election precinct of the same TOWNSHIP shall have the right, on any day previous to election or primary election day, on application to Township Clerk to have his or her name transferred from the registration book of the precinct from which he or she HAS REMOVED to the registration book of the precinct in which he or she THEN RESIDES. Such elector shall have the right to have such transfer made on any ELECTION, or Primary election day by obtaining from the board of inspectors of such election or primary election of the precinct from which he or she HAS REMOVED a CERTIFICATE OF TRANSFER and pesenting the said certificate to the BOARD OF ELECTION INSPECTORS OF THE PRECINCT IN WHICH HE OR SHE THEN RESIDES.

F. W. HOLCOMB,
Township Clerk.

Dated September 20, A. D. 1926.

NOTICE

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION

Notice is hereby given to The Qualified Elecors that at the time and places of holding the next GENERAL ELECTION in each of the several voting precincts of said County, on TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, A. D. 1926

There will be submitted at said election five proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Michigan as follows:

Compensation of members of the Legislature of Michigan.

Amendment to Section 9 of Article V of the Constitution relative to the compensation of members of the legislature.

Sec. 9. The compensation of the members of the Legislature shall be twelve hundred dollars for the regular session. When convened in extra session their compensation shall be ten dollars per day for the first twenty days and nothing thereafter. Members shall be entitled to ten cents per mile and no more for one round trip to each regular session of the Legislature by the usually traveled route. Each member shall be entitled to one copy of the laws, journals and documents of the Legislature of which he is a member, but shall not receive, at the expense of the State books or newspapers not expressly authorized by this Consititution.

Term of office of County Sheriffs.

Amendment to Section 5 of Article VIII of the Constitution relative to the term of office of county sheriffs.

Sec. 5. The sheriff shall hold no other office. He shall be elected at the general election for the term of two years. He may be required by law to renew his security from time to time and in default of giving such security, his office shall be deemed vacant. The county shall never be responsible for his acts.

Creation of Metropolitan Districts.

Amendment to Article VIII of the Constitution relative to the creation of metropolitan districts by cities, villages or townships.

Sec. 31. The Legislature shall by general law provide for the incorporation by any two or more cities, villages or townships, or any combination or parts of same, of metropolitan districts comprising territory, within their limits, for the purpose of acquiring, owning and operating either with or without their limits as may be prescribed by law parks or public utilities for supplying sewage disposal, drainage, water, light, power or transportation, or any combination thereof, any such district may sell or purchase, either within or without its limits as may be prescribed by law, sewage disposal or drainage rights, water, light, power or transportation facilities. Any such districts shall have power to acquire and succeed to any or all of the rights, obligations and property of such cities, villages and townships respecting or connected with such functions or public utilities: Provided, That no city, village or township shall surrender any such rights, obligations or property without the approval thereof by a majority vote of the electors thereof voting on such question. Such General law shall limit the rate of taxation of such districts for their municipal purposes and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. Under such general law, the electors of each district shall have power and authority to frame, adopt and amend its charter upon the approval thereof by a majority vote of the electors of each city, village or township, voting on such question, and through, its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, subject to the constitution and general laws of this State.

Condemnation of excess land and property for boulevards, streets, etc.

Amendment to Article XIII of the Constitution relative to the condemnation of excess land and property for boulevards, streets, etc.

Sec. 5. Subject to this Constitution the Legislature may authorize municipalities, subject to reasonable limitations, to condemn and to take the fee to more land and property than is needed in the acquiring, opening and widening of boulevards, streets and alleys, or for any public use, and after so much of the land and property has been appropriated for any such needed public purpose, the remainder may be sold or leased with or without such restrictions as may be appropriate to the improvement made. Bonds may be issued to supply the funds to pay in whole or in part for the excess property so appropriated but such bonds shall be a lien only on the property so acquired and they shall not be included in any limitation of the bonded indebtedness of such municipality.

Revision of the Constitution.

Shall the constitution of this state be revised and a convention called therefor?

NOTICE is Hereby Given, That the place of holding said election in the Township of Adams, (Precinct No.) Will be at North Adams, and the polls of said election will be open at 7:00 o'clock a. m., and will remain open until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall in their discretion adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock noon for one hour.

F. W. HOLCOMB
Clerk of said Township.

Dated October 7, 1926.

Dial Telephone

The dial automatic telephone was first introduced in the year 1899.

GENERAL ELECTION

Notice is hereby given that a General Election will be held in the Township of Adams, County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan at North Adams, within said Township, on Tuesday, November 2. A. D. 1926. For the purpose of voting for the election of the following officers, yiz: State—Governor; Lieutenant Governor; Secretary of State; State Treasurer; Auditor General; Attorney General Justice of the Supreme Court (to fill vacancy) for the term ending the thirty first day of December, nineteen hundred twenty nine.

Congressional—One Representative in Congress for the Congressional District of which said Township forms a part.

Legislative—One Senator in the State Legislature for the Senatorial District of which said township forms a part; one Representative in the State Legislature for the Legislative district of which said township forms a part.

County—Sheriff; County Clerk; County Treasurer; Register of Deeds; Prosecuting Attorney; Two Circuit Court Commissioners; Drain Commissioner; Two Coroners; and a County Surveyor; One County Road Commissioner.

NOTICE RELATIVE TO OPENINGAND CLOSING OF THE POLLS

Act 351—Part IV—Chapter VIII, Public Acts of 1925.

Sec. 1. On the day of any election the polls shall be opened at seven o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as may be, and shall be continued open until five o'clock in the afternoon and no longer: Provided, That in townships the board of inspectors of election may, in its discretion, adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock noon, for one hour, and that the township board in townships and the legislative body in cities and villages may, by resolution adopted fifteen days prior to the election and published with the notice of the election, provide that the polls shall be opened at six o'clock in the forenoon and may also provide that the polls shall be kept open not later than eight o'clock in the evening of the same day.

The Polls of said election shall be open at 7:00 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 5:00 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall, in their discretion, adjourn the Polls at 12 o'clock, noon, for oneh our.

Dated September 20, A. D. 1926.
F, W. Holcomb Clerk of said Township. 20t3

NOTICE

Proposition for the County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan, to employ Public Health Nurses.

Notice is hereby given to the Qualified Electors of the County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan, that at the time and places of holding the next General Election in each of the several voting precincts of said County, on Tuesday November 2 A. D. 1926.

A proposition will be submitted to said Electors to Employ Public Health Nurses as provided by Act. No. 7, of Public Acts of 1925.

Said Proposition will be voted upon by ballot in the following form, viz.: "Is it your wish that the Board of Supervisors of Hillsdale County, Employ Public Health Nurses as provided by Act. No. 7, of the Public Acts of 1925?"

Every legally cast ballot found to have a cross marked by an elector in the square pertaining to the word "Yes" will be counted for said proposition, and every such ballot found to have a cross marked by an elector in the square pertaining to the word "No" will be counted against said proposition.

Dated September 25, A. D. 1926
Frank O. Hancock, Clerk of said County of Hillsdale.

Notice is hereby given that the place of holding said Election for the Township of Moscow, in said County will be at Moscow village.

And the polls of said election will be open at 7 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall, in their discretion, adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock, noon for one hour.

Dated September 25, 1926.
F. W. Holcomb Clerk of said Township. 20t3

The Detroit News is quoted as sponsor for a movement to change the name of M-23, commonly known as "Chicago Turnpike" to "Father Richard Gabriel Highway" which we believe has a Popish significence. The News claims this is desired because in an early day Father Gabriel as a Catholic missionary to the wilds of Michigan started the propaganda which inaugurated the movement to build M-23. Possibly he did and possibly he didn't but we don't believe it would stand any such metamorphosis. That might sound good froma logical standpoint but from every other angle it would be asinine. It is altogether too Ecclesiastic for our democratic blood. Anything with a "Fawther" to it smacks too much of Roman Catholicism to be tolerable; we already have too much of that. Nix Brother News, call it anything you wish —even a cow path—but cut out the "Father" stuff.

On the Road of Life,
Take along the help of
WRIGLEY'S
P.K
CHEWING SWEET
PEPPERMINT FLAVOR

Wrigley's adds a zest to work and play—your nerves are steadier—your interest keener.

Aids teeth and digestion.

After Every Meal

G141

THIS TRAIN FOR ALL POINTS EAST, WEST, NORTH & SOUTH

WRIGLEY'S LIMITED

The Retort Discourteous

It is related that George Bernard Shaw, a few days after his seventieth birthday, was roped into a drawing room party of a rather highbrow nature, at which the special attraction was a violinist. Said the hostess to Mr. Shaw, after the violinist had rendered one or two numbers: "Well, Mr. Shaw, what do you think of my discovery?" Replied Mr. Shaw: "I find in him a great resemblance to Paderewski." A painful pause. Then, "But, Mr. Shaw, Paderewski is not a violinist."

"Exactly!" snapped G. B. S.—New Yorker.

DEMAND "BAYER" ASPIRIN

Aspirin Marked With "Bayer Cross" Has Been Proved Safe by Millions.

Warning! Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine. Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for 26 years.

Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin. Imitations may prove dangerous.—Adv.

North America Sinking

Scientists say that the North American continent is slowly sinking into the ocean, the rate being about an inch a year. At any rate, however, the scientists say the change is nothing for anyone to become alarmed over, as changes of this kind have been noted with no cataclysmic effect on any considerable portion of the earth's surface since the time of recorded history.

At the Clothier's

Clerk—A suit? Yes, sir—what cut do you want?

Dad—Cut price.

HOTEL FORT SHELBY
where Detroit won fame for courtesy

Week-ending at the Fort Shelby is a pleasant custom. An especially pleasant room with bath at $3.50 a day and up—other rooms at $2.50 and up. Servidor equipment with protection against excessive tipping. Central bus location. Fort Shelby Garage nearby.

Lafayette Blvd. at First St.

W. G. McKay, Ass't Sec'y
Seth E. Frymire, Manager

DO YOU SUFFER FROM ASTHMA?

Olive Tar has relieved hundreds. Its soothing pine odor relieves irritation. Use externally and internally. A wonderful relief for soreness and inflammation, colds, bronchitis, coughing. Pure, harmless.

HALL & RUCKEL, New York

Cuticura
Loveliness
A Clear
Healthy Skin
Insured by Every-day Use of Cuticura Soap

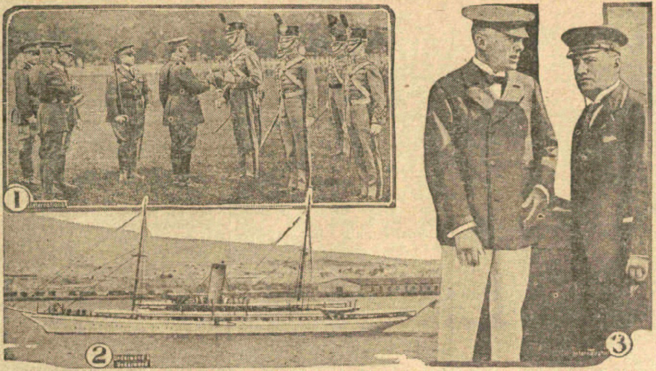
PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks., Patchogue, N.Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

FREE DELIVERED
Send $2.00 Tonic Strength Builder $1.75
100 Genuine Aspirin Tablets $1.00. Agents wanted. Winter Mfg. Co. Granite City, Ill.

WANTED—APPLE PICKERS
HAMILTON, BANGOR, MICH.

WE PAY YOU CASH for gold bridges, crowns, false teeth, old plates, diamonds, discarded jewelry, magneto points. WHITING GOLD REFINING CO., 8 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK. Send goods now. References: Chatham-Phenix Bank, New York.



1—General Summerall presenting cups and medals to Cadets L. A. Vickrey, J. B. Quill and H. J. Vanderheide at West Point for their expert marksmanship. 2—E. L. Doheney's palatial yacht, Casiana, in which the oil magnate plans to sail around the world, starting from Los Angeles. 3—Sir Austen Chamberlain and Premier Mussolini photographed at their momentous conference on a yacht at Leghorne.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Queer Developments in the Indiana Political Scandal Affair.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

IF TOM ADAMS, Vincennes publisher, is going to make good on his charges of political corruption and klan rule in Indiana, it appears likely he will have to do it without the voluntary aid of Convict Stephenson, the original source of most of the accusations. After demanding a chance to make public his alleged proofs, contained in a mysterious black bag, the former klan dragon was given the opportunity when he was taken to Indianapolis on a writ of habeas corpus to testify in a civil case. He took refuge in his "constitutional right" not to testify, and since he is serving a life sentence the judge could not well punish him for contempt of court. Stephenson also was called before the grand jury which had been instructed to inquire into the corruption charges, and though the proceedings of that body are secret, there were plain indications that he had not revealed anything of importance.

Seemingly Stephenson had used his charges as a club to force his lawyers to expedite his appeal from the sentence he is serving, and there were signs that his tactics were succeeding. Several attorneys who were formerly associated with his defense and who are powerful in politics in Indiana reappeared with him.

Clyde A. Walb, chairman of the Indiana Republican committee, declares that "international bankers" are financing a campaign for the defeat of Senators Watson and Robinson and certain Indiana representatives because of their stand on the World court and the war debts, and that the Stephenson charges are a part of the plot. Calling attention to these allegations, the Indianapolis Times sent a telegram to Senator James A. Reed urging him to bring his senate campaign inquiry committee to Indiana. In St. Louis it was asserted Senator Reed had decided to comply with this request and had summoned the committee to meet in Indianapolis. Senator Borah, in Washington, said he had received from Adams papers tending to support the Stephenson charges, and hinted he might insist on an investigation by the Reed committee. Attorney General Gilliom in a sharp telegram to Borah asserted that "Indiana is thoroughly capable and desirous of setting its own house in order, if it is shown that it is out of order," and demanded that Borah return to Indiana any evidence he might have received. The Idaho senator answered that the material sent him was not in the nature of legal proof.

VICE PRESIDENT DAWES, addressing the national convention of the American Legion in Philadelphia, was heartily applauded when he attacked the primary system in elections and declared it should be "largely abolished." He continued: "If we follow the theory and plan of representative government laid down in our Constitution by providing for nomination by conventions, a better and more impartial class of candidates will result."

This drew swift retorts from Senators Borah and Hiram W. Johnson. While neither mentioned the vice president by name, neither took any pains to except him from charges that the clamor for the convention system is inspired by politicians who have failed in attempts to purchase elections and that the purpose of the clamor is to "make corruption safer and cheaper."

A nation-wide propaganda campaign to break down the primary system is under way, according to Senator Johnson. It has met with success in some states, notably New York and Idaho, where the primary election laws have been repealed, he declared, but will fail in California.

REAFFIRMING the action taken at the Omaha convention last year, the American Legion voted overwhelmingly to hold the 1927 convention in Paris from September 19 to September 23, inclusive, and to reconvene in New York on October 18 for a business session. The pilgrimage to France will be known as the "Second A. E. F.," and it is estimated that 28 ships will be needed. The Leviathan will be the flagship and the Legionnaires will sail from Montreal, Boston, New York, Hampton Roads, Charleston, Jacksonville and Galveston or Houston.

Paris correspondents assert that high officials of the Legion have authorized the formation of a "moral secret service" within the ranks of the delegates who are expected to go to France, the purpose being to control the behavior of the boys, prevent regrettable incidents and arrange trips and entertainments in which the cabarets and too lively cafes will not be included. The co-operation of the Paris police has been obtained. Propaganda is being started to impress upon the delegates the necessity of good behavior to foster cordiality and friendship with the French people.

ORGANIZED labor of America, as represented by the American Federation of Labor, is equally opposed to Italy's Fascist form of government, which it declares is autocratic, and to Russia's Soviet form of government, which it denounces as the most unscrupulous, anti-social and menacing institution in the world today. By its declaration on Russia the convention in Detroit really put a ban on participation by members of the federation in a proposed mission for the investigation of the economic conditions of Europe, including Russia. This mission is to be under the direction of L. E. Shepherd, head of the Order of Railway Conductors.

President Green and John J. Lewis, president of the mine workers, vigorously denounced the subversive campaign of Russian sympathizers within the ranks of organized labor in America.

The federation indorsed citizens' military training camps and labor's entry into the banking and insurance fields; condemned injunctions as applied to industrial disputes, and shop representation plans, otherwise known as company unions, and reiterated its advocacy of the direct primary law. A New York delegate introduced a resolution for the indorsement of Gov. Al Smith for President of the United States, but the resolution committee dodged this by reporting that Smith is a candidate not for the Presidency but for re-election as governor and as such "has the support of the New York Federation of Labor and of an overwhelming number of unorganized wage earners and citizens."

REPRESENTATIVE EDWARD W. POU (Dem.) of Smithfield, N. C., has written to President Coolidge urging that he call a special session of congress to meet the situation in the South caused by the large cotton crop and the drop in prices of that staple. It was stated at the White House that the letter had been received, and that the President had replied to it pointing out the measures which already had been taken and expressing the hope that these would prove effective.

THE Department of Agriculture has made public the crop reporting board's crop summary for the United States as of October 1. It indicated preliminary production of all wheat at 839,818,000 bushels, or a yield per acre of 14.6 bushels, including 213,336,000 bushels of spring wheat, averaging 10.2 bushels yield per acre. It also indicated, for corn, a condition of 72.4 per cent of normal, with 2,679,988,000 bushels of production, yielding 26.5 bushels per acre. For oats, the preliminary indicated production is 1,282,414,000 bushels, a 27.9 bushels yield per acre.

JOHN H. WALSH, one of the three Democratic members of the United States shipping board, has sent his resignation to President Coolidge. His successor has not yet been named, but under the provisions of the merchant marine act he will be a Democrat and representative of the Gulf states.

LAWRENCE DENNIS, American charge d'affaires at Managua, was busy last week arranging for the peace conference between the Liberal and Conservative forces in Nicaragua which it was hoped would end the civil strife in that republic. American naval forces already had landed at Corinto and were preserving the peace. The leaders of the Liberals intimated they would continue, with Mexican help, their fight against Chamarro's de facto government unless the peace conference should offer them considerable concessions. They want the former vice president impeached and deported and Senor Sacasa made president. Mr. Dennis insists that all factions must agree to a free and impartial election.

TWO representatives of the Polish government arrived in Washington and presented to President Coolidge 100 volumes containing the signatures of 5,000,000 Poles expressing their gratitude to the United States for its post-war help. One million of the names are those of school children and the remainder are those of persons in all walks of life. The President also was presented with a commemorative gold medal and silver medals from the same dies were given to Secretary of Commerce Hoover and the United States Military academy.

TWO notable men met death by accident last week. H. H. Topakayan, wealthy importer and for years Persian consul general in New York, was killed by a fall from the seventeenth story of the Yale club in that city. D. P. Davis, one of the best known of Florida's real estate men and the builder of Davis islands at Tampa, fell overboard from the liner Majestic while en route to Europe and was drowned.

AFTER a 40-day siege, the city of Wuchang, China, was stormed and captured by the Cantonese troops. The commander of the garrison was caught and promptly executed, but it was presumed his forces would be incorporated in the Canton army. The besiegers gained their first entry into the city through treachery of some of the defenders, and the ensuing battle was fierce and bloody. The civilians who remained passive were not molested.

A cablegram from Peking says three American missionaries who were captured by bandits in western Hunan province have been released without payment of ransom after being held 18 days. They are Miss Minerva Weil and Karl H. Beck of the Reformed mission and Miss Lydia Koebbe of the Evangelical mission.

BOTH France and Poland have perfectly balanced budgets for 1927, according to official announcements. The French budget provides for the collection of approximately $1,237,951,000 in direct and indirect taxes. It makes no provision for exterior political debts, but does contain credits which cover payments for A. E. F. war stocks and take care of the Morgan loan. Almost one-third of Poland's income for next year will be spent on the army, and the next greatest amount will be set aside for the ministry of education.

Finance Minister Volpi of Italy says his government is determined to stabilize the native currency and wipe out speculation. The program is to stabilize the lira at 120 to the English pound, a figure which will enable industry to import raw materials at reasonable prices and dispose of its products at a fair profit.

STALIN and his colleagues in the Soviet government of Russia have lost patience with Trotzky, Zinoviev and Pyatakotiv, who have been carrying on a campaign against them throughout the country, and have ordered them placed on trial before the central control committee of the Communist party.

DELIBERATION for nearly sixty-six hours failed to bring agreement in the jury that heard the conspiracy case against Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, and T. W. Miller, former alien property custodian, so the jurors were dismissed. Their final vote was 7 to 5 for conviction of Daugherty and 10 to 2 for conviction of Miller. The indictment still stands, but the government's attorneys would not say whether or not there would be a new trial.

Tax on Gasoline Nets Millions in Revenue

Motorists paid $84,939,373 in gasoline taxes during the first six months of 1925, the United States bureau of public roads announced. A total of 3,560,987,586 gallons of gasoline was taxed, and it was estimated an additional 856,450,000 gallons were consumed in Illinois, Massachusetts and New York, the only states without a gas tax.

Since 19,697,832 automobiles were registered during the first six months of the year, the gasoline consumption per vehicle averaged 225 gallons.

Money collected by the tax will be divided—$54,981,677 to state highway departments; $19,338,976 for county and local roads; $6,329,413 for state and county road bonds and $4,140,998 for miscellaneous purposes.

California, with a gas tax of $7,413,624 during the six months, led all other states in revenue collections for road building and maintenance; Florida was second with $6,197,421; Ohio, third with $5,968,232 and Pennsylvania fourth with $5,252,410.

Other leading states were Indiana, $4,022,264; Michigan, $4,373,598; North Carolina, $3,598,412; Oklahoma, $2,775,015; Georgia, $2,559,217; Missouri, $2,561,611, and Wisconsin, $2,189,579.

Few states reported revenues from the gas tax under $1,000,000.

An electrically operated machine has been developed to lay bricks at far greater speed than can be done by hand.

Evansville Man Enjoys Health

Kidney Trouble, Gastritis and Constipation Had Almost Wrecked His Health.

Samuel L. Martin, 713½ Main St., Evansville, Ind., successful decorator, says: "When I began taking Tanlac, I had almost given up hope of recovering my lost health. From morning till night I suffered. My nerves were jumpy and I never slept soundly. Indigestion made it agony for me to eat. Hours of pain followed every meal. I was tired all the time, no energy to work.

"I believe Tanlac is the greatest tonic anybody can use, for it has returned to me my lost health, banished all signs of stomach troubles, built up my strength."

Tanlac relieves constipation, tones up sluggish liver, puts stomach in shape, builds strength. Take this great tonic. At your druggist's. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Porter's
Pain King
A Liniment
Since 1871
Quickly Checks Coughs and Colds
and is good for so many ailments many families use a dozen bottles a year.
Get the circular wrapped around every bottle and read it NOW.
Use it today
The Geo. H. Rundle Co.
Piqua, Ohio

$4,000 IN PRIZES
1,055 PRIZES IN ALL

Enter the great Liquid Veneer Contest. All you have to do is write us in less than 150 words what you consider the outstanding characteristic of Liquid Veneer, or tell us of an unusual use for Liquid Veneer.

You may win the first prize of $500 or one of the 1,054 other prizes. Three prominent business men will act as judges. Contest closes December 31st, 1926. But don't delay. Get necessary Entry Blank and full particulars from your dealer. If he can't supply you write us. Don't miss this big opportunity.

Liquid Veneer is sold by hardware, furniture, drug, paint, grocery and general stores.

BUFFALO SPECIALTY COMPANY
16 Liquid Veneer Bldg.
Buffalo, N. Y.
LIQUID VENEER

Appropriately Named

"Gosh!—that old dog is a sight!" said a hypercritical acquaintance, from over beyond Presbyterian Hill. "He's lame, skinny, blind in one eye, and 'pears to have ticks all over him. He looks as if he had been scalded, too."

"Eh-yah!" replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "He's got the mange, also the biggest appetite you ever seen. He's covered with fleas, and howls all night. He hain't good for a living thing on earth, and I'd take him out and shoot him if it wasn't too much trouble to borry a gun."

"What do you call the varmint?"

"The only name that will fit him—'son-in-law.'"—Kansas City Star.

To Have a Clear, Sweet Skin

Touch pimples, redness, roughness or itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, then bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Rinse, dry gently and dust on a little Cuticura Talcum to leave a fascinating fragrance on skin. Everywhere 25c each.—Advertisement.

Has a Sure Thing

About the only person that can really make a living out of these guessing contests is the man in the weather bureau.

Who bravely dares must sometimes risk a fall.—Smollett.

Sure Relief
BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS
6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief
BELL-ANS
FOR INDIGESTION
25¢ and 75¢ Pkg's. Sold Everywhere

FOR OVER 200 YEARS

haarlem oil has been a world-wide remedy for kidney, liver and bladder disorders, rheumatism, lumbago and uric acid conditions.

GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES

correct internal troubles, stimulate vital organs. Three sizes. All druggists. Insist on the original genuine GOLD MEDAL.

IF MOTHERS ONLY KNEW

Many children are complaining of Headache, Feverishness, Stomach Troubles and Irregular Bowels and take cold easily. If mothers only knew what MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS would do for their children no family would ever be without them for use when needed. So pleasant to take and so effective that mothers who once use them always tell others about them. At all Druggists. Trial Package FREE. Address Mother Gray Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

TRADE MARK
DON'T ACCEPT ANY SUBSTITUTE

Around Orchard

DAMAGE IS DONE BY TREE HOPPER

One of the interesting and unusual life histories sometimes found among insects is furnished by the insect known as the buffalo tree hopper. Though the eggs of this insect are laid in the bark of the fruit tree by the adult, no feeding is done on the tree, according to J. H. Bigger, assistant entomologist of the Illinois state natural history survey, which is co-operating with the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, in insect control work. When the eggs hatch, the young drop to the ground and feed on the grass and weeds by sucking the sap from them. Neither the young nor the adults feed on the apple tree.

The damage by this insect is done by the adult which lays her eggs in the cuts in the bark and the twigs and branches, making for this purpose two crescent shaped cuts opposite each other and close together so that they look like parentheses around a small section of the bark. The cuts extend through the cambium layer of the bark and cut off the flow of sap, thereby causing starvation of the tree when the cuts are numerous.

During the past few years, the buffalo tree hopper has done very serious damage in this way to young fruit trees in Illinois, according to Bigger. Especially is this true in western Illinois, where in some orchards some of the trees have been so weakened that it was necessary to pull them out.

However, there is no practical spraying practice which can be followed to control the insect, because of its unusual life history. There is no spray which will reach and kill the eggs without also damaging the fruit trees, and spraying the grass and weeds with a contact insecticide is not economical. It is recommended that where this insect is doing damage to the trees, the grass and weeds be plowed up and the soil kept clean for at least one, and preferably two, seasons, during the spring and early summer months. This will starve out the young of the buffalo tree hopper when they hatch and free the orchard of the pest, after which, with a strong growth, the tree will be able to recuperate in most cases.

Any grower who is uncertain as to whether his trees are being damaged by this insect may obtain more information on this point by writing and sending specimens to the Natural History Survey, Urbana, Ill.

His Apple Profits Came as Orchard Pests Left

A remarkable example of the influence of care on an apple orchard has been brought to light in Sussex county, New Jersey.

Back in 1923, Charles Van Stone of Stillwater was getting practically no first-class fruit from his orchard of 100 trees. Insects and diseases were causing fruit to be knotty, knurled and scabby. Finally deciding that the trees should either bear or be cut down, Mr. Stone got in touch with Douglas A. Evans, Warren county's agricultural agent, to find out what could be done to reduce the disease and insect pests. On looking over the orchard Mr. Evans saw that pruning and spraying were imperative needs and, accordingly, suggested this to Mr. Stone.

Benefits were realized the very first year. By keeping a careful record of all expenses and receipts in connection with the orchard Mr. Stone found that the improved practices resulted in a profit of $407 that year.

The following year saw a continuation of the pruning and spraying and, in addition, the use of a small quantity of fertilizer. The real effects of careful orchard management then began to show themselves, for in that second year (1925) the 100 trees returned a clear profit of $1,400. This profit came because of the increased quantity of large, excellently colored, fine-shaped fruit.

Much More Attention to Pruning Is Great Need

If the quality of Illinois fruits is to be improved, much more attention must be paid to pruning than is now customary, W. A. Ruth of the pomology division, college of agriculture, University of Illinois, says. Intelligent pruning not only improves the size and color of the fruit, but also aids in lessening insect and fungous injury by making it easier to spray the trees. The best type of pruning throughout the entire life of a tree consists almost altogether in the removal of excess branches. Heading back should be practiced sparingly and only under special conditions which definitely call for it.

Plow Under Cherry Leaves

Plow under the cherry leaves as a means of controlling the leaf spot disease, advises the New York experiment station. Dispose of the fallen leaves before next spring and then spray the trees with a lime-sulphur mixture next spring just as the petals fall, with a second spraying two weeks later. One gallon of lime-sulphur to 40 gallons of water is the proper amount to use on sour cherries and 1 gallon lime-sulphur to 50 gallons of water is right for sweet cherries.

Damage by Field Mice

Field mice do a lot of damage to young orchard trees. In addition to putting wire cloth guards around the trees and scraping away any trash that may have collected about the trunks, a fruit grower should poison these pests. A little of the poisoned grain is put by each tree and then covered with a shingle or board weighted down. If one edge is propped up the mice will find the bait but the birds and chickens will not be able to get at it.

FREE Kalamazoo Book of Factory Prices Now Ready

Direct to You Factory Prices

Save 1/3 to 1/2

New Porcelain Enamel Ranges and Heating Stoves

Here it is—greater than ever—the new Kalamazoo book of 200 styles and sizes including new and beautiful porcelain enamel ranges and combination gas and coal ranges in delft blue and pearl gray illustrated in actual colors. Also new porcelain mahogany heating stoves.

5 Year Guarantee Bond; Reduced Factory Prices

This new book completely revolutionizes all stove, range and furnace selling policies and brings straight to you the most sensational guarantee of quality ever written—a 5 year guarantee bond on all stoves, ranges and furnaces. Also, a substantial price reduction on all stoves, ranges and furnaces.

24-Hour Shipments—Cash or Easy Terms

24-hour shipping service. You can buy as low as $3 down; $3 monthly. 30 days trial, 360 days approval test. Complete satisfaction or money back.

600,000 Satisfied Customers

Over 600,000 satisfied customers. Don't fail to send a postal or write today for your FREE copy of this book.

KALAMAZOO STOVE CO., Mfrs.
542 Rochester Ave.
KALAMAZOO MICH.

Heating Stoves $27.20 up
30 Days FREE Trial
Ranges $37.75 up
Pipe or Pipeless Furnaces $59.95 up

"A Kalamazoo Direct to You"

Even-Handed Justice

The Manchester (England) Guardian writes: "The Hull coroner, who censured himself in court for failing to call certain essential evidence, is not the first legal officer to pass judgment on his own shortcomings.

"A year or two ago an English magistrate in East Africa, when hunting, found that he had shot a female elephant, which it was not legal to shoot. Being a man of sensitive conscience, he reviewed the crime and fined himself a substantial sum. Later he discovered that other shooters of female elephants had got off much more lightly, and so, as culprit, he appealed against his own decision as magistrate, asking that the fine should be reduced. The Appeal court, however, upheld the sentence in its entirety."

Some men rise by airplane and others by plain air.

You Never Used Such a Soap!

KIRK'S ORIGINAL COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE

Millions are Discarding Old Favorites for it

Try a cake of this amazing toilet soap and we'll wager you'll use it always.

Women are wild about the way it lathers in hard water—a bubbly lather that whisks away dirt, kills germs and tones up skin and hair.

They also like its clean, inviting odor and assured purity. A generous cake costs 10c.

insist on KIRK'S ORIGINAL COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE

If your dealer can't supply you with Kirk's Cocoa Hardwater Castile Soap, mail this coupon to James S. Kirk & Co., 1232 W. North Ave., Chicago, for free trial cake. Write your dealer's name and address on margin.

Name

Address

DON'T NEGLECT inflamed eyelids or other eye irritations. You will find a soothing and safe remedy in MITCHELL EYE SALVE.
HALL & RUCKEL New York City
25¢ at all druggists.

IRRITATING RASHES
For quick, lasting relief from itching and burning, doctors prescribe
Resinol

Ends pain in one minute
CORNS
Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads is the safe, sure, healing treatment for corns. At drug and shoe stores. For Free Sample write The Scholl Mfg. Co., Chicago
Dr Scholl's Zino-pads
Put one on—the pain is gone!

FEARS EXTINCTION OF STATES QUAIL

Dr. John N. Lowe, Northern State Normal biologist, is convinced that nothing short of a closed season for a period of four or five years will save patridges from extinction. In three weeks of travel through the densely wooded parts of Keweenaw County, he says he saw only six birds of this species. Only a few years ago they could be seen by the hundreds.

Unseasonable weather during the spring season may have been responsible for a part of this great shortage, says Dr. Lowe, but the heavy slaughter in late years or since the advent of the automobile, has been a greater factor. Like the heath hen in Massachusetts, the passenger pigeon in the northern zone of the United States and the giant auk, the partridge is disappearing. Disease is not killing them; rather it is a lack of contact and a reduction in numbers below the breeding range. When any species of game or birds gets below th irreducible minimum, extinction is bound to follow and unless Michigan steps into the breach with a firmer hand, the next generation will not know what a partridge looks like.

Tourist Travel In State Is Record Despite Late Spring

A retrospective study of the tourist and resort season throughout western Michigan stamps it as perhaps the most successful in the history of this region, despite the late spring and the early fall.

It is largely as the result of the season's success that business men of Antrim county have taken under consideration the question whether they shall adopt a program to systematically develop and advertise the great scenic resources of that district.

The city government at Petoskey recently indicated that it is fully cognizant of the importance of the tourist business by planning better parks, swimming pools, tennis courts and other facilities for the benefit of visitors.

To keep the Lake Michigan shore clean, it is contemplated by Petoskey to erect a sewage disposal plant near the lake front. The plant will utilize the most modern scientific methods and will occuy a building of pleasing design.

New Dormitory at Albion College Opens

Susanna Wesley hall, the new dormitory for Albion college women, has opened its doors to 200 co-eds to enjoy the scholastic and social privileges. The "dorm" is located in an eight-acre grove, on Michigan avenue, or state highway M-17, as it is also known, two blocks from the campus.

In the corridors resound the footsteps of every type of girl, the "sweet sixteen girl graduate" just out of high school and anxious to get acquainted with college life; the girl who has been working for some time previous to entering college and has a more sophisticated manner; the carefree girl who always skips and sings; and the student who treads very quietly and in a dignified manner.

$10,000 Playhouse for 10-Year-Old Daughter

A "playhouse" costing approximately $10,000 has been built on her Meadow Brook estate by Mrs. Alfred Wilson, formerly Mrs. John F. Dodge, for her 10-year-old daughter. The house of 22 feet by 30 feet is heated by electricity. It has a reception hall, parlors, bedrooms and all the equipment of an uptodate home. It is furnished throughout with expensive furniture, and virtually nothing has been omitted that might add to the comfort of its little mistress.

260 Fish Collected by State Scientists

Dr. Carl L. Hubbs and Leonard P. Schulz have returned to the University of Michigan after four months spent in the west collecting fishes and the study of their distribution.

This two-man expedition left Ann Arbor in June and began almost at once upon its work of taking fish. It collected no less than 260 individual species of fish, as well as snakes, lizards, toads, frogs, birds and insects.

$5,000 Produce Seen from Hillsdale Farm

With its bumper crop nearly harvested, indications are that the Hillsdale county farm will break the record set last year when more than $5,000 worth of produce was sold. The 300-acre farm is under the supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foster, practical farmer, assisted by his son Ellsworth, and the son's young wife.

MYSTERY SNAKES PROVED MYTHS

Snakes have been dreaded by human beings ever since the historic incident in the Garden of Eden. This inherent fear of reptiles has served to foster many fantastic myths, especially in the minds of primitive people. Even those who should not be affected by such superstitious yarns have believed in hoop snakes that roll with race horse speed in pursuit of their victims or "stinger" snakes that spear their prey with a poisonous spikelike tail, cow-sucking snakes, and like weird tales. It has long been known that these stories are mere myths with no foundation in fact.

The United States Bureau of Biological Survey has also proven by actual tests that most of the time-honored methods presumed to be effective in warding off reptiles are mere delusions. The western cowboy long believed that a hair rope laid on the ground encircling his sleeping blankets would ward off prowling rattlers, but it has been proven that his snakeship will actually crawl over such a barrier without hesitation. The use of certain plants as snake repellants such as the mountain ash, the snake gourd, the horseshoe geranium, and others, and of certain other alleged repellants such as cayenne pepper, fresh slaked lime, powdered sulphur, have been proven to be without any such mreit. Snakes are also immune to many poisonous gases such as phosgene, chlorine and tear chemcials. Mustard gas does, however, blind rattlesnakes when introduced into their rock retreats.

The use of stout leather boots or leggings is the best safeguard when walking where snakes are liable to be encountered.

BATS TO ANTS AS PETS IN BIG CITY

"Have you any live bats in stock?" was the inquiry recently made in a Detroit pet store.

"No, we haven't," replied the veteran proprietor, without showing any surprise—you'd think it was a common thing for him to get calls for bats. "Not enough demand to stock 'em, but I can get you some."

"Good ! Put in an order for fifive bats for me."

"What in the world do you suppose any person wants to do with bats?" a bystander exclaimed with a trace of a shudder, after the man had departed.

The bats when they arrive are going to be imported ones. There isn't any commercial bat industry in this otherwise diversified country. The nearest bat jobber has his business headquarters in Cobalt, Ont., and that's where the shipment of five is coming from.

"First I'll have to get a government permit from Washington—official permission to bring the animals across the border," said Mr. Lamb. "But I'll undoubtedly get that o. k. Then within a few days the customer will have the merchandise his heart is set on. Yes, I wouldn't be surprised if the bats did come from an abandoned copper mine at Cobalt."

Since the man with the "batty" tastes neglected to express his motives, it is uncertain whether he wants the exotic creatures to study; to make experiments with, or as pets.

You'll assume that last "isn't possible" until you are informed about other strange beasts, insects and reptiles that people buy or that they catch, tame and sometimes train thmeselves. After hearing some of the actual cases of pet spiders, toads, skunks, snakes that people keep about thme, you'll concede the possibility at least to make pets of bats.

Ford Co. Sues for Unnamed Sum On Charge of Graft

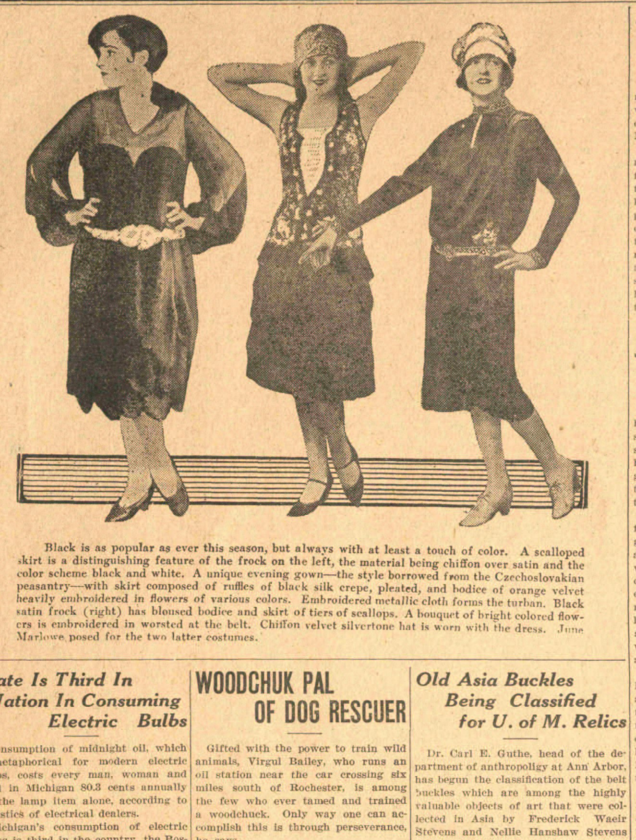
Graft said to involve several million dollars is charged against the Blair company, construction concern of Detroit, in a suit for damages of an undetermined amount filed in the Detroit court by the Ford Motor company.

The bill charges the Blair company bribed Ford employes to accept inferior material at exorbitant prices for construction projects at Detroit, at Somerville, Mass., and Memphis Tenn. The defendant by bribery also had accepted padded accounts for payment of labor not actually supplied, the complaint alleges.

The Ford company, the bill states, has already paid the defendant $5,075,273 on account of the work and is unable to determine the amount of alleged damages because of inability to separate the fradulent transactions from the remainder of the operations.

A good deal more than statesmanship is needed to keep the country off the rocks.

Perspiration always wins in a finish fight with talcum powder.



Black is as popular as ever this season, but always with at least a touch of color. A scalloped skirt is a distinguishing feature of the frock on the left, the material being chiffon over satin and the color scheme black and white. A unique evening gown—the style borrowed from the Czechoslovakian peasantry—with skirt composed of ruffles of black silk crepe, pleated, and bodice of orange velvet heavily embroidered in flowers of various colors. Embroidered metallic cloth forms the turban. Black satin frock (right) has bloused bodice and skirt of tiers of scallops. A bouquet of bright colored flowers is embroidered in worsted at the belt. Chiffon velvet silvertone hat is worn with the dress. June Marlowe posed for the two latter costumes.

State Is Third In Nation In Consuming Electric Bulbs

Consumption of midnight oil, which is metaphorical for modern electric lamps, costs every man, woman and child in Michigan 80.3 cents annually for the lamp item alone, according to statistics of electrical dealers.

Michigan's consumption of electric lamps is third in the country, the Boston and San Francisco districts being slightly larger, indicating a high percentage of electrification of homes in the state, 75 per cent being the figure given, against 90 per cent for California.

Dig Potatoes at Once, Is Warning to Farmers

Potatoes should be harvested immediately, tuber specialists of Michigan State college broadcast to the growers in the state today. Weather and growth conditions have made necessary this rush to save the crop from frost conditions.

Because of the heavy rains this year, potatoes have "set" much nearer to the ground than usual, say the specialists, and therefore are much more liable to damage by frost than in ordinary years.

Boy's Fingers Blown Off by Dynamite Cap

The nine-year old son of Mrs. Stella Gusham, who lives about one-half mile west of Fisherville, had the first phalanx of his thump, middle and index fingers on the right hand blown off and suffered an injury to his left eye which may cause him to lose the sight of it, when he exploded a dynamite cap by striking it with a rock. Another boy was present but suffered only a few minor injuries.

$10,000 Gift to U. of M. Engineering Students

A gift of $10,000 has been received by the University of Michigan from Mrs. S. H. Boal, of Oakland, Calif., to establish what will be known as the Robert Campbell Gemmell Memorial Scholarship for Engineering Students.

Robert Campbell Gemmell, in whose honor the scholarship has been created received his degree in civil engineering from the university in 1895. Mrs. Boal is a sister of Mr. Gemmell, whose death occured in 1922

Man and Son to Take Long Journey in Cruiser

Automobiles and airplanes hold little interest to Dennis J. Ferrell, former Muskegon business man. His hobby is sailing, and a few days ago with his 12-year-old son Giles, he left Muskegon in the Cachalot, a 36-foot cabin cruiser, for a voyage down the Mississippi river to the Gulf of Mexico, htence to Florida and to the West Indies and South America.

The descent from monkeys seems more recent in some men than in others.

WOODCHUK PAL OF DOG RESCUER

Gifted with the power to train wild animals, Virgul Bailey, who runs an oil station near the car crossing six miles south of Rochester, is among the few who ever tamed and trained a woodchuck. Only way one can accomplish this is through perseverance, he says.

"Chuckie, who is now about four months old, came to me in the most unusual manner," said Mr. Bailey, holding the woodchuck in his arms and gently rubbing the stubby black nose. Chuckle whistled a sign of content and snuggled closer as fingers rubbed the back of the small bat-like ears.

"I came down to the station early one rainy morning with Gip," said he, and he pointed to a bull-terrier, who cocked his ears at the mention of his name.

"Gip sniffed the air and ran growling to the apple orchard back of the station. He hadn't been gone more than a minute when I heard some loud yipping. There was Gip snapping at the heels of a big collie dog, who disappeared through an opening in the orchard fence. Gip went back into the orchard and a short while later he came to the station door with Chuckie in his mouth.

"The little fellow was about two days old and the collie had dug out the nest and had killed his four sisters and brothers. I found them lying beside the ruined den. The parents had fled.

"I placed a box filled with hay in one corner of the station andthis became the bed of Gip and Chuckie. Gip stayed in the station the first night and the next morning I found Chuckie curled up on the box beside Gip and keeping pretty warm. Gip sleeps with him every night."

Petoskey Postman Catches Huge Fish

Robert Reber, member of the Petoskey post office letter carrier force, besides being a good letter carrier is a champion fisherman. He captured a 20.5 pound lake trout in his small net in the bay. The fish measured just an even yard in lenght

Huge Fruit Shipments from Benton Harbor

BENTON HARBOR.—A new record A new record has been set by Benton Harbor fruit dealers in the volume of fruit handled in one day. September 29, 150,000 packages of fruit passed through the Benton Harbor fruit market, which was exceeded the following day.

300 Pies in Pumpkin

One of the prize exhibits at the Armada fair recently was a pumpkin that weighs 96 pounds. The mammoth gourd was grown on the farm of Paul Schmidt near Romeo. It has been estimated that more than 300 average size pies could be made from it.

Old Asia Buckles Being Classified for U. of M. Relics

Dr. Carl E. Guthe, head of the department of anthropoligy at Ann Arbor, has begun the classification of the belt buckles which are among the highly valuable objects of art that were collected in Asia by Frederick Waeir Stevens and Nellie Hanshaw Stevens of Grand Rapids and are to become eventually the property of the University of Michigan.

These buckles are about 150 in number. Each has a pattern of its own. They vary in material from the richest and most prized jade to simple wood or horn. A great many are ornamented with smi-precious stones, cloisonne enamels and glass of the deep blue tones that for centuries the Chinese alone could febricate. Others are of brass filigree and fretwork designs.

Dr. Guthe believes that very nearly all the buckles were a long time in course of manufacture, since each of them was a production of an artist and the labor upon it was carried through from the beginning to end by handcraft. It is considered probable that some of the more costly pieces came out of the famous imperial ivory works, which were shops set up in the palace at Pekin toward the end of the seventeenth century. The last of these shops did not disappear until 1869.

The buckles were attached to belts that were part of the "dress" costume of the mandarin classes during the flourishing times of the last imperial house of China. They were worn both by men and women. A few helped to support swords at the waist.

College Dance Loss Refutes Youths' Love for Steps

The assertion that the younger generation of the present day is dance-mad is given a severe jolt in the statement of Mrs. Fanny Cheever Burton, social director of State Normal College, which reveals for the first time that the all-college dances given last year under the supervision of the normal, ran up a deficit of $700 because of lack of patronage by the students. The parties will be suspended in the near future unless admissions cover the cost.

Previous to last year the college dances have been self-supporting, and no one appears to know the reason for the sudden falling off in attendance. The co-eds are not required to have permits from the dean of women to attend.

Poultry Theft Loot in State Near $6,000,000

A $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of poultry thieves was proposed before the board of supervisors at Grand Rapids by Supervisor M. B. McPherson, who submitted a resolutin with this provision.

"Michigan is now suffering an annual loss of $6,000,000 a year due to poultry theft," he said. "The time has come when something must be done."

3 Years Required In Experimental Spuds From Seed Boll

Three years are required to grow normal potatoes from a seed boll, it was stated by Prof. H. C. Moore, head of the research work in potatoes at Michigan State College.

Professor Moore declared breeding new and better varieties of potatoes from seed bolls is a much harder task than the average person might think, knowing how easy it is to plant a seed piece in the Spring and harvest a half dozen tubers in the Fall. He said tests at the college now have been running three years and growing conditions have been so favorable this season it appears normal potatoes will be harvested from the experimental plots this Fall.

JACKSON MAN HAS ANCIENT RELICS

Indian relics fashioned by primitive hands long before Tut-ankh-amen held sway in ancient Egypt, and grotesque stone fragments, believed by some to have been shaped by the movement of glaciers 40,000 years ago, are among the interesting antiques in the collection of William Miller of Grass Lake.

Collecting is not just a passing fancy with Miller, but has been of great interest to him all his life. As a boy, roaming a territory more or less virgin so far as the white man was concerned, he found written in the earth the archaeological records of a race that was fast vanishing. Arrowheads and spearheads found in abundance in places told of battles waged in the long ago by the war-like aborigines.

William Miller's father, Orrin Miller, came to Michigan in the early 40's and located on what is now know as the Greenwood farm, 3½ miles east of the present village of Grass Lake, the oldest village in the county. Here he built a frame house which still stands, having "weathered many moons," as the Indians would say.

Miller has 300 arrowheads, ranging from creamy white to coal black. Some are transparent. Several contain clusters of Tennessee diamonds, leading to the belief that the Indians obtained some of their flint by barter with southern tribes.

Few Indian names have been perpetuated in Jackson county and about all that remains to indicate that the aborigines once inhabited the territory is a few wooden images found in front of cigar stores, and the archaeological history written in the earth's surface.

Michigan State trunk line No. 17, which passes through Grass Lake, was once an Indian trail.

Jackson Fireman Sick 1 Day in 34 Years on Job

Thirty-four years a fireman and the loss of but one day because of illness is the remarkable record of John E. Brewer, 71 years old, of Jackson, who, January 1, next, will retire from active service on pension.

Brewer joined the Jackson department June , 892. In his first year of service he lost one day because of an attack of grippe, but since then he has registered a perfect attendance on duty.

Motor Manufacturer to Build at Charlevoix

Plans are being drawn by a firm of Lansing architects for a residence to be known as Oldswood Lodge, that R. E. Olds, motor manufacturer, will build on his recently purchased lake property near Charlevoix. The estate comprises 150 acres.

State College Co-Ed Curbed in Book Study

Co-eds at Michigan State College are conceded to be as industrious as the men and often rate higher in cholastic achievement. But fate has played a rather strange trick on the freshman girls and decreed that they shall not study after 8:45 p. m. from books owned by the college library.

Detroit Youth Heads State College Frat

Harold Marsh, Detroit, a junior at Michigan State college, has been elected president of the Green Key, an honorary men's fraternity at the college. John Cook, of Owosso, is vice-president, and Robert Scott, of Alpena, was chosen secretary-treasurer.

Hastings Man Ends Life With Dynamite Stick

After brooding over domestic troubles and indebtedness, Sherman Wright, 59, residing near Hastings, committed suicide by blowing his head off with a steik of dynamite which he placed in his mouth. Hearing the explosion, Wright's wife and four children found his mutilated body.

DECLARES HEN NOT APPRECIATED

The American hen is about to enter state polities. Her petition for membership is being drafted by officers of the Michigan Poultry Improvement Association.

Dr. L. F. Heasley, of Grand Rapids, president of the association, declares that few persons in Michigan or the United States, farmers not excepted, fully appreciate the annual earning power of the hen and her country confrers—the duck, goose, turkey and guinea hen. In his opinion the physical difference between the hen and a dairy cow, horse, sheep or hog has tended to blight the public's appreciation of the barnyard fowl.

Not even poultrymen were aware of their industry's economic importance until they decided they wanted the state legislature to appropriate funds for the erection of a new poultry administration building, a poultry disease laboratory and a modern poultry plant at Michigan State College. Then, Dr. Heasley and other officers of the Michigan Pouutry Improvement Association began searching Federal statistics to back up biddy's debut in politics.

Then men found that he annual value of the poultry crop in the United States is $1,047,000,000. Compared with other branches of the nation's agriculture, the value of the poultry crop is greate than all cattle in the United States; is six times the value of all horses and mules; seven times the value of all sheep; 12 times the value of the wool crop; is $300,000,000 greater than the wheat crop; five times the value of the apple crop; seven tives the combined value of the beet and cane sugar crops; three times the value of the tobacco crop; four times the value of all truck and garden crops; twice the combined value of the white and sweet potato crops; three times the value of all forest products, and is twice the value of all fruits combined.

Dr. Heasley said their study of Federal statistics showed that Michigan ranked eleventh as a poultry state in 1919. Since then, he said, the association estimated the poultry crop in the state has increased at least 50 per cent. The association also found that poultry is being kept on 180,693 of the 192,000 farms in the state.

These facts will be placed before the State Board of Agriculture and the agricultural committees of the Legislature by the paultry-men who are interested in obtaining better poultry equipment at Michigan State College.

The smaller the man, the less willing is he to confess his mistakes.

The main object in buying is to see that you get something worth taking home.

Ailing Women

10 DAY Free Trial

If every ailing woman and girl in America could see the stream of letters telling of the wonderful change that has been made in their lives through the use of Mrs. Summers Opaline Remedy they would immediately take heart. For 34 years this famous Treatment has brought the happiness that goes with health to thousands of women. Every suffering woman who is blue, discouraged, sick is invited to write in all confidence for full information regarding Mrs. Summers Home Treatment. Send in the coupon and a woman who understands and sympathizes will write you the cheering story and send you a generous trial which you can use without the knowledge or aid of anyone.

Summers Medical Co., Dept. 370.
South Bend, Ind.
Send me without obligation your 10 day Free Trial Offer Mrs. Summers Opaline Remedy.
Name ....
St. or R. F. D. ....
Town, State..............................

READ—

Ford's Master-piece in Industrial Economics, his "FIVE-DAY WEEK AT SIX-DAY PAY" Plan, and Story of Detroit — Why it is attracting World-Wide Interest. In October issue WORLD'S WORK MAGAZINE. Ask your newsdealer for it today.

GENERAL ELECTION

Notice is hereby given that a General Election will be held in the Township of Moscow County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan at Moscow Village within said Township, on Tuesday, November 2. A. D. 1926. For the purpose of voting for the election of the following officers, yiz: State—Governor; Lieutenant Governor; Secretary of State; State Treasurer; Auditor General; Attorney General Justice of the Supreme Court (to fill vacancy) for the term ending the thirty first day of December, nineteen hundred twenty nine.

Congressional—One Representative in Congress for the Congressional District of which said Township forms a part.

Legislative—One Senator in the State Legislature for the Senatorial District of which said township forms a part; one Representative in the State Legislature for the Legislative district of which said township forms a part.

County—Sheriff; County Clerk; County Treasurer; Register of Deeds; Prosecuting Attorney; Two Circuit Court Commissioners; Drain Commissioner; Two Coroners; and a County Surveyor; One County Road Commissioner.

NOTICE RELATIVE TO OPENING AND CLOSING OF THE POLLS

Act 351—Part IV—Chapter VIII, Public Acts of 1925.

Sec. 1. On the day of any election the polls shall be opened at seven o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as may be, and shall be continued open until five o'clock in the afternoon and no longer: Provided, That in townships the board of inspectors of election may, in its discretion, adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock noon, for one hour, and that the township board in townships and the legislative body in cities and villages may, by resolution adopted fifteen days prior to the election and published with the notice of the election, provide that the polls shall be opened at six o'clock in the forenoon and may also provide that the polls shall be kept open not later than eight o'clock in the evening of the same day.

The Polls of said election shall be open at 7:00 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 5:00 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall, in their discretion, adjourn the Polls at 12 o'clock, noon, for oneh our.

Dated September 20, A. D. 1926.
Ford McCowan, Clerk of said Township. 2ot3

NOTICE

Proposition for the County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan, to employ Public Health Nurses.

Notice is hereby given to the Qualified Electors of the County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan, that at the time and places of holding the next General Election in each of the several voting precincts of said County, on Tuesday November 2 A. D. 1926.

A proposition will be submitted to said Electors to Employ Public Health Nurses as provided by Act. No. 7, of Public Acts of 1925.

Said Proposition will be voted upon by ballot in the following form, viz.: "Is it your wish that the Board of Supervisors of Hillsdale County, Employ Public Health Nurses as provided by Act. No. 7, of the Public Acts of 1925?"

Every legally cast ballot found to have a cross marked by an elector in the square pertaining to the word "Yes" will be counted for said proposition, and every such ballot found to have a cross marked by an elector in the square pertaining to the word "No" will be counted against said proposition.

Dated September 25, A. D. 1926
Frank O. Hancock, Clerk of said County of Hillsdale.

Notice is hereby given that the place of holding said Election for the Township of Moscow, in said County will be at Moscow village.

And the polls of said election will be open at 7 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall, in their discretion, adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock, noon for one hour.

Dated September 25, 1926.
□Ford McCowan Clerk of said Township. 2ot3

NOTICE

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION

Notice is hereby given to The Qualified Elecors that at the time and places of holding the next GENERAL ELECTION in each of the several voting precincts of said County, on TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, A. D. 1926

There will be submitted at said election five proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Michigan as follows:

Compensation of members of the Legislature of Michigan.

Amendment to Section 9 of Article V of the Constitution relative to the compensation of members of the legislature.

Sec. 9. The compensation of the members of the Legislature shall be twelve hundred dollars for the regular session. When convened in extra session their compensation shall be ten dollars per day for the first twenty days and nothing thereafter. Members shall be entitled to ten cents per mile and no more for one round trip to each regular session of the Legislature by the usually traveled route. Each member shall be entitled to one copy of the laws, journals and documents of the Legislature of which he is a member, but shall not receive, at the expense of the State books or newspapers not expressly authorized by this Consititution.

Term of office of County Sheriffs.

Amendment to Section 5 of Article VIII of the Constitution relative to the term of office of county sheriffs.

Sec. 5. The sheriff shall hold no other office. He shall be elected at the general election for the term of two years. He may be required by law to renew his security from time to time and in default of giving such security, his office shall be deemed vacant. The county shall never be responsible for his acts.

Creation of Metropolitan Districts.

Amendment to Article VIII of the Constitution relative to the creation of metropolitan districts by cities, villages or townships.

Sec. 31. The Legislature shall by general law provide for the incorporation by any two or more cities, villages or townships, or any combination or parts of same, of metropolitan districts comprising territory, within their limits, for the purpose of acquiring, owning and operating either with or without their limits as may be prescribed by law parks or public utilities for supplying sewage disposal, drainage, water, light, power or transportation, or any combination thereof, any such district may sell or purchase, either within or without its limits as may be prescribed by law, sewage disposal or drainage rights, water, light, power or transportation facilities. Any such districts shall have power to acquire and succeed to any or all of the rights, obligations and property of such cities, villages and townships respecting or connected with such functions or public utilities: Provided, That no city, village or township shall surrender any such rights, obligations or property without the approval thereof by a majority vote of the electors thereof voting on such question. Such General law shall limit the rate of taxation of such districts for their municipal purposes and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. Under such general law, the electors of each district shall have power and authority to frame, adopt and amend its charter upon the approval thereof by a majority vote of the electors of each city, village or township, voting on such question, and through, its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, subject to the constitution and general laws of this State.

Condemnation of excess land and property for boulevards, streets, etc.

Amendment to Article XIII of the Constitution relative to the condemnation of excess land and property for boulevards, streets, etc.

Sec. 5. Subject to this Constitution the Legislature may authorize municipalities, subject to reasonable limitations, to condemn and to take the fee to more land and property than is needed in the acquiring, opening and widening of boulevards, streets and alleys, or for any public use, and after so much of the land and property has been appropriated for any such needed public purpose, the remainder may be sold or leased with or without such restrictions as may be appropriate to the improvement made. Bonds may be issued to supply the funds to pay in whole or in part for the excess property so appropriated but such bonds shall be a lien only on the property so acquired and they shall not be included in any limitation of the bonded indebtedness of such municipality.

Revision of the Constitution.

Shall the constitution of this state be revised and a convention called therefor?

NOTICE is Hereby Given, That the place of holding said election in the Township of Moscow (Precinct No.) Will be at Moscow Village and the polls of said election will be open at 7:00 o'clock a. m., and will remain open until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall in their discretion adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock noon for one hour.

FORD McCOWAN
Clerk of said Township.
Dated October 7, 1926.

Mrs. Sarah Kelley and Mrs. Isha Nichols of Stryker Ohio visited Friday and Saturday at the Methodist parsonage in this village.

Hotels
MADISON and LENOX
DETROIT
In Detroit's downtown center close to all public buildings, theatres and department stores. Quality of accommodation considered; the rates are the most reasonable in all Detroit
MADISON AVE. NEAR GRAND CIRCUS PARK

CORRESPONDENCE

Jerome

George Morehouse of Jackson was in town Monday.

Ora Potter and mother of Pittsford were in town Sunday.

George Miller of Jackson visited Mrs. M. Hammons Sunday.

Dorothy Ward spent the week end with relatives in Jackson.

A bridge gang has completed repairs upon the N. Y. C. depot.

Lawrence Wylie and brother of North Adams were in town Sunday evening.

Leon Anderson and Miss Marian Hatch of Horton were in town Sunday.

Harry McClanahan, Clarence Kane and Arthur Burns were in Jonesville Sunday.

Chas Harper and family of Marshall, A. O. Hart and family of Jackson, H. A. Voorhees and family of Hanover visited R. O. Sawdey and wife Sunday.

J. E. Lane and family of Hillsdale, V. C. Green and wife of Pittsford and Harry Bryant of Jackson were entertained Sunday at the Thomas Lane home.

The Boy Scouts spent an enjoyable evening Friday at the I. O. O. F. Hall. Speeches were given by Rev. Johns, Clayton McGregor and Arthur Boyay after which refreshments were served.

Glen Marriott was badly injured Wednesday morning when he was run down by a state highway truck on the Chicago turnpike while he was on his way to work. Marriott did not hear the truck as it came up behind him. The truck driver was unable to avoid him because of the presence of teams which were at work on the road, besides the trucks are not equipped with brakes which made it difficult for the driver to stop. The victim was taken to Hillsdale hospital for treatment.

Mrs. N. A. Linsday aged 59 passed away Wednesday afternoon at the Hillsdale Hospital where she was taken about three weeks ago following an auto accident in Hillsdale. Mrs. Linsday who was the daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth Martin, was born 59 years ago in Somerset township and had spent all her life here. Besides the husband she is survived by 7 children and several grandchildren. The children are Wayne, A. H. and Dorothy Linsday of this place. Mrs. Lee Kies, Moscow, Mrs. R. L. Talmage, Hillsdale, Mrs. Josephine Skuren, Jackson and Mrs. Glenn Marriott Jerome.

Jonesville

Mrs. Harry Godfrey is visiting in Cleveland.

F. E. Freeman and wife of Sycamore Ill. were in Jonesville during the week.

Mrs. Edward Merchant entertained the Culture club Tuesday of this week.

W. M. Wetmore and L. A. Rainey with their wives spent Sunday in Toledo.

Miss Mildred Arnold of Albion spent the week end at the Graham home here.

R. B. Howard, A. H. Rodlam and R. S. Varnum are in Chicago this week.

Miss Frances Wetmore is enjoying a two weeks vacation in Washington D. C.

Mrs. E. M. Collins attended the Eastern Star convention in Saginaw during the week.

The dry goods store owned by L. W. Sibbald of this place has been sold to Louden Brothers' of Montpelier Ohio.

Mrs. Grace Coleman was in Battle Creek last week to attend the funeral of her brother-in-law Frank Coleman.

Mrs. Merle Andreas and little son of Hastings were visitors from Thursday until Sunday of her grand parents John T. Reed and wife.

The Helen Childs Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. L. A. Rainey on Wednesday October 27, Mrs. W. G. Pitkin of Howe Ind. will be present and will speak on India, having lived in that country.

Mrs. Ralph Williamson, President of the Woman's club is in attendance at the State Federation of Womens' clubs at Ann Arbor, other members of the club who will attend are Mrs. E. B. Gregory, Mrs. Arthur Merchant and Mrs. Grace Coleman.

The Wednesday afternoon 500 club met with Mrs. George Godfrey on Wednesday last week. After a one o'clock luncheon election of officers for the year took place. Mrs. Mayme McKercher, President and Mrs. Gertrude Fogg, Sec. and Treas.

The 51st Annual Convention of the Hillsdale County W. C. T. U. met at Churches Corners October 12 and 13. A large number of members attended from North Adams and several of our ladies appeared on the program. Mrs. Jennie Lipe a State worker and Mrs. Mamie Fulton, District President gave inspirational talks on both days. Mrs. Lipe organized a new union at Pittsford with 30 members. Mrs. Midgley spoke in regard to women attending court sessions when liquor cases were being tried and helping the dry cause by their presence. Mrs. Viola Moore spoke of the need of a County Nurse and the assembly voted to help in electing one at November election. Officers elected; Pres. Mrs. Mabel Bennett, Hillsdale; vice pres., Mrs. Geneva Crisp, Wheatland; cor-sec., Mrs. L. W. Stephenson, Hillsdale; rec-sec., Mrs. Lillian Hawley, Wheatland; treas., Miss Ethel Clement, North Adams. The Convention adjourned to meet next year at Pittsford.

Moscow Chapter O. E. S. observed Past Matron's night last Friday evening, the affair was beautiful and impressive throughout. After chapter a banquet was tendered the Brothers and Sisters also Brother Masons and invited friends. Decorations were beautifully carried out in the chapter colors, and many candles casting their mellow lights over the long tables added further beauty. The favors were pretty little baskets filled with mints. Mr. Lynton Leighton was Master of Ceremonies. After the banquet Mrs. Minnie Buchanan gave the address of Welcome, while other toasts from Mr. and Mrs. McBain, Mrs. Maude Masker, Mrs. Ethel Tyler and Mrs. Mae Crane were enjoyed by all. To the Roll call for remarks Levi Strait, Master of the Blue Lodge, and Fred Keyes and wife and Mr. Fowle graciously responded. Visitors were present from Jackson, Jonesville, Concord and North Adams. Moscow Chapter will hold a Fair October 22and and everyone is cordially invited.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Meeting called to order by Pres. Stevens. Roll call. Trustees present Caswell, Fry, Eggleston, Carney, Mercer; absent Ford.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved as read

On motion several bills were allowed.

Judd Gray Drawing gravel	16.50
So Mich. Power Co. September Light	299.75
L. V. Harvey Postals	8.00
J. W. Losey Labor and gravel	6.00
Ford Graves Lumber Co. cement	.75
So Mich Power Co. Street Switch	15.00
F. I. Williams cement	16 71
Henry Comley Labor	12.00
Ray Walters gas and oil	1.43
Adams Twp work on road	56 65
F. W. Holcomb collecting tax	23.61
J. W. Losey gravel	3.25

Motion made that Ray Walters be appointed fire chief, carried

Motion made that Herbert Patton, Lynn Ford and Lester Ford and Bert Tripp act as ass't Fire chief (carried)

Motion made that Ray Walters request to install a gasoline pump in front of the store building now owned by B. I. Lynch on Main street be granted and the installation shall be under the supervision of street committee, carried.

On motion of Trustee Carney meeting was adjourned.

B. R. Shepard, Clerk

Dairy Show At Detroit

The National Dairy Show was held at Detroit from October 6 to 13. The girls who went from Hillsdale County were Ruth Clement of Pittsford on canning; Etta Lindsey and Maurene Cronk of Litchfield, and Maurene Taylor of North Adams on sewings. The girls were assisted by Miss Keller of Hillsdale.

The boys were Ellsworth Zimmerman, Robert and Raymond Laser of Waldron; Willie Roost, Yale Salsbury of Camden; Arthur Case, Charles Monroe, Robert Clement Erwin Rumsey of Pittsford; also Cecil Crowe, Willie Miller, Dean Emens, Jack and Orvil Stone, Curtis Smith, Laurel Bailey, Lawrence More; also Lemuel Rhodes of North Adams. These boys were assisted by the County Club Agent, L. H Matthias an S. J. Garret of Moscow. They are showing thirty four head of cattle.

There were 300 club members, leaders and visitors registered at the Club headquarters. Twenty one states were represented Michigan lead the states with over a hundred enrolled Ohio has 35, New York 34, Indiana 21.

National Herd Classes. Group of five, Michigan won second prize in Guernseys. There were four from Hillsdale County: Jack Stone Hillsdale, Lawrence Moore Ransom, Carl Luderman Reading, and Raymond Shafer Reading.

Holsteins—Second prize for Michigan. Two from Hillsdale County: Yale Salsbury Woodbridge; Ellsworth Zimmerman of Waldron.

Also third prize—Two from Hillsdale County. Raymond Laser, Waldron and Charles Monroe Pittsford.

Jerseys. Michigan—Fifth prize. All from Hillsdale County: Trevor Dryer, Willow Newell and Willie Roost Camden; Robert Bailey Reading, Sircey Simons Hillsdale. Michigan Special. Hillsdale County first in all breeds, Holsteins, Guernseys and Jerseys. Each group consisted of seven females. Raymond Laser of Waldron won first in the National Dairy showing contest.

Dawn Theatre Hillsdale
A Butterfield Theatre

October 22
FRIDAY
Richard Dix in
"MEN AND WOMEN"

October 24 and 25
SUNDAY and MONDAY
Gloria Swanson in
"FINE MANNERS"

October 23
SATURDAY
Buck Jones in
"THE FIGHTING BUCKAROO"

October 26 and 27
Tuesday and Wednesday
Colleen Moore in
"ELLA CINDERS"

Thursday, October 28
James Kirkwood in "THE WISE GUY"

PUTS MORE ON LIFE AND LESS ON DEATH IN LIFE INSURANCE

An Ideal Contract
issued by the
Rockford Life Insurance Co.
of ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS

What a $10,000 Contract will do In event of death from natural causes the Company will pay $10,000 In event of death from accident the Company will pay $20,000

When you are 65 years old, the compauy will pay you $10,000

If you become totally and permanently disabled prior to the age of 65, during such disability, all premium payments are waived and the Company will pay you $1,200 per year as long as such disability continues, or until the face of the policy becomes payable when in event of death, or when you are 65 years old, the Company will pay $10,000

This is only one of our many contracts. If you are interested in Life Insurance buy in an Old Line Legal Reserve Company.

Get our Rates before you buy, from
GEORGE A. LYNCH, Special Representative
For THE ROCKFORD LIFE INS. CO.
Assistant Cashier Citizens' Bank, North Adams. Mich.

Free This Week Only
October 18th to 23rd, 1926
FREE KITCHEN-WARE SET

BY special arrangement with the Majestic Manufacturing Company we will give without cost to every purchaser of a Majestic Range, the handsome Kitchen Ware Set shown below. It is made of Extra Heavy. easy cleaning de-luxe nickel-plated Copper. Beautiful, bright and durable. We offer this unusual bargain only because thesc sets help to advertise the wonderful Majestic Range

The Great Majestic Range

Free Demonstration. Free Kitchenware Offer This Week Only.

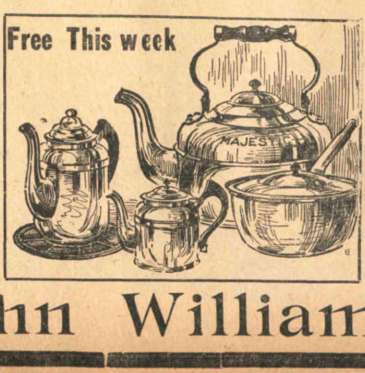
OUR Free Kitchenware Offer is good for this week only during factory demonstration of the Great Majestic Range. Don't miss this opportunity.

Come Sure! Plan Now!

MRS. BROWN will be there, so will Mrs. Smith. In fact, you will probably meet most of your friends and neighbors at the Majestic demonstration all this week. Everybody is welcome. We are trying to make this the biggest and most instructive demonstration ever held in this community. That's why we are arranging to have an expert from the Majestic factory here to answer all questions. He will explain in detail why the Majestic costs less per year than any other range in the world; how it saves fuel and repairs and assures better cooking.

The Range With A Reputation
IMPORTANT

THIS free offer is good on all models of the Majestic including the new model shown by us. Experts have called this the finest range ever built, Uses less fuel, yet bakes perfectly, All copper reservoir gives abundant hot water all the time without extra fuel. Burnished blue polished top requires little work. Beautiful throughout with heavy nickel trimmings.



Saves Money. Beautiful. Bakes Better

ANY Housewife ought to consider well the cooking and wearing qualities, the fuel economy and the appearance of the range she buys. Surely you know from experience with other things. that its false economy to huy a poor range that wears out quickly and often makes the best cook fail. The only true economy is economy in the long run. Therein lies the economy of the Majestic. It cuts down fuel and repair bills, and its long life of never failing efficiency makes it cost less per year of service than any other range in the world.

A SQuare Deal—Why?

THE Majestic Range demonstration is your best guarantee of complete satisfactian. Here you learn everything about the range in advance. You study it with other women who are just as anxious as you are to cook better and "buy right." There is no high pressure salesmanship. No knocking at your back door urging you to buy a bargain range you have never seen before. We are the local Majestic dealers. And we will be Right Here (long after your range is old) to guarantee its performance.

REMEMBER
Its This Week

John Williams

NORTH ADAMS
MICHIGAN

THE NORTH ADAMS ADVOCATE

ol. XXXI NORTH ADAMS, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1926 No. 22

Greendale Dairy

MANUFACTURERS OF
Pure Creamery Butter
Will Pay Cash for Good Cream
North Adams, : Michigan

THE CITIZENS BANK
[Unincorporated]
North Adams, Mich.
Resources Over $500,000
H. M. WILCOX, Pres. J. M. WILLIAMS V. Pres
A. J. HOFFMAN, Cashier
MRS. GRACE DOOLITTLE, Assistant Cashier
Co-Partners
J. M. WILLIAMS C. W. BLEECH A. WILLIAMS EST
A. J. HOFFMAN H. M. WILCOX B. I. LYNCH

[a] Safety on your money
[b] Yield on your money

I.—SAFETY : Building and Loan societies put 100 per cent of their investments in Real Estate. It is estimated that there are 9,000,000 share holders in Building and Loan Societies, having $5,000,000 in assets. Wayne county Savings Bank has $74,204,528 in savings :$41,140,576 is invested in Real Estate. The Central Savings and Trust Company has $28,961,093 in Savings, $27,294,298 are invested in Real Estate. The New York Life Insurance Company has $151,000,000 in assets invested in Illinois.
$94,000,000 Real Estate
$21,000,000 Railroad Bonds
$35,000,000 Public Utilities
$1,000,000 Municipal
Surely these facts are conclusive evidence of the safety of Real Estate.
II.—YIELD : In yield one cannot find so generous a return anywhere. In ten (10) years the following yields have been realized : Detroit 630 per cent; New York 217 per cent; Chicago 195 per cent; Atlanta 162 per cent; San Francisco, 159 per cent; Boston 137 per cent; Minneapolis 131 per cent; Kansas City 129 per cent; St. Louis 124 per cent; Cleveland 119 per cent; Philadelphia 116 per cent. Detroit yields three times as much as its next ranking city.
See DICK McBAIN, Moscow.

B. E. TAYLOR, Realtor
Community Builder
521-529 Ford Bldg. DETROIT, C H.

we will sell all
WALL PAPERS
in stock at a
25 PER CENT
DISCOUNT

H. E. Young & Son
NORTH ADAMS, MICH.

Local News

Patronize the item box at the post office.

The Woman's club will meet with Mrs. Allie Holkins Monday November 1st.

—Apples for sale—Spies and Baldwins. Everett Williams, Phone 1104 22t3

Mrs. C. M. Worden of Hillsdale visited Rev. and Mrs. Jandy from Monday until Wednesday.

Mrs. Frances Rickerd left on Thursday for points in Pennsylvania where she will visit relatives until Thanksgiving.

The W.F.M.S. of the M. E. church will meet at the home of Mrs. Lois Holcomb afternoon November 3.

Alfred Haight has disposed of the milk business to his neighbor Clifford Reed, who takes posses on Saturday, Oct. 30.

Jay D. Knowles, W. A. Lawrence and Rev. H. E. Wylie attended a district meeting of the M. E. church at Albion Tuesday.

Manassah Kempton and wife have returned from a two weeks visit with their son Lawrence and family at Mt Vernon Ohio.

The Missionary Union of the Congregational church will meet at the home of Mrs. Harold Young Wednesday afternoon Nov. 3rd.

The S. E. class of the Congregational church will meet in the parlors of the church Tuesday evening Nov. 2. Potluck supper and program

Mrs. A. H. Morey who has been spending the summer with her son in Chicago returned to the Raymond Barker home last Friday for the winter.

The dancing party which was to have been given at Lynch's Hall will be held instead at the Town Hall to-night (Friday evening)

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Patton Mr. and Mrs. Homer Swope, of Jonesville are in Detroit to attend a meeting of B. Station Agents of the Standard Oil Co.

Fred Rumsey will conduct an auction on the farm one half mile east of North Adams Wednesday, November 3rd, beginning at 1:00 p. m. see ad on inside pages.

Mrs. Frank Boyd and daughters, Thelma and Mrs. Jack Herndon of Detroit were in North Adams a few hours on Saturday on their way to visit friends in Hillsdale.

October 25th being the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Westcott, Carl Binns and family, Chester Binns and wife of Detroit came to help celebrate the occasion.

J. F. Duguid and wife have received an announcement of the marriage of John G. Duguid to Miss Isabelle A. Chickering on October 26. Both are teachers in the Boyne City High School.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church will hold its meeting with Mrs. Will Scrivens Tuesday, Nov. 2nd, 1926. This is the first all-day meeting after the summer season. Let us make this a big meeting. Bring work for the Bazaar which will be held early in December. Pot luck dinner at noon. Bring dishes and silverware. Everybody come.

North Adams Motor Equipped

The new municipal fire engine arrived in town on Friday from Logansport. Indiana, and she is a dandy. Most of the day was passed in inspecting the machine and practice work by Mr. Walters who is to act as Fire Chief and driver He reports the speed went up to 45 pretty snappy, and she was just getting started, so there need be no anxiety about "stepping along" when the fire bell rings.

By correspondence with the Boyer Company at Logansport, we learn that they have mailed a picture of this rig to the Advocate, but unfortunately it has not reached us in time for this issue, so we plan to dwell on this subject at more length next week.

At any rate we shall take no back seats with Hillsdale or Jonesville now, since we have an up-to date fire fighting apparatus and men to man it, Should you happen to see a red streak along by your place, don't be needlessly alarmed, as it may be only practice work, then again it might be something more.

On this occasion as well as every other progression we have ever had. there have been calamity howlers, but that don"t dampen our ardor in the least, because it is verily the best buy the village ever made.

Some mugwump asked what had become of the old engine? Why bless you pardner, that is not an "engine;" it is merely a flower sprinkler, and 'twould be a real gladsome birthday present for Lew Meeks, to be used as a potato sprayer!

Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fred Westcott

As we assemble here together today to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of these good folks, who a half of a century ago decided to cast their lots together and be equal partners in all that the great future held in store for them.

We think of fifty years being a very long time indeed, and while we also think that during this period much is gone of life and of its joys for them. We hope and wish for them that very much remains, very much that will be real and much also in hopefulness which is the one great blessing that brightens the future for us all. Our memory seems to extend away back through these fifty years, to that dim and distant period, of that early Autumn day when the forest leaves were tinged with red and yellow and we could already hear in the rustling foliage the whisperings of approaching autumn, that Fred Westcott and Mary Spencer of Somerset started out on this journey of life together. While we were not priviledged to be present to congratulate the bride and groom and help remove the good things to eat from wedding banquet table, our hearts and appetite and best wishes were there present. In our mind's eye we can see the line up of carriages near by and the host of happy friends and relatives who had congratulated them this pleasant October day, fairest of the year, to witness this occasion. I fancy I can see the groom, as he would naturally appear, just a little nervous, and perhaps feeling awkward, even if not appearing so to others. At that time Somerset was called Gambleville by most people and at this same period North Adams was struggling to get away from that truly rural and commonplace name of Cutlers Corners. For the benefit and enlightment of the younger persons present, which for some unaccountable reason, seem to be girls of assorted sizes, that are with us today to help celebrate this anniversary of their Grandparents wedding, we will add that these were the good old days that we often hear the older generations speak of, when the Mothers wore sunbonnets, let their hair grow just as long as it wished to and their ears were visible, unscorned and unashamed. The little girls wore plain flannel dresses and nankeen pantalets and always said yes mum and no mum when spoken to and at school always escaped the birch rod correction that their little brothers who wore copper toed boots seemed to be in for. Some day these little girl Mothers will tell them, many things about Michigan and particularls about Somerset and the people why once lived in and around this beautiful little hamlet. They perhaps will tell them, there was a time when one could drive all the way from Somerset to Addison and at no time be out of sight of land owned by the Smith people who were among the early settlers in this locality. They will tell them of the old Chicago turnpike, this great thoroughfare that touches the high spots of the lower peninsula all the way across the state, an old stage route, over a picturesque highway which ran along near beautiful lakes of blue water so exquisitely clear glistening in the sunlight. Lakes with borders of green marvelously reflected in the water. We are sure that all present will agree with us when we make this statement. That it is one of the greatest blessings and pleasures of this life to be able to have lived always in one vicinity and especially one when there is so much real beauty of landscape, as well as the many good and lovable people whose place of abode was Somerset and the surrounding country, and the sweetness of that age comes to them, when they call to mind the characters associated with who won a part of this early history of fifty years ago. They were blessed with one son and three daughters also six grand daughters and and one grand son.

To wash a pillow, transfer the feathers to a muslin bag two or three times the size of the ticking, This may be done easily by sewing the edges of the opening of the ticking and bag together and shaking the feathers from one to the other, The feathers and ticking are washed separately. Scrub the feathers in a weak solution of washing soda, using a good suds.

CONTRACTOR and BUILDER
Estimates cheerfully given on remodeling or New Buildings.
BERT TRUMBLE 17t8
North Adams, Mich.

Methodist Church Calendar

REV. H. E. WYLIE, PASTOR
Supplication Period 10:00 A. M
Morning worship 11:00
Sabbath School 10:00 A. M.
Epworth League 6:00 P. M.
Evening Worship 7:00

BAPTIST CHURCH

A. REISER, PASTOR

Preaching service every Sunday at 10:30 a. m.
Sunday school at 11:45
Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:30.

Congregational Church Calendar

E. C. JANDY, Pastor

Regular morning worship at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school 11:45

Morning worship at the usual time. In the evening there will be a Missionary Thank Offering meeting to which all are invited.

Trucking—Stock to Detroit. Safe delivery guaranteed. Phone or call at Moscow Postoffice. Harry Mayo Moscow Mich. 20t3

—Dr. C. J. Howe, Optometrist Comfortable glasses, Hilldsale. 42t

—Permanent Wave without kinks or frizzes $8.00. Perfect steam and oil process Shampoo and re setting free. Marcelling 75c. Mrs. L. W. Sibbald, Jonesville Mich. Phone 63. 21t4

—Cider Mill running every day north of Moscow. Will make jell later. Bring in your apples. Will H. Little Moscow Mich. 20t3

For Sale—Corn Sheller, Cauldron Kettle, Tank Heater, Crosscut Saw, Scoop Scraper, Hay Fork and Hay Knife. Inquire at the Depot North Adams 22t3

For Sale—Round Oak Heating Stove, No. 40. Inquire of E. R. Benson at tne home os Miss Florence Benson on Wilbur street.

This is the time of year to get your auto lights put in and get a tube of Giant cement to patch the top. A. J. Carpenter

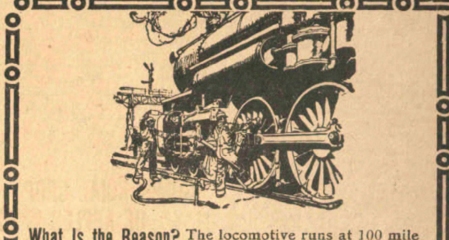
The monthly meeting of the S. P. I. Class held last Friday at the Methodist parsonage was a very enjoyable affair with a good attendance. Owing to the fact that church and outside arrangements fill the November calendar so full the next social meeting will not take place until the third Friday in December. All women eligible to join this class and not affiliated with other Sunday schools are cordially invited to meet with us, both at the Sunday study hour and the social activities. Mrs. Hattie Scrivens is the December hostess.

Logsdon—Shults

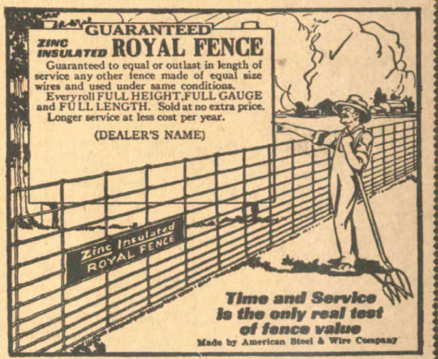
Miss Louise Logsdon and Mr. Harold L. Shults were married in Louisville Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's uncle, C. B. Basham, the Rev. W. Y. Davis pastor of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church, officiating.

Miss Logsdon who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Logsdon, is ons of our most popular and attractive young girls, and is the assistant clerk in the postoffice here. Mr. Shults whose home is at North Adams Mich., is connected with the firm building the Federal Highway here. Mr. and Mrs. Shults returned from Louisville to the home os the bride's parents, Lewis Logsdon and wife —Meade County (Ken.) Messenger.. The following Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Shults were given a belling by the "bunch" who worked under him on the road gang and the couple received $53 worth of silverware as a remembrance.

MONOPUL
The Quick Action Arctic or Galosh
MONOPUL means "one pull"
[One Pull—it slides open
One Pull—it slides shut]
"BALL BAND"
Ten Per Cent Discount on all Ladies and Children's Slippers and Pumps
R. A. BARBER



What Is the Reason? The locomotive runs at 100 mile clip day in and day out. Because it is fed. Likewise you keep up your daily work by eating of wholesome, juicy steaks at least once a day.
Our Meats and Groceries are always fresh
EDSON J. BENGE



GUARANTEED
ZINC INSULATED ROYAL FENCE
Guaranteed to equal or outlast in length of service any other fence made of equal size wires and used under same conditions.
Everyroll FULL HEIGHT, FULL GAUGE and FULL LENGTH. Sold at no extra price.
Longer service at less cost per year.
(DEALER'S NAME)
Zinc Insulated ROYAL FENCE
Time and Service is the only real test of fence value
Made by American Steel & Wire Company

We specialize in Dairy Feeds of all kinds. Calf feeds and Veal producers

We want to mention
MILLERS' Greek Goal
for your Range. Good as the Best
Whale of a sight better'n the rest
F. I. WILLIAMS & SON

YELLOW JACKET COAL Makes it Hot

We Have a Small Amount of Agricultural Lime
Left at $11.50 per ton
GRAVES & FORD LUMBER COMPANY

ALBA MAN HEIR TO RICH OIL ESTATE

Twenty years ago the north with its spice and pep lured Lud Lowery, one of Kentucky's dark-eyed sons, from her hills and blue grass and Alba and vicinity have claimed him ever since.

It was into the lumber camps he first went, where he was sure of a livelihood, and during those years he learned woodcraft.

With wife and children he drifted from camp to camp, making homes wherever work was most plentiful and wages highest. But shack homes did not have a healthful atmosphere and three little ones succumbed to illness.

Sadness enveloped them. Their shack no longer a home, they left the woods and found a little home in town. Later Lowery became the village drayman and sunshine "began peeping through." Then one day fire blazed up in the house and before help could be summoned their house was entirely destroyed by fire and scarcely any of the furnishing remained.

Friends assisted them and again the little family started anew. Hope for success is here at least, for oil wells—119 active ones—are now throwing oil from the depths of Lud's grandfather'e farms in Lee county, Kentucky.

The deeds of the property are sound and recorded but squatters have settled there and refuse to relinquish their homes. The law, however, is being enacted and Mr. Lowery is confident of a speedy settlement. Seven million dollars is to be divided among eight heirs.

Food Attracts Birds to Homes on Cold Winter Days

There are a number of birds that are with us throughout the year, but it is during the winter months that these birds are the most conspicuous and it is during the same months that they take first place in our effections.

The little black-capped chick-a-dee is one of the best known and probably as well liked as any bird which stays with us the year around. The white breasted nuthatch, hairy and downy woodpecker, the goldfinch and blue jay also spend the year with us.

How easy it is without any great effort on our part to attract many of these birds to our very door step. A feeding tray arranged near a window is a source of never ending delight and with a litle pains a host of feathered creatures will come and partake of one's hospitality.

The best success in feeding and stocking trays and hoppers has been with what is called a "peanut roll." It is made by taking a quantity of suet, say about five pounds at a time, partly melting it and mixing with it about a pound of coarsely chopped peanuts. When this partly cools it can be moulded into a chunk and when cold may be cut so as to fit snugly into the hopper.

The chick-a-dees, nuthatches, woodpeckers, blue jays, creepers and several other kinds of birds are very fond of this kind of food and when they once get a taste of it they will come regularly for it.

The output of by-products coke in 1925 was 39,912,159 tons, and of beehive coke, 11,354,784 tons.

Finds Self Man Without Country

Almost as tragic a story as the classic by Edward Everett Hale is the plight in detail of John Gray, Canadian, 26 years old, held in the Jackson county, Mo., jail for the violation of immigration laws. Gray came into the United States without passport and was denied citizenship in the United States and the Dominion will not sanction his return to the land of his birth.

New State Prison at Jackson Called Largest in World

The final section of concrete wall to surround the enclosure of the new Michigan state prison, four miles north of Jackson, has been poured. The wall reaches 34 feet above ground level, and, exclusive of cell blocks, which will form a portion of the barrier, will be about a mile in length.

The new prison, with its 5,180 individual cells, will be the largest in the world. Since work was started on the site in June, 1924, the state has spent $1,325,000 for construction purposes.

COMMERCIAL CROP OF APPLES IS OFF

While the total apple crop for the state was slightly larger, according to the October 1 report, than estimated on September 1, indications point to a smaller commercial production than estimated one month ago, according to a special report by L. Whitney Watkins, commissioner of agriculture, and Verne H. Church, U. S. agricultural statician for Michigan.

The large crop in practically all other producing states has held prices to a low level, making it unprofitable to pick and market some of the early varieties and off-grade stock. Closer grading is also general.

As a result, a larger percentage than usual will either go into local consumption or not be marketed at all, reducing the proportion that might otherwise find its way into commercial channels.

The total crop is estimated as 234,252,000 bushels, the largest since 1914. The commercial portion is estimated at 38,508,000 barrels, about two and one-half million more than the large crop of 1923. The total crop fo rMichigan is placed at 9,663,000 bushels. This crop has been exceeded many times that of 1923 being 13,159,000 bushels.

Thus it will be seen that, while the nation's crop is only a little above the average, the state's commercial production is forecast at 1,591,000 barrels. Of this amount, 51 per cent, or 811,000 barrels is made up of winter varieties. Michigan ranks seventh in commercial production this year.

Islands In Demand Since Wrigley's Catalina Venture

"For sale—island of hepteen hundred acres. Privacy assured."

Such advertisements may be seen in the columns of newspapers in a few years. And if the supply of islands sells fast, the time during which such advertisements will run may be all too short.

The buying of islands hasn't exactly become a pastime, but since William Wrigley, Jr., has done so well with Catalina, the worth of an island to an individual or to a syndicate has become appreciated.

One of the islands in Lake Michigan, the North Manitou, one of the largest of the group, has passed into the hands of a syndicate of business men, most of whom reside in Chicago, but have interests in western Michigan.

These men include W. R. Angell, executive vice president, and R. W. Judson, president of the Continental Motors corporation, who, only a short time ago purchased a one-fifth interest in the North Manitou. The remainder of the property is held by Roger Sherman, a stockholder in the Continental, a McConnell family, and Allen Murray, all of Chicago.

The Chicago interests have held their shares for four or five years, but it was only recently that the Continental officials purchased their one-fifth interest. Since then, however, the island has come in for considerable attention

The distance around the island is slightly more than 30 miles. Shoal water bounds it on the soueast side, but inasmuch as the prevailing winds and nearly all storms are from the northeast or southwest, shipe experince but little trouble.

Wisconsin Clothing Plant Plans Move to Michigan

The Kinsey Manufacturing Company of Wisconsin, makers of clothing, will locate at Grand Haven in the old Hommel Shirt Company plant and will begin operation with a working staff of between 60 and 100 women about Dec. 1.

Bluegill Fry Is Placed by Club in Five Lakes

Thirty cans of bluegill fry, obtained by the Albion Rod and Gun club from the state fish hatcheries, were distributed in Duck, Gang, Winnipeg, Prairie and Nottawa lakes.

A peanut airplane has been designed to be carried in a special compartment on a submarine, and it can be assembled and launched in nine minute. The undersea craft is submerged slightly to allow the plane to float.

Scotch Beauty, Foe of Vivisection, Attends Animal Congress in U. S.

Known as Great Britain's leading foe of vivisection, Lady Margaret Douglas-Hamilton, above, Scotch beauty and daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Hamilton, is in the United States to preside as president at the congress of the International Protection for Animals at Philadelphia.

Eaton Sheriff Has Life of Adventure In Long Journeys

Raiding the dive of a river gang in Los Angeles is but one of the many adventures in the eventful life of Sheriff Horace W. oorn, Charlotte, who has roved all over the country between the California city and oston, his birthplace.

Boorn came to Michigan at the age of four with his parents, his father being engaged in conducting a lumber camp in Clare county that winter, while the rest of the family stayed on the old homestead in Hamlin township, Eaton county, the land having been taken up in 1837 by Boorn's grandfather, one of the pioneers of Eaton county.

Having a reputation as a boxer and wrestler, Boorn was asked by the moderator of the Griffith district to take that school, as there were several big bad boys in the school.

Going to Lansing, oorn took charge of a department of boys' vocational school for three years, then held various positions in institutions.

Afterwards he was employed as an assayer in a cyanide gold mining camp in Arizona, then went on a gold mining adventure to Nome, Alaska, financing the proposition to take gold from sand, but the machinery failed to do what was expected of it. Going over the mountains alone, Boorn sought "the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow," but again was doomed to disappointment.

Boorn has had many narrow escapes in dealing with criminals at various times. At one time he arrested a noted Italian strong man who had traveled with the former pugilistic champion, John L. Sullivan, giving exhibitions of lifting great weights.

At another time, in Los Angeles, Boorn with another deputy entered the den of a river gang and captured six gunmen.

Detroit Swimmers Seen As Likely for 1928 Olympic Team

Detroit will be represented on the American Olympic swimming team of 1928 if predictions of the city's newest aquatic coaches, William S. Merriam of the Detroit Athletic Club, and Ronald Reilly of the Detroit Yacht club, bear fruit.

Dorothy Colter, the Yacht club's all-around mermaid, is one of the most promising Olympic candidates in the country today, Reilly believes. She should make the team, while orghild Johannesen, all-around swimmer and diver, and Les Nevins, pentahlon star, are other good prospects at the D. Y. C. Besides these, the Yacht club coach has excellent material in Gertrude Soderlund, free style and backstroke; George Van, breast stroke; Kenneth Oxley, diver, and Don McClellan, former national braest stroke title holder.

At the D. A. C. Merriam has Otis Trowbridge, Edward Flannigan, Richard Mertz, Tom Millius, Walter Grandy and other veterans of last year. Besides these he has his son, Jack, national junior free style and 100-yard free style and medley champion, and Winifred Smith, a free style swimmer at Northwestern high last season.

Loses Balloon in Wind When Forced to Land

Confused while ballooning at an altitude of ,0800 feet and alarmed lest he might be losing his bearing, Dr. M. M. Legallee, of Detroit, descended at Cross Fork, Potter county, Pa., and was preparing to deflate his balloon when a gust of wind bore it aloft with Legallee clinging to the basket. Realizing he could not stop it, he dropped to the ground and the balloon sailed out of sight. Legallee left Detroit to make a night flight alone in order to qualify for a pilot's license.

BRICKLAYING—

You have only to investigate the supply of bricklayers to appreciate the opportunity that lies in this trade.

Write to or Visit
THE DETROIT BRICKLAYING SCHOOL operated on a non-profit basis by the Contractors Association and the oldest bricklaying school in Detroit.

1944 E. WOODBRIDGE EDGEWOOD 0467
DETROIT, MICH.

REMOVE CORNS and CALLUSES!

The RED FOOT WAY the NEW WAY

Stinging pain of hard or soft corns or calluses leaves when you apply RED FOOT CORN AND CALLUS REMOVER. After 4 to 10 days you lift the corn or callus right off, no matter how long standing or how many failures. Originated by famous French chemists. Thousands of grateful users all over the world. No pads, liquids or collodion. By mail only, large 1 oz. jar $1.00, prepaid.

RED FOOT PRODUCTS CO., INC.
(Dept. B) 227 Woodward Avenue DETROIT, MICH.

Coon Is Lured By Shining Object to Trap Under Water

When nature created the raccoon, little did she realize the remarkable fondness for glittering things, a trait likewise found in magpies and jackdaws, it would be discovered and taken advantage of by trappers who use it every year to lure them into traps.

Grant Campbell, living on a farm near Ray Center, along the banks of the Clinton River, Macomb county, explains how the raccoon's unresisting fondness for bright objects leads to their capture in traps, and he, after seeing the footprints of a raccoon, the imprint similar to a baby's foot, in the clay bank of the river last fall, tested it.

"I cut the bottom from a salmon can and tied the bright tin on the pan of a No. 2 trap. I set the trap in about four inches of water and two feet from the bank. I staked the chain to a fallen log near the edge. I am not a trapper, but I remembered what an old trapper had once told me—that a raccoon could not resist touching with their finger-like claws, anything that sparkled in the moonlight when he fares forth in search of food.

"Nothing happened until the third morning, when, coming down to the river bank, there was Mr. Coon. As I approached, the raccoon arose on his hind legs and settled down on his haunches. The trap had tightly snapped on his forefoot as he had investigated the bright tin on the pan. The trap was suspended from the foot which was starting to swell below the jaws of the trap. The pleading, human look that the raccoon gave me was too much. I sprung the trap open with a fence stake. The raccoon limped to the wood nearby. His inherited fondness for color had led him into trouble. I felt better when he disappeared, and have never cought one since in a trap. The trap is a cruel thing, and there should be a law to prohibit their use. The dog and gun is a much more human way to get them, and greater sport.

Widow Guards Pair Accused in Death of Sheriff-Husband

Jailor of two men held for the slaying of her husband is the unusual role filled by Mrs. Ileea M. Henkel, appointed sheriff of Montcalm county to succeed Franklin B. Henkel, Montcalm's "gentleman sheriff," who was shot down last month when he sought to send on their way two men found drunk at the Lakeview homecoming celebration.

The two men, David Arnett, 32, and Edgar Arnett, 19, awaiting trial on first degree murder charges, are among a dozen prisoners whom the young woman sheriff has had under her charge since her husband's death.

City Drops Suit for Land for Airport Site

The suit of the city of Detroit to obtain possession of 157 acres of land on the east side for an airport has been formally ordered withdrawn from court by the city council.

This action was taken on recommendation of Corporation Counsel Charles P. O'Nell, who informed the council that there was suspicion of collusion between large property owners and city appraisers; and also that he had been informed by some aeronautical experts that the site was not an ideal one for aviation.

Sharp Shinned Hawk Is Deadly to Bird Life

For its size and weight, the sharp-shinned hawk is the biggest bunch of fury and death in the entire hawk family.

Although only slightly larger than the robin, it does not hesitate to attack and kill birds much larger. This murderous litte villain is particularly destructive to our smaller song birds, which he catches while in flight by darting swiftly into the open, from the dense undergrowth, where he glides along noiselessly until within a few feet of the unsuspecting victim.

At times he passes like a meteor through the underbrush, where he secures squirrels, gophers, chipmunks and mice with ease, but these are only taken when his favorite food birds are not to be found.

The sharp-shinned hawk is rarely seen in the open, except when making long flights, then he skims along the hedgerow or edge of the forest, instantly disappearing into the undergrowth if disturbed.

During the nesting and rearing period the male sharp-shinned hawk is apparently the sole support of his mate and later the entire family while the duties of the female consist of caring for the nest and actually feeding the young.

$500,000 Road Work

Construction of four miles of pavement on M-81 from Caro to Wahjamega is to be started at once. Grading will be finished this flal, it is announced, and concrete will be poured in the spring. In addition to this stretch, four miles of paving has been authorized on the Vassar-Richville road, one mile in Kingston village and one mile in Mayville village. The total cost of the new work will be more than $500,000.

$50 REWARD

$50 will be paid if R. V. Turner's Quick Relief Salve fails to relieve croups, head colds, catarrh, sore throat, headache, earache, eczema, itch, burns, risings, bruises, cuts, sores, rheumatic pains or piles. It is one of the most powerful, penetrating, germ-killing, pain-relieving and healing salves known to science. Removes corns in a few hours without pain; also seed warts. Large box by mail 60c. Agents wanted. Write for special terms. R. V. Turner, Box 1122, Montgomery, Ala.

3 Antiseptics With Iodine Base Are Discovered at State

Dr. W. L. Chandler, research bacteriologist at Michigan State college, has riscovered three new worm and germ killers. Two of them promise to revolutionize the treatment of animals and their quarters for stomach and intestinal worms, while the third will greatly simplify the treatment of human wounds to prevent infections.

All three disinfectants are idoine compounds, but the formulae greatly differ from others known to the chemical and medical world. They contain enough "free" iodine, even after suspended in water, to complete the job assigned to them.

The chemical names of the three formulae are: Iodine Sdspensoid, a disinfectant against nematode eggs and larvae upon the bodies or in the quarters of livestock, animals and poultry; Iodine Vermicide, for internal treatment of poultry, livestock and animals suffering from worm infestations; and Surgical Iodine, a new disinfectant and antiseptic for the treatment of human wounds.

Detroit Deer Killer Is Fined Total of $216

Up in L'Anse, Mich., one of the best deer sections in the state, Judge Voetesch recently found a Detroit hunter guilty of violation of our game laws. He was assessed $150 fine and $66.50 costs, a total of $216.50 for killing a deer out of season. This sets a record for a violation of this nature and is made possible under the penalty increase made in 1925 in our present law governing the illegal killing of deer.

FOUR YEARS AGO a young farmer, married, one child, was $6,000 in debt. His net earnings from LIFE INSURANCE the first year were $3,000. The next year he was listed on the company's Honor Roll for Production. Now he owns a beautiful home. His wife and family enjoy the luxuries of life, possible by an income which runs into five figures.

We want a District Manager in each county to represent us.

Instructions FREE.
NATHANIEL REESE, Gen'l Agt.
Provident Mutual Life Insurance Co.
3012-15 Book Tower Detroit, Mich.

Get Settled

You surely don't intend to stay on your present job all your life. Become a barber the Moler way — from our school to independence in a shop of your own is a short and easy step. Change for better now. Write for free booklet today!

Moler Barber Colleges

33 Years Established 32 Branches
559 Michigan Ave., Detroit.

DEARBORN'S DREAMS COME TRUE

Passes $2,400,000 Bond Issue For More Sewers; $500,000 More For Water

Fortunes have been made in real estate in the Dearborn District, in the shadow of the Ford River Rouge Plant.

Greater fortunes are still to be made with the inflow of population to Henry Ford's workshop.

GLOVER WATSON
Dearborn's Largest Subdivider.

SEWERS AND WATER mean Growth — population, homes, stores, business, theaters, churches, schools. These bond issues were passed because of DEMAND and that Demand means

Your Opportunity

One of the greatest books of facts on Detroit's Industrial Future, Present and Past, handsomely illustrated, will be sent you postage prepaid, free of charge without obligation on your part.

Mail coupon today for Your Copy of this Book.

Send me "Detroit, Wonderful City", FREE, postage prepaid.
Name ....
Address ....
City ....
Dept. M

WE SELL THE EARTH
GLOVER WATSON ORGANIZATION INC.

Twelfth Floor Washington Blvd. Bldg.
Phone Randolph 8892 Detroit, Mich.

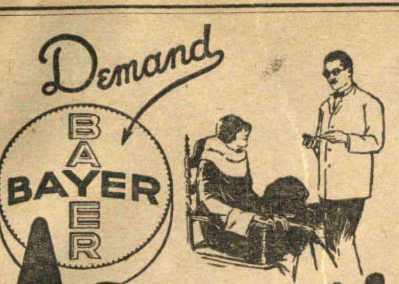
NO SUNDAY BUSINESS!

Demand



ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN"—Genuine

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin prescribed by physicians and proved safe by millions over 25 years for

Colds Headache Neuritis Lumbago
Pain Neuralgia Toothache Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe → Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets. Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.
Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Not Welcome

Marjorie did not like the idea of a new baby brother. When her mother returned home from the hospital their meeting was a joyful one, and as Marjorie settled herself on the bed for a happy chat she noticed the little stranger on the other side of her mother.

With a small forefinger pointed at the unwanted playmate, Marjorie demanded, "When is that hospital baby going back to the hospital?"

What He Did With Million

What would you do with a million dollars inherited unexpectedly? When this happened to Cornelius Sullivan, Boston insurance collector at $30 a week, he bought a $50,000 home for his parents, says Capper's Weekly. Then he bought an auto for each of his five brothers and sisters. For himself he bought a ticket for a tour around the world. When he returns he will go back to his insurance job and keep on living a simple life.

Detroit Woman Chooses Right Road to Health

Threatened With Loss of Health Due to Stomach and Liver Trouble Mrs. Iva Walker Now Being Congratulated on Surprising Recovery

If good health is slipping from you; if indigestion, nervousness, sluggish liver and ailments caused by a run-down condition torture you, benefit from the remarkable experience of Mrs. Walker.

Sitting in her comfortable home at 1192 Bellevue Avenue, Detroit, she said: "For two years stomach and liver trouble made life unbearable. I had no appetite for food. And when I ate I suffered from indigestion and gas which made me belch and caused burning pains.

"I felt weak and a sluggish liver and lack of sound sleep made me feel tired and worn-out all of the time. So tired I could not do my housework. I sought relief, trying this and that without success. Then Tanlac came to the rescue.

"Since then my health has just about been perfect. I am feeling stronger and healthier than ever. My nerves are calm. I eat everything without a thought of pain. This great tonic saved me from years of suffering, banished pain and built up my strength."

Thousands of fortunate men and women are now enjoying the benefits of good health and strength, thanks to Tanlac, the safe, effective remedy made from roots, barks and herbs.

Learn from their experience. Good health and strength can be yours, too. The first bottle of Tanlac usually shows amazing results. Ask your druggist for Tanlac—today! Over 40 million bottles sold.

Nosed Out

When Max Cohen, artist, got his last raise, an insurance agent was the logical result. For an hour he talked, and finally asked: "You own your own home, don't you?"

"No," said Max, "we have company most of the time."

Getting Perfect

"Well," sighed the fellow whose horse hadn't shown, "at least I am a good loser."

"You ought to be," snarled his wife. "You have had plenty of practice."

When a man gets cold feet, that's timidity. When everybody gets cold feet, that's pacifism.

Seek to Rout Pneumonia

Physicians are now studying diligently new serums by which it is hoped to reduce the pneumonia death rate considerably. It is estimated by conservative medical statisticians that in the United States annually 140,000 persons die directly and indirectly from the disease. Heart disease continues, however, to be the principal cause of death.

Motor Kept on Working

When a flood in Oil City, Pa., recently abated it was found that a motor had been running steadily for 45 hours under 14 feet of water.

Better be good rather than seem so.

Children Cry for

Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is especially prepared to relieve Infants in arms and Children all ages of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and, by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving natural sleep.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas H Fletcher
Absolutely Harmless - No Opiates. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

THE BEST RECOMMENDATION
—FOR—
Bare-to-Hair

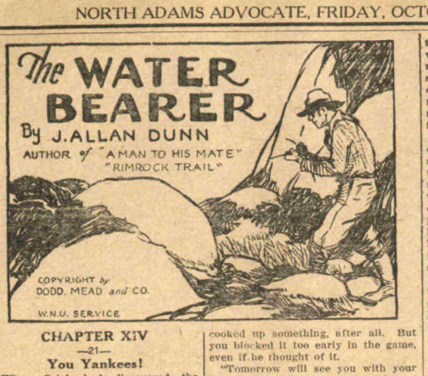
is the number who are trying to imitate it. If Bare-to-Hair was not growing hair on bald heads there would be no imitators. If there is baldness or signs of it you can't afford to neglect to use "Forst's Original Bare-to-Hair."

Correspondence Given Personal Attention
E. J. JAHN CO., Distributor
DETROIT • MICHIGAN

The WATER BEARER

By J. ALLAN DUNN

AUTHOR of "A MAN TO HIS MATE" "RIMROCK TRAIL"



COPYRIGHT by DODD, MEAD and CO.
W.N.U. SERVICE

CHAPTER XIV

—21—

You Yankees!

When Caleb had discovered the weakness of the rock in Hermanos canyon he looked for another dam site and his intuitive caution had closed his mouth in the matter until Baxter's treachery had sent him on his visit to El Nido the day that Clinton died, ready to make explanations that he felt would exonerate him from Baxter's charges.

He had discovered his alternative in Boca-Blanca basin. Caleb's eyes had seen its possibilities the day of the barbecue and later investigations convinced him that here was his site, better in some ways even than Hermanos. Two creeks ran through it, for one thing, the slopes drained more gently but with sufficient pitch. Clearance work presented no alarming problems or cost.

It was a month after Baxter had been warningly dismissed by Cox that Hinckley, paying flying visits to his offices between field trips, came into the room where Caleb bent over his drafting and slapped him on the back.

"I've finished my report to the board of directors, Warner," he said jubilantly. "Dictated it this morning. It's entirely favorable. They meet the day after tomorrow. I understand they've practically completed the options for the watershed. All they now have to do is to vote money for purchase and our end of it and then—it's up to the pair of us!" You've earned your hundred thousand dollars, which, I imagine, will be vouchered tomorrow. I wanted to be first with my congratulations. I haven't given you any the best of it in my investigations. Hey, but I'll be glad to buckle down into the harness again! Will you come up to the house to dinner tonight, and talk over things afterward?"

Caleb assented gladly and Hinckley said good-by. He had been gone but a few minutes when a boy arrived with a request for Caleb to see Mr. Cox.

Cox opened the conversation to the point without preamble.

"You've seen Hinckley, Warner? Then you know that his report is favorable. Now, then, we could close up the whole matter at the meeting tomorrow and pass appropriations, but for one thing.

"That's the purchase of the Boca-Blanca basin. We can't get option or purchase price on it out of Wharton, who was handling it. He's stalled me off till yesterday for some reason and I don't like it. He has recently sold it and he says that he has instructions not to disclose the name of the purchaser. Part of the provisions of the deal. We've got to have it to complete the project. You know that. I did not imagine there would be any difficulty. It's valueless land and no one but an engineer would ever imagine it as a reservoir site. Unless there have been more leaks. Did you ever get any line on who owns Boca-Blanca? You found out the owner of the Caliente gravel beds."

"I own the Boca-Blanca basin," said Caleb quietly.

"You do?" Cox's left eyebrow went up.

"I expected to tell you as soon as I knew that Hinckley's report would be favorable. Otherwise my investment would be useless except for realty."

"Your investment?" Cox laid down softly the pencil he was balancing and subjected Caleb to a scathing scrutiny. His demeanor changed. All friendliness left it, the president's face hardened, his jaw shot out and his eyes became again the color of ice in shade. "How much do you want to make on your little—investment?" he demanded.

"I paid ten thousand for the whole valley, bottom to hillrim," said Caleb. "Six thousand in cash—four thousand on a mortgage secured by a five-years' note at six per cent interest.

"I'll turn it over to the company for exactly what it has cost me as soon as my agreement with you is duly ratified upon the acceptance of Hinckley's report. I was in a position to get hold of this property when there was no chance of its value being tilted at a low price, and I took up the opportunity. I have always intended to deliver it to the company when my own deal was closed."

Cox's face showed faint signs of relief, his eyes were still keen but now they held a quizzical light.

"When your own deal was closed! Had an ace in the hole all the time, eh., Warner? It was you I underestimated. It isn't so often that you find an engineer a first-class business man. You'll go far, Warner. Part of the way with us, I'm glad to say."

Caleb flushed a little.

"It was hardly an ace in the hole," he said, "since I expected to play it with your hand. I felt that it was a business measure to protect myself, Mr. Cox. I did not doubt your sincerity, but . . ."

"It was a d—d smart move, Warner. You didn't know us. You Yankees!" he chuckled "I appreciate it, personally and for the company. I mean your turning it over as you will. You could have held us up for a stiff profit and that, too, would have been business. But your New England conscience walks hand in-hand with your New England forehandedness. You should play a good game of chess. Gad, you've taken a weight off my mind! Wharton and Baxter being so close I began to think that grasshopper had cooked up something, after all. But you blocked it too early in the game, even if he thought of it.

"Tomorrow will see you with your check in hand for a hundred thousand dollars. If you want to invest that in our new stock issue, Warner, I'll see that you can get a block of it. It's coming to you. How about it?"

"I'll think it over, with full appreciation of the offer," said Caleb. "After this project is completed I may want to use my capital in a hurry."

Cox was all cordiality again. It was plain that Caleb's protective purchase of the key to the project appealed to him.

That afternoon Caleb took his deeds to Boca-Blanca out of his safety-deposit drawer at his bank. So far he had won a third of what he desired—the price of his discovery. Now came the work, the enduring sign. There still remained Betty Clinton.

CHAPTER XV

—

The Work

The rains came sheeting down with blustering winds or days of steady downpour. Caleb was astonished that California weather could be so wild. But they worked. Tarpaulins could keep out the rain, there was no frost, bane of the builder in cement and of the excavator. Caleb dug deep into the gravel beds, although the creeks were running wild, and he was forced to halt at thirty-five feet and wait until spring brought a lowering of the water table to level. He pushed work on the submarine piping. Men swarmed like ants, in busy multitudes.

Later Investigation Convinced Him That Here Was His Site.

As the work proceeded toward completion Caleb still found the project good. By June the company began to talk of a ceremonial opening. There would be a picnic-de-luxe, an elaborated barbecue, speeches, general inspection of dam and filtration system. All this was set for August, after a year's top-speed toil.

Caleb was seldom away from the actual scene of labor, he had not seen Betty Clinton, he had seen no one who might have seen or heard of her, but it was not often that thoughts of her were absent from his leisure hours, which were few and apt to find him mentally and physically tired and drowsy.

The year of her mourning would be up with the opening of the works. He hoped—or he would not have dreamed. He hoped to go afield for the next adventure with Betty, to find it for themselves and work out its problems together.

He realized that there had been a change in him. He had expanded and he was no longer the self-contained young engineer who had worked on the projects in New England, beside which this present affair was enormous. He had glimpsed the human side. It was no longer so many yards of excavation, so much concrete, so much flow, levels, logarithms, trigonometry. The personal had entered into the mechanical.

He did not hire the men under his charge. That he left to the company's superintendents and foremen. But he tried to know each by sight and greet them with a nod that recognized them with himself as partners in the work, each according to his measure, capacity. A labor camp had been established in the Sink under canvas and light lumber, bunkhouses, dining rooms and a few concessions all under strict supervision of the company.

It was on Sunday when Caleb, riding over to meet Hinckley at the big dam, passed a man coming out of a little store that carried stationery, candy, tobacco and newspapers and magazines. He had a paper bag tucked into his side pocket, from which he abstracted a sweet morsel for his mouth as Caleb, astride a horse in preference to the car provided by the company, went by him. The man was far from neat, though he wore a linen collar. His clothes were of unusually good material, but they were all out of shape and stained. There was a lack of spirit in the man's carriage that arrested Caleb's attention.

Caleb looked sharply at him. He saw a profiled face framed in an untrimmed beard, a face that was shrunken from sickness or dissipation, a shifting glance of moody eyes, features that seemed remotely familiar.

The sense of having seen the man before persisted and, when Caleb met a foreman, who saluted him cheerily, he drew rein. The man was still in sight.

"Does that chap work for us?" asked Caleb. "I haven't seen him about before." The foreman shaded his eyes.

"He came two weeks ago with a recommend from McCarthy, the contractor, to Mr. Burns. Burns was needin' a timekeeper. He put him on. Name of Johnson. He turns in his sheets well enough. A lushhound gone on the blink with prohibition."

"Well, good luck to you," said Caleb and put his horse to a lope.

McCarthy's name had given him the clew. He was sure Johnson was Baxter. He had heard rumors in his infrequent visits to Golden and the club of the latter's downhill progress. Still drinking bad liquor, borrowing, ejection from the club for a heavy bill, attempts at curbstone real estate, deals in insurance given him by friends, talk of misappropriated premiums and renewal checks, smoothed over for old times' sake.

Caleb's resentment had died out with Baxter's downfall. All that Baxter had attempted against him had ended in failure. If he was attending to his job Caleb did not want to hound him on still lower. But he did not think Baxter's rehabilitation probable.

He kept him in mind until he returned. Then he sought Burns. Johnson's—or Baxter's—record was good enough.

"He's been a boozer," was the super's report. "So far he's kept sober. Want him laid off?"

"Not so long as he keeps off the stuff and turns in correct sheets," said Caleb. "But, if he's drunk, or you think he's carrying liquor, inside or out, fire him. Treat him under the rules the same as anybody."

Two days later Caleb was called to Golden for a conference. As he strolled along, looking in the store windows, his eyes were caught by a placard announcing an exhibition of paintings by Juan Carquinez, canvases of Mexico. Caleb, remembering the picturesque, forceful figure of Carquinez, thought that he would like to see how the man could paint. It would pass an hour pleasantly.

The gallery was a small one. Caleb saw Carquinez talking with a group of three possible patrons, his strong face as mobile in its earnestness as his gestures.

A little pile of catalogues stood on a table by the door and Caleb took one, making the round of the walls, slowly, held before canvas after canvas by the beauty of the work.

Caleb became obsessed with the desire to own one. The name of it was "La Tenaya," and his Spanish was insufficient to translate the word. On a lift of ancient lava that rose in the foreground, looking out across a dusky plain to a line of hills that held the rose and purple of a dying sunset, three Indian women were drawing water from a pocket cistern in the rock, lingering to exchange their simple gossip. A custom as old as the hills themselves, the drawing of water at sunset for the evening meal. It made strong appeal to Caleb, aside from the exquisite painting and tone value of the canvas.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

◆

Claims to Have Found Life in Meteorites

A startling discovery by two French scientists, Messieurs Galippe and Souffiend, may have even more startling results if their investigations are pursued. They submitted a number of meteorites to microscopic research, and assert that in some of the specimens they found life germs which showed definite signs of vitality and development when placed in culture tubes.

The late Lord Kelvin once put forward the theory that the origin of life on the earth was due to germs brought here from other planets by meteorites. Few scientists agreed with this daring surmise, the chief objection being that no form of life could survive the intense cold in space or the devitalizing effect of the "ultraviolet" rays projected by the stars.

Since then it has been proved that seeds and certain germs will survive temperatures as low as 250 degrees below the Centigrade zero. The "ultraviolet" ray objection is now being investigated. Some experts declare that germs embedded in meteors are effectively protected from the rays.

Stars in the Flag

President Taft, by executive order, provided on October 26, 1912, for the arrangement of our flag's stars and for a means to their identification by the states they represent. The stars are arranged in six horizontal rows of eight stars each. Beginning with the upper left corner, and following each row from left to right, the stars represent the states in the order in which they ratified the Constitution or were admitted to statehood.

Partridge Has Hard Time

The English partridge has to fight against many conditions and odds in its battle for existence and naturalists there tell many interesting stories of contests in which the birds are engaged, there being a large number of natural enemies ready to slay the bird or rob the nests of eggs and young.

The seasons are bad; the cold rains cause the death of many young birds; the fox forever is after the partridge. The birds hunt secluded places for their nests and have been known to build a new nest about the eggs that have been tumbled down when the nest was wrecked by accident.

"One of the hardest things to fake is a good reputation," states the Springfield Republican.

Hallowe'en

Jack-o'Lanterns glowing in the dusk—surprises around every corner. But the biggest surprise of all is the one that awaits you when you first drink Monarch Cocoa.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years
Never Sold Through Chain Stores
REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Chicago • Boston • Pittsburgh • New York

MONARCH
COFFEE
Quality for 70 Years
MONARCH
COCOA

More than 200 Quality Food Products including COFFEE
and
COCOA

Made Record Ride to Mountain Top

Two white men and two Indians recently rode saddle horses to the summit of Squaw mountain, that peak of the Rocky mountains lying nearest Glacier Park hotel.

Hikers have for years made the summit of this mountain at an elevation of 7,320 feet, but never before has a horse been taken over it.

Crow Feathers and Cut Finger, Blackfoot Indians, accompanied by Ernest K. Gann and Harlow Gieseke, two St. Paul young men, accomplished this difficult feat. Realizing the importance of this accomplishment the Glacier Park Hotel company has taken up with the park superintendent the proposition of having a horse trail laid out along the route discovered by the Indians.

Crow Feathers says that a view from this peak reveals the grazing ground of mountain sheep and goats upon the wall of rock forming the edge of the Great Bowl. The horse trail follows an old footpath but turns aside before it hits the peak.

DEMAND "BAYER" ASPIRIN

Take Tablets Without Fear If You See the Safety "Bayer Cross."

Warning! Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for 26 years.

Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin. Imitations may prove dangerous.—Adv.

Seek Changes in Old English Laws

If a traveler led a horse up to the Savoy or Claridge hotels, the manager, under English law, would be obliged to furnish shelter for "man and beast."

It is no dead letter either, for the manager, although he has no longer any stable on the premises, would send the horse around to a livery stable for the guest and act as though nothing had happened.

A bill has been drafted to remove some of the many anomalies in an act which has stood pretty well unchanged, for 300 years.

At present a landlord is responsible to a guest, up to the value of $150, for any property stolen on his premises unless he can prove gross negligence on the part of the guest. It does not matter how many notices he posts up repudiating responsibility, the courts under the present law will hold him liable. This is a point which the British hotelkeepers are anxious to see changed.—London Times.

A Lady of Distinction

Is recognized by the delicate, fascinating influence of the perfume she uses. A bath with Cuticura Soap and hot water to thoroughly cleanse the pores followed by a dusting with Cuticura Talcum powder usually means a clear, sweet, healthy skin.—Advertisement.

The Admonition of Age

Dick possessed a tennis racquet, which, thought it had been classed as "junk" by on older sister, was the envy of the youngsters of the neighborhood. The neighborhood gang was assembled in the back yard one day and little Mary, five, grabbed the tennis racquet and said: "Throw the ball, Richard, and I'll bat it."

Nancy, her sister, and the senior by three years, felt it necessary to correct little Mary, so she yelled: "You don't say bat it, silly, say tennis it!"

"DANDELION BUTTER COLOR"

A harmless vegetable butter color used by millions for 50 years. Drug stores and general stores sell bottles of "Dandelion" for 35 cents.—Adv.

Keen Observer

Country Youth—Yep, my father raises mules.

City Girl—So I notice.

Of course a guilty man never gets a fair trial—from his viewpoint.

HOTEL
FORT SHELBY
where Detroit won fame for courtesy

Week-ending at the Fort Shelby is a pleasant custom. An especially pleasant room with bath at $3.50 a day and up—other rooms at $2.50 and up. Servidor equipment with protection against excessive tipping. Central but quiet location. Fort Shelby Garage nearby.

Lafayette Blvd. at First St.

W. O. McKay, Ass't Sec'y
Seth E. Frymire, Manager

Proper Ending

Little Barbara Stern, daughter of the business manager of the Big U, had a peculiar way of saying A-men at the close of her bedtime prayer. It sounded more like Ah-min.

One night Walter questioned her about it. "You should say 'Amen,'" he insisted. "That is the proper way to pronounce it."

"No it isn't, daddy," Barbara insisted. "It's Im-in. You know what it means, don't you?"

"What does it mean?" asked Walter, keenly interested.

"It means to tell God I'm in bed. Don't you see? I'm in."

"O. K." said Walter, "you win."—Los Angeles Times.

There IS no substitute for—
KIRK'S
ORIGINAL
COCOA HARDWATER
CASTILE

The only mild soap for hard water. Makes washing a pleasure.
Ask your Dealer
JAMES S. KIRK & CO. CHICAGO

W. N. U., DETROIT, NO. 44—1926.

Inquiry and Reply

"Here, there!" yelled Constable Slackputter, the faithful guardian of the peace and dignity of Petunia. "What in tunkett d'ye mean—dod blast ye!—by tearing around the public square like forty dogs after a cat? What d'ye expect to accomplish by it?"

"Thought I might be able to bust through the front window of the bank, run over a prominent citizen, or something of the sort," returned the offending motorist, cheerily.—Kansas City Star.

Reading maketh a full man, conference a ready man, and writing an exact man.—Bacon.

Never judge a man's greatness by the opinion his neighbor has of him.

Millions prefer Yeast Foam

Begin today to learn the most useful of home arts—bread-making.

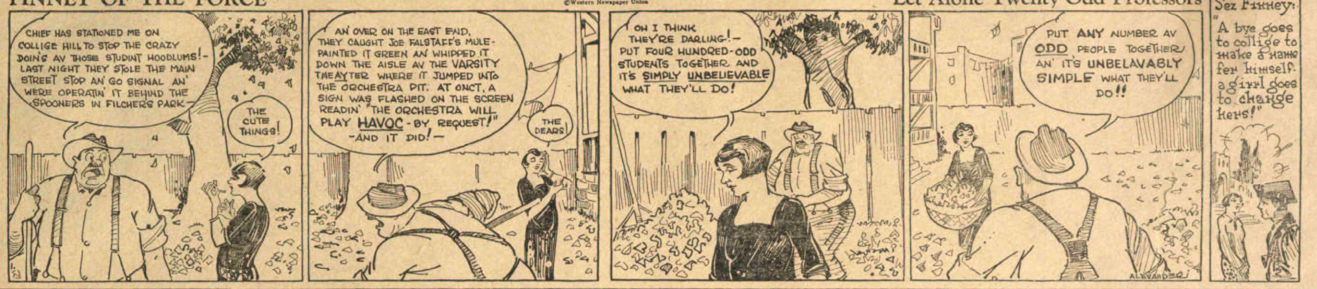
Send for free booklet "The Art of Baking Bread"

Northwestern Yeast Co.
1730 North Ashland Ave.
Chicago, Ill.

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

By F. O. Alexander
©Western Newspaper Union

Let Alone Twenty Odd Professors



CHIEF HAS STATIONED ME ON COLLIGE HILL TO STOP THE CRAZY DOIN'S AV THOSE STUDINT HOODLUMS!- LAST NIGHT THEY STOLE THE MAIN STREET STOP AN' GO SIGNAL AN' WERE OPERATIN' IT BEHIND THE SPOONERS IN FILCHER'S PARK-
THE CUTE THINGS!
AN' OVER ON THE EAST END, THEY CAUGHT JOE FALSTAFF'S MULE- PAINTED IT GREEN AN' WHIPPED IT DOWN THE AISLE AV THE VARSITY THEAYTER WHERE IT JUMPED INTO THE ORCHESTRA PIT. AT ONCT, A SIGN WAS FLASHED ON THE SCREEN READIN' "THE ORCHESTRA WILL PLAY HAVOC - BY REQUEST!" -AND IT DID!-
THE DEARS!
OH I THINK THEY'RE DARLING!- PUT FOUR HUNDRED-ODD STUDENTS TOGETHER AND IT'S SIMPLY UNBELIEVABLE WHAT THEY'LL DO!
PUT ANY NUMBER AV ODD PEOPLE TOGETHER AN' IT'S UNBELAVABLY SIMPLE WHAT THEY'LL DO!!
ALEXANDER
Sez Finney:
"A bye goes to collige to make a name fer himself. a girrl goes to change hers!"

Patronize Our Advertisers

They are all boosters and deserve your business.

U. S. Steel Was Daddy

The United States Steel corporation was the first billion dollar corporation to be formed in America.

Drug Stores and Women

American women spend $750,000,000 every year in retail drug stores.

Time to Think of Heating stoves

We have the Famous

Florence Hot Blast

which will heat more room with LESS FUEL than any other stove made. [A broad statement but we can prove it]

Also have the Great Circulating Heater or "Parlor Furnace."

PAYNE & GREEN CO.

Everything in Hardware

AT

SWAIN'S just a Little sale

to remind you that the SWAIN'S store is wide awake with fresh and bright colors in

Ginghams Outings Prints

Crepe, Special for Saturday

24c Ginghams per yard	20c	19c Ginghams per yard	15c
25c Plain Cotton Crepe per yard	20c	25c Dress Prints per yard	20c
24c Plain Ginghams per yara	22c	25c one yard wide Dark Outing	22c
40c and 45c Broadcloth in plain and colored	40c and 35c

Overcoats, Rubbers, Rubber Boots

SWAIN'S, North Adams

WERTZ'

Cash Prices

Ten Bars P & G Soap for	38c	Ginger Snaps, per pouad	12c
Lard Compound per pound	18c	Wertz' Best Flour pers ack	97c
Ganned Corn per can	13c	Little Baby Corn per can	19c
Lobster per can	23c	Condensed Milk per ean	5c & 10c
Denatured Alcohol per gallon	48c	Nucoa Oleomargarine, per pound	29c
Canvas Gleves good quality per pair	15c	50c Box Stationery per box	29c
Potted Meat per can	9c	Cheese per pound	33c
Jello. per package	10c	Succotash, per can	19c

SAVE MONEY BY PAYING CASH HERE

C. S. Wertz Store

Fall Radio School Opens at M. S. C.

Twenty departments at M. S. C. have joined this year in presenting programs for the fall term radio school from Station WKAR which opened Monday October 25. The educational programs are given each evening except Saturday and Sunday from 7:15 to 8 o'clock and the school is scheduled to continue for eight weeks ending Dec. 17.

A wide variety of subject matter is offered in the educational programs containing material of interest for everyone, and plans have been made to make the winter term school still more complete. This is the third year of educational work conducted by the college station.

In addition to the radio school, there will be special educational programs furnished by the various Department of State on Friday evenings from 8 to 9 o'clock, student musical programs on Wednesday evenings from 8 to 9 o'clock and special features from time to time as the occasion arises.

The fall term schedule for the radio school is as follows: Mondays Home Economics, English, Agricultural Engineering and Horticulture; Tuesdays, Engineering, Zoology, Forestry, and Farm Crops Wednesdays, Economics, Botany, Soils and Dairy; Thursdays, Education, Sociology, Animal Husbandry, and Farm Crops;

W. C. T. U. Column

LAURA WALWORTH, EDITOR

Election Day Comes November 2.

These verses from the Bible mean much to temperance workers.

"Be strong and courageous, be not afraid nor dismayed for the king of Assyria, nor for all the multitude that is with him; with him is an arm of flesh; but with us is the Lord our God to help us, and to fight our battles. 1 Chronicles 32, 7—8.

November days are fast approaching. The fateful day—November second—will soon be here. The thoughts of millions of people turn to that day with hope and longing. Come what may, there are those who will be disappointed, but whatever comes let us hope and pray that through the electoral decisions made that day by the voters of our country a greater measure of righteousness shall prevail, and a larger measure of protection be assured to the American home and American childhood

A few days remain for educational work, for appeal, for high endeavor on the part of all who stand for God and Home and Country. How are we to use that short space of time?

There comes to mind at this moment these questions. We offer them here for our united consideration. If everybody were doing as much and no more to help hold the Eighteenth Amendment and secure its enforcement than you and I are doing, would we succeed? If everybody were doing as much and no more to educate the people concerning the necessity and value of total abstinence from alcoholic liquors and obedience to law, than you or I are doing how soon would we cease to hear of the rum-runner, the private still, the hip-pocket flask, the crime wave, and similar indications of a decadent citizenship?

If everybody spent as much time an 10 m ore in prayer to that God wh "hea r'st in secret and rewardeth openly," and who says to His people 'Call unto me and I will answer thee," than you do, how long think you it would be until the Christian world would be rejoicing over the answer to that prayer?

Little sister was very sad over the fact that brother was setting traps to catch the pretty birds that sang so sweetly all about the place In vain she pleaded with brother to put the traps away and let the birds stay free as God intended them to be. But brother was obdurate. One day sister came running with shining face and threw her arms about her mother's neck. "Oh mother," she cried, "I just know there won't any more birds get into brother's traps. I just know they won't." "Why, my child," said her mother, "what makes you so sure?"

"Because I prayed to God about it a whole lot and then I went out and kicked the traps all to pieces and I'm so happy."

Those who are too fearful, or lazy or unconcerned to help answer their own prayers can not be very deeply concerned–why should they expect God to work for them without their co-operation?

Only a few days until the fatefnl November days. Read 1 Chronicles 32: 7-8; then pray and work, and work and pray and be quick about it. Some one has said "The Devil can run a mile while some people are cranking up." This is a time for rapid fire and quick action.

Remember! Remember!
The Ides of November!

The Matter Of Voting

The other day we heard a man remark that he did not believe it was necessary for him to vote—because he guessed the whole business of election was run to suit the politicians anyhow, and he might as well let the whole thing alone. This man was just about as far seeing as the native of Australia who chopped a limb off a tree twenty feet from the ground while sitting upon the limb. There is no way of making a sensible citizen out of such a chap that we know of—hence the world is full of pessimists of the same stripe.

If this fellow should come out to vote upon election day at all it is likely he would do so because Jones, Green or Wilson or some other hustler had agreed to tip him about five dollars, hence he cares little which way he votes.

Nothing in the way of citizenship comes so near to hitting the bulls eye as casting your vote. Just think of it like this—your vote helps to knock some other ballot which might be cast altogether for the wrong candidate. As the years go on people are coming to disregard party affiliaticns more or less in everything below state officers, which to our way of thinking is right. Right in your own county, take for illustration the office of sheriff. Here is a much coveted job; good pay, plenty of excitement, rather to be preferred because the Sheriff's word is law around the county. Do you think of Democratic, Republican or Popocrat when you vote for Sheriff? We hope you don't, because its all a rope of sand and the man who has the courage of his convictions to come out and advocate what's good on both sides of the political fence in these offices is going to be a winner. First—we would say consider the character of the man you would place in the Sheriff's office. What are his ideals? Ever hear of him chumming with the whiskey element? Has he got the sand to go out and round up an ugly drunken scapegrace? Any strings on him? You know what we mean. Is there a blind force entirely hidden behind which pushes his policies and plans his coupes How's his appetite for money? Can he candidly put aside the proferred boodle? Is he a man of experience in handling others? What would he reck if the county of Hillsdale should be suddenly plunged under mob violence?

How is he fixed with relatives? Anybody who stands over him with a bludgeon? And a lot of other questions occur to us but this is enough, and the same modus operandi will apply to every county and township officer practically, so it will be seen that misfits in office are quite as likely as sunsets at eventide.

The fact that a citizen of your county wants office, don't necessarily brand him as a square peg in a round hole. Human nature is pretty much made up of just such ambitions. Statistics have shown conclusively that men who were ambitious for office have not made the best executives, on the other hand a man who has to be forced into a responsible position in town or county is just as likely to make a failure of it. Finally we believe that if the names of Republican and Democrat could be forgotten and buried, and every candidate put upon his merits today and all campaign lies nailed—the result would be entirely different.

Any how don't neglect your plain duty by staying away from the polls, but go and vote, and pardon the reference—don't pin your faith to a poor old embalmed mummy of a party, whose skin is so dry that it cracks. Lay off that stuff here in the county and vote for a man whom you believe has mental, physical and superficial consciencc—than if your candidate don't happen to get the desired office, smile up and call the bluff.

DONT VOTE FOR IT!

What looks like a joker in the proposed amendment to the constitution of Michigan is to be voted upon at the election November 2. We especially warn all people who want this state dry to sidetrack this amendment. Don't vote for it. Vote "no" with a bang. You don't want any revision of the good old constitution of Michigan you bet. This little "Joker" seems to have seeped in from the "wet" camp and they are camouflaging it to beat the band. It will be called everything but what it fs, or stands for. Church people get busy and educate your members and all kinds of civic societies watch out and see that this is fully understood. Unless you want the constitutional volstead act hampered with vote "No" with a bang. Absolutely.

Owosso Girl Pays Penalty of Foolishness

Most of our readers will remember reading of the Owosso young lady, Marvel Longstreet aged 17 years who disappeared from the door of a theatre in Owosso October 11th. She was picked up on the street corner in Detroit by the Cops who had little trouble in recognizing her, and the story she tells would disgust a Paris Apache A young scalpeen by the name of Niles aged 22 was with the girl and they claimed to be lingering in wait for a brother of the chap whom she claimed would return her to Owosso.

It seems she was in an amateur play at the home town and this young Niles had been trying to keep company with her for six months back but without much success. The girl did not seem to want him. She had first met him at a house party, and he had become infatuated. The foolish little minx did not seem to sense the danger of being in his company that night when he met her at the theatre door and invited her to take a ride in his auto. She confessed she climbed in with Niles and his brother who immediately showed her a marriage license and requested her to marry him. Upon her refusal Niles drove rapidly to Flint and his brother held Miss Longstreet prisoner. They boarded a bus in Flint and came to Detroit where they both took the same room on Warren Avenue. Here she was held prisoner for about one week.

In cross examination the girl deviated somewhat from the original story by saying she had not been exactly a prisoner but she had no money to get away so she remained. She finished up her story by saying she would not marry Niles as she did not love him but she did not hate him and he had "treated her very nicely, etc" Now what do you think of such a girl as that? Empty—you say. Rooms to let in her head piece. Yet in all probability today there are hundreds of young girls in this county who would not have done much better in the same circumstances than did Miss Longstreet. Frequently we hear of cases of young women taikng the same chances as she did upon short acquaintance but of course they do not all turn out as unfortunately as this case did.

CUT THIS OUT
It Is Worth Money

Send this ad and 10c to Foley & Co., 2835 Sheffield Avenue, Chicago, Ill., writing your name and address clearly. You will receive a 10 cent bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, for coughs, colds, croup (spasmodic), tickling throat and hoarseness. Also free trial packet of Foley Pills, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys; and Foley Cathartic Tablets, for constipation, biliousness, sick headache, sour stomach, bad breath. These wonderful remedies have helped millions of people. Try them.

Clyde S. Wertz, North Adams

This coupon and 25c entitle the undersigned to one 35c can of Acme Quality Enamel-Kote, any color, and a special 20c Paint Brush.

Name

Address

To acquaint you with Acme Quality, we are making a special offer for a short time only.

SPECIAL OFFER

55¢ Value for 25¢

You will scarcely know your own rooms

Just a few strokes of a paint brush are all that stand between you and a home interior that visitors will admire and envy.

Scuffed up floors, marred woodwork and furniture, walls, ceilings, even the radiators, can be magically transformed with

ACME QUALITY Paint and Varnish

Specially pleasing is the color range in No-Lustre Finish Flat Wall Paint for walls and Enamel-Kote for interior woods and furniture.

Before you buy any paint, come in and see us. We are here to serve you.

J. M. WILLIAMS, North Adams

ACME QUALITY

For Sale—Standing corn, on the E. R. Benson farm. Would trade for cows or sheep. Percy Wells. Phone 802 19tf

Correct English

MONTHLY MAGAZINE

Authoritive Exponent of English for 24 Years

Edited and founded by
JOSEPHINF TURCK BAKER
Famous World English Authority

Send 10 Cents for Sample Copy

Correct English Publishing Company
Evanston, Illinois

Agents Wanted Everywhere

F. E. Caswell D. V. M.

Veterinarian

Office at Residence, West Main St

Private Phone 45

North Adams, Mich

Dr. L. R. ULRICH

DENTIST

Private Office in Room over Perkins' Restaurant

Thursdays hours 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.
Plate Work a Specialty

O. G. McFarland M. D.

North Adams, Mich.

8:00 to 9:00 a. m
1:00 to 4:00 p. m
7:00 to 8:00 p. m
ffany B ldg.
First door west of Opera House

AMERICA FIRST
The REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES
FRED W. GREEN
JUDGE ERNEST A. SNOW
LUREN D. DICKINSON
Republican State Candidates 1926
JOHN S. HAGGERTY
WM. W. POTTER
FRANK D. McKAY
ORAMEL B. FULLER

Harley Voorhees

FUNERAL DIRECTOR
HANOVER MICHIGAN

Calls attended promptly day an night. Having the best of equipment, I can serve and please you.

Any of our friends who wish our servces, can reach u day or night bycalling Moscow Central.

HARLEY VOORHEES
Hanover, Mich.

Probate Order

STATE OF MICHIGAN, The Probate Court for the County of Hillsdale.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Hillsdale in said County, on the 6th day of October A. D. 1926

Present: Hon. ARTHUR L GUERNSEY Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Harmon Fowle, deceased.

Orris J. Fowle Administrator having filed in said court his final administration account and his petition praying for the allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is ordered: That the 9th day of November A. D., 1926, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition.

It is further ordered That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the North Adams Advocate, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county. ARTHUR D. GUERNSEY
2013 Judge of Probate

Hillsdale-Jackson Bus Line

Four Round Trips each Day
Two Round Trips Sunday

NORTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams 6:45 a. m
" " " 1:15 p. m

SOUTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams 8:15 a. m.
" " " 4:20 p. m.

SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS
Bus north at 5:15 p. m
Bus south (via Jonesville) 11 20

BIG SUBSCRIPTION OFFER

You Get ALL FOUR of These MAGAZINES and OUR NEWSPAPER For One Year Each FOR $1.80 Order Now

THIS EXCEPTIONAL OFFER IS GOOD FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY

Subscriptions may be new or renewal. All renewal subscriptions will be extended for one year from present date of expiration.

and Any 5 of this list of leading MAGAZINES $2.25 Why Pay More?

Get Your MAGAZINES NOW AT COST!

Take Your PICK 19 to Select From

Never before and probably never again will you have such an extraordinary money-saving opportunity. Note carefully the large selection of choice reading—all at a price to fit your pocketbook. Renewals will be extended one year from date of expiration. No need to wait.

CLIP AND USE THIS COUPON

Gentlemen: I wish to take advantage of your Magazine Bargain Offer. I am enclosing the above amount in payment for a one year subscription to your paper and the FIVE Magazines I have marked with an X below.

Name

Town State

St. or R.F.D.

☐ American Needlewoman
☐ American Poultry Advocate
☐ Blade & Ledger
☐ Capper's Farmer
☐ Farm & Fireside
☐ The Farm Journal
☐ Farm Life
☐ Gentlewoman Magazine
☐ Good Stories
☐ Home Circle
☐ Home Friend
☐ Household Guest
☐ Household Magazine
☐ Illustrated Mechanics
☐ Mother's Home Life
☐ Pathfinder (weekly) 26 issues
☐ Today's Housewife
☐ Tractor & Gas Engine Review
☐ Woman's World

CHOOSE Mark this coupon now and bring or mail it to our Business Office TODAY

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Culbert who passsd the fiftieth milestone of their married life at their home east of North Adams on Tuesday, October 5th. During the entire time they have resided on the same farm and their many friends and neighbors planned a happy celebration of the event. and thus was the memorable affair carried out with many a greeting and reminiscence of by-gone years. Mr. and Mrs. Culbert express as their only regret that their son, Earl, who resides at Phoenix, Arizona, could not be present. Fifty years ago they journeyed to Hillsdale ahd were married at Fair time. Many of those who were associates at the time have long since passed to the Beyond. yet this couple are rejoicing in a fair degree of health and prosperity, which their many well-wishers hope will be perpetual. "Gene" and "Mary" are known for their extreme hospitality and good cheer, For the occasion a poem of 24 verses was composed by Mrs. Ruth Kirk assisted by Belle Jennings, a lifelong neighbor, and read by Mrs. Jennings.

Use Your Water Power

It wasn't so long ago we were casually observing the columns of "Successful Farming" that wonderfully largely read periodical published by former Secretary of Agriculture, E. D. Meredith of Des Moines Iowa, an account of visiting the farm of a man who among other comforts of city life had installed a powerful electric lighting system without paying from $200 to $500 for a high class "dingus" with liquid storage batteries which is continually getting the backache and freezing up or otherwise going wrong. This far-sighted and business tiller of the soil had the misfortune to be so located that a small creek similar to our own St Joe or Kalamazoo coursed winding and dipping in and out across his fields. While this little stream made him all kinds of trouble by cutting across his most valuable land at all angles and compelling the use of bridges and fences at unheard of and difficult places yet it was a wonderful uplift to the pasture lot in the hot days of August and September when the mercury usually stands around 100' in the shade.

Now this farmer man did not take his troubles so hard, but sat down and figured how he could dam the stream and back it up on a worthless marshy area which had never yielded anything but marsh hay. He built a concrete dam at small cost for an extra man and his own labor. He went to a neighboring city about like Jackson and he bought and trucked home a second hand turbine wheel which had seen better days but it was good enough for his use. He installed this turbine in a little concrete building in his field. He purchased of the mail order house a supply of the best service wire, insulators, switches and buttons, he got busy and led this line to the house and barn first installing a small dynamo also second hand. Today he has one of the most satisfactory and dependable lighting systems in the neighborhood for the small sum of $75 outlay, and its always ready and willing to run the churn, the washing machine, the flat iron, the sewing machine, the grind stone, the buzz saw, the feed grinder, the emery grinder, the fanning mill, the planer, the rip saw and any number of appliances he wants to use. All because the water will run you know and so long as it runs it will make the "juice."

See Great Damage By Borer in Corn

The destruction caused by the European corn borer was seen by 500 people at a demonstration held in the vicinity of Monroe October 21. A five acre field owned by Joe Benore showed a total crop loss. Every stalk in this field contained from one to forty specimens on the borer.

Prof. J. F. Cox was in charge of the day's program and introduced Dean R. S. Shaw, Prof. R. H. Pettit, Prof. H. H. Musselman, George Gettman, specialist in agricultural engineering, all from M. S. C.; J. A. Harmon, entomologist from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and A. C. Carton from the State Department of Agriculture. These men all gave their views of the seriousness of the situation that faces Michigan and the United States. They agreed that only the maximum use of all available means of control could prevent the rapid spread of the European corn borer.

An exhibition was given of the machines which are of greatest use in control work. A low cutting attachment for corn binders and a stubble pulverizer were the only specially designed machines shown The ensilage cutter and the corn husker and shredder destroy nearly all the borers in material run through these machines. The fermentation in silage destroys all borers in silage. Plowing down does not kill borers in corn stubble

State laws give the State Department of Agriculture the power to enforce quarantine laws and to compel the cleaning up of fields which are infested with corn borer. This clean up work must be done before May 25. The state of Michigan needs the active aid of every available agency to prevent very serious damage to a crop which was worth 50,000,000 dollars last year.

Vote Yes For The County Nurse

An opportunity will be given to the voters of Hillsdale County at the coming election on Tuesday, November 2, to decide the question of having a Public Health Nurse for Hillsdale County. Will you please give this your careful and earnest consideration and vote yes in the interests of the children of our county.

Why We Should Vote Yes

We have spent a great deal of money to eliminate tuberculosis from our cattle and poultry. It is time we give some attention to the eradication of tuberculosis among our children.

Statistics show unmistakably that the country child is not as healthy as the city child, therefore it is our duty to see that our rural children have the best possible opportunity for health education, by voting for the health nurse.

Nature's Bounty To Be Shown at Chicago

Agriculture in all her glory will hold court at the world's farm capitol the week following Thanksgiving when the International Live Stock Exposition will celebrate its 27th anniversary at the Chicago Union Stock Yards, November 27 to December 4. According to Secretary-Manager B. H. Heide who has successfully conducted this greatest of all agricultural shows for over a quarter of a century, the approaching session will be the most completely balanced exhibition ever staged in its illustrious history.

For months the foremost breeders have been grooming their finest beef cattle, horses, sheep and hogs for the supreme test of the year at this acknowledged "Court of Last Resort." Champions from every large stock show on the continent will meet to decide the final honors of the season, many of them clashing here for the first time. The concentrated blood of generations of breeding will be gathering together in one great dazzling display of animal perfection.

The International Grain and Hay Show will include around 5,000 samples of grains, small seeds and hay selected from the choicest crops of the United States and Canada. Practically every state and province will be represented in this department,

An army of 1200 farm youths, picked from 650,000 Boys' and Girls' Club members, will attend the Fifth National Club Congress, compete in contests and give demonstrations in their own building on the Exposition grounds.

Educational exhibits of the Department of Agriculture and state colleges will deal with such timely subjects as the corn borer menace. Brilliant evening entertainments, Horse show, Meat shoppe, judging contests, auctions, organization meetings and many other events will crowd each day's program. Reduced rates on all railroads will allow thousands to visit this great gathering of the basic industry.

The name "Philippine mahogany" is being applied to certain woods that do not belong to the mahogany family. Among the Philippine woods to which the name is being applied are tanguile and lauaan. This loose use of standard terms is not approved by the Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture. It has been quoted as indorsing the name "Philippine mahogany," but, on the contrary, the Chief Forester says that it is desirable to use standard names that do not deceive or mislead the public. The name "mahogany," he says, should be confined to the true mahoganies which belong to the botanical genus Swietenia.

GENERAL ELECTION

Notice is hereby given that a General Election will be held in the Township of Moscow County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan at Moscow Village within said Township, on Tuesday, November 2. A. D. 1926. For the purpose of voting for the election of the following officers, yiz: State—Governor; Lieutenant Governor; Secretary of State; State Treasurer; Auditor General; Attorney General Justice of the Supreme Court (to fill vacancy) for the term ending the thirty first day of December, nineteen hundred twenty nine.

Congressional—One Representative in Congress for the Congressional District of which said Township forms a part.

Legislative—One Senator in the State Legislature for the Senatorial District of which said township forms a part; one Representative in the State Legislature for the Legislative district of which said township forms a part.

County—Sheriff; County Clerk; County Treasurer; Register of Deeds; Prosecuting Attorney; Two Circuit Court Commissioners; Drain Commissioner; Two Coroners; and a County Surveyor; One County Road Commissioner.

NOTICE RELATIVE TO OPENING AND CLOSING OF THE POLLS

Act 351—Part IV—Chapter VIII, Public Acts of 1925.

Sec. 1. On the day of any election the polls shall be opened at seven o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as may be, and shall be continued open until five o'clock in the afternoon and no longer: Provided, That in townships the board of inspectors of election may, in its discretion, adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock noon, for one hour, and that the township board in townships and the legislative body in cities and villages may, by resolution adopted fifteen days prior to the election and published with the notice of the election, provide that the polls shall be opened at six o'clock in the forenoon and may also provide that the polls shall be kept open not later than eight o'clock in the evening of the same day.

The Polls of said election shall be open at 7:00 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 5:00 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall, in their discretion, adjourn the Polls at 12 o'clock, noon, for oneh our.

Dated September 20, A. D. 1926.
Ford McCowan, Clerk of said Township. 20t3

NOTICE

Proposition for the County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan, to employ Public Health Nurses.

Notice is hereby given to the Qualified Electors of the County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan, that at the time and places of holding the next General Election in each of the several voting precincts of said County, on Tuesday November 2 A. D. 1926.

A proposition will be submitted to said Electors to Employ Public Health Nurses as provided by Act. No. 7, of Public Acts of 1925.

Said Proposition will be voted upon by ballot in the following form, viz.: "Is it your wish that the Board of Supervisors of Hillsdale County, Employ Public Health Nurses as provided by Act. No. 7, of the Public Acts of 1925?"

Every legally cast ballot found to have a cross marked by an elector in the square pertaining to the word "Yes" will be counted for said proposition, and every such ballot found to have a cross marked by an elector in the square pertaining to the word "No" will be counted against said proposition.

Dated September 25, A. D. 1926
Frank O. Hancock, Clerk of said County of Hillsdale.

Notice is hereby given that the place of holding said Election for the Township of Moscow, in said County will be at Moscow village.

And the polls of said election will be open at 7 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall, in their discretion, adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock, noon for one hour.

Dated September 25, 1926.
Ford McCowan Clerk of said Township. 20t3

NOTICE

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION

Notice is hereby given to The Qualified Elecors that at the time and places of holding the next GENERAL ELECTION in each of the several voting precincts of said County, on TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, A. D. 1926

There will be submitted at said election five proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Michigan as follows:

Compensation of members of the Legislature of Michigan.

Amendment to Section 9 of Article V of the Constitution relative to the compensation of members of the legislature.

Sec. 9. The compensation of the members of the Legislature shall be twelve hundred dollars for the regular session. When convened in extra session their compensation shall be ten dollars per day for the first twenty days and nothing thereafter. Members shall be entitled to ten cents per mile and no more for one round trip to each regular session of the Legislature by the usually traveled route. Each member shall be entitled to one copy of the laws, journals and documents of the Legislature of which he is a member, but shall not receive, at the expense of the State books or newspapers not expressly authorized by this Consititution.

Term of office of County Sheriffs.

Amendment to Section 5 of Article VIII of the Constitution relative to the term of office of county sheriffs.

Sec. 5. The sheriff shall hold no other office. He shall be elected at the general election for the term of two years. He may be required by law to renew his security from time to time and in default of giving such security, his office shall be deemed vacant. The county shall never be responsible for his acts.

Creation of Metropolitan Districts.

Amendment to Article VIII of the Constitution relative to the creation of metropolitan districts by cities, villages or townships.

Sec. 31. The Legislature shall by general law provide for the incorporation by any two or more cities, villages or townships, or any combination or parts of same, of metropolitan districts comprising territory, within their limits, for the purpose of acquiring, owning and operating either with or without their limits as may be prescribed by law parks or public utilities for supplying sewage disposal, drainage, water, light, power or transportation, or any combination thereof, any such district may sell or purchase, either within or without its limits as may be prescribed by law, sewage disposal or drainage rights, water, light, power or transportation facilities. Any such districts shall have power to acquire and succeed to any or all of the rights, obligations and property of such cities, villages and townships respecting or connected with such functions or public utilities: Provided, That no city, village or township shall surrender any such rights, obligations or property without the approval thereof by a majority vote of the electors thereof voting on such question. Such General law shall limit the rate of taxation of such districts for their municipal purposes and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. Under such general law, the electors of each district shall have power and authority to frame, adopt and amend its charter upon the approval thereof by a majority vote of the electors of each city, village or township, voting on such question, and through, its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, subject to the constitution and general laws of this State.

Condemnation of excess land and property for boulevards, streets, etc.

Amendment to Article XIII of the Constitution relative to the condemnation of excess land and property for boulevards, streets, etc.

Sec. 5. Subject to this Constitution the Legislature may authorize municipalities, subject to reasonable limitations, to condemn and to take the fee to more land and property than is needed in the acquiring, opening and widening of boulevards, streets and alleys, or for any public use, and after so much of the land and property has been appropriated for any such needed public purpose, the remainder may be sold or leased with or without such restrictions as may be appropriate to the improvement made. Bonds may be issued to supply the funds to pay in whole or in part for the excess property so appropriated but such bonds shall be a lien only on the property so acquired and they shall not be included in any limitation of the bonded indebtedness of such municipality.

Revision of the Constitution.

Shall the constitution of this state be revised and a convention called therefor?

NOTICE is Hereby Given, That the place of holding said election in the Township of Moscow (Precinct No.) Will be at Moscow Village and the polls of said election will be open at 7:00 o'clock a. m., and will remain open until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall in their discretion adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock noon for one hour.

FORD McCOWAN
Clerk of said Township.
Dated October 7, 1926.

Trucking—Stock to Detroit. Safe delivery guaranteed. Phone or call at Moscow Postoffice. Harry Mayo Moscow Mich. 20t3

Hotels
MADISON and LENOX
DETROIT
These twin hotels, conveniently located downtown, offer you accommodations of great excellence at most reasonable rates...
MADISON AVE. NEAR GRAND CIRCUS PARK

AUCTION SALE

The Undersigned will sell at public Auction on the premises, one mile east of North Adams on

Wednes., Nov. 3, 1926

BEGINNING AT 1:00 P. M. THE FOLLOWING PROPERTY

3 Horses: Mare 12 years old, sound and right, with plenty of life and endurance. 2 Geldings

FOUR COWS Grade Jerseys, one coming 3 yrs. old due to freshen Jan. 13 one coming 3 yrs. old, due Mar. 19; one coming 3, due June 10th; one 5 yrs. due Feb. 24; Jersey Heifer 2 yrs. old, due Feb. 11; Heifer 6 months old; If you are looking for good cows, come and see these. 2 Brood Sows One with 7 pigs; Duroc Jersey open; with 8 pigs ten weeks old.

Poultry About 150 English White Leghorn Pullets; about 50 White Leghorn Yearling Hens; about 20 Barred Rock Yearling Hens.

Hay and Grain 250 Bushels of good Oats; about 150 Bushels Barley; 6 or 8 tons of Alfalfa and Timothy Hay; about 600 Shocks of Corn.

Farm Tools 3-inch tire wagon;combination rack; set of dump boards; No. 43 Oliver Plow; spring tooth harrow: 2 riding cultivators. 5-tooth cultivator; steel roller; plank float; corn marker; Deering Ideal mower; 10-foot hay rack , tank heater. scoop scraper. hay kife forks. harness.

Miscellaneous DeLaval cream separator No. 15. Cyphers incubator 240-egg, nearly new. Successful incubator 400-egg, in good condition. 1,000 chick hard coal brooder. washing machine in good shape. cider barrel. about 300 second hand brick. several hundred feet second hand oak lumber. log chain corn planters and numerous other articles.

A Nice Home consisting of 60 acres 1-2 Mile from Village limits of North Adams is for sale. Come and see it.

Terms: Sums of $10.00 and under cash, over $10.00 cesh or bankable note. No goods removed until settled for.

J. I. POST Auct'r F. M. RUMSEY, Prop. J. WILLIAMS Clerk

HOW THE PILGRIM MOTHER

Kept Her Family in Good Health

A statue to the Pilgrim Mother was recently unveiled at Plymouth Rock, Mass. Through her we honor every pioneer woman who endured privation and hardships that a nation might live. Shoulder to shoulder with her husband she built a home in the wilderness and reared her sturdy sons and daughters. She cooked and sewed. She spun and wove for her growing family and when they were ill, she brewed potent remedies from roots and herbs—such roots and herbs as are now used in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A Massachusetts woman writes: "I was all run-down, with no ambition. I was tired all the time. Sometimes I would be in bed two or three days at a time, and the doctor would have to give me something to quiet me. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have had wonderful results from it. I felt better after taking the second bottle, and I am never without it in the house now. I have told lots of people about it, and they say it helps them, too. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. J. W. Critchett, 2 Hammond Street, Cambridge, Mass.

Handiest thing in the house

FOR FIRST AID

Every day on the farm brings a new need for "Vaseline" Jelly. A pure, safe remedy for burns, cuts, rashes and minor skin troubles. Take internally for coughs and colds.

Chesebrough Mfg. Company State St. (Consolidated) New York

Vaseline

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF
PETROLEUM JELLY

Assessors Use Airplanes

The Connecticut tax assessors are using with good effect photographs of interior lands to help in their assessments. In one county the tax list recorded 1,551 barns, garages and sheds, but when the air photographers had finished their task it was found there were 2,902 such buildings in that area, with the result that the tax list increased in value more than $10,000,000.

A brave man is sometimes a desperado; but a bully is always a coward.—Haliburton.

Overdoing?

Hurry, Worry and Overwork Bring Heavy Strain.

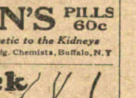
MODERN life throws a heavy burden on our bodily machinery. The eliminative organs, especially the kidneys, are apt to become sluggish. Retention of excess uric acid and other poisonous waste often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning perfectly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys by the occasional use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c

Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys

Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chemists, Buffalo, N. Y.

Quick safe relief CORNS



In one minute your misery from corns is ended. That's what Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads do safely by removing the cause—pressing or rubbing of shoes. You risk no infection from amateur cutting, no danger from "drops" (acid). Zino-pads are thin, medicated, antiseptic, protective, healing. Get a box at your druggist's or shoe dealer's today—35c.

For Free Sample write The Scholl Mfg. Co., Chicago

Dr Scholl's Zino-pads

Put one on—the pain is gone

DON'T RUB!

INFLAMED LIDS

It increases the irritation. Use MITCHELL EYE SALVE, a simple, dependable, safe remedy. 25c at all druggists. Hall & Ruckel, New York City

Quick Relief From Coughs and Colds

It Is Exceedingly Dangerous to Let Coughs and Colds Develop. Easy to Check Them.

For more than fifty-five years Porter's Pain King has stood in the front rank of home remedies for the relief of colds, coughs, croup, hoarseness and similar ailments.

Porter's Pain King is made of pure, wholesome ingredients, perfectly harmless and amazingly effective. By merit alone it holds an honored place in hundreds of thousands of American homes the year 'round.

Right now is a good time to read the circular wrapped around every bottle. Many families who have this good old-time liniment in the house suffer needlessly because they do not know all of its many uses. Porter's Pain King is more than a remedy for colds. It soothes aches and pains, soreness, swollen joints, tired muscles, lame back and rheumatic misery. It heals burns, scalds, cuts, chapped hands, frost-bitten feet. Why not use it today?

Made and guaranteed since 1871 by The Geo. H. Rundle Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by dealers everywhere.

NEW COATS FEATURE CUFFS; COLORFUL CREPE FROCKS

TO THINK that cuffs, mere cuffs, could be so interesting! But they are. The newer-designed coats are proving it too. Surely nothing could be more attractive in the way of an ultra-smart coat than the one in this picture and the picturesque pirate cuffs which it boasts have much to do with the dash and go of its style. We are to have more and more of the pirate and the cavalier cuff, so fashion tells us.

Aside from the cuffs, which give this coat so much chic, there are other details which tell the world the dernier cri from Paris. There is, for instance, the handsome velvet applique arranged in strappings of military precision and as to the color of this coat, here, indeed, is the very latest described, for blonde and beige shades are the talk throughout all fashionland. The fact that the hand-appliqued velvet and the kasha cloth from which this coat is made, are perfectly matched light beige, stamps this model with authoritative style. Furthermore, the dainty shoes worn with this adorable coat carry out the same beige or blonde color scheme. It has come to be most important that one's shoes match or at least harmonize with the costume. To this end stylists are featuring navy kidskin shoes with suits and street frocks of that same shade while brown footwear in all its variations is considered quite the extreme of good style.

Returning to the subject of coats, the better models, as instanced in the picture, attain their distinction and difference through subtle detail. Perhaps it is the intricate seaming or an unusual cuff, a novelty pocket, or some other cunning manipulation of the cloth which disturbs the silhouette not at all yet arouses that consciousness of superior style.

Favor is again expressed for fine black broadcloth, perhaps trimmed in velvet or just as likely in smooth supple fur, shaved lamb being favored.

Banded and bordered in padded quilted design gives a handsome effect in which monotone coloring is maintained. Smooth beige or gray cloth thus worked provides an effective coat theme.

Velvet! It is a magic word sounded unto the uttermost limit of fashion's domain. Velvet used as a trimming has become nothing less than a fashion craze. At the rate the vogue is spreading, ere autumn far progresses, scarcely an up-to-date wardrobe will there be, which does not include a colorful or a black dress, as it may please, lavishly trimmed in self-toned velvet. An outstanding trimming treatment is the skirt tiered with straight or circular velvet ruffles. The effectiveness thereof is set forth in this picture of a claret red crepe frock boasting row upon row of velvet ruffles. The flaring ruffle of velvet on the sleeve makes the whole gown akin.

Very often the tiers are cut circular and sometimes just the reverse is expressed in that flat velvet bands are placed so as to simulate wide tucks.

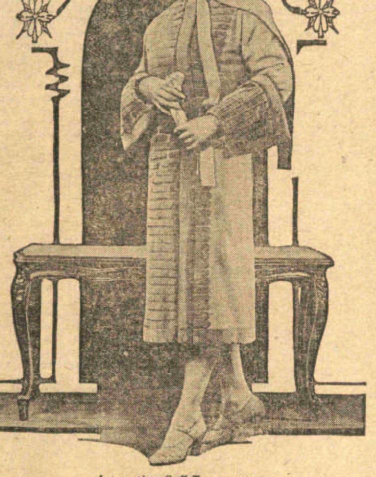
Borderings of velvet which extend at each side of the front opening, from neck to hemline and then around the bottom of the dress are fashionable. Velvet pockets used in conjunction with other velvet details denote this season's mode. The new cavalier flaring cuffs cut of velvet, also velvet cape collars, adorn many a silken frock.

Two distinct trends are evidenced in the latest velvet-trimmed frocks. One is for the colorful frock, preferably one of the new wine shades or perhaps jungle green or likely a rust tone, or some desirable shade of blue, or if one aspires to the extreme of the mode a biscuit-colored crepe embellished with matched velvet. The other call of fashion is for the black crepe or dull satin frock trimmed in black velvet.

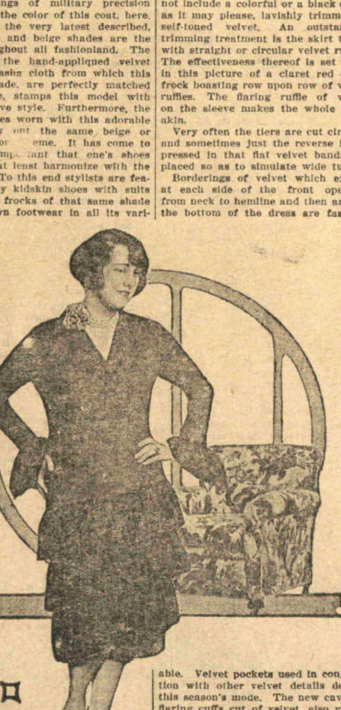
Most unique is the crepe frock trimmed in bands of velvet ribbon, so arranged as to present an ombre effect. That is, the velvet is of deepest color, grading each row a tone lighter.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)



Interesting Cuff Treatment.



Tiered With Ruffles.

Bloomers and Knickers in Winsome New Shades

Bloomers and knickers are engaging in style and color with many new shades. These form the answer to underdressing with the autumn ensembles, suits and frocks, and the lady with the long purse may indulge her fancy for color in many new garments. They are to be had in pansy, pervanche, navy, geranium, fawn, rosewood, plum, rush, French nude and the staple colors. Now that dyes are more trustworthy, black is being worn a great deal in these bloomers—all of glove silk or rayon. All of the crepes are being used for lingerie of all descriptions and some who have become accustomed to the very sheer stuffs cling to them for chemises, stepins and nightgowns. Garments of this type are shown in delicate shades of yellow, pink, green, orchid and blue, with some stunning combinations of black and white. Models in these last are trimmed in chantilly, in black and white, in striking contrast.

Sure Relief

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS Hot water Sure Relief

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

25¢ and 75¢ Pkg's. Sold Everywhere

Cuticura Soap Is Pure and Sweet Ideal for Children

Sample Soap, Ointment, Talcum free. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. M, Malden, Mass.

Be Doubly Sure

After an older sister had called loudly for him, Richard came strolling into the yard.

"Why didn't you come the first time I called?" she asked, severely.

"I didn't hear you the first time, but I did the second time," the culprit answered by way of excuse.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Educational

"It is a fact," says Paw Hoptoad, "that I am having my daughter instructed in many old-fashioned things. For instance, the art of conversation over the telephone."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Opportunity knocked on the door, but the man inside was so busy knocking he did not hear.

Women, Why Not Enjoy Health?

Racine, Wis.—"I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it was a most wonderful benefit to me, because it gave me health and strength. It is an excellent tonic and nervine and should be given a fair trial, I believe, by every woman who is not enjoying the very best of health."—Mrs. Eleanor Pagel, 822 Racine Street.

All dealers. Large bottles, liquid $1.35; Tablets $1.35 and 65c.

Write Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for free advice.

KEEP COUGHS OUT OF "DANGER ZONE"

Coughing irritates your throat and makes you cough more. The more you cough the harder it is to stop. And when you feel the cough spreading down into your bronchial tubes it is nearing the "danger zone"—for these tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral stops coughs quickly—almost instantly in spasmodic attacks. With the very first swallow you feel its comforting warmth. Real medicine, reaching deep down with its soothing, healing power. Absorbed through and through the irritated throat, chest and bronchial membranes, it quickly stops the cough, breaks up the cold and brings prompt, lasting relief.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is hospital-proved. Prescribed by physicians. Pleasant to taste. All druggists—60c and twice the quantity, $1.00.

Today's Big Offer to All Who Have Stomach Agony

Read About This Generous Money Back Guarantee

When you have any trouble with your stomach such as gas, heaviness and distention, why fool with things which at best can only give relief.

Why not get a medicine that will build up your upset, disordered stomach and make it so strong and vigorous that it will do its work without any help.

Such a medicine is Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a delightful elixir that is sold by your local dealer and druggists everywhere with the distinct understanding that if it doesn't greatly help you your money will be gladly returned.

It has helped thousands—it will no doubt help you.

Threat That Brought About Quick Reform

An elderly, dignified Samoan chief walked into the courtroom in the Administration building in Pago Pago, leading a small, stockily built native, and marched up to the desk of the American judge.

"This man is a member of my family," said the chief, "and he won't obey orders. So I have brought him to you."

"In what way does he fail to obey orders?" inquired the judge.

"He won't bring in food to me."

The judge eyed the culprit, an unusually small man for a Samoan, and the latter grinned pleasantly back.

"Do you belong to the chief's family?" asked the judge.

"Yes."

"Don't you know your Samoan custom; that you are expected to do the work your chief gives you to do?"

"Yes."

"Then why don't you go out and get the food as ordered and bring it in to him?"

"I do go out and get it," replied the small culprit blandly, "but I don't bring it in because I like to eat it myself."

"Under the Samoan custom," said the judge, suppressing a smile and rapping for order in the court to stop a general laugh, "if you don't obey the orders your chief gives you he will throw you out of his family. Then you will be an outcast and a wanderer and no one will lift a hand to help you at any time. You had better control your appetite."

The culprit's grin faded to a look of dismay. In Samoa it is the deepest disgrace to belong to no family; a slander unjustly to call a man a wanderer; utter misery to be one. The small man abjectly promised to obey orders in the future, so peace was restored.

Sorghum

One happy remembrance comes to mind in these days when it is announced that the sorghum crop will be large and that there will be plenty of the old-time molasses. In the old days when the young folk ate sorghum molasses, corn bread and sometimes a varied assortment of gravies there were no beauty parlors needed. Both boys and girls established a reputation for having a certain type of beauty and that reputation has never been lost. It is only the young folk who did not eat sorghum and corn bread who now need the assistance of the specialists in beauty culture. Everybody should have a chance to eat a saucer full of good old sorghum molasses, with corn bread and perhaps a little cream, and thus will come not only realization how the boys and girls of a former generation lived, but also what made them so healthy and beautiful.—Nashville Ledger.

Century of Aluminum

One of the most useful of mineral elements is aluminum. It was discovered a century ago by a young chemist, Frederick Wohler, in his laboratory at Gottingen, Germany. Many chemists before him had attempted to extract the mineral from Mother Earth, but without success, says the Pathfinder Magazine.

Aluminum is used in a great many ways. Auto pistons [illegible] other parts are made of it, so [illegible] kitchen utensils, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, airplanes, screws and other hardware, containers for tooth paste and other dental and medical preparations. Cars, light fixtures, paint, explosives, paper, radio condensers, motor-boat parts, jewelry and many other miscellaneous articles are made wholly or partly of aluminum.

Howl From Oyster Lover

Our Cos Cob correspondent recently visited New York and made the deplorable discovery that the retail price of an oyster stew has risen to 60 cents. It was 50 cents when he last visited the metropolis, in September, 1925. Further, he avers: "For half a century the standard price of an oystery stew was 25 cents, with a dozen oysters in the bowl. Now there are but eight. Moreover, the savor of the stew has departed. There is no oyster flavor discernible, and the mess is perked up with paprika and worcestershire. Out upon such artificialities! Bring back the liquor of the bivalve and let me taste it once more before I die."—The Outlook.

Thief in Hard Luck

Shinkicki Yoshida, a light-fingered resident of Kobe, Japan, picked three snapping turtles off a butcher's slab and slid them into his capacious kimono sleeve, safely out of sight. He had not proceeded far with his loot, however, before he uttered a lusty yell. Then he yelled louder still. When help reached him it was found that one snapper had taken a grip on Shinkicki's forearm and that the other two were attached to two of the fingers of the hand he had hastily thrust into the sleeve. The snappers were pried off and handcuffs snapped on.

Trader Got Bargain

For two fat oxen a farm of 16,000 acres was bartered in the Fraserburg district of South Africa. This was told in a right-of-way case in the Supreme court, Capetown. A witness stated that in 1836 his grandfather had a very fine pair of fat oxen, and as the owner of the farm was anxious to join Retief's trek into the Transvaal and had no cattle strong enough for the long journey, he exchanged the farm for the two oxen. The present value of the farm is not less than $80,000.

Preserve Improvements

Home owners, as a rule, are too quick to install improvements in their houses, and too slow to do anything about preserving them. Not until an emergency arises, or until a big repair job is on hand, do most people realize the necessity for rectifying the results of their neglect.

Let Each Do His Part

Better times are ahead if we help others to have a better time.—The Outlook.

Dead Barberries Spread No Rust

By Use of Salt or Kerosene It Has Been Found Possible to Kill Bushes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Results at the end of the eighth year of the campaign against the common barberry as summed up by Dr. F. E. Kempton, in charge of the project for the United States Department of Agriculture, show that practically all of the 12,139,021 bushes, sprouting bushes, and seedlings found in the 13 states have been destroyed. By the use of salt or kerosene it has been possible to destroy the bushes beyond any possibility of future sprouting.

Completing Surveys.

Under the direction of state leaders in the 13 states, 266 field men and squad leaders started on the present season's work July 1. The men in Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and Montana are attempting to complete the preliminary survey in those states. A thorough second survey is being carried on in Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and Indiana, where many escaped bushes are being found in natural and planted wooded areas. Many local areas of rusted grain have been found during the season and, in practically every case, nearby barberry bushes were found to be the source of infection.

Bushes and Seedlings Left.

No doubt many common barberry bushes and seedlings still exist in the barberry eradication area, says Doctor Kempton, and these must be found and destroyed. It is evident, he says, that barberry eradication is a material aid in the solution of the stem-rust problem. Stem rust has been controlled in the eastern group of the barberry states by removal of the bushes, and epidemics seem to be less severe generally in the last few years. In many localities the elimination of barberries has already so reduced stem-rust losses that it is again possible to grow grain where formerly it had been abandoned because of rust.

Young Chickens Spread Tuberculosis to Swine

It is a general belief that chickens under one year of age seldom develop tuberculosis to the extent of becoming spreaders of the disease. Hence, it is thought that culling all birds above that age from the flock would soon eliminate the disease.

To determine whether or not this belief is well founded, Dr. T. S. Rich of the Department of Agriculture, in charge of tuberculosis-eradication work in the state of Michigan, conducted a general culling campaign covering all poultry flocks in one township in the state. Every chicken on 151 farms was individually examined, or a total of 15,377. From this number 1,494 were removed as culls, and 86 were found upon post-mortem examination to be infected with tuberculosis. The disease was demonstrated to exist in about 38 per cent of the flocks examined. Three generalized cases were birds under one year of age. This was conclusive proof to Doctor Rich that young chickens as well as old are a source of danger in spreading tuberculosis to hogs and should be removed along with the rest of the flock when infection is discovered.

Control Stomach Worms by Change of Pasture

Sheep heavily infested with stomach worms cannot be thrifty and profitable. At the Ohio experiment station it is recommended that control be obtained by frequent change of pasture and by dosing.

Dosing may consist of either copper sulphate or nicotine sulphate (Black Leaf 40). Never use both treatments at the same time. The copper sulphate solution is made by dissolving two ounces of dark blue copper sulphate crystals in one gallon of water. The nicotine sulphate is prepared by adding two teaspoonfuls to one quart of water.

Keep the sheep off feed for 18 hours before and six hours after treatment. If possible, turn them on pasture not grazed by sheep for two months previous. Give sheep weighing 50 to 60 pounds one ounce of either solution, but never both. Sheep weighing 60 to 80 pounds need one and one-half ounces, and all sheep over 100 pounds, three ounces. Dose with an oil can or syringe.

Burning Weeds in Fall Will Kill Their Seeds

Fall is the best time to burn weeds.

The burning of weeds is a practice that should be universally followed in places where they cannot be used for green manure. The use of fire destroys the seed as well as the unsightly dead plants.

Where weeds are burned in the fall there is less chance for the seeds to be scattered than later, when the plants have died from frost. It is a good plan to mow the weeds close to the ground while they are still green and immediately rake them into piles. In this way the seed will not be rattled out. The piles should be rather small—half the size of a hay cock—so that they will dry out quickly and burn up completely. Set fire to the piles, and see that the loose ends are raked into the coals when the center has burned.

What Americans Eat

The average American, according to recent statistics, eats 150 pounds of meat a year. In the same space, he consumes 200 pounds of potatoes and 150 eggs. He eats, however, less wheat than the Frenchman.

General Ambition

A gentleman of our days is one who has money enough to do what every fool would do if he could afford it: that is, consume without producing.—Bernard Shaw.

Ask for the Handy Pack P.K.

WRIGLEY'S
P.K.
CHEWING SWEET
PEPPERMINT FLAVOR

3 Handy Packs for 5¢

People who are careful of their health and strength use Wrigley's Chewing Sweets.

Because Wrigley's, besides being a delightful confection, clears the teeth of food particles and aids digestion! It removes odors of eating or smoking.

Mouth cleanliness benefits young and old.

Peppermint Flavor G143

Chew it "after every meal"

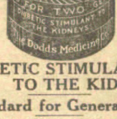
WE PAY YOU CASH for gold bridges, crowns, false teeth, old plates, diamonds, discarded jewelry, magneto points. WHITING GOLD REFINING CO., 5 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK. Send goods now. References: Chatham-Phenix Bank, New York.

Wonderful Gown

A woman (over the phone)—My dear, do come over and see my new gown. Every one says I look awfully well in it.

Her Best Friend—I'll come at once, dear. It must be a wonderful gown.

A winch that holds several hundred feet of wire rope has been invented that can be attached to tractors and operated by their engines.



DIURETIC STIMULANT TO THE KIDNEYS

Standard for Generations

Mrs. Della Olson, of New London, Wis., like many others, knows after experiencing the use of Dodd's Pills that they are unexcelled. Here is what Mrs. Olson wrote us:

"I suffered with rheumatism for years. There was a gravel deposit in the urine and I had frequent headaches. I had dark circles around my eyes and was always tired. I bought a box of your Dodd's Pills and am glad I did, for I secured quick relief and think they are a wonderful remedy."

Buy a box today, 60c, at your drug store or the Dodd's Medicine Co., 700 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Boschee's Syrup

has been relieving coughs due to colds for sixty years.

Soothes the Throat

loosens the phlegm, promotes expectoration, gives a good night's rest free from coughing. 30c and 90c bottles, at all druggists. If you cannot get it, write to G. G. Green, Inc., Woodbury, N. J.

Wondered Why Breath Was So Bad

Brooklyn. Miss Rose Dittmar writes:—"Even though I brushed my teeth and used a mouth wash, my friends turned away when I talked and I wondered why my breath was so offensive, while people less careful were not troubled. After taking Carter's Little Liver Pills for a while the trouble started to disappear. I also noticed my face had better color and was clearer, my eyes brighter, my appetite more hearty and I had no constipation." Bad breath must be reached at the source of the trouble. Druggists, 25 & 75¢ red pkgs.

STOP THAT ITCHING

You won't have to wait—relief follows the first comforting touch of

Resinol

MOTHER GRAY'S POWDERS BENEFIT MANY CHILDREN

Thousands of mothers have found Mother Gray's Sweet Powders an excellent remedy for children complaining of Headaches, Colds, Feverishness, Worms, Stomach Troubles and other irregularities from which children suffer these days and excellent results are accomplished by its use. They break up colds and regulate the bowels. Used and recommended by Mothers for over 30 years. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Trial package FREE. Address, Mother Gray Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM

ASTHMA?

3 generations have found relief in Oliver Tar. Soothing and healing to membranes of throat and lungs.

HALL & RUCKEL, New York

WIN HER LOVE—GOOD LUCK GARTERS. Latest, finest, one red, one yellow. Agents get sample. 10 cents for particulars. Turner, 710 Broad, Jacksonville, Fla.

CANCERS RELIEVED BY AMAZING LOST ART discovery a mineral compound that never fails. Address, Mary E. Wilkey, 55 S. Twelfth St., Terre Haute, Indiana.

HOARDED GRAIN NOW FAMILY'S ESTATE

War records of Michigan counties are being preserved for their historicalinterest in the years to come. Ingham county offers one exception in that there is a set of war records in Lansing which are still live, working records, though the end is near with but a single case remaining open and probably listed under the head of "unfinished business."

The documents are in possession of C. J. Mears, of Lansing, who served as deputy food administrator for the state during the World war.

The record just brought to a close concerned the hoarding of 2,000 bushels of wheat by a farmer in a southern county. The attitude of this man, after the United States entered the war with Germany, has created an estate for surviving members of the family and "finis" has just been written to a little story of the wonders of compounding interest by the record keepers.

The farmer who hoarded this 2,000 bushels of wheat was notified by the food administrator to sell his wheat. He refused. His tirade against the country which had received him on friendly terms and in which he had made money and grown rich, didn't help his case any.

The wheat was confiscated, hauled to an elevator and sold at the market price. The grain brought $3,800.

Acceptance of the money, however, was refused by the farmer and the agent was compelled to carry the bag of money back to the bank. He left a receipt for the money, in event the man changed his mind about accepting it. But the farmer did not change. Recently he died and among his papers was found the receipt which until death he had stubbornly refused to present for negotiation.

Relatvies had no scruples against asking for the money. Interest compounded each year increased the sum to $5,400 between the date of original deposit and the present time.

Man, 92, Enjoys Sunset of Life in Making Bird Houses

Anyone in Belding, Mich., can tell you that J. M. Thomas is the youngest old man in town. Illness and the passing years have left their mark on his body, but the joy of life and an intense interest and enjoyment of every passing day shine in his kindly face.

Born in Jackson county 82 years ago, Mr. Thomas' early life was spent in that locality. His father wished him to become a farmer, but he entered woodwork, and to that end he began experimenting with whatever material he had at hand.

When he was 12 years old, he had constructed a lathe and convinced his family that cabinet work should be his chosen vocation.

The work he loves best of all is making birdhouses, and many a feathered family kept house this summer in one of his snug little creations. In winter he feeds all the birds that come his way, sparrows and all, and he has plenty of boarders who know where the feeding place is established.

A visitor once expressed the opinion that it was perfectly wonderful that a shaky old man like Mr. Thomas could turn out such exquisite work, and how did he dare to use the whirring saws, at which a young man might wel hesitate?

This year his vacation was spent at White lake, near Montague, and he is looking forward to next year's outing with all the avidity of a youngster.

Two in Michigan Named for Rhodes Scholarship Test

Fred P. Alderman, of Lansing, and Robert H. Walter, of Detroit, were nominated for the Rhodes scholarship from Michigan by a Michigan State college faculty committee. A state committee will meet in Ann Arbor in December to name the winner, who will get a three-year course at Oxford.

LANGUAGES
FRENCH, ENGLISH, SPANISH, ITALIAN, ETC.
BERLITZ SCHOOL
(Established 1878)
820 David Whitney Bldg.,
DETROIT, MICH.
Phone: Randolph 2559.

WE TEACH
STEAM ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL POWER
And
HOUSE WIRING
DETROIT
PRACTICAL SCHOOL
23 East Jefferson, Detroit
W. B. MacDonald, M.E.I.C., M.I.E.S.
Gus Lender, M.A.I.E.E.; U.C.C. of E., N.A.S.E.

Accident Blasts Girl's Hope of Musical Career

Edith Redmond, above, 18-year-old high school graduate of Kenosha, Wis., had hopes until recently of a brilliant musical career. Experts called her voice remarkable and praised her ability as a pianist. Then she was struck by an auto. Her back is broken and physicians doubt she will ever be able to walk again.

NIGHT HAWK FOE OF WINGED BUGS

One of the most interesting families of birds in Michigan is the family to which the night hawks and the whip-poor-wills belong.

These two birds have always been birds of mystery. The peculiar uncanny call notes of the whip-poor-will has always been most interesting.

There is an old delusion which is still a belief among many people that the nighthawk and whop-poor-will is the same bird. This is not sure, by any means. Although in color they resemble each other ever so much and in some of their habits they are somewhat alike, yet they are two entirely different species of birds and in reality are very much different from each othher. The nighthawk is an erratic wanderer of the sky. He feeds on the wing and usually high up in the air. The remarkable way in which he cleaves air has always won admiration. He is a past master at the art of flying.

Both the nighthawk and the whip-poor-will are almost exclusively insectivorous. Their diet consists of many different species of winged insects of which they destroy great quantities. Both birds rank among the most beneficial that we have. The nighthawks, though not commonly known, are usually found abundantly around most any city in Michigan. It chooses for its nesting site a gravel covered roof, laying its eggs among the stones without pretense of any nest material. This is unlike the whip-poor-will, who never is found except in wooded areas.

Many Pheasants Seen In Fields As Frost Cuts Weeds

"Since the frost has been cutting down the weeds," says Charlie Merifield, Kent county game warden, "I have been seeing a lot of pheasants. In fact, a whole lot more than I expected to see."

"The boys are going to have some good shooting this year. ut let 'em know they can't hunt quail. Juail are protected." This agres pretty well with reports from automobilists who have been turning aside into the country roads. They come back and tell that pheasants are constantly getting in the way.

Things look good for rabbit hunting, too. ut Merrifield insists that woodcats need to be hunted a whole lot more than rabbits. What he calls a woodcat is that breed of feline that is left at the cottages by summer resorters, and then turns out into the woods for a livelihood. And, judging from the sleek, fat appearance of these cats, they don't have much trouble getting food. Young rabbits are the victims, and for that reason, it might be a good idea for the hunter to practice up on the woodcats.

"There's a pile of fox squirrels everywhere,' says Merrifield. It seems as though the summer has been favorable toward the multiplication of wild life.

The Baron's Quarry

By EGERTON CASTLE

Continued From Last Week

"'It is good,' he went on gayly, 'that you should happen to have this happy disposition, for I fear that, no later than tomorrow, I may have to absent myself from him. I have heard that there are news of wolves—they threaten to be a greater pest than usual this winter, but I am going to drive them on quite a new plan, and it will go hard with me if I don't come even with them. Well for you, by the way, Marshfield, that you did not pass within their scent today.' Then, musingly: 'I should not give much for the life of a traveler who happened to wander in these parts just now.' Here he interrupted himself hastily and went over to his wife, who had sunk back on her chair, livid, seemingly on the point of swooning.

"His gaze was devouring; so might a man look at the woman he adored, in his anxiety.

"'What! faint, Violet, alarmed!' His voice was subdued, yet there was an unmistakably thrill of emotion in it.

"'Pshaw!' thought I to myself, 'the man is a model husband.'

"She clincher her hands, and by sheer force of will seemed to pull herself together. These nervous women have oftn an unexpected fund of strength.

"'Come, that is well,' said the baron with a flickering smile; 'Mr. Marshfield will think you but badly acclimatized to Poland if a little wolf scare can upset you. My dear wife is so soft-hearted,' he went on to me, 'that she is capable of making herself quite ill over the sad fate that might have, but has not, overcome you. Or, perhaps,' he added, in a still gentler voice, 'her fear is that I may expose myself to danger for the public weal.'

"She turned her head away, but I saw her set her teeth as if to choke a sob. The baron chuckled in his throat and seemed to luxuriate in the pleasant thought.

"At this moment folding doors were thrown open, and supper was announced. I offered my arm, she rose and took it in silence. This silence she maintained during the first part of the meal, despite her husband's brilliant conversation and almost uproarious spirits. But by and by a bright color mounted to her cheeks and luster to her eyes. I suppose you will think me horribly unpoetical if I add that she drank several glasses of champagne one after the other, a fact which perhaps may account for the change.

"At any rate she spoke and laughed and looked lovely, and I did not wonder that the baron could hardly keep his eyes off her. But whether it was her wifely anxiety or not—it was evident her mind was not at ease through it all, and I fancied that her brightness was feverish, her merriment slightly hysterical.

"After supper—an exquisite one it was—we adjourned together, in foreign fashion, to the drawing-room; the baron threw himself into a chair and, somewhat with the air of a pasha, demanded music. He was flushed; the veins of his forehead were swollen and stood out like cords; the wine drunk at table was potent: even through my phlegmatic frame it ran hotly.

"She hesitated a moment or two, then docilely sat down to the piano. hat she could sing I have already made clear: how she could sing, with hat pathos, passion, as well as perfect art, I had never realized before.

"When the song was ended she remained for a while, with eyes lost in distance very still, save for her quick breathing. It was clear she was moved by the music; indeed she must have thrown her whole soul into it.

"At first we, the audience, paid her the rare compliment of silence. Then the baron broke forth into loud applause. 'Brava, brava! that was really said can amore. A delicious love song, delicious—but French! You must sing one of our Slav melodies for Marshfield before you allow us to go and smoke.'

"She started from her reverie with a flush, and after a pause struck slowly a few simple chords, then began one of those strangely sweet, yet intensely pathetic Russian airs, which give one a curious revelation of the profound, endless melancholy lurking in the national mind.

"'What do you think of it?' asked the baron of me when it ceased.

"'What I have always thought of such music—it is that of a hopeless people; poetical, crushed, and resigned.'

"He gave a loud laugh. 'Hear the analyst, the psychologue—why, man, it is a love song! Is it possible that we, uncivilized, are truer realists than our hypercultured Western neighbors? Have we gone to the root of the matter, in our simple way?'

"The baroness got up abruptly. She looked white and spent; there were blister circles round her eyes.

"'I am tired,' she said, with dry lips. 'You will excuse me, Mr. Marshfield, I must really go to bed.'

"'Go to bed, go to bed,' cried her husband gayly. Then, quoting in Russian from the song she had just sung: 'Sleep, my little soft white dove: my little innocent, tender lamb!' She hurried from the room. The baron laughed again, and, taking me familiarly by the arm, led me to his own set of apartments for the promised smoke. He ensconced me in an armchair, placed cigars of every description and a Turkish pipe ready to my hand, and a little table on which stood cut-glass flasks and beakers in tempting array.

"After I had selected my cigar with some precautions, I glanced at him over a careless remark, and was startled to see a sudden alteration in his whole look and attitude.

"'You will forgive me, Marshfield,' he said, as he caught my eye, speaking with spasmodic politeness. 'It is more than probable that I shall have to set out upon this chase I spoke of to-night, and I must now go and change my clothes, that I may be ready to start at any moment. This is the hour when it is most likely these hell beasts are to be got at. You have all you want, I hope,' interrupting an outbreak of ferocity by an effort after his former courtesy.

"It was curious to watch the man of the world struggling with the primitive man.

"'But, baron,' said I, 'I do not at all see the fun of sticking at home like this. You know my passion for witnessing everything new, strange, and outlandish. You will surely not refuse me such an opportunity for observation as a midnight wolf raid. I will do my best not to be in the way if you will take me with you.'

"At first it seemed as if he had some difficulty in realizing the drift of my words, he was so engrossed by some inner thought. But as I repeated them, he gave vent to a loud exclamation.

"'By heaven! I like your spirit,' he exclaimed, clapping me strongly on the shoulder. 'Of course you shall come. You shall,' he repeated, 'and I promise you a sight, a hunt such as you never heard or dreamed of—you will be able to tell them in England the sort of thing we can do here in that line—such wolves are rare quarry,' he added, looking slyly at me, 'and I have a new plan for getting at them.'

"There was a long pause, and then there rose in the stillness the unearthly howling of the baron's hounds, a cheerful sound which only their owner's somewhat loud converse of the evening had kept from becoming excessively obtrusive.

"'Hark at them—the beauties!' he cried, showing his short, strong teeth, pointed like a dog's in a wide grin of anticipative delight. 'They have been kept on pretty short commons, poor things! They are hungry. By the way, Marshfield, you can sit tight to a horse, I trust? If you were to roll off, you know, these splendid fellows—they would chop you up in a second. They would chop you up,' he repeated unctuously, 'snap, crunch, gobble, and there would be an end of you!'

"'If I could not ride a decent horse without being thrown,' I retorted, a little stung by his manner, 'after my recent three months' torture with the Guard Cossacks, I should indeed be a hopeless subject. Do not think of frightening me from the exploit, but say frankly if my company would be displeasing.'

"'Tut!' he said, waving his hand impatiently, 'it is your affair. I have warned you. Go and get ready if you want to come. Time presses.'

"I was determined to be of the fray; my blood was up. I have hinted that the baron's Tokay had stirred it.

"I went to my room and hurriedly donned clothes more suitable for rough night work. My last care was to slip into my pockets a brace of double-barreled pistols which formed part of my traveling kit. When I returned I returned I found the baron already booted and spurred; this without metaphor. He was stretched full length on the divan, and did not speak as I came in, or even look at me. Chewing an unlit cigar, with eyes fixed on the ceiling, he was evidently following some absorbing train of ideas.

"The silence was profound; time went by; it grew oppresisve; at length, wearied out, I fell, over my chibouque, into a doze filled with puzzling visions, out of which I was awakened with a start. My companion had sprung up, very lightly, to his feet. In his throat was an odd, half-suppressed cry, gruesome to hear. He stood on tiptoe, with eyes fixed, as though looking through the wall, and I distinctly saw his ears point in the intensity of his listening.

"After a moment, with hasty, noiseless energy, and without the slightest ceremony, he blew the lamps out, drew back the heavy curtains and threw the tall window wide open. A rush of icy air, and the bright rays of the moon—gibbous, I remembre, in her third quarter—filled the room. Outside the mist had condensed, and the view was unrestricted over the white plains at the foot of the hill.

"The baron stood motionless in the open window, callous to the cold in which, after a minute, I could hardly keep my teeth from chattering, his head bent forward, still listening. I listened too, with 'all my ears,' but could not catch a sound; indeed the silence over the great expanse of snow might have been called awful; even the dogs were mute.

"Presently, far, far away, came a faint tinkle of bells; so faint, at first, that I thought it was but fancy, then distincter. It was even more eerie than thesilence, I thought, though I knew it could come but from some passing sleigh. All at once that ceased, and again my duller senses could perceive nothing, though I saw by my host's craning neck that he was more on the alert than ever. But at last I too heard once more, this time not bells, but as it were the tread of horses muffled by the snow, intermittent and dull, yet drawing nearer. And then in the inner silence of the great house it seemed to me I caught the noise of closing doors; but here the hounds, as if suddenly becoming alive to some disturbance, raised the same fearsome concert of yells and barks with which they had greeted my arrival, and listening became useless.

"I had risen to my feet. My host, turning from the window, seized my shoulder with a fierce grip, and bade me 'hold my noise'; for a second or two I stood motionless under his iron talons, then he released me with an exultant whisper : 'Now for our chase!' and made for the door with a spring. Hastily gulping down a mouthful of arrack from one of the bottles on the table, I followed him, and, guided by the sound of his foot- and, guided by the sound of his footsteps before me, groped my way through passages as black as Erebus.

"After a time, which seemed a long one, a small door was flung open in front, and I saw Kossowski glide into the moonlit courtyard and cross the square. When I too came out he was disappearing into the gaping darkness of the open stable door, and there I overtook him.

"A man who seemed to have been sleeping in a corner jumped up at our entrance, and led out a horse ready saddled. In obedience to a gruff order from his master, as the latter mounted, he then brought forward another which he had evidently thought to ride himself and held the stirrup for me.

"We came delicately forth, and the Cossack hurriedly barred the great door behind us. I caught a glimpse of his worn, scarred face by the moonlight, as he peeped after us for a second before shutting himself in; it was stricken with terror.

"The baron trotted briskly toward the kennels, from whence there was now issuing a truly infernal clangor, and, as my steed followed suit of his own accord, I could see how he proceeded dexterously to unbolt the gates without dismounting, while the beasts within dashed themselves against them and tore the ground in their fury of impatience.

"He smiled, as he swung back the barriers at last, and his 'beauties' came forth. Seven or eight monstrous brutes, hounds of a kind unknown to me: fulvous and sleek of coat, tall on their legs, square-headed, long-tailed, deep-chested; with terrible jaws slobbering in eagerness. They leaped around and up at us, much to our horses' distaste. Kossowski, still smiling, lashed at them unsparingly with his hunting whip, and they responded, not with yells of pain, but with snarls of fury.

"Managing his restless steed and his cruel whip with consummate ease, my host drove the unruly crew before him out of the precincts, then halted and bent down from his saddle to examine some slight prints in the snow which led, not the way I had come, but toward what seemed another avenue. In a second or two the hounds were gathered round this spot, their great snake-like tails quivering, nose to earth, yelping with excitement. I had some ado to manage my horse, and my eyesight was far from being as keen as the baron's, but I had then no doubt he had come already upon wolf tracks, and I shuddered mentally, thinking of the sleigh bells.

"Suddenly Kossowski raised himself from his strained position; under his low fur cap his face, with its fixed smile, looked scarcely human in the white light: and then we broke into a hand canter just as the hounds dashed, in a compact body, along the trail.

"But we had not gone more than a few hundred yards before they began to falter, then straggled, stopped and ran back and about with dismal cries. It was clear to me they had lost the scent. My companion reined in his horse, and mine, luckily a well-trained brute, halted of himself.

"We had reached a bend in a broad avenue of firs and larches, and just where we stood, and where the hounds ever returned and met nose to nose in frantic conclave, the snow was trampled and soiled, and a little farther on planed in a great sweep, as if by a turning sleigh. Beyond was a double-furrowed track of skaits and regular hoof prints leading far away.

"Before I had time to reflect upon the bearing of this unexpected interruption, Kossowski, as if suddenly possessed by a devil, fell upon the hounds with his whip, flogging them upon the new track, uttering the while the most savage cries I have ever heard issue from human throat. The disappointed beasts were nothing loath to seize upon another trail; after a second of hesitation they had understood, and were off upon it at a tearing pace, we after them at the best speed of our horses.

"Before us lay now the white plain, scintillating under the high moon's rays. That light is deceptive; I could be sure of nothing upon the wide expanse but of the dark, leaping figures of the hounds already spread out in a straggling line, some right ahead, others just in front of us. In a short time also the icy wind, cutting my face mercilessly as we increased our pace, well-nigh blinded me with tears of cold.

"I can hardly realize how long this pursuit after an unseen prey lasted; I can only remember that I was getting rather faint with fatigue, and ignominiously held on to my pommel, when all of a sudden the black outline of a sleigh merged into sight in front of us.

"Soon I was able to make out two figures, one standing up and urging the horses on with whip and voice, the other clinging to the back seat and looking toward us in an attitude of terror. A great fear crept into my half-frozen brain—were we not bringing deadly danger instead of help to these travelers? Great God! did the baron mean to use them as a bait for his new method of wolf hunting?

"I would have turned upon Kossowski with a cry of expostulation or warning, but he, urging on his hounds as he galloped on their flank, howling and gesticulating like a veritable Hun, passed me by like a flash—and all at once I knew."

Marshfield paused for a moment and sent his pale smile round upon his listeners, who now showed no signs of sleepiness; he knocked the ash from his cigar, twisted the latter round in his mouth, and added dryly:

"And I confess it seemed to me a little strong even for a baron in the Carpathians. The travelers were our quarry. But the reason why the Lord of Yany had turned man-hunter I was yet to learn. Just then I had to direct my energies to frustrating his plans. I used my spurs mercilessly. While I drew up even with him I saw the two figures in the sleigh change places; he who had hitherto driven now faced back, while his companion took the reins; there was the pale blue sheen of a revolver barrel under the moonlight, followed by a yellow flash, and the nearest hound rolled over in the snow.

"With an oath the baron twisted round in his saddle to call up and urge on the remainder. My horse had taken fright at the report and dashed irresistibly forward, bringing me at once almost level with the fugitives, and the next instant the revolver was turned menacingly toward me. There was no time to explain; my pistol was already drawn, and as another of the brutes bounded up, almost under my horse's feet, I loosed it upon him. I must have let off both barrels at once, for the weapon flew out of my hand, but the hound's back was broken. I presume the traveler understood; at any rate, he did not fire at me.

"In moments of intense excitement like these, strangely enough, the mind is extraordinarily open to impressions. I shall never forget that man's countenance in the sledge, as he stood upright and defied us in his mortal danger; it was young, very handsome, the features not distorted, but set nite a sort of desperate, stony calm, and I knew it, beyond all doubt, for that of an Englishman. And then I saw his companion—it was the baron's wife. And I understood why the bells had been removed.

"It takes a long time to say this; it only required an instant to see it. The loud explosion of my pistol had hardly ceased to ring before the baron, with a fearful imprecation, was upon me. First he lashed at me with his whip as we tore along side by side, and then I saw him wind the reins round his off arm and bend over, and I felt his angry fingers close tightly on my right foot. The next instant I should have been lifted out of my saddle, but there came another shot from the sledge. The baron's horse plunged and stumbled, and the baron, hanging on to my foot with a fierce grip, was wrenched from his seat. His horse, however, was up again immediately, and I was released, and then I caught a confused glimpse of the frightened and wounded animal galloping wildly away to the right, leaving a black track of blood behind him in the snow, his master, entangled in the reins, running with incredible swiftness by his side and endeavoring to vault back into the saddle.

"And now came to pass a terrible thing which, in his savage plans, my host had doubtless never anticipated.

"One of the hounds that had during this short check recovered lost ground, coming across this hot trail of blood, turned away from his course, and with a joyous yell darted after the running man. In another instant the remainder of the pack was upon the new scent.

"As soon as I could stop my horse, I tried to turn him in the direction the new chase had taken, but just then, through the night air, over the receding sound of the horse's scamper and the sobbing of the pack in full cry, there came a long scream, and after that a sickening silence. And I knew that somewhere yonder, under the beautiful moonlight, the Baron Kossow-ski was being devoured by his starving dogs.

"I looked round, with the sweat on my face, vaguely, for some human being to share the horror of the moment, and I saw, gliding away, far away in the white distance, the black silhouette of the sledge."

"Well?" said we, in divers tones of impatience, curiosity, or horror, according to our divers temperaments, as the speaker uncrossed his legs and gazed at us in mild triumph, with all the air of having said his say, and satisfactorily proved his point.

"Well," repeated he, "what more do you want to know? It will interest you but slightly, I am sure, to hear how I found my way back to the Hof; or how I told as much as I deemed prudent of the evening's gruesome work to the baron's servants, who, by the way, to my amazement, displayed the profoundest and most unmistakable sorrow at the tidings, and sallied forth (at their head the Cossack who had seen us depart) to seek for his remains. Excuse the unpleasantness of the remark: I fear the dogs must have left very litle of him, he had dieted them so carefully. However, since it was to have ben a case of "chop, crunch and gobble," as the baron had it, I preferred that that particular fate should have overtaken him rather than me—or, for that mater, either of those two country people of ours in the sledge.

'Nor am I going to inflict upon you," continued Marshfield, after darining his glass, "a full account of my impresions when I found myself once more in that immense, deserted, and stricken house, so luxuriously prepared for the mistress who had fled from it; how I philosophized over all this, acording to my wont; the conjectures I made as to the first acts of the drama; the untold sufferings my countrywoman must have endured from the moment her husband first grew jealous till she determined on this desperate step; as to how and when she had met her lover, how they communicated and how the baron had discovered the intended flitting in time to concoct his characteristic revenge.

"One thing you may be sure of, I had no mind to remain at Yany an hour longer than necessary. I even contrived to get well clear of the neighborhood before the lady's absence was discovered. Luckily for me, or I might have been taxed with connivance, though indeed the simple household did not seem to know what suspicion was, and accepted my account with childlike credence, very typical, and very convenient to me at the same time."

"But how do you know," said one of us, "that the man was her lover? He might have been her brother or some other relative."

"That," said Marshfield, with his little flat laugh, "I happen to have ascertained, and, curiously enough, only a few weeks ago. It was at the play, between the acts, from my comfortable seat (the first row in the pit). I was looking leisurely around the house when I caught sight of a woman in a box close by, whose head was turned from me, and who presented the somewhat unusual spectacle of a young neck and shoulders of the most exquisite contour—and perfectly gray hair; and not dull gray, but rather of a pleasing tint like frosted silver. This aroused my curiosity. I brought my glasses to focus on her and waited patiently till she turned round. Then I recognized the Baroness Kassowski, and I no longer wondered at the young hair being white.

"Yet she looked placid and happy; strangely so, it seemed to me, under the sudden reviving in my memory of such scenes as I have now described. But presently I understood further; beside her, in close attendance was the man of the sledge, a handsome fellow with much of a military air about him.

"During the course of the evening, as I watched, I saw a friend of mine come into the box, and at the end I slipped out into the passage to catch him as he went out.

"'Who is the woman with the white hair?' I asked. Then, in the fragmentary style approved of by ultra-fashionable young men—this earnest-languid mode of speech presents curious similarities in all languages—he told me: 'Most charming couple in London—awfully pretty, wasn't she?—he had been in the Guards—attache a Vtienna once — they adored each other. White hair, devilish queer, wasn't it? Suited her, somehow, and then she had been married to a Russian, or something, somewhere in the wilds, and their names were—' But do you know," said Mashfield, interrupting himsefl, "I think I had better let you find that out for yourselves, if you care."

THE END

GENERAL ELECTION

Notice is hereby given that a General Election will be held in the Township of Adams County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan at North Adams within said Township, on Tuesday, November 2. A. D. 1926. For the purpose of voting for the election of the following officers, yiz: State—Governor; Lieutenant Governor; Secretary of State; State Treasurer; Auditor General; Attorney General Justice of the Supreme Court (to fill vacancy) for the term ending the thirty first day of December, nineteen hundred twenty nine.

Congressional—One Representative in Congress for the Congressional District of which said Township forms a part.

Legislative—One Senator in the State Legislature for the Senatorial District of which said township forms a part; one Representative in the State Legislature for the Legislative district of which said township forms a part.

County—Sheriff; County Clerk; County Treasurer; Register of Deeds; Prosecuting Attorney; Two Circuit Court Commissioners; Drain Commissioner; Two Coroners; and a County Surveyor; One County Road Commissioner.

NOTICE RELATIVE TO OPENING AND CLOSING OF THE POLLS

Act 351—Part IV—Chapter VIII, Public Acts of 1925.

Sec. 1. On the day of any election the polls shall be opened at seven o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as may be, and shall be continued open until five o'clock in the afternoon and no longer: Provided, That in townships the board of inspectors of election may, in its discretion, adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock noon, for one hour, and that the township board in townships and the legislative body in cities and villages may, by resolution adopted fifteen days prior to the election and published with the notice of the election, provide that the polls shall be opened at six o'clock in the forenoon and may also provide that the polls shall be kept open not later than eight o'clock in the evening of the same day.

The Polls of said election shall be open at 7:00 o'clock a. m, and will remain open until 5:00 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall, in their discretion, adjourn the Polls at 12 o'clock, noon, for oneh our.

Dated September 20, A. D. 1926.
F. W. Holcomb, Clerk of said Township. 20t3

NOTICE

Proposition for the County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan, to employ Public Health Nurses.

Notice is hereby given to the Qualified Electors of the County of Hillsdale, State of Michigan, that at the time and places of holding the next General Election in each of the several voting precincts of said County, on Tuesday November 2 A. D. 1926.

A proposition will be submitted to said Electors to Employ Public Health Nurses as provided by Act. No. 7, of Public Acts of 1925.

Said Proposition will be voted upon by ballot in the following form, viz.: "Is it your wish that the Board of Supervisors of Hillsdale County, Employ Public Health Nurses as provided by Act. No. 7, of the Public Acts of 1925?"

Every legally cast ballot found to have a cross marked by an elector in the square pertaining to the word "Yes" will be counted for said proposition, and every such ballot found to have a cross marked by an elector in the square pertaining to the word "No" will be counted against said proposition.

Dated September 25, A. D. 1926
Frank O. Hancock, Clerk of said County of Hillsdale.

Notice is hereby given that the place of holding said Election for the Township of Moscow, in said County will be at Moscow village.

And the polls of said election will be open at 7 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall, in their discretion, adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock, noon for one hour.

Dated September 25, 1926.
F. W. Holcomb, Clerk of said Township. 20t3

NOTICE
PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION

Notice is hereby given to The Qualified Elecors that at the time and places of holding the next GENERAL ELECTION in each of the several voting precincts of said County, on TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, A. D. 1926

There will be submitted at said election five proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Michigan as follows:

Compensation of members of the Legislature of Michigan.

Amendment to Section 9 of Article V of the Constitution relative to the compensation of members of the legislature.

Sec. 9. The compensation of the members of the Legislature shall be twelve hundred dollars for the regular session. When convened in extra session their compensation shall be ten dollars per day for the first twenty days and nothing thereafter. Members shall be entitled to ten cents per mile and no more for one round trip to each regular session of the Legislature by the usually traveled route. Each member shall be entitled to one copy of the laws, journals and documents of the Legislature of which he is a member, but shall not receive, at the expense of the State books or newspapers not expressly authorized by this Consititution.

Term of office of County Sheriffs.

Amendment to Section 5 of Article VIII of the Constitution relative to the term of office of county sheriffs.

Sec. 5. The sheriff shall hold no other office. He shall be elected at the general election for the term of two years. He may be required by law to renew his security from time to time and in default of giving such security, his office shall be deemed vacant. The county shall never be responsible for his acts.

Creation of Metropolitan Districts.

Amendment to Article VIII of the Constitution relative to the creation of metropolitan districts by cities, villages or townships.

Sec. 31. The Legislature shall by general law provide for the incorporation by any two or more cities, villages or townships, or any combination or parts of same, of metropolitan districts comprising territory, within their limits, for the purpose of acquiring, owning and operating either with or without their limits as may be prescribed by law parks or public utilities for supplying sewage disposal, drainage, water, light, power or transportation, or any combination thereof, any such district may sell or purchase, either within or without its limits as may be prescribed by law, sewage disposal or drainage rights, water, light, power or transportation facilities. Any such districts shall have power to acquire and succeed to any or all of the rights, obligations and property of such cities, villages and townships respecting or connected with such functions or public utilities: Provided, That no city, village or township shall surrender any such rights, obligations or property without the approval thereof by a majority vote of the electors thereof voting on such question. Such General law shall limit the rate of taxation of such districts for their municipal purposes and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. Under such general law, the electors of each district shall have power and authority to frame, adopt and amend its charter upon the approval thereof by a majority vote of the electors of each city, village or township, voting on such question, and through, its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, subject to the constitution and general laws of this State.

Condemnation of excess land and property for boulevards, streets, etc.

Amendment to Article XIII of the Constitution relative to the condemnation of excess land and property for boulevards, streets, etc.

Sec. 5. Subject to this Constitution the Legislature may authorize municipalities, subject to reasonable limitations, to condemn and to take the fee to more land and property than is needed in the acquiring, opening and widening of boulevards, streets and alleys, or for any public use, and after so much of the land and property has been appropriated for any such needed public purpose, the remainder may be sold or leased with or without such restrictions as may be appropriate to the improvement made. Bonds may be issued to supply the funds to pay in whole or in part for the excess property so appropriated but such bonds shall be a lien only on the property so acquired and they shall not be included in any limitation of the bonded indebtedness of such municipality.

Revision of the Constitution.

Shall the constitution of this state be revised and a convention called therefor?

NOTICE is Hereby Given, That the place of holding said election in the Township of Adams, (Precinct No.) Will be at North Adams, and the polls of said election will be open at 7:00 o'clock a. m., and will remain open until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall in their discretion adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock noon for one hour.

F. W. HOLCOMB
Clerk of said Township.
Dated October 7, 1926.

For Sale—Standing corn, on the E. R. Benson farm. Would trade for cows or sheep. Percy Wells. Phone 802. 19tf

---

Owing to the large water requirements of the strawberry, especially at the season of ripening, it has been found advantageous to provide irrigation for the crop even in humid regions. In seasons of sparse rainfall other growing conditions, such as sunlight and temperature, are likely to be most favorable, and fields provided with irrigation facilities during such seasons may yield two or three times as much as those without such equipment. The dessert quality of the fruit from such irrigated fields is often superior and the duration of the harvest can be materially prolonged. Irrigation is usually practiced in localities adjacent to large centers of population and varieties which are adapted to such conditions are selected.

CORRESPONDENCE

Jerome

Dorothy Linsday is spending the week in Hillsdale.

R. M. Seeley entertained Mark Clement and wife of Jackson Sunday.

George Millage of Ypsilanti visited Garfield Sawdey and family on Monday.

Murl Morehead and wife of Wixom visited Sunday with W. E. Anson and family.

Frank Luttenton and family of Jackson have been recent guests of C. W. McGregor and family.

Jas Irish and family of St Marys Ohio have moved into the L. D. Walworth house near the school building.

I. W. Wertenberger and wife Mrs. Roland Randolph, Mrs, Chas Rynex, May Anson and Bertha Olney attended the State teachers meeting at Lansing Monday and Tuesday.

The school is haying a "hard time" social Friday evening of this week with a good program and all other things which are included with such affairs. Proceeds for benefit of seniors.

Jonesville

Roy Christian and family have moved to Belding.

Mrs. A. R. Elliott of Lansing visited here last week.

The condition of F. T. Dryer remains about the same.

H. L. Bosier was a business visitor in Cleveland during the week.

Annie Baker has bought the Harry Godfrey house on Maumee street.

Mrs. C. V. Burnett is visiting her daughter Mrs. Ruth Dupont in Detroit.

Donald Kirby and family will move to the Chase Moody residence on Harleigh street.

School closed Monday and Tuesday and the teachers attended the Teachers' Association in Lansing.

Jasper Bombeno and wife of Grand Rapids visited her parents Chas Oppel and wife over the week end.

Mrs. Olive S. Wisner and son Edgar arrived in Jonesville Monday evening from a six month's stay in Ft Myers Florida.

The Presbyterian Men's club will enjoy a Rabbit hunt Thursday and a supper in the church parlors Friday evening.

The Rummage sale held last Friday and Saturday by the Library Association was a success in every way and netted $210.

C. E. Chandler and wife of Coldwater have bought the Mills residence on Wright street and will move as soon as the house is vacated by Grant Anderson and family.

The musical comedy "Circus Solly" under the auspices of the Eastern Star was given Monday and Tuesday evenings at the Theatre and was attended by large crowds.

G. Ford McCowan of Moscow and Beatrice Morton of Jerome both highly respected young people of this section were united in marriage Thursday evening by Rev. E. S. Scott of Vermontville in the presence of only the nearest relatives at the home of M. R. Morton and wife. Mr. McCowan who is township clerk of Moscow graduated from the local high school in 1923 while Mrs. McCowan completed school in Jerome the following year after which she attended the M. S. C. at Lansing. After November 1 they will be at home on the McCowan farm near Moscow.

Town Line

Mrs Frank Anson and Mrs. J. Westcott are ill with hard colds.

Town Line friends of Fred Baker regret to hear of his serious illness.

Clarence and Abner Jennings made a business trip to Adrian on Tuesday.

Z. Horton and family of Blissfield are guests this week at the parental home.

Eugene Culbert and wife spent the week end with Mrs. Chloe Stonehouse and son at Albion.

Mrs. B. Lapham and daughter of Jackson visited her parents John Sommers and wife last week.

Cleve Westcott and wife have had company from Detroit this week. The men in the party are enjoying hunting.

Wednesday of last week the Hoxie Aid Society was entertained by Mrs. Simmonds and was enjoyed by a good attendance.

The Somerset Wheatland club observed Guest day at the home of Randall Westcott and wife Thursday last. It was a success.

Mrs. Clara Woolston and daughter Mrs. E. Helmick entertained club ladies last Thursday. 25 guests enjoyed the meeting. Refreshments were served.

Cass Powers, wife and son of Lansing recently visited their aunt Mrs. Kate Beecher. Saturday Frank Crego, wife and daughter of Ionia came returning home on Sunday.

George Fast, daughter and husband of Haviland Ohio are at the Ray Fast home for a few days. They are getting their crop of potatoes ready to ship to Ohio market.

Ray Fast has gone to Napoleon Mich. to work on the road. C. Merriman and wife are going to go and do light housekeeping and board Mr. Fast, Mrs. Merriman's brother and Mr. Merriman's brother. All three men have road work.

Marion Lawrence and wife of Grand Rapids, B. T. Hart and wife, and Mrs. E. Nichols spent from Friday until Sunday afternoon with their cousin Abner Jennings and family also visited at F. Hudnut, Mrs. C. Jennings and spent Saturday evening with Fred Giddings and wife. A party of 15 spent a pleasant evening.

Center Adams

Dr. and Mrs. Teeter of Toledo were guests of Will Keith and wife over the week end.

R. W. Bates and wife of Hillsdale were visitors at the Charles Williams home on Sunday.

L. E. Chase, wife and daughter Claribel spent Tuesday at the Wyman Stott home in Moscow.

D. Haehn and Tom Tierney of Toledo spent Sunday night and Monday at the McBain home.

Mrs. Linnie Post is attending the school of cooking held at the Pinkham and Wright Hall in Hillsdale.

Eber J. Williams and family of Battle Creek visited over the week end with his parents C. N. Williams and wife.

Mrs. Clara Woolston and Elmer Helmick and wife of Town Line visited Tuesday with Marion Coryell and wife.

S. M. Burnett of Salina Ohio has been spending several days with his daughter Mrs. Lawrence Binkley and family.

Mrs. Frances Rickerd of North Adams visited over Wednesday night with James Post and wife, leaving Thursday morning to spend sometime with relatives at Erie Pennsylvania.

J. E. Foster and wife of Clinton Indiana came Saturday for a visit at the Eugene McBain home. Sunday Mr. Foster and Mr. McBain went to Warsaw Indiana to attend the U. N. B. C. Field Trials held there this week.

Rally Day Invites Mother to College

The second annual Rally Day for women who are interested in home economics extension work will be held at M. S. C. Saturday October 30. Many of the 1,000 local leaders who were trained by specialists of the College home economics department will attend the meeting.

The group will assemble at the home economics building at ten o'clock where they will be received by Dean Kruegar who will explain the work of the department. The building and its facilities for the teaching of home economics will be shown to the local lealers, Dinner will be served in the Peoples Church of East Lansing. The Reverend N. A. McCune will give a brief talk concerning the work of this church.

The afternoon program will include addresses by Kenyon L. Butterfield, president of M. S. C. and by John D. Williard director of continuing education, M. S. C. Miss Fanny Buchanan of The Victor Talking Machine Company will give a talk on music appreciation. Leaders and specialists in charge of extension work at the college will outline the plan of work which will be carried on in the state this year.

Four projects in home economics extension work will be given in the state this season. One of these, the home furnishing project is being given for the first time. The work in nutrition, clothing, and home management has been very popular in the state during past years. Plans are complete for carrying on one or more of these projects in 35 counties this year.

Under all circumstances vote No on the amendment to the constitution of Michigan. It is in all probability an underhanded "wet" deal.

Dawn Theatre Hillsdale
A Butterfield Theatre

October 29
FRIDAY
Lloyd Hughes in
"PALS FIRST"

October 30
SATURDAY
TOM MIX
in
"HARD BOILED"

October 31 Nov. 1 and 2
Sunday, Monday, Tuesday
Thomas Meighan
in
"TIN GODS"

November 3 and 4
Wedneeday and Thursday
AILEEN PRINGLE
in
"THE WILDERNESS WOMAN"

PUTS MORE ON LIFE AND LESS ON DEATH IN LIFE INSURANCE

An Ideal Contract

issued by the
Rockford Life Insurance Co.
of ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS

What a $10,000 Contract will do In event of death from natural causes the Company will pay $10,000 In event of death from accident the Company will pay $20,000

When you are 65 years old, the compauy will pay you $10,000

If you become totally and permanently disabled prior to the age of 65, during such disability, all premium payments are waived and the Company will pay you $1,200 per year as long as such disability continues, or until the face of the policy becomes payable when in event of death, or when you are 65 years old, the Company will pay $10,000

This is only one of our many contracts. If you are interested in Life Insurance buy in an Old Line Legal Reserve Company.

Get our Rates before you buy, from
GEORGE A. LYNCH, Special Representative
For THE ROCKFORD LIFE INS. CO.
Assistant Cashier Citizens' Bank, North Adams. Mich.

Majestic Furnaces

Satisfied users of Majestic Furnaces we have sold in the past two years:

Lud Chandler
Ed Kempton
Ross DeLamater
Dr. Caswell
Cash DeWitt
Will Wheaton
Frank Wheaton
Frank Holcomb
Art Calhoun
Frank Painter
Roy Schmitt
Will Oscius
Lloyd Wilson
Jas. Denning
Geo. Bates & Son
Rev. Kern

Camden

J. M. WILLIAMS

The simplest way to prevent leather articles from mildewing is to keep them in a well-ventilated, dry, well lighted place, preferably one exposed to the sunlight. When mildew developes, it should be washed off with soap and warm water, or simply wiped off with a moist cloth, drying the leather well afterwards. These measures are more satisfactory than the application in the home of preparations designed to prevent the growth of mildew.

A Great Opportunity

Not for many years have the voters of Hillsdale County had the opportunity to vote for as uniformly a capable list of Candidates on any Ticket, as is presented on the Republican Ticket for next Tuesday. Without exception, the Republican nominees are men who have proven capable in their duties as indivicuals and as public servants. The best interests of the Nation, State and County, can be served only by making one cross (X) —that in the circle under the REPUBLICAN EMBLEM.

The Following names are all in The First Column of the Ballot

For GOVERNOR

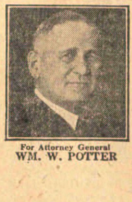
Fred W.
GREEN



For Attorney General
WM. W. POTTER

For Governor:—
FRED W. GREEN

For Lieut, Governor—
L. D. DICKINSON

For Secretary of State—
JOHN HAGGERTY

For State Treasurer—
FRANK McKAY

For Attorney General—
Wm. W, POTTER

For Auditor General—
O. B. FULLER

For Supreme Justice—
Jadge E. SNOW

For Congressman—
J. L. HOOPER

For State Senator—
JAY BINNING

For State Representative
DENIS CLANCY

For Sheriff:—
T. H. MIDGLEY

For County Clerk—
F. O, HANCOCK

For County Treas.—
O. L. ALDRICH

For Register Deeds—
W. O. KEAS

For Prosecuting Att'y
G. F. LEWIS

For Circuit Court Coms
F. T. ALDRICH
GLENN E. MILLER

For Drain Commiss'r—
ROBT. W. BATES

For Coroners—
F. T. ALDRICH
GLENN MILLER

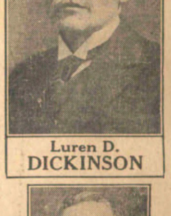
For Surveyor—
CLARK HERRON

For County Road Commissioner—
LEWIS A. RAINEY

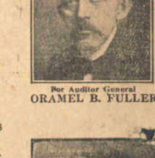
A Cross (X) in the Circle Above These Names Insures Honest, Efficient, Capable Government.

Hillsdale County REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE

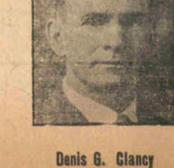
For
LIEUT. GOVERNOR



Luren D.
DICKINSON



For Auditor General
ORAMEL B. FULLER



Denis G. Clancy

For State Secretary
JOHN S. HAGGERTY

For Supreme Justice
ERNEST A. SNOW

For State Treasurer
FRANK D. McKAY

A good customer

MORE than 200 million dollars is what it cost the New York Central Lines last year to keep cars and locomotives, roadbeds, tracks, bridges and other property in good repair.

A large portion of this repair bill represented wages paid to New York Central men, who constitute a substantial part of the population of many of the communities on our Lines.

And most of the balance of this outlay went to industries in these cities and towns for the purchase of materials and supplies necessary to the efficient upkeep of the railroad.

The New York Central is a vital factor in the life of the communities along its line, not only as an efficient and dependable carrier, but also as a large employer and a large buyer.

New York Central

THE NORTH ADAMS ADVOCATE

XXXI NORTH ADAMS MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1926 No. 23

Greendale Dairy

MANUFACTURERS OF

Pure Creamery Butter

Will Pay Cash for Good Cream

North Adams, : Michigan

THE CITIZENS BANK

[Unincorporated]

North Adams, Mich.

Resources Over $500,000

H. M. WILCOX, Pres. J. M. WILLIAMS V.Pres

A. J. HOFFMAN, Cashier

MRS. GRACE DOOLITTLE, Assistant Cashier

Co-Partners

J. M. WILLIAMS C. W. BLEECH A. WILLIAMS EST
A. J. HOFFMAN H. M. WILCOX B. I. LYNCH

[a] Safety on your money
[b] Yield on your money

I.—SAFETY : Building and Loan societies put 100 per cent of their investments in Real Estate. It is estimated that there are 9,000,000 share holders in Building and Loan Societies, having $5,000,000 in assets. Wayne county Savings Bank has $74,204,528 in savings :$41,140,576 is invested in Real Estate. The Central Savings and Trust Company has $28,961,093 in Savings, $27,294,298 are invested in Real Estate. The New York Life Insurance Company has $151,000,000 in assets invested in Illinois.

$94,000,000 Real Estate
$21,000,000 Railroad Bonds
$35,000,000 Public Utilities
$1,000,000 Municipal

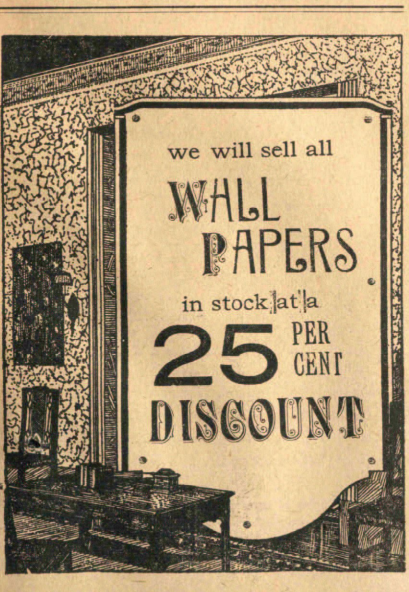
Surely these facts are conclusive evidence of the safety of Real Estate.

II.—YIELD : In yield one cannot find so generous a return anywhere. In ten (10) years the following yields have been realized : Detroit 630 per cent; New York 217 per cent; Chicago 195 per cent; Atlanta 162 per cent; San Francisco, 159 per cent; Boston 137 per cent; Minneapolis 131 per cent; Kansas City 129 per cent; St. Louis 124 per cent; Cleveland 119 per cent; Philadelphia 116 per cent. Detroit yields three times as much as its next ranking city.

See DICK McBAIN, Moscow.

B. E. TAYLOR, Realtor
Community Builder

521-529 Ford Bldg. DETROIT,



H. E. Young & Son

NORTH ADAMS, MICH.

Local News

Patronize the item box at the post office.

Jim Voorhees of Detroit was in North Adams on Sunday.

The Congregational church will hold their Bazaar Dec. 9th and 10th.

Dora Fields and son Jack were at the home of R. C. Young on Sunday.

Regular meeting of Alpha Chapter No. 288 O. E. S. Tuesday evening November 9th.

Quite a number of North Adams young people were home from College on Sunday.

Howard Williams and family of Ransom were Sunday guests of his parents in this village.

Montie Shults severed his connection with the Wertz store last week and he is now the genial clerk at the Dietz store.

Clara Culver and daughter Percibelle Young of Jackson were recent guests of Ed Knowles and wife in this village.

Bert Dean, formerly a butter maker here at the old North Adams creamery, was in town on Sunday calling on old friends.

The next Tuesday evening prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wamsley November 9th. All invited.

The Rebekah Lodge will hold a social gathering at the Hall Friday evening November 5. Potluck supper. It will be in honor of those whose birthdays occur in November

The young folks held a party at the home of Wendell Swain on Saturday evening last. A good time is reported. Gamee were played and refreshments served.

Charles Perkins has traded his restaurant in this village to Albert Dietz for the latter's farm near Wheatland Centre, and the restaurant will be discontinued as soon as the Perkins remove to the farm.

Ray Walters has purchased the large double store of B. I. Lynch on east Main street for a garage and expects to remove that location soon. Mr. Walters finds his garage business constantly picking up and in order to accommodate the increasing trade he has decided to locate at this more favorable point.

Eugene Rogers will conduct an auction on the premises one-half mile west and two miles north of North Adams Thursday, November 11, beginning at 10:30 a. m. and will sell 3 good horses, 11 head of cattle, Duroc brood sow, Ancona hens and a number of good farming tools. Lunch on grounds. See ad on back page.

Father and Son Week will be observed this year in hundreds of Michigan churches and communities November 7th to 14th, the dates approved by the National Council of Young Men's Christian Association and the International Council of Religious Education. The slogan of the week will be "The World Needs the team—Father and Son".

—During November and December the Advocate will take subscriptions for McCall's Magazine at the rate of two to be paid for by the same person at $2.75 with the Advocate. Thus if you wish to give a friend a present of a year's subscription to McCall's here is your chance to get the magazine cheap. It is better than ever and the new serial by Harold Bell Wright is "God and The Groceryman."

The Womans Club met on Monday afternoon with Mrs. Perry Holkins with an attendance of twenty Response to roll call was "My Favorite Book and Why" Program was varied and interesting. Ethel Clement gave a reading from Thomas Burt: "The Chink and the Child" Mrs. Eva Wolcott gave a reading from Robert Louis Stevenson; followed by a disscussion. by Mrs Laura Meeks; Notes from "Nangaydoola" by Rudyard Kipling were given by Josephine Jones; paper. "Where American History was Made" was read by Etta Corey; music for the day was furnished by a quarette composed of Grace Williams, Eva Wolcott, Harriet Shepard and Lyda Kempton with Lois Holcomb at the piano. Guest Day at the Club will be November 15 with Mrs. Lyda Kempton.

CONTRACTOR and BUILDER

Estimates cheerfully given on remodeling or New Buildings.

BERT TRUMBLE 17t8

North Adams, Mich.

Mrs. Grace Doolittle was in Jackson on Tuesday.

—For one week, line of Hats going at $3.75 worth $5 elsewhere. Corey Hat Shop.

Cleo Foster and two gentlemen friends of Detroit were in North Adams on Sunday.

Mrs. Minnie Robinson of Albuquerque New Mexico is spending a few weeks with Michigan friends in this vicinity.

For Sale—Round Oak Heating Stove No. 18. Bement Kitchen Range No. 8. Percy Wells, Phone 802 North Adams. 23tf

Special communication of Adams Lodge No. 189 F. & A. M. Monday evening Nov. 8. Work in E. A. degree. A good attendance is hoped for.

Fred Wisner has recently remodeled his barn putting in a cement floor under the whole building and adding new cow stalls and horse stalls. In addition the barn is newly sided and painted.

Remember the Parent-Teacher's meeting at the School house Wednesday evening November 10th, Professor G. E. Densmore of the U of M will be the speaker. His subject will be "Your Boy and Mine," at 8:00 central time. It is understood that no child under high school age will be allowed in the meeting unless attended by parents or guardian. Everybody invited.

Meade Brothers of Battle Creek were in North Adams on Tuesday working with George Alfred Lynch on life insurance. They represent the Rockford Life Insurance Co. of which Mr. Lynch is local agent. The company reports a nice bunch of business in this vicinity. As stated in these columns previously this company writes one of the best policies we have ever seen.

T. N. Lamb who formerly was principal of North Adams schools now of Horton spent Monday and Tuesday last week in Lansing attending the teachers meet. Mrs. Lamb and son Frederick, visited Mrs. Addie VanAken. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lamb will be pleased to learn that the school work at Horton is very successful under Mr Lamb's supervision.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kies and son Keith of Moscow motored to Manchester Sunday where they were entertained at the home of W. L. Watkins and family. They were accompanied home by their aunt Mrs. Carrie Bryant who was just returning from an extended visit with relatives. She remained in Moscow to attend the L. A. S. dinner which was served at the M. E. church on Election.

Hillsdale County Methodist Brotherhood will hold a banquet in the basement of the Methodist church Tuesday evening November 16th at 6:30. Price 50c per plate. Following the banquet a good progran of special music, speeches and readings will be given in the auditorium above to which the public is especially invited free. Rev. Merrill of Hillsdale will be the speaker of the evening. Benefit of the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church.

John Dryer brother of Mrs. James Parkhurst living west of this village passed away at the Parkhurst home last Saturday evening from the second shock of paralysis which he suffered at his home in Pulaski during Hillsdale Fair Week. Deceased was 52 years of age and single. He is survived by the only sister. Funeral services were held from the home of Mrs. Parkhurst Tuesday at 2:00 p. m. Rev. Scott of the Jonesville Methodist church officiating and burial was in Jonesville cemetery. Mr. Dryer had lived in Pulaski township, Jackson county practically all his life.

Bert Brown of Moscow Township has entered the business of muskrat farming, having obtained about one hundred rats for foundation stock. The range consists of twelve acres of marsh and lake land which has been suitably fenced with a wire mesh crowned by a steel band ten inches wide and two strands of barb wire. This is to prevent natural enemies of the rats gaining entrance. The fence is also suitably grounded to render burrowing underneath impossible Here with the natural advantages of a small deep lake full of roots and water plants it is figured no feeding will be necessary as the rodents will forage for themselves. Inside of two years the colony will have increased by several hundred rats which ought to yield a handsome income. Mr. Brown will deal in pelts, breeding stock and muskrat meat for which there is an increasing demand, especially the peltry that brings highest prices on the fur market. This is the first venture that we know of in Hillsdale county of the kind and developments are being watched by a number of interested parties. Mud turtles and minks are natural enemies of the young rats and these will have to be cleaned out of the lake which the proprietor plans to do next spring probably by letting the job to a specialist in that line.

Methodist Church Calendar

REV. H. E. WYLIE, PASTOR
Supplication Period 10:00 A. M
Morning worship 11:00
Sabbath School 10:00 A. M.
Epworth League 6:00 P. M.
Evening Worship 7:00

BAPTIST CHURCH

A. REISER, PASTOR

Preaching service every Sunday at 10:30 a. m.
Sunday school at 11:45
Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:30.

Congregational Church Calendar

E. C. JANDY, Pastor

Regular morning worship at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school 11:45

—Dr. C. J. Howe, Optometrist Comfortable glasses, Hilldsale. 42 t

—Permanent Wave without kinks or frizzes $8.00. Perfect steam and oil process Shampoo and re setting free. Marcelling 75c. Mrs. L. W. Sibbald, Jonesville Mich. Phone 63. 21t4

—Cider Mill running every day north of Moscow. Will make jell later. Bring in your apples. Will H. Little Moscow Mich. 20t3

For Sale—Corn Sheller, Cauldron Kettle, Tank Heater, Crosscut Saw, Scoop Scraper, Hay Fork and Hay Knife. Inquire at the Depot North Adams. 22t3

For Sale—Round Oak Heating Stove, No. 40. Inquire of E. R. Benson at the home os Miss Florence Benson on Wilbur street.

—Apples for sale—Spies and Baldwins. Eyerett Williams, Phone 1104 22t3

For Sale Cheap—Child's drop side bed fine condition, also automobile and scooter. Mrs. John Fitton. 23t3

For Sale—Soft coal heating stove H. G. Wells. Phone 806 North Adams 23t3

Grace Smith is supplying at the Buck school during the illness and death of Miss Baker's father.

Mud Lake School Notes

There was a perfect attendance for the month of October.

There will be no Thanksgiving program but the pupils and teacher Mrs. Vera Kennedy will enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner on Wednesday before Thanksgiving.

The Halloween Social held at the Mud Lake school house Friday night October 29, drew a large crowd and the amount taken in from the sale of ghosts, popcorn and candy and the "Cake walk" was $26.86, the expenses were one dollar and thirty three cents, clearing twenty five dollars and fifty three cents. $20 was paid toward the Set of "World Books" added to the library this year. The remainder with the money earned from the fair exhibit will be used for warm lunches.

W. C. T. U.

The Union will meet with Mrs. Lawrence Chase at 2:00 p. m. Friday, Nsvember 12 Bible lesson —Mrs. Duguid; 'Are you satisfied with results of election?"Mrs Othoudt; "What can we do to better political situation"—Mrs. Pendell; music from the new "Everybody Sing" books; "What a Warless world means to the Nation and Individuals"—Mrs. Jones "To the church and temperence work"—Mrs. Wylie;: recitation, Claribelle Chase: roll call, "Name a newly elected officer. Prayer of Thanksgiving—Rev. Wylie.

Please phone Mrs. VauDuesen if you have room in your car or if you wish a way to go.

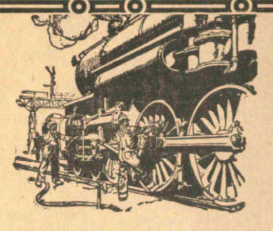
Township Election Returns

Election in Adams township was very tame indeed and such is reported in most of the surrounding precincts The only furore of importance was an imbroglio over the Sheriff's office and which formed the nucleus of considerable abuse through the columns of the Hillsdale Daily News. This township gave Keas Republican register of deeds the largest ballot 288. Oliver Aldrich treasurer, followed with 286; the other Republican candidates received as follows: Prosecutor, G. Forrest Lewis, 280; sheriff, T. H. Midgley, 194; county clerk F. O. Hancock, 274; circuit court commissioner Frank Aldrich, 260.

The crux of the situation seemed to center around Sheriff and for the first time in many years a Democratic sheriff went into office with a majority of 1397. Col. Earl H. Kerr of Somerset township, was elected, Thomas H. Midgley retiring.

In Lansing all Republican nominees won out, Fred W. Green of Ionia receiving a heavy majority. for Governor. The amendments lost in Michigan except the metropolitan districts.

The County Health Nurse proposition carried by 845. Nobody knows why a lone Democrat in a Republican county, outran his fellows and got the plum.



What Is the Reason? The locomotive runs at 100 mile clip day in and day out. Because it is fed. Likewise you keep up your daily work by eating of wholesome, juicy steaks at least once a day.

Our Meats and Groceries are always fresh

EDSON J. BENGE

ROYAL FENCE

Made by American Steel & Wire Company

BANNER —FORMERLY ARROW R. R. RAIL SECTION STEEL POSTS

Years of service under all kinds of weather conditions have proved the superior quality and real economy of Zinc Insulated Royal Fence and Banner (formerly Arrow) Steel Posts.

Zinc Insulated Royal Fence, each roll bearing the RED SIGN of our guarantee, is protected against rust by a uniform and heavy coating of Zinc on every wire.

Banner Steel Posts, with their railroad rail design and large slit wing patented anchor plates, root firmly into the ground, hold the fence securely in line and last many years.

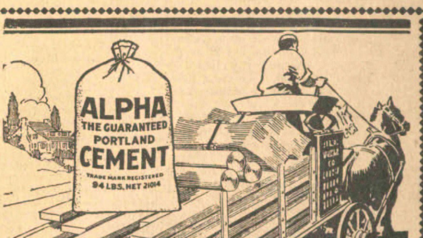
Royal Fence and Banner Steel Posts, sold at NO EXTRA CHARGE, offer the most economical fence construction, at less cost per year. For Sale By

We want to mention

MILLERS' Greek Goal

for your Range. Good as the Best
Whale of a sight better'n the rest

F. I. WILLIAMS & SON



Get Our Figures on Your Building Supplies

WE can supply you your lumber, your shingles, your roofing, your cement. And we are in a position to make prompt deliveries.

Of course you are planning some concrete improvement this year, and so we will tell you that we can give you a free copy of the very valuable ALPHA CEMENT Handbook. 96 pages illustrated, which affords valuable suggestions on all kinds of concrete work—small buildings, driveways, walls, foundations, steps, etc. You couldn't buy a more valuable book for a dollar or two.

Drop in or telephone us.

Pocahontas Coal, Sheetrock Building board

GRAVES & FORD LUMBER COMPANY

MOUSE INHERITS FATHER'S SONGS

Why should a singing mouse sing when it doesn't want to sing, any more than any other musician? There may be no plausible answer to this question, but anyway it has been learned that a singing mouse is a true songster, that it has long spells of artistic temperament and, what is astonishing to the world of science, that it can transmit its genius to its offspring.

The mouse that served to make these additions to the sum of human knowledge was originally the property of J. P. Clark, of Detroit. Mr. Clark was persuaded to turn the singer over to Dr. Lee R. Dice of the department of mammalogy of the museum of zoology at Ann Arbor for study.

Dr. Dice began by supplying it with a household of 12 wives. This was last March. It was not long before the family had to be herded through a door, like sheep through a gate, in order that it could be counted. The census of this first generation was 120, there or thereabouts, says Dr. Dice.

Out of the 120 were a few that had a faintfi a very faint cheep that was a vague and disappointing echo of the talents of the father. It was stretching things a bit to call this sound a song. New families were then set up. A second generatoin has now come into existence. In this generation, which is not yet completed, is at least one fairly good singer, and Dr. Dice has hopes that others will appear.

Singing mouse No. 1 was sent for a while to the Washtenaw terrace home of Mrs. B. G. Grim, who has long experience as a successful accompanist. This was where the mouse decided to be temperamental. It couldn't be persuaded to sing, excited or bribed into singing. Silence reigned in its cage for three weeks and then one evening the vocalist buried itself in its nest of cotton and burst forth in melody. It kept it up for 20 straight minutes.

Mrs. Grim says that the singing is true music. The range is about two octaves, if not more.

Snow Fencing In Kalkaska Planned For Experiments

A series of experiments with snow fencing is to be conducted this winter by the state highway department.

The fence is to be erected in the heavy snowfall area in Kalkaska county or near Elmira. A level place without windbreaks will be chosen, as big drifts and as much uniformity as possible is desirable.

An observor will visit the experimental plot daily and record the standings of the battery of meteorological instruments which will be installed to measure the snowfall, velocity of the wind, temperature, barometrical pressure, as well as the depth of the drifts.

Snow "reduction" also will be measured. This is when a drift settles or packs down. For instance, at Kalkaska 11 feet of snow fell last winter and would, without settling or melting, if it had all fallen at once, have made an 11-foot blanket on the level, but the most measured at any time was 43 inches.

Paw Paw Woman Is Champ Basket Maker

Paw Paw, the heart of the great grape belt of Michigan, has produced a champion maker of baskets in which dealers display purple or green clusters of what Aristotle called "The Fruit Divine."

She is Mrs. Gertrude Poole, housewife and mother of three children. The record Mrs. Poole has hung up is 8,500 jumbo baskets in one week of 55 hours, five days of 10 hours each and a half day Saturday. The record is a good thousand better than that of any other basket maker in the state.

Mrs. Poole was considered a wonder by her fellow workers. But she did not suspect she was a champion until that honor was claimed for an Eau Claire woman making 1,400 baskets a day. Believing Mrs. Poole was regularly doing more than that, her fellow workers checked her output and found that she was averaging 1,545 baskets a day.

64 Cars of Potatoes Shipped from Tustin

Sixty-four carloads of potatoes were shipped from Tustin between September 15 and October 16 and for these the farmers received $41,600. Aside from the above figure, six carloads of the tubers were marketed in Tustin.

A new "perpetual motion" machine, based on the Ferris wheel and gravity principle, has been invented by D. R. Wolfe, of Minneapolis, Minn. The spokes of the model are equipped with tubes of mercury, which are supposed to slide back and forth, causing the wheel to rotate. Science says it will not work because gravity will work against it more than for it.

Detroit Seeks U. S. Sanction to Build Isle For Air Field

The city of Detroit has sought the aid of the federal government in establishing a municipal airport on Grassy Island and the river bottom adjacent thereto.

In order to accomplish the filling in of river bottom around Grassy bridge across the channel, approval of the war department is necessary.

Co-operation of army, navy and the department of commerce toward obtaining necessary authority for use of Grassy Island was pledged.

Coupled with enthusiastic support from the navy department was the announcement that Detroit is to have a reserve unit of the naval air service, providing congress appropriates sufficient money at the short session this winter. The plan is to be submitted to the bureau of the budget shortly.

TELLS OF PHILLY VISIT 50 YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago John S. Newell, banker and business man of Coral, Mich., visited the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia. Last month he went down to look over the sesquicentennial and compare it with his memories of the former fair. During his first trip he kept a faithful record of what he saw and though about the show, a journal full of interesting plimpses of the America of a half century ago.

It was the year of the Hayes-Tilden election, and all along the trip, which took considerably more than 48 hours, the execurisionists got glimpses of hot electioneering. Indeed a straw vote was taken on the train which the young journalist gloatingly reports was 296 for Hayes and 108 for Tilden.

Detroit hadn't become dynamic then and the city hall was its highest building. One could go up in its tower and look all over the city, for the building stood almost in the center of the town the pournal says. With Detroit now stretching north, east and west for nearly ten miles from the city hall this gives a pretty good idea of what Henry Ford and others have done for the metropolis. Wood must have been the fuel most in use then, for we read that the soldiers and sailors' monument was of marble, "white as snow."

It is doubtful which interested the sightseer most then, the mint, Independence hall, the houses all built alike of red brick with white windows or the fact that Philadelphia had 25 theaters and they all kept open every night!

The "great show" he found more than his fancy had painted.

Michigan made a good showing in agricultural hall, young Newell found. There were wheat and oats, sent by Ben Ensley of Newaygo county, and a lot of Michigan pine. Stanton, Montcalm county, sent 4,000 feet on sleighs.

The first paper ever printed by Benjamin Franklin, dated Feb. 11, 1723, interested the young sightseer. It was only an 8x11 sheet, he tells us, and naively adds, "It contained some rather old news."

Proposed Ferry to Open Sugar Island to Autos

A ferry connection of the Soo with Sugar Island which will open that large, heretofore autoless body of land to the tourist world as well as give an easy outlet to market for the product of the fertile farms of the island, was assured by action of the Chippewa county board of supervisors in authorizing an appropriation of $20,000 for approaches to the proposed ferry landing.

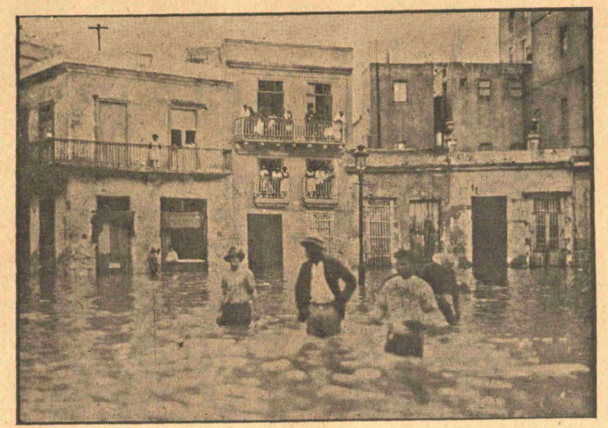
A provision of the appropriation was that the Sugar Islanders were to furnish an adequate ferry and maintain half hourly service. Sugar Island is 20 miles long and two to four miles wide. It is considered one of the ideal summer resort spots of the northern peninsula.

Cock Pheasant Slain By Flock of Crows

Alfred Sutton, a farm youth who lives four and a half miles south of Charlevoix, saw a band of crows murder a cock pheasant. This pheasant, a welcome tenant of the Sutton farm, was foraging his home fields and chanced to cross a field road. Some crows, cruising in quest of food nearby, saw the stately, colorful bird, and instantly pandemonium broke loose. A gang of the black ruffians set upon the pheasant with a terrific, raucous squabbling. Naturally, the noise brought a horde of other crows and the uprear increased. They killed the pheasant and tore him to bits.

Locomotives on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad are being equipped with a new "chime" whistle, sounds from which are described as "soft as the wood-winds of a symphony orchestra." The new whistle, it is said, can be heard as far as the usual type.

Cubans Wade Flooded Streets to Salvage Belongings



Natives wading through flooded Havana streets, following hurricane that killed and injured hundreds and wrecked many structures in Cuban capital.

City Is Upset For Proper Thing to Do When Queen Visits

The business of entertaining a queen is disturbing the peace of many minds in Detroit, and particularly the thinking machinery of the secretary to Mayor John W. Smith, and his assistant, Stephen Ankenbrandt.

The secretary is getting gray haired rapidly trying to figure out how many Rumanian flags to buy, where to fly them, and if they have just the right shade of color in them.

He sent an urgent wire to the state department at Washington asking instructions as to the proper manner to display the flags on the city hall. His first guess is that the American flag should fly from the tower-pole and four Rumanian flags should fly from the four corner poles.

Then there is the matter of color. The Rumanian colors will fit in pretty well at a Michigan football game, for the flag is red, maize and blue. Some of the sample flags had the center panel of a pale yellow, others were a corn color, still others a vivid gold. Mr. ayette had to call a conference of the Rumanian committee to pick the proper flag.

Mystery of Deaths by Milk Sickness Solved

New light has been thrown on "milk sickness," a mysterious malady which caused many deaths among pioneers and recently resulted in the deaths of 15 persons in Illinois.

"Milk sickness" in humans is closely related to "trembles" in cattle and other animals, it has been demonstrated by Dr. James F. Couch, of the Bureau of Animal Industry, and other investigators. The animals are stricken with trembles after eating certain poisonous plants, and humans contract "milk sickness" from milk and butter from cows so poisoned. Sometimes cows that have eaten the plants show no symptoms of trembles, yet persons consuming milk and butter from them may contract "milk sickness."

"Stung" By Moonshiners

Michigan bee fanciers may take a pointer from a man who has devoted his life to the culture of these little insects.

W. B. Rhea, a Confederate veteran of Jasper, Ala., who was formerly prominently known as a bee culturist, has abandoned that occupation and not without good cause. He had several colonies of bees that were demoralized by the moonshiners.

Mr. Rhea said his bees got to visiting liquor stills and fed on the discarded mash which made them drunk and caused them to be careless about their work at home. He decided he woul dnot support a lot of drunken bees, so he has let them go their way.

Cloth made from bamboo fibre is being developed. Bamboo fibre, it is said, can be made as pliable as flax.

28 VILLAGES FIGHT REMOVAL OF RAILS

Residents of 28 villages and settlements comprising a major part of the four northern Michigan counties are fighting for their economic existence in the Bay county court house.

They are faced with isolation from the rest of the world and are opposing with every available legal means a move which may compel them to evacuate their homes and lands.

The proposed abandonment by the Detroit & Mackinac railway of three branches in the territory is the object of their apprehension.

Alcona, Oscoda, Ogemaw and Iosco counties would be affected by the abandonment. The principal settlements, which their attorneys say would be wiped out were the railroads taken away, are Lincoln, Gustin, Mikado, Handy, Glennie and Curran in Alcona county; Comins, McCollum, Hardy and Russell in Oscoda county; Rose City, Lupton, Maltby's and South Branch, in Ogemaw, and Long Lake, Hale, Taft, and Cooper's Crossing in Iosco. The list includes other smaller stations and the entire farming districts served by the railroad branches.

In a petition for abandonment, Henry K. McHarg, jr., vice-president and general manager of the D. & M., declared the branches can be operated only at a loss.

Favors Learning Poison Species to Shun Them

Dr. C. H. Kauffman, professor of botany in the University of Michigan and author of a two-volume work on mushrooms, believes htat people learn these vegetable growths the wrong way around. They should, he says, find out about those mushrooms that are poisonous, and they can do this in July and August when they are most plentiful. Then in the fall, when edible mushrooms are easy to be got and a few of the dangerous toadstools still linger, there is less chance for a fatal mistake to be made.

Eight-Hour Study Days Called Key to Success

College students should devote six eight-hour days a week to studies to be successful, Dr. T. S. Henry of the psychology department of Western State Normal told Kalamazoo freshmen.

The largest windmill in the world is employed to pump water into a large reservoir from which water is distributed all over the pleasure ground of Golden Gate Park, San Francisco. It has a main tower 200 feet high made of concrete. Each sail is 100 feet long, and there is an automatic device for setting the sails perpendicular to the wind direction.

Professor Paneth and Dr. Peters, of the Berlin university, are reported to have made a discovery of artificial helium.

Washtenaw Inquiry Reveals No One Is County Fair Owner

Washtenaw county supervisors have just learned who owns the county fair. Every year the question has come up, but it has never been satisfactorily answered until the last meeting of the board, when A. L. Watt, manager of the fair, read to them the opinion prepared by Frank B. DeVine, an Ann Arbor attorney.

"The Washtenaw County Fair Society," the opinion says, "is not owned by anyone but its affairs are controlled by its members who are not stockholders. The act under which it is incorporated does not provide for stock. The act provides that everyone who pays the annual dues shall be entitled to membership.

"The corporation has none of the elements of a corporation organized for private gain or pleasure or any private purpose whatever. It can make no dividends and all of its profits must be expended in the promotion of a public purpose, namely, the improvement of agriculture and its kindred arts."

An apparatus for dispelling fog is being developed at the naval aircraft factory in Philadelphia, Pa. It has been discovered that a simple charging screen, a transformer with a rectifying device, an airplane propeller and a motor, all mounted on a truck, will electrify 700,000 cubic feet of air a minute and cut a path 2,000 feet wide and 1,000 feet high through a fog bank.

REMOVE CORNS and CALLUSES!

The RED FOOT WAY the NEW WAY

Stinging pain of hard or soft corns or calluses leaves when you apply RED FOOT CORN AND CALLUS REMOVER. After 4 to 10 days you lift the corn or callus right off, no matter how long standing or how many failures. Originated by famous French chemists. Thousands of grateful users all over the world. No pads, liquids or collodion. By mail only, large 1 oz. jar $1.00, prepaid.

RED FOOT PRODUCTS CO., INC.
(Dept. B) 227 Woodward Avenue DETROIT, MICH.

HISTORIC HOME IS STILL INTACT

Standing on a willowed bluff overlooking the St. Joseph River where it sweeps in a broad curve past the boulder that marks the landing place of Father Hennepin, at the site of Mendon, 250 years ago, is the Patrick Marantette homestead, the center of interest in the proposed centennial celebration of Mendon next year.

Today Marantette's son, Louis, occupies the old residence which remains intact, furnishings and all, as it was when constructed in 1848. It was built on the site of the furtrading post its original owner had opened 20 years previously.

The Marantette homestead is linked with Michigan's pioneer history. Its builder was a member of the legislature that established Lansing as the state capitol. It was he who purchased for the government the last 73,000 acres of land held by the Potawatamies in the Lower Peninsula. In a hall on the second floor is the table of clover leaf design on which Gov. Lewis Cass counted out the money he paid the Indians to leave the reservation that had been retained by them according to the Chicago treaty in 1821. Some accounts say the Indians received $30,000 in various trinkets for the strip, but Louis Marantette declares his father told him it was "a very large sum of money, although all paid out in halfldollar pieces."

A journey through the old house, which Marantette always keeps open to visitors, is like delving into a chapter of almost forgotten history. The same wall paper that hung on the walls 75 years ago is still there, although faded by time. The parlor is furnished today exactly as it was at the close of the Mexican war of 1846-48. The carpet is still a bright red with big folwered figures. The black haircloth furniture is prim and uninviting as if waiting for the return of shadowy figures in hoop-skirts and stovepipe hats. Almost fabulous prices have been offered for the mansion, but the younger Marantette refuses to part with his father's property.

The small window panes have stood the test of time. Their owners have seen them grow out of vogue and again come into their own, modern architecture now dictating leaded panes and miniature sizes, just as it did 75 years ago.

Standards have demonstrated that crystals of molybdenite when exposed to the sun's rays develop electric currents that can be measured.

$50 REWARD

$50 will be paid if R. V. Turner's Quick Relief Salve fails to relieve croups, head colds, catarrh, sore throat, headache, earache, eczema, itch, burns, risings, bruises, cuts, sores, rheumatic pains or piles. It is one of the most powerful, penetrating, germ-killing, pain-relieving and healing salves known to science. Removes corns in a few hours without pain; also seed warts. Large box by mail 60c. Agents wanted. Write for special terms. R. V. Turner, Box 1122, Montgomery, Ala.

Wild Cattle On Manitou Offered At Bargain Price

Back when Michigan was just a formation of land without a name, a mother bear tried to lead her two cubs from the shore of the Upper eninsula to the mainland now known as Leelenau county, and failed.

The cubs sank, so the Indian legend goes. And in their place rose the two islands, now on the map as the North and South Manitou Islands. The mother bear, swimming on to the mainland, climbed the bank and sat down, resting her chin on her paws to wait for her cubs.

She is waiting still, a huge point of white stone in the form of a bear, scrubby evergreen trees bristling toward the sky from her hunched shoulders and broad back, known to mariners as Sleeping Bear oint.

A short time ago John Finnucan, manager of ..orthManitou Association, tried to transport range cattle from the North Manitou to the mainland, and succeeded, with tribulations of a sort. But there still remain about 100 cattle that have "gone wild" in the second growth timber that now covers the island which was once a little black cub bear swimming frantically in the wake of its mother.

The cows, good beef on the hoof, are worth something on the market for the buyer who will catch them and take them away, and they are offered at a bargain price. It is simply a matter of corraling the bovines and transporting them across the 14 miles of turbulent Lake Michigan waters that were once too much for two little black bears cubs.

Lake Forces Town to Have 2 Voting Precincts

The people of Park township are to have two voting precincts after this. This action has been taken not because the township is so large but because Black lake divides it in two, making it very inconvenient for the south side voters to go to the north side to vote.

A machine has been perfected for keeping a record of cancelled checks in banks. It is in the form of a camera which, attached to an adding machine, takes pictures of checks passing through for listing.

Get Settled

You surely don't intend to stay on your present job all your life. Become a barber the Moler way — from our school to independence in a shop of your own is a short and easy step. Change for better now. Write for free booklet today!

Moler Barber Colleges

33 Years Established 32 Branches
559 Michigan Ave., Detroit.

DEARBORN'S DREAMS COME TRUE

Passes $2,400,000 Bond Issue For More Sewers; $500,000 More For Water

Fortunes have been made in real estate in the Dearborn District, in the shadow of the Ford River Rouge Plant.

Greater fortunes are still to be made with the inflow of population to Henry Ford's workshop.

SEWERS AND WATER mean Growth — population, homes, stores, business, theaters, churches, schools. These bond issues were passed because of DEMAND and that Demand means

Your Opportunity

One of the greatest books of facts on Detroit's Industrial Future, Present and Past, handsomely illustrated, will be sent you postage prepaid, free of charge without obligation on your part.

Mail coupon today for Your Copy of this Book.

Send me "Detroit, Wonderful City", FREE, postage prepaid.
Name ....
Address ....
City ....
Dept. M

GLOVER WATSON
Dearborn's Largest Subdivider.

WE SELL THE EARTH
GLOVER WATSON ORGANIZATION INC.

Twelfth Floor Washington Blvd. Bldg.
Phone Randolph 8892 Detroit, Mich.

NO SUNDAY BUSINESS!

A standard purchase plan

The standard price of a General Motors car purchased out of income is the cash delivered price, plus only the low GMAC financing charge.

The GMAC Purchase Plan is offered by General Motors dealers exclusively. It is a sound and economical credit service in which the best interests of the car buyer are of first consideration.

General Motors makes "a car for every purse and purpose"; and under the GMAC Plan purchase may be arranged according to the individual circumstances and assured income of the buyer.

Ask your nearest General Motors dealer to explain the advantages of the GMAC Plan.

GENERAL MOTORS ACCEPTANCE CORPORATION

operating the GMAC Plan for the purchase of

CHEVROLET · PONTIAC · OLDSMOBILE
OAKLAND · BUICK · CADILLAC
FRIGIDAIRE · DELCO-LIGHT

It's a wise woman who knows half that she would like to know about her neighbors.

Shave With Cuticura Soap
And double your razor efficiency as well as promote skin purity, skin comfort and skin health. No mug, no slimy soap, no germs, no waste, no irritation even when shaved twice daily. One soap for all uses—shaving, bathing and shampooing.—Advertisement.

When a man makes a fool of himself he uses cheap material.

Probably Not

Professor's Wife—A truck ran over your best straw hat!

Absent-Minded Professor—Was I wearing it?

"DANDELION BUTTER COLOR"

A harmless vegetable butter color used by millions for 50 years. Drug stores and general stores sell bottles of "Dandelion" for 35 cents.—Adv.

Few minds wear out—more rust out.—Bovee.

"U.S." Blue Ribbon Boots are made either red or black—with sturdy gray soles—knee to hip lengths.

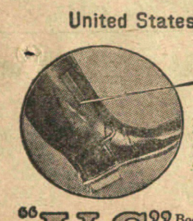
It's a Brute for Wear!
—this "U.S." Blue Ribbon Boot

If you want the most durable, flexible, comfortable boots and overshoes on the market, get "U. S." Blue Ribbons.

These "U. S." Blue Ribbon Boots have thick, oversize soles, tough as an automobile tire; uppers of rubber so elastic that constant bending won't crack it; reinforcements of layer on layer of strongest fabric and rubber.

When you buy boots or overshoes, look for the "U.S." Blue Ribbon. It will pay you.

United States Rubber Company



Five times its length! That's how rubber cut from any "U.S." Blue Ribbon Boot or overshoe will stretch. It resists cracking and breaking—stays flexible and waterproof.

"U.S." Boots Walrus Arctics Rubbers
BLUE RIBBON

Blue U.S. Ribbon
Trade Mark

The WATER BEARER

By J. ALLAN DUNN

Author of "A MAN TO HIS MATE"
"RIMROCK TRAIL"

© By Dodd, Mead & Co.
WNU Service

CHAPTER XV—Continued

—22—

The price was moderate—too moderate, Caleb thought, rich with unspent salary and the possession of a thousand shares of Crystal Springs stock, preferred issue. Still, that was the artist's business, to price his own wares. While he waited for the group about the painter to dissolve, some one entered the gallery back of him and came swiftly up behind him with light steps. He turned to greet Mrs. Carquinez, her face alight with welcome greeting, her jade eyes surveying him with their perpetual appraisal.

"This is fine!" she exclaimed. "Do you know, we have been talking about you all the afternoon? Or nearly all. I have lots of news for you," she added, the jade eyes full of promises.

"Carky has sold three pictures and we are going to celebrate," she went on. "We exist between sales, you know."

Caleb had a vision of a noisy studio gathering. He was not in the humor for such a celebration, not even for the news that the artist's wife suggested would be his reward.

"I'm afraid—" he commenced slowly. She broke in.

"There is nothing to be afraid of," she laughed. "It isn't that kind of a celebration. You and I and Carky will go back to the studio as soon as it is too dark to sell any more pictures. Carky won't exhibit under artificial light, you know. We shall bear with us luxuries, lychis, alligator pears, mushrooms, preserved ginger and other more substantial things. Carky will cook. I thought I could, before I married him, but I discovered my mistake. Therefore, on special occasions, Carky plays chef. You can stay all night or leave for your old gravel beds. We live across the bay, you know or you should know. Coming? You'll be sorry if you don't. There will be just—us." She emphasized the last word a trifle and stood looking at Caleb with her hands and arms a little extended in an invitation that was irresistible in its genuineness.

"I'll come," said Caleb, "if—"

"No ifs. You and I will go a-marketing. Come on."

"Not until I've bought this picture. I am going to take it along with me. It grips me, aside from the painting of it. What does 'La Tenaya' mean?"

"The Sink. As applied to a desert cistern, natural or otherwise," she answered. "It is in your line, isn't it? But I'm glad you chose it. It is my favorite and one of Carky's."

Presently Caleb and Mrs. Carquinez did their marketing from the cab that Caleb chartered, through the markets and up Chinatown. Caleb bought some masses of iris for his share in the feast and then, on their way back to the studio, he halted the machine outside the most famous of Golden's stores, Le Blanc's.

"How old is the kiddy, Mrs. Carquinez?" he asked. "You told me there was one, at Vedder's. A girl. How old?"

"She is not included in these celebrations, Mr. Warner. Please don't—"

"Please let me. Mrs. Carquinez, I've been cooped up for months without blowing myself for a penny. This is my affair. You are not even to come in. I am going to choose it myself."

She laughed while Caleb entered and was whisked up to the floor consecrated to children's toys. He simplified matters and dodged his own ignorance by demanding the most elaborate doll on the floor. Mrs. Carquinez said nothing much, affecting an air of disapproval, tempered by the look in her eyes, though she did exclaim at the size of the box.

"My child is only of ordinary dimensions, Mr. Warner. Have you tried to present her with a dancing partner of her own size?"

Caleb carried off his canvas triumphantly under his arm, despite Carquinez' plea that it should be framed—at his expense, under his direction, in exchange for the present to his child.

The studio proper occupied all the level ground, a great room with the big north light at one end, a fireplace at the other. There was a fire in the hearth, glowing logs on andirons, more for charm than necessary heat. A settle with cushions that picked up the blacks and reds and white of a Navajo rug was empty. A big chair contained a slender figure in black holding a child.

Carquinez had descended to his kitchen with the celebration plunder. Mrs. Carquinez checked Caleb on the studio threshold while he took in the scene. The girl in black was crooning softly.

The child looked up and slid from the cuddly lap with a cry of—

"Madre! Auntie Betty, it's madre!" and came running to halt at the sight of Caleb—a slender elf with brown eyes big with astonishment and shyness and her mother's ash-gold hair entangling fire and lamplight. Behind her Betty Clinton got up and stood looking at Caleb.

The production of the marvelous doll broke all awkwardness of the meeting and, as the child cried out her rapture, Betty and Caleb shook hands.

"He is part of the celebration, Betty," said Mrs. Carquinez. "We sold four canvases and he bought one of them. The best, 'La Tenaya.' Elsie, you haven't thanked Mr. Warner."

"I don't know how," said Elsie precociously. "You are a very nice gentleman to think of me. Did you bring a dolly for Aunt Betty's baby?"

Betty Clinton seemed a little confused and Mrs. Carquinez laughed and changed the subject.

"Has she had her supper, Betty? Then it is bedtime." The child disappeared with Betty.

"She is Elsie's second mother, you see. I told you there would be just 'us,'" said the artist's wife. "Now, then, you and I will transform ourselves into kitchen assistants."

It was a wonderful dinner, served on the studio table. Afterward Mrs. Carquinez sat down to a piano that lurked in a shadowy corner and played snatches of Chopin, giving place to the husband, who produced a guitar and sang "La Paloma."

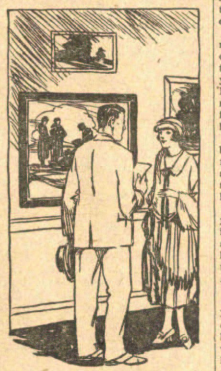
"His enthusiasm is greater than his musical quality," laughed his wife, "but this is our celebration chant."

And then she went back into the house and, after a little, called Carquinez, leaving the two alone.

"I am glad you came," said Betty. "I have something to say to you. An apology. I tried to write it, but that seemed cowardly. Now I have got my opportunity.

"Mary Morgan came to me," she went on. "She is in Sacramento with an irrigation concern and doing very well. She could not well take the child with her at first and so—she brought it with her when she visited me—Maria is playing foster mother. It is too young for dolls, though.

"You can guess why Mary Morgan came to El Nido. She told me all that you had done for her, and Mr. Cox, and she told me all of the miserable business between her and Baxter, together with how he had misrepresented you and deceived my father. I am sorry. I did doubt much of what he said, but it seemed quite convincing to my father. I am sorry you could not tell dad before he went. Will you forgive me?"



"I'm Afraid," He Commenced Slowly.

"There is nothing to forgive." The gladness in Caleb's voice backed his assertion. "Yet I should like to make one condition—no not a condition," he added, "a favor. If," he hesitated, thinking of her black gown, "if you are not averse to going out, I should like very much to have you come with Carquinez and his wife to the opening of the Caliente works next month."

"I shall be very glad to come. I shall be out of mourning. Dad does not want me to be a recluse. Will that seal our forgiveness?"

She got up, slim in the twilight, and held out her hand. She had spoken in the present tense of her father, Caleb noticed, as if death had not severed the link between them.

"I also am very glad," he said, as he released her fingers.

He set up the unframed canvas that night in his room in the little bungalow set up for his use on the works, and it was the last thing his eyes rested upon before he turned in. Somehow it seemed to epitomize his career—water and desert places. He fancied Betty and himself in such a solitude, preparing the way for the fertility and population that should follow their discovery and development of water. And Betty did not appear entirely as co-worker. He had seen something of the softer side of her that came as a revelation that warmed and thrilled him to the core.

Nor did he forget to acknowledge Mary Morgan's share in all this, giving himself no credit for her straightening out matters with Betty Clinton. It was a reflex feeling from Cox's magnanimity that had sent Mary Morgan to Betty Clinton more than any desire to show up Baxter. So Caleb fancied, and was grateful. Mrs. Carquinez was another one to come in for an unuttered blessing. The world began to go very well.

CHAPTER XVI

The Opening

There was no doubt, from the very beginning, of the success of the formal opening of the works. The day was perfect and the guests arrived by special train or motor to accord with a program laid out by Cox's secretary, who was a wizard for schedules.

Caleb had secured seats for Betty Clinton and Mr. and Mrs. Carquinez, with whom she arrived, at the side of the table opposite the speakers. He had personally conducted them on the inspection tour and he saw them in their places before he went on to his own.

A table had been set for the foremen and their wives. Maria and Padilla had been sent invitations and they sat with this group, subordinate yet a part of the celebration. Beside Padilla was Evans, the water-diviner, now in general charge of the diverting ponds that extended above the lengths of the filter galleries.

While Caleb had greeted these humbler but necessary workers, one of the foremen rose as Betty, with the artist and his wife, was chatting with Evans, to whom she had been introduced at her own request.

"I had to fire that chap, Johnson, yesterday, Mr. Warner," said the man in a low tone. "He showed up drunk and he had a flask of some rotgut in his pocket. He was hanging around this morning and I warned him off. Acted dopey, to me."

"Quite right, Hardy."

It was curious, Caleb thought, that Baxter, if it was Baxter, should have come in at the end of the project he had tried to ruin as an involuntary witness to Caleb's triumph. He had little sympathy left for Baxter, no regret at the end of so one-sided a friendship. The way of the transgressor had to be hard and Baxter had strayed too far and too often beyond the pale not to deserve punishment. The thought of him did not accord with the spirit of the day and he dismissed it with the fact of his discharge.

The guests consisted of the heads of works, visiting engineers, some of whom had come a long way in professional interest, a selected list of stockholders, civic representatives from Oakville — the all-important press, including Vedder, and such wives and relatives of the fairer sex as considered the event worth their presence.

Cox presided and introduced the speakers. When it came to Caleb's turn a storm of applause greeted his rising, somewhat to his embarrassment. He managed a few phrases, accrediting Cox and the company with much of the meed of praise, paying more easily a glowing tribute to Hinckley, who was to follow him, neatly transferring his own burden of diffidence to the engineer. As he bowed to the renewed plaudits that came with the close of his little speech he looked across to where Betty Clinton sat at the extreme end of the opposite benches. Her hands added to the tribute, her face was aglow with enthusiasm.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Mayan Civilization Mystery of History

The great mystery of the Mayan civilization is that of its calendar. As early as 300 A. D. and possibly much earlier, the Maya had developed a method of reckoning time which is quite as accurate as our own. The problem of adjusting the length of the year to the uneven number of days which it contains had been solved. The complete Maya calendar is capable of fixing any given date exactly and uniquely in a period of over 5,000,000 years, says E. E. Free in the Forum.

This calendar and the mass of astronomical knowledge which must lie back of it, appeared in Central America suddenly. No history has been traced for its origins. One century it is not there; the next century it is there. Some experts believe that the Maya culture was imported, possibly from India or from Egypt. Others believe that it originated in America, at sites not yet discovered, or that its relics, being perishable, have disappeared.

Gossamer Gowns

The weaving of gowns from gossamer, which is now so much in evidence, was suggested in the Eighteenth century. Le Bon of Languedoc prepared a "silk" from spiders, which was afterwards woven into gloves and stockings. Louis XIV of France, possessed a coat made of cobweb, and in 1877 the Empress of Brazil presented Queen Victoria with a dress composed entirely of cobwebs which, for fineness of texture and beauty of fabric, surpassed the most valuable silk. Nevertheless, cobweb "silk" is not likely to become a commercial proposition, for the voracious spider eats every day 27 times its own weight of insect food, which is, of course, expensive, and produces in return only half a grain of "silk."

Walking

Walking is an art that most men and women are able to acquire or recover, and without serious trespass upon the vocations of life, if only they do not yield to the softness of modern comforts and convenience of wheels. The women who in certain parts of the world still carry their burdens for miles on their heads have kept a carriage which queens must envy. The men who walked or ran in the primitive chase had a physical development which 10,000 years of civilization have not improved upon. Walking is the one universal art to save the race from physical degeneracy. Millions are daily yielding to temptation of wheels when they would be better off physically, not to say financially, if they accepted the transportation of their own feet.—New York Sun.

The Wreck

Pierre had been the sole witness of a wreck on one of the spur branches of a Canadian railway. He was asked by the attorney to take the witness stand and tell the story in his own way. To wit:

"Wal, sar, numbaire 2 she came down track lak she were all bended fer 'lection—numbaire 3 she came same track other way n—boomp—both smash op all over. By gar, I t'ink dat's wan h—l of a way to run a railroad."

Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for

Colds Headache Neuritis Lumbago
Pain Neuralgia Toothache Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

THE BEST RECOMMENDATION
—FOR—
Bare-to-Hair

is the number who are trying to imitate it. If Bare-to-Hair was not growing hair on bald heads there would be no imitators. If there is baldness or signs of it you can't afford to neglect to use "Forst's Original Bare-to-Hair."

Correspondence Given Personal Attention

E. J. JAHN CO., Distributor
DETROIT · · MICHIGAN

Airplane on Submarine

A peanut airplane has been designed to be carried in a special compartment on a submarine, and it can be assembled and launched in nine minutes. The undersea craft is submerged slightly to allow the plane to float.

Between Bridge Players

"Playing bridge much lately, Mittie?"

"Not much. Haven't played since yesterday."

It's a good memory that sometimes admits of discreet forgetfulness.

Children Cry for

Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is a pleasant, harmless Substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Teething Drops and Soothing Syrups, especially prepared for Infants in arms and Children all ages.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

Good Works

Alonzo Potter, president of the Big Brother movement, preached in New York a religion of good works as against a merely passive religion.

"Why, my friends," he cried, "there is almost as much difference between being good and doing good as there is between being a man and doing a man."—Minneapolis News.

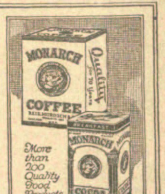
Relief

"How can I keep my feet dry?"

"Try our pumps," replied the bright shoe clerk.

Love isolation long enough and you won't be able to break it.

The noblest motive is the public good.—Virgil.



Touchdown!

CRISP autumn days. A season made for outdoor play. And a season, too, when Monarch Cocoa is needed most. An ideal beverage for growing children. Nourishing. Invigorating. High in quality—low in cost.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

Never Sold Through Chain Stores
REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Chicago Boston · Pittsburgh · New York

More than 200 Quality Food Products including COFFEE and COCOA

Miss Hollywood

Dr. James Spearman of Detroit recently remarked: "Hollywood must be quite a quaint animal. I read the other day that Fannie Hurst, the novelist, claims that it has a heart, and we already know that it is richly endowed with bare arms, knees and backs."

Excused for Cause

"Are you prejudiced, sir?"

"Yes, your honor; the plaintiff sold me oil stock."

Various safety systems are now installed over more than 7,000 miles of track on 44 of the leading railroads in the United States.

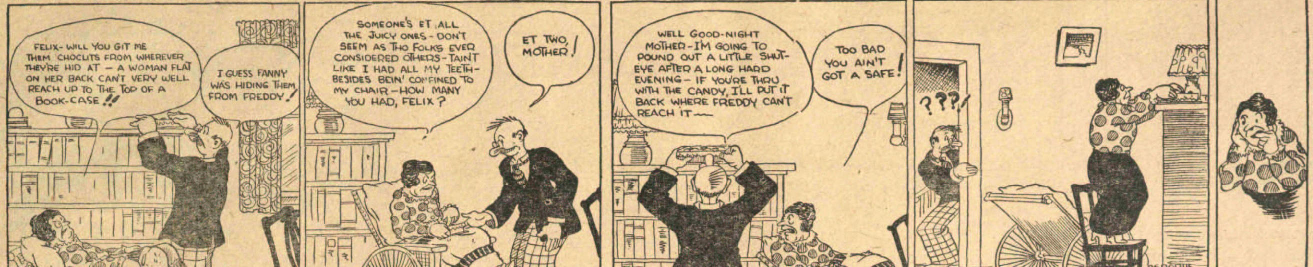
MANY Michigan people frequently spend their week-ends at the Fort Shelby. They enjoy its hospitality, its complete but unpretentious comfort, its convenience to everything and everywhere. Circulating ice water in every room, and the tip-saving advantages and privacy of Detroit's only Servidor equipment. European plan. $3.50 a day for an excellent room with private bath; other rooms at $2.50 a day and up. Fort Shelby Garage close by.

HOTEL
FORT SHELBY
Seth E. Frymire, Manager :: W. G. McKay, Ass't Sec'y
Lafayette Blvd. at First St.
DETROIT

THE FEATHERHEADS

By Osborne
(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

Poor Crippled Mother



FELIX- WILL YOU GIT ME THEM CHOCLITS FROM WHEREVER THEY'RE HID AT — A WOMAN FLAT ON HER BACK CAN'T VERY WELL REACH UP TO THE TOP OF A BOOK-CASE !!
I GUESS FANNY WAS HIDING THEM FROM FREDDY!
SOMEONE'S ET ALL THE JUICY ONES - DON'T SEEM AS THO FOLKS EVER CONSIDERED OTHERS - TAIN'T LIKE I HAD ALL MY TEETH- BESIDES BEIN' CONFINED TO MY CHAIR — HOW MANY YOU HAD, FELIX?
ET TWO, MOTHER!
WELL GOOD-NIGHT MOTHER - I'M GOING TO POUND OUT A LITTLE SHUT-EYE AFTER A LONG HARD EVENING — IF YOU'RE THRU WITH THE CANDY, I'LL PUT IT BACK WHERE FREDDY CAN'T REACH IT — TOO BAD YOU AIN'T GOT A SAFE!
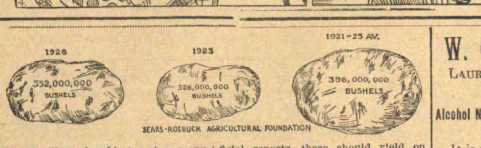
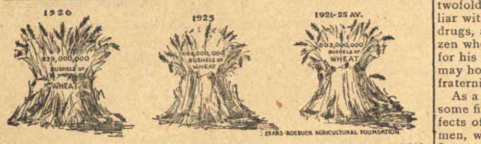
???!
OSBORNE



YOU will not be able to eat so many potatoes this year and on an average you will have to pay more for what you eat, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. While there will be 25,000,000 bushels more potatoes than last year, the prospective crop of 352,000,000 bushels is still 50,000,000 short of the five-year average. Farmers devoted 3,202,000 acres to potatoes this year, the Foundation finds, and according to the latest official reports, these should yield on the average 110 bushels per acre. In 1925 the yield was only 103.9, while in 1924 it was 127 bushels. The present prospects are for a crop 15 per cent below normal. Based on studies over a period of 23 years, the Department of Agriculture indicated that prices will be about 37.5 per cent above normal, and while prices are expected to be higher, the extreme high prices of a year ago are not likely.

52 Billion Loaves in U. S. Wheat



ENOUGH wheat will be produced in the United States this year to make 52,018,000,000 loaves of bread, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. The latest official estimates indicate that 839,000,000 bushels of wheat will be produced this year, and it is figured that 62 one-pound loaves of bread can be obtained from every bushel of wheat. Of the total estimated output 626,000,000 bushels were produced by winter wheat growers and 212,000,000 bushels by spring wheat growers in the Northwest. Last year the winter wheat production was 396,000,000 bushels and spring wheat 271,000,000. The present crop is above the five-year average of 802,000,000 bushels. The acreage devoted to the crop this year is put at 57,584,000 and the latest estimates place the production at 14.6 bushels per acre, the Foundation states. Winter wheat will run over 17 bushels per acre and spring wheat 10.2 per acre. Domestic needs are estimated at 640,000,000 bushels, so there will be more than 250,000,000 bushels for export. Prices are not as high as a year ago, but the crop probably will bring growers more than a billion dollars.

BIG SUBSCRIPTION OFFER

You Get ALL FOUR of These
MAGAZINES and OUR NEWSPAPER
For One Year Each FOR $1.80 Order Now
THIS EXCEPTIONAL OFFER IS GOOD FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY
Subscriptions may be new or renewal. All renewal subscriptions will be extended for one year from present date of expiration.

Beagle Hound Field Trial Awards Made

Prize winners and prizes awarded in the National Beagle Field Trials which were staged Tuesday and Wednesday of last week at McElroy hill, Warsaw, under the auspices of the Central Kennel club, are as follows:

Eugene McBain Hillsdale, Mich., won the field championship for male hounds with his hound, "Radio." Dr. J. M. Jennings, Warsaw, won the female champion ship with his hound "Bead II."

Other awards and winners were: First in 15-inch derby, John Dalls, Cincinnati, prize, jack-knife, North End Grocery; second in P. R. bred class, Jack Cusson, Johnston City, Ill., prize, calabash pipe, J. B. Watson Drug Co. for services rendered, John Foster, Clinton, Ind., an Eversharp pencil, Mauzy's Sport Shop; first in P. R. bred class, Floyd Sager, set of Champion spark plugs, Polk Oil Co.; for services rendered, Judge Eugene McBain, Hillsdale, Mich., a $2.50 pipe, Beebe and Bumbaugh Second in 13-inch class, Floyd Sagar, Tiffin, Ohio, Senso Air Purifier; Floyd Sagar Tiffin, Ohio, safety razor, Pottenger Hardware Co.

Second in 15-inch class, Daniel Myers, Fort Wayne, a flashlight, Pottenger Hardware Co.; for his splendid services rendered, C. Z. Bennett, secretary of the United Kennel club, a carton of Chesterfield cigarettes, Foote's Restaurant for services rendered, Judge Jonn E. Foster, Clintan, a man's belt, Warsaw Underselling Store; also a necktie from Phillipson's Clothing store.

First in 15-inch all age dogs, John Dells, Cincinnati, prize of patent steam valve, Grant Croy. First in 13-inch all age dogs, Eugene McBain, Hillsdale, Mich., a bill folder, prize from Lantz and Dufur Drug Co. Second in 15-inch all age females, Floyd Sager, Tiffin, O., a bill fold, prize from the South Side Billiard Eporium. Second in 15-inch all age females, Paul Eiffertt, Hillsdale, Mich.; third in 15-inch all age females, Eugene McBain, Hillsdale, Mich. third in class four 15-inch all age males, John Dells, Cincinnati. All awarded toilet almond cream by Adams and Funk Drug Co.

Second in 13-inch derby, J. S. Hugby, Rawson, O.; third in 15-inch all age females, Eugene McBain, Hillsdale; both prizes of 3 boxes of cigars from Corner Cigar Shoppe. First in 13 inch derby, Dr. J. M. Jennings, Coral Bead, 1 pound of best creamery butter Clover Leaf Dairy.

For all age females, Eugene McBain, Hillsdale Mich., a coupling and pair of dog nail clippers, prize by Dr. J. M. Jennings.

Miller A-1 products were fed all dogs by the Battle Creek Dog Food Co. by L. F. Boyde. H. M. Stanley was in charge of the display.—From Warsaw Times (Indiana.)

Legume hays have two great points of superiority over grass hays for growing and milking animals; they contain more protein and more lime. The high protein is very important if the hay is being fed alone or with a low protein concentrate such as corn or oats. But the high lime is even more important, because there are no concentrates which contain large amounts of lime. As far as is known there is no way to satisfy the lime requirements of very productive dairy cows on winter feed except to give them large quantities of well-cured legume hay.

Epitaph

This is the grave of a cute little girl, who had a cute little figure, a cute little curl, a cute little foot, a cute little way—a cute indigestion took her away.—Lafayette Lyre.

W. C. T. U. Column

LAURA WALWORTH, EDITOR

Alcohol Not Necessary In Medical Practice

It is with great pride and satisfaction that we are able to record the opinion and testimony in favor of prohibition of one of our greatest surgeons, a man of world renown in his profession, Dr. Howard A. Kelly of John Hopkins University. His most interesting article will be found in this issue of the Union Signal. It was first given as a radio talk and afterwards printed in a recent number of the Sunday School Times.

I conceive of my relation to my country, my state, and my city as twofold: first, as a physician familiar with disease and the use of drugs, and then as a Christian citizen who coverts the best things for his country, desirous that it may hold an honored place in the fraternity of the world.

As a physician, after spending some fifty years observing the effects of alcohol on men and women, whether harmful or useful, I am a converted and convinced prohibitionist. Within this entire period, covering almost two generations, alcoholics and their effects have been constantly within my horizon and under close personal observation. While still a boy in college, the evil effects of drinking upon individuals began to be noticeable even in my own little social group.

Before beginning actively to practice medicine, while still a student, I found that it was an almost universal custom for members of our profession to acquiesce in an illogical age-long custom in prescribing beer, wines and stronger alcoholics as acceptable stimulants supposed to act as roborants or tonics giving the patient strength to throw off disease. What countless millions of gallons consumptives and typhoid fever and innumerable other patients have consumed, and how many tens of thousands of drunkards made under this illusory and baseless notion! I observed that in issuing such a prescription, usually given conversationally, and in designating the particular drink supposedly adapted to the case, the doctor was often guided by his own personal preferences and habits.

Today, the number in the profession expecting any tangible results from prescribing alcohol as a reliable remedy for any disease constitutes a scattered and a greatly diminished army. The American Medical Association has repudiated alcohol as a well defined remedy for disease, and the widespread fashion has passed away with its less observant and less scientific generation. Few of my doctor friends even apply for the license to prescribe the amounts permitted by law, while many of our best men are strongly opposed to its use at all.

On the other hand, there are some reputable, excellent men who continue to use it in such troubles as bronchial coughs, old age, some heart cases, typhoid, tuberculosis, diarrheas of children and for alcoholic habitues; of this group some bitterly resent any restrictions whatever upon the amounts they may dispense.

The injunction in certain states such for example, as Florida, against all prescribing of intoxicating liquors has inhibited the medical profession (just as the nation at large is inhibited against alcohol as a beverage) by reason of our high handed abuse of privilege, because it was found that a large number of doctors simply would not deal honestly in the matter. There can be no question but that many who cry loudly for alcohol today are only eager to sell their prescriptions as so many bartenders. So it is my earnest conviction that even though we were to grant that alcohol may at times be a useful adjuvant, the amount of its utility as compared with the harm it does is as the proverbial drop of water in the ocean.

I hold that as so many of our professors have so frightfully abused their exceptional privileges on this score, in order to keep our house clean, we must of necessity make the saerifice, if such it be. To put it on a debit and credit basis: on the credit side write down the utterly subordinate and even insignificant place alcohol occupies as a reliable remedial agen (seriously questioned by many) plus the indulgence of an appetite for a manufactured drink; on the debit side we must needs look in vain for reams of paper long enough to chronicle the thousands of deaths, accidents, diseases and disabilities; the extreme poverty, early decrepitude, economic inefficiency, and dishonesty; the overtaxed almshouses and hospitals; the prisons and courts congested with King Alcohol's criminals; and not least the well-known and acknowledged debauchery of our politics, the very life of our nation all bred under the malevolent rule of alcohol.

Those universal devasting social diseases, syphilis and gonorrhea, the doctor well knows were commonly the outcome of an alcoholic debauchery, while the lives of tens of thousands of prostitutes were yearly poured out upon the altar of our Moloch, alcohol. And who can even form the faintest mental picture of the disruption and miseries of family life, of wretched wives and children and unhappy mothers, under the alcoholic regime!

Because of indictments such as these which would fill volumes, I have come after many long, sad experiences, to hold the brewer and the distiller to be the most conscienceless, insidious, and relentless enemies of our country. However, the uses of alcohol as a drug and as a beverage are two totally distinct questions.

(Continued next week)

The Annual Guest Day of the Sorosis Club was very pleasantly observed on Tuesday October 26 at the home of Mrs. Jennie Othoudt. About 50 were in attendance The rooms were beautifully decorated with yellow and white, the Club colors. The program opened with "America, the Beautiful" sung by all with Mrs. Wamsley at the organ. The president, Mrs. Pendell welcomed the guests with a few appropriate words after which Mrs. Hewitt gave a vocal solo. Margaret Shanbaugh gave an instrumental selection and Mrs. Alice Holcomb accompanied by Edith Westcott on the violin sang. The musical selections were interspersed with several groups of readings by Mrs. Perdham from Hillsdale which were enjoyed by all. Mrs. Hewitt sang at the close of the program. Dainty refreshments were served.

The Days of Lincoln Versus Days of Coolidge

Most of our readers have read the stories of Abe Lincoln's great clemency streaks which reached way down into the army camps and pardoned all manner of offenses among scape-grace boys of the line and those not so boyish, and the whole business of telling these yarns has so seeped into the memories and pasts of our readers they will not enjoy much re-hashing, but this particular anecdote struck home to us and it might also strike the solar plexus of others so we will endeavor to relate it as near as possible correctly. Along with hundreds of others who were more or less delinquent one William Scott, a young lad who had enlisted and gone to war against the wishes of his friends, was one night after marching all day and standing picket the night previous, found fast asleep on the picket line by the Captain of the Guard. The locality was at Chain Bridge a dangerous part of the battle fields and for a sentry to fall asleep while on duty was irrevocably followed by the firing squad at sunrise. The discipline of the fighting forces simply had to be kept and what was the life of one solitary unknown soldier against the keeping of orders in the whole army? As in other cases the drum head court martial found Scott guilty and sentenced him to face the firing squad. Friends at home had been notified and at once superhuman struggles and sobs were put up to save his life. As had been done before a petition was rushed to President Lincoln—the busiest man in Washington—but never too busy to consider such affairs as this.

Picture to yourself a messenger forcing a jaded horse into the suburbs of Washington dirty, muddy and seeking entrance to the President's private rooms at a small hour of the morning—and then picture the same performance being enacted toward President Coolidge Do you fancy such a messenger could force his attentions upon President Coolidge? Quite likely he could not. Further than that no president of the present time would allow his precious time to be taken one minute with so trivial matters. The chances are that so such petition would ever get beyond the doorkeeper of the White House. Among the many thousand World War men in France, no doubt a whole lot such incidents happened, but President Coolidge probably never knew the circumstances nor did he ever inquire. This United States army and navy is altogether too big and too versatile to be able to bring to the President's attention even the most prominent of these.

That is not all—Abe Lincoln actually left his duties in Washington and journeyed to the camp of William Scott where he interviewed the guards and the victim himself. Now what do you think of that? Some of our most unsentimental folks often remark of the wonderful prestige of Abraham Lincoln, in fact they complain that so rough, uncultivated, uneducated, uncouth a personage as he should live so terribly long in the memories of citizens of our land.

This is puzzling, for a fact. How could such men as Robert Ingerfsoll and Benedict Arnold ever be forgotten!

Ever hear of President or Mrs. Coolidge journeying far to interview an unfortunate shell-shocked veteran of the World War? Ever hear of such wonderful clemency from the executive mansion during this administration? Ever hear of Honest "Cal" bothering himself about the woe of the aged and broken veterans of the Civil war? Never! When the first pension bill came up to President Coolidge did he sanction it? He did not President Abe Lincoln was a common friend of humanity. President Coolidge is likewise a friend of humanity, but he chooses to hold humanity at twenty paces. He is not bothering very specifically about the sorrows of the common people. He expects to be alive when the last one of those Civil war veterans and widows are gone. Abraham Lincoln carried a common sympathy with every private of the line who served on the bloody fields of the Wilderness, Gettysburg, Appomattox, and he knew and they knew. President Coolidge carries a certain sympathy but so lightly that the matter of drawing his salary, smoking very good cigarettes and fishing, are regular habits not to be set aside. This is just a comparison of the two men that's all.

This is Governor-elect Fred Green formerly mayor of Ionia, minus his Quaker Oats smile. By the time he has built as many good roads and stood off as many grafters as Alexander Groesbeck has did, Mr. Green will have matriculated into the school of politics as a Freshman. In the course of a few decades Mr. Green might graduate as a successful politician, but his B.A. degree would have to be deferred uutil the millenium.

DEMS WOULD ELIMINATE TAX

Farmers Interested in Comstock's Pledge to Abolish State Property Levy.

The proposal in the platform adopted at the Muskegon convention of Michigan Democrats to do away with all state property taxes is proving of more than passing interest to the farmers of the state.

This proposal, which is along the lines of the so-called Virginia Plan, is now a law and in successful operation in Virginia, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, and other states. The adoption of the plan would mean that the property owner would be all through paying his taxes after he settles his county and city or township assessments.

The party, under the leadership of William A. Comstock, its candidate for governor, proposes to make up the deficit in revenue due from such tax elimination through the specific taxes of the state, such as the corporation tax and gasoline tax.

Economy Pledged

Mr. Comstock pledges to cut state government costs one-third by obolishing unnecessary boards and employees. Chief among these economies is the elimination of the state police, which he characterizes, as a "nuisance". Mr. Comstock also points out that the party platform is the only one adopted in the state which recognizes other needs of the farmer and proposes relief.

Included in the platform is the declaration favoring the assessment of farm lands on the basis of reasonable cash values, and not on the present basis of inflated war prices; it holds that the gas and motor vehicle tax should be sufficient to build and maintain all state trunk lines, county and township roads and thus to do away with the local property tax for road building and maintenance; it pledges close attention to the welfare of the farmers' children in school advantages and better tax equalization for school purposes and makes the promise that the state department of agriculture will find a way to a better marketing system for farm products as a necessity to the farmer's prosperity.

PRIEST SPEAKER IN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The Rev. David L. Dillon, pastor of St. Philip's Catholic church, Battle Creek, Mich., recently addressed a class of high school students who are taking a course in "Comparative Denominations" in the church house of the First Congregational Church, of Battle Creek.

It is planned to invite other local pastors to speak before the class so that the students may get authoritative information regaring the distinctive beliefs of the various denominations. It is felt at the church, that this study besides being valuable by way of instruction, will also be helpful by its tendency to create friendly and cordial relations between the various denominations.

Correct English
MONTHLY MAGAZINE
Authoritive Exponent of English for 24 Years
Edited and founded by
JOSEPHINF TURCK BAKER
Famous World English Authority
Send 10 Cents for Sample Copy
Correct English Publishing Company
Evanston, Illinois
Agents Wanted Everywhere

F. E. Caswell D. V. M.
Veterinarian
Office at Residence, West Ma in St
Private Phone 45
North Adams, Mich.

Dr. L. R. ULRICH
DENTIST
Private Office in Room over Perkins' Restaurant
Thursdays hours 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.
Plate Work a Specialty

O. G. McFarland M. D.
North Adams, Mich.
OFFICE HOURS: 8:00 to 9:00a. m.
1:00 to 4:00 p. m.
7:00 to 8:00 p. m.
First door west of Opera House

Patronize Our Advertisers
They are all boosters and deserve your business.

Changing a Tire

Before we were married my sweetheart seemed the most bland and placid person one might ever hope to meet, so it was quite a shock when about two weeks afterward I heard some one indulging in a violent spell of profanity and discovered it was my own dear husband changing a tire.—G. M., in Chicago Tribune.

This coupon and 25c entitle the undersigned to one 35c can of Acme Quality Enamel-Kote, any color, and a special 20c Paint Brush.
Name
Address
To acquaint you with Acme Quality, we are making a special offer for a short time only.
SPECIAL OFFER
55¢ Value for 25¢

Does your front door smile a welcome?

How about the front door of your home—is it glum looking—all faded out—weather beaten? Or is it just the opposite—spic and span—resplendent in a fine protective coat of varnish—smiling a welcome to every visitor—indicative of care and prosperity?

People notice these things. You notice them. Why not get busy at once with a can of Acme Quality Great Lakes Spar Varnish—or give the business to your painter? It's best for your doors. It is best for all exposed surfaces.

ACME QUALITY Paint and Varnish
You can't find a better, more dependable product than Acme Quality Varnish. We sell it—see us about all paint problems.
J. M. WILLIAMS, North Adams
ACME QUALITY

Harley Voorhees
FUNERAL DIRECTOR
HANOVER MICHIGAN
Calls attended promptly day an night. Having the best of equipment, I can serve and please you.
Any of our friends who wish our servces, can reach u day or night bycalling Moscow Central.
HARLEY VOORHEES
Hanover, Mich.

Would It?

It would be a mistake to mislend people into believing that the right of free speech exists only when money talks.—Binghamton Press.

District Y. W. C. A.

A woman's conference will be held in Hillsdale this week Saturday under the direction of the District Y. W. C. A. Subjects for discussion will include the following:

1. Problems facing boys and girls in small communities today. What can adults do to help?
2. What makes up our mind on International questions? Where do we get our ideas? What part do women in small communities play in influencing America's relationships with other countries?
3. What are the principal economic problems of farm women? What is the economic contribution of farm women?

The leaders of the conference will include secretaries from the national Y. W. C. A. and professors from the college. Delegates from all women's organizations will be welcome and may register at the Y. W. C. A. office in Hillsdale until Thursday night.

Hillsdale-Jackson Bus Line
Four Round Trips each Day
Two Round Trips Sunday
NORTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams....6:45 a. m
" " "...... 1:15 p. m
SOUTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams....8:15 a. m.
" " "........4:20 p. m.
SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS
Bus north at..............5:15 p. m
Bus south (via Jonesville)....11 20

Woman's World
The Gentlewoman
Household Guest
Home Circle
Today's Housewife
The Home Friend Magazine
The American Needlewoman
Mother's Home Life
The Household Magazine
The Farm Journal
Farm Life
Good Stories
Farm & Fireside
Pathfinder
Capper's Farmer
Blade and Ledger
Tractor and Gas Engine Review
American Poultry Advocate
Illustrated Mechanics

and Any

5 of this list of leading

MAGAZINES

$2.25

Why Pay More?

Get Your MAGAZINES NOW AT COST!

Take Your PICK

19

to Select From

Never before and probably never again will you have such an extraordinary money-saving opportunity. Note carefully the large selection of choice reading—all at a price to fit your pocketbook. Renewals will be extended one year from date of expiration. No need to wait.

CLIP AND USE THIS COUPON

Gentlemen: I wish to take advantage of your Magazine Bargain Offer. I am enclosing the above amount in payment for a one year subscription to your paper and the FIVE Magazines I have marked with an X below.

Name

Town State

St. or R.F.D.

☐ American Needlewoman
☐ American Poultry Advocate
☐ Blade & Ledger
☐ Capper's Farmer
☐ Farm & Fireside
☐ The Farm Journal
☐ Farm Life
☐ Gentlewoman Magazine
☐ Good Stories
☐ Home Circle
☐ Home Friend
☐ Household Guest
☐ Household Magazine
☐ Illustrated Mechanics
☐ Mother's Home Life
☐ Pathfinder (weekly) 26 issues
☐ Today's Housewife
☐ Tractor & Gas Engine Review
☐ Woman's World

CHOOSE Mark this coupon now and bring or mail it to our Business Office TODAY

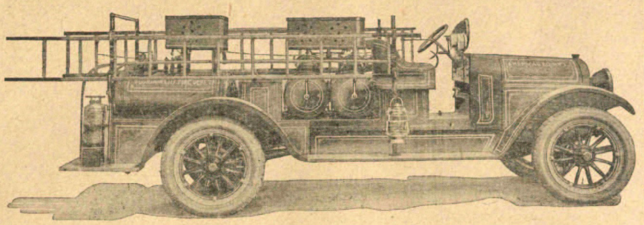
NORTH ADAMS TO FRONT



IT HAS BEEN SAID by some wisacre back in the dark ages "In times of peace prepare for war" and it could be applied to the necessities of a small village anywhere in the isolated sections of Michigan. Fires come at such an hour as ye know not, and woe is sure to visit the town or the farm home without protection. It is delightful to state that owing to the beneficence of the farm dwellers scattered over the countryside we are able to own an up-to-date fire fighting apparatus the maintenance of which will be borne by the village alone. When this joint ownership was first suggested to the Advocate, we did not know it could be consumated in a way satisfactory to all concerned, but with the appearauce of Mr. Reed of Howell on the scene, the situation soon clarified, as he at once got busy with prospecrive patrons. It did not require much effort to convince 120 home owners where their best interests were likely to be found, when at any time with cellar furnaces and high voltage wires in their houses. they were running a big hazard. At any time fire might drive them shelterless into the world and they as helpless to resist as babes. One or two recent conflagerations belped them to decide.

Forty-four hundred dollars looks big at first thought, but it diminishes quite suddenly if you consider the relative worth of a ready-to-go outfit which is sturdy enough to get to the fire during the first precious minutes following the alarm. Through the kindness of the manufacturers, the Boyer Company, of Logansport, Indiana, we are presenting a close-up view of the Juggernaut Reo powered machine which is capable of a 60 mile clip to the fire, and of belching forth a stream 70 feet in length or height, and keep on belching until the blaze is extinguished. Four large tanks supply the necessary liquid. Soon the village will be installing more cisterns and at a slight expense a pumper can be added to the outfit and we shall be fully as well equipped as Hillsdale or any city. It is figured this engine should remain in good shape for 12 to 15 years, and if a farmer living anywhere within ten miles of North Adams can protect his property for the small sum of $2.00 per year he should be happy. The present hand engine was purchased many years ago but it never developed much power for some reason and its insides seemed to be continually out of order. Hillsdale was using a hand engine at the time named "Baw Beese" and the power developed by the latter, made the North Adams engine appear as a toy. Old "Baw Beese" was sold and finally landed at Gardner, Massachusetts, where in contests it won championships for long distance streams. We understand the city of Gardner keeps it stowed away for a relic. In conclusion let us say the farmers are proud of the new rig and so are we. It is hoped that the occasions for its uses will be few and far between.

He Wants Money

Editor Dwight Blackmer of the Memphis (Macomb County) Bee announces in a recent paper that after thirteen years of steady plodding he has finally moved into a building for his particular use, his own property and like a good Methodist meeting he most cordially invites every last subscriber who might be in arrears, to kindly drop in the next few days and liquidate, as Mr. Blackmer needs the money. Quite right—an editor always needs coin, but there are times when he needs it with a "bang". But he does not always get what he wants, so the matter of paying up on subscriptions is much on his mind at all times. The Editor of the Advocate feels similarly and he invites those who are somewhat in arrears to give us their support for another year in the way of a renewal. We are trying to run a paper to suit the crowd—and if anything gets a man's goat its trying to hop to it in such a way that he can glean plaudits instead of curses from the multitude. If we should happen to indulge in too much temperance blarney then some liquor sympathizers would at once call us "rabid" and "unreasonable" which we aim not to be. If we should make a slip and unintentionally omit such good things as are furnished us by the church and temperance people we are classed as "backslidden" and "traitorious" to the welfare of the territory. Hence you will see just how we are situated—between the Devil and a Hot Time without much choice as to either.

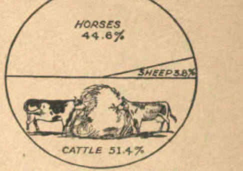
What we have said—we have said, what we shall say—we have not yet said—so it can be changed to suit the needs. We shall not be double dealers nor shall we cater to anything which is indecent or narrow-minded. We're here because the people of this township want a paper in North Adams. If they didn't they would not take it. We are here because they keep us here, therefore the whole bunch must be pleased somehow. Not a very pleasant anticipation, now is it? Just remember you are doing your little bit to help keep the town and the country alive by paying up your renewal. And to those who are not now subscribers, we want to say you are not seeing our business in just exactly the right light. The Advocate ought to have 1,000 paid subscribers and it would have if every citizen did his duty. We are not here to make money—we are here to steady the town, make it a live hustling community and we hope you want to see the north-east corner of this county in the front rank. We believe you do.

Y. W. C. A. Campaign

As the Young Womens Christian Association in this District closes the fourth year of its work, it shows a record of which its members and participants are justly proud. The folders which have been prepared for the fall finance campaign show plainly the large increase in numbers participating in Girl Reserve groups, adult classes and clubs, district-wide membership meetings, conferences and summer camp. Each year has also shown new activities undertaken by the Association in the pursuit of its purpose to enrich life. The past year there were many interesting new features. These included 250 county women enrolled in basketry classes with special training given to the teachers of these classes, a summer camp program with a health emphasis carried out cooperatively with other organizations for girls who could not otherwise attend. The speakers at district meetings included among others the executive of the Rural Communities Department of the Y. W. C. A. and also the executive of the World's Y. W. C. A.

The new year which the Association is just entering upon is featuring yet other interesting activities. New groups of Girl Reserves are already being started in several places. For the first time the officers and chairman of standing committees of the High School Girl Reserves in the district met to plan the year's work. This meeting was held two weeks ago at Frontier and a very large proportion of those eligible to attend were there from 8 clubs. Textile painting classes will also be held thruout the county each class electing its own teachers as they have been doing for the basketry classes. A most significant conference of women will be held in the near future under the direction of the Y. W. C. A. with unusually fine leadership to discuss problems of vital interest. This conference as well as all the classes and clubs are open to all women who care to participate.

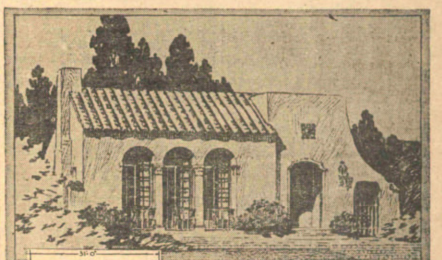
On Saturday the district finance committee and the captains of teams in the coming campaign met in Hudson to discuss plans. The total budget agreed upon $3500, the dates of the campaign were Nov. 1, 2, and 3, and the committee are confident that the budget will be entirely raised during this time. There are to be ten teams in Hillsdale, six in Hudson and four in the rest of the district. The chairman for the Northeast County team is Mrs. Myrna Lee of Wheatland.

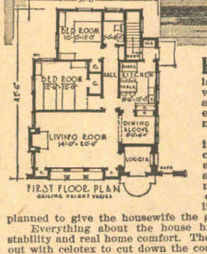


(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

Our hay crop furnishes one of the largest cafeteria services in existence, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Seventy-eight million tons, it is expected, will be produced in 1926, a large part of which will be consumed by cattle. According to figures put out by the Department of Agriculture, 51.4% of this amount will be eaten by cattle, 44.6% by horses and the remaining 3.8% by sheep. The amount of hay eaten by hogs is very slight, only a small fraction of one per cent of the alfalfa crop. As in the case of other feed crops, most of this hay is consumed right on the farm where it is grown.

Practical Four-Room Plan for That "Castle in Spain"





FLAGSTONE terracing, iron grille balconies and a quaint wrought iron lantern give distinction to this little old-world one-story house. Rough plaster walls and a colorful tile roof make an attractive exterior that will find a welcome in any neighborhood.

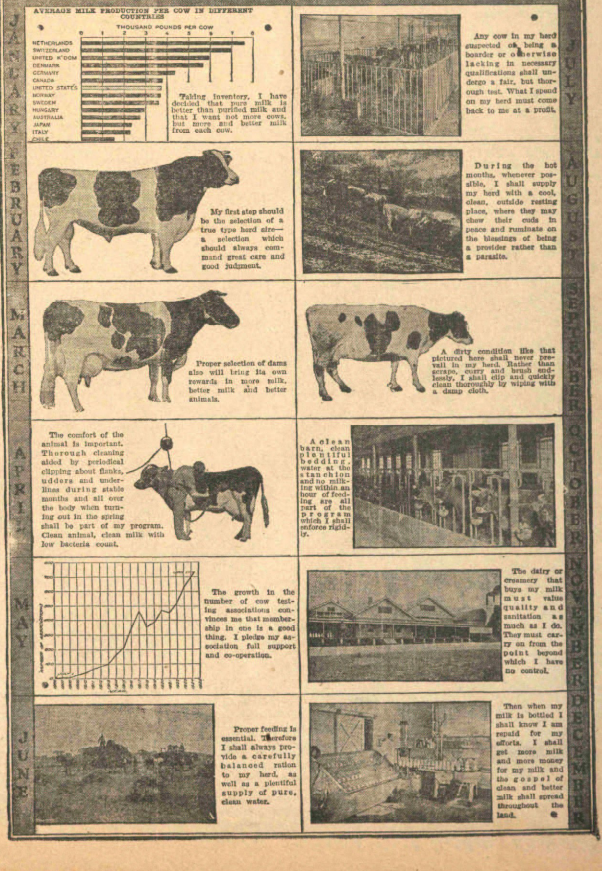
But a carefully designed floor plan is its greatest appeal. One enters from the covered loggia directly into the large story and a half living-room, with its triple-arched windows reaching from the floor almost to the ceiling. The dining room alcove is conveniently located and well lighted. The kitchen has been deftly planned to give the housewife the greatest comfort and step-saving.

Everything about the house has been planned to give the utmost in stability and real home comfort. The walls and ceilings are insulated throughout with celotex to cut down the coal bills in winter and keep the house cool in the summer. Who could wish for a more beautiful little home.

©, Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926.

THE DAIRYMAN'S CALENDAR

As a progressive Dairyman desiring to secure maximum profits from my milk herd, I realize the necessity of adhering to an organized schedule of care, feeding and handling.



Taking inventory, I have decided that pure milk is better than purified milk and that I want not more cows, but more and better milk from each cow.

Any cow in my herd suspected of being a boarder or otherwise lacking in necessary qualifications shall undergo a fair, but thorough test. What I spend on my herd must come back to me at a profit.

My first step should be the selection of a true type herd sire—a selection which should always command great care and good judgment.

During the hot months, whenever possible, I shall supply my herd with a cool, clean, outside resting place, where they may chew their cuds in peace and ruminate on the blessings of being a provider rather than a parasite.

Proper selection of dams also will bring its own rewards in more milk, better milk and better animals.

A dirty condition like that pictured here shall never prevail in my herd. Rather than scrape, curry and brush endlessly, I shall clip and quickly clean thoroughly by wiping with a damp cloth.

The comfort of the animal is important. Thorough cleaning aided by periodical clipping about flanks, udders and underlines during stable months and all over the body when turning out in the spring shall be part of my program. Clean animal, clean milk with low bacteria count.

A clean barn, clean plentiful bedding, water at the stanchion and no milking within an hour of feeding are all part of the program which I shall enforce rigidly.

The growth in the number of cow testing associations convinces me that membership in one is a good thing. I pledge my association full support and co-operation.

The dairy or creamery that buys my milk must value quality and sanitation as much as I do. They must carry on from the point beyond which I have no control.

Proper feeding is essential. Therefore I shall always provide a carefully balanced ration to my herd, as well as a plentiful supply of pure, clean water.

Then when my milk is bottled I shall know I am repaid for my efforts. I shall get more milk and more money for my milk and the gospel of clean and better milk shall spread throughout the land.

Sensational Sale!

Underwood—Remington—Royal—Oliver, Etc.

Why Pay Full Price for a Typewriter
When you can get one of the best for little more than half?

Just try any one of these Standard Visible Typewriters in your own home or office
—at my RISK!

10 Day Free Trial—10 Year Guarantee

$2.00 Down and It's Yours—Over a Year to Pay
10c a day will Pay for One of these Standard Typewriters

Send today for large Free Catalog showing Typewriters in colors. No expense or obligation on your part

International Typewriter Exchange
177-189 North State Street, Dept. , Chicago, Illinois

KIRK'S
ORIGINAL
COCOA HARDWATER
CASTILE
COPYRIGHT BY JAMES S. KIRK & COMPANY
MADE IN U. S. A.

INSTANT lather in hard, cold water

Lather that Cleanses, Invigorates and Protects

Just dip a cake of this amazing toilet soap into cold, hard water. Almost instantly you have a bowlful of bubbly lather.

Lather that whisks away the most stubborn dirt and grease. Lather that protects by killing germs and leaves the skin soft and invigorated.

A great big cake of this quality soap costs but 10c at all dealers.

insist on ORIGINAL KIRK'S COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE

◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆

If your dealer can't supply you with Kirk's Cocoa Hardwater Castile Soap, mail this coupon to James S. Kirk & Co., 1232 W. North Ave., Chicago, for free trial cake. Write your dealer's name and address on margin.

Name.................................

Address..............................

◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆

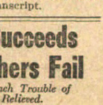
PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and
Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks., Patchogue, N.Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Dull Finish

"Does he use polished language?"

"No, he tells the unvarnished truth."—Boston Transcript.



Tanlac Succeeds When Others Fail

Liver and Stomach Trouble of Year's Standing Relieved.

Frank Wright, 515 9th Street, Evansville, Ind., says: "Tanlac did what a lot of other medicines failed to. For a year I suffered from liver and stomach trouble. At night I tossed and turned, then I would get up in the morning tired and worn-out. Nervousness upset my stomach so that I could not eat without being tortured by indigestion.

"Now all the days of suffering are gone. I feel better than ever before. My stomach never bothers me. I can eat everything without suffering. I give Tanlac all the credit for my marvelous recovery. It toned up my liver, gave me good health."

This tonic usually frees the system of poison and drives out causes of pain. Builds strength and health. Get your first bottle of Tanlac from your druggist —today! Over 40 million bottles sold.

None in Her Wardrobe

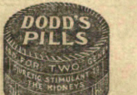
"Frankness is the modern girl's long suit," says an exchange. Apparently it's the only long suit she has.—Boston Transcript.

No Cold

Fever headache or grippe

Colds break in a day for the millions who use Hill's. Headache and fever stop. La Grippe is checked. All in a way so reliable that druggists guarantee results. Colds are too important to treat in lesser ways.

Be Sure It's HILL'S Price 30c
CASCARA BROMIDE QUININE
Get Red Box with portrait



DIURETIC STIMULANT TO THE KIDNEYS

Standard for Generations

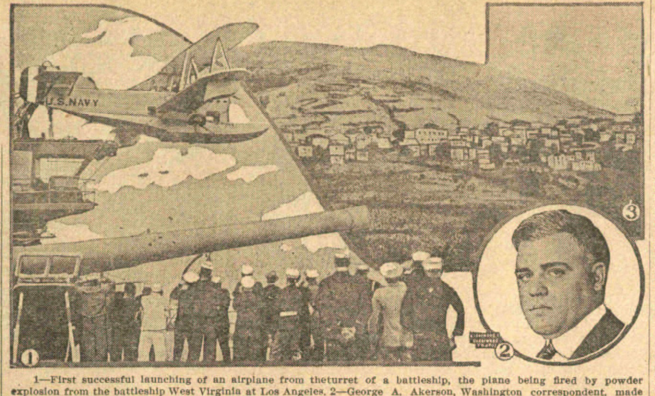
One Box Gave Quick Relief

Why suffer from backache, rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles? Get rid of them and enjoy good health. Ernest Willnow, Bentley, N. D., writes: "Am still in good health. I used two boxes of Dodd's six years ago, when I was troubled with backache. I found no relief until I used Dodd's. One box gave relief."

"We have been using Dodd's Pills a number of years and would not be without them." Arthur Block, 944 Park Ave., New York.

At your druggist, box 60 cents, or the Dodd's Medicine Co., 700 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

INSIST UPON
KEMP'S
BALSAM
for that COUGH!



1—First successful launching of an airplane from theturret of a battleship, the plane being fired by powder explosion from the battleship West Virginia at Los Angeles. 2—George A. Akerson, Washington correspondent, made assistant to Secretary of Commerce Hoover. 3—View of Bardizag, one of the towns destroyed by the Armenian earthquake.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

President Coolidge Links American High Wages and Prosperity.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, addressing the American Association of Advertising Agencies, and, through the radio, many millions of other citizens, declared that our system of high wages is one of the chief factors in the nation's prosperity. He said it has brought about the "greatest distribution of wealth that the world has ever seen and provides the enormous capacity for the consumption of all kinds of commodities which characterizes our country."

"If we proceed under our present system," he added, "there would appear to be little reason to doubt that we can continue to maintain all of these high standards in wages, in output and in consumption indefinitely and, with our home markets as a foundation, increase our foreign commerce by a greater exchange of those commodities in which we are peculiarly favored for the commodities of other nations in which they have a special advantage. But nothing would appear to be plainer than that this all depends upon the maintenance of our American scale of wages, which is the main support of our home market."

The Chief Executive made an appeal for exact truth in advertising, and complimented the advertising profession for its contribution to a happy and prosperous country, adding that without constant publicity modern business could not be conducted on its present gigantic scale.

SALE to the Chemical Foundation, Inc., of German patents seized during the war, is declared by the United States Supreme court to have been in accordance with the law, authorized by acts of congress and of President Wilson, and therefore valid. The government in its suit had alleged that the price paid for the patents—$271,000—was wholly inadequate and should have been at least $7,000,000. The court finds the Chemical Foundation was properly formed as in effect a public trust for those whom the patents would benefit and for the promotion of American industries and that in the sale of the patents no conspiracy, fraud or deception was established by the government.

IF THE federal trade commission does not object, one of the biggest industrial combinations of recent years probably will be consummated soon. This is the merger of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Montgomery Ward & Co., the huge Chicago mail-order houses. It is understood an outline of the plan already has been laid before Secretary of Commerce Hoover and that he said his opinion was that the government would consent to the merger. The tentative plan is said to be the formation of a new corporation to absorb the present companies and an exchange of stock of the concern for that of the old ones. The proposed corporation would have assets of about $230,000,000, and an annual business volume approximating $450,000,000. It is estimated the merger would effect a saving of ten to fifteen millions a year in operating expenses. The largest interest in Sears, Roebuck & Co. is held by Julius Rosenwald of Chicago and in Montgomery Ward & Co. by the J. P. Morgan-First National bank group of New York.

AS FURTHER information comes concerning the recent earthquakes in Armenia the disaster stands out as one of the worst of recent times. The death list increases steadily and may run into the thousands. The city of Leninakan and numerous smaller towns were ruined and probably 100,000 persons were rendered homeless. The Near East relief forces in the Caucasus under the direction of Dr. Joseph Beach are caring for many of the destitute, and the government of Russia has sent a large sum of money for relief purposes. None of the Americans there were killed or injured, and the thousands of orphans for whom they care also escaped unhurt.

PROSPECTS for international reduction of armaments in the near future are mighty poor, and it may be the proposed plenary conference for that purpose will not be held. In the preparatory conference at Geneva last week the delegations of nine of the seventeen nations represented made an official declaration that commercial fleets, trained reserves of armies, navies and air services, and war materials in reserve belong to "war potentials" and therefore are incapable of limitation or disarmament. The nine nations are France, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Poland, Czecho-slovakia, Yugo-Slavia, Rumania and Argentina. Opposed to them, but in a minority, are Great Britain, the United States, Spain, Germany, Chile, Finland, Sweden and Holland. Both views will be presented to the plenary preparatory committee which is expected to meet in February or March.

EFFORTS of Lawrence Dennis, American charge d'affaires in Nicaragua, to bring peace to that country seem of no avail. The conference of leaders which he called broke up when the Liberals walked out with the declaration that they would continue their revolutionary movement with the aid of Mexico. The United States naval men returned from Corinto to the warship Denver, having been assured that there would be no reprisals against the Liberals there. A permanent neutral zone was established at Bluefields and El Bluff to protect American business. Meanwhile there were several "battles" at as many places between the opposing factions. Mr. Dennis is said to have demanded that General Chamorro, de facto president, quit immediately and that congress be called to install a new president, probably Adolfo Diaz.

Revolutionists in Honduras released a lot of penitentiary convicts and with their aid seized the town of Seiba from government forces and burned the courthouse.

BELGIAN money went on a gold basis last week with the creation of a new monetary standard, the belga, which is equal to five paper francs. Supporting the Belgian stabilization program, the United States absorbed half of a $100,000,000 international loan, and, through the federal reserve banks, participated in a credit of $35,000,000.

SENATOR REED was not satisfied with the information concerning the klan and Indiana's senatorial campaign which he obtained in Chicago and Indianapolis, so in St. Louis he resumed the inquiry, seeking especially more facts concerning a conference of high klan officials in Washington last January which, it has been asserted, was attended by Senator Watson. It was at this meeting that Walter F. Bossert resigned as grand dragon of Indiana because, according to several witnesses, he would not support Watson.

D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon who is serving a life term for the murder of Madge Oberholtzer, has not yet made public the alleged proofs of political corruption and klan control in Indiana, but his appeal from his sentence has been filed and his attorney says there will shortly be developments in the case of a startling nature.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI is not having things all his own way in Italy, as has been generally supposed. The opposition to reform the senate which was a part of his plan for a "Fascist state" is so strong that it has been abandoned and the senate will be left unchanged. Instead labor and capital will have representation in the legislative branch through appointments to the chamber of deputies. Three hundred such deputies will be chosen, and the rest of the chamber will be elected by a plurality system. The voters will be given two lists of candidates, one from the Fascist party and one from the united opposition. Representatives of the Fascist corporations as they become experienced in government would become eligible to appointment to the senate.

QUEEN MARIE of Rumania, denying the repeated rumors that her royal husband had ordered her to return home, continued on her merry way through America. After reviewing the cadets at West Point and admiring Niagara Falls, she moved on into Canada and was enthusiastically received by Toronto, Montreal, Quebec and other cities. One discordant feature was the attitude of the Ukrainians who are numerous in the Dominion. In Toronto they presented a petition protesting against the treatment accorded Ukrainians in Rumania, and in Winnipeg they made formal objection to participation by the Manitoba government in the reception to the queen.

ONE long standing dispute between the executive and the legislative branches of the government was ended last week when the United States Supreme court in a majority opinion upheld the authority of the President to remove executive appointees without the consent of the senate. The court ruled that federal statutes cited to the contrary are void and denied to congress the constitutional right to restrict the President in the removal of officers from posts it created.

The opinion is the result of a suit brought by Frank S. Myers, former postmaster at Portland Ore., who was removed by President Wilson and who sought to recover back salary on the ground that his removal was illegal without the consent of the senate, which had ratified his appointment. Justices Holmes, Brandeis and McReynolds took radical exceptions to the opinion of their colleagues, and in a separate opinion Justice McReynolds declared that the majority views are "revolutionary."

GREAT BRITAIN announced new regulations restricting the export of rubber from Ceylon and Malaya for next year, to go into effect on November 1. By these regulations it appears probable that the coming quarter will see a reduction of the exportable allowance from the present 100 per cent to 80 per cent. The average price of rubber for the current quarter up to October 20 was 20.149 pence (about 40 cents) and the average must exceed 21 pence to justify continuance of the 100 per cent standard of exports.

It is recognized in the rubber market in London that the situation still is dominated largely by the United States and depends to some extent on the growth of the motor industry in America, and that, although in the current year production exceeded consumption by roughly, 40,000 tons, such surplus would be none too high if the American motor industry developed as expected.

Everett G. Holt, chief of the rubber division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce in Washington, says in his annual report that defensive measures in the United States against British rubber control have resulted in large savings to the American people.

AROUSED by repeated robberies of the mails, accompanied often by the killing or wounding of postal employees, the government has again put the mails under guard of the marines, who have orders to shoot to kill whenever they see any bandits. Furthermore the "devil dogs" have been armed with the new Thompson machine gun that already has been adopted by the gunmen of Chicago in their gang warfare. It is a formidable weapon, easily handled and capable of firing 400 aimed shots a minute.

REPRESENTATIVES of the United Spanish War Veterans of the Middle West met in Chicago and made plans for a unified legislative program to be presented to the state governments of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin and Missouri. The legislatures are to be asked for payment of a bonus to every living veteran of the Spanish war and the expeditions to the Philippines and China on the same terms as the bonus to veterans of the World war; the appointment of state commissions of war veterans to administer state institutions caring for war veterans, and the establishment of state military cemeteries. Tax exemption up to $2,500 for veterans will be asked.

American Money Sent to Stricken Armenia

Dispatch of funds for relief work in Leninakan, Armenia, where an earthquake worked havoc, with scores killed or buried alive and thousands injured, was started by the Near East relief.

A sum of $5,000 was cabled to the stricken area as the initial relief contribution, and a nation-wide appeal for aid was telegraphed to all state committees of the Near East relief. The amount to be raised will be decided when relief workers in the field advise their headquarters of the extent of the needs for immediate relief and rehabilitation.

Officials of the Near East relief said that the need of its assistance came at an unfortunate time, as the organization's financial report on October 1 showed a deficit of $137,000. E. C. Miller, acting treasurer, said this was "due largely to delays of more than a year in collecting claims of $300,000 due from American fire insurance companies as a result of losses sustained in the burning of the Greek warehouses of the relief organization in Piraeus 15 months ago."

Leninakan, center of the disastrous earthquake, is located at the foot of Mount Ararat and is the metropolis of Russian Armenia. For several years it has been the chief center of Near East relief work in Armenia and is the site of the largest orphanage in the world, caring for 15,000 orphans and maintained by the Near East relief.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

IF MOTHERS ONLY KNEW

During these days how many children are complaining of Headache, Feverishness, Stomach Troubles and Irregular Bowels and take cold easily. If mothers only knew what Mother Gray's Sweet Powders would do for their children no family would ever be without them for use when needed. These powders are so easy and pleasant to take and so effective in their action that mothers who once use them always tell others about them. Used by mothers for over 30 years. Sold by druggists everywhere. Trial Package sent FREE. Address Mother Gray Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

DON'T BE GRAY!
Darken your gray hair, gradually, surely and safely in privacy of your home. Used over 50 years by millions. Money-back guarantee BOOKLET FREE.
Q-ban Hair Color Restorer
At your Druggist 75¢
HESSIG-ELLIS, CHEMISTS, Dept. W, MEMPHIS, TENN.

BURNS and SCALDS
Stop the throbbing and smarting at once with a soothing touch of Resinol

Too frequently when a man reaches the turn in the lane he finds that it turns in the wrong direction.

DEMAND "BAYER" ASPIRIN

Aspirin Marked With "Bayer Cross" Has Been Proved Safe by Millions.

Warning! Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for 26 years. Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin Imitations may prove dangerous.—Adv

To manage men one ought to have a sharp mind in a velvet sheath.—George Eliot.

Build Up Your Health With
DR. PIERCE'S
GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY
If You Would Avoid
COUGHS, COLDS, GRIPPE.
A Tonic which Dr. Pierce prescribed when in active practice 60 years ago.
In Liquid or Tablets, at your Dealers.
Send 10c. to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial pkg. Tablets.

Today's Big Offer to All Who Have Stomach Agony

Read About This Generous Money Back Guarantee

When you have any trouble with your stomach such as gas, heaviness and distention, why fool with things which at best can only give relief.

Why not get a medicine that will build up your upset, disordered stomach and make it so strong and vigorous that it will do its work without any help.

Such a medicine is Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a delightful elixir that is sold by your local dealer and druggists everywhere with the distinct understanding that if it doesn't greatly help you your money will be gladly returned.

It has helped thousands—it will no doubt help you.

ASTHMA
DR. J.D. KELLOGG'S ASTHMA REMEDY
for the prompt relief of Asthma and Hay Fever. Ask your druggist for it. 25 cents and one dollar. Write for FREE SAMPLE.
Northrop & Lyman Co., Inc., Buffalo, N.Y.
Dr. J. D. KELLOGG'S REMEDY

Garden Clean-Up to Kill Insects

Saves Much Time and Money Next Year in Spraying and Dusting.

A few hours spent in giving the garden a fall clean-up will save much time and expense next year in spraying and dusting to control insect pests according to gardeners and entomologists at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. A general clean-up of the garden in the fall, preferably late fall, will do a great deal to reduce the available hibernating quarters of many of the most troublesome and destructive insects. The benefits from this practice will be multiplied, if anyone will co-operate and thus make the clean-up general.

Forget Insect Troubles.

After the season's crop has been harvested, the average gardener forgets his insect troubles for a while. However, at this time of the year certain steps may be taken which will greatly reduce the possibility of serious insect injury the coming vegetable season. This consists of taking active steps in the fall to clean up the garden. Many crops have a large amount of foliage which is left in the field or garden after the edible part of the crop has been harvested. Such trash and rubbish affords hibernating quarters for many of our most troublesome and destructive insects. Piles of cucumber, melon and squash vines left in the field offer excellent shelter for the striped cucumber beetle and squash bug during the winter. The potato stalk borer, which has been very destructive to eggplants in some sections, winters over in the stalk of the eggplant, potato and tomato. Cabbage stumps and leaves left in the field offer protection for the various species of cabbage worms.

Serious Cabbage Pest.

"In areas where the harlequin cabbage bug is a serious pest, the practice of cleaning up the fields in the fall will greatly reduce the possibility of injury the following season. Where possible, the cabbage stumps should be pulled and destroyed. The tarnished plant bug, which feeds on a large variety of vegetables, hibernates in all sorts of rubbish about the field. Boards scattered loosely about the field offer shelter for many insects. They should be collected, the old, useless boards destroyed, and the good pieces piled compactly. Where onion sets are grown, it has been found advisable to clean up the field after the sets have been harvested and screened. The piles of onion refuse that accumulate where onions have been milled and screened should be burned, as they contain large numbers of the puparia, or resting stage of the onion maggot. Immediately after the onions have been milled and screened, the resulting refuse will burn quite readily.

"It is important to go one step farther than cleaning up the garden proper. Clean up the weeds and grasses along fence rows and field margins. All weeds and grasses should be cut and destroyed, and where possible the ground should be plowed."

Control Stomach Worms by Change of Pasture

Sheep heavily infested with stomach worms cannot be thrifty and profitable. At the Ohio experiment station it is recommended that control be obtained by frequent change of pasture and by dosing.

Dosing may consist of either copper sulphate or nicotine sulphate (Black Leaf 40). Never use both treatments at the same time. The copper sulphate solution is made by dissolving two ounces of dark blue copper sulphate crystals in one gallon of water. The nicotine sulphate is prepared by adding two teaspoonfuls to one quart of water.

Keep the sheep off feed for 18 hours before and six hours after treatment. If possible, turn them on pasture not grazed by sheep for two months previous. Give sheep weighing 50 to 60 pounds one ounce of either solution, but never both. Sheep weighing 60 to 80 pounds need one and one-half ounces, and all sheep over 100 pounds, three ounces. Dose with an oil can or syringe.

Tight Floor Simplifies Sanitation of Henhouse

A tight concrete or board floor is a big aid in maintaining a sanitary henhouse, poultrymen of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, point out. A dirt floor cannot be cleaned satisfactorily, and furthermore in case of a disease infection or worm infestation, there is little chance to get rid of the trouble. Concrete is permanent, rat proof, easy to clean and dry, if properly put in. The house should be located so that natural drainage is possible. In addition, at least six inches of some porous material such as cinders or gravel should be used as a sub-base.

FARM NOTES

Alfalfa is the best hog pasture.

• • •

Land unprofitable for farming will grow profitable tree crops.

• • •

Liming lifts crop yields, and with them, the farm mortgage.

• • •

Lime is an important factor in building a prosperous agriculture.

• • •

Smut and rye and Hessian fly, will be enemies of wheat until they die.

• • •

After clover is grown for two years, crop yields on average lands are practically doubled.

• • •

Lime increases the yield of corn and many other crops 20 per cent, experiment station records show.

• • •

"Homes for Birds," farmers' bulletin 1456, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

In Dry U. S. A.

WRIGLEYS

still quenches thirst, cools the parched throat and by its delightful flavor and refreshment restores the joy of life.

Nothing else can give you so much enjoyment for so little.

G143

Remember Wrigley's
After Every Meal

VIRGINIA, COUNTRY PLACE, 153 ACRES, Washington 10 miles, concrete roads. Progressive neighborhood, excellent buildings, ideal dairy or fancy stock farm. ELMWOOD FARM, Route 2, Fairfax, Va.

Real Estate and Business Traders

We exchange property anywhere. Trade what you don't want for what you DO want. We have houses, lots, farms, hotels, stores, business, apartment houses. This month's bargains: Hotel at Swartz Creek, $9,000, $3,000 down; 148 acre farm Goodrich, $2,000 down; Rooming House, 20 rooms, 3526 Woodward, Detroit; Hotel, 100 rooms; Grocery and meat market and building, $10,000 clear, will trade above.

GEORGE GEIS
3526 Woodward Ave. - - Detroit, Mich.
907 Lafayette Bldg., Phone Glendale 6142-W.
List with us exclusively.

FARM LAND

Surrounding an Agricultural High School has been divided into five acre tracts and is capable of producing several hundred dollars per acre. If we had enough liquid capital we would not sell it. Under the circumstances we will take 20% cash and the balance may be paid by the month. When less than one-half is paid we will give a deed free and clear. We will cultivate the land, for the purchaser, for three years and take the balance from one-third of the net profits. The balance of the net profits will be divided between us and the purchaser. Write for our special contract and information.

Allentown Gardens Company
982 Hofmann Building Detroit, Michigan.

$4,000 IN PRIZES
1,055 PRIZES IN ALL

Enter the great Liquid Veneer Contest. All you have to do is write us in less than 150 words what you consider the outstanding characteristic of Liquid Veneer, or tell us of an unusual use for Liquid Veneer.

You may win the first prize of $500 or one of the 1,054 other prizes. Three prominent business men will act as judges. Contest closes December 31st, 1926. But don't delay. Get necessary Entry Blank and full particulars from your dealer. If he can't supply you write us. Don't miss this big opportunity.

Liquid Veneer is sold by hardware, furniture, drug, paint, grocery and general stores.

BUFFALO SPECIALTY COMPANY
17 Liquid Veneer Bldg.
Buffalo, N. Y.

LIQUID VENEER

PATENTS Booklet free. Highest references. Best results. Promptness assured. WATSON E. COLEMAN, Patent Lawyer, 724 9th St., Washington, D. C.

Canada Grows Tobacco

Tobacco is being grown for market in a valley in British Columbia which corresponds in latitude to the northern part of Nwfoundland, says the Dearborn Independent.

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

Sure Relief

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief
BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION
25¢ and 75¢ Pkg's. Sold Everywhere

TRADE PORTER'S PAIN KING MARK
Since 1871
Porter's Pain King
A Liniment
Soothes Pain from Strains, Sprains, Swollen Joints, Tired Muscles, Lame Back.
Use It Today!
The Geo. H. Rundle Co. Piqua, Ohio

Marjorie—"What do you think John said, daddy, when I told him that when we were married I wanted a city residence, a country place, three autos and a lot of servants?"

Daddy—"Well, what did the paragon say?"

Marjorie—"He said that if I would sleep more on my right side, I wouldn't have such dreams."

Bad dreams are a good sign of poor digestion; when hard-worked stomach begins to complain, the whole system suffers and we have constipation, dyspepsia, offensive breath and similar disorders.

GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER

has been relied on by many such sufferers for the past sixty years, and has contributed to the health and well-being of thousands of users. 30c and 90c bottles. At all druggists. If you cannot get it, write to G. G. Green, Inc., Woodbury, N. J.

FORD DAM SEEN AS LAND VALUE SPUR

Construction of the foundation for the power dam at Ypsilanti is seen in Detroit business circles as the forerunner of rapidly soaring prices of property in the neighborhood of the dam and textile mill site with the opening of Spring. The footings for the dame are due to be completed before cold weather, and with the breaking of cold weather in the Spring, great activity has been promised by the Ford Co. contractors, Stone & Webster.

The original announcement of Henry Ford was that the textile mills would begin operation with 3,000 employees, but this figure is now believed too small, in view of the fact that plans for the textile mills are said to call for enough spindles to employ twice this number, while the power to be developed would operate an industrial center of twice the announced size of the textile mills' first units.

The Ford power dam and mill site are about a mile from the Ypsilanti city limits and the dam would back up the water through the lower end of the city, nearly to Michigan avenue, in the form of a magnificent lake, the edges of which are already being beautified. The natural basin which will contain the lake is strategically located as a recreation spot, owing to the scenic beauty, the wide expanse for boating and the abundance of good fishing. The lake is five miles long and averages about one mile in width.

Many of the property holders within walking distance of the tevtile mills site predict that their land lies in the logical center of a great city and predict that where the Glover Watson properties are located, on both sides of the railroad and across the road from Ford's property, will be the mecca of business and industry to care for a new city embracing the present old city of Ypsilanti and the new development.

Other industries also have their eyes on Ypsilanti, with early prospects of the establishment of an airplane factory. Already the city has provided a large tract adjacent to the lake, for use a san air field with a land grant bonus to the first airplane factory to locate there.

Realizing that the coming of Ford meant a future great city, the town of Ypsilanti made to the automobile magnate a number of inducements, which were reciprocated by Ford in signing a contract. This paper provided that noe of the great volume of power generated by the power dam should be used outside a radius of three and a half miles of Ypsilanti, thus asfsuring for Ypsilanti, the continuance of Ford's activities, and construction at an early date of the great textile mills.

The Ford textile mills will be the only mills of the kind in the Middle West, the textile industry now being centered largely in the New England states.

With the home market for wool within easy shipping distance, and with low carrier charges, the farmers of Michigan see a new era in the raising of sheep. The requirements last year for textile used by the Ford Motor Co. took the clip of 2,500,000 sheep, a greater number than now is in the state.

A silent rifle has been invented in Germany. Using compressed air as power, the new gun drives a projectile through three millimeters of steel at a distance of 2,000 meters, and the report is scarcely heard by observers. The new rifle has the additional advantage of carrying 25 shots without reloading and can be fired automatically.

Lee Shaw, of Los Angeles, Calif., is reputed to be the champion kite builder of the world, has constructed one which is 88 feet long and shaped like a dragon. It is made of sections which fold together so that it can be carried under the arm.

We Buy and Sell
Listed and Unlisted
STOCKS and BONDS
H. A. BENJAMIN & CO.
Members Detroit Stock Exchange
905 Dime Bank Bldg.
Cadillac 1460 Detroit, Mich.

WE TEACH
STEAM ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL POWER
And
HOUSE WIRING
DETROIT
PRACTICAL SCHOOL
23 East Jefferson, Detroit
W. B. MacDonald, M.E.I.C., M.I.E.S.
Gus Lender, M.A.I.E.E.; U.C.C. of E., N.A.S.E.

Manistee Takes Over Land for Airplane Field

Transfer to the city of Manistee of a 45-acre tract 14 blocks from the heart of the downtown district, for a flying field and airport has just been completed.

Believing that in a quarter of a century or so the city without an airport will be like the city without a railway depot today, the commissioners recently took advantage of the opportunity to purchase the tract for $1,500 from the estate of T. J. Randell, banker and lumberman of Manistee's heyday. The price was merely that of a fair lot and was a special offer to the city provided it were to be uesd for that civic purpose.

The land, besides being only 14 blocks from the heart of the downtown district, is just a block off the city's main street going north and south. It lies about half way between Lake Michigan and Manistee lake.

PLOVERS ARE NEAR EXTINCTION POINT

Two old favorites have been lost to the shore bird gunner in the black bellied and golden plovers.

Reports from all over the United States of a diminishing supply of these birds have caused the government to close the season on them. Today the shore bird gunner may only shoot the jack snipe and the greater and lesser yellowlegs — every other member of the big and varied family of waders is denied to him.

Years ago the black bellied and golden plovers were common in Michigan. The former were even abundant in certain localities and it was nothing unusual to see dozens of the first named bird thronging a mud bar, their mouse gray fall plumage enlivening the drab background of sky and water. The golden plover, who migrates over an ocean route, was less plentiful, but thousands of them, nevertheless, were shot every year.

Plump breasted, well flavored, plovers were always sought out when they could be obtained and their gentle, confiding natures made them easy victims. They allowed the pot hunter to walk within easy range and in their flight over masfiesfi they rarely swerved aside when their course took them directly over a gunner. The average man always took a shot at these swift flying, pigeon-like birds when they swung past, for their size made them attractive—they seemed nearly as big as teal. Because of their failings, the black bellied and golden plovers are but birds of memory—very, very few of them are seen today.

Even Saginaw Bay, with its acres of flats and marshes, no longer hears the cheery whistle of migrating plovers. The last flight occurred in 1921, according to Robert Lambert, conservation officer, who has spend many years upon the bay. About 500 golden plovers constituted the flight. Their fate gives eloquent testimony of why the government has found it necessary to close the season on them.

Girl in Speed Boat Held On Rum Runner Charge

An 18-year-old bride of three weeks, driving a speedboat powered with an airplane motor, was arrested near Detroit by state police, who said she was attempting to smuggle whisky across Detroit river.

It was the first time in the history of the prohibitio nborder patrol that a woman has been arrested for rum running.

The girl, Mrs. Mary Howe of Ecorse, has been bringing whisky across the rover for some time, Lieutenant Alonzo Gillette of the state police said. The girl was arrested as her speedboat slipped in at the foot of Mills street, Ecorse.

Mecosta Farms Fare Better Than Year Ago

Despite the unfavorable weather early in the growing season, farmers in Mecosta county this year are better off than they were last year, according to County Agent Twing.

Potato growers will have a 75 per cent crop, for which they are expected to get a good price. The hay crop this year wa smuch better, according to Mr. Twing. This crop meant a saving to farmers in the county this year of $100,000, he declares.

An indicator, attached to a burglar alarm, that shows the burglar's progress as he moves from room to room, has been designed in England. When it is desired to gain knowledge of the burglar's movements, a single light can be made to flash in a different part of the building or house, while an indicator shows where the intruder is. In a structure, contacts can be placed on doors, windows, the furniture, or curtains.

The Great Valdez Sapphire

I know more about it than anyone else in the world, its present owner not excepted. I can give its whole history, from the Cingalese who found it, the Spanish adventurer who stole it, the cardinal who bought it, the Pope who graciously accepted it, the favored son of the Church who received it, the gay and giddy duchess who pawned it, down to the eminent prelate who now holds it in trust as a family heirloom.

It will occupy a chapter to itself in my forthcoming work on "Historic Stones," where full details of its weight, size, color, and value may be found. At present I am going to relate an incident in its history which, for obvious reasons, will not be published—which, in fact, I trust the reader will consider related in strict confidence.

I had never seen the stone itself when I began to write about it, and it was not till one evening last spring, while staying with my nephew, Sir Thomas Acton, that I came within measurable distance of it. A dinner party was impending, and, at my instigation, the Bishop of Northchurch and Miss Panton, his daughter and heiress, were among the invited guests.

The dinner was a particularly good one, I remember that distinctly. In fact, I felt myself partly responsible for it, having engaged the new cook—a talented young Italian, pupil of the admirable old chef at my club. We had gone over the menu carefully together, with a result refreshing in its novelty, but not so daring as to disturb the minds of the innocent country guests who were bidden thereto.

The first spoonful of soup was reassuring, and I looked to the end of the table to exchange a congratulatory glance with Leta. What was amiss? No response. Her pretty face was flushed, her smile constrained, she was talking with quite unnecessary empressement to her neighbor, Sir Harry Landor, though Leta is one of those few women who understand the importance of letting a man settle down transquilly and with an undisturbed mind to the business of dining, allowing no topic of serious interest to come on before the releves, and reserving mere conversational brilliancy for the entremets.

Guests all right No disappointments? I had gone through the list with her, selecting just the right people to be asked to meet the Landors, our new neighbors. Not a mere cumbrous county gathering, nor yet a showy imported party from town, but a skillful blending of both. Had anything happened already? I had been late for dinner and missed the arrival in the drawing-room. It was Leta's fault. She has got into a way of coming into my room and putting the last touches to my toilet. I let her, for I am doubtful of myself nowadays after many years' dependence on the best of valets. Her taste is generally beyond dispute, but to-day she had indulged in a feminine vagary that provoked me and made me late for dinner.

"Are you going to wear your sapphire, Uncle Paul!" she cried in a tone of dismay. "Oh, why not the ruby?"

"You would have your way about the table decorations," I gently reminded her. "With that service of Crown Derby repousse and orchids, the ruby would look absolutely barbaric. Now if you would have had the Limoges set, white candles, and a yellow silk center——"

"Oh, but—I'm so disappointed — I wanted the bishop to see your ruby—or one of your engraved gems——"

"My dear, it is on the bishop's account I put this on. You know his daughter is heiress to the great Valdez sapphire——"

"Of course she is, and when he has the charge of a stone three times as big as yours, what's the use of wearing it? The ruby, dear Uncle Paul, please!"

She was desperately in earnest I see, and considering the obligations which I am supposed to be under to her and Tom, it was but a little matter to yield, but it involved a good deal of extra trouble. Studs, sleeve-links, watch-guard, all carefully selected to go with the sapphire, had to be changed, the emerald which I chose as a compromise requiring more florid accompaniments of a deeper tone of gold; and the dinner hour struck as I replaced my jewel case, the one relic left me of a once handsome fortune, in my fireproof safe.

The emerald looked very well that evening, however. I kept my eyes upon it for comfort when Miss Panton proved trying.

She was a lean, yellow, dictatorial young person with no conversation. I spoke of her father's celebrated sapphires. "My sapphires," she amended sourly; "though I am legally debarred from making any profitable use of them." She furthermore informed me that shev iewed them as useless gauds, which ought to be disposed of for the benefit of the heathen. I gave the subject up, and while she discoursed of the work of the Blue Ribbon Army among the Bosjesmans I tried to understand a certain dislocation in the arrangement of the table. Surely we were more or less in number than we should be? Opposite side all right. Who was extra on ours? I leaned forward. Lady Landor on one side of Tom, on the other who? I caught glimpses of plumes pink and green nodding over a dinner plate, and beneath them a pink nose in a green visage with a nutcracker chin altogether unknown to me. A sharp gray eye shot a sideway glance down the table and caught me peeping, and I retreated, having only marked in addition two clawlike hands, with pointed ruffles and a mass of brilliant rings, making good play with a knife and fork. Who was she? At intervals a high acid voice could be heard addressing Tom, and a laugh that made me shudder; it had the quality of the scream of a bird of prey or the yell of a jackal. I had heard that sort of laugh before, and it always made me feel like a defenseless rabbit.

Every time it sounded I saw Leta's fan flutter more furiously and her manner grow more nervously animated. Poor dear girl! I never in all my recollection wished a dinner at an end so earnestly so as to assure her of my support and sympathy, though without the faintest conception why either should be required.

The ices at last. A menu card folded in two was laid beside me| I read it unobserved. "Keep the B. from joining us in the drawing-room." Hhe B.? The bishop, of course. With pleasure. But why? And how? That's the question, never mind "why." Could I lure him into the library—the billiard room—t he conservatory? I doubted it, and I doubted still more what I should do with him when I got him there.

The bishop is a grand and stately ecclesiastic of the mediaeval type, broad-chested, deep-voiced, martial of bearing. I could picture him charging mace in hand at the head of his vassals, or delivering over a dissenter of the period to the rack and thumbscrew, but not pottering among rare editions, tall copies and Grolier bindings, or condescending to a quiet cigar among the tree ferns and orchids. Leta must and should be objeyed, I swore, nevertheless, even if I were driven to lock the door in the fearless old fashion of a bygone day, and declare I'd shoot any man who left while a drop remained in the bottles.

The ladies were rising. The lady at the head of the line smirked and nodded her pink plumes coquettishly at Tom, while her hawk's eyes roved keen and predatory over us all. She stopped suddenly, creating a block and conufsion.

"Ah, the dear bishop! You there, and I never saw you! You must come and have a nice long chat presently. By-by—!" She shook her fan at him over my shoulder and tripped off. Leta, passing me last, gave me a look of profound despair.

"Lady Carwitchet!" somebody exclaimed. "I couldn't believe my eyes."

"Thought she was dead or in penal servitude. Never should have expected to see her here," said some one else behind me confidentially.

"What Carwitchet? Not the mother of the Carwitchet who——"

"Just so. The Carwitchet who—" Tom assented with a shrug. "We needn't go farther, as she's my guest. Just my luck. I met them at Buxton, though them uncommonly good company—in fact, Carwitchet laid me under a great obligation about a horse I was nearly let in for buying—and gave them a general invitation here, as one does, you know. Never expected her to turn up with her luggage this afternoon just before dinner, to stay a week, or a fortnight if Carwitchet can join her." A groan of sympathy ran round the table. "It can't be helped. I've told you this just to show that I shouldn't have asked you here to meet this sort of people of my own free will; but, as it is, please say no more about them." The subject was not dropped by any means, and I took care that it should not be. At our end of the table one story after another went buzzing around—sotto voce, out of deference to Tom—but perfectly audible.

"Carwitchet? Ah, yes. Mixed up in that Rawlings divorce case, wasn't he? A bad lot. Turned out of the Dragoon Guards for cheating at cards, or picking pockets, or something—remember the row at the Cerulean Club? Scandalous exposure—and that forged letter business—oh, that was the mother—prosecution hushed up somehow. Ought to be serving her fourteen years—and that business of poor Farrars, the banker—got hold of some of his secrets and blackmailed him till he blew his brains out——"

It was so exciting that I clean forgot the bishop, till a low gascp at my elbow startled me. He was lying back in his chair, his mighty shaven jowl a ghastly white, his fierce imperious eyebrows dropping limp over his fishlike eyes, his splendid figure shrunk and contracted. He was trying with a shaken hand to pour out wine. The decanter clattered against the glass and the wine spilled on the cloth.

"I'm afraid you find the room too warm. Shall we go into the library?"

He rose hastily and followed me like a lamb.

He recovered himself once we got into the hall, and aably rejected all my proffers of brandy and soda—medical advice—everything else my limited experience could suggest. He only demanded his carriage "directly" and that Miss Panton should be summoned forthwith.

I made the best use I could of the time left me.

"I'm uncommonly sorry you do not feel equal to staying a little longer, my lord. I counted on showing you my few trifles of precious stones, the salvage from the wreck of my possessions. Nothing in comparison with your own collection."

The bishop clasped his hand over his heart. His breath came short and quick.

"A return of that dizziness," he explained with a faint smile. "You are thinking of the Valdez sapphire, are you not? Some day," he went on with forced composure, "I may have the pleasure of showing it to you. It is at my banker's just now."

Miss Panton's steps were heard in the hall. "You are well known as a connoisseur, Mr. Acton," he went on hurriedly. "Is your collection valuable? If so, keep it safe; don't trust a ring off your hand, or the key of your jewel case out of your pocket till the house is clear again." The words rushed from his lips in an impetuous whisper, he gave me a meaning glance and departed with his daughter. I went back to the drawing room, my head swimming with bewilderment.

"What! The dear bishop gone!" screamed Lady Carwitchet from the central ottoman where she sat, surrounded by most of the gentlemen, all apparently well entertained by her conversation. "And I wanted to talk over old times with him so badly. His poor wife was my greatest friend. Mira Montanaro, daughter of the great banker, you know. It's not possible that that miserable little prig is my poor Mira's girl. The heiress of all the Montanaros in a black lace gown worth twopence! When I think of her mother's beauty and her toilets! Does she ever wear the sapphires? Has anyone ever seen her in them? Eleven large stones in a lovely antique setting, and the great Valdez sapphire—worth thousands and thousands—for the pendant." No one replied. "I wanted to get a rise out of the bishop tonight. It used to make him so mad when I wore this."

She fumbled among the laces at her throat, and clawed out a pendant that hung to a velvet band around her neck. I fairly gasped when she removed her hand. A sapphire of irregular shape flashed out its blue lightning on us. Suc ha stone! A true, rich, cornflower blue even by that wretched artificial light, with soft velvety depths of color and dazzling clearness of tint in its lights and shades—a stone to remember! I stretched out my hand involuntarily, but Lady Carwitchet drew back with a coquettish squeal. "No! No! You musn't look any closer. Tell me what you think of it now. Isn't it pretty?"

"Superb!" was all I could ejaculate, staring at the azure splendor of that miraculous jewel in a sort of trance.

She gave a shrill cackling laugh of mockery.

"The great Mr. Acton taken in by a bit of Palais Royal gimcrackery! What an advertisement for Bogaerts et Cie! They are perfect artists in frauds. Don't you remember their stand at the first Paris Exhibition? They had imitations there of every celebrated stone; but I never expected anything made by man could delude Mr. Acton, never!" And she went off into another mocking cackle, and all the idiots round her haw-hawed knowingly, as if they had seen the joke all along. I was too bewildered to reply, which was on the whole lucky. "I suppose I mustn't tell why I came to give quite a big sum in francs for this?" she went on, tapping her closed lips with her closed fan, and cocking her eye at us all like a parrot wanting to be coaxed to talk. "It's a queer story."

I didn't want to hear her anecdote, especially as I saw she wanted to etll it. What I did want was to see that pendant again. She had thrus tit back among her laces, only the loop which held it to the velvet being visible. It was set with three small sapphires, and even from a distance I clearly made them out to be imitations, and poor ones. I felt a queer thrill of self-mistrust. Was the large stone no better? Could I, even for an instant, have been dazzled by a sham, and a sham of that quality? The events of the evening had flurried me. I wished to think them over in quiet. I would go to bed.

My rooms at the Manor are the best in the house. Leta will have it so. I must explain their position for a reason to be understood later. My bedroom is in the southeast angle of the house; it opens on one side into a sitting room in the east corridor, the rest of which is taken up by the suite of rooms occupied by Tom and Leta; and on the other side into my bathroom, the first room in the south corridor, where the principal guest chambers are, to one of which it was originally the dressing room. Passing this room I noticed a couple of housemaids preparing it for the night, and discovered with a shiver that Lady Carwitchet was to be my next door neighbor. It gave me a turn.

Th ebishop's strang ewarning must have unnerved me. I was perfectly safe from her ladyship. The disused door into her room was locked, and the key safe on the housekeeper's bunch. It was also undiscoverable on her side, the recess in which it stood being completely filled by a large wardrobe. On my side hung a thick soundproof portiere. Nevertheless, I resolved not to use that room while she inhabited the next one. I removed my possessions, fastened the door of communication with my bedroom, and dragged a heavy ottoman across it.

Then I stowed away my emerald in my strong-box. It is built into the wall of my sitting room, and masked by the lower part of an old carved oak bureau. I put away even the rings I wore habitually, keeping out only an inferio rcat's-eye for workaday wear. I had just made all safe when Leta tapped at the door and came in to wis hme good night. She looked flushed and harassed and ready to cry.

"Uncle Paul," she began, "I want you to go up to town at once, and stay away till I send for you."

"My dear—!" I was too amazed to expostulate.

"We've got a—a pestilence among us," she declared, her foot tapping angrily, "and the least we can do is to go into quarantine. Oh ,I'm so sorry and so ashamed! The poor bishop! I'll take good care that no one else shall meet that woman here. You did your best for me, Uncle Paul, and managed admirably, but it was all no use. I hoped against hope that what between the dusk of the drawing room before dinner, and being put at opposite ends of the table, we might get through without a meeting—"

"But, my dear, explain. Why shouldn't the bishop and Lady Carwitchet meet? Why is it worse for him than anyone else?"

"Why? I thought everybody had heard of that dreadful wife of his who nearly broke his heart. If he married her for her money it served him right, but Lady Landor says she was very handsome and really in love with him at first. Then Lady Carwitchet got hold of her and led her into all sorts of mischief. She left her husband—he was only a rector with a country living in those days—and went to live in town, got into a horrid fast set, and made herself notorious. You must have heard of her."

"I heard of her sapphires, my dear. But I was in Brazil at the time."

"I wish you had been at home. You might have found her out. She was furious because her husband refused to let her wear the great Valdez sapphire. It had been in the Montanaro family for some generations, and her father settled it first on her and then on her little girl—the bishop being trustee. He felt obliged to take away the little girl, and send her off to be brought up by some old aunts in the country, and he locked up the sapphire. Lady Carwitchet tells as a splendid joke how they got the copy made in Paris, and it did just as well for the people to stare at. No wonder the bishop hates the very name of the stone."

"How long will she stay here?" I asked dismally.

"Till Lord Carwitchet can come and escort her to Paris to visit some American friends. Goodness knows when that will be! Do go up to town, Uncle Paul!"

I refused indignantly. The very least I could do was stand by my poor young relatives in their troubles and help them through. I did so. I wore that inferior cat's eye for six weeks!

It is a time I cannot think of even now without a shudder. The more I saw of that terrible old woman the more I detested her. and we saw a great deal of her. Leta kept her word, and neither accepted nor gave invitations all that time. We were cut off from all society but that of old General Fairford, who would go anywhere and meet anyone to get a rubber after dinner; the doctor, a sporting widower; and the Duberlys, a giddy, rather rackety young couple who had taken the Dower House for a year. Lady Carwitchet seemed perfectly content. She reveled in the soft living and good fare of the Manor House, the drives in Leta's big barouche, and Domenico's dinners, as one to whom short commons were unknown. She had a hungry way of grabbing and grasping everything she could—the shillings she won at whist, the best fruit at dessert, the postage stamps in the library inkstand—that was infinitely suggestive. Sometimes I could have pitied her, she was so greedy, so spiteful, so friendless. She always made me think of some wicked old pirate putting into a peaceful port to provision and repair his battered old hulk, obliged to live on friendly terms with the natives, but his piratical old nostrils asniff for plunder and his piratical old soul longing to be off marauding once more. When would that be? Not till the arrival in Paris of her distinguished American friends, of whom we heard a great dea. "Charming people, the Bokums of Chicago, the American branch of the English Beauchamps, you know!" They seemed to be taking an unconscionable time to get there. She would have insisted on being driven over to Northchurch to call at the palace, but that the bishop was understood to be holding confirmations at the other end of the diocese.

I was alone in the house one afternoon sitting by my window, toying with the key of my safe, and wondering whether I dare treat myself to a peep at my treasures, when a suspicious movement in the park below caught my attention. A black figure certainly dodged from behind one tree to the next, and then into the shadow of the park paling instead of keeping to the footpath. It looked queer. I caught up my field glass and marked him at one point where he was bound to come into the open for a few steps. He crossed the strip of surf with giant strides and got into cover again, but not quick enough to prevent me recognizing him. It was—great heavens!—the bishop! In a soft hat pulled over his forehead, with a long cloak and a big stick, he looked like a poacher.

Guided by some mysterious instinct I hurried to meet him. I opened the conservatory door, and in he rushed like a hunted rabbit. Without explanation I led him up the wide staircase to my room, where he dropped into a chair and wiped his face.

"You are astonished, Mr. Acton," he panted. "I will explain directly. Thanks." He tossed off the glass of brandy I had poured out without waiting for the qualifying soda, and looked better.

"I am in serious trouble. You can help me. I've had a shock today—a grievous shock." He stopped and tried to pull himself together. "I must trust you implicitly, Mr. Acton, I have no choice. Tell me what you think of this." He drew a case from his breast pocket and opened it. "I promised you should see the Valdez sapphire. Look there!!"

The Valdez sapphire! A great big shining lump of blue crystal—flawless and of perfect color—that was all. I took it up, breathed on it, drew out my magnifier, looked at it in one light and another. What was wrong with it? I could not say. Nine experts out of ten would undoubtedly have pronounced the stone genuine. I, by virtue of some mysterious instinct that has hitherto always guided me aright, was the unlucky tenth. I looked at the bishop. His eyes met mine. There was no need of spoken word between us.

"Has Lady Carwitchet shown you her sapphire?" was his most unexpected question. "She has? Now, Mr. Acton, on your honor as a connoisseur and a gentleman, which of the two is the Valdez?"

(To be continued.)

Electric Light, Horn, Replace Old Oil Signal Equipment

A new harbor warning light and electric fog signal are being installed on the north pier of the Manistee harbor channel.

The old engine house for the steam fog signal and equipment for operating the pier lamp are being removed and a steel tower for the new electric apparatus erected. Meanwhile, a steam whistle is serving as a fog signal. A 600-foot elevated walk will be built in from the light-house the length of the north pier to the shore for the use of the lightkeeper in rough weather.

With the new flashing electric light on the end of the north pier, the old flashing kerosene lamp at the home and headquarters of Lightkeeper Hall will be discontinued. The lamp was intended as a shore light, and since the coming of electricity in the city its usefulness has come to an end. The change is to be completed by December 1 of this year.

Eleven machines are used in the most completely equipped laundries to wash and iron a man's collar.

Don't Neglect
PILES
You can treat yourself privately and inexpensively at home. Thousands of sufferers from Bleeding, Itching, Blind and Protruding Piles say they have gained relief thru using our famous Pile Suppositories. This soothing, healing, pure, safe remedy has been on the market 54 years. Avoid needless expense and suffering. Coupon brings you a Generous Free Trial. Delay is dangerous.
FREE TRIAL
Summers Medical Co., Box 372.
South Bend, Ind.
Please send, without obligation to me, FREE TRIAL of your Bed-Wetting Remedy, together with useful information.
Name ....
St. or R. F. D. ....
City .... State........

WERTZ'

Cash Prices

Denatured Alcohol per gallon	48c	Auto Oil per gal	60c	Monarch Cocoa lb,	35c
Kellogg's Bran per package	10c	Raisins 2 pounds for	25c	Sweet Po tatoes Nine lbs.	25c
Ward's Cakes Each	22c	Monarch Jelly Powder pkg.	9c	Circus Peanut Candy, lb.	15c
Broken Taffy per pound	10c	Monarch Spaghetti per can	13c	Monarch Corn flake	14c
Monarch Corn Flake small	9c	25c [illegible] per yard	17c	Ladies' 15c Handk'fs each	12c
50c Jonteel Face Powder per box	25c			Pink Salmon per can	18c
Red Salmon per can	33c			Special for SATURDAY Ten Pounds Sugar	53c

C. S. Wertz Store

AT

SWAIN'S just a Little sale

to remind you that the SWAIN'S store is wide awake wtth fresh and bright colors iu

Ginghams Outings Prints Crepe, Special for Saturday

24c Ginghams per yard	20c	19c Ginghams per yard	15c
25c Plain Cotton Crepe per yard	20c	25c Dress Prints per yard	20c
24c Plain Ginghams per yara	22c	25c one yard wide Dark Outing	22c

40c and 45c Broadcloth in plain and colored 40c and 35c

Overcoats, Rubbers, Rubber Boots

SWAIN'S, North Adams

Time to Think of Heating stoves

We have the Famous

Florence Hot Blast

which will heat more room with LESS FUEL than any other stove made. [A broad statement but we can prove it]

Also have the Great Circulating Heater or "Parlor Furnace."

PAYNE & GREEN CO.

Everything in Hardware

OUR STOCK OF "Uneeda Bakers" PRODUCTS IS ALWAYS FRESH

WE carry a full line of COOKIES AND CRACKERS and the quality is the best

A. DIETZ

Two Snbscriptions to McCall's and one Advocate 1 yr. $2.75

CORRESPONDENCE

Jerome

S. L. Tower was in Jonesville on Friday.

Mrs. Julia Potter and son Ora of Pittsford were in town Sunday.

Mrs. Thomas Lane visited Mrs. John Weatherwax in Somerset Center Saturday.

Mrs. Lombard is assisting with the household duties at the N. A. Linsday home.

About 300 chickens were stolen Monday evening at the M. R. Morton home. No trace ot them has been found.

The body of Mrs. Lewis Wood who was buried in the local cemetery in 1899 was taken up and removed to the Aldrich cemetery Wednesday.

The proceeds of the school social Friday evening amounted to about $15. An interesting program was put on with the following taking part. Music both instrumental and vocal, Mrs. Maud Wilson, Bessie VanAllen, Jane Randolph and Mrs. Chas McGregor. A reading was given by May Anson. Clayton and Robert McGregor put on a negro act, Mrs. Fred Randolph gave a talk on the county nurse while those taking part in the tableau were Genevieve Tryon, Lawrence Walworth, Virginia Carpenter, Emorene Randolph, Arthur Hammons and Rex McGregor.

Jonesville

L. E. Swan and wife are in Detroit this week.

Miss Mildred Carr was in Kalamazoo last week.

Clarence House of Jackson was in town during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Graves spent last week at their old home in Wisconsin.

Robert and Max Lint of Battle Creek have been visiting relatives here this week.

The Investigator Club was entertained Tuesday Nov. 2 at the home of Mrs. May Smith.

Joseph Wyman of the M. S. C. Lansing is visiting his mother Mrs. Franc Wyman and other relatives here.

Fred Reed and wife, Murl Andreas, wife and son of Hastings spent Sunday at the John T. Reed home.

Mrs. John Yonkers and Miss Eva Kelley of Howe, Ind. were guests of their sister Mrs. M. N. Wood last week.

Mrs. D. J. Donahue and three children of Toledo spent the week-end with her parents Arthur L. Massey and wife.

Fred VanHorn and wife have returned to their home in Albion after several weeks at the Young home on Maumee street.

Mrs. Louise Gunn died Friday October 29 at the home of her daughter Mrs. V. E. Esterline on Reading Ave. Mrs. Gunn has been a resident of Jonesville for forty years. Surviving are three children, Mrs. Esterline of this place. G. H. Gunn of Camden, F. J. Gunn of Albion also twelve grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

West Hoxie

Mrs. Bloemker spent Monday at the Carl Selig home.

The Hoxie Ladies Aid have every thing ready for their bazaar.

Merritt Wattles of Detroit visited his mother over the week end.

Levi Ulrich and family of Hudson spent Sunday at the Bloemker home.

Quite a few from this vicinity attended the auction at Fred Rumsey's.

The Halloween social at the Jackson school was a success. $16 was realized.

Edward Bloemker spent the week end with his parents William Bloemker and wife.

Lola Willhelm of Huntington, Ind. is spending the week with William Bloemker and wife.

Edgar Purcell and wife spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Carrie Scovill who is quite poorly at this writing.

Center Adams

N. J. Lickley and wife of Shadyside were visitors at the Keith home over Sunday.

Harry Foust and family spent Sunday at the Ray Foust home in East Adams.

Mrs. Eliza Williams of North Adams is spending the week with Mrs. Linnie Post.

D. A. Fuller and wife of Battle Creek visited at the G. R. Ambler home on Sunday.

Miss Helen Foust who is a student at the Ypsilanti Normal was home over the week end.

Len Dietz and family of Jackson were callers at the C. O. Smith home Sunday afternoon.

Clarence Webster and family of Ransom and Mrs. Frank Hammond and daughter Ruth of Shadyside were Sunday visitors at the Nathan Webster home.

Mesdames Addie Wyman and Sadie Gray were in Lansing from Tuesday until Saturday attending State Grange.

J. E. Foster and wife left Monday for their home at Clinton Ind. after spending the past ten days with Eugene McBain and wife.

Mrs. Leslie Dye who has been at Ann Arbor for medical treatment and an operation came home Saturday very much improved in health

Eugene McBain and guests Messrs Adams and Tierney of Toledo Ohio and J. E. Foster of Clinton Indiana visited with Paul Eifert near Sand Lake on Sunday afternoon.

Earl Fellick and wife of Ionia spent part of the week with the latters mother Mrs. L. E. Chase and family. They are enroute to Florida where they expect to spend the winter.

Willard Wyman and wife of Jackson are visiting for sometime with R. H. Wyman and wife. The "Boys" who are both past 80 years old are passing the time cutting and sawing wood.

No Wonder

I love to hear the alarm clock ring. I can't understand the people who curse it as an interrupter of sweet repose. To me it seems the symbol of existence itself. It is the sign that the great city has awakened from its slumber, that a new day is beginning, that the streets, and buildings will soon be filled with surging, progressing life. Faithful servant! I love to hear the alarm clock ring.

Eggs in Shad Roe

The bureau of fisheries says that in the average shad roe there are from 30,000 to 40,000 eggs.

Death of Frederick N. Baker

Fred N. Baker who has been a resident of this village about seven years passed away at his home from pneumonia and hemorrhage after a short illness on Wednesday at about 7:00 a. m. Mr. Baker would have been 61 years of age if he had lived until November 25th and had enjoyed fairly good health up to a few weeks before his death. He is survived by his wife Mrs. Addie Baker, one daughter Rosene two sons, Glenn of Somerset and Gurn of near Milnes, one sister Mrs. Harriett Weeks of Detroit and several more distant relatives. His entire life has been passed in this county, having been born in Moscow township in 1865. He was a progressive citizen, a member of lodges and had held village offices.

Funeral services will be held at the home (Saturday) at 2:00 p. m. under the auspices of Adams Lodge No. 189 F. & A. M. and interment will be in the local cemetery.

Fowler District, Wheatland

Geraldine Cox, Teacher

Anna Hoyt plays the dismissal march.

The 8th grade are learning the poem, "Our Presidents."

Mildred Rowe, formerly of Cement City entered school October 4th.

The 8th grade Reading class are making "Secrets of Success," booklets.

The 1st and 2nd grade have made October Calendars for seat work.

Ilah Groom and Pearl Beveridge received pencils for perfect reading lessons this month.

Our slogan is "A clean tooth never decays." We are keeping a clean teeth chart this month.

The 6th grade Physiology class have completed health posters illustrating a well balanced menu.

Kenneth Woodby, John Iveson and Anna Hoyt stood 100 in spelling for the month of October.

Visitors during the last month were Mrs. Will Post and daughter Gladys, Eunice Monroe and Tina VanEtten.

Blackboard and window decorations for November consist of pumpkins, turkeys, apples and autumn leaves.

On Tuesday, October 12th, we gave a Columbus day program. After the program a marshmallow roast was enjoyed.

For morning exercises we have the following program; Monday, Biblical readings. Tuesday, Miscellaneous reading. Wednesday, Singing. Thursday, Memory gems. Friday, Games.

We received seven premiums at the Hillsdale County Fair. Part of the money was invested in pencils and tablets for each pupil. The 4th, 6th and 8th grades received spelling pads. The chart and 2nd grade received crayons.

Those having perfect attendance during the month of October are as follows: Anna Hoyt, Wayne Remischisel, Theron Post, John Iveson Harlie VanEtten, Glen Pifer, Pearl Beveridge, Ilah Groom, Charles Doolittle, Richard Iveson.

The school has a toy store named Tom Thumb's Grocery carrying a complete line of the following: Kellogs corn flakes, All Bran, Bran Krumbles, Uneeda Biscuit, Graham crackers, fig newtons, Carnation milk, Calument Baking powder Oysterettes, Marshmallows and Crackerjack.

Hotels MADISON and LENOX DETROIT

The twin hotels—where comfort is paramount, and where prices are reasonable always. Close to everything worth while in Detroit

MADISON AVE., near GRAND CIRCUS PARK

Mrs. Minnie Vreeland and two sons of Lansing were guests of Will VanAken and family on Sunday.

Leland Foster and Louise Carlyle of Lansing were Sunday visitors at the home of Will Corey in this village on Sunday last.

Farm Youth To Be Honored At International

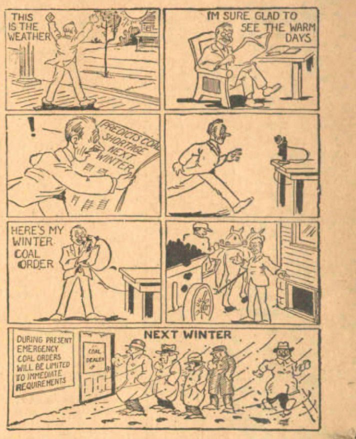
Rosy-cheeked boys and girls of the farms of America-the pride of today and the hope of tomorrow-will be given distinguished recognition at the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago, November 27 to December 4, known the world over as the greatest of all agricultural gatherings.

Starting even before the official opening of the Exposition, the Non-Collegiate Live Stock Judging Contest will occupy the limelight November 26, when over twenty state champion junior judging teams will meet in the arena to decide the national title. The three individuals ranking the highest will receive agricultural college scholarships of $500, $300 and $200 offered by the Chicago Association of Commerce and the winning team will be awarded the handsome trophy symbolic of nation wide supremacy.

Dawn Theatre Hillsdale

A Butterfield Theatre

November 5 and 6 FRIDAY and SATURDAY LON CHANEY in "BLACKBIRD"	November 9 TUESDAY Lewis Stone in "TOO MUCH HONEY"
Novembe 7 aud 8 SUNDAY and MONDAY Clara Bow in "MANTRAP"	November 10 and 11 WEDNESDAY THURS'Y Lionel Barrymore in "THE BARRIER"



THIS IS THE WEATHER
I'M SURE GLAD TO SEE THE WARM DAYS
!
PREDICTS COAL SHORTAGE NEXT WINTER
HERE'S MY WINTER COAL ORDER
DURING PRESENT EMERGENCY COAL ORDERS WILL BE LIMITED TO IMMEDIATE REQUIREMENTS COAL DEALER
NEXT WINTER

AUCTON Sale

I have disposed of my farm located one-half mile west and two miles north of North Adams and will sell at Auction on

Thurs., Nov. 11, '26

commencing at 10:30 a. m. the following property:

3 head Horses

Span Black Mares 8 and 9 years old, an extra good pair weighing 2600 pounds; A Gray Mare 7 yrs. old, a good one wht. about 1300 pounds.

11 head Cattle 7 head extra good Grade Holstein Caws from 2 to 9 yrs. old: 8 haye been fresh in last 3 months, balance will commence freshening latter part of February 1927. Holstein Bull will be 2 yrs old in December, eligible to register; 3 Heifer Calves I saved for cows.

2 extra good Duroc Sows

eligible to register. 25 ANCONA HENS

Hay and Grain : About 15 tons mixed hay. stack oat and wheat straw. 500 bushels (about) oats. 90 shocks good corn, quantity extra good eating potatoes.

Tools : International hay loader nearly new. side delivery rake used 2 years, disc harrow used 2 yrs. new Moline cultivator has cultivated 50 acres. Columbus wagon. Pekin wagon. McCormick mower. new scoop scraper. Champion binder. Empire grain drill. land roller. John Deere riding plow. Birch walking plow. 1500-lbs tackle block. 75 feet rope. 100 feet galvanized iron pipe. Gale cultivator. springer. drag. 1-horse spring tooth cultivator, International manure spreader. sleighs. hay fork 125 feet new hay rope. set double work harness, 5-horse buzz saw outfit mounted in extra good shape; 2,000 feet Elm and Maple Lumber one inch stuff

Household Goods : National Cream Separator; Kitchen Cabinet special; Home Comfort Range good as new. Dining Room Table and Chairs. 2 Bedsteads, Mattresses and Springs, 2 of them iron beds, 3 Dressers. 3 Commodes. Book Case. 3 Rocking Chairs. Dishes. Crockery, and other household Utensils.

Lunch on Grounds

Terms : Sums of $10.00 and under cash, over $10.00 six months' time on approved bankable notes at 7%. No goods removed until settled for

EUGENE M. ROGERS

JAMES I. POST, Auctioneer — JOHN M. WILLIAMS, Clerk

THE NORTH ADAMS ADVOCATE

ol. XXXI NORTH ADAMS, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1926 No. 24

Greendale Dairy

MANUFACTURERS OF

Pure Creamery Butter

Will Pay Cash for Good Cream

North Adams, : Michigan

THE CITIZENS BANK

[Unincorporated]

North Adams, Mich.

Resources Over $500,000

H. M. WILCOX, Pres. J. M. WILLIAMS V.Pres

A. J. HOFFMAN, Cashier

MRS. GRACE DOOLITTLE, Assistant Cashier

Co-Partners

J. M. WILLIAMS C. W. BLEECH A. WILLIAMS EST
A. J. HOFFMAN H. M. WILCOX B. I. LYNCH

[a] Safety on your money
[b] Yield on your money

I.—SAFETY : Building and Loan societies put 100 per cent of their investments in Real Estate. It is estimated that there are 9,000,000 share holders in Building and Loan Societies, having $5,000,000 in assets. Wayne county Savings Bank has $74,204,528 in savings :$41,140.576 is invested in Real Estate. The Central Savings and Trust Company has $28,961,093 in Savings, $27,294,298 are invested in Real Estate. The New York Life Insurance Company has $151,000,000 in assets invested in Illinois.

$94,000,000 Real Estate
$21,000,000 Railroad Bonds
$35,000,000 Public Utilities
$1,000,000 Municipal

Surely these facts are conclusive evidence of the safety of Real Estate.

II.—YIELD : In yield one cannot find so generous a return anywhere. In ten (10) years the following yields have been realized : Detroit 630 per cent; New York 217 per cent; Chicago 195 per cent; Atlanta 162 per cent; San Francisco, 159 per cent; Boston 137 per cent; Minneapolis 131 per cent; Kansas City 129 per cent; St. Louis 124 per cent; Cleveland 119 per cent; Philadelphia 116 per cent. Detroit yields three times as much as its next ranking city.

See DICK McBAIN, Moscow.

B. E. TAYLOR, Realtor
Community Builder

521-529 Ford Bldg. DETROIT, : H.

we will sell all
WALL PAPERS
in stock at a
25 PER CENT
DISCOUNT

H. E. Young & Son
NORTH ADAMS, MICH.

Local News

Patronize the item box at the post office.

Clifford Reed is now the new milkman in our village.

—Dancing party at the Town Hall Saturday evening, Nov. 13th

The Friendship club will meet Friday November 19 with Mrs. Ray Walters.

The Womans Club will observe Guest Day on Monday, Nov. 15th at the home of Mrs. Lida Kempton.

For Sale Cheap—Child's drop-side bed fine condition, also auto mobile and scooter. Mrs. John Fitton. 23t3

For Sale—Round Oak Heating Stove, No. 40. Inquire of E. R. Benson at tne home os Miss Florence Benson on Wilbur street.

The Hoxie Aid Society will hold a bazaar and serve chicken pie and biscuit at the Methodist church Friday November 19th. Watch for posters next week.

Mesdames Jones, McFarland and VanAken attended the Federation of Woman's Clubs at Moscow on Wednesday and they report a very interesting meeting.

The Friendship club met with Mrs. Bertha Stranger in October. Election of officers Pres. Lily Gary, sec. and treas. Gertrude Walters. A short program and light refreshments was enjoyed by all.

W. A. Lawrence and daughter Anna, Mrs. Alfred VanDuesen, and Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Wylie are taking the course in teachers training being conducted by the State Council of Religious education at Hillsdale this week.

Misses Genevieve Evens, Frances Overley, Anna Lawrence, Harold Gordon, Lawrence Wylie, Edward Wylie and Rev. H. E. Wylie represented the local Epworth League at a district rally at Jackson last Friday evening and Saturday.

The friends of Arthur Calhoun will be glad to know he is not suffering with pneumonia as reported last week but is able to be out and drive his car. Mrs. Calhoun is so far recovered from her illness as to sit up at her home, although very weak.

Archie Bleech and family expect to start some day next week for Florida by automobile, and at StCloud they will visit Augustus Bleech and family and also will see most of the show plaecs in the land of Ponce de Leon before returning to Michigan.

Charles Perkins and wife wish to announce that they have no idea of discontinuing their restaurant business at this time but will continue through the winter and possibly longer, so the traveling public please take notice. We were misinformed last week concerning this item. Mr. Perkins has bought the Dietz farm but will not leave the restaurant.

The W. C. T. U. of Hillsdale Co. is to enjoy a visit from Mrs. Jennie Lipe of Manistee from Nov. 15 to 28. She is one of the well known state workers and those who have heard her speak before will be glad to know that she will address a Community Temperance meeting at the Methodist church Sunday evening November 21 and conduct an institute here the next day. There will be no other service that evening so all are invited to attend. A full program for the two meetings will appear next week.

Why take the Chance?

of losing your car by fire, Theft or Collision when the

State Farm Mutual

Automobile Insurance Co. will take the risk for so small an amount?
See the local agent

JAY D. KNOWLES

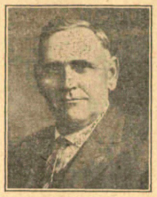
CONTRACTOR and BUILDER

Estimates cheerfully given on remodeling or New Buildings.

BERT TRUMBLE 17t8

North Adams, Mich.

Frederick N. Baker



A host of neighbors and friends are called to mourn with the family of the deceased.

Frederick Nelson Baker, only son of Isaac and Frances Baker was born in Moscow Township November 25, 1865 and died at his home in North Adams November 3, 1926 after an illness of two weeks. He was 17 years of age when he with his parents moved to Wheatland Township on the farm he owned at the time of his demise.

He was married to Addie M. Bradley November 6, 1889 and lived across the way from the old farm in Somerset Township 28 years. From there went to Hillsdale and lived two years. Seven years ago they returned to North Adams and bought a home where he passed away.

Saturday November 6 was their wedding anniversary, 37 years of unalloyed happiness with the deceased companion must help to over come the heart's longing.

To this union 4 children were born Glen who resides on the farm, Gurn near Milnes, Arlene who passed away September 1st 1910, Rosene who is at home, 7 grandchildren, 1 sister Mrs. Harriett J. Weeks of Detroit and 1 neice and many other relatives are left to mourn with the wife the loss of kind husband, father, brother and friend.

He was a member of Adams Lodge No. 189 F. & A. M. and Alpha Chapter 288, and a loyal neighbor.

He well knew and recognized the falling of the shadow but calmly and bravely accepted the decree and thus met the crisis of the inevitable as he had eyer met all life's trying ordeals. No more will his hand perform those acts of love and duty nor his lips speak words of comfort and cheer. He has only passed out of the shadows into eternal day. Why must we call it dying —that beautiful going away?

Funeral services were held at the home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. A. A. Pellowe of the Haven M. E. Church at Jackson.

The Masonic burial service was conducted by Adams Lodge No. 189 F. & A. M. with interment in the North Adams cemetery.

There was a very large attendance, friends and relatives being present from Battle Creek, Kansas City, Jackson, Hudson, Albion, Coldwater, Parma, Litchfield, Jonesville, Montgomery and Hillsdale. Floral offerings were numerous and beautitul.

Pall bearers were Harry Wilcox, Harvey Shepard, Wm Oscius, Merton Wolcott, Oscar Hinkle and Dr. O. G. McFarland.

D. A. Fuller and wife of Battle Creek, were guests Friday night and Saturday at the George Newman home.

The Aid Society of the Congregational church will meet with Mrs. Wamsley Wednesday afternoon Nov. 17th.

Mrs. Willis Smith of Dawson Springs, Kentucky, is expected to arrive Saturday for a two weeks' visit with her daughter, Mrs, E. C. Jandy.

The Fire Fighting brigade of this village have already held a meeting but arrangements as we understand it, are not yet completed. Time to get busy.

Jay D. Knowles calls your attention to the painfully few automobiles in the vicinity which are insured against Theft, Accident and Collision. He is agent for the State Farm Mutual Co. You should take out a policy and be prepared to meet the law which will be enacted some day compelling owners to iusure.

We are very sorry to state the Parent-Teacher's Association at the Congregational church on Wednesday evening had to be called off for lack of attendance. It is adding insult to injury to call a man like Mr. Densmore down from Ann Arbor and then leave him without an audience. It will be a poor record for North Adams which he will have to submit

Michigan Hens Win By Stretch Sprint

High production in the closing weeks of the M. S. C. egg laying contest won the contest cup for a pen of Michigan White Leghorns owned by J. Pater and Sons, Hudsonville.

Methodist Church Calendar

REV. H. E. WYLIE, PASTOR

Supplication Period 10:00 A. M
Morning worship 11:00
Sabbath School 10:00 A. M.
Epworth League 6:00 P. M.
Evening Worship 7:00

At the Epworth League service next Sunday evening at the Methodist church at six o'clock another series of Missionary views will be used. Everybody invited.

If it shall appear advisable instead of frying to warm the church for the Epworth League morning watch next Sunday, the morning service will be held at the parsonage.

BAPTIST CHURCH

A. REISER, PASTOR

Preaching service every Sunday at 10:30 a. m.
Sunday school at 11:45
Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:30.

Congregational Church Calendar

E. C. JANDY, Pastor

Regular morning worship at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school 11:45

—Dr. C. J. Howe, Optometrisf Comfortable glasses, Hilldsale. 42 t

—Permanent Wave without kinks or frizzes $8.00. Perfect steam and oil process Shampoo and re setting free. Marcelling 75c. Mrs. L, W. Sibbald, Jonesville Mich. Phone 63. 21t4

For Sale—Corn Sheller, Cauldron Kettle, Tank Heater, Crosscut Saw, Scoop Scraper, Hay Fork and Hay Knife. Inquire at the Depot North Adams. 22t3

—Apples for sale—Spies and Baldwins. Everett Williams, Phone 1104 22t3

For Sale—Round Oak Heating Sove No. 18 Bement Kitchen Rtange No. 8. Percy Wells, Phone 802 North Adams. 23tf

Lost—Brown and white bulldog 4 months old female. Blind in one eye. Reward if returned to Ed Shurlow, Addison Mich. 24t3

For Sale—Two registered ram lambs also popcorn, Wilbur Bohn North Adams. 24t3

Wanted—Man with car to sell complete line quality Auto Tires and Tubes. Exclusive Territory. Experience not necessary. Salary $300 per month. Milestone Rubber Co. East Liverpool, Ohio. 24t1

—During November and December the Advocate will take subscriptions for McCall's Magazine at the rate of two to be paid for by the same person at $2.75 with the Advocate. Thus if you wish to give a friend a present of a year's subscription to McCall's here is your chance to get the magazine cheap. It is better than ever and the new serial by Harold Bell Wright is "God and The Groceryman."

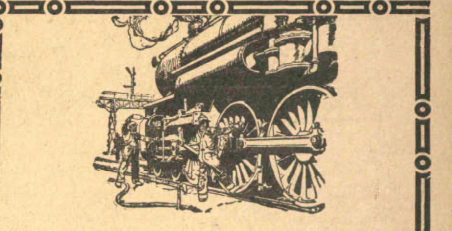
We recently received from Representative Walter Lineberger of California, a letter calling our attention to the crying need of a legislation in regard to the manufacture and sale of narcotic drugs in this country. Correction officials declare that nine-tenths of the criminal tendencies in the State and Nation is due to drugs. They claim that most of the delinquent females of our cities are given to this vice, either as direct users or pedlers of narcotics. We have no conception of how badly this town is affected, if at all.

One of the most popular and finest livestock shows ever held takes place in Chicago Union Stock Yards November 27 to December 4. It is claimed when the entries for the Horse Show are completed November 20 the total number will exceed 11,500 animals. The draft horses will include 125 Percherons, 107 Clydesdales, 35 Shires, 14 Suffolks and 62 Draft horses in harness. Among the hog curiosities are the World's champion litter of 17 hogs which weighed 5117 pounds at six months of age. You want to see these wonderful animals and a thousand others at the Live Stock show which Secretary B. H. Heide is advertising and which you can attend this season either by train or automobile as the roads are all concrete the entire distance. Take the boys up and initiate them into club work and show them one of the greatest cities of the world barring none.

Senior Lecture Course Wednesday Evening

The first number of the Lyceum Course will be given Wednesday evening Nov. 17th, at the Congregational church. This is the Banta Duo, the first of four attractions under the auspices of the Senior class of the High school. All entertainments will be held in the Congregational church. Get your season tickets at once. Reserve seat board open and tickets on sale at H. C. Young's store.

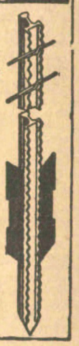
Adult season tickets $1.50.
Junior Season tickets $1.00.
Reserve Seats for the four attractions 20c.
Single Admission 35c and 50c.



What Is the Reason? The locomotive runs at 100 mile clip day in and day out. Because it is fed. Likewise you keep up your daily work by eating of wholesome, juicy steaks at least once a day.

Our Meats and Groceries are always fresh

EDSON J. BENGE



ROYAL FENCE

Made by American Steel & Wire Company

BANNER
—FORMERLY
ARROW
R. R.
RAIL
SECTION
STEEL
POSTS

Years of service under all kinds of weather conditions have proved the superior quality and real economy of Zinc Insulated Royal Fence and Banner (formerly Arrow) Steel Posts.

Zinc Insulated Royal Fence, each roll bearing the RED SIGN of our guarantee, is protected against rust by a uniform and heavy coating of Zinc on every wire.

Banner Steel Posts, with their railroad rail design and large slit wing patented anchor plates, root firmly into the ground, hold the fence securely in line and last many years.

Royal Fence and Banner Steel Posts, sold at NO EXTRA CHARGE, offer the most economical fence construction, at less cost per year. For Sale By

We want to mention

MILLERS' Greek Goal

for your Range. Good as the Best
Whale of a sight better'n the rest

. I. W..IIAMS & SON

Why Sheetrock is a different wallboard

What it is: Sheetrock is gypsum plaster cast in thick, rigid sheets. It is fireproof, non-warping and permanent. It can be sawed and nailed like lumber. Takes any decoration—wall paper, paint, or Textone in the new stipple finishes.

What it does: Sheetrock makes solid, highly insulating walls and ceilings that keep rooms warm in winter and cool in summer. That means more comfort and lower fuel bills. Then, too, Sheetrock walls and ceilings make buildings dust-tight, soundproof and vermin-proof.

Where it is used: Sheetrock is the economical wall and ceiling material for many types of new construction and for all remodeling and repairs. It is just the thing for attic rooms, furnace rooms, fruit cellars, garages, offices and stores.

Where to get it: Get your Sheetrock from us. We carry it in standard ceiling heights and widths. Our trucks make prompt deliveries.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
SHEETROCK
THE Fireproof WALLBOARD

GRAVES & FORD LUMBER COMPANY

An Especially Interesting Page on Various Subjects

Prepared for all Classes of People in all Walks of Life

Roberta Risks It

© MARGARET CAMERON LEWIS

CHAPTER ONE

His name was Brazenose. That in itself seemed bad enough. The boys at school called him Nosey, until he thrashed them into respectful submission, after which they compromised upon Bray, and by association, if they wished to be offensive, Muley. But when, as he grew older, he contemplated the incredible parental nonsense that had sent him into a ribald world labeled Percival Galahad, he felt that the limit of injury had been reached. The choice of these names was a stain upon the memory of an otherwise idealized mother, who had died a few days after his birth. His father called him Son, or Boy.

By the time he entered college he had fallen back for identification upon his initials, obstinately refusing to disclose their significance, and inevitably in his freshman year P. G. became Piggy. Thus it was as Piggy Brazenose that he laid the foundation of his reputation for audacity and reckless daring. Perhaps his utter fearlessness was due in part to a conviction that his evil genius had exhausted its powers at his christening. In any case, his nickname was peculiarly inappropriate even for a collegian, and persons who had heard of the prowess of Piggy Brazenose in sports and pranks were seldom prepared for the six feet of well-proportioned brawn, crisp sunny-brown hair regular features, and laughing eyes discovered upon meeting him.

Perhaps, too, the lyric burden of his baptismal names had something to do with his revolt from everything savoring of the sentimental. Externally he was stubbornly and notoriously unromantic. Nobody understood why a fellow as good-looking and as popular among men as Piggy Brazenose should so persistently avoid girls; but neither did anybody know that his name was Percival Galahad, nor how terrified he was lest somebody should find it out. And even his limited experience had convinced him that the female of the species is more inquisitive than the male.

He did realize, however, that he was lucky in having reached his majority just before a new century began, rather than two or three decades earlier, for most of the few girls he knew met him on a studiously unsentimental footing. The advanced youth of his day, which was before Freudians had interpreted everything from toothache to presidential elections in terms of the mating instinct, prided itself upon having a pal or two of the opposite sex, a relationship supposedly wholly devoid of the softer emotions; and while he did not carry association with any girl to that point, he profited by the tendency of his time.

Not all of them were like that, though, and it was a gushing damsel foisted upon young Mr. Brazenose in an unguarded moment who showed him how much worse his lot might have been. She told him that her mother said he was a perfect Greek god. In an earlier era the rage then filling Piggy's soul might have resulted in murder. It was of heroic scope; a sort of epic or grand-opera rage.

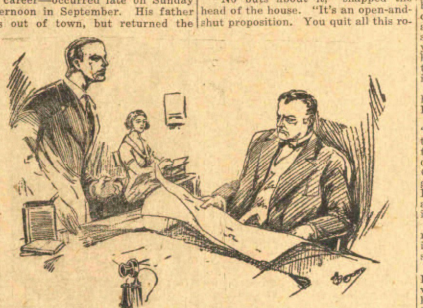
Being modern, however, he first encouraged several congenial units of the student body to look upon wine when it was pale and sparkling, and then led them in an escapade which all but caused his expulsion from the halls of learning. Subsequently, the lady who had admired his unfortunate pulchritude alluded to him as a disgrace to the college, and, hearing this, he was comforted.

Nevertheless, deep under the modern veneer lay an inherent, unrecognized romanticism, and even after he had left college and entered more or less dutifully upon the path of his obvious destiny, preparatory to becoming his father's assistant in business, this unquenchable flame flared at frequent intervals, to the disgust and wrath of the elder Brazenose, a wealthy manufacturer to whom business was a god and his own factory an altar to be served with a single-minded devotion by himself, his son, and his son's sons after him. He labored diligently to impress this solemn vocation upon the mind of his only offspring, and Piggy as earnestly argued that business was one thing and sport another, calling upon his parent to remember that, however hare-brained some of his adventures might seem, they were innocent. He thought his father ought to be thankful that neither cards, horses, wine, women, nor song had figured conspicuously in any of them.

But Brazenose was not thankful. He was worried. He could have understood and forgiven sins of the flesh and a crop of wild oats of the type liberally sown in his own tempestuous youth, which rarely attracted his more fastidious son. Piggy would have denied it hotly—did, in fact, when it was suggested—but he was incorrigibly idealistic. He invariably believed a man's motives to be good until they were proven otherwise, and as invariably he plunged to the rescue of anyone whom he conceived to be the underdog. This, more than his purely physical exploits, dangerous though these sometimes were, perturbed his sire, for it threatened the altar at which he worshiped, the continued success of the industry he had founded in the name of a concrete and jealous god. By every precept and strategem he could devise, he warned Piggy against idealistic illusion and impulse.

Yet forlorn hopes continued to gravitate toward Piggy, and apparently he never stopped to thing twice before flinging himself and his resources into the breach, though his father sometimes wondered whether the Boy lay awake nights evolving picturesque and exaggerated methods of succoring the unfortunate, which he kept in some sort of mental storehouse to be drawn upon at need. The truth was that Piggy never gave much attention to appearances per se. Confronted by the necessity for prompt action, he acted promptly in whatever manner seemed to him most natural and efficacious, and he had a flair for the unusual. A few centuries earlier, clad in the glittering armor of an errant knight, he might have roamed a thinly populated country in search of adventure. In the twentieth century adventure pursued him, and not infrequently it found him.

A case in point—and also, as it happened, an important episode in his career—occurred late on Sunday afternoon in September. His father was out of town, but returned the next morning, going directly from the train to his factory in New Jersey. Piggy, summoned at once to the president's office, found the head of the firm, flushed and grim, sitting behind a desk piled with newspapers.



"What does this mean?"

CHAPTER TWO

The uppermost newspaper bore upon its first page a double-column caption:

MILLIONAIRE'S SON SAVES LIFE OF DROWNING MAN IN EAST RIVER

P. G. Brazenose in Spectacular Dive From Bridge Risks Own Life in Sight of Helpless Hundreds; Leaves Touring Car to Rescue Polish Laborer

"What does that mean?" the father demanded.

Piggy gave him a wry grin. "Well, they seem to have all the story, but they needn't have made such a fuss about it. The poor devil couldn't swim, so I went after him. That's all."

"Saw another chance to make yourself and me conspicuous, in other words."

"No, sir, I didn't think of that. The man was in danger of drowning, so I got him."

"There were plenty of other people to get him. The papers say you were picked up by a boat in less than a minute."

"That's right. We were."

"Then why didn't you let the boat do it?"

"I didn't see it."

"Didn't look for it, you mean."

"Well, there wasn't much time. But I didn't see anybody else doing anything, so I kicked off my shoes and went to it."

"Precisely. Without a second thought. Impulse again. Risked your life for a silly, romantic impulse."

"No, sir! That's not fair!" Piggy's face was now as red as the other's. "There was nothing romantic about it. But the fellow seemed to be in danger, and—well, any way you look at it, it was a good sporting proposition."

"Tcha! Sporting poppycock! You're a romantic figure in your own eyes—and a fool in those of sensible men. And it's going to stop—right now! I'm tired of figuring in the public prints as the millionaire father of a fantastic adventurer. Got that?"

"Quite."

"All right. Now get this." Like all successful men, the elder Brazenose had imagination, but he unconsciously conserved it along with his other powers for use in business. As far as he had a life outside that expanding temple, it was motivated by instinct and tradition rather than by considered reason. Therefore, in this crisis he fell instinctively into the traditional heavy-father role, rendered somewhat heavier by emotional shock and a conviction that only the Boy's bull luck had brought him out of this affair alive. "I've stood all I'm going to. Either you settle down to business now and cut out all this damn spectacular nonsense, or I'm through with you. The next time you get into headlines out you go, to shift for yourself for the rest of your life. That's flat. Got it?"

Angry though he was, Piggy could not repress a smile as he murmured, "Old stuff."

"It may be old stuff, but you'll find it damn new to have to earn your own salt, and stunts like diving off Brooklyn bridge will give you slim pickings. Headlines may tickle your vanity, but they don't buy bacon and eggs, much less pheasant and champagne."

Piggy thought it might be interesting to discover just what financial value his various accomplishments had and was tempted to say so, but being honestly fond of his father, he refrained, replying pacifically:

"I'm sorry you're annoyed, dad, but I didn't see what else I could do."

"Well, you see what you can do in future."

"Yes, sir. I'll try, but—"

"No buts about it," snapped the head of the house. "It's an open-and-shut proposition. You quit all this romantic stuff, or I quit you. If you're so keen about a sporting chance, there's one you can get your teeth into. Now get out. I'm busy."

P. G., as he was known in the factory, retired to his own desk with a sense of profound injury. He didn't particularly blame his father for objecting to publicity; he objected to it himself, which made the assertion that he courted it cut the deeper. And the repeated charge that he was romantic seemed to him little less than insult. Romance was associated in his mind with sundry legendary phenomena generally and comprehensively classified by his clear-eyed generation as bunk. There wa'n't no such animile now and he'd bet his shirt there never had been, except in the minds of long-haired poets and sentimentalists. In short, romance was a word without actual meaning; but the adjective derived from it carried offensive connotations. Only his perception that dad had had a stiff jolt and was scared had prevented his blazing into outspoken anger which might have provoked a serious quarrel. However, this was not the first interview following one of his exploits when he had seen the old man shaken up by fear after the event, and he had come to understand what caused it. But even so, dad might have been fair.

CHAPTER THREE

Romantic! Huh! It struck him that an eighty-foot dive to save a man's life was pretty darn practical. Maybe it took a little nerve, but that was no reason why the newspapers should have played it up like a circus stunt. They always pounced upon every little think he did as if they were in a conspiracy to make his life miserable. He hated seeing his name in headlines; all he asked was to be let alone. He couldn't help it if things lay in wait for him—actually put off happening until he was around. The fact that when thrills were scarce he had sometimes evinced a lively ingenuity in creating a few he ignored. He was feeling abused.

The threat of disinheritance did not trouble him, though he knew it to be sincere. Brazenose senior might play a shrewd game among his commercial and financial compeers, but he never bluffed with his son. However, the occasion would not arise. Piggy was through. Hereafter, if he saw anybody in trouble he'd blow a police whistle. If there were stunts to be done, let George do 'em. P. G. Brazenase was definitely and permanently through.

Probably, even had they occurred to him, he would have dismissed under his widely inclusive characterizations as bunk a series of hoary truisms to the effect that the proposals of mice and men are subject to revision by some disposing Power. He was of a generation of avowed realists proclaiming that man was master of his fate and captain of his soul.

But introspection was not one of Piggy's traits, and a fundamentally cheerful disposition made it impossible for him to nurse a grievance long.

Therefore it was with a humorous grin that he put his head into his father's office half an hour after leaving it, to remark:

"Say, dad, I'm going to beat it. Four reporters from evening papers are laying for me in the outer office."

"All right, skip. And for God's sake don't talk for 'em!"

"Don't fret," replied his heir, and proceeded to a window at the back of the building, where he stepped out upon a fire escape and neatly disappeared.

That was the last that his father saw of Piggy Brazenose, and almost the last that was definitely known of his movements for many days.

* * *

It looked innocent enough at first; a little surprising, perhaps, but not in the least suggestive of headlines.

The man was older than Piggy, probably about thirty, and bore the outward indications of a gentleman. He carried an atmosphere of social sophistication, was well dressed, and when he spoke his voice was pleasantly modulated, his accent that of the Brahmin caste. He was standing beside the door of the ferry house—the Hudson tubes had not been completed then—eyeing the prospective passengers as they filtered through toward the turnstile. When his glance fell upon Piggy he straightened his shoulders, hesitated briefly, and advanced, smiling a little.

"I say," he began hurriedly, "this is awkward, but you look like a chap of one's own sort. I'm rather in a hole. I wonder if you'd help me out?"

"Sure." Piggy's hand went into his pocket.

"No, it isn't that." The man smiled again as he made a negative gesture. "Thanks just the same, but it's time, not ferry fare, that I'm short of. I'm pretty much a stranger here—don't know a soul I can ask to do this—and I'm in a devil of a fix. I'm supposed to meet a lady at the Grand Central at 11:51 and something has just happened that makes it impossible for me to get there. You see, I can't reach her by phone and I'm afraid to trust the discretion of a messenger boy. Have you time—would you be willing—to find her and give her a message for me? It's unconventional, I know, but it's really very important."

"Why, sure," said Piggy. "I haven't a thing in the world to do. I'll go."

The man's anxious face cleared. "That's bully of you. I'm a million times obliged. She's a little bit of a thing with brown hair and she'll be dressed in brown. She's coming from Quebec, and if you miss her at the gate you'll find her at the Information Desk. She was to wait there for me and may—may be seriously inconvenienced if I don't get word to her."

"All right. I've got that," Piggy replied, as the other hesitated, frowning. "What's her name? And what shall I tell her?"

"Tell her I'm terribly sorry, but I've been called west unexpectedly on very important business. I've got to hustle like the deuce to catch my train. I'll be back within a few days. Tell her to let me know where she is, but on no account to take any action until she hears from me. Tell her that what she's planning is absolutely impossible and may have very serious consequences. She'll understand that. And I'm really awfully grateful to—Hey!_ Breaking off his rapid speech, the man darted toward a cab that had brought some one to the ferry and was turning away.

"Here, hold on!" Piggy shouted. "What's her name? What's yours?"

But the other had already jumped into the moving vehicle and was waving his hand from the window as it whirled away.

"Well, I'll be jiggered!" remarked young Brazenose, staring after it. "That guy's rattled, all right. It looks like a wild goose chase now, but I said I'd go."

(To be continued.)

WILLIE'S GIFT.

One of our Sunday school teachers had been explaining the beneficence of the Creator to her charges—how He provided a host of animals which serve us with food and clothing or in some other way. To drive the lesson home she asked the children to point out articles which animals had contributed to their welfare. Little Johnny, a bashful member of the class, had to be urged to respond. He was requested to point out something Willie Smith was wearing which some of these good friends of ours had contributed. Johnny gave Willie the once over. "What is it Willie has on him," prompted the teacher, "that one of God's creatures gave him?" "Aig," answered Johnny.

Father—"I want to apprentice my boy to you."

Master Plumber—"Where is he?"

Father—"Well—er—he forgot his references and has gone back home for them."

Master Plumber — "Righto!—I'll take him."

Something Besides Wires Are Needed

To the casual observer looking at a few telephone wires strung along the state highways and country roads, it would appear that no great amount of money would be needed to operate a telephone system. But appearances are exceedingly deceiving.

Fgures have recently been published showing provisional estimates of expenditures for the Southwestern Bell Telephone System for 1926, of approximately $33,109,000. This company is only one of over a dozen of the Bell companies which furnish service to this nation. The Southwestern covers the states of Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Oklahoma and most of Texas, an empire in itself.

To provide some 61,000 new telephones for this district for the year, including the land, buildings and central office equipment needed to serve them, will account for over $20,000,000 of the expenditure. Poles, wire, cable, etc., will cost $9,000,000, while underground construction, conduit and cable will cost over $3,000,000.

Furnishing the American people with telephone service is a complicated and costly undertaking. Only by building up an enormous volume of business can every nook and corner of a nation enjoy efficient telephone communication as is the case in our country.

To the Lovers of the Forest"

Addressing the Izaak Walton League, A. L. Osborn of Oshkosh, Wis., lifelong lumberman and a director of National Lumber Manufacturers' Association said:

"By what token should lumbermen be abused for the removal of trees for a useful purpose, and the newspapers escape condemnation for the use of so large an amount of forest growth? We want our papers, we want our homes. Those who provide the raw material are, it seems to me, to be commended rather than abused.

"Who would think it a sin to enter a ripe field of grain to harvest it? Who can hold that the cutting of mature trees to be put into service should never have been?

"Conservation of our forest growth means not hoarding, but its wise use.

"The solution of the fire problem is the real conservation issue. Next to it and quite important is the problem of taxation. In cities, property is taxed for fire protection. Timber generally has been taxed to death, and the owner left to do his own fighting, to protect it against fire.

"We have been treating our timber as a mine: a natural resource to be destroyed and not reproduced. We must treat it as a crop.

"Congress hastens to appropriate $75,000,000 annually that a joy-riding public may scorch along paved roads through fire-scarred and treeless barrens. States join in the mad revelry of spending, but hesitate about paltry appropriations for fire wardens and the protection of the trees that we have left. Nero fiddled while Rome burned. Congress and our legislature fiddle as our potential forests go up in flames."

Radio as You Run

Recently a 7-tube radio receiver was installed on the Cornish Riviera express of the Great Western Railroad of England, longest non-stop train in the world, making a distance 226 miles without a stop in less than four hours. The test was quite successful, reception being of the most perfect character, from broadcasting stations even as distant as Paris and Barcelona. The experiment demonstrated that radio may become a feature of entertainment on long distance trains.

Not only is radio a source of entertainment and instruction comparable to the best, and in some respects unexcelled, but it is omnipresent; that is, you may have it whenever you wish—at home, in the auto, on a ship, on foot journeys, and on the train.

SOLVING HOME FUEL PROBLEM

Thirty-six modern homes each equipped to use gas for all fuel purposes will be built in 28 of the larger cities of the United States this summer. At least $100,000 will be spent in newspaper and magazine advertising on the subject. In addition to gas stoves, water heaters, radiant fires and incinerators, the houses will be equipped with gas-fired furnaces in answer to an increasing demand for labor-saving appliances in the home and because of repeated coal shortages.

The growth of the gas and electric industry in the United States is in marked contrast to nearly two generations of hostility between the gas and electric utilities of Great Britain. It is said that British companies are now preparing to bury the hatchet and adopt the American plan of cooperation between the two industries, which has produced the highest standards of service in the world, in the United States.

Reasoning a la Modern

Father—Daughter, we are obliged to break some very unpleasant news to you and must ask you to make a momentous decision. Mother and I have decided to separate and we are leaving it to you to choose which one you will live with.

Daughter—Which one is going to get the car?

DR. E. HENRY MORIARTY
at the
MORIARTY CANCER SANITARIUM
Specializing in the treatment of cancer without the use of knife or electricity.
Reference given on request.
1411 E. FULTON ST. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Say it with Brakes and Spare the Flowers.
A Legal Reserve Automobile Insurance Policy at Lower Rates—No Assessments
REPUBLIC
Automobile Insurance Underwriters
WE WANT AN AGENT IN YOUR VICINITY
2163 Jefferson Ave., East, at Dubois
Detroit, Michigan

DEER HEADS MOUNTED
Write for free photos and prices before your hunt.
G. R. TAXIDERMY STUDIO
124 Division Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich. Phone 6-2952

THE BEST RECOMMENDATION
— FOR —
BARE-TO-HAIR
Is the number who are trying to imitate it. If Bare-to-Hair was not growing hair on bald heads there would be no imitators. If there is baldness or signs of it you can't afford to neglect to use "Forst's Original Bare-to-Hair."
Correspondence Given Personal Attention
W. H. FORST, Mfgr.
SCOTTDALE PENN'A.

CHILDREN CRY FOR Fletcher's
CASTORIA
MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is a pleasant, harmless Substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Teething Drops and Soothing Syrups, especially prepared for Infants in arms and Children all ages.
To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas H. Fletcher
Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

Genuine
BAYER
ASPIRIN
SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!
Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for
Colds Headache Neuritis Lumbago
Pain Neuralgia Toothache Rheumatism
DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART
Safe
Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.
Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Dependable power for every purpose is a Continental actuality and a proven fact, not only for today but in the years to come — the best possible guarantee of perfect power plant performance.
Continental Motors Corporation
Offices: Detroit, Mich., U. S. A. Factories: Detroit and Muskegon
The Largest Exclusive Motor Manufacturer in the World

CENSUS REVEALS ASTONISHING FACT

8,549,511 Working Women in United States

MRS. W. M. BAILEY
R. F. D. No. 5, BOX 27, ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Many Say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps Keep Them Fit to Work

8,549,511 women would be a vast army. According to the 1920 Census of Manufactures, that is the number of women and girls employed in all trades in the United States.

Napoleon said, "An army travels on its stomach." This army of women travels on its general health. Every working girl knows that time lost through illness seldom is paid for and seldom can be made up. Employers demand regularity. If she wants to keep her job or hopes for a better one, she must guard her health.

Atlanta, Ga.—"My system was weak and run-down, and I was tired. I was this way for five years or more. I read your advertisement in the papers and I decided to try your medicine, the Vegetable Compound, but I did not begin to take it regularly until after I was married. I got so much good from it that I feel fine and have gained in weight. I work in a broom shop, but my work is not so hard on me now, and I keep my own house, and work my garden, too. I am telling all my friends of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it has helped me."—Mrs. W. M. Bailey, R. F. D. No. 5, Box 27, Atlanta, Georgia.

Missouri Woman Helped

Parkville, Mo.—"I am proud to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was so ill that I could not lie down at night. Then I got my husband to go to the store and buy me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I was up and around before the first bottle was gone, although I only weighed about ninety pounds. I took six or eight bottles and was able to do all my housework, washing and ironing, take care of my five boys, and tend to my chickens and garden, where before I had to hire my washing and part of my housework."—Mrs. Anna Cole, R. R. 2, Parkville, Missouri.

The Good Old Days

Augustus Thomas, the famous playwright, said the other day at the Century club in New York:

"Erik Charrell, the German producer, announces that the world has got tired of nudity, that nudity is old-fashioned! And I can remember when the only kind of calves a fellow ever saw were those down on the farm."

Woman Trapper's Ambition

The only woman trapper in the Peace river country, Alberta, Miss Mary B. Hallett, is saving her money toward paying for musical study in the East.

Love makes the world go round, when the darned thing ought to be asleep.

Fletcher's
CASTORIA

Children Cry for

MOTHER:– Fletcher's Castoria is especially prepared to relieve Infants in arms and Children all ages of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and, by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas H. Fletcher
Absolutely Harmless–No Opiates. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

Jane Knew Why

Little Jane had learned in her health study at school that certain vegetables contain iron and are valuable for food. Coming into the kitchen one morning when her mother was preparing string beans, she heard her remark: "I wonder why the beans rust so this year."

"Why, mother," said Jane, "don't you think the iron in them makes them rust?"

Had to Finish It

Mr. Sardilli—I ate too mucha da dinner.

Doctor—When you had enough why didn't you stop eating?

Mr. Sardilli—I hate to bite off a spaghet in da middle.

Many a man's so-called independence is nothing more nor less than contrariness.

Demand
BAYER
BAYER

ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN"—Genuine

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians over 25 years for

Colds	Headache	Neuritis	Lumbago
Pain	Neuralgia	Toothache	Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe → Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets.
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

THE BEST RECOMMENDATION
—FOR—
Bare-to-Hair

is the number who are trying to imitate it. If Bare-to-Hair was not growing hair on bald heads there would be no imitators. If there is baldness or signs of it you can't afford to neglect to use "Forst's Original Bare-to-Hair."

Correspondence Given Personal Attention
E. J. JAHN CO., Distributor
DETROIT • • MICHIGAN

The Water Bearer

By J. ALLAN DUNN

Author of "A MAN TO HIS MATE" "RIMROCK TRAIL"

© By Dodd, Mead & Co.
WNU Service

CHAPTER XVI—Continued

—23—

He saw her eyes widen suddenly, looking beyond him, through the gap between him and Cox, at something that riveted her attention. A touch on his elbow distracted him from the incident. Burns, the superintendent of cement construction, whispered anxiously.

"Feely has just come through Number One flow conduit," he said. "Reports a crack in the roof."

Caleb slid out of his seat and drew the superintendent to one side. This was startling news. Caleb had prepared all the specifications for the tunnels. The responsibility for their efficiency was all his. If the weight of the fifty feet of gravel threatened the roof of the conduit any disaster, even a temporary delay for repair, would mar the demonstration. It might be kept private but the stigma would rest on Caleb professionally.

"I'll look at it myself," he said. "It may be only superficial. If it seems dangerous, we'll shore with timber immediately and close the conduit. Number Two will have to supply the intake. Where's Feely now?"

"Gone to inspect Number Two."

"Good. Wait for my report, Burns. Feely may be an alarmist, though he was perfectly right to report. Go back to your seat. I'll be here again as soon as I can."

He hurried down the road to the gatehouse as fast as he could go afoot. The cars were parked and he did not want to draw attention to his sudden disappearance, by taking one. If his absence was marked he wished to make it as inconspicuous as possible. Hinckley was talking as he left the bower.

Anxiety deepened as he went, imagination widening the flaw while he rapidly went over the details of reinforcement and the building of the forms, the mixing of the cement. He had followed Hinckley's ancient example and had practically inspected every wheelbarrow load of the stuff, impressing rigidly on all hands the necessity for prime materials and absolute following of the formula. He felt certain his figures, his computations of stress and thrust and resistance were correct, allowing ample margin. Yet—if the tunnel gave way, the glory of his achievement was tarnished.

He did not wait for slicker or rubber boots but went swiftly down the ladders, an electric torch in his pocket. Burns had told him the crack was midway between the filter-gallery gate and the forebay pit. With the beam of the torch boring into the black tunnel he fairly ran through the film of water underfoot, his splashing footfalls resounding in the confined space, his head bowed to avoid the roof, counting his strides to calculate the distance. Three hundred yards in he began to spray the roof with light, going more slowly. Eighty yards further the light betrayed the crack. It extended halfway across the level summit of the top of the conduit and a little way down one of the slopes. At first glimpse it yawned ominously, a black split across the gray circle illumined on the cement.

Caleb thrust the tips of his fingers into it, probing. And sighed with sudden relief. It was shallow and there was no sign of any bulge about it. It was a superficial crack to which any cement face is subject. In the hurry of final preparation, when the form boards had been stripped, it had not been noticed, might not have actually developed until later. The interior surface of the tunnel had not been faced, the grain of the form boards still showed. A board insufficiently soaked before pouring, or with knotted fibers that had resisted the water, might have clung to the cement. There might have happened to be a small streak with too much sand. In that one spot the tamping might have been insufficient. It amounted to nothing as regards the stability of the structure.

But he stayed to make certain, wanting to be satisfied that the rush of water would not enlarge the fissure. Later he would have it filled but, for today, he needed both conduits to make an efficient display.

Suddenly, while he probed, he became aware of water swirling about his ankles, of a hissing noise that rose swiftly to a roar, re-echoing from wall to roof as the water swiftly deepened, eddying above his shoes in a savage rush that tugged and lifted, that threatened his purchase on the slippery floor.

Some one had opened the watergate from the filter-gallery! Against all orders. And he was trapped. By the ladders, a quarter of a mile away, the dim light sifting down the shaft showed the gray leap of the ten-foot cascade foaming into the conduit, the push of half-a-mile of solid water held in the six-foot gallery back of it.

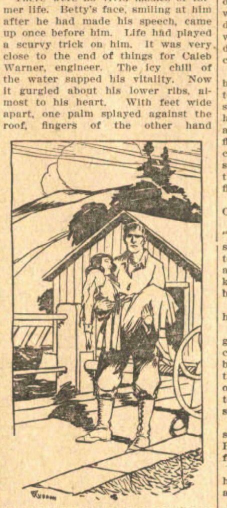
The floor was slightly inclined to facilitate the flow. With the gate fully open the flood would sweep down the conduit with velocity and power sufficient to tear away all obstructions. His only hope lay in reaching the ladders. Behind him, four hundred yards back, was the forebay.

Against the increasing tide Caleb made his rush, desperate, feeling it useless but determined to battle for his chance. The water boiled to his knees, sucking at him, clutching at his feet, the tunnel resounding with its magnified chucklings. A foot slipped and he thrust both hands suddenly against the angles of the roof, limpeting his palms to the cement, dropping the torch of necessity. Save for the gray light at the bottom of the shaft, lessening as the gate lifted and the water rose in turmoil, he was in darkness. Up it came and a swirling lunge almost flung him down. Once engulfed it would be all over with him. He could not dream of holding his own for a moment in the torrent which would tumble him, filling his lungs, and hurl him into the forebay pit, perhaps carry him on, a sodden corpse, to the intake; drowned, battered, slain in his own contrivance!

The details of his fate, his helplessness, crowded his mind. Then he was forced to slowly give way, sliding gradually back, pressing his feet into the angles of floor and sides, cupping his palms against the damp ceiling. He thought of the crack. If he could get his fingers into that he might gain purchase enough to hold fast. But he was in the dark. He flung up one hand at the risk of going down and it scraped along the top of the tunnel. Back, back, inch by inch, foot by foot . . . !

There it was at last! He forced his finger tips into the fissure and braced himself again. It could not be for long. His head was bent, his neck cramped. Soon the waters must reach his mouth and nose—but long before that the force of the torrent would have swept him away. The loud lapping of it was confusing. It sounded triumphant, as if a multitude of water-devils were laughing at his plight. The compressing air made his ears buzz and he began to get dizzy.

There were no vivid flashes of former life. Betty's face, smiling at him after he had made his speech, came up once before him. Life had played a scurvy trick on him. It was very close to the end of things for Caleb Warner, engineer. The icy chill of the water sapped his vitality. Now it gurgled about his lower ribs, almost to his heart. With feet wide apart, one palm splayed against the roof, fingers of the other hand crooked into the little crack, he resisted with all the strength he knew must prove inadequate. His jaw was set, his muscles rigid. He snarled in the blackness, forced to lean backward against the force of the mounting flood.



He Took Her in His Arms and Raised Her, Limp and Pitiable.

"Well, here I go," he muttered. There was no philosophy in the statement, no bravado, only the submission of a brave man who accepts the inevitable.

One foot slipped again, was sucked out, trailing in the tide. But he got it down, battling to the last spark of his vitality, every remnant of energy centered in the will to cling, to fight off collapse. Seconds passed that seemed like hours, his brain became a blank. Dimly thought formulated. The water was no longer rising. It strengthened, his brain cleared to the fact that spurred his weariness to hope. Some one was at the gate—closing it. He could have shouted as he knew the race subsiding, down to his waist, his thighs, ever lower while the roar lessened, the chuckling ceased, but he emitted only a hoarse croak. Revulsion gripped him and left him weak for a few moments before he started to wade toward the ladders while the cataract lost form, reduced finally to a mere dribble spurting underneath the vertical shut-off.

As he clasped the lower rungs, sudden rage possessed him to find the man who had disobeyed his orders. The wrath renewed all his vitality and he climbed swiftly toward the head of the shaft and the blessed light.

A sight met his eyes as his head emerged above the gatehouse floor that sent him vaulting from the shaft over the piperail that guarded it. The wheel that controlled the gate was down and, across the coaming of its threaded rod, lay Betty Clinton, one hand still clutching the rim of the wheel. Her hat was off and her hair streamed loose, framing the pallor of her face. One sleeve of her white serge coat had been torn away and the shoulder ripped. Her flimsy blouse was in shreds, the fair white skin of arm and neck and rounding bosom showed where a rude hand had torn her undergarment. He had an impression—no more—of a shadow rising by the door and vanishing. He had eyes only for the girl, consciousness only of her plight and the knowledge that she had closed the gate and saved him after some desperate fight.

He took her in his arms and raised her, limp and pitiable. A red blotch on her curving shoulder and marks on her wrist were already purpling into angry bruises. He called to her, but she did not respond. There was a rough bench in the place and he laid her on it, catching down a sweater jacket from a nail—it belonged to the gatetender, who had gone to get his share of the barbecue—and he buttoned it around her before he ran out of the gatehouse for aid.

The speeches were over, the crowd getting into their cars ready to complete the trip. They would not come in this direction, he knew, and shouted at the top of his lungs to attract attention. He felt that Betty was not badly hurt, beyond bruises and shock, but he felt helpless; not wanting to leave her, not knowing what best to do. There were thousands of gallons of water under his feet, but none with which to revive her, save that which dripped from his clothes. A woman was needed—perhaps a doctor. He did not want to take her into the curious crowd.

He shouted again just as a car broke from the ruck and came down towards the gatehouse. The occupants saw him waving, if they did not hear him, they sensed trouble in his pose and the car leaped ahead under the flow of gas. It was Cox, with Burns, coming to see what delayed him. The superintendent had told the president that Warner was giving the tunnel final inspection.

As the car came up Caleb hailed Cox.

"There's been an accident," he said. "Foul play of some kind. Nothing serious, but I want Mrs. Carquinez to attend to Miss Clinton. She was attacked, trying to save me. You know Mrs. Carquinez, Cox, she'll be by my car. Get her."

"Wife of the artist? I remember her. Do you want Burns?"

But Caleb had turned back into the gatehouse. Cox's driver turned the car on the ramp and the car went back at full speed. Burns halted in the doorway, uncertain at the sight of Caleb kneeling beside Betty Clinton. The girl was reviving, saying something to him.

"No place for me," Burns told himself. "I can't do anything in there." He turned his back, waiting for reinforcements.

"You're safe?" Betty raised her head and Caleb pillowed it on his arm.

"Yes, thanks to you," he said. "What happened?"

"Oh, I'm so glad." Sudden tears choked her utterance and she began to sob hysterically.

The car came racing back again with Carquinez and his wife in the tonneau with Maria. Luis Padilla on the running board.

Maria swept Caleb aside, her eyes resenting Mrs. Carquinez as she loosed a rush of Spanish with her arms about her senorita. Betty Clinton fought off her hysteria, braced at the entrance of the rest, and sat up.

"I'm all right, Maria," she said. "You'll want to know what happened. I saw that gentleman"—she looked at Burns, hovering in the background with Padilla—"speak to Mr. Warner. Then you left the tables." She turned to talk directly to Caleb.

"I thought that something had gone wrong, by your face, and I watched you going toward the gatehouse. I saw a man pass one of the openings in the screens and follow you. I had seen him before, looking in from where the food was served, back of where you sat. Just before you left. He had a beard, he looked rough and wild. His eyes were glittering like a mad dog's. I fancied I knew him somehow and I tried to remember where. I knew the memory was in some way sinister—. It may have been intuition, but it possessed me. So I slipped from my seat while Mr. Hinckley was speaking and went to where I could watch the road. You were nearly at the gatehouse, almost running. And this other man was running, too, not on the road but among the sage, bent double, lurching as if he was drunk, trying not to be seen, following you. A figure of evil. And I suddenly placed him. I knew it was Baxter! And I was sure he meant harm to you!

"I should have used my head better," she confessed, color coming back to her cheeks, slowly spreading over face and neck under Caleb's gaze. "At least I should have called Luis, but I only thought of one thing, to warn you. I think that even then I guessed what was going to happen. That you were going into the tunnel—and Baxter . . . !

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Raven Not Altogether Deserving of Bad Name

Two ravens, one which has taken our continental name, American, and the other which has taken the more specific geographic name of the northern raven, are both interesting, croaky and not altogether unbeautiful, for in certain lights their plumage is lustrous.

The American raven is smaller than its more northern cousin. It is a resident of the far western United States. It is a mountain dweller, although it disdains not to descend to the valleys if man is absent therefrom. The raven does not like man and the reason is not far to seek. Man does not like the raven, holding it with the crow its cousin once or twice removed, as being a bird that is better dead.

The diet of the American raven, according to Florence Merriam Bailey, who knows the western bird well, consists "principally of carrion, dead fish and frogs, varied with rodents, mussels, grasshoppers, large black crickets and worms." This collection of food is not altogether a delectable one from the human appetite standpoint, but the raven deserves well of man for making its diet what it is.

Odd Collection

One of the most unusual hobbies is the collecting of torture instruments. A certain American surgeon has assembled the most complete private assortment of them extant—including such machines as the rack, the squeezers, and the iron virgin, which the perverted ingenuity of man devised chiefly for use in inducing witnesses to give evidence in legal proceedings. These instruments were employed in legal proceedings by ancient and modern Europe. Their use was recognized by the law of most countries (to which England, Aragon and Sweden were exceptions) up to comparatively recent times.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years
COFFEE
MONARCH
COCOA

Glowing Logs

An open fireplace—logs crackling and snapping. There's nothing more restful or more soothing to body and nerves—except, perhaps, a cup of hot Monarch Cocoa. A delightful beverage, supreme in quality, low in cost.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years
Never Sold Through Chain Stores
REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Chicago • Boston • Pittsburgh • New York

More than 200 Quality Food Products including
COFFEE and COCOA

YEAST FOAM
PURITY AND EXCELLENCE

Yeast Foam

Good bread makers everywhere prefer it

Send for free booklet "The Art of Baking Bread"

Northwestern Yeast Co.
1730 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago

Time isn't exactly money, but some people spend one just as foolishly as the other.

The truest end of life is to know the life that never ends.—William Penn.

"U.S."
Blue Ribbon Boots
are made of high-quality rubber—flexible, long-wearing. They have sturdy gray soles, uppers red or black—in knee to hip lengths.

This live rubber

means longer wear

HERE'S quality rubber. You can stretch a strip cut from the upper of a "U.S." Blue Ribbon boot more than 5 times its own length!

The sole is oversize—tough as a tire for wear. And at every vital point in this boot from 4 to 11 separate layers of reinforcements are there, to give extra strength.

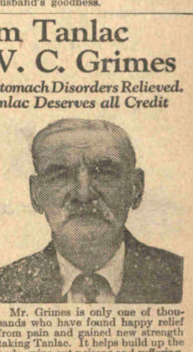
For more comfort, longer wear, you can depend on "U.S." Blue Ribbon boots and overshoes. Get a pair and notice the difference.

United States Rubber Company
Trade Mark

"U.S." BLUE RIBBON
Boots Walrus
Arctics Rubbers

Some things come to those who wait patiently, but more to those who tip profusely.

Few men realize that a well-dressed woman is an advertisement for her husband's goodness.



Benefit from Tanlac Lasting, says W. C. Grimes

Nervousness, Indigestion and Stomach Disorders Relieved. Strength Restored. Says Tanlac Deserves all Credit

W. C. Grimes, 1254 Plainfield Avenue, N. E., Grand Rapids, Mich., a well-known railroad man whose marvelous recovery from a siege of suffering surprised even his closest friends, says, "Four years ago I first tried Tanlac and was so impressed with it that I still stick to it whenever I feel need for a tonic.

"I suffered from indigestion, constant pains in stomach and distress after eating. Constipation bothered me. I was in a terrible run-down condition.

"I sought relief. Everything I took failed to help me. Then after reading about the powers of Tanlac I tried this wonderful tonic. The first bottle gave me an appetite. Indigestion soon disappeared. I began to sleep well and arise in the morning refreshed. Soon my nerves calmed down. I took on weight.

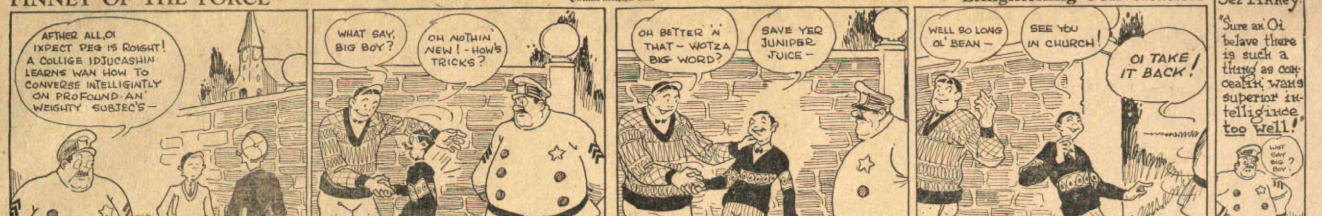
"Today, I feel better than I have felt in years. All my thanks to Tanlac. It brought me relief and restored my health. I will never be without this tonic which is made from roots, barks and herbs."

Mr. Grimes is only one of thousands who have found happy relief from pain and gained new strength taking Tanlac. It helps build up the body, wipe out poisons and suffering. Heed their advice. Keep well, keep youth and health—take Tanlac.

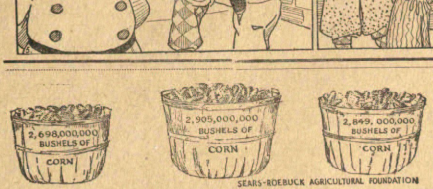
Get your first bottle of Tanlac from your druggist today! Over 40 million bottles sold.

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

By F. O. Alexander
©Western Newspaper Union

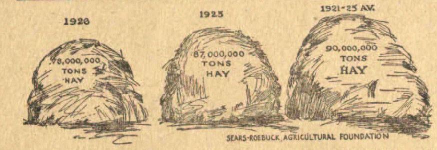


AFTHER ALL, OI IXPECT PEG IS ROIGHT! A COLLIGE IDJUCASHIN LEARNS WAN HOW TO CONVERSE INTELLIGINTLY ON PROFOUND AN' WEIGHTY SUBJEC'S—
WHAT SAY, BIG BOY?
OH NOTHIN' NEW! - HOW'S TRICKS?
OH BETTER 'N' THAT - WOTZA BIG WORD?
SAVE YER JUNIPER JUICE—
WELL SO LONG OL' BEAN—
SEE YOU IN CHURCH!
OI TAKE IT BACK!
Enlightening Conversation
Sez Finney: "Sure an' Oi belave there is such a thing as concealin' wan's superior intelligince too well!"
WOT SAY BIG BOY?



HOGS won't have to go on a reducing diet. They will have plenty of corn to eat, in spite of a prospective short crop, which will amount to about 2,698,000,000 bushels this year, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Last year the crop was 2,905,000,000 bushels, considerably larger than the five-year average crop of 2,849,000,000 bushels. This year's crop was grown on 101,074,000 acres and is rated to yield 26.7 bushels per acre. More than 80 per cent of the corn crop is fed to live stock, and hogs consume more than 40 per cent of the crop. This year hogs have been scarce and have not eaten as much from last year's crop as normally. The corn year begins November 1. A year ago the carry-over from 1924 was only 61,000,000 bushels, but because of the shortage of hogs and other live stock the carry-over on November 1 from the 1925 crop will be more than 500,000,000 bushels. This, with the present crop, will be ample to meet all needs the Foundation estimates, so the hogs and other live stock will not have to go hungry.

Less Hay on Cattle Menu



THERE will be less hay on the live-stock menu this year, due to the short hay crop, says the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Farmers will produce only 78,900,000 tons, because of the unfavorable weather. Last year they produced 87,000,000 tons, and the five-year average crop is 90,000,000 tons, the Foundation points out. It is true that there are fewer live stock to consume this year's hay crop. Most of the crop is eaten by cattle. Horses and sheep also require large quantities. This year farmers devoted 59,080,000 acres to tame hay crops, such as alfalfa, clover, timothy and mixed crops. This is a slight reduction from last year's acreage. This is expected to yield 1.34 tons per acre, a smaller yield than usual.

BIG SUBSCRIPTION OFFER

THE PEOPLE'S POPULAR MONTHLY
GOOD STORIES
The Farm Journal
HOUSEHOLD

You Get ALL FOUR of These
MAGAZINES and OUR NEWSPAPER
For One Year Each FOR $1.80 Order Now

THIS EXCEPTIONAL OFFER IS GOOD FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY
Subscriptions may be new or renewal. All renewal subscriptions will be extended for one year from present date of expiration.

FARMING? ARCHITECTURE? BANKING? MANUFACTURING INSURANCE? JOURNALISM? ART? LAW? MEDICINE?
HOW TO GET RICH QUICK
LIFE CHART

MUDDLING PLANNING

WHERE will you be ten years from now? The answer depends on the course you follow. Today, tomorrow, the next seven days, the next month and the years swiftly coming will tell the story.

Everyone who has not made a definite choice of his life work or who is unsettled and desires to better himself should get in touch immediately with

THE OPEN ROAD
The Most Original Monthly Magazine in America

Its department: "Jobs,—What the Times Are Opening Up," and the "What Shall I Be?" series of opportunity articles, prepared by experts, are helping thousands to Look Before They Leap. And in every issue there is plenty of rousing good fiction.

We want you, or someone close to you, to enjoy and profit by this remarkable magazine. Therefore we make this Get Acquainted Offer—6 months for one dollar. (The regular price is $2.50 a year.) This small investment may influence your future tremendously. Good judgment says: Do it now! Pin $1.00 to this offer and mail it with name and address to

THE OPEN ROAD MAGAZINE, 248 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass.

W. C. T. U. Column

LAURA WALWORTH, EDITOR

Alcohol Not Necessary In Medical Practice

(Continued from last week)

The direct, simple, and long established well-guarded constitutional methods by which national prohibition was brought about were created with two objectives in view: (1) Effectively to safeguard our Republic from untried principles introduced inconsiderately and without an overwhelming approval of the body politic; (2) to safeguard the perpetuity of our nation by permitting the introduction of such new or enlarged ethical and moral principles as might in the course of time be found necessary.

There are physicians as well as laymen who would relegate this whole matter to a question of infringement of personal liberty. Some one admirably said in the long ago, and I urge this upon all Christians, "Take heed lest by any means this liberty of yours becomes a stumbling block to them that are weak." Again, "If meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend." The same writing to which we owe all that is worth while in what we call civilization, to make this vital principle clear beyond all possibility of misunderstanding further adds, "If thy brother be grieved with thy meat, now walkest thou not charitably. Destroy not him with thy meat, for whom Christ died." "For meat destroy not the work of God." I am glad to find it put broadly and generically as "meat", covering any and all things severally put into our bodies, while it also declares, "It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak." Is this too strong meat for our debased spiritual appetites? Verily, it seems to me a larger, nobler view than our petty whining self-assertive notions of personal liberty and advantage.

Personal liberty in my observation is but the claptrap of self seeking demagogues, sounding catchy phrases to mislead the unthinking and the ignorant. There is no such thing as personal liberty which can conflict with the ethical and moral welfare of the organized, civilized, social body in which I live; personal liberty, it is true, is a very real and definite principle which flourishes among savages in all parts of the world and will flourish once more among us when we gravitate back to the ancient stock from which we sprang. Present-day so-called law abiding communities look upon society as a unit in which each one of us is bound up in the welfare of the whole, and in which the whole suffers when one is in distress, and so we are constrained to place such restrictions upon all individuals as experience shows are likely to be conducive to the general good. So the old self centered personal liberty of savagery through the enforcement of salutary laws gradually merges into the larger liberty of mutual forbearance and co-operation in the social body—a bigger, higher, nobler conception leading up to the greatest of all achievements, namely, to love God with all our hearts and our fellow man as ourselves; we revert once more, as a spiral reverts to a similar position on a higher level, to our primitive estate when we had no law, but where we are inlawed in love to God.

Finally, touching the question of enforcement so burning today, I look upon prohibition in a two fold aspect:

(1) Governmentally (as a pillar of the great social temple), it is the duty of every citizen to assist the executive body in enforcing the law, and if a law is obnoxious to seek to nullify it not by violation but bydue constitutional course by the simple methods clearly provided by our early lawgivers. May I pause to remark that it is the height of folly to declare a law a failure where it has never been honestly enforced, the present sad predicament of our State of Maryland.

(2) In all personal relationships outside of governmental executive obligations, I long to see all Christian people acting as a unit, affectionately seeking opportunities to present their cause, to win their opponents into agreement, while patiently considering also the arguments on the other side. Let all anger, wrath, bitterness, vituperation, threats and ill wishes and other discreditable methods be put aside as becometh Christians.

Three times it is written in the Word of God: "I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts." Now I take it that mind law represents the knowledge that such and such laws are recorded in our statute books and tabulated in the digests and in the "Cyc." But the heart law referred to (not in any sense the business of the court) is the supreme business of Christians and can only be inculcated by prayer, by personal services lovingly rendered, by unremitting patience, and by presenting the cogent facts as we see them when those opposing are willing to hear.

If these things are done we can never fail, and prohibition will speedily be written, not alone in the Eighteenth Amendment, but in the hearts of all of our people and incalculable blessings will flow out to us, to our children, and to generations yet to come who will rise up to call us blessed.—The Union Signal.

(The end)

Peanuts Were Food For Slaves

Peanuts were introduced into Virginia during the early days of colonization, according to tradition presumably by the slave traders as food for the slaves. Peanuts were found in ancient mummy graves in Peru by E. G. Squier exploring in 1877, also by W. E. Sanford in 1887. This would seem to indicate that the peanut is a native of the New World.

During the early days peanuts were grown largely in gardens and in small patches, and a few were roasted and sold on the street in the towns of Virginia and later in New York and other eastern cities Necessity for some crop that would yield a cash return caused the farmers of Virginia and North Carolina to plant peanuts as a regular farm crop immediately following the Civil War.

The peanut industry of the United States is well distributed over most of the Southern States but is carried on intensively in eastern Virginia, North Carolina and southern Georgia. The crop now occupies about 1,000,000 acres each year, the annual production amounting to approximately 750,000,000 pounds.

Correct English
MONTHLY MAGAZINE
Authoritive Exponent of English for 24 Years
Edited and founded by
JOSEPHINF TURCK BAKER
Famous World English Authority

Send 10 Cents for Sample Copy
Correct English Publishing Company
Evanston, Illinois
Agents Wanted Everywhere

F. E. Caswell D. V. M.
Veterinarian
Office at Residence, West Main St
Private Phone 45
North Adams, Mich.

Dr. L. R. ULRICH
DENTIST
Private Office in Room over Perkins' Restaurant
Thursdays hours 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.
Plate Work a Specialty

O. G. McFarland M. D.
North Adams, Mich.

OFFICE HOURS: 8:00 to 9:00 a. m.
1:00 to 4:00 p. m.
7:00 to 8:00 p. m.
First door west of Opera House

Two Weeks After Christmas

You wake up bright and early Christmas morning. You open the stockings. Christmas presents on Christmas morning are the most wonderful, beautiful things in the world. Under the soft light of Christmas candles, every present looks like a priceless treasure.

On the day after Christmas you begin to look at your presents more carefully. It is easier to decide which ones you like best.

One week after Christmas, your preferences are very definite. Two weeks after Christmas, you have to stop and think a minute to remember what some of your friends gave you.

Why not give your friends a Christmas present that they cannot forget, and would not if they could The Youth's Companion comes every week—fifty two times in a year For $2, what present could you possibly buy that would be more useful, more used and better appreciated.

Just send your order to the address below and Santa Claus will take care of delivering the Companion to your home or to the home of a friend. Subscribers will receive:

1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues in 1927, and
2 The remaining issues of 1926. All for only $2.
3. Or include McCall's Magazine the monthly authority on fashions, Both publications only $2.50.

The Youth's Companion, S N Dept., Boston, Mass.

New York Central Art Posters

"New York—The Wonder City of the World" is the title of the fourth in the series of art posters being issued by the New York Central Lines, which will be placed in stations and other conspicuous locations over the 12,000 miles of railroads of that system. The poster is by the famous artist Adolph Treidler.

The Treidler poster presents an alluring night scene of the towering business buildings of lower Manhattan Island, realistically emphasizing the imposing skyline formed by the skyscrapers. The view is from the Statue of Liberty which looms up strinkingly in the foreground as the attracting feature of the painting.

To anyone who has crossed New York Harbor at night the scene is accurate. Harbor craft, Liberty illuminated, the lighted giant buildings in fascinating silhouette against a pleasing background of night-blue firmament impress upon one the magnitude of New York, its activities and its people. All of the important structures of downtown New York appear in the picture, including the Woolworth and Singer towers, with their lighted pinnacles, as well as the newer buildings which recently have made important changes in the skyline of Gotham.

Adolph Treidler is a master of poster art. He achieved widespread fame in connection with his Liberty Loan and other wartime posters. His New York poster is a beautiful blending of color harmony and tone quality.

Copies of the New York poster may be seen at the New York Central station. The art poster is beiug displayed by the New York Central in connection with its service to New York via the route of the Twentieth Century Limited, the only water level route between the East and the West and the only route which follows the famous Hudson River Valley.

Beef Quality Tested In M. S. C. Feed Lots

Is there a sound reason for the fact that "heifer" brings a lower price than steers when the farmer consigns a shipment to market?

An answer to this question is being sought in a special beef production experiment being carried out in the feed lots at the M. S. C. the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the college cooperating in the tests.

The almost universal custom of a lower price scale for heifers on the beef market has come under fire, and the specialists at M. S. C. are out to prove the right or wrong of the practice. Complete scientific data will be kept all through the experiment, ending in a careful chemical analysis of the meat after the animals are finally slaughtered.

For Sale—Soft coal heating stove H. G. Wells. Phone 806 North Adams 23t3

DAIRY FACTS

MILK PRODUCTION EASY TO STABILIZE

Live-stock farmers can more nearly stabilize production than grain farmers. Weather does not influence live-stock production to as great an extent as grain crops. Dairy farmers can stabilize their production more than most classes of live stock for the reason that their production is constantly going to market. Labor also forms an important factor in the production of dairy products and is an additional factor which makes for stabilization.

The dairyman, however, has not equalized his production during the different seasons of the year, as much as might be generally profitable. During the high prices for butterfat in December there is only 5 or 6 per cent of the product marketed, while on the cheaper June market approximately 12 or 13 per cent of the product is sold.

Older dairy territories are rapidly correcting the summer milking tendency and are more nearly stabilizing production. They are doing this as it gives them more profit. If all of the dairymen in the country would change it would mean that winter dairying was not as profitable as summer dairying.

Feed and market conditions cause changes in the dairy market conditions. If feed prices are high as compared to the price of dairy products the feeding is curtailed, some cows are sold for beef, both helping to relieve the general market condition. When the opposite condition exists, which has been true in the past, feeding and milking are both expanded. The fact that butter prices are becoming lower at the present time is proof of the working of this factor.

West Virginia Dairyman Gives Some Poor Advice

Constantly farmers are told how to run a dairy herd, but seldom are they openly given advice on how to run it down.

A West Virginia farmer, long a dairyman, an honor pupil in the graduate school of experience and hard knocks, offers six rules for dairymen who want to flirt with bankruptcy. It's this way:

"Feed timothy to cows—it's good for race horses.

"Keep water ice cold—shivering gives the cows exercise.

"Cow-testing associations are needless—they show how to save and know.

"Don't have any windows in the barn—the hired man might look out.

"Avoid heavy milkers—they take up too much time.

"Don't weigh the milk—it might cause extra figuring."

Legume Hays and Grain Will Help Heifers Along

"Heifers that stop growing or that lose flesh, waste feed and interest on the money invested in them," says W. J. Fraser at the University of Illinois. He further points out that summer is the time to put cheap growth on heifers. Too often, because of poor pastures, heifers make too slow gains or are stunted.

Tests made by C. C. Hayden at the Ohio experiment station showed alfalfa hay to be slightly superior to soy-bean hay when fed liberally with corn. Either alfalfa, clover or soy bean hay when fed with corn, is capable of supporting better than so-called normal growth in heifers. When legume hays and corn are available. Hayden concludes that a greater variety of proteins or high-protein grains do not seem necessary to grow choice heifers.

Oil Meal for Calves

A pound of gain for every three and one-third pounds of oil meal fed, was the record made in an Ohio calf feeding experiment. A saving of one-third the alfalfa hay was made when two pounds of oil meal was added to the ration of corn silage and alfalfa hay. Calves fed corn silage and alfalfa hay for 140 days gained at the rate of 1.33 pounds. The addition of two pounds of oil meal raised the daily gain to 1.93 pounds, an increase of .6 pound daily.

Three Kinds of Flies

There are three different kinds of flies that bother dairy cows to a large extent. The common house fly annoys cattle by crawling over them and feeding on the secretions about the eyes, etc., but do not suck blood. The stable fly is provided with a beak which enables it to suck blood. The horn fly, is distinctly smaller than either of the other two flies. Sanitation is the most important method of disposing of all these pests.

Patronize Our Advertisers

They are all boosters and deserve your business.

Followed Directions

The young daughter wanted to practice at baking while the mother took a drive. Upon her return the mother found every bowl in the house had been used and all were standing in a row on the kitchen table, ready for washing. Upon inquiry, the embryo cook explained: "Well, the recipe said to beat eight eggs separately."—Christian Science Monthly.

This coupon and 25c entitle the undersigned to one 35c can of Acme Quality Enamel-Kote, any color, and a special 20c Paint Brush.
Name________________
Address________________

To acquaint you with Acme Quality, we are making a special offer for a short time only.

SPECIAL OFFER
55¢ Value for 25¢

Make your home inviting —with COLOR!

Surely there are pieces of furniture in your home that need the brightening touch of the paint brush. Why not get some Acme Quality Enamel-Kote and do the job up right—right now? You can get any color you want. And how easy it is to use Acme Enamel-Kote! Just a few strokes of the brush and there you have a brand new chair! Give your home a personal inspection and note the possibilities for beautifying by the simple means of paint. You've a surprise in store!

ACME QUALITY
Paint and Varnish

It's economical to use Acme Quality Enamel-Kote, the beautiful, en*during* finish. For interior woodwork of every kind. See coupon.

J. M. WILLIAMS, North Adams

Harley Voorhees
FUNERAL DIRECTOR
HANOVER MICHIGAN

Calls attended promptly day an night. Having the best of equipment, I can serve and please you.

Any of our friends who wish our servces, can reach u day or night bycalling Moscow Central.

HARLEY VOORHEES
Hanover, Mich.

American Cuckoos

The blackbill and yellowbill cuckoo occur commonly in summers throughout the United States and eastern Canada, but pass the winters in Central or South America. The blackbill cuckoo does not occur west of the Rocky mountains in midyear. The yellowbill cuckoo is known as the rain crow. Its note is supposed to predict rain.

ARAB
700 Blaisdell ARAB No 2
Pencils
Blaisdell PENCIL COMPANY PHILADELPHIA

Hillsdale-Jackson Bus Line
Four Round Trips each Day
Two Round Trips Sunday
NORTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams 6:45 a. m
" " " 1:15 p. m
SOUTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams 8:15 a. m.
" " " 4:20 p. m.
SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS
Bus north at 5:15 p. m
Bus south (via Jonesville) 11:20

The Shark Bonanza

In the good old days of our childhood we remember well the prevalence of all kinds of sharks who roamed the country at will preying upon rural folk mostly and occasionally a city dweller. These nimble-fingered gents were not only nimble with the tongue but also more or less slight-of-hand performers and could often camouflage a novice out of ten dollar bills as easily as a six months old pig can get outside his swill—if we may be pardoned for the comparison. Usually at the County fair there would be a goodly number of such shysters perched on soap boxes addressing the gaping sons of toil, one of the favorite schemes being the old familiar soap trick. Ten dollar bills and five dollar bills would be wrapped around a cake of soap and the whole business sold to a customer. Of course the first few really had ten dollar bills i i—and were bought by cappers in the crowd who extracted the real stuff before the eyes of the astonished farm yokels. After that it was quite easy to sell many cakes of soap—minus the bait. Then we used to hear of the three-card monte men who traveled on regular passenger trains and finding a gentlemen with pockets full of money casually engaged him in a game of cards. Of course these crooks were expert card players and could usually bring up any card in the deck. Result—they quit with the victim's money and he had learned a lot about the euchre deck which he never dreamed. Then there were the "gold brick" chaps but the law finally got strictly in earnest and put the boys all out of business. It used to be upheld that a man who was silly enough to allow himself to be hooked by these skunks was not amenable to the law and the law did not protect him very strongly but today it is different. The law has come to assume that no man is capable of taking care of his money and seeks to do it for him, so that between private detectives and local officers the crook has hard sledding.

Other schemes were the "Bohemian Oat Swindle" and the wonderful "magic wheat" which was guaranteed to produce one hundred bushels per acre. All these are gone the way of the wicked; in their footsteps came the slick stock and bond swindler who was armed with beautiful stock certificates printed in four colors and gold—heavenly to look at but not worth the ink upon them. What a lot of them they sold on wonderful gold mines in the west that never were dug; spouting oil wells in Texas that never spouted, and colonization schemes that never existed anywhere except on paper. Florida lands were offered as premiums and prizes for the first ten bites received and so it went, but all are gone. We might say that possibly not the disasterous experience but the fact that newspapers and periodicals everywhere have taken it upon themselves to expose these vermin—and so hard and relentless have they been followed that most of them are eliminated. Somebody says "consult your banker" but how much more sensible would it be if you should consult your own common sense. We once knew a hard-working laboring man who decided his dollars ought to begin producing and he somehow got the hallucination that anything in the stock line that he could get was his only salvation. At death he had a trunk full of these pretty little certificates which probably were useless the minute they were off the press—the poor fellow had bought them in honest faith believing.

We believe there is a day not far distant when any firm of brokers who put out a stock without first obtaining permission and the full sanction of the state utilities commission will be at once prosecuted. These things should be outlawed as much as murderers.

FRED W. GREEN
GOVERNOR

LUREN D. DICKINSON
LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

JOHN S. HAGGERTY
SECRETARY of STATE

ORAMEL B. FULLER
AUDITOR GENERAL

WM. W. POTTER
ATTORNEY GENERAL

FRANK D. McKAY
STATE TREASURER

ERNEST A. SNOW
CIRCUIT JUDGE

Selection of Dairy Cattle Breeds Influenced by Shows

A good typical Ayrshire sire Putting on the finishing touches

Many a man who is undecided as to the breed of dairy cattle that he will select has been influenced in making his decision by the animals of a particular breed that he has seen in public.

The individual breeder secures a great deal of advertising as the result of exhibiting at fairs, or in offering good animals at public sales. It gives people a chance to see and know the kind of stock that a man is breeding and paves the way for future business.

It is essential that special care and attention be given dairy animals far in advance of the time that they are to be exhibited or sold. Exhibiting or selling animals publicly in their everyday clothes is poor advertising and puts them at a disadvantage when the competition is keen. It takes several weeks to put a dairy animal in good show condition and what applies to fitting for show applies as well to fitting for sale.

It is important that the dairy animal to be exhibited or sold be in good flesh. A good covering of flesh adds to size, increases smoothness and indicates that the animal is thrifty and in good health. Dairy animals being fitted need extra feed.

Stabling and blanketing are great aids in putting the hair and hide in condition. By stabling in summer, the animal is protected from the hot sun which makes the hide harsh and stiff to the touch. A roomy box stall that is kept clean and well bedded provides desirable quarters. Continuous blanketing helps keep the animal clean, sweats the hide, thus improving its handling qualities and makes the hair lay to the body. The blanket need not be expensive but it must be tied on securely.

Every dairy animal that is to be exhibited should have the hair clipped from the entire body about three weeks previous to the date of the show or sale. This will get rid of the old hair and allow a new, even growth to develop which will greatly improve the appearance and increase the selling value of the animal.

A point often overlooked in the preparation of a dairy animal for show or sale is that of training to lead and stand properly. An untrained animal cannot display its good points to advantage if it combats the efforts of the attendant to exhibit it properly. A little time spent each day in training to handle properly will save effort and embarrassment at the show or sale and increase the financial return.

While in the show or sale ring, the man in charge of an animal should have one main thought in mind, namely that of showing the animal to advantage. By this is meant that when it stands, its feet are properly placed, back straight and head alert. Any movement on the part of the attendant or animal should be as graceful as possible. Until the ribbons are placed or the auctioneer's hammer falls, take no chances.

Turkey Talk

When you select your turkey for Thanksgiving, one of the chief considerations is the amount and quality of the flesh of the body, especially on the brest, back and hips. Plenty of flesh means plenty of meat for carving, and there should be also a generous amount of fat to insure a moist, tender turkey. The French always expose a turkey in the market with the back up so the housewife can better observe how plump the bird is.

Feeling the end of the brest or keel bone and examining spurs on the feet may give some idea of the age of a turkey, but these tests are not infallible so far as picking out a good tender turkey is concerned Almost any turkey can be cooked so that it is tender, but it is, of course, easier to roast a young bird. The best method of cooking a turkey is that by which the flesh is kept moist and juicy. Cooking it in a covered roaster with a little water in the bottom in a carefully regulated oven will prevent it from drying out. The time for cooking varies according to the age of the turkey and its size.

The custom of having a turkey for Thanksgiving dinner dates back to the early New England settlers, who found turkeys wild and highly recommended by the Indians. Domestic turkeys are at their prime in the fall and their size makes them suitable for serving to a good many people, so that the custom, for practical reasons, has continued down to the present.

Much soft corn is reported in the fields this fall and most of the farmers plan on feeding this at once, as it will not keep cribbed for any length of time. It seems as if the fellows who shredded their output have gotten the best of the deal. Hogging down is going to be very popular and it is being done extensively. Some have turned the sheep into the fields of standing corn thinking that the most they can do is to feed it off that way. Last year every man who sheeped down his corn made a good profit and he ought to do even better this season as mutton is higher than ever. In any direction you may go from North Adams you find large fields of both shocked and unshocked corn standing out, showing conclusively that the later the fall the slower the farmers are about harvesting corn. This is not good husbandry but it is about all that goes here. When we were boys forty years ago the best farmers always cleaned up their corn fields late in October or early in November with corn in crib and stover stacked ready for winter fodder. Nowadays corn stover is not very good for our fancy blue ribbon dairy herds. They eat chopped hay and silage, hence the farmer raises corn only for the grain, and in such seasons as this when the crop fails to harden he is at a heavy loss.

Greatest Woman Shot in the World, Dead

Most of our readers will remember the famous Annie Oakley one of the best rifle shooters in the United States. For many years she traveled with the big Buffalo Bill's Wild West Shows and has been at Hillsdale several times as the main drawing card of the circus. She was 66 years of age at her death which occurred at her home in Darke County, Ohio November 3rd. Here she first learned to use the deadly rifle with which she traveled the whole world and exhibited her skill before most of the crowned heads of Europe. Her stunts included lying on her back on the ground and hitting the bulls eye with her head towards the target and sighting through a small looking glass. She used to shoot glass balls out of the hands of attendants safely and delighted in shattering balls thrown into the air. In truth she would have been an exceedingly dangerous character to meet if she had run amuck. It is said that while with the outfit in the west in early days she gained the acquaintance and esteem of old Chief Sitting Bull of the Sioux Indians and was always a friend to him.

While the Buffalo Bill shows were in England King Edward was on the throne and with his sporty instincts he could not help admiring the chipper American woman whose aim was so deadly, and the King awarded her a gold medal for being the best shot in the world in his opinion.

Twenty-five years ago or more she received injuries in a train wreck in her travels which finally resulted in complete paralyzation and death. Thus passes one of the most noted woman rifle shots ever known in the world. It will be recalled that in her palmy days she usually called forth more enthusiasm than did "Buffalo Bill" himself in the sawdust ring. When at Hillsdale the last time she dressed in khaki cloth riding outfit with trousers but this did not seem to detract from her popularity'.

Cancer of the breast is one of the common forms of cancer and it may occur in men and women, though of course more frequent in women over the age of forty. It is somewhat less common in women who have nursed their babies than in women who have had no children. Many women have lost their lives from cancer of this structure but there is reason to think that, with the spreading of the knowledge, there are ways the development of cancer of the breast can be avoided. Any lump in this organ, any abnormal discharge, any sore should be investigated at once by the physician and treated.

Fruit Men Will Hold Annual State Meeting

Horticultural leaders of the state will meet at Grand Rapids November 30 to December 3 for discussion of the problems of the fruit growing industry at the fifty sixth annual meeting of the Michigan State Horticultural Society.

The forty-third annual meeting of the American Pomological Society will be held in conjunction with the Horticultural Society meeting. This will be the first meeting in 41 years of the Pomological organization to be held in Michigan. Charles A. Garfield, of Grand Rapids, was secretary of the Pomological Society at the time of their last meeting in the state. Mr. Garfield who is now over 80 years of age will be one of the speakers on the program this year.

Cash prizes will be offered in 12 classes in the Apple Show, in addition to special premiums offered by manufactures of materials and equipment used in the apple growing industry in a special section of 22 classes. The State Horticultural Society is trying to persuade fruit men to grow fewer varieties and is limiting the number of varieties eligible in 1923. There will be a judging contest for agricultural high schools and one for college students. M. S. C. students will enter in the oratorical contest on problems in fruit growing.

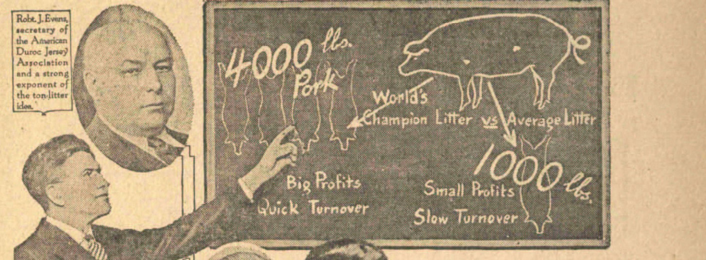
Prominent growers and leaders in the fruit industry will appear on the programs of both the Horticultural Society and the Pomological Society. M. S. C. men who will appear on the program are Prof. V. R. Gardner, head of the horticultural department and Prof. R. H. Pettit, head of the entomology department.

Both societies will join in staging a banquet during the meetings. Paul Stark, president of the American Pomological Society will act as chairman.

While the feeding of large quantities of cottonseed meal will poison cattle, mature steers may be given about three quarters of a pound of the meal per 100 pounds live weight daily for about 100 days without harmful effect. With silage it may be fed longer. In fact it is better always to feed it with a laxative feed such as silage or legume hay. Cottonseed meal is less harmful to older cattle than to the younger animals.

The jungle fowl ancestor of the present day hen probably would like to issue a statement condemning present day methods and lauding the old days when 20 eggs was a year's work.

Science Points Way to Cheaper Pork



Robt. J. Evans, secretary of the American Duroc Jersey Association and a strong exponent of the ton-litter idea.

Prof. J. R. Wiley, of Purdue University, "father of the ton-litter idea."

F. H. Norman, of Roann, Indiana, who produced the first ton-litter on record.

GEO. W. DAVIES

Secretary of the American Poland-China Record Association, Explaining How Farmers May Add One Hundred Million Dollars to Their Annual Income by Following the Ton-Litter Idea.

IF THE American farmer will apply in his pig raising certain practical principles made available to him by science and experience he can boost his income $100,000,000 a year from this one source alone.

Next month will witness the return of the ton-litter reports. Farmers who want to learn how to make more money out of their "mortgage-lifters," will study these master lessons of economic pork production with greatest care, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, which exhibited the champion two-ton litter last year.

In effect the "Ton-Litter" means a material reduction in the overhead carried by the farmer on his pigs by getting more pigs to market from each of his sows. More pigs from less sows and few simple rules of sanitation in their raising, mark all the difference to the farmer making this $100,000,000 or doing without it.

Just what the "Ton Litter" can do for the farmer was demonstrated in dramatic fashion at the American Royal Livestock Show at Kansas City and the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago last fall. The thousands of men and women who thronged both of these shows were amazed to learn that the 16 pigs comprising the world's champion litter of pigs exhibited by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation weighed 4,789 pounds at six months of age. Over two tons of pork from one sow in 180 days!

Largely as a result of the Foundation's pig exhibit, and brought closer home by a depressed corn market, the "Ton Litter" is rapidly winning many converts among farmers who had previously scoffed at it. They are coming around to see that through proper feeding, breeding, care, and management they can turn out at six months a litter of pigs weighing 2,060 pounds that had previously taken them twelve to eighteen months to produce.

Business Methods Used.

"In exhibiting the world's champion litter of pigs at the two largest livestock shows in America, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation hoped to demonstrate just what business-like methods in growing hogs for the market would do for the farmer," says Samuel R. Guard, director of the Foundation. "When these 'Ton Litter' contests were first started the idea was to produce 2,000 pounds of pork in six months from a litter of ten. That meant an average of 200 pounds a pig in six months. Some farmers believed this was too much, but many of them, by breeding prolific, rapidly maturing stock of good size, succeeded in producing litters weighing over a ton. The world's champion litter went well over the two-ton mark in six months, instead of a single ton. This should convince the average farmer that a production of 'Ton Litters' is not such a difficult matter after all. We fully expect to see the 4,789-pound record eclipsed this year.

The "Ton Litter" idea, which is well on the way to revolutionizing the pork production industry, first came into the mind of Professor James R. Wiley, swine extension specialist of Purdue University and assistant secretary of the Indiana Livestock Breeders' Association. In a statement to the Foundation, he tells some of the circumstances that provided the setting of the first "Ton Litter" project.

Prof. Wiley's Work.

"There were several things that led up to the organization and subsequent development of "Ton Litter" work," Mr. Wiley declares. "In the first place, two or three years of extension work among hog producers in Indiana showed the need for a project that would teach good management. I found that many Indiana farmers knew what good rations were and they were feeding them. The vast number of Indiana hogs I also found were well-bred and if fed and managed right would top the market. We therefore first organized what we call Hog Production Demonstrations, in which the farmer co-operating with us kept a record of the feed and reported on various items of management. The task of keeping records did not appeal to the farmer, and so while this work never became general, we did get some good data on the importance of raising big litters of pigs. On a group of 52 farms we found that it took 278 pounds of feed to produce a weanling pig when an average of four pigs were raised per litter. When an average of six pigs were raised per litter it took 182 pounds of feed, and when litters averaging seven and one-half pigs were brought up to weight, only 138 pounds of feed was required. We also found that when all were marketed the pork produced where seven or more hogs were marketed per litter cost approximately a dollar a hundred less than on farms where five hogs or under per litter went to market."

Five Pigs to the Litter.

Mr. Wiley's survey also showed that the average litter contained but five and seven-tenths pigs and that the average weight of those litters at six months of age was low—1,030 pounds for those made up of from five to seven pigs. This convinced Mr. Wiley that the key to increased hog profit lay in the prolificacy in sows and the ability to grow rapidly in pigs.

That was in 1922. Many of the leading hog growers looked upon the development of one-ton litters in six months' time under average farm conditions as nothing more than an idle dream and politely refused to take part in the contest. Mr. Wiley and his associates, however, scoured around the state until they had found a sufficient number of farmers who were willing to follow the few simple yet rigid rules laid down for the contest. The work began. Long before the pigs were six months old the excellent results of the work became evident. Thirty-six ton litters were marketed in Indiana that year as a result of that contest. And the "Doubting Thomases" had to admit that the raising of litters weighing a ton in 180 days under average everyday farm conditions was not only possible, but could be accomplished without much difficulty.

After the first season's work, the swine extension men in other states were so completely sold on the ton-litter idea that the organization of ton litters was immediately made a major project in practically every section of the country. From these thirty-six litters in the one ton class in 1922, interest in the work has continued to grow until last year 741 ton litters were reported in 23 states. Following are the states where ton litter contests flourished last year, and the number of ton litters credited to each:

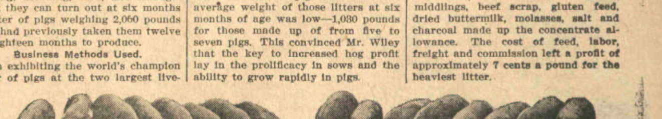
Illinois	122	Texas	16
Pennsylvania	121	Idaho	8
Indiana	85	Georgia	6
Minnesota	79	Oregon	5
Tennessee	67	Virginia	4
Kentucky	44	Louisiana	3
Ohio	44	North Dakota	3
Missouri	35	Kansas	2
Wisconsin	34	Nebraska	2
Iowa	27	Utah	2
Oklahoma	21	North Carolina	1
Michigan	18
		Total	741

Two Tons of Pork on Hoof.

The astounding thing about the 1925 "Ton Litter" contest in the various states is the phenomenal weight to which some of these litters have been brought up. Over seventeen tons of hogs from eight sows on seven farms in six states were produced in one year. These eight sows, with one in Texas in 1924, are the dams of the only known litters in the world to reach a weight of two tons or more at 180 days of age. They demonstrate absolutely that not only can one ton of pork on the hoof be made in six months, but that double that amount is possible if the best methods of breeding, feeding and management are followed.

The champion litter of the year and of all time was produced by the Rawleigh Farms at Freeport, Ill. This remarkable group of 16 purebred Poland-China pigs reached the world's record weight of 4,789 pounds in six months after passing the one-ton mark when 102 days old. These pigs were rescued by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation from 25,000 others on the Chicago market when they were within five minutes of the "sticker's" knife in the packing plant. They were then used to make up one of the feature educational exhibits at last year's American Royal and the International Livestock Shows. Another litter on the same farm, consisting of 15 pigs, weighed 4,511 pounds in 180 days, the second highest weight on record.

Strict adherence to modern sanitation practices was followed in the development of these two litters. Blue grass before weaning and rape afterwards, with plenty of fresh, clean water were furnished. Corn, tankage, minerals, skim milk and kitchen waste with a pig meal consisting of bran, corn meal, linseed meal, rolled oats, middlings, beef scrap, gluten feed, dried buttermilk, molasses, salt and charcoal made up the concentrate allowance. The cost of feed, labor, freight and commission left a profit of approximately 7 cents a pound for the heaviest litter.



The biggest two-ton litter ever produced—16 pigs out of a single sow—weighing 4,789 pounds in 180 days. The champion litter was shown at the live stock expositions in Kansas City and Chicago last fall by its owner, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation.

Satisfactory Dairy Barn

By the statement that every dairyman should have a suitable barn, it is not meant to imply that a fortune should be invested in one. Under present conditions, it is doubtful whether any farmer is justified in incurring great expense for the erection of an elaborate dairy barn. There are a few qualifications which make a dairy barn a suitable place. The most important are probably warmth, light, ventilation, sanitation and convenience.

Has Helped 7,500

Is this work worth while? The best answer, says the Community Fund writer, is to be found in the institution's own records. Some 7,500 girls and women have found care and shelter in the Detroit convent since its foundation in 1883. Hundreds of them have married and become the mothers of happy families. Often they come back for a visit, bringing their husbands or their children, so that the Sisters can see for themselves how they have prospered.

Others have made their marks in the professions and in the business world.

The work in the Detroit institution is being duplicated in each of the 279 other houses maintained by the order, which was founded by the Rev. Fr. John Eudes, at Caen, in the province of Normandy, in 1641. The first foundation in America was in Louisville, Ky., in 1841, with five nuns. The order is now established in every country except China. The Detroit institution is one of 52 in the United States.

Keep Fit!

Good Health Requires Good Elimination.

TO be well, you must keep the blood stream free from impurities. If the kidneys lag, allowing body poisons to accumulate, a toxic condition is created. One is apt to feel dull, languid, tired and achy. A nagging backache is sometimes a symptom, with drowsy headaches and dizzy spells. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. If you have reason to suspect improper kidney functioning, try Doan's Pills — a tested stimulant diuretic. Users praise them throughout the United States. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c

Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys

Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chemists, Buffalo, N.Y

Handiest thing in the house

SAFE FOR CHILDREN

For bumps, bruises, cuts, burns, chafing and rashes. Internally for coughs and colds. "Vaseline" Jelly is an invaluable remedy for many children's ills.

Chesebrough Mfg. Company State St. (Consolidated) New York

Vaseline

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF

PETROLEUM JELLY

Use Cuticura Soap And Ointment To Heal Sore Hands

DR. STAFFORD'S

OLIVE TAR

Favorite remedy for three generations for CROUP, bronchitis, influenza.

Relieves rheumatism, neuralgia. Soothes burns, chilblains.

HALL & RUCKEL New York

FOR COLDS

Gave Her Pause

Dr. William Jay Schieffelin of the Citizens' union was complaining about certain delays in the investigation of the New York milk scandal.

"The authorities," he said, "declare their resolve to investigate the scandal through and through, but in all their declarations there is something equivocal, fishy—something that gives us pause, as Shakespeare would say.

"It's like the young man's declaration of love.

"'Darling,' said the young man, 'I'd go through hades for you.'

"'Yes, so you say,' the girl replied, 'but how can I prove it?'

"'By marrying me,' said the young man."

Nothing dries sooner than a tear.

CHILDREN WHO ARE SICKLY

Mothers who value the health of their children, should never be without MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS FOR CHILDREN, for use when needed. They tend to Break up Colds, Relieve Feverishness, Worms, Constipation, Headache, Teething disorders and Stomach Troubles.

TRADE MARK DON'T ACCEPT ANY SUBSTITUTE Used by Mothers for over 30 years. At Druggists everywhere. Ask today. Trial package FREE, address THE MOTHER GRAY CO., LeROY, N. Y.

Today's Big Offer to All Who Have Stomach Agony

Read About This Generous Money Back Guarantee

When you have any trouble with your stomach such as gas, heaviness and distention, why fool with things which at best can only give relief.

Why not get a medicine that will build up your upset, disordered stomach and make it so strong and vigorous that it will do its work without any help.

Such a medicine is Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a delightful elixir that is sold by your local dealer and druggists everywhere with the distinct understanding that if it doesn't greatly help you your money will be gladly returned.

It has helped thousands—it will no doubt help you.

NOTICE!

To Livestock Owners

If You Own Any Horses, Cattle, Poultry or Hogs, by All Means Read This.

Safeguard your stock against the costly ravages of quick-spreading disease. Nature has provided wonderful health-giving roots and herbs which have proved unfailing in thousands of cases. These are combined in a time-tried, reliable remedy, Porter's Pain King—the standby of hundreds of farmers in this community. They recommend it highly for sores, colds and distemper in horses and for soreness of the udder, caked teats, and bloat in cows.

Every day chickens are becoming better money-earners, and there is an increasing use of Porter's Pain King by careful poultry raisers everywhere. It is a positive relief for gapes, roup and parasitic growths. Sick hens are not good layers.

Use Porter's Pain King at the slightest sign of trouble. Just follow the directions with each bottle. It may save you several hundred dollars. Your dealer guarantees satisfaction or money back. Made and guaranteed by The Geo. H. Rundle Co., Piqua, Ohio, since 1871.

INSIST UPON KEMP'S BALSAM for that COUGH!

1—Remains of Gen. George Bell, Jr., lying in state in Chicago. 2—British airship carrying two airplanes which were launched successfully in full flight. 3—Rt. Rev. Arthur Winnington-Ingram, lord bishop of London, placing in the Washington cathedral a brick from church at Jamestown, Va., first one founded in American colonies.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Result of the National Elections—G. O. P. Nearly Loses Senate Control.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

ELECTION day was far from satisfactory to the Republican party, for it almost if not quite lost control of the senate and its majority in the lower house will be considerably reduced. Seven Republican senators were defeated by Democrats, these being Wadsworth of New York, Butler of Massachusetts, Weller of Maryland, Ernst of Kentucky, Williams of Missouri, Harreld of Oklahoma and Cameron of Arizona. Their successful opponents were Wagner, Walsh, Tydings, Barkley, Hawes, Thomas and Hayden. In the new senate there will be 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite. To control its organization the Republicans will need one more vote and the Democrats two. This figuring pre-supposes that Brookhart of Iowa and Frazier of North Dakota, who were read out of the party, stand by it in organizing the body. Smith was victorious in Illinois and Vare in Pennsylvania, despite the campaign scandals, and the senate will have to decide whether or not to exclude them. The question will not come up until the new senate meets in December, 1927, unless the Democrats, by holding up some important appropriation bill, compel the President to convene the new congress in the spring. The new house of representatives will have 238 Republicans, 194 Democrats, 2 Farmer-Laborites and 1 Socialist. The Democrats gained 11 seats.

Of the individual results of the election the most notable was the defeat of Senator Butler of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican national committee, close personal friend of the President and the only candidate for whose support Mr. Coolidge made an open appeal. Butler was the victim of the defection of wet Republicans, who deserted his dry standard and flocked to the wine and beer platform of Walsh, and of the discontent in the textile mill and shoe factory towns in which there is widespread unemployment.

Frank Smith in Illinois had some 70,000 plurality, Brennan cutting down the normal Republican majority tremendously. This was due in part to the independent candidacy of Magill but much more to the prohibition issue. In Indiana Watson and Robinson, Republicans, embarrassed by the klan control revelations, barely scraped through. The Democrats announced that recounts would be demanded in three counties. Brookhart of Iowa returns to the senate from which he was ousted with about 70,000 plurality over Claude R. Porter, this result being interpreted by the Iowa press as a reiteration of the Middle West's demand for farm relief legislation.

Al Smith, invincible in his race for re-election as governor of New York, carried Justice Wagner into the senate on his great wave of votes. Senator Wadsworth ran well outside of the metropolis, despite the bolt of the dry Republicans. Smith found Congressman Ogden Mills easier to defeat than was Theodore Roosevelt in 1924. His position as a potential Presidential nominee is greatly enhanced by this latest victory. Albert Ritchie, re-elected governor of Maryland, retains his chances for the same honor.

Incomplete returns from Wyoming indicate that Nellie Tayloe Ross, the last remaining woman governor in the country, was defeated by Frank C. Emerson. Of governors elected Tuesday 14 are Republicans and 12 are Democrats.

OF THE eight states in which prohibition referenda were held, six voted wet, one voted dry but elected a wet senator, and one voted dry entirely. The wet majorities in Illinois, New York and Wisconsin, where the Anti-Saloon league counseled drys not to participate, were overwhelming. Nevada, California and Montana also voted for modification of the prohibition laws. In Colorado and Missouri the drys were on top. Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, admitted the drys had had setbacks all over the country and declared these only "challenged the drys to get busier than ever."

One Washington correspondent says: "An examination of the returns all over the country will show that Republicans who ran wet in dry territory were either defeated or had hard contests. The tendency shown by this election will go far toward making more Republicans nervous if the prohibition issue is to be fought out on its merits in 1928. What the fanatical drys will do in that kind of a contest will have considerable bearing both in framing the issue and in the outcome."

IMMEDIATELY after it became known that Senator Butler was defeated the air was full of reports that he would at once resign as chairman of the Republican national committee. It is understood in Washington that he will not quit this post without the President's consent and that in any case his resignation will be postponed for some time. If he should step out now, it would be assumed that this meant Mr. Coolidge would not be a candidate for renomination, and on this question the President has been silent.

CONGRESSMAN MARTIN MADDEN of Chicago, the able chairman of the appropriations committee of the house, makes the welcome announcement that taxes on next year's incomes will be cut between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000.

"I am certain that another reduction can be made and I will recommend it, as I did the last one," the congressman said. "There will be a surplus in the treasury at the end of this year. It will amount to about $250,000,000. Next year we will undoubtedly be able to arrange a new tax cut, to become effective in 1928 on 1927 income."

"NOTHING can happen to me until I have finished my work," declared Premier Mussolini after the sixth attempt to assassinate him had failed, and it would seem that his fatalistic attitude is justified. This time it was in Bologna, where the duce was attending the congress for the advancement of science. An eighteen-year-old youth pushed through the crowds and fired a pistol point blank at the premier, the bullet ripping through his coat. Before he could shoot again the lad was pounded to death by the infuriated mob. As always before, the attack on their leader's life enraged the Fascists tremendously and there were anti-French demonstrations accompanied by bloodshed in various places. The police asserted they had uncovered a great plot, the assassin being a mere tool, and hundreds of arrests were made. The Italian government apologized for attacks on French consulates and France accepted the explanations, but the feeling between the two peoples is becoming extremely bitter. The Italians are convinced that the anti-Fascist plots are hatched in France, and the French believe Italy is scheming to get possession of Nice and the Riviera and part of France's north African colonies.

French police, after a year of watching, descended on a nest of Catalonian plotters against Spain in Perpignan and arrested 93 conspirators on the eve of their proposed uprising for the independence of Catalonia. The revolutionists had hoped their revolt would spread throughout Spain and result in the downfall of Dictator De Rivera if not of the monarchy.

PRELIMINARY hearing of the Aimee McPherson case in Los Angeles resulted in the holding for trial of the evangelist, her mother, Mrs. Kennedy, and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman Sielaff, their chief accuser. They were bound over to the Superior court on augmented counts of criminal conspiracy. If convicted, they face possible penitentiary sentence of one to ten years on the first count of the indictments; that of obstructing justice; one to five years on the second count, that of preparing false evidence; and one to fourteen on the third, conspiring to suborn perjury.

Kenneth Ormiston, former radio operator at Angelus Temple and the man with whom the state charges Mrs. McPherson occupied a cottage at Carmel by the Sea during the time she was supposed to have been the captive of kidnapers in Mexico, was bound over to Superior court on the assumption that he will be arrested in time for trial. If he is not arrested by that time, the charges will be kept alive against him.

ISHPEMING, MICH., was the scene of a distressing mine disaster when a great section of swamp land broke into the Barnes-Hecker iron mine and filled up the underground passages. Fifty-two men were trapped by the cave-in and all of them perished. Water rushed into the mine after the mud and filled it almost completely. Rescue crews were on hand promptly but could not do nothing to save the miners.

MEXICO'S campaign against the Yaquis of Sonora is proceeding, according to plans laid by General Obregon. First a number of airplanes flew over the mountains and totally destroyed the Indians' towns with explosive and incendiary bombs, and many of the inhabitants were killed. Hundreds of others were then taken prisoner and these are being scattered in other localities, the able-bodied men being enlisted in the army.

FIGHTING between the Liberals and the government forces in Nicaragua has been resumed, despite the resignation of General Chamorro, president de facto. Large quantities of arms and munitions are being received by the Liberals from Mexico and in one battle last week they carried a Mexican flag—but were badly defeated. Salvador and Costa Rica are reported to be supporting the Conservatives, while Mexico, Guatemala and perhaps Honduras are helping the rebellious faction. The entire east coast of the country is patroled by United States naval units and Washington insists the quarrel must cease and Adolfo Diaz be chosen president.

RULING on a case from Louisiana, the Supreme court of the United States decided that both the federal government and a state may lawfully prosecute a person in their respective courts for violations of their prohibition laws growing out of the same act. Discussing the contention of double jeopardy, the court, in an opinion by Justice Van Devanter, to which no dissent was announced, held that "the eighteenth amendment contemplated that the manufacture of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes may be denounced as a criminal offense both by the federal law and by the state law; and that these laws may not only co-exist, but be given full operation each independently of the other. Only offenses against the laws of the United States are cognizable under its authority. Those against state laws are cognizable only under the authority of the state. And this is true where the same act is an offense against both a law of the United States and a law of a state."

MAJ. GEN. GEORGE BELL, JR., commander of the Thirty-third division in France and one of the outstanding generals of the World war, died in Chicago, and his funeral was the occasion of a great gathering of Illinois officers and doughboys who had served under him, loved him and admired his bravery and intelligence.

Another notable taken by death was Harry Houdini, magician extraordinary and exposer of spiritualism frauds. He passed away in Detroit, the cause of death being peritonitis resulting from a ruptured appendix.

IN HER progress through the Northwest Queen Marie of Rumania stopped at the town of Maryhill, Wash., and assisted in the formal dedication of the "Museum of Fine Arts" which Samuel Hill is erecting there. She took occasion to avow her sincere friendship for Mr. Hill and for Loie Fuller, the dancer, and certainly added to her popularity by her outspoken language.

CROWN PRINCE LEOPOLD of Belgium and Princess Astrid, niece of King Gustav of Sweden, were married in Stockholm with all due ceremony and display. The royal families of Belgium, Sweden, Norway and Denmark all were there in full force and the people of Stockholm made the event a real festival.

Japanese Movie Fans Like American Films

Popularity of the American moving picture is a problem for the Japanese producers and theater owners.

Their efforts to win the public away from the foreign-made films thus far have met with but little success, although the native producers are continuing their campaign for the home-made variety.

Love dramas, comedies and "westerns" are the American films most popular in Japan. But, at the same time, the Japanese public likes its own films depicting important historical events of Nippon.

These productions are devoid of any humor whatever and usually consist of scene after scene of gory drama.

The American films shown in Japan are generally understood by the oriental "fans" to truly represent life as it is lived in the United States. That there are no real picturesque "wild west" cowboys and "bad men" of the frontier type, as shown by the imported films, would not be believed by the natives who nightly flock to the theaters. "Society" dramas, as well as "westerns," cause the Japanese to smile and wonder at the "absurd" doings of the "funny Americans."

But the picture theater business apparently is good in Japan right now. Official figures disclose that some 4,400,000 feet of film are shown to the audiences daily. There are at present 811 moving-picture theaters in Japan and a number of others are being built.

Women, Don't Suffer!

Kokomo, Ind.—"I was suffering with all kinds of aches and pains—head, back and side, dizzy spells and nervousness. The doctors tried to help me and I tried all kinds of remedies but got little relief. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I hesitated on account of the failure of other treatments, but at last I tried it. One bottle helped me so much I got two more, and by the time I had taken them I was feeling like a different woman. It had relieved me of all aches and pains and made me well."—Mrs. Roy Griffey, 1225 W. Taylor St. All dealers.

Remarkable Typewriter

A typewriter having 1,160 keys which cover no fewer than 40 alphabets has been invented for taking rapid dictation without the use of shorthand. In a test the inventor has attained a speed of 283 words a minute.

"DANDELION BUTTER COLOR"

A harmless vegetable butter color used by millions for 50 years. Drug stores and general stores sell bottles of "Dandelion" for 35 cents.—Adv.

The Explanation

"Why did she marry Jack? I thought she valued her freedom."

"She did. But she couldn't bear to think of Jack having any."

Sure Relief

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS Hot water Sure Relief

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

25¢ and 75¢ Pkg's. Sold Everywhere

Coughs and Colds

are not only annoying, but dangerous. If not attended to at once they may develop into serious ailment.

Boschee's Syrup

is soothing and healing in such cases, and has been used for sixty years. 30c and 90c bottles. At all druggists. If you cannot get it write to G. G. Green, Inc., Woodbury, N. J.

EYES HURT?

For burning or scaly lids, and to relieve inflammation and soreness, use Mitchell Eye Salve, according to directions. Soothing, healing.

HALL & RUCKEL 147 Waverly Place New York

Rattlesnake Serum

The dread of the rattler may soon be greatly reduced, if not totally eliminated. Anti-rattlesnake bite serum in portable cases can now be purchased by hikers and outdoor workers. The San Diego Zoological society makes a business of extracting poison from the fang sack of rattlers, preparing the serum from it, and then selling it at little more than cost, put up in little cases that can be easily carried by all who venture into rattlesnake territory.

Cuticura for Sore Hands.

Soak hands on retiring in the hot suds of Cuticura Soap, dry and rub in Cuticura Ointment. Remove surplus Ointment with tissue paper. This is only one of the things Cuticura will do if Soap, Ointment and Talcum are used for all toilet purposes.—Advertisement.

New Race of People

A new race of people, speaking an unknown tongue, has been discovered on the River Poora, Siberia. They call themselves "Nesben," and have dark hair and a swarthy complexion.

If one man doesn't do his full share of work in the world, some other man has to carry two burdens.

Too much gravity argues a shallow mind.—Lavater.

Colds 5c

Your throat soothed, head cleared, cough relieved—by the exclusive menthol blend in

LUDEN'S

MENTHOL COUGH DROPS

Waller County for Dairying, Poultry, general crops, truck, watermelons, pastures, good markets. Buy while cheap. Write Secretary, Chamber of Commerce, Hempstead, Texas.

200 ACRE DAIRY and STOCK FARM

Good shipping point, two miles from Griffin. Nine cotton factories, 15,000 population. Three railroads. Term. Reason. Getting old. Address

T. ELLIS DREWRY, Griffin, Ga.

THICK, SWOLLEN GLANDS

which make a horse wheeze, roar, have thick wind or choke-down can be reduced with Absorbine. Also other bunches or swellings. No blister, no hair gone, and horse kept at work. It is economical. At druggists, or $2.50 postpaid.

Horse book 3-S free.

A thankful user says: "Completely removed flesh growth on gland about 7 inches diameter. Sincerely thank you for good advice and Absorbine."

ABSORBINE

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

W. F. YOUNG, Inc. 510 Lyman St., Springfield, Mass.

Want to Hear From Owner of good farm or ranch for sale. A. Curry, 209 so. 12th, Marshalltown, Iowa.

Agents—Buy direct Neckwear, Hosiery, Lingerie at lowest Mill Prices. Ask for circular. A. Master Knit Mills, New Haven, Conn.

HOTEL SACRIFICE NEW FOUR STORY Building fire proof. Beautiful furniture. Handsome lobby. No vacants. Write for particulars. EVANS & PUTNAM, Danville, Illinois

VAIN ELDERLY MAN PICTURED AS BORE

Merely Ridiculous, Opinion of English Writer.

Vanity is as old as the human race and counted a chief failing of the gentler sex, the daughters of Eve rather than the sons of Adam being accused of it. And this despite the fact that from the fig trees of Eden to the shops of Bond street both sons and daughters have mostly shared and shared alike, says Dr. Francis Aveling, reader in psychology, University of London, in the London Mail.

Clothes in every age have been made not to cover only, but to adorn. Cowries and pearls are not merely forms of portable property.

Yet the vanity of man differs much from that of woman. Men, as a rule, do not powder their noses or deftly wield the lipstick; they carry no mirrors in dainty vanity bags or scraps of filmy lace of manageable handkerchiefs. In the main, their satisfaction in themselves is of a sterner quality—often of the body, but more often of the mind.

Men are vain of their real or fancied achievements, physical prowess or mental superiority; and their vanity generally increases with their age; whereas women's generally does not. A vain young thing may be charming; a vain old woman is a rarity, fortunately, for she would be appalling.

But vain old men—and there are many—are ridiculous. At their time of life they ought to know better, for then the usefulness of vanity—as women realize—has gone. They are merely insufferable bores.

"Vain as a peacock!" Since we read into the "minds" of birds and animals only what we find within our own, we may well learn of peacocks. Nature has given to them what we must often procure somehow for ourselves. And who but a male moralist, grown old in moralizing—for moralists are all old men when they shoot their parthian shots at female vanities—would censure nature?

Vanity and the adornments and poses of vanity serve nature's ends. The peacock is not truly "vain" when the gorgeous display of his argosy secures for him a mate, but the urge of vanity in man achieves the same goal.

In most animals what passes thus for vanity is found in males. In man it is blended with coyness in the female. It serves its racial purpose and is wholly natural.

The male variety of vanity—having a good opinion of oneself—if a man lives up to it, makes for effort and achievement, and so serves both individual and race. The only kind of useless, and therefore insufferable, vanity, is the outworn relic of an overestimated past, which holds no promise for the future.

Advance in Air Travel

Aerial "feeder" lines, maintained by light and relatively inexpensive airplanes, are being rapidly established throughout Germany. These "feeder" lines collect air passengers from the provincial towns and take them direct to a big air-route terminal on a schedule which permits the passenger to catch the air expresses to points all over Europe. Eventually these subsidiary lines will take the passengers from the terminal airdromes to their homes but the facilities are not yet sufficient for this. The first of these routes was opened by the norddeutscher Luftverkehr, A. G. on the Bremen-Hamburg route, connecting with Berlin. It is planned to have about twenty airplanes in this new service.

Billions in Pennies

Approximately 10 nickels and 40 pennies are in use for each individual in the United States. Total circulation of nickels is 1,225,000,000, and of pennies 4,500,000,000, and the two kinds of coins contain 34,000,000 pounds of copper, according to a statement by the Copper and Brass Research association. Factors which have contributed to the great demand in this country for nickels and pennies apparently have been the advent of chain stores, the growing volume of business in 5 and 10-cent stores, the requirement of change to ride in street cars, increased use of slot machine venders and the increase in circulation of newspapers requiring a greater amount of change than formerly.

Mothers Are Matchmakers

In Tunis, says a recent visitor to northern Africa, mothers make the matches. Nor are marriages there made in heaven, but rather "at the baths," where girls who have arrived at the marriageable age may be studied and discussed by prospective mothers-in-law. Fathers do not figure in the marriage bargain, save that it is they who are expected to handle all mercenary matters—often finding it expedient to haggle a bit before a settlement agreeable to both sides is arrived at.

Like Meeting Old Friend

When the ninth consecutive car of the same make, belonging to Mr. Dettling of Del Monte, Calif., had finished its days of service, Mr. Dettling went to buy another. While inspecting various models of automobiles, his attention was drawn to an extremely archaic appearing vehicle in the showroom. Looking it over with more than a passing interest, he was amazed to find, by reading the serial and motor numbers, that the car was one he had owned 22 years before.

Silver Fox Most Valued

The biological survey says that the silver fox is the most valuable individual pelt. The marten brings the highest price for the size of the pelt of all North American fur-bearing animals, while, taking into consideration the total annual catch, the muskrat brings the greatest returns.

Electricity to Dry Bills

Electric heat is used to dry the ink on bills made by the bureau of engraving and printing at Washington.

WRIGLEY'S NEW HANDY PACK P.K. CHEWING SWEET

A treat in the Peppermint-flavored sugar-coated jacket and another in the Peppermint-flavored gum inside—utmost value in long-lasting delight

3 handy packs 5¢

WRIGLEY'S P.K. CHEWING SWEET

G144

Valuable "Live Stock"

An economic value of fifteen hundred billion dollars is placed on the lives of the men and women of this country by statisticians of a leading life insurance company. It is estimated that this vital capital, measured in dollars and cents, is about five times as great as the total national wealth contained in money, stocks, bonds, merchandise, real estate and other factors of wealth.

DEMAND "BAYER" ASPIRIN

Take Tablets Without Fear If You See the Safety "Bayer Cross."

Warning! Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for 26 years. Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin. Imitations may prove dangerous.—Adv.

Going 'Way Down

"What is meant by descending to personalities?"

"Talking about a man's feet."

Whoever can do as he pleases commands when he entreats.—Corneille.

There IS no substitute for-
KIRK'S ORIGINAL COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE
COPYRIGHT BY JAMES S. KIRK & COMPANY

Removes grease and grime in a jiffy. Lathers like lightning in the hardest and coldest water. Try it.

JAMES S. KIRK & CO. CHICAGO

HOTEL FORT SHELBY

where Detroit won fame for courtesy

Week-ending at the Fort Shelby is a pleasant custom. An especially pleasant room with bath at $3.50 a day and up—other rooms at $2.50 and up. Servidor equipment with protection against excessive tipping. Central but quiet location. Fort Shelby Garage nearby.

Lafayette Blvd. at First St.

W. G. McKay, Ass't Sec'y
Seth E. Frymire, Manager

DON'T LET A COUGH OR COLD 'GO DOWN'

If you let a cough or cold get down into your bronchial tubes or lungs, it stops being merely a nuisance and becomes a real danger.

A "head cold" is only a bother while it stays in your head. But once it gets down into the "danger zone," serious trouble threatens!

Quickly and unfailingly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral carries sure relief to the seat of danger. Real medicine, reaching deep down with its soothing, healing power, penetrating through and through the irritated membranes of your throat, chest and bronchial tubes.

Don't risk a mere cough syrup as a substitute. Insist on the genuine Ayer's Cherry Pectoral — hospital-proved and prescribed by physicians. At all druggists, 60c and twice as much, $1.00.

For Sore Throat

Rub throat and chest with Vicks: cover with warm flannel. Its double direct action (inhaled and absorbed) brings welcome relief.

VICKS VAPORUB

LEARN

BRICKLAYING

In a School run by Building Contractors.
Catalog Free.
Associated Building Employers
13-21 McConnell St., Grand Rapids

Windustite

KEEP THE COLD, SOOT and DUST OUT

Installing "American Windustite" weather strips saves coal, makes housecleaning easier, gives more comfort from your furnace, and protects furnishings and draperies from outside dirt, soot and dust.

Storm-proof, Dirt-proof, Leak-proof and Rattle-proof

Made and Installed Only by
AMERICAN METAL WEATHER STRIP COMPANY
144 N. Division Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich.

IT'S A FACT

that notwithstanding the Superior quality of

RED ARROW

bread flour, its price is almost the same as ordinary flour. And it makes wonderful bread

WATSON-HIGGINS MILLING CO.
Grand Rapids, Michigan

We Buy and Sell
Listed and Unlisted
STOCKS and BONDS

H. A. BENJAMIN & CO.
Member Detroit Stock Exchange
905 Dime Bank Bldg.
Cadillac 1460 Detroit, Mich.

WE TEACH
STEAM ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL POWER
And
HOUSE WIRING

DETROIT PRACTICAL SCHOOL
23 East Jefferson, Detroit
W. B. MacDonald, M.E.I.C., M.I.E.S
Gus Lender, M.A.I.E.E.; U. C. C. of E., N.A.S.E.

Get Settled

You surely don't intend to stay on your present job all your life. Become a barber the Moler way—from our school to independence in a shop of your own is a short and easy step. Change for better now. Write for free booklet today!

Moler Barber Colleges
33 Years Established 32 Branches
559 Michigan Ave., Detroit.

In Detroit
It is the Tuller
For Value

Facing Grand Circus Park, the heart of Detroit. 800 pleasant rooms, $2.50 and up.
Ward B. James, Manager.
DETROIT, MICH.

HOTEL TULLER

Keep Fit!

Good Health Requires Good Elimination.

To be well, you must keep the blood stream free from impurities. If the kidneys lag, allowing body poisons to accumulate, a toxic condition is created. One is apt to feel dull, languid, tired and achy. A nagging backache is sometimes a symptom, with drowsy headaches and dizzy spells. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. If you have reason to suspect improper kidney functioning, try Doan's Pills—a tested stimulant diuretic. Users praise them throughout the United States. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c
Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys
Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chem., Buffalo, N.Y.

The Rim of the Limelight

Takes Fancy Tumble

Peoria, Ill.—Joseph Rayboltz of Peoria is thinking of joining a circus as a tumbler. Joseph didn't know just how gracefully a man could fall until he took a tumble from the top of a railroad river bridge the other day. He alighted on a moving train and rolled to the ground, only slightly injured.

NEARLY MISSED IT
R.R.

One for the Book

Cleveland, O.—You'll have to look a long time to find somebody that's in a hurry to break into a workhouse. But this individual has been found in Cleveland. He is David Bloomenthal. He asked to be sent to the workhouse on the first police wagon making the trip. Bloomenthal was fined $500 and costs for violation of the liquor law and was given several weeks to collect the amount of the fine. He couldn't meet the requirements so he reported to the judge and explained his plight. "If I have to work out a fine like that don't let me lose any time in getting started," he told the judge. His request was granted.

Hot Stuff

New York—Admitting that he has no intention whatever to attempt an uplifting of the drama, J. P. McEvoy, the playwright, has sailed for Africa to hunt for red-hot mammas to show on Broadway in a new revue. McEvoy said: "What I'll hunt is the native as is. I want to find the primitive dances and bring back the real mamma songs—not the 'take me back to mammy' nonsense.

Find Use for Old Oil

New York—Two new uses for old crankcase oil from automobiles have been found. Airplane skywriters are using it as their ink, dribbling it into red-hot exhaust pipes to make a dense white smoke, according to William C. McTarnahan. A special type of oil burner has been found, also, which burns the old oil and many garage owners are now heating their plants with it, thereby converting a former nuisance into a profitable article.

"How Kingdom of Israel Was Wrecked"

The California Tax Digest, published monthly under the direction of Dr. Milbank Johnson in the interest of taxpayers, in its May issue contains a remarkable article by James Gregory, a Tacoma, Wash., manufacturer. The article is entitled, "How the Kingdom of Israel Was Wrecked." As a preface, Dr. Johnson says:

History reveals, the downfall of all governments in the past has been preceded by an era of excessive taxation; people have toiled long ages under insult, oppression and the burden of special privilege; but whenever taxation has become so extortionate as to take from them the natural fruits of their own labor, they have eventually risen and spoken their minds in no uncertain terms."

In succeeding paragraphs, Mr. Gregory says:

"Solomon was crowned king of Israel in 1015 B. C. His reign was characterized by exceeding brilliancy and great building enterprises. He laid upon the people a very heavy burden of taxation—tribute it was called in those days.

"In 975 B. C. his son, Rehoboam, ascended the throne. The continuance by Rehoboam of excessive taxation wrecked the government."

Mr. Gregory's article quotes the Bible, showing the activities carried on by Solomon, and the immense amount of the people's tax money which he spent lavishly in gratifying his own desires. "And Solomon had 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen, and in other ways exhibited a disposition of liberal expenditure, even to the extent that he had 700 wives."

When Rehoboam ascended the throne he heaped heavier taxes upon the people.

"The rest of the story is sad, indeed. Whereas, King Rehoboam might have had a loyal people, willingly supporting the government upon a basis of reasonable expenditure and reasonable progress, they turned from such loyalty and the kingdom was disrupted.

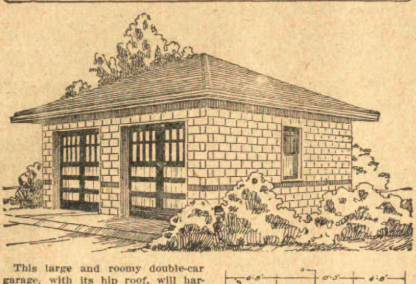
"There is nothing mysterious or hard to understand in this Bible story, if we apply to our own affairs the principles and events and the public policies which characterized the reigns of Solomon and Rehoboam. The people—once aroused to a consciousness that their property was being taken from them, and the normal fruits of their labors devoted to unnecessary public uses, sounded the knell of doom for public officials who had brought to pass such a deplorable fiscal and uneconomic situation.

"And so there is a lesson for public officials in the first Book of Kings."

Classified Advertisements

By a special arrangement and through an organization of newspaper men of which we are a member, we can run your classified advertisement in all these associated Michigan weekly newspapers at a very low price considering number of papers run in.
ASK US ABOUT IT IF YOU WANT TO REACH THOUSANDS

An Attractive Fire-Safe Garage

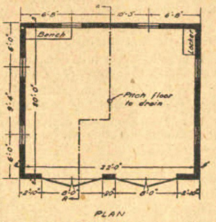


This large and roomy double-car garage, with its hip roof, will harmonize with practically all types of architecture.

The walls are of concrete block, but if the garage is to be built in connection with a brick house, it will be a simple procedure to substitute back-up tile and face brick in erecting the walls. A red or green roof of fire-resistive material is in keeping with the rest of the garage, and will harmonize with either stucco, block, or brick walls.

The plan provides liberal space for two cars, as well as a coal storage and heater room. Cases and a work bench are placed along the rear walls where most convenient of access.

The large doors are each made in hinged sections which slide back against the side walls, entirely out of the way. The floor is of hollow tile laid flatwise upon the cinder or sand fill, to which is added a cement top dressing of one-inch minimum thickness. This provides a dry floor, and when hollow tile is being used on the job is an economical method.



PLAN

Another of the many good points of this design is the large window area, well distributed on all walls, so that all parts of the garage are well-lighted so as to facilitate washing the car and making repairs.

One of the important factors in building a garage is to use good garage hardware—particularly for the large doors.

Accident Prevention

In commenting on that most important subject, accident prevention, J. E. Davidson, President National Electric Light Association, said:

"I do not view Accident Prevention from the standpoint of dollars, but from that of 'sense'—humanitarian sense. I had occasion to visit a power plant in a small Nebraska town recently, and I was introduced to a young man—a fine looking chap—who was minus both of his hands. The accident which brought him this great misfortune could easily have been prevented by caution, officials told me.

"When you meet a man like that, the millions of dollars in savings, the result of accident prevention becomes a secondary reason. His blasted life is more important to him, his family, our industry, and the Commonwealth than all the money we can save by eliminating accidents. But, nevertheless, there is an enormous saving of money that is to be taken into consideration.

"Accident Prevention will not only pay good dividends in money; but more important, it pays dividends in lives saved, tragedies and misfortunes avoided, happiness assured."

RAISED GASOLINE WHEAT

Tom Gray, a farmer near Hutchinson, Kan., raised a 1,760-acre crop of wheat this year with gasoline power exclusively. There is not a horse or mule on the farm. Gasoline tractors pulled plows, drills and disks across the fields. Four big tractors and three combines cut and threshed it. A fleet of motor trucks hauled the grain to market. The total yield was more than 45,000 bushels.

Long Hair—and Whiskers

When Miss Jean Morris became a city magistrate in New oYrk the other day, she promptly bobbed her hair. Asked by reporters if she would not like long hair back again, Magistrate Morris replied, "You don't see men going back to side whiskers, do you?" They didn't. Sidewhiskers disappeared nearly 50 years ago and have never come back.

POOR RISKS

He desired to take out a life policy for $50,000.

Smiling eagerly, the agent drew forth a blank form and began the usual questions:

"Do you drive an automobile?"

"No, I do not."

"Motorcyclist, perhaps?"

"No."

"Then surely you aviate!"

"No."

The agent with a sigh laid down his pen.

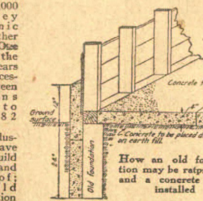
"I'm sorry," he said, "but we no longer insure pedestrians."

STARVING THE RATS

By W. G. KAISER

Agricultural Engineer

SINCE the time when the Pied Piper of Hamlin destroyed the rats, no other such satisfactory method of ridding farms of these pests has been found. The best way is to starve them out and this can only be done by building ratproof buildings or ratproofing such structures as are already built. The United States Department of Agriculture says that rats and mice destroy crops and property valued at more than $200,000,000 yearly. They carry bubonic plague and other fatal diseases. One pair of rats at the end of three years will be the ancestors of eighteen generations amounting to 359,709,482 individuals.



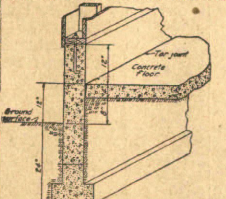
How an old foundation may be ratproofed and a concrete floor installed

In the three illustrations, I have shown how to build foundations and floors ratproof; how to build a false foundation alongside an old foundation and floor it to keep rats from working through and how to ratproof a wooden building. When you build new buildings you should build them with continuous concrete foundation walls extending 24 inches below ground and to a point 12 inches above the floor. When false foundations are to be installed in old buildings they may be placed along side the old foundations either on the outside or the inside as is most convenient.

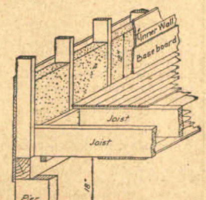
Lumber piles and other miscellaneous structures form a living place for rats which should be eliminated. Lumber piles should be elevated at least eighteen inches from the ground, board walks should be replaced by concrete and garbage should be kept in concrete or metal containers having tight fitting tops. There should not be a scrap of food left where rats can get it. They are ravenous eaters and limitation of their rations will soon cause them to look for a better place to live.

For foundation work such as I have mentioned a 1-2½-4 mixture of concrete is recommended. This means one sack of portland cement to 2½ cubic feet of sand and four cubic feet of pebbles or broken stone. As is absolutely necessary in all concrete work, the sand and pebbles should be free from loam and trash and the water used should be fit for drinking purposes. Only enough water should be added to make the mixture of a quaky and jelly-like consistency. Floors of concrete should be not less than four inches thick. They may either be placed directly on the ground or on a cinder base, but always be sure the soil is well drained. For floors, a concrete mixture of one sack of portland cement, two cubic feet of sand and three cubic feet of gravel or stone is recommended.

Along with ratproof buildings, start a campaign for killing rats. If the ground is undermined with holes, it is possible to drive them into the open or to suffocate them by connecting the system of holes with the exhaust pipe of an automobile. This gas will either drive them out or kill them.



Showing a good method of making foundation and floor of a new building ratproof



Buildings supported on piers are ratproofed by raising above ground level and placing concrete between walls above sills

Making the Careless More Careless

Discussing the advisability of the state entering into the automobile casualty insurance business, and making it compulsory for all automobile owners to carry such insurance, the Manufacturers News of Chicago, says:

"There can be no question that the driver whose sense of personal responsibility is imperfect—and there are many such—gains a certain amount of mental immunity and freedom from personal liability," when his car carries public liability insurance.

"Liability insurance being, however, relatively expensive, those who voluntarily buy it usually have some financial sense of proportion and are not likely to abuse its protection. But make it compulsory; make every car carry liability insurance as a matter of law, and there will be a decline of personal responsibility, the result of which might be distressing in the extreme.

"It should be obvious that accidents cannot be reduced by permitting the state, instead of the responsible agent, to pay the cost. The assurance that a driver causing an accident would become the defendant in a criminal case would have a much more salutary effect. Such an experience is unpleasant even when acquittal is certain, and even the irresponsible driver would use extreme care to avoid it."

United States Has Cheapest Gasoline

While no exact comparison can be made, domestic gasoline prices are both relatively and actually much lower than prevail generally in other parts of the world, it is shown by a Department of Commerce tabulation of retail gasoline and kerosene prices in various countries throughout the world on or about April 1, 1926. Factors making for inequalities in prices include distance from sources of supply, quantity consumed, transportation costs, import duties, excise taxes, disribution and marketing costs, quality of gasoline sold, and many others.

Foreign prices a gallon range from 15 cents in Bucharest, Roumania, to 98 cents in British South Africa. Average of tank wagon prices in 30 representatives American cities on April 10, was 17 cents a gallon, with taxes in the various states ranging from one to five cents; and service station prices two to four cents a gallon above the tank wagon price, plus taxes, where levied.

Workers and Prosperity

Three different delegations of Britons have been making official visits to this country to study our prosperity. They would find why wages of labor are so much higher here than in England, and they want to know why the American workman gives a heavier production than the British toiler.

At the very outset they were moved to vast surprise when they saw that most of our workmen—especially in the building trades—drive their own cars to their labors every morning. In Europe the laboring classes are not supposed to own cars. The price is deemed prohibitive as measured against their scale of wages. In this country low-priced autos may be had on easy terms, and no family is too poor to contemplate possession.

In American factories, labor-saving machinery is much in use. As a result the men who operate the machinery get big wages and the volume of production is large. In all industries individual efficiency is recognized. Better wages and advancement belong to the workers who stand out from the ruck.

At this time the workers of America are living better and drawing greater wages than in any other land on earth . At no time in history did the people of the Old World experience such living conditions as are enjoyed by the ordinary toilers in America today.

Yet there are wild blades still to be found, who would change the substance of our prosperity for the shadow of Socialism!

Communist Failure

Gregory Zinovieff, called one of the most powerful Soviet leaders in Russia and Chairman of the Communist International's Executive Committee, expresses the fear that the American Communist Party is disappearing.

He warns the parent Communist organization that all its energies should be concentrated on the United States to prevent disappearance of radicalism.

He deplores that so far all the expensive work of trying to spread Communist and Socialist political and economic doctrines among Americans is proving futile.

It seems the political and economic experiences of the American people have led them to produce a governmental structure so solid that the shallow surf of Sovietism beats upon it in vain.

More and more is the ownership of great corporations and even financial institutions passing into the hands of employes, and there is resulting a gradual evolution of a higher stage of co-operative society.

Here is one single fact to prove this statement: 16,358 employes of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey recently became holders of common stock valued at $38,000,000—next largest owners in this property to John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

The rank and file of workmen under the Communist doctrine own nothing. They exist from day to day as pawns in a political game. It is no wonder their party is dissappearing in America, where every individual "thinks for himself."

Had Taken No Inventory

An aged Negro, taken ill, called a physician of his own race. But the doctor's treatment did no good and the old man grew weaker and weaker until a white physician was called.

"Did the other doctor take your temperature?" asked the new M. D.

"Ah don't know, sah," answered the patient feebly. "Ah ain't missed nothing yit 'ceptin' mah watch an' a paih o' shoes."

Sooty Chimney Is Dangerous

Chimney sweeps long ago went out of fashion, in this country at least, which may be considered unfortunate at the present moment in view of the need for their services to overcome the effects of the hard coal famine.

This is especially true in the Northern Atlantic States where during the past winter, thousands of tons of soft coal were employed for the first time in heating applicances not designed for its use. Furnace fire-boxes proved too small for proper combustion, as did chimneys, and the outcome was heavily sooted flues, plus numerous fires.

Cleaning smokepipes and flues at least once a year is decidedly necessary, even in regions habitually consuming hard coal. Unless they are looked after before the fall, there will be a regrettable number of chimney fires next winter. A rag-wrapped brick lowered inside of the chimney and scraped up and down will accomplish excellent results.

The smokepipe running from the furnace or stove to the chimney, should be taken down and smartly rapped with a stick to dislodge its incrustations of soot; if it has become badly rusted it is dangerous and should be replaced.

Such carefulness will furnish its own reward in the form of better draft and much greater fire safety Now is the time to act.

Intelligent Report on Power Development

So many wild statements have been made about launching the state or the government on purely industrial undertakings which require the expenditure of public funds ranging from $10,000,000 to $500,000,000, that the report just issued by Roy G. Finch, engineer of New York State, on the proposal to harness the St. Lawrence river, is of great interest. While Mr. Finch's analysis of the situation relates particularly to New York, and is in favor of private development, his line of reasoning is so sound that it can be considered with equal advantage by the citizens of any state, in applying his conclusions to their own problems so far as they relate to the utilization of a state's water power resources. Muscle Shoals and the Colorado River hydro-electric projects have been wallowing in political quicksands for years. Considered under the clear reasoning of the Finch report, rather than as political issues, their immediate development could be secured on a business basis, to the great benefit of the nation.

Time Tells Story

"Unlimited power supply" has been the incessant claim of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, which operates a Government-owned power system, but now comes the New York Times with a special dispatch to the effect that the International Paper Company, through its subsidiary, the Gateneau Power Company, a private concern, has "averted a prospective power famine in the Province of Ontario" by agreeing to furnish the government system with 230,000 to 260,000 horsepower of electrical energy a year for 30 years. The first block of purchased power will be delivered in 1928. This, says the Times, will meet a demand then expected, but which could not be met out of the supply which will at that time be under control of the Commission. Thus one by one the claims of the much-landed "Ontario Hydro" are refuted. First it was shown that "power at cost" was merely an empty slogan, then that rates charged varied widely and averaged higher than rates in United States under private ownership, and now we learn that the "Hydro" can not keep up with the demands of the territory in which it operates.

DON'T LIKE TO EAT WOMEN

The cannibals of Liberia, says Lady Mills, English traveler, do not like to eat women; female flesh "is too bitter for them." The male human thigh, she reports, is considered a great delicacy and is usually reserved for the chief of the tribe. The Liberian savages have a cultivated taste, even if they are not, according to other standards, civilized.

U. W. Special, 759—11-8-26

The Only Answer

"I don't see wny there is so much domestic unhappiness. Now, my wife and I agree on everything and—"

"You mean to say you have no opinions or convictions of your own?"

Use Cuticura Soap And Ointment To Heal Sore Hands

$50 REWARD

$50 will be paid if R. V. Turner's Quick Relief Salve fails to relieve croups, head colds, catarrh, sore throat, headache, earache, eczema, itch, burns, risings, bruises, cuts, sores, rheumatic pains or piles. It is one of the most powerful, penetrating, germ-killing, pain-relieving and healing salves known to science. Removes corns in a few hours without pain; also seed warts. Large box by mail 60c. Agents wanted. Write for special terms. R. V. Turner, Box 1122, Montgomery, Ala.

Electrical Refrigreation

is the fastest growing industry in America today. Tremendous profits will be made during the next 10 years.

The American Electric Corp.,

a consolidation including BELDING HALL CO., of Beldwin, Mich., with a national dealer organization and a record of over 40 years in the refrigeration industry, is making remarkable progress. Liberal dividends are being paid now.

Write for report on this security.

B. W. JACKSON & CO.
1403 First Nat. Bank Bldg.,
DETROIT, MICH.

Art Needlework
Frederick Herrschner

FREE
Art Needlework & Fancy Goods Book

IN THIS 80-page book, beautifully illustrated in colors, you will find hundreds of useful, delightful things to embroider as well as many ready-made articles for yourself and to beautify your home. These are in the newest exclusive designs on excellent materials.

By buying here—direct from the manufacturers—you will make a considerable saving. This book, which is yours for the asking, shows many beautiful stamped Center Pieces, Buffet Sets, Scarfs, Bed Spreads, fancy Towels, Pillow Cases, Filet and Voile Bedroom Sets, fine yard Linens and Damask Table Linens, plain and fancy Handkerchiefs, ready-made, stamped or plain, Infants' or Children's Wear, Infants' and Children's Knit Goods, Stamped Rompers and Play Suits, and hundreds of other articles for yourself, your home and for gifts. Complete lines of D. M. C. and Nun's Boil Proof Embroidery Cotton, also needlework accessories.

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

Complete instructions and color chart for embroidering sent with each order. All goods sent postpaid. Be sure to send for your book NOW before you forget it. It is FREE

Frederick Herrschner, Inc., Est. 1859
6604 South Ashland Avenue, Dept. K CHICAGO

ENORMOUS PROFITS

Made by Investors

"No investment on earth is so safe, so sure, so certain to enrich its owner as undeveloped realty. I always advise my friends to place their savings in realty near some growing city. There is no such savings bank anywhere."
—Grover Cleveland.

The AVRAEGE annual rate of increase in value of Wayne County real estate outside the city limts—60% per year—AND CUT THAT INTO ONE-THIRD.

Let us say that instead of increasing 60% in value in ONE year, it takes THREE years for a piece of well located subdivision property to increase 60% in value.

On this assumption, a well located $1,000 lot bought today, would be worth $1,600 three years from now.

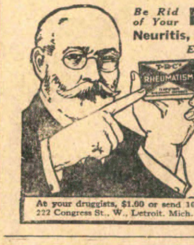
Our properties are strategically located, being surrounded by the greatest industrial activity the world has ever known.

For further information write

L. W. MARTIN
Second Floor American State Bank Bldg.,
DETROIT, MICH.
Banking reference.

Land Contracts
Yeild 12% to 15%
FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS
Secured by Improved
DETROIT REAL ESTATE

H. A. Benjamin & Company
Investment Bankers
MEMBERS
Detroti Stovk Exchange
905 Dime Bank Bldg.,
Phones, Cadillac 1460-2892
DETROIT, MICH.
FURTHER INFORMATION SENT ON REQUEST



Be Rid of Your RHEUMATISM
Neuritis, Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago
Enjoy life as you should

For over twenty years TRC's (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules) have been effectively used by Thousands in the successful curbing of these cruel and gnawing pains. Be well advised!

START TAKING T-R-C's TODAY

Often a $1.00 box is all that is needed. Sometimes in more severe cases two or three boxes may be required to obtain the desired results, but T-R-C's are most efficient and we are therefore able to GUARANTEE them. Read about this MONEY BACK GUARANTEE in the circular of directions in your box.

At your druggists, $1.00 or send 10c for generous trial and literature to Templetons
222 Congress St., W., Detroit. Mich.

Will You Have to Sell

blooded stock, hatching eggs, day old chicks, small fruit plants, real estate, etc.? If so, vonsult us, as we can place your ad in the associated weekly papers of Michigan and give you thousands of readers each week your advertisement appears. Rates very low.

WERTZ'
Cash Prices

Denatured Alcohol per gallon 48c
Auto Oil per gal 60c
Monarch Cocoa lb, 35c
Kellogg's Bran per package 10c
Raisins 2 pounds for 25c
Ward's Cakes Each 22c
Monarch Jelly Powder pkg. 9c
Circus Peanut Candy, lb. 15c
Broken Taffy per pound 10c
Monarch Spaghetti per can 13c
Monarch Corn flake 14c
Monarch Corn Flake small 9c
25c Ginghams per yard 17c
Ladies' 15c Handk'fs each 12c
50c Jonteel Face Powder per box 25c
Pink Salmon per can 18c
Red Salmon per can 33c
Special for SATURDAY Ten Pounds Sugar with Other Purchases 59c

C. S. Wertz Store

Have You got Your Blankets For the Winter?

If not, now is the time to buy them. They are going fast at

$1.69 to $5.00 PLAIDS of all colors, also Greys and Tans.

Also lovely Linen Stamp Goods for your XMAS

Remember we have a big line of DRESS SHIRTS, white and colored, Save your $$ by trading at

SWAIN'S, North Adams

RADIOS
New Grossley Five-tube R. F. L. and Single Dial Control.

Florence and Glowboy

Circulating Heaters and the Range Eternal Can you at 'em

PAYNE & GREEN CO.

Authorized Agents

OUR STOCK OF "Uneeda Bakers" PRODUCTS IS ALWAYS FRESH

WE carry a full line of COOKIES AND CRACKERS and the quality is the best

A. DIETZ

Two Snbscriptions to McCall's and one Advocate 1 yr. $2.75

CORRESPONDENCE

Jerome

Leon Anderson and Marian Hatch visited friends in town Sunday.

S. L. Tower, Marion Hart and Dick McBain spent the week end in Detroit.

Arthur Hart and family were entertained Sunday afternoon at the R. O. Sawdey home.

Robert McGregor attended a football game between the Jackson Heralds and the Selfridge Fliers Saturday.

Leonard Aldridge and assistants of Jackson furnished an interesting musical program at the church Thursday evening. About 150 persons were in attendance and the proceeds were divided between Mr. Aldridge and the school.

The Boy Scouts and part of the officers and committee made a trip through Jackson prison Saturday. It is very difficult to secure admittance for visitors at the prison these days as is proven by the fact that many college classes have been refused such a privilege but Rev. Johns who has had prison work at Marquette made the arrangements with Chaplain Hopp. Those in attendance were Leon Walworth, Scoutmaster, C. W. McGregor, Ray Hammons, Edgar Richards, Herbert Anson, Gordon and Norris Cook, Leslie Goodrich, Fred Rice, H. Lane, Robert Baker, Miles Bleech and Messrs Johns, Starr and Smith of Albion.

Center Adams

Grace Smith of Hoxie was a Saturday night guest at the Shull home

G. R. Ambler and family visited Sunday at the Glenn Butler home in Jefferson.

Mrs. Linnie Post visited in North Adams with Mrs. Eliza Williams on Wednesday.

Miles Hemry of Angola Indiana visited over Sunday with Nathan Webster and family.

Harold Gordon was in Jackson attending the League Convention over Friday night and Saturday.

The I. C. E. Club gave a masquerade party at the home of Carl Shull and wife on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker and daughter and Melvin Shull of Coldwater were Sunday visitors at the Carl Shull home.

J. R. Dewey and family were in Amboy on Saturday visiting Mrs. Dewey's brother Hiram Densmore and family.

Dorothy Ambler went to Ypsilanti Thursday where she will spend sometime with Mrs. Eva Skinner Reynolds.

Mrs. Margaret Dewey attended a missionary meeting at the home of Mrs. Alma Allen near North Adams on Wednesday.

Miss Ethel Lickley of Toledo was a guest at the Will Keith home Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Keith went home with her for a visit.

J. I. Post and wife were in Hillsdale Sunday where they were entertained, along with Mark Caskey and wife at the home of Frank Powderly and wife.

C. N. Williams started on Monday for San Diego California where he expects to spend the winter visiting his daughter and looking after business matters.

Eber J. Williams and wife came over from Battle Creek on Sunday and spent the day with his parents C. N. Williams and wife. Their little son Jimmie who had been spending the past week here with his grandparents returned home with them.

Jonesville

Mrs. Lewis Swan is visiting in Detroit.

F. T. Dryer is recovering from a long and serious illness.

R. S. Varnum was in Chicago on business during the week.

Mrs. Verne J. Chase entertained the Wednesday 500 club this week.

Mrs. Mary Tucker is in Detroit for the winter with her son Harry.

Olin Beebe and Arlington Rodlam were in Toledo on business Wednesday.

Born to Garfield Sawdey and wife at the Doty Hospital, October 30 a daughter.

Mrs. Edwin Gillespie entertained the Methodist Ladies Aid Wednesday November 10 at an all day work meeting.

Miss Virginia Andrews entertained the members of her Sorority of Hillsdale College last Friday at her home on Reading Ave.

Mrs. Maude Kilby of Jackson is at the home of Frank C. Storms on West Street to assist in the care of her mother-in-law Mrs. Georgia Kilby.

Town Line

Ray Fast is working on the road near Onsted.

Dell Fuller and wife of Battle Creek were Saturday night and Sunday guests of C. H. Jennings and wife.

Golden Wedding anniversary of Jackson Barber and wife Nov 13 will be duly observed by relatives and friends. Congratulations.

Joe Draper and wife, Helen Draper and Geraldine Baker attended a party Tuesday night at the home of their music teacher Mrs. Rogers.

Clarence Jennings attended an auction Wednesday at G. Jones in Moscow and bought a flock of White Leghorn chickens for home use.

Town Line friends of Fred Baker were much grieved to learn of his demise. Scarcely a day has passed since he lived in North Adams that he has not been on Town Line, to and from his farm. We have always thought of him as our friend and neighbor, always ready to lend a helping hand.

HOXIE

Elba Sweezy made a trip to Pontiac recently.

Don Holder went to Detroit Tuesday to visit his father.

Martin Marks of Jackson spent Sunday with his parents.

Paul Marks was home Saturday night and spent Sunday at Ypsilanti

Mrs. Will Steveson and Ruth were in Adrian shopping Saturday.

Earl Welker and wife of Hillsdale were Sunday guests at W. E. Donihue's.

Telephone No 37 held a business meeting at W. E. Donihue's Saturday night.

L. Spratt and family entertained Ohio company also Howard Wells and family.

Mrs. Bertha Wattles and mother Mrs. Barber called on Carl Robins and wife Monday.

Mrs. Orpha Hoxie is visiting her granddaughter Mrs. E. J. Carney and family at Detroit.

Henry Owen of Mosherville is at the A. J. Franks home assisting in shingle siding their home.

Mrs. Ettie Welker and Mrs. Mabel Steveson spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Gertrude Tompson.

Will Steveson and wife spent Tuesday with the former's sister Mrs. Nellie Story and sons near Hudson.

F. M. Thompson and wife were in Jackson Sunday to see the former's sister Mrs. Charles Hoxie who is convalescing after a serious operation at Mercy Hospital.

The Hoxie L. A. S. bazaar will be held November 19th at the M. E. church at North Adams. Chicken pie dinner with all the good things that go with it. Rev. S. B. Ford and wife are expected to be present

We were sorry to hear of the serious accident which occurred Monday near Hillsdale. Harry Roberts in order to avoid a collision with a gravel truck overturned his car rendering him unconscious for a time and badly bruised. He was taken to the City Hospital.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

November 9, 1926

Meeting called to order by President Stevens. Roll call; trustees present Ford, Fry, Eggleston, Carney. Absent Mercer and Caswell.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved as read. Motion made that the Standard Oil company's request to install a gasoline filling station in front of Sharp & Son garage be granted. Carried.

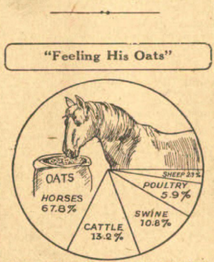
Motion was made that notice be served on William Wolff, to vacats the room now occupied by him in the rear of the library. Carried,

On motion the following bilis were allowed:

Boyer Fire Apparatus Co. Fire Truck	$1372 00
Judd Gray, hlg gravel	3 00
N. Y. C. K. R. freight	.64
W E Frederick, telephoning	3 00
Will Parish, labor	2 00
Rex Northrup, feeding hobos	1 45
J. W Losey, labor, material	17 30
W E Frederick, r'ding mtrs	25 00

B R Shepard, Clerk

"Feeling His Oats"



(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

Only a fourth of our oats crop goes into porridge and other table supplies, according to a survey by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. The remainder stays on the farm where it is fed to as many Dobbins and Baldies as are left to enjoy it. With the coming of the truck and tractor, a smaller percentage of oats fed to farm animals goes to the stable and more finds its way into the pigsty. At present horses consume 67.8% of the oats fed to farm animals, cattle 13.2% and swine 10.8%. Oat chops have been found to be ideal for producing rapid growth in young pigs. Poultry consume 5.9% and sheep the remaining 2.3% of the total amount of oats fed to animals.

"My little girl had a bad cough. I gave her a few doses of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and she was greatly relieved. If you want rest at night, especially where there are children, keep Foley's Honey and Tar Compound on hand."
Clyde H. Benson,
Marlboro, Va.

No opiates, no chloroform, a fine dependable family cough remedy for children and grown persons

Remember the Name

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND

Sold everywhere

Clyde S. Wertz, North Adams

Hotels MADISON and LENOX DETROIT

In Detroit's downtown center close to all public buildings, theatres and department stores. Quality of accommodation considered, the rates are the most reasonable in all Detroit

MADISON AVE., NEAR GRAND CIRCUS PARK

Heavens! A Henry Cost $1,000? Never

We have no bone to pick with Unionism but we are told that Henry Ford is the only big manufacturer in the whole United States or the world, for that matter, who is not swayed by the demands of the Union. The result is that with a shop employing many thousands of skilled workers, he has in the whole aggregation not one confessed Unionist. He is as independent of the Unions as a hog on ice, and the little "flivver" has gone down and down in price until to-day it sells for a little less than half of the first price and yet it has a number of late improvements, so that whether Unionism amounts to anything or not to the common people we leave you to judge.

It is claimed if Union labor were employed in the shop throughout you would pay $1,000 for the self-same car. How does that augur fo- the Unionist? Not very good, you say, and we agree with you.

"For all the Union cheering for Henry Ford's five-day-week policy, the public should remember that Henry has no Union mechanics and still runs his own affairs. He never has turned it over to the Union as yet, and he has never had any disputes with them, mainly because there is absolutely no grounds for it. Henry knows above all other employers, the necessity of employer controlled workmen, and it isn't diffiult for anyone to imagine that if his plants had been unionized instead of being free, what would have been the result.

Funny too! We never have heard that any charges were made by the Union of Mr. Ford pauperizing his employees or tricking them. The Union in spite of it all, still puts up its old whine about the discrimination against the workingman, and wants the whole automobile industry unionized.

Dawn Theatre Hillsdale
A Butterfield Theatre

November 12
FRIDAY
Mary Astor in
"PLAYING WITH SOULS"

Novembe 13
SATURDAY
Alma Rubens in "SIBERIA"
Special Saturday morning show at 10:00 a. m for children Admission 10c. Red Grange in "One Minute to Play." Red Grange Candybar given away to each child.

Nov. 14 15 and 16
Sunday, Monpay, Tuesday
RED GRANGE
in
"ONE MINUTE TO PLAY"

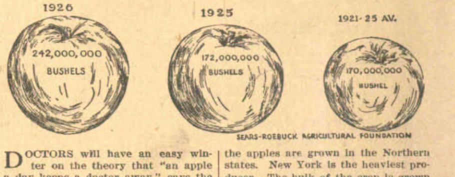
November 17 and 18
Wedne day and Thursday
MILTON SILLS in
"PARADISE"

I'm Telling You
The Majestic Furnace is a 'Winner'

Following are the names of satisfied users of Majestic Furnaces we have sold in the past two years:

Lud Chandler,
Roy Schmitt
Dr. Caswell
James Denning
Frank Holcomb
Frank Painter
Ross DeLamater
Lloyd Wilson
Will Wheaton
Rev. Kern, Camden
Ed Kempton
Will Oscius
Cash DeWitt
Geo. Bates
Art Calhoun

John Williams



DOCTORS will have an easy winter on the theory that "an apple a day keeps a doctor away," says the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, for according to the latest official figures, the apple crop will be a bumper one. A total of 242,000,000 bushels will be produced, the government report states. Last year the crop amounted to only 172,000,000 bushels, while the average crop for the last five years was 170,000,000 bushels, the Foundation points out Most of the apples are grown in the Northern states. New York is the heaviest producer. The bulk of the crop is grown on general farms and less than 45 per cent goes into commercial channels. The commercial crop will total about 40,000,000 barrels, which is 33 per cent larger than the average crop of 30,000,000 barrels. On this basis, says the Foundation, each person will have to eat four apples, as compared to three a year ago.

McCall's

One of the beat fiction and fashion Magazines on the mart to-day. Gene Stratton Porter author of "Limberlost" and Harold Bell Wright, genius of the Ozarks, are regular contributors and Wright's new serial story will appear soon.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish two copies of McCall's excellent Magazine sent to any address in the Unfted States and one copy of the Advocate, both one year for the small sum of

$2.75

This is the cheapest combination we know of for a Christmas present. Remarkable bunch of reading for the money

THE NORTH ADAMS ADVOCATE

ol. XXXI NORTH ADAMS MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1926 No. 25

Greendale Dairy

MANUFACTURERS OF

Pure Creamery Butter

Will Pay Cash for Good Cream

North Adams, : Michigan

THE CITIZENS BANK

[Unincorporated]

North Adams, Mich.

Resources Over $500,000

H. M. WILCOX, Pres. J. M. WILLIAMS V. Pres

A. J. HOFFMAN, Cashier

MRS. GRACE DOOLITTLE, Assistant Cashier

Co-Partners

J. M. WILLIAMS C. W. BLEECH A. WILLIAMS EST
A. J. HOFFMAN H. M. WILCOX B. I. LYNCH

[a] Safety on your money
[b] Yield on your money

I.—SAFETY : Building and Loan societies put 100 per cent of their investments in Real Estate. It is estimated that there are 9,000,000 share holders in Building and Loan Societies, having $5,000,000 in assets. Wayne county Savings Bank has $74,204,528 in savings :$41,140,576 is invested in Real Estate. The Central Savings and Trust Company has $28,961,093 in Savings, $27,294,298 are invested in Real Estate. The New York Life Insurance Company has $151,000,000 in assets invested in Illinois.

$94,000,000 Real Estate
$21,000,000 Railroad Bonds
$35,000,000 Public Utilities
$1,000,000 Municipal

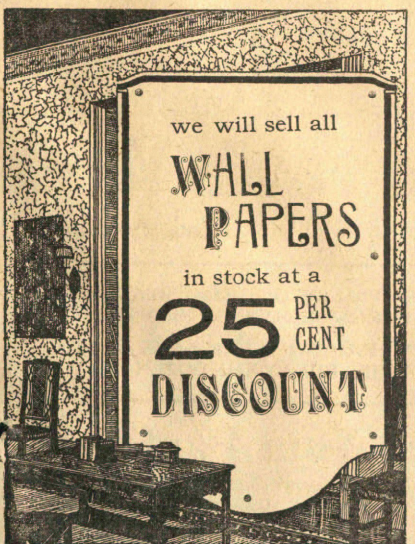
Surely these facts are conclusive evidence of the safety of Real Estate.

II.—YIELD : In yield one cannot find so generous a return anywhere. In ten (10) years the following yields have been realized : Detroit 630 per cent; New York 217 per cent; Chicago 195 per cent; Atlanta 162 per cent; San Francisco, 159 per cent; Boston 137 per cent; Minneapolis 131 per cent; Kansas City 129 per cent; St. Louis 124 per cent; Cleveland 119 per cent; Philadelphia 116 per cent. Detroit yields three times as much as its next ranking city.

See DICK McBAIN, Moscow.

B. E. TAYLOR, Realtor
Community Builder

521-529 Ford Bldg. DETROIT, : H.



H. E. Young & Son

NORTH ADAMS, MICH.

Local News

Patronize the item box at the post office.

A. J. Hoffman is in Kentucky on business this week.

—Metal Hat to match your new Dress at the Corey Hat Shop.

Myron Burger of Toledo visited his sister-in-law Mrs. Betsy Burger recently.

Mrs. Clara Culver and daughter Percibelle of Jackson spent last week with E. S. Knowles and wife.

William Dunshey, Jean Dunshey and family of Petoskey visited at Geo. and Oray Holcomb's Tuesday.

Mrs. J. A. Tyler of Grand Rapids is a guest at the Jackson Barber home this week. She is a niece of Mr. Barber.

Mrs. H. A. Kern of Camden and H. E. Kern of Pontiac visited Oray Holcomb and family Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mrs. Josephine Thompson will leave Saturday for Plymouth where she will spend the winter with her son George Smith and family.

The Rebekah Aid Society will serve a chicken dinner Friday November 26 in the Oddfellows Hall. Adults 35c. Children 25c. 25t2

Mrs. Emma Young spent the week end with Brooklyn relatives, from there to Hillsdale. She will spend the winter in Battle Creek.

The Ladies Aid of the Methodist church met with Mrs. Merton Wolcott Wednesday Nov. 17. Preparations for the Christmas bazaar are in progress.

The Friendship club meets with Mrs. Gertrude Walters Friday November 19th. There will be a program. Answer roll call by giving Thanksgiving quotations.

Max Fox and Chester Neil of Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Parks and daughter Mrs. Russel Heinz and Elwood Harris of Birmingham were week end visitors at the Corey home.

The Sorosis Club will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday November 23 at 2:00 p. m. Response, Thanksgiving Thought. William Cullen Bryant, Mabel Purcell. Thanatopsis, Ada Newman. Trio, Selected. Contemporary Writers, Myra Beecher. Hostess, Frances Cox.

George Litchhult of Detroit and Fred Willis were in North Adams the first of the week calling on John Litchhult. They left North Adams on Wednesday morning for Florida East Coast where they will spend the winter. Mr. Willis resides permanently in Florida but has been in Detroit.

About our dollie contest at the Swain's store which has been very interesting to many. Everyone did so nicely and we want to give Cecile Ballard only 6 years old much credit for her good work. First prize was a little blue voile outfit made by Bernita Edinger, Second a yellow outfit, Marcile Davis and Third the pink one by Frances Fry.

A surprise party was given for Otto Gray at his home on Monday evening in honor of his birthday and their fifth wedding anniversary Relatives and friends were present and a very enjoyable time was passed. A happy incident was the presence of Rev. and Mrs. Selden B. Ford of Albion Michigan who married Mr. and Mrs. Gray, The couple were presented with a rocking chair and other presents.

Why take the Chance?

of losing your car by fire, Theft or Collision when the

State Farm Mutual

Automobile Insurance Co. will take the risk for so small an amount?
See the local agent

JAY D. KNOWLES

CONTRACTOR and BUILDER

Estimates cheerfully given on remodeling or New Buildings.

BERT TRUMBLE 17t8

North Adams, Mich.

Donna Lynch spent last week end at her home here.

Dan Garlinghouse returned on Wednesday from Tecumseh where he visited old neighbors and relatives.

A dancing party will be given at the Town Hall in this village Wednesday evening, November 24th. Seven-piece orchestra. Dance bill 75 cents.

B. I. Lynch, C. W. Bleech, Geo. A. Lynch and J W Lynch left on Saturday morning for a trip to Chicago George Alfred and J W were guests at the home of George Rock and family.

The Temperence meeting also the Institute which was to be held, have been postponed for about two weeks on account of the inability of Mrs. Lipe to be present. Watch for announcement later.

Cecil Irish and family of Elmira Michigan were called here last week by the fiftteih wedding anniversary of J. A. Barber and wife. Mr. Irish has returned to Elmira but Mrs. Irish will remain for a time with her parents.

Mrs. Nora McBain formerly of this village, met with a serious accident on Tuesday evening at Battle Creek while riding in an automobile. She was reported as unconscious for 48 hours, but we learn later that she has recovered consciousness but as yet no examination has revealed the extent of her injuries.

Those from away who attended the wedding anniversary of Jackson Barber and wife last week were Mrs. Sarah Robins, Clarence Rowly and family of Toledo; Mrs. Jennie Robins and son James and his family of Charlotte; Myron Hoxie and wife of Battle Creek; Fred Hoxie, wife and son Fred of Quincy and Will Wattles and son Merritt of Detroit.

The following citizens of this vicinity have gone to Northern Michigan on a hunting trip: John Williams, Jay Knowles, Geo. Durga, Randell Westcott. Frank Hancock, Flem Dailey, Tenous Duncan. All the foregoing left on Thursday last week. On Friday another party left consisting of Floyd Daniels, John Crapser, Ralph Taylor, Clifford Hitchcock. They expect to be away two weeks.

The Banta Entertainers at the Congregational church Wednesday evening on the lecture course were certainly highly satisfactory artists and their repertoire of songs and readings were above the average. Owing to the exceedingly bad weather the attendance was not up to the desired standard. But we will say that as a first number the Banta Company did create considerable enthusiasm and plaudits were numerous. We hope to meet the Bantas again.

Michigan's spud crop this year is considerably over 360 millions of bushels and the demand is somewhat brisker than it was last season. Large numbers of potato raisers are binning their crop especially since the advent of certified seed and more scientific methods of culture, figuring that next spring when the demand for seed is heavy they will reap a reward. The loss from depreciation by rotting and other causes now-a-days is very small with the modern potato storage houses. The M. S. C. and leading growers of Michigan ought to be given a medal for their perseverence and enterprise in raising Michigan from the miry depths of nothingness in spud culture to the highest possible honors in potato culture, a reputation which the climate plays an important part in maintaining. The soils and weather seems to make this state an ideal home for the lowly tuber, and we are more or less proud of the reputation which we have attained throughout the north central states for real certified vigorous potato stock.

Daring Robbery At Hoxie

Between 3:00 and 4:00 p. m. on Friday last week a couple of men entered the general store of Charles Chapman at Hoxie four miles south east of North Adams and called for goods including cigarettes. Suddenly they knocked Mr Chapman unconscious with a blow on the head presumably from a billy. They then rifled the cash register of $25 also picked a wallet containing $4 off the unconscious man, in their hurry missing a bill book containing considerable more money. They took the cigarettes and hastily departed. The proprietor came to in an hour and staggered to the house a short distance south, where his daughter Miss Mae, was in entire ignorance of the hold-up. Mr. Chapman was put to bed and Dr. Sterling was summoned and found a heavy welt on the side of the head and indications of a cracked rib. Mr. Chapman is also suffering from heart trouble and his condition is not re-assuring. Officers are endeavoring to obtain some clues but have failed thus far.

Methodist Church Calendar

REV. H. E. WYLIE, PASTOR

Supplication Period 10:00 A. M
Morning worship 11:00
Sabbath School 10:00 A. M.
Epworth League 6:00 P. M.
Evening Worship 7:00

BAPTIST CHURCH

A. REISER, PASTOR

Preaching service every Sunday at 10:30 a. m.
Sunday school at 11:45
Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:30.

Congregational Church Calendar

E. C. JANDY, Pastor

Regular morning worship at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school 11:45

The Church extends to the people of North Adams a warm invitation to worship with us next Sunday, the 21st. The pastor will preach on a subject in keeping with the spirit of Thanksgiving. Come and hear a sermon on, "The Attitude of Gratitude."

On Saturday evening the 27th, an All Congregational church potluck supper will be held at the church. Following the supper, the young people of the church will give a program which is completely in their charge. There will be good talks as well as some vocal selections.

It is the hope of the pastor, that all active members on the church roll, as well as those who are interested in the welfare of the Congregational church, will attend. This is the time when all the members of the church can come together for good fellowship, and for the purpose of hearing discussions of some of the problems of the local church. Friendly co-operation will insure the success of this occasion. Watch next week's Advocate for further news, with an outline of the program.

—Dr. C. J. Howe, Optometrist Comfortable glasses, Hilldsale. 42 t

For Sale—Round Oak Heating Sove No. 18. Bement Kitchen Rtange No. 8. Percy Wells, Phone 802 North Adams. 23tf

Lost—Brown and white bulldog 4 months old female. Blind in one eye. Reward if returned to Ed Shurlow, Addison Mich. 24t3

For Sale—Two registered ram lambs also popcorn, Wilbur Bohn North Adams. 24t3

—During November and December the Advocate will take subscriptions for McCall's Magazine at the rate of two to be paid for by the same person at $2.75 with the Advocate. Thus if you wish to give a friend a present of a year's subscription to McCall's here is your chance to get the magazine cheap. It is better than ever and the new serial by Harold Bell Wright is "God and The Groceryman."

For Sale—Soft coal heating stove H. G. Wells. Phone 806 North Adams 23t3

For Sale Cheap—Child's drop-side bed fine condition, also automobile and scooter. Mrs. John Fitton. 23t3

—New Line of Miltex Dresses just received, sizes from 38 to 44 selling at $9.95. Corey Hat Shop.

The County Brotherhood meeting at the Methodist church was well attended.

The Hoxie Aid will hold a Bazaar at the Methodist church today November 19th. Chicken-pie and biscuit will be served.

Notice

I will be at Citizens Bank North Adams on Saturday November 27 for the purpose of furnishing deeds to the purchasers of lots at Gray Goose Beach. George Morehouse Jackson Michigan. 25t2

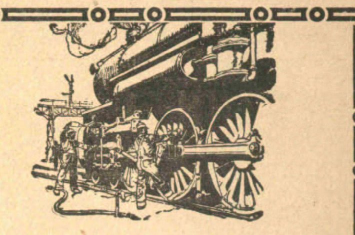
Athletics

The Boys and girls Basketball teams of North Adams High School will open the season here Thanksgiving eve. Both games will be played against the Alumni. Due to a ruling in the M. I. A. A. the Alumni have to be played before any other High schools are met. This accounts for the early starting date.

Coaches Willett and Radabaugh have been putting in some strenous practice sessions to round out the teams and are satisfied that the former stars will meet some real opposition.

The boys team includes a new line-up altogether from last year. Although the starting line up is in doubt, the following should get into the game. Meyers, Kempton, Wylie and Walworth guards, Hersh center and Williams, Holcomb, Roberts, Giddings, North and McLaughlin forwards.

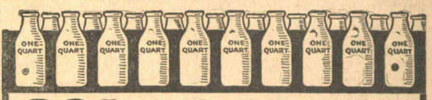
The girls team composed of six seasoned players will undoubtedly line up with Ione Young and Kathleen McFarland forwards, Jean Young and Geraldine Taylor centers, Maurine Taylor and Doris Hill guards. The Misses Holkins, Sprague, Welker, Hersh, Baker, Draper, Overly and Horton will get into the game also.



What Is the Reason? The locomotive runs at 100 mile clip day in and day out. Because it is fed. Likewise you keep up your daily work by eating of wholesome, juicy steaks at least once a day.

Our Meats and Groceries are always fresh

EDSON J. BENGE



20 Extra Quarts of Milk
Count 'em From Every Sack of International Special-Dairy Molasses Feed

as compared to using wheat feeds or ground grains. We guarantee this increase has been secured in hundreds of actual tests. INTERNATIONAL SPECIAL DAIRY MOLASSES FEED contains protein, molasses and fat combined in proper proportions to provide the necessary nutrients and energy required for maximum milk production. Both protein and molasses produce milk. Special Dairy contains both.

This great feed is digestible and palatable and is skillfully processed and mixed, thus insuring a big extra gain in milk. Accept no substitute. Inferior brands offered by other mills cannot produce the same profitable results as Special Dairy.

Ask Your Feed Dealer

INTERNATIONAL SUGAR FEED CO.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA

A Good Dairy Feed at a Reasonable Price

One Hundred Pounds International Dairy Feed	$1.90
One Hnndred Pounds Hy-grade Como Oat Feed	1.25
200 pound Cost	$ 33.15
100 pound Cost	1.57

F. I. WILLIAMS & SON

Why Sheetrock is a different wallboard

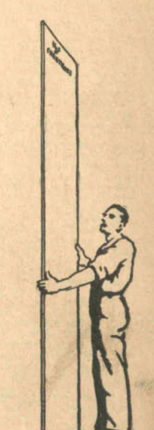
What it is: Sheetrock is gypsum plaster cast in thick, rigid sheets. It is fireproof, non-warping and permanent. It can be sawed and nailed like lumber. Takes any decoration—wall paper, paint, or Textone in the new stipple finishes.

What it does: Sheetrock makes solid, highly insulating walls and ceilings that keep rooms warm in winter and cool in summer. That means more comfort and lower fuel bills. Then, too, Sheetrock walls and ceilings make buildings dust-tight, sound-proof and vermin-proof.

Where it is used: Sheetrock is the economical wall and ceiling material for many types of new construction and for all remodeling and repairs. It is just the thing for attic rooms, furnace rooms, fruit cellars, garages, offices and stores.

Where to get it: Get your Sheetrock from us. We carry it in standard ceiling heights and widths. Our trucks make prompt deliveries.



Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
SHEETROCK
THE Fireproof WALLBOARD

GRAVES & FORD LUMBER COMPANY

An Especially Interesting Page on Various Subjects

Prepared for all Classes of People in all Walks of Life

Roberta Risks It

© MARGARET CAMERON LEWIS

BEGIN THE STORY TODAY

P. G. (Piggy) Brazenose is a young man who has a habit of getting into trouble. It's Probably because his mother named him Percival Galahad. He's really a good sort, but he doesn't take anything seriously, including the business that is Heaven and Earth to his dad. That gentleman calls Piggy into his office for a stern session. It appears that Piggy has done a sensational high dive to save a man from drowning. The papers play it up—and Brazenose Senior hates to have his name in the paper.

Now what happens? Carryon with the yarn, you'll like it.

Chuckling, he strolled toward the ferry, and at the appointed hour arrived at the Grand Central station. When he ascertained that the lady's train was on time and the number of the track on which it would come in, he took a position near the gate through which passengers soon began to pour. This was before the old station had been demolished to make way for a larger one, and presently he saw her coming down the platform; a tiny, modish brown figure with a well-poised head. Her features were indistinguishable behind a heavy veil, but as she came nearer he caught the gleam of dark eyes eagerly questing, as if in seach of a familiar face. A porter beside her carried a handsome brown bag. Hat in hand, Piggy intercepted her.

CHAPTER FOUR

"I beg your pardon," Piggy said, "but are you expecting a man to meet you?"

She gave him a scornful glance, replying crisply: "I am. A man I know."

"Then I'm a messenger from him. He asked me to say that he couldn't come."

"Couldn't come!" she repeated sharply, and stopped short amid the stream of hurrying people, lifting her veil as if to see him better. She had small, cleanly cut features, a determined little chin, humorous lips, and eyes like a sunlit autumn pool. But as she spoke every particle of color faded from her face, leaving it waxy white. "He couldn't come! Why not? Where is he?"

"I don't know. I never saw him before—don't even know his name," he explained, with some perturbation, wondering whether she was going to faint.

She withdrew a little and in her face he read suspicion and something that looked like fright. "Then why—Who are you?"

"My name's Brazenose. P. G. Brazenose."

She gave him another penetrating glance and he thought for a moment that she recognized the name, but the puzzled frown between her eyes deepened as she said: "Oh! . . . Well?"

"My father is Grover Brazenose. Manufactures looms. I'd been at the factory, over in Jersey, and at the ferry, coming back, this man spoke to me. Said he'd been called west suddenly and would have to hustle to catch his train. And as he couldn't reach you by phone or messenger boy, he asked me to come and tell you. That's all I know about him. He was in such a hurry that he didn't even give me his name—or yours, either."

At this the distress that he fancied might be fright came back into her face. "What sort of man was he?" she asked quickly. "What did he look like?"

"He was about five feet ten. Dark hair, light gray eyes, clean-shaven. Muscular chap."

She nodded and it seemed to him that she was slightly relieved.

"But—didn't he even send me a note?"

"No. He acted as if he was rattled about something. But he said you might be seriously inconvenienced if he didn't get word to you."

"That was thoughtful of him," she remarked dryly. "Did he tell you where he was going?"

"No. He said something had just happened that called him west immediately on important business."

"Oh, of course . . . business . . ." Her lips took a satirical curve.

"He said he'd be back within a few days and he wants you to let him know where you are, and on no account to take any action until you hear from him. He told me to say that what you are planning is absolutely impossible and might have very serious consequences."

"H'm. Yes. I see. Well—thank you for coming."

She began walking on absently, through a door and into the great waiting room, and Piggy, though knowing himself dismissed, kept pace with her. The color had not returned to her face and he hesitated to leave her alone.

"Isn't there something else I can do?" he suggested. "Perhaps telephone to your friends?"

"There's nobody—in this country."

"Then may I take you to your hotel? Or to your train, if you're going on?"

She shook her head, apparently oblivious of his presence, though his voice penetrated the haze through which she seemed to move. This was a novel experience to Piggy Brazenose, of whose sculpturesque proportions and magnetic personality most maidens were too obviously aware. It encouraged him to persist.

"I don't want to seem officious," he said awkwardly, "but I don't like to leave you until—You look as if you might faint."

"I never faint. But—I don't know quite what to do."

"I'm at your service, if you'll let me do whatever it was the other man was going to do."

Despite the predicament in which she was caught, she gave him a humorous glance through the veil which she had lowered again.

"He was going to marry me."

"Marry you!"

"Today."

"He was going to marry you! And he didn't show up?"

She made a little gesture with her hand. "Oh, well, there may be good reasons for that."

"But—but—why, the chap didn't look like a rotter!"

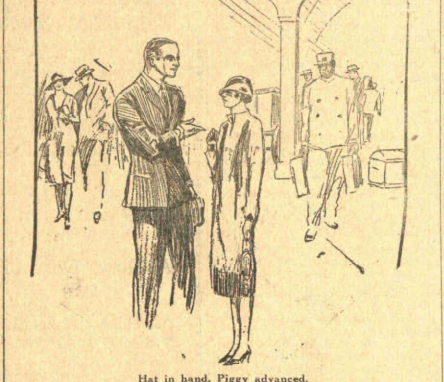
"He isn't. He—I can't explain, but probably he had a good reason."

"But—good Lord!" Piggy stammered in wrath and embarrassment. "Look her, let me take you to a hotel—"

"I can't go to a hotel," she said dully, pausing near the Information Desk and looking about at the faces in the crowd. He wondered whether she was still hoping to see the man who had not come. Giving the porter a coin which she had held in her hand, she dismissed him with a nod and turned again to Piggy, saying more decisively: "Thank you. You've been very kind. I won't trouble you any more."

CHAPTER FIVE

"You will trouble me, unless I see you out of this mess," Piggy retorted, longing to get his hands on the man who had caused it. Being both unanalytical and inexperienced in amorous emotion, it did not occur to him that she manifested neither the symptoms of disappointed love nor the proverbial fury of a woman scorned. He thought merely that she was a game little sport who was taking a severe shock uncommonly well. "There must be something I can do."



Hat in hand, Piggy advanced.

"There's nothing anybody can do now. Unless—Perhaps you can tell me where to go to find employment? I don't know."

"Employment?" he echoed stupidly. "You? What kind of employment?"

"I might teach French. I speak it well. And I paint pretty well. I suppose I could do place cards and lamp shades and things like that. Or perhaps I might sell things in a shop?"

Piggy was no connoisseur of feminine apparel, but he did know something about leather, and the bag at her feet was not only expensive, but seemed to harmonize with the rest of her belongings. As he phrased it in his own mind, she looked like a million dollars.

"Well, we can't settle that here," she interrupted. "I can't go anywhere until I know how I'm going to pay for it. I just gave the last cent I have in the world to that porter." Piggy gaped at her incredulously and she gave a little shrug, adding with a gleam of inspiration: "Oh, of course, a pawnshop! That's what one does first, isn't it? Do you know of one near here?"

"Rats! You can't go to a pawnshop. I'll loan you all you need," said Piggy, impulsively.

"I can't let you do that."

"Well, you can't turn yourself loose in New York without any money," he countered. "You might—why, anything might happen! And you're not going to a pawn shop, either. Now you be sensible. You don't know me, so you'll just have to take my word for it that I'm all right. And I'm going to make sure you're taken care of until you can hear from your friends. There aren't any women in my family—just dad and me—so I can't take you home very well, but if you won't go to a hotel, let me take you to my aunt, Mrs. Colton Dollard. If you don't know who she is, you can look her up in the social register."

"Oh, no, no!" Again she shrank a little. "You mustn't—I can't—you don't understand—" When she saw his astonishment, she controlled herself, adding more calmly: "You're very kind and I do appreciate it, but there are reasons—well, I can't explain. But I can't go anywhere with you. If you really want to help me, you'll just forget all about this—and me."

"All right," he responded promptly. "I'll forget it. As far as I'm concerned it never happened. But only on condition that you'll let me loan you enough money to see you through until you can hear from your friends or else let me buy you a ticket back to wherever you came from."

She shook her head, turning her face away. "I'm not going back. I can't. I came here to do something, and I'm going to do it in spite of—of everything!"

"Bully for you!" said Piggy cheerfully. "Then that's settled. The next thing is to find out what you'd better do meanwhile. Let's go over to Sherry's and find a corner where we can talk. There won't be anybody there at this hour. You've had a jolt, and a glass of wine will brace you up. After a while we'll have some lunch. Come on."

Picking up her bag he led the way to the cab stand, and she followed. Neither of them noticed that a small, dark man, who had been loitering near by while they talked, apparently idly watching the changing crowds, came suddenly to life and strode after them, his brow furrowed by perplexity. He took the next hansom after theirs and told the driver to keep them in sight.

When Piggy found himself seated in the hansom beside this strange young woman he was conscious of a certain surprise. Theretofore, as has been said, women had held no particular place in his life, and even in daydreams he had never pictured himself as a possible squire of dames. Yet here he was to some extent espousing the unknown cause of this unknown girl, having voluntarily and insistently undertaken to protect and finance her—for how long a time he could not even guess.

However, he had done it not because she was a girl, but because in spite of that handicap she was a thorough going little sport and in hard luck. She had taken, standing, what he imagined would have been for most girls a knockout blow. She didn't even whimper about it. As a matter of fact, he told himself, she didn't act like a girl at all. Neither making eyes at him, nor assuming the consciously unsentimental manner of the damsel aspiring to be regarded as a possible pal, nor yet taking it for granted by virtue of her femininity that it was his business as a male to serve her, she seemed quite simply and naturally to forget him. Sitting in her corner of the cab, her brown eyes absently fixed through her thick veil upon the crowded panorama of the streets, she retired within herself as any fellow in trouble might have done, and it was as a fellow in trouble that Piggy yearned, in his own vernacular, to give her a leg up.

If she had exhibited a tendency toward gushing gratitude, or toward tears, or if she had betrayed the slightest curiosity about him, or any indication of expecting anything of him, he might have taken fright and turned shy and elusive himself. Instead, she ignored his presence, lost in the mystery of her own thoughts, and they drove the few blocks from the station to Sherry's old place at Forty-fourth street and Fifth avenue almost in silence.

CHAPTER SIX

Once the young man smiled surreptitiously and he pictured his father's reactions to this situation, should he ever learn of it. There was no denying that the scion of the house of Brazenose had acted upon impulse again. Then he flushed hotly, remembering the absurd accusation that he was romantic and reflecting upon the interpretation his parent would certainly put upon this adventure. He decided that it was lucky his dad would never know anything about it. But he was pricked by a disturbing possibility and asked abruptly:

"Do you believe in romance? Think there is any such thing?"

Without changing her position, the girl replied from the surface of her mind:

"'Gone are the Gods of Hunt and
Dance,
And He with them. Farewell,
Romance!'"

"Kipling," said Piggy instantly, "Like him?"

"Of course."

He might have known she would. But he had met girls who didn't. Reassured, he relapsed into silence again. If he remembered the full content of the verses from which she had quoted, it was to dismiss the plea as part of a poet's job. Even a short-haired, red-blooded poet like Kipling, he supposed, couldn't wholly escape the taint of his trade. Which seemed a pity.

Before Sherry's door he helped her out of the cab and while he paid the driver she crossed the pavement to the steps, turning just in time to see another hansom driven slowly past. Its only occupant, a small, dark man, leaned forward to eye her searchingly. The girl caught her breath and again the color ebbed from her face.

"Oh, la, la!" she whispered.

The restaurant was deserted save three or four late-breakfasting men absorbed in morning papers, and Piggy chose a corner table, ordering two glasses of old sherry and biscuits. Then he leaned back in his chair, smiling at her, and said:

"Now! Let's begin. How about telling me your name, as a starter?"

"Smith. Rowena Smith. Yours, you said, is—?"

"Brazenose."

She looked at him reflectively. "I used to hear sometimes about a boy they called Piggy Brazenose."

"H'm . . . yes. Ever hear anything to his credit?" he asked warily.

"He was a great athlete at college, and was always doing dare-devil things and getting into scrapes."

"Dad says I still do 'em."

"Oh! I wondered if you were he," she replied gravely, and went into a brown study from which after a long pause he jogged her.

"Well? What about it?"

"Is there any way out of this place except that?" she nodded toward the entrance they had used.

"Not that I know of. Why?"

"Isn't there a service door on an alley, or something?"

"I doubt it. I suppose you could go out through the catering place on the avenue, at a pinch. Why?" When she did not answer, he paraphrased a line from "Floradora," then having one of its numerous revivals: "You've got to trust somebody, and it might as well be me. You can, you know."

"Y-yes, I think I can. Anyway, I've got to—a little. There's a man following me and I want to slip away from him."

"Where is he? Show me and he won't annoy you any more."

"He hasn't annoyed me—that way." She smiled faintly. "I mean, he's not trying to flirt with me. But I saw him at the station, just standing around watching. I didn't think anything about it then, but before we came in here he drove past in a cab and leaned forward, looking at me, and I'm sure he followed us."

"Oh, I guess not." Beginning to wonder whether she was slightly demented, young Mr. Brazenose adopted the soothing tone used on occasion by all normal males toward women, children and horses—a kind of "So-o, boy, steady" tone. "Probably he just happened to be coming this way. Lots of people do. Drink some of that sherry. You're as pale as a ghost."

"I think he's a detective."

"A detective! Why should a detective be following you?"

"He might—if they found out," she returned ambiguously, "though I don't see how they could. I know it sounds queer, but—it's something I can't explain. It's nothing criminal." She opened to his gaze the deep, clear pools of her eyes. "But it's a matter of life and death."

"To you?"

"Oh, no! I don't matter—except for what I came to do."

"I thought you came to be married," he blurted youthfully.

"I did. But for something else, too. It's that they're trying to stop, and they mustn't. I must do it."

Piggy began to realize that in championing this curious waif he had undertaken rather more than had at first appeared. But his interest and what, if he had been called upon to analyze his feeling, he would have called his sporting instincts, had been aroused.

"Hadn't you better tell me something about it?" he suggested. "Just so I'll know where we're at."

"I don't want to get you into it."

"I'm in now. You're not going to throw me out, are you?"

She gave him a grateful glance, but shook her head. "You're not very far in, and if you'll just get me away from here without that man's knowing it, you'll have done a big thing for me."

"I'll get you out, all right. What comes after that? Go on, tell me. Maybe I can help. You seem to know my reputation," he added, with his boyish grin.

"Nothing comes after that—for a while. I've got to earn some money first."

(To be continued.)

Government by Minorities

Voting ought to be viewed as a privilege, rather than an irksome duty to be avoided whenever possible. It should be regarded as an opportunity to function as a citizen—an obligation of citizenship in a country where citizenship really means something.

The rapid decline of the popular vote in the last score of years shows that far too many people have subscribed to the false doctrine that a few votes more or less will not change the result, and that they need not waste the time or energy to vote.

They neglect to recognize that the grand total is made up of single votes—that one voter can speak as emphatically and decisively as another.

A full and free expression of the popular will is not recorded, when more than half of the voters remain at home refusing to do their duty as citizens.

The growing tendency to remain away from the polls is alarming, and is an actual periol confronting our representative form of government. Any citizen who does not vote, unless he has good and sufficient reasons for not voting, is not living up to his responsibilities, and in the last analysis, does not deserve citizenship in the "Land of the free and the home of the brave."—Townsend, Montana, Star.

"How long can a fellow live without brains?" inquired a young student of the old professor.

"That remains to be seen, my boy," he replied.

Standing Room Only

Mrs. Hubby—How do I look in my new gown? Does it fit all right?

Hubby—Not so bad, but can't you get into it a little farther?

British Courts Are Swamped by Divorces of Society Folks

London, Nov. 4.—England's divorce season is on and, by actual count, 876 husbands and wives who have become tired of marital discord, have decided to at least seek separation through the courts.

Represented in these pleas is the peerage, the stage and high society generally, of both Great Britain and the United States. The task of deciding whether or not the irksome shackles of matrimony shall be removed has already been started by three high court judges.

LADY CHEYLESMORE

Only about one-third of the divorce petitions filed will be contested. Records show that 630 are undefended and unless investigation shows dishonest charges in these cases, all will be granted automatically.

Not the least important of the cases attracting attention is that in which Lady Cheylesmore, formerly Elizabeth French of New York, is suing Baron Cheylesmore. The baron is filing his own suit in Canada, which he claims is now his permanent home.

One of the first suits heard was that the Earl of Cowley against his wife, the former May Pickard, a New York chorus girl. Sir Merrick Burrell, seventh baronet, will not defend his wife's suit. Two other prominent persons whose names figure in the divorce lists are, Sir Alexander Black, first baronet, who is giving his wife her divorce uncontested, and M. R. Humphrey, who is suing Mrs. Rene de Vere Humphrey.

Probably Running Yet.

"If you kiss me again I shall tell father."

"That's an old tale. Anyway, it's worth it," and he kissed her.

She sprang to her feet. "I shall tell father," she said, and left the room.

"Father," she said softly to her parent when she got outside, "Mr. Bolder wants to see your new gun."

"All right, I'll take it in to him," and two minutes later father appeared in the doorway with his gun in his hand.

There was a crash of breaking glass as Mr. Bolder dived through the window and he has not been seen since.

PRITCHARD'S WEATHER FORECAST.

Week of November 21

Weather during the first few days of the week of November 21st in Michigan will not be very favorable for most activities unless it should jog the memories of some that winter is close at hand. The first day or so will be unsettled to stormy with showers or snow flurries but before the middle of the week arrives the sky will have cleared.

About Wednesday or Thursday at the latest the weather will again become unsettled and threatening with much wind and bluster, a condition that will continue more or less throughout the balance of the week.

Sections of this state will receive some heavy falls of precipitation before the week is over.

While temperatures will probably range below the seasonal normal during the greater part of this week in Michigan, at the very end they will begin a rapid moderation. Temperatures will have reached readings close to 70 and 75 degrees during the early part of next week.

December Will Be Cold

The mean temperature for the month of December in Michigan will average below the seasonal normal this year. This means more than the usual amount of cold weather and at times displaying some rather sudden changes. The precipitation for December will be less than the normal for the month in the greater part of the state.

As a usual thing there is much cloudiness in Michigan during December but this year we believe that instead of an average of about three hours a day out of a possible nine hours, the amount of sunlight will be considerably greater.

Classified Advertisements
MISCELLANEOUS

SIX PAIRS—$2.50 MEN'S SILK SOX; FOUR pair—$4.00 ladies' all silk. Any popular shade. Money back guarantee. Postpaid, cash with order. Lawtex, 1205 Broadway, Toledo, Ohio.

PHOTOGRAPH NOVELTIES, RARE, EXotic Spanish girls. Splendid sample 50c. Cuban Service, San Jose 105, Havana, Cuba.

MAKE MONEY SELLING CIRCULAR mailing instructions by mail. Good profits. Either sex. Plan 25c. Geo. C. Dayton, Box 1007, Buffalo, New York.

A Goodland sheik calls his steady Brown Sugar. She is sweet but unrefined.

Let Cuticura Soap Keep Your Skin Fresh and Youthful

Sample Soap, Ointment, Talcum free. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. B, Malden, Mass.

Windustite

KEEP THE COLD, SOOT and DUST OUT

Installing "American Windustite" weather strips saves coal, makes housecleaning easier, gives more comfort from your furnace, and protects furnishings and draperies from outside dirt, soot and dust.

Storm-proof, Dirt-proof, Leak-proof and Rattle-proof

Made and Installed Only by
AMERICAN METAL WEATHER STRIP COMPANY
144 N. Division Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich.

IT'S A FACT

that notwithstanding the Superior quality of

RED ARROW

bread flour, its price is almost the same as ordinary flour. And it makes wonderful bread

WATSON-HIGGINS MILLING CO.
Grand Rapids, Michigan

In Detroit
It is the Tuller
For Value

Facing Grand Circus Park, the heart of Detroit. 800 pleasant rooms, $2.50 and up. Ward B. James, Manager. DETROIT, MICH.

HOTEL TULLER

U. W. No. 760—11-15—1926.

CHILDREN CRY FOR

Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is especially prepared to relieve Infants in arms and Children all ages of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and, by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas H Fletcher
Absolutely Harmless – No Opiates. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

Canned Foods Week

Begins November 10 Ends November 21

YOUR GROCER WILL BE OFFERING SOME VERY SPECIAL BARGAINS DURING THIS WEEK

THE THRIFTY HOUSEWIFE CAN SAVE MONEY AND TIME—BUY BY THE DOZEN

Stock Your Pantry
Against Your Needs for the Winter

Lee & Cady
National Grocer Co.

Worden Grocer Co.
Rademaker-Dooge Grocer Co.

THIS IS National Pure Food Week

Problems

FOR instance, the problem of what is best for the children's diet. One of the best things, so dieticians say, is cocoa. And of all cocoas—Monarch. Rich, delicious, high in quality, low in cost.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years
Never Sold Through Chain Stores
REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Chicago · Boston · Pittsburgh · New York

COFFEE and COCOA

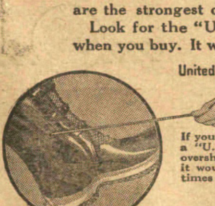
Americans Eat Less Bread

If Americans ate as much bread as they did 25 years ago, more than 25,000,000 additional barrels of flour would be consumed annually, says Capper's Weekly. A food survey indicates more than one-fifth of the flour formerly consumed has been replaced by sugar and other more expensive foods, like milk, meat, fruits, oils, fresh fruits and fresh vegetables. Another reason may be that the finely bolted and bleached flour of the present time does not make near as palatable or as wholesome bread as did the old grist mill's product.

How to Be Happy

"Bein' happy," observes Cash Miller, the cigar-store philosopher, "is like answerin' a want ad. Experience is required. Take one of them cake eaters that never had no deeper sorrow than some waiter upsettin' his tea. What does he know about real happiness? But some day trouble is goin' to step up and give him a poke on his cute nose and from then on he'll understand a lotta things better.

"Before y' know real happiness y' gotta be a college graduate from some good reliable university of hardship and trouble."—Thrift Magazine.



Long hard wear built into every one!

Farmers everywhere are turning to "U.S." Blue Ribbon Boots and Overshoes!

The "U.S." Blue Ribbon Walrus slips right on over your shoes. Its smooth rubber surface washes clean like a boot. Made in red or black, 4 or 5 buckles

THIS is why. "U.S." Blue Ribbon overshoes and boots are built with thick, oversize soles, tough as an automobile tire. Into the uppers goes rubber so elastic that constant bending won't crack it. Anchored in this rubber are the strongest of reinforcements.

Look for the "U.S." Blue Ribbon when you buy. It will pay you!

United States Rubber Company

If you cut a strip of rubber from a "U.S." Blue Ribbon boot or overshoe you'd find it so elastic it would stretch more than five times its length.

TRADE MARK
"U.S." BLUE RIBBON
Boots
Walrus
Arctics
Rubbers

Laundry Saving

When gathering soiled clothes the other day Mrs. W. P. Morton found, among her six-year-old son's belongings, several handkerchiefs with a huge knot tied in each of them.

When Howard was asked the reason for the knots, he replied:

"Well, mother, you see, I always have a clean hanky that way. I tie a knot in it before I go to school; then when my hanky gets dirty I undo the knot and use the nice clean part and tie a knot in the dirty part so it won't show."—Indianapolis News.

His First

"Congratulate me! I've just thought of something clever!"

"Beginner's luck."

Ask thyself, daily, to how many ill-minded persons thou hast shown a kind disposition.—Marcus Aurelius.

There are more than 15,000 moving-picture theaters in the United States. England has 4,000.

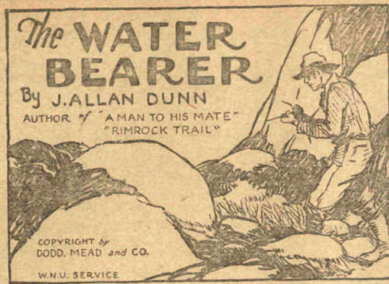
Beware of the people who apologize every time they do you a favor.

Genuine BAYER
ASPIRIN
SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!
Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for

Colds	Headache	Neuritis	Lumbago
Pain	Neuralgia	Toothache	Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe → Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.
Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid



The WATER BEARER

By J. ALLAN DUNN

AUTHOR of "A MAN TO HIS MATE" "RIMROCK TRAIL"

COPYRIGHT by DODD, MEAD and CO.

W.N.U. SERVICE

CHAPTER XVI—Continued

—24—

"When I got here he was at the wheel. I was sure then. I shouted at him and he paid no attention. I could hear the water pounding down into the tunnel and I tried to drag him away. I did once and tried to twist back the wheel but he jumped at me and we fought. He was too strong for me and he flung me off at last. He was crazy, beside himself, a madman. It wasn't just the liquor. 'I'm going to drown him,' he said. 'Drown him like a rat.' And he cursed at me first and then—threatened me.

"I was desperate. I saw a wrench on the seat and I struck him with it on the back of his head. He went down, staggering—and I got to the wheel. When the roar of the water ended I knew you were safe. I suppose I fainted. You came. . . ."

For the pair of them, for the moment, as their eyes met, there was no one else in the gatehouse. Burns stooped to the floor and picked up a tool.

"There's blood on the wrench," he said, under his breath to Cox. "Hey, where's that Mexican going?"

"It must have been Baxter I glimpsed as I came out of the shaft," Caleb was saying. "He had just come to, I suppose, and . . ."

He broke off at Burns' exclamation. The superintendent pointed to where Padilla was running over the plain toward the foothills, head low, eyes searching the ground, like a hound on trail. Something glittered in his hand.

"He's after Baxter," cried Caleb. "He'll kill him. I've got to stop that. Mrs. Carquinez, you'll go with Miss Clinton and Maria to El Nido. I'll get there later. I've got to prevent Padilla committing murder. You won't need me, Cox, go ahead without me."

He sprang through the door, hatless, his wet clothes clinging to limbs and body, starting out to run down Padilla before the avenging Mexican closed with his quarry. That the Mexican would be implacable, deaf and dumb and blind to all but his vengeance against the man who had injured la senorita, Caleb knew. Nevertheless Padilla must be stopped from crime and the penalty. He thought more of this than of Baxter as he followed the dusty trail across the plain that led straight toward a wooded arroyo.

Padilla was nearly halfway to the foothills before Caleb started but he gradually overhauled the Mexican. He was furious enough, remembering Betty's white skin with the bruises on it, her torn garments, to beat Baxter to a pulp. Baxter, he realized, must have overheard Feely's report to Burns and seized his chance to get even with Caleb.

The thought of Betty swift to his rescue, her intuition quickened, surely by some tie between them, of Betty fighting with the drunken, crazy Baxter, beating him down with the wrench, was glorious to him in proportion to his rage. The only thing that curbed his own anger from the Mexican's intent to kill was, perhaps, the sight of the knife in Padilla's hand, the sudden knowledge of what penalty the Mexican would have to pay for murder, of Maria and Betty's sorrow. But he was not going to let Baxter off scot-free if he got at him. Only the one thought beat against the wrath that exulted already at the idea of getting Baxter within reach of his hands, the remembrance that punishment must stop short of murder. There his New England sanity fought for restraint. He had won Betty—he must not lose her.

A little stream sometimes babbled down the arroyo where Padilla, a hundred yards ahead of Caleb still, disappeared in a jungle of buckeye and manzanita. Footprints of them both were plain in the still moist earth for a few paces and then abruptly disappeared. Baxter had taken to the sidehill and the thicker undergrowth. Caleb halted perplexed. He had little breath left for the call to Padilla, he felt it was useless before he uttered it.

He stood alert, listening. To his right, and ahead, there sounded a sharp crack of dry twigs and he started off again, buffeting his way through low boughs and brambles.

He was certain that Baxter could not elude Padilla. For years the Mexican had guarded his senorita under the vow taken by him and Maria, that had held back their own happiness and added fuel to a slowly growing hate that, now the time had come, would give deep knife wounds in exchange for the bruises of his mistress. Unless Caleb could come up with him Baxter was as good as dead.

A shrill cry of agony sounded from the dense growth of the arroyo, not far away, toward the head of the cleft.

For a second Caleb stood still, chilled by the crawling horror of that shriek, the cry of a coward facing death. It was not repeated. There was no sound at all in the hot gulch where no leaf stirred.

Then he heard an exclamation in Spanish—"Reina Sanctissima!"—and plunged ahead through the tangle to come out in a tiny clearing.

A live oak grew by a slab of gray rock on which, as on some savage altar, lay Baxter, the sunlight drifting down through the gnarled boughs of the tree and gilding a face the color of clay, a dropped jaw that showed the white teeth amid the untrimmed beard, eyes rolled up, already glazing, the face in a snarl, inhuman. Bending above him, shrinking back a little with his knife upraised, stood Padilla. He seemed to have recoiled from his deed, while ready to deliver a second blow.

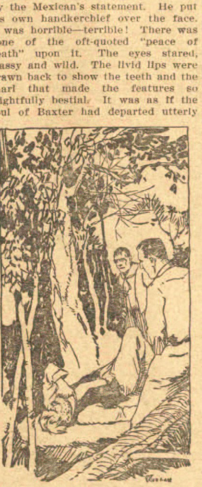
Caleb leaped and caught the wrist of the hand that held the blade. Padilla turned to him a face that was hard to read. There was disappointment in it, slow-dying fury—and awe.

"Senor," he said. "I did not touch heem! See, my knife is clean. There is no blood upon eet. I did not touch heem! Sangre di Cristo, he hear me comin', he run weeth his head on his shoulder an', all of a sudden he put his han' to his side, he cry out, twist roun' an' fall like you see. When I reach heem he is muerte! Dead! Because he is too much afraid."

Caleb loosened Baxter's collar and shirt, slipped his hand in over the heart.

"He is dead, senor—I mean to keel him myself. But eet is the judgment of God."

Caleb knew that it was the "champagne heart" of Baxter, too long abused, the overtaxed engine of a misused machine, that had given way at last. Fright had helped, no doubt; the wild, pounding, panting run with the knowledge of Padilla swift and relentless upon him with lifted and glittering knife. Baxter had burned out. But he did not attempt to modify the Mexican's statement. He put his own handkerchief over the face. It was horrible—terrible! There was none of the oft-quoted "peace of death" upon it. The eyes stared, glassy and wild. The livid lips were drawn back to show the teeth and the snarl that made the features so frightfully bestial. It was as if the soul of Baxter had departed utterly when he had turned the wheel of the water-gallery with murder in his heart and now, only the brute that dwelled in the subconscious was revealed—in full. A dead, mad face. Doctor Fields' theory had awful testimony here.



"Eet Is the Face of a Devil—el Aspecto del Demonio.

All hate died out in Caleb. Here was a mad dog—dead. An atavism, self-produced and self-annihilated.

"I should hav' like to keel him," said Padilla. "An' you, senor, would you hav' only talk to heem? I weel stay here until you come back. Perhaps you weel better send the sheriff an' see la senorita, to tell her the man who hurt her is muerte. It is better I wait here for the sheriff. Also . . ."

He pointed upwards. High in the blue, swinging in circles that gradually narrowed above the arroyo, soared a buzzard. Even while they looked another appeared—another.

"They are queek," said Padilla. "Soon there weel be more. The sheriff mus' not find heem disturb'."

The Mexican crossed himself.

"You saw his face, senor," he said in a low voice—as if the dead could hear. "Sangre di Cristo! Eet is the face of a devil—el aspecto del demonio."

CHAPTER XVII

Dios Bendiga a Vd.

A week later Caleb sat with Betty in the twilight on the broad mission bench in the patio at El Nido. In the big room Stella Carquinez was at the piano, playing softly. Carquinez himself had been forced to go to Golden to discuss a commission. Their child had gone to bed. Maria was softly crooning a lullaby at the far end of the patio garden, putting Mary Morgan's baby—of which she had not been ashamed—to sleep.

Caleb and Betty were silent. He was trying to find words for what he wanted to tell her in fitting language, and finding it difficult. His emotions confounded him in this supreme issue. The nearness of her, the consciousness that to gain her was everything, to lose her meant all the joy taken out of success and life, now and to come, set his heart pounding till he thought that she must surely hear it, sapped his confidence.

"Betty," he said at last, "you saved my life. What do you want to do with it?"

She did not affect to misunderstand him. He had known she would not do that. There was something established between them, a bond that had made their silence filled with magnetism. Caleb hoped that it was love with her, as it was with him. As he sat, hands on knees, leaning toward her in the dusk, trying to read her face, he felt his fingers trembling. Every atom of him longed for her, reached out for her in an ardor that seemed to belong to another Caleb Warner, lately created.

"What do you want me to do with it?" she asked.

"Share it, Betty. All ways and always."

"All ways?" She had risen, standing by one of the posts of the pergola, jasmine wreathed. Now he stood opposite to her, close and looking down at her upturned face. The curves of her mouth maddened him. He clenched his hands until his nails stung his flesh, hanging on to himself, restraining a desire to woo her only with kisses. His reason fought with his passion. He knew Betty Clinton was not to be won that way alone. Something ran riot in his veins, infecting his being. There was no congealed blood there, for all of Baxter's sneer. And it affected the girl. He could see her sway a little and he suddenly caught her in his arms.

"Yes, all ways, Betty. Lover and mate and partner in everything. You are the other half of me. To share in all things, joy and sorrow, love and work. Love first, Betty, and then we'll go on together with the work that will be ours, planned together, done together—and so to love again."

She had not resisted him. Her head had lain against his shoulder. She lifted it, searching his face. Then, even in the dusk, he saw hers become softly radiant, as, satisfied, she raised her lips to his, her body, soft and infinitely human, clinging close to his. And, for a time, he knew that she was not lacking in the passion that had possessed him.

"We shall go on together," she said softly—after quite a while—"always on and on, Caleb. Bringing water to thirsty places and to thirsty people? Blending work with love to make all perfect? Anything else would only mean stagnation in the end."

"I am the Water-Bearer," he said—he was a little inclined to vaunt in his triumph. "You remember the sign of Aquarius?"

"You must give me mine back again."

"I shall. The two fishes, joined together with a ribbon. Water-creatures, Betty. You and I, in the same element, bound by love."

The music within became louder, ended in a crash of chords. Stella Carquinez came to the patio entrance.

"What are you two doing? Mooning in the dark?" she queried. "Oh!" she added softly, "Honeymooning! I am so glad—my dears. Where are you going, Betty?"

"I am going to tell Maria," she said as she swiftly passed them. Caleb saw tears on her face as she went through the door. He knew they were tears of happiness.

"You are lucky, but tardy," Mrs. Carquinez said to Caleb. "I don't know that you deserve her. You disappointed me last month, at our little celebration."

"I wanted to finish my work," said Caleb simply.

Stella Carquinez laughed softly.

"Dios! Once a Yankee always a Yankee! But you're well mated. Betty—here she comes with Maria, after all."

"Senor," said Maria, stately for all her weight, "It is very well. You will make my senorita happy an' she, ah senor, the good God is very kind to you! An' now I am to make Luis happy, my senorita says. He needs some one to look after heem, for he is only a great child. We shall throw away those two rugs of the puma skeen. My knees have worn off the hair. But we shall still pray—for two now—perhaps, manana, for more. Quien sabe? Now she hav' some one to protect, I," she broke off into a torrent of Spanish, stooped, caught both their hands and kissed them, vanished into the garden.

"She sets an excellent example," said Mrs. Carquinez. "Adios y buenos noches! Dios bendiga a Vd," she added softly at the door.

But they did not hear her benediction. They were quite alone before Elsie Carquinez had left the room.

[THE END]

◆

Reduce by Breathing, Says French Doctor

Bed rest instead of physical exercise, and deep exhaling from the lungs, in addition to the usual nonfattening diet, are prescribed as a cure for obesity by Dr. G. Leven, general secretary of the Therapeutic society of Paris.

Doctor Leven teaches his patients to breathe out so hard that they bend the flame of a candle and to inhale only very slightly. The breathing can be done lying in bed, sitting up or standing erect. Series of five exhalations are repeated every half hour fifteen to twenty times a day. One patient lost fifteen pounds in twenty days and another sixty pounds in the course of eight months.

When a person overeats, Doctor Leven believes, the solar plexus is irritated and this disturbs the functioning of those cerebral centers that regulate the destruction of fat. Other conditions may also cause this disturbance. The course of treatment prescribed is claimed to counteract the effect.

Where She Ranked

"Am I the only woman you ever loved?"

"Oh, no," he answered, promptly; "you are the sixth."

"The sixth!" she exclaimed, suddenly relieving his shoulder of the weight of her head.

"Yes," he said, coldly, "there were five before you—my mother, an aunt, and three sisters."

And thereafter she endeavored to be more specific when she asked questions.

France Has Plan to Harness Ocean

France is ahead of other nations in efforts to derive power from the tides. On the north coast of Brittany, at Aber-Vrach, an experiment in harnessing the ocean is to be made shortly on a large scale.

The tidal flow up and down the small River Diouris is extremely strong, with a height of 25 feet. This in itself, of course, is not exceptional, but it is sufficient for the object in view.

French engineers expect to obtain from this river a constant supply of electricity of 3,800 horse power, and this in two years would pay for the construction of the two dams which are to impound and control the tidal water and other mechanical installations necessary.

If success is attained at Aber-Vrach, there is no doubt that similar enterprises will spring up in other countries. The fjords of Scotland and Scandinavia and the inlets of New England, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia furnish favorable natural conditions.

Cuticura Soothes Baby Rashes

That itch and burn, by hot baths of Cuticura Soap followed by gentle anointings of Cuticura Ointment. Nothing better, purer, sweeter, especially if a little of the fragrant Cuticura Talcum is dusted on at the finish. 25c each.—Advertisement.

When Little Fay Spoke With Bandit

When Fay Templeton, the actress, was a little girl, she made a long trip by stagecoach with her mother one night in the Southwest. The coach stopped at a watering station and a slender, fiery individual stepped in and sat down beside her.

"I knew from his appearance that he was somebody or something," relates Miss Templeton. "I began talking to him and soon was confiding how afraid I was of the bandit Vasquez and how I hoped he wouldn't hurt us. He looked at me and said, 'Why, Vasquez wouldn't hurt a little girl like you.' At the next stop he got out. But first he turned to me and gave me a nugget of free gold, saying, 'Keep this to remember me by.' As we started away the driver whipped up his horses with such haste that my mother asked the reason.

"'Why, don't you know who that was?' he demanded shakily. 'That was Vasquez.'"—Pictorial Review.

"DANDELION BUTTER COLOR"

A harmless vegetable butter color used by millions for 50 years. Drug stores and general stores sell bottles of "Dandelion" for 35 cents.—Adv.

Pigeon Flock Lost

Twelve hundred homing pigeons were released at a point near Bordeaux recently and it was expected that they would alight in their cotes in England in the course of a few hours. The distance is only four hundred miles, which is not much of an accomplishment for a homing pigeon. But the persons interested in the flight are puzzled to know what became of the birds for not one was located. The only explanation is that the entire flock was caught in a storm and carried out to sea and were unable to return. This would be a satisfactory explanation, but there was no evidence of a storm in the vicinity at that time.

DEMAND "BAYER" ASPIRIN

Aspirin Marked With "Bayer Cross" Has Been Proved Safe by Millions.

Warning! Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for 26 years.

Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin. Imitations may prove dangerous.—Adv.

Rather Irritating

Roscoe—What'll I play on the phonograph?

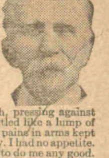
Phyllis—Play the seven-year-itch.

Roscoe—Which record is that?

Phyllis — That's the one that scratches so.

Restaurant Repartee

He—"You're too pretty to be working here." She—"Well, if I get tips enough, I'll retire."



Man of 76 Years Praises Tanlac

Threatened With Permanent Ill-Health Brought on by Muscular Pains and Stomach Troubles.

Many men having responsibilities can benefit by the trying experience of Herman Emping, 2051 S. Olive Street, Indianapolis, a Park Board Employe.

"Neglect robbed me of good health. I suffered from indigestion and gas bloated my stomach, pressing against my lungs. Food settled like a lump of iron. Lumbago and pains in arms kept me in constant agony. I had no appetite.

"Nothing seemed to do me any good. After reading about Tanlac I decided to try it. Immediately I began to feel stronger. My appetite returned. Tanlac built up my strength and health."

This amazing tonic, nature's own remedy made from roots, barks and herbs according to the famous Tanlac formula, helps build up weak bodies, drive out causes of pain and anguish. Take wonderful Tanlac. Ask your druggist for a bottle—today! Over 40 million bottles sold.

Conscience Pricked Her

Betty was visiting in the country. After breakfast her grandfather proposed that they look around. Betty admired the cows and the pigs and the chickens, but when grandfather proposed they take a look at the beehives she drew back. "Come on," urged her grandfather, "the bees won't hurt you." Betty still hung back. I don't know 'bout that," she replied. "You see, I had honey for breakfast!"

CATARRH sufferers find grateful relief in the exclusive menthol blend in Luden's Menthol Cough Drops 5c
255
LUDEN'S

$4,000 IN PRIZES
1,055 PRIZES IN ALL

Enter the great Liquid Veneer Contest. All you have to do is write us in less than 150 words what you consider the outstanding characteristic of Liquid Veneer, or tell us of an unusual use for Liquid Veneer.

You may win the first prize of $500 or one of the 1,054 other prizes. Three prominent business men will act as judges. Contest closes December 31st, 1926. But don't delay. Get necessary Entry Blank and full particulars from your dealer. If he can't supply you write us. Don't miss this big opportunity.

Liquid Veneer is sold by hardware, furniture, drug, paint, grocery and general stores.

BUFFALO SPECIALTY COMPANY
18 Liquid Veneer Bldg.
Buffalo, N. Y.

LIQUID VENEER

FOR OVER 200 YEARS

haarlem oil has been a world-wide remedy for kidney, liver and bladder disorders, rheumatism, lumbago and uric acid conditions.

GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES

correct internal troubles, stimulate vital organs. Three sizes. All druggists. Insist on the original genuine GOLD MEDAL.

W. N. U., DETROIT, NO. 47–1926.

First Twin Beds

The first twin beds known to history were used by the great-grandparents of King Tut's wife, Meinard Wulpi told the Plywood Manufacturers' association at Chicago recently. He said the beds had been unearthed from King Touya's tomb and were made of plywood.

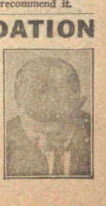
I am a man, and whatever concerns humanity is of interest to me.—Terence.

Desperate straits and crooked actions are often closely allied.

CHILDREN CRY FOR
Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is a pleasant, harmless Substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Teething Drops and Soothing Syrups, especially prepared for Infants in arms and Children all ages.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas H Fletcher
Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.



THE BEST RECOMMENDATION
— FOR —
Bare-to-Hair

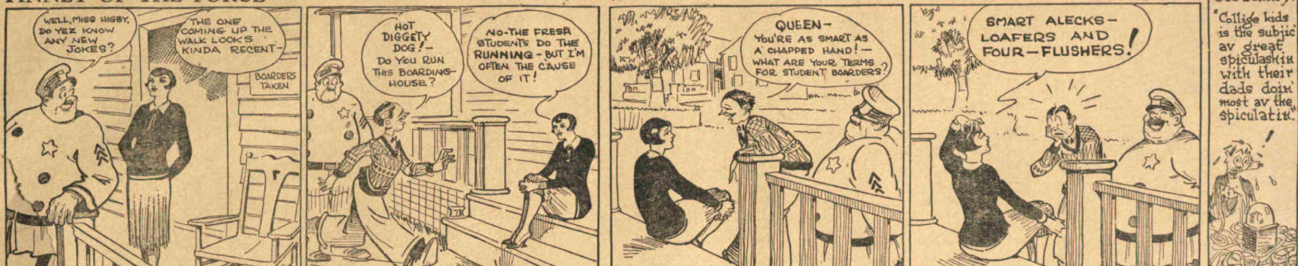
is the number who are trying to imitate it. If Bare-to-Hair was not growing hair on bald heads there would be no imitators. If there is baldness or signs of it you can't afford to neglect to use "Forst's Original Bare-to-Hair."

Correspondence Given Personal Attention
E. J. JAHN CO., Distributor
DETROIT · · MICHIGAN

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

By F. O. Alexander
©Western Newspaper Union

The Terms Are Reasonable



WELL, MISS HIGBY, DO YEZ KNOW ANY NEW JOKES?
THE ONE COMING UP THE WALK LOOKS KINDA RECENT—BOARDERS TAKEN
HOT DIGGETY DOG!— DO YOU RUN THIS BOARDING-HOUSE?
NO—THE FRESH STUDENTS DO THE RUNNING—BUT I'M OFTEN THE CAUSE OF IT!
QUEEN— YOU'RE AS SMART AS A CHAPPED HAND!— WHAT ARE YOUR TERMS FOR STUDENT BOARDERS?
SMART ALECKS— LOAFERS AND FOUR—FLUSHERS!
Sez Finney: "Collige kids is the subjic av great spiculashin with their dads doin' most av the spiculatin'."
ALEXANDER

Patronize Our Advertisers

They are all boosters and deserve your business.

Followed Directions

The young daughter wanted to practice at baking while the mother took a drive. Upon her return the mother found every bowl in the house had been used, and all were standing in a row on the kitchen table, ready for washing. Upon inquiry, the embryo cook explained: "Well, the recipe said to beat eight eggs separately."—Christian Science Monthly.

How to Keep "Kids" Off Street

When the Dadson family out in Vancouver, B. C., bought two cornets and a trombone for their three children—the eldest of whom was then but six—the neighbors viewed the musical project with decided skepticism.

"Father" Dadson, however, had ideas of his own, and the doubts of the neighbors worried him not one iota. He believed that children "run the streets" because there is nothing in the average home to hold their interest. He believed that with a definite something in the home it would be the home, and not the streets, that would see the most of his children. Further, he believed that music could supply that definite something. At least it was worth a trial.

The above picture, from the Conn Music Center files, goes far toward telling the rest of the story of this father's experiment.

His three children—Billy is now eight, Hector is six and Mona is four—are now real musicians. Recently they tried their instruments on a nationally known vaudeville circuit, "just to see what it was like." Critics pronounced their act the feature of the bill. "Father" Dadson, however, is more interested in the fact that the act is the feature of the home.

No Secrets to Making Perfect Cup of Coffee

Can Be Achieved By Following A Few Simple Rules Says Famous Cooking Expert

By Mildred Maddocks Bentley

Formerly Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

What is the secret of first-rate coffee—the kind that starts the day right—that makes you feel "like a million dollars"?

Literally hundreds of women—and a surprising number of men—have asked me this question in one form or another. And it's an important one—for what can be more blighting to domestic happiness than a cup of muddy coffee or coffee improperly "creamed"? And, on the contrary, what can be more exhilarating than a good cup—fragrant, golden, delicious?

Luckily there's no hidden secret about making and serving the perfect coffee—it's just a matter of minding your p's and q's and following a few simple directions.

Selection of Coffee

There are many excellent brands of coffee in the market—the choice of one of these is largely a matter of individual taste. But I do want to say that usually coffee in the bean retains its flavor longer than in the ground form—so, if possible, buy the whole beans and grind your coffee fresh for each meal. If, however, the breakfast hour—or fifteen minutes—is too hectic to admit of this extra step, at least keep your ground coffee in an air tight container—a glass fruit jar for instance. And it's well to remember that the more finely the coffee is ground, the easier it is to extract its full strength and flavor—consequently finely-ground coffee is economical and time-saving.

The Coffee Pot

Connoisseurs maintain that coffee brewed in a metal pot has a less delicate flavor than in a container of glass, stone-ware or agate. Whatever kind of coffee pot you prefer—it should be scoured frequently and occasionally "boiled out" with water to which a pinch of baking soda has been added—then rinsed, dried, and left uncovered.

If a percolator is used, the pipe should be carefully washed every day with a brush to remove all scum from the preceding brew.

For drip coffee, if you do not have a special drip coffee pot, an ordinary one equipped with a double cheesecloth bag will serve the purpose. The cheesecloth should be washed in cold water after using and renewed at least once a week. Keep the bag always moist.

The "Creaming"

This I consider quite as important as the actual brewing. Good coffee can so easily be spoiled by using cream of inferior quality or the "top of the bottle" if carelessly poured off. In my study of food habits, I am finding that every year more and more people prefer sweetened condensed milk in their coffee. You see this kind is twice as rich and creamy as ordinary milk and furthermore already contains sugar, thus serving the additional purpose of sweetening the coffee. Try it for a few days, and I think you will agree that the condensed milk gives a delightfully rich, smoothly blended drink, bringing out the real coffee flavor And of course it is very convenient, as it keeps fresh without ice even after the can is opened—and the cost is extremely moderate.

Now as to the actual methods of brewing. There are several and your choice is entirely a matter of individual taste. If the directions are carefully followed, any of the methods will yield the "perfect cup of coffee"—mellow in flavor, with a delicate, fragrant aroma, free from sediment and of a dark golden hue.

Boiled Coffee

Rinse the pot with hot water, put the coffee in the pot—one rounded tablespoon of medium-ground coffee to each cup of boiling water, with an additional spoon "for the pot." Add a little white of egg, or crushed egg shell and about one-fourth cup of cold water, stirring briskly. Add the boiling water, place the coffee pot over heat, and bring to a full boil. Place on back of the stove or over low heat for about ten minutes to settle, before serving. Do not allow the coffee to become unsettled by careless pouring.

Percolated Coffee

Use one cup of finely-ground coffee to six cups of boiling water. Place the coffee in the strainer in the upper part of the pot and let the water bubble up through the tube, percolating through the coffee into the lower part, until the coffee is of the desired strength, five minutes being the usual time required. Serve at once. Coffee made in a percolator is not good if allowed to cook after the required strength is reached.

Drip Coffee

Heat the pot by rinsing in hot water, and wet the strainer. Measure carefully the coffee (finely-ground) allowing one rounded tablespoon to each cup of water. Place in the drip-medium and pour boiling water through the coffee very slowly. Cover and let stand to drip through and serve immediately. Do not allow the brew to cool. If service is delayed, place the pot in or over hot water. Never reheat by placing over the fire.

Steeped Coffee

In making steeped coffee use one rounded tablespoon of coffee to each cup of water used, with an additional spoon for the pot. Add cold water. Place over the fire and bring quickly to the boiling point. Either let it stand for a moment to settle or add a little cold water.

Remember—the best coffee will lose its flavor if allowed to stand. Coffee should always be freshly made and served piping hot, as soon as it is brewed. If necessary to let stand, the pot should be tightly covered and the spout closed by stuffing with soft cloth or paper, so that none of the aroma and flavor may be lost.

Advocate and MICHIGAN FARMER, both one year $2.15

W. C. T. U. Column

LAURA WALWORTH, EDITOR

Citizens Must Co-operate

The following paper was written by Sheriff F. B. Henkel of Montcalm county for presentation at the recent county W. C. T. U. convention. One week after it was written, Mr. Henkel died from the effects of gunshot wounds received in Lakeview while trying to induce a couple of drunken boys to go to their home.

Madam President and Ladies of the W. C. T. U:

The subject given me for discussion, namely, "Needed Cooperation in This County," is one that has been constantly in my mind during my term of office and I am grateful for this opportunity to present to the members of this splendid organization a few of my ideas along that line.

It is quite the custom in this, and I suppose other counties, when violations of the law are followed by arrests and convictions, to lay all of the blame upon the officials of the county. If some one is making or selling moonshine, the community immediately blames the sheriff for the fact that the guilty party is not immediately placed in the penitentiary. If an arrest is made, and the jury acquits the accused party, the prosecuting attorney or the judge receives the immediate censure of the whole community.

As sheriff of this county, I recognize that I have a duty to perform and that, to a very large extent, I am responsible for the enforcement of the laws of our state and nation in Montcalm county, and I know also that the prosecuting attorney and the circuit judge have large responsibilities. I am fully aware also that there is a form of co-operation, which I understand to be without the scope of the subject which was given me, but which is of vital importance if the laws are to be enforced, namely, the cooperation between the sheriff's force and the office of the prosecuting attorney. Neither can properly perform his duties without the constant cooperation of the other. But while realizing the importance to the people of the community of the constant vigilance and attention on my part, and on the part of the prosecuting attorney, and while recognizing the responsibility that is placed upon both of us to lead the citizens of this county in the enforcement of the law, I must say to you that neither myself nor any other sheriff, even with the constant and able assistance of the prosecuting attorney, can enforce the laws of the state and nation unless there is behind these officers the constant and willing cooperation of a very large part of the people of the community.

It is human to place the blame for things that go wrong upon others, and the fact that the people so generally blame the sheriff and other officers when the fault lies with themselves, while it is not surprising, is nevertheless unfortunate.

Undoubtedly, nearly all citizens of the county who try to be proper and respectable persons will say without a moment's hesitation that they stand willing and ready to cooperate with the sheriff and other officers to the fullest possible extent. Nevertheless, when the time comes that a particular citizen has an unpleasant duty to perform in this connection, how frequently this citizen will fail to do his duty and then will blame the sheriff or the prosecuting attorney or the judge because the law is not enforced.

I will be more specific. Hardly a day passes but what someone comes to the office of the sheriff or writes a letter to the sheriff, saying that such and such a person is making or selling moonshine, or is otherwise misbehaving himself, but adding, "Now I don't want to get mixed up in this. I don't want to go into court, or be a witness. Please do not tell anyone that I gave you this information." Another almost daily occurence in our office is the receipt of unsigned letters stating that such and such persons are breaking the law in some particular way.

Perhaps many of the people who have followed the above tactics do not fully realize how little assistance they are really giving us. Criminals can not be convicted and punished upon secret information. The law of this country requires public trials, and that the evidence against the accused be given in the open and by the persons who have the information. In other words the evidence must be given in open court, and it cannot be hearsay.

The sheriff cannot testify in court to what some one else has told him about the accused. Neither can a man be convicted because he has the reputation of being a moonshiner in his community. His conviction if accomplished at all, must be upon satisfactory evidence that he has broken the law. Sometimes the officers can give all of such evidence themselves, but more generally such a conviction can be obtained only upon testimony of others as well as the officers, and when the people of the community have the knowledge and keep it secret, and refuse to sigh the letters which they send to the sheriff or prosecnting attorney, we must expect that very frequently the guilty person will escape punishment.

I certainly realize that it is an unpleasant thing to come into court and testify openly against one's neighbors, but if the neighbor is disobeying the law that is one's duty, and if the citizen of any community refuses to perform that duty it is his fault that justice is not done, and not the fault of the sheriff.

In the case of unsigned letters it is the general rule that the letter does not give anywhere near all the information that the officer needs. The letter not being signed the officer cannot go to the writer and obtain further information.

It certainly is not the intention of our office to tell others the information which we obtain from the members of various communities. Except when it is necessary to call persons who can testify to do so in open court, information thus received will be treated in the strictest confidence. It is not only impossible but it would be folly for us to pay much attention to unsigned letters. We find it generally true that a person who hasn't enough courage to sign his letters is a person upon whom we can place no dependence.

I wish to say further to the members of this organization that it is the desire and purpose of our office to enforce the laws in this county, and among those laws, the so-called prohibitory liquor law. We find, however, that it is a law which is difficult to enforce, and if it is to be successfully enforced in Montcalm county, or any other place, that can only be done when we have the cooperation of the right thinking people of the various communities within the county, and it can only be done when those people are willing to take their share of the responsibility; are willing to give us the information which they have, and are willing, when necessary, to come openly upon the witness stand and testify against the wrong doer; and when those citizens who are called for jury duty are likewise ready to carry their share of the responsibility and bring in a verdict of guilty when the evidence warrants such a verdict

I again wish to thank you for this opportunity, and to assure you that your co-operation in the matter of enforcing the laws of this state within the county of Montcalm will be most sincerely appreciated.—The Michigan Union.

Dog—Gone It Anyhow

The supervisors meeting recently held in Hillsdale did not particularly interest us but when we casually perused the disbursements it leaves a bad taste in the mouth. Human beings still want dogs for companionship but they will find hard sledding paying the damages in the county created by the dogs. We note an appaling list of mortalities among our most valuable sheep herds and we have a hunch something is going to happen to many a poor "doggie" before another year rolls around, at any rate the extreme cuteness of so many happy-go-lucky canines is far short of the actual worth of the precious sheep killed.

Anyway you may figure it, the ownership of dogs does not pay at all in these parts where almost every small farm has a flock of high grade sheep. In the list of claimants we note 40 names of farmers who have lost sheep by dogs and have suffered by tolls among the herds. The highest bill allowed this year was that of Martin Westcott for $258.00, Jim Gilmore follows with a bill aggregating $179.50 and so on down and the grand total is so awful we would not dare to even whisper but it runs into the thousands.

We have little in common with the farmers but we fail to see the necessity of keeping so many dogs which are always a menace to public health often dangerous to strangers, eating all manner of decayed and filthy garbage, ever in the way often afflicted with hydrophobia in summer, decidedly ill smelling and at least of no producing value to mankind, against a herd of thoroughbred wool producing sheep, clean and always eating the best of grass and grains, whose fleece alone in one clip is worth more than all the measly flee bitten canines in the county. If the whole race of curs in Hillsdale county were at one swipe wiped off the map we much question if there would be any serious regrets, but on the other hand removing every sheep in the county would be a direct loss of many millions of dollars in monetary value.

We know of course, the Board of Supervisors is composed almost to a man of farmers but we fail to see why these hard-headed agriculturists do not make it so hot for the dogs that the number will be at least cut down one-half. It is actually funny how human nature will uphold the poorest mangiest flee-bitten cur if it happens to be a much loved member of the family. We know men who think as much of their dogs as some men think of their wives, and considering the qualities of both wives and dogs—this seems preposterous. If you think this dog business is a paying transaction read the list of bills allowed at last session of Supervisors. At the rate we are paying for slaughtered sheep we shall soon be paying more for it than for road maintainance.

Feeding For Meat Production

Thirty herd of calves which are on feed were separated into lots according to sex, and then split into sections for various rations used in the test. The analysis when the beef is dressed out will also show the difference between the three rations used. Cattle men are said to be especially anxious to determine whether or not ensilage effects the quality of the meat.

The calves, grade Shorthorn and Angus, were purchased on the Chicago market, according to Prof. G. A. Branaman, of the M. S. C. animal husbandry department, who is conducting the experiment.

Correct English
MONTHLY MAGAZINE
Authoritive Exponent of English for 24 Years
Edited and founded by
JOSEPHINF TURCK BAKER
Famous World English Authority

Send 10 Cents for Sample Copy
Correct English Publishing Company
Evanston, Illinois
Agents Wanted Everywhere

F. E. Caswell D. V. M.
Veterinarian
Office at Residence, West Main St
Private Phone 45
North Adams, Mich.

Dr. L. R. ULRICH
DENTIST
Private Office in Room over Perkins' Restaurant
Thursdays hours 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.
Plate Work a Specialty

O. G. McFarland M. D.
North Adams, Mich.
OFFICE HOURS: 8:00 to 9:00 a. m.
1:00 to 4:00 p. m.
7:00 to 8:00 p. m.
First door west of Opera House

FAMILY BAND

Those who are laboring under the delusion that the present generation alone is responsible for the Jazz Age would do well to study this picture, says the Conn Music Center, Elkhart, Ind.

Here five generations are pictured in harmony. It shows Mrs. Sarah Jane Hewitt of Los Angeles, eighty-six years of age, drawing harmony from one saxophone, while two more and a clarinet are held in reserve.

Her "little boy" Frank, a mere lad of sixty-seven, is playing the cornet Her granddaughter, Mrs. A. G. Wagner, forty-one, holds still another saxophone while her great-granddaughter Mrs. J. Effinger, Jr., twenty, is playing second cornet. Great-great-grandson Jack Effinger, Jr., is doing his best with the drums.

Needless to say, there are no dull moments in the homes of the Hewitt-Effinger clan.

MUSICAL BUMP

The public school band movement now sweeping the nation is developing for America a "musical bump" that will even rival that displayed by the most colorful and tune-loving countries of the Old World, according to Frederick Neil Innes, internationally famous bandmaster of the 80's and now head of the Conn National School of Music, Chicago.

"The time is near at hand when even the smallest of communities will have its band," says Mr. Innes. "And they will be capable organizations, too.

"Never has there been such an indication of a widespread interest in band music. A school is as proud when their band wins the state championship as they are when their football eleven cleans up on every other aggregation in the section.

"The students are seeing music not only as a cultural pastime, but as the possible key to a remunerative profession.

"It is time the tide was turning. A year ago the average American spent but 10 cents on band music, while $1.50 was being spent on pianos, and $1 on talking machines. Those figures are due for material changes, and it will be the boys of the land who will change them."

Music for "Sissies"? Listen to These Boys

Elkhart, Ind.—The age-old contention that boys consider music as something for "sissies" is exploded in a survey brought to light by the Conn Music Center here.

More boys want to study music than do girls, questions put to 5,000 children between the fourth and ninth grades revealed. Forty per cent of the boys announced a willingness to study music if given an opportunity. Thirty-seven per cent of the girls manifested interest.

Parental influence was seen in the fact that while only 18 per cent of the musically interested expressed a preference for the piano, 50 per cent were studying that instrument. Only 12 per cent were interested in the violin, yet 20 per cent were taking lessons on the bow and fiddle.

The saxophone, the banjo and the cornet took honors for preference among the boys. None studying these instruments was dissatisfied. Among the extremely young boys the lowly harmonica ranked high.

The appointment of the Rev. Fr. Albert George as pastor of the Roman Catholic church at Palms, Mich. was recently announced by the Rt. Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, D. D., Bishop of Detroit. At the same time the Rev. Fr. Bernard Geller, formerly assistant pastor at St. Joseph's church, Detroit, was appointed assistant at St. Elizabeth's church, in that city.

This coupon and 25c entitle the undersigned to one 35c can of Acme Quality Enamel-Kote, any color, and a special 20c Paint Brush.
Name............
Address............

To acquaint you with Acme Quality, we are making a special offer for a short time only.

SPECIAL OFFER 55¢ Value for 25¢

Home— or "just a place to stay"?

Can you point with pride to your house and say, "There is my home"? Or do you look resentfully, if at all, at the unpainted, unattractive domicile in which you stay? Live now! Don't wait for the future to bring you enjoyment. Beautify your place with Acme Quality House Paint. It's durable and economical. You'll enjoy the surprisingly delightful change. You'll begin to live! Incidentally you will increase your property value.

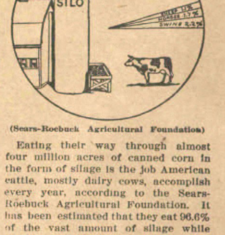
ACME QUALITY Paint and Varnish

Use Acme Quality Paint and Varnish for enduring beautification of all interior and exterior surfaces. Come in and talk paint with us. We will gladly answer all questions.

J. M. WILLIAMS, North Adams

Harley Voorhees
FUNERAL DIRECTOR
HANOVER MICHIGAN
Calls attended promptly day an night. Having the best of equipment, I can serve and please you.
Any of our friends who wish our servces, can reach u day or night bycalling Moscow Central.
HARLEY VOORHEES
Hanover, Mich.

Eat Way Through Corn Acres



(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

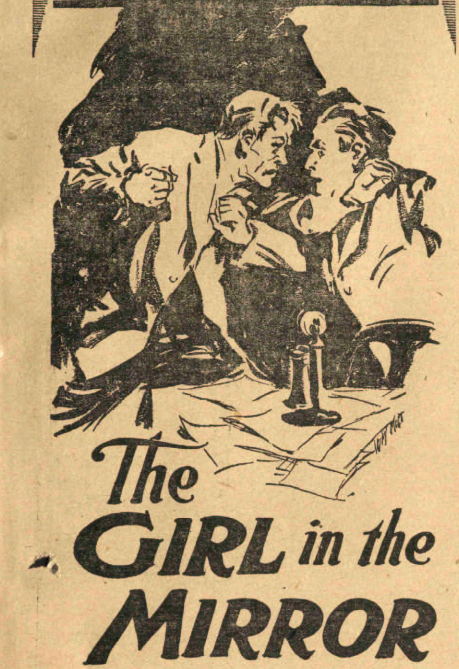
Eating their way through almost four million acres of canned corn in the form of silage is the job American cattle, mostly dairy cows, accomplish every year, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. It has been estimated that they eat 96.6% of the vast amount of silage while of the small amount left, swine consume 2.2%, horses, 1.7% and sheep 1.1%. Very little silage is fed to poultry. All silage made on the farm is consumed on the farm because it is not a product that can be handled successfully through commercial channels.

Hillsdale-Jackson Bus Line
Four Round Trips each Day
Two Round Trips Sunday
NORTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams....6:45 a. m
" " "....1:15 p. m
SOUTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams....8:15 a. m.
" " "....4:20 p. m.
SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS
Bus north at ....5:15 . m
Bus south (via Jonesville) p11 20

BIG SUBSCRIPTION OFFER

The People's Popular Monthly
Good Stories
The Farm Journal
Household

You Get ALL FOUR of These
MAGAZINES and OUR NEWSPAPER
For One Year Each FOR. $ 1.80 Order Now
THIS EXCEPTIONAL OFFER IS GOOD FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY
Subscriptions may be new or renewal. All renewal subscriptions will be extended for one year from present date of expiration.



The GIRL in the MIRROR
By Elizabeth Jordan
COPYRIGHT BY THE CENTURY CO.

IN this charming story Elizabeth Jordan indulges the most delightful turn of her genius—framing a mystery romance. Probably it is the best piece of work of the sort she has ever turned out. It is a love story abounding in the thrills of rapidly succeeding adventures. The outcome of the mystery is so totally unexpected that it brings the reader up with a sharp gasp, almost a jolt; but the surprise occasions no disappointment.

You'll Miss a Treat if You Fail to Read This New Serial in FARMING?

ARCHITECTURE?
BANKING?
MANUFACTURING
INSURANCE?
JOURNALISM?
ART?
LAW?
MEDICINE?
LIFE CHART
HOW TO GET RICH QUICK
MUDDLING
PLANNING

WHERE will you be ten years from now? The answer depends on the course you follow. Today, tomorrow, the next seven days, the next month and the years swiftly coming will tell the story.

Everyone who has not made a definite choice of his life work or who is unsettled and desires to better himself should get in touch immediately with

THE OPEN ROAD
The Most Original Monthly Magazine in America

Its department: "Jobs,—What the Times Are Opening Up," and the "What Shall I Be?" series of opportunity articles, prepared by experts, are helping thousands to Look Before They Leap. And in every issue there is plenty of rousing good fiction.

We want you, or someone close to you, to enjoy and profit by this remarkable magazine. Therefore we make this Get Acquainted Offer—6 months for one dollar. (The regular price is $2.50 a year.) This small investment may influence your future tremendously. Good judgment says: Do it now! Pin $1.00 to this offer and mail it with name and address to

THE OPEN ROAD MAGAZINE, 248 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass.

ADVOCATE AND McCALL'S MAGAZINE Both $2.25

The City Of The Straits

Under no circumstances do we wish our readers to get the impression we are trying to mislead them but our honest opinion is that Detroit is destined to become the largest city of its kind in the world. If you doubt this, read the Michigan Manufacturer or any other reputable industrial paper and you will find that building and land activities are so much more numerous according to size than either New York or Chicago that the latter cities are not in the race New York is unfortunately situated, being on a small neck of land extending into the Harbor and is practically hemmed in on all sides If it extends across the East River or the Hudson it must become practically another city to all intents and purposes since the rivers are considerably over a mile wide. Chicago is extending westward over the prairies but this does not mean Chicago is maintaining its commercial importance—especially so in regard to the shipping interests of the World. Chicago is commercially at the tail end of the system of waterways while Detroit is the natural gateway and always will be. We are astounded to read the permits being granted winter and summer for monstrous apartment buildings capable of housing 65 families and more to be built costing all the way from $200,000 up to several million at Detroit.

Now the question is why these apartment houses? Do you suppose the builders are amateurs? They are not. They are shrewd business firms who are looking ahead five, ten or fifteen years and they know that the great influx of clerks, managers, storekeepers and tradesmen of every description who are headded for Detroit in the next decade will require all these immense houses and hundreds more like them. In the last magazine we noted no less than a half dozen big apartments to be built in the outer portions of the business district. Add to this a vast number of private dwellings constantly being built, the schools, the theatres, the garages, the banks, etc., and the acreage—then sit down with your pencil and figure how long will it be until Detroit will hook up with Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor as one vast municipality. Already practically all the vacant farms between Detroit and Ypsilanti are bought up and platted, now comes the calamity howler who cries and sobs and moans "we are over sub-divided" and we are "mushrooming". What kind of sense is it that puts up such an amazing argument Do you suppose for one minute these real estate men are buying these farms to keep? If people did not buy the lots the farms would still be raising corn and white beans. So long as home seekers buy these lots and build houses the city of Detroit keeps marching on. Somebody puts up the argument that most of these properties are bought for speculation purely and no houses will be built. Some are without doubt bought by people who do not build, but there is always enough building going on in every sub-division to make the business lively, and every plat that has ever been laid out inside of three years has developed into a thriving community. If you have loose money don't allow it to mildew or put it into high sounding Florida propositions where land is not worth over 50 cents per acre. Don't you do it! Put it where a great city is going to bull it up and up and you'll never have occasion to remark "What a fool I was."

Saxophones Used In Fight On Devil

The saxophone—"instrument of the devil"—is being enlisted by the churches in their fight on the devil it is indicated in advices reaching the Conn Music Center, Elkhart, Ind. All saxophone quartettes and sextettes in church and Sunday school are among the "devil's own weapons" being used to win folks over to religion.

"Not so long ago it was quite common for church people to shun the mention of saxophone, let alone go to hear one played," says James F. Boyer, supervisor of the Conn Music Center. "The sentiment seemed to be even among musicians, than the saxophone wasn't much good but for jazz, and for a while it did appear that the jazz artists were the only ones to recognize and make use of this comparatively new addition to the brass instrument family. Reports now coming in here, however indicate a changed attitude on the part of the public. Artists know that the saxophone tones come nearest of all others in resemblance to the human voice, and recognize that there is nothing so beautiful musically as a saxophone solo. H. Benne Henton, one of the greatest living masters of this instrument, claims that no cleaner, more elevating or inspirational music can come from any instrument, and will not play anything that has the slightest taint of jazz in it. Saxophone quartettes and saxophone sextettes are winning a place for themselves in churches, especially that cannot afford a pipe organ, and other churches have found that the appearance of an orchestra at church functions invariably draws increased attendance. This is indeed fighting the devil with his own weapons."

Michigan Poultry Association

It may interest our readers in this vicinity who are in the poultry business to know that the association met at Lansing November 4th 1926 and adopted a code of rules which hereafter will be strictly observed by the members who are on the accredited list. Among the one hundred and nine applications of hatchers throughout Michigan we note that of Harold Pierce of Jerome and Leo V. Card of Cambria as being on the accredited list.

Among the new rules and regulations we note that it has been decided to adopt a label size three inches in diameter for shipping coops for all members of the association. No member has a right to misinform his customers about chicks either in regard to the time of hatching or the certification of his chicks. One instance came up where this had been done and the Association immediately requested the hatcher to refund the purchase price, and if he did not, the Association would do so and start suit against him Uniform advertising is to be adopted and it is to be O. K'd by experts for the purpose. Nine hatcheries were told to either withdraw their membership or live up to the rules. Two applications were rejected point blank as the applicants were known to be crooked in their deals.

The Association further states that in Michigan from December 1st to March 1st there are few sunshiny days and in this case it is profitable and advisable to feed certain vitamines to poultry to produce heavy laying and recommends cod liver oil in quantity of one quart of oil to each hundred birds per week or from one to three per cent of the total ration fed them. Mix the oil with grain or clobbered curd of milk every other day. Be sure you obtain the dark brown oil which is extracted by the natural heat of the sun after the liver decays, and not the steam manufactured product which is yellow and lacking in the necessary vitamines to produce eggs. Three sources are mentioned where you can get this oil pure without adulteration: Yocum—Fast Limited London Ontario Canada; Marden—Wild Corporation, Somerville Station Boston, Massachusetts; E. L. Patch Company Boston Massachusetts. We might say that the Holland Dutchmen are the leaders in Michigan in the Hatchery business. The city of Holland has no less than 12 firms. Zeeland has 16. Hillsdale has one listed, Sunnybrook Poultry Farm H. J. Riley Prop.

Farm Industry Has Heavy Tax Burdens

Corporations engaged in agriculture and allied industries, and those engaged in mining and quarrying led all other industrial groups in the percentage of net profits paid out in taxes in 1924, according to the statement of R. Wayne Newton, research associate at M. S. C. The statement is based upon an analysis made of the corporation tax statistics for the entire country.

Ninety-eight percent of the net profits of 9,758 companies engaged in farming and similar lines in 1924 was paid out as federal, state or local taxes. Corporations engaged in farming and those engaged in mining have, for the three years preceding 1925, paid more taxes in proportion to their net income than any other class of corporate business. No statistics are available for the years preceding 1922.

Mr. Newton also says that farm corporations have the unenviable distinction of being the only major class of business enterprise whose taxes average higher on the unsuccessful firms than on those which realize a profit. Successful farming corporations paid out 3.1 percent of their gross in taxes in 1924, while unsuccessful firms in the same business paid 3.8 percent of their gross income to the tax collectors.

Continued reliance of the states upon the property tax as the chief means of taxing agriculture is believed to be responsible in a large measure for the tax situation shown for farm companies. The property tax, it is pointed out, is based on capital values and has comparatively little direct relation to changes in current income.

Egg Production

Birds owned by Hanson's White Leghorn Farm, Corvallis, Oregon led the production race for forty nine weeks, but faltered in the home stretch and finished third. The pen of White Leghorns owned by George S. Sutton, Aurora, Indiana, came up from behind to secure second place.

The previous record for production of individual hens was broken by hen number 4 in Hanson's pen. This bird laid 309 eggs in 358 days The best previous record was 308 eggs in 365 days. White Leghorns won the first nine places in individual production and tied for tenth with a Barred Rock owned by F. E. Fogle, Okemos. To tie for tenth in this contest a bird had to lay 293 eggs in 358 days.

Records for average production for each breed shown an increase over that of any previous year. The increase made this year over the 1923 production are 23 eggs for Barred Rocks, 41 eggs for Rhode Island Reds, 10 eggs for Anconas and 32 eggs for White Leghorns. This shows the value of egg laying contests for the stimulation of interest in the breeding of high producing strains, according to poultry men at M. S. C.

TO PREVENT WASTE IN CONDEMNATION

AMENDMENT TO BE VOTED ON IN NOVEMBER WOULD CUT IMPROVEMENT COSTS

WORD "EXCESS" IS MISNOMER

Cities and Towns Would be Enabled To Plan for Future without Taxing Property Holders Excessively

"Excess Condemnation" is really an improper name for the proposed constitutional amendment which will be voted upon at the November election. This power which is considered essential to proper municipal development should really be called "A Bill to Prevent Waste in the Condemnation of Land."

In order to get a proper understanding of Excess Condemnation, it is necessary to read the constitutional amendment and to analyze it carefully It will be seen that municipalities cannot resort to excessive condemnation of land, nor can they take large sections of property without showing public necessity.

Text of Amendment

The amendment reads as follows.

> "Subject to this constitution, the legislature may authorize municipalities, subject to reasonable limitations, to condemn and take the fee to more land and property than is needed in the acquiring, opening and widening of boulevards, streets and alleys, or for any public use, and after so much of the land and property has been appropriated for any such needed public purpose, the remainder may be sold or leased with or without such restriction as may be appropriate to the improvement made. Bonds may be issued to supply the funds to pay in whole or in part for the excess property so appropriated, but such bonds shall be a lien only on the property so acquired and they shall not be included in any limitation of the bonded indebtedness of such municipality."

During the past ten years practically all of the large cities throughout the United States have done considerable city planning work. This has been necessary because of mistakes made in early planning, and improvements are now being carried out in many large cities at great cost to the taxpayers. This cost is increased by the fact that cities and villages in Michigan are, at the present time, permitted to take only the actual amount of land needed to carry out any particular improvement. Where part of a building is acquired, the entire building must be paid for and the owner very often purchases the portion acquired by the city at a small percentage of its cost to the city. The building is moved back but in the meantime, the citizens at large and especially those in the assessment district have suffered a loss.

Planning for the Future

The city planning movement has reached not only the cities but the smaller municipalities and many villages throughout the country.

A recent report shows that over 175 municipalities with a population of less than 10,000, are doing some form of city planning work. This has been made necessary, to a large extent, by the automobile.

One of the first steps in carrying out any city planning program is to prepare a thorofare plan. This may affect two streets or may affect two hundred streets in any municipality depending on its size, but there is hardly a village in Michigan whose streets have not been affected by the growth of automobile traffic.

Many villages have now found it necessary to widen their streets, and in order that these widenings may be carried out at least expense and in such a manner as to leave proper sized parcels after the widening, we must resort to some such power as excess condemnation. This merely means that the municipality may either take the entire lot which is affected by the wideninig, or, it may take a lot in the rear of that affected, and after using so much of the property as is needed for the actual physical improvement, sell off the remaining parcels. This will have increased in value to such an extent as to help pay for the improvement and will thus relieve the taxpayers in the city or village from the burden of a special assessment.

All Communities Benefitted

The charge has been made that this proposed amendment will aid the cities only, but there are few large cities in Michigan while there are a number of small cities and villages, which will benefit by the amendment also. It is therefore essential that all unite in voting favorably for Excess Condemnation.

It must be remembered that the Constitutional Amendment merely gives the Legislature the right to enact laws pursuant thereto and that such laws must be "subject to reasonable limitations." No injustice will be done, while much good will accrue to those municipalities which care to work under such laws.

Rack to Hold Utensils

A rack that will hold the milk cans, pails, and strainers where they will be exposed to the sun is a good thing. We put ours on the south side of the room when they are washed, says a writer. It is made of two-by-fours set so that the cans are upside down and lean toward the building. The sun's rays make the best germicide known. If cans and pails are carelessly washed and put right side up in the room the germs will multiply with almost unbelievable rapidity.

EARLY MISSION NOW MUSEUM

Historic Edifice to House Relics of Early Days in Michigan

The old mission church at St. Ignace, Mich., built in 1837 and used until 1905, is in process of restoration and will be turned over to the church authorities for use as a historical museum, through the generosity of Mrs. Catherine Chambers-Gleason. Mrs. Gleason not only financed the purchase of the property but is adding a sufficient fund to bring the old building as nearly as possible to its former appearance.

When completed the structure will contain many historical relics of the early days in St. Ignace, owned by the church, its members and others who may wish to contribute to the collection. Among these relics will be many taken from the grave of Father Marquette, when his remains were exhumed from under the altar of the first church erected in St. Ignace, in what is now known as Marquette Park.

Mission Dates From 1670

The first Jesuit mission on the straits was established in St. Ignace in 1670 and it was not until 1781, when the French purchased Mackinac Island, that the church was removed there with the fort. The grave of Pere Jacques Marquette, the intrepid Jesuit missionary and discoverer of the Mississippi river, was discovered in 1877, according to the Rev. Samuel Hedges, author of "Father Marquette and his place of burial at St. Ignace, Michigan".

A settler named Patrick Murray was clearing some ground near his home for garden purposes in May of that year when he found the foundation of a building 36 by 40 feet. The narrower part faced the lake and the foundation of flat limestone, such as would be used in lining up a log building, stood out so distinctly that it could not but command attention.

Murray notified the Rev. Fr. Edward Jacker, the parish priest and an authority on the history of early Michigan. A cursory inspection revealed crucifixes of various designs, beads, rings and pieces of old iron, scraps of copper and other objects which tended to show that the building was in truth the original mission.

Grave Found in 1877

In September, 1877, after it had been firmly established from records and finds that the foundation was that of the mission, a search was made in the presence of a large number of townspeople for the remains of Father Marquette. Excavation revealed the floor of a cellar. Digging down a few feet below the level of the floor the searchers found pieces of birch bark and with them pieces of bone Then the almost intact birch bark bottom of a box of which the earlier pieces had evidently formed the top, was discovered. The following day further search revealed other pieces of human bones, including some fragments of a skull. The bones were disposed of by sending part of them to Marquette College, in Milwaukee, and placing the remainder in a vault under a monument erected by the people of St. Ignace, in 1882, on the spot where the bones were found.

In his own letters and reports, all of which can be found in the "Jesuit Relations", Father Marquette told of the mission at St. Ignace and of his life there. Worn out by his labors in exploring the Mississippi, he died, in 1676, near Ludington. Two years later, his body was removed to the mission at St. Ignace by pious Indians.

The restored mission church which was built in 1837 by Father Blonduel bids fair to become a shrine to which people from all over the country will come to gain a first hand knowledge of the territory which played such an important part in the early history of the United States.

NOTED ECONOMIST SPEAKS AT MASS FOR LABORITES

Rev. John A. Ryan, D.D., Preaches Sermon to A. F. L. Delegates in Detroit

The Rev. Fr. John A. Ryan, D. D., noted Catholic economist of Washington, D. C., delivered the sermon at a solemn high mass celebrated recently in St. Aloysius' church, Detroit, for the Catholic delegates to the American Federation of Labor Convention, which was held in that city The mass was sung by the Rt. Rev John M. Doyle, P. A., LL. D., chancellor of the Detroit diocese.

The custom of attending mass in a body on the Sunday during the Labor conventions is one of long standing among the Catholic delegates. Last year, at the Atlantic City convention, the Rev. Dr. William O'Connell, son of James O'Connell president of the Metal Trades group, celebrated the mass and the Rev. Fr. William J. Kerby, Ph. D., of the Catholic University, delivered the sermon.

Father Ryan, the speaker at this year's mass, is professor of moral theology at the Catholic University of America, in Washington, and director of the social action group of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. He has written extensively on the ethics of industrial relations and has to his credit several widely-read volumes on that subject.

Dairying More Popular

Whenever one half finds dairying profitable, the other half fears that it may be overdone. Hence the warnings now being broadcast that dairying is up in the clouds and due to come down soon. But folks go right along paying their bills by means of a few good cows and hens just as they have for many years past. Quite the opposite, there are now many signs indicating that dairying will have even more popularity before it has less.

BISHOP PINTEN IS INSTALLED

Native of Michigan is the New Head of Grand Rapids Diocese

A large delegation of priests and monsignor from all parts of Michigan attended the installation of the Rt. Rev. Joseph Gabriel Pinten, D. D., as Bishop of the Diocese of Grand Rapids, recently.

Bishop Pinten, who is a native of Michigan, was transferred from the diocese of Superior, Wis., to succeed the late Rt. Rev. Edward D. Kelly, D. D. Before his elevation he was for many years Chancellor of the Diocese of Marquette, Mich.

The new bishop was born in Rockland, Ontonagon county, Oct. 8, 1867 and moved with his family to Calumet the following year. In 1881 he entered St. Francis' Seminary, in Wisconsin, and in 1885 was sent to Rome to pursue his theological studies He was ordained in Rome, Nov. 1, 1890. The following year he returned to Michigan and was assigned to a parish at Detour, in Chippewa county. Later he served in the parishes of Iron Mountain and L'Anse.

Subsequently he was appointed pastor of St. Peter's Cathedral, at Marquette, and became Chancellor of the Marquette diocese. In 1912 he was made vicar-general of the diocese and in the same year was made a member of the papal household, with the title of Monsignor, by the late Pope Pius X. He was appointed Bishop of Superior by the late Pope Benedict XV and was consecrated in Marquette May 3, 1922.

The installation ceremonies in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Grand Rapids, were carried out under the direction of the Most Rev. John T. McNicholas, O. P., Archbishop of Cincinnati, the immediate ecclestastical superior of the suffragan bishops of Michigan, who also delivered the sermon.

Just before coming to Grand Rapids for the installation, Bishop Pinten performed his last official act as bishop of his former diocese by laying the cornerstone of the new Cathedral at Superior. Steps toward the erection of this edifice were initiated by Bishop Pinten several months ago. Upon leaving Superior, Bishop Pinten was presented with a solid silver, gold-plated chalice by the assembled clergy of that diocese.

U-D STUDENT CHOSEN FOR OXFORD CONTEST

Holds High Scholarship Records; Two to be Picked From State

For five years the holder of the highest scholarship marks in his high school and college classes, Thomas A. Monahan, a junior in the College of Arts and Sciences of the University of Detroit, has been chosen as the school's entry in the Rhodes Scholarship contest. Two candidates will be selected from Michigan colleges to enter the English university of Oxford next fall.

Monahan is the holder of five medals for scholastic and elocutionary ability. He has taken a prominent part in all campus activities and during his four years in high school maintained a class average of 96. The Rhodes scholarship founded by Cecil Rhodes, the empire builder of the last century, is tenable at Oxford for three years with an annual stipend of $2,000.

WILL MAINTAIN CATHOLIC CLUB AT BIG RAPIDS SCHOOL

According to the wishes of the late Bishop Edward D. Kelly of Grand Rapids, the Ferris Institute Catholic Club will be maintained as an active organization. These facts were announced recently by the Rev. Eustace Faucher, speaking before 300 members of the Knights of Columbus at a banquet in Big Rapids. Father Faucher declared that, in a conference he had with Bishop Kelly, just before the death of the latter, the Bishop expressed a desire that the community work being done among Ferris Institute students be carried out.

SOO HOLY NAME PLANS TO CAMPAIGN FOR $100,000

Plans for a campaign to raise funds for the erection of a $100,000 addition to Holy Family Orphanage, Marquette, were discussed at a recent business meeting of the St. Mary's branch of the Holy Name society in Sault Sainte Marie. The Holy Name Society will have charge of raising the money in the Soo and a committee of 20 to carry on the work was chosen. The need for an addition to the Marquette orphanage is pressing.

A new marble altar recently installed in Annunciation Church, Detroit, by the pastor, the Rev. James Stapleton, was used for the first time recently. The new addition, which is said to have cost $20,000, is of beautiful two tone gray and brown marble with sacred objects worked in mosaic. It was made in Italy in accordance with plans selected by Father Stapleton.

In New York there will be sight seeing tours of the city and of Chinatown. Reservations are made there in advance at one of the great hotels of the metropolis.

In Washington, D. C., there will be tours of all the principal public buildings, of the great memorials and an evening will be spent in the Congressional Library, the most beautiful building in America.

A side trip will be taken to Alexandria, Va., where the great National Masonic Memorial to George Washington is now being constructed and to Washington-Alexandria Lodge, where Washington officiated as Worshipful Master.

Another side trip will be made to Mount Vernon where Washington lived and where his body is buried.

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Artificial Aid Bones Are Said to Resent

Bones are easily insulted. The introduction of pieces of wire, of staples or spikes into the structure of the bones in an effort to aid the healing of a fracture is resented, according to Dr. Edwin W. Ryerson, orthopedic specialist of Chicago, says the Kansas City Times. These practices are to be discouraged, he declared.

There is enough surplus bone in the body for use in any ordinary grafting process, he said. Usually the bone to be grafted is taken from the shin bone or the crest of the hip bone. Through an inlay process the grafted bone holds the fractured bones together and promotes the growth of the new bone cells. Pegs made of beef bone have been used with success. When the fracture heals the foreign bone gradually works out or is absorbed.

An inadequate substitute for money is "it's no disgrace to be poor."

The measure of service is the mark of greatness.

Sure Relief

BELL-ANS
FOR INDIGESTION
25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS
FOR INDIGESTION
25¢ and 75¢ Pkg's. Sold Everywhere

Mitchell Eye Salve For SORE EYES

AVOID dropping strong drugs in eyes sore from Alkali or other irritation. The old simple remedy that brings comforting relief is best. 25c, all druggists
Hall & Ruckel, New York City

FACIAL ERUPTIONS
unsightly and annoying—improved by one application of Resinol

$600.00 Starts You
Pay Balance Out Of Earnings!

Get into the Well Drilling Business. Earn from $25.00 to $50.00 per day clear profit. Be your own boss. Exceptional opportunities offered in every community drilling wells, which you can work at the year around.

Write for Bulletin describing ARMSTRONG ALL-STEEL DRILLS in detail.

Get Started NOW!

Armstrong
Manufacturing
Company
Waterloo, Iowa

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and
Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks., Patchogue, N.Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Season's Greatest Selling Hit. Polishing mitten, polishes silver, etc. $75 to $100 wk. possible. Real Seller. D. S. Garde, Cromwell, Conn.

THE 20TH CENTURY SENSATION RESTAURANT OWNERS
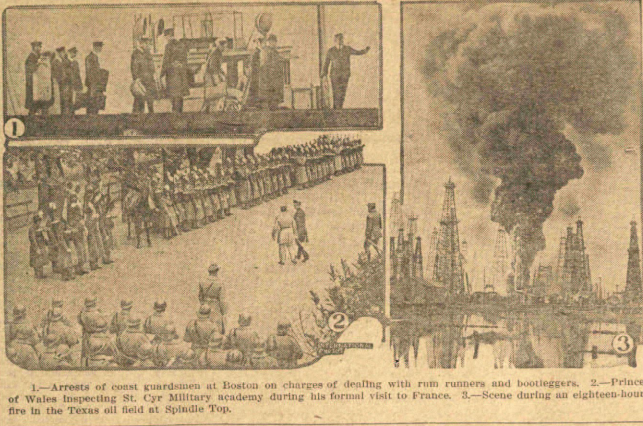
READ THIS
Install our Electric Greaseless Doughnut machine in your front window. No smoke, no odor. Price $18.00. It will give your business New Life. It's a big opportunity for you. Write today!
BRUCE EQUIPMENT CO.
302 Oppenheim Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Rheumatism Neuritis TREATMENT mailed on FREE TRIAL. If benefited send $1; if not, it's FREE. Why suffer longer—th ousands have been benefited—why not you? Tell your friends and write today for trial treatment. You run no risk
ANTI-RHEUMATISM CO., Dept. 26, Lansing, Mich

DR. STAFFORD'S
OLIVE TAR
Inhale Olive Tar and relieve CROUP, sore throat, colds, bronchitis. Checks influenza. Rub on chest to remove congestion. Relieves neuralgia and rheumatism.
HALL & RUCKEL, New York
for ASTHMA



1.—Arrests of coast guardsmen at Boston on charges of dealing with rum runners and bootleggers. 2.—Prince of Wales inspecting St. Cyr Military academy during his formal visit to France. 3.—Scene during an eighteen-hour fire in the Texas oil field at Spindle Top.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Coolidge Address in Kansas City Chief Event of Armistice Day.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

FACING the east and standing in silence, all America paid tribute at 11 o'clock on Armistice day, to the memory of our World war dead—the 77,000 young men who gave up their lives in France or in the camps in this country. Eleven thousand posts of the American Legion participated in fitting ceremonies, and the American people generally joined in the solemn observation of the occasion. The remainder of the day was marked by celebrations patriotic and joyful.

Chief feature of the Armistice day doings was the dedication of the stately Liberty Memorial in Kansas City—chief because the speaker of the day there was President Coolidge. Five years before he was there, as vice president, to lay the cornerstone. Last week he returned, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, Everett Sanders, his secretary, and Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, who, as the Missouri member of the cabinet, did the honors for his state at the exercises. The train arrived in Kansas City Thursday morning and after the dedication of the memorial the President and his party left in the afternoon for the return trip to Washington.

In the course of his address the President took occasion to discuss the matter of American entry into the World court, and he served notice on the other nations that he would not ask the senate to modify its reservations. To those who pretend to despise Americans as a nation of dollar chasers, newly rich and without refinement, he retorted that, even if this were true, there would be "more hope for the progress of true ideals in the modern world even from a nation newly rich than there is from a nation of chronically poor. Honest poverty is one thing, but lack of industry and character is quite another."

Mr. Coolidge asserted that as a nation we not only did not profit from the war, but we suffered immense losses. He spoke for adequate preparedness for the sake of protection without entering into competition with others in the maintenance of armed forces; and he reiterated his belief that wealth and all other material resources should be conscripted in time of war.

QUEEN MARIE of Rumania spent week-end in Chicago, where she fittingly entertained by both the officials and society, and where there was the usual American exhibition of social pushing and of that inverted snobbery that advertises its disrespect for royalty and all that pertains to it. On the way east from the Pacific coast the squabbles among those who accompanied the queen continued, with the result that Loie Fuller, Samuel Hill and some others quit the party, leaving Col. J. H. Carroll, manager of the tour, and Maj. Stanley Washburn, the queen's personal aide, seemingly in supreme control. Marie took no sides in the controversies but insisted that there must be peace and harmony on the rest of the tour. It was announced that while the queen was resting in Washington for four days after the conclusion of the trip, Prince Nicolas and Princess Ileana would travel back to Chicago on a special train to witness the Army-Navy football game on November 27.

NOT the least interesting news of the week was the announcement that Princeton university had severed athletic relations with Harvard, thus breaking up the "Big Three" combination that has existed, with some interruptions, for many years. Princeton's board of athletic control decided unanimously that "it is at present impossible to expect in athletic competition with Harvard that spirit of cordial good will between the undergraduate bodies of the two universities which should characterize college sports." Harvard Lampoon has been making nasty attacks on Princeton, for which President Lowell of Harvard apologized to President Hibben of Princeton, and the Harvard Crimson aggravated the ill-feeling by its editorials. But the real reason for Princeton's action was the announcement of Harvard's proposed new policy in football matters, under which Harvard would have only one fixed game on its schedule each year—the contest with Yale. It would play Princeton some years, but not others, and Princeton resented this casual treatment. Princetonians have the satisfaction of having licked Harvard in the last game. Outside of Harvard men, Princeton will have the backing of the country generally in the controversy.

SUPPLEMENTING a statement from the White House, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon made an official announcement of the administration's plan for income tax reductions, showing it is not proposed to compute the flat percentage cut on 1926 tax payments on last year's incomes. As made known by Mr. Mellon, the program is to propose legislation authorizing a flat reduction amounting to probably 12½ per cent on individual and corporation income taxes to be reported in March, 1927, on 1926 earnings. The taxpayer will compute his tax at the rates provided by the present law. He then will be permitted to reduce his actual payment by the percentage agreed upon. If he pays his entire tax at the time of filing the return, he will deduct 12½ per cent from the total. If he pays in four installments, he will deduct 25 per cent from his March payment and also 25 per cent from his June payment. His September and December payments will not be subject to any cut.

The proposed 12½ per cent cut, it was estimated by Secretary Mellon, would mean a loss of approximately $250,000,000, all of which would be drawn from the prospective surplus of the fiscal year 1927, which ends on July 1, next.

VINCENT MASSEY has been appointed Canada's first minister to Washington by an order in council passed by the dominion cabinet. Mr. Massey is in England with Premier MacKenzie King attending the imperial conference. The question now naturally arises whether the United States shall appoint a minister to Ottawa. Some of the leading Canadian newspapers think no other course is open for Washington, and it is favored by some journals in states along the border. It may be the matter will be solved by the enlarging of the powers of the United States consul general in Ottawa.

ONCE more the United States protests to Mexico against the oil and land laws of that country. The latest in a long succession of notes on this subject was handed to the Mexican foreign office by Charge d'Affaires Schoenfeld, and again was stressed the necessity for fundamental modifications in these two laws to eliminate from them all possibility of their retroactive application in violation of agreements entered into between the two governments in 1923.

Late reports indicate that General Obregon is not having an easy time in carrying out his plan to destroy the Yaqui Indians as a people and scatter them through the country. The Yaquis are fighting with all their old-time desperation, have gathered strong forces and at last advices are threatening the towns of Mazatlan and Las Pastras, both of which have considerable American interests. The Cucupah Indians, who have been peaceful for years, are showing signs of going on the warpath with the Yaquis.

FORMER Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, appeared before the District of Columbia Supreme court and pleaded not guilty to charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in the naval oil reserve leases. The trial was set for November 22 and counsel for the defendants said they will be ready to proceed with the case at that time. Both Fall and Doheny are named with E. L. Doheny, Jr., in another indictment which charges bribery in connection with young Doheny's delivery of $100,000 in "a black satchel" to Fall during the negotiations which resulted in the execution of the Elk Hills reserve leases.

AT THE bidding of Premier Mussolini, the Italian chamber of deputies expelled 120 members of the so-called Aventine opposition on the ground that they had absented themselves ever since the protest "strike" resulting from the murder of Matteotti, Socialist deputy. The ousted members lost their parliamentary immunity and some of them were arrested, but most of them had taken the precaution of leaving Rome.

The chamber also passed the law providing the death penalty for attempts on the life of Mussolini or the royal family. The duce took to himself another cabinet job—that of the minister of the interior—and issued orders for a systematic application of all laws for the protection of the regime and the preservation of public order. The premier has apologized amply to France for the attacks on French consulates, and it seems likely he also will be able to calm the indignation of the French brought on by the operations of Ricciotti Garibaldi as a Fascist agent in France. The Paris police are still trying to find out just what was Garibaldi's connection with the Catalan uprising which was nipped by the Perpignan arrests.

GREECE held its elections last week and the Republicans were victorious, winning about 65 per cent of the votes and 160 of the 280 seats in parliament. Premier Condylis and his government resigned and President Condouriotis called on Kafandaris to form a new cabinet. It was hoped that former Premier Venizelos would return and accept the ministry of foreign affairs.

WITH the simple declaration that light travels at the rate of 299,796 kilometers per second, made before the National Academy of Science in Philadelphia, Dr. Albert A. Michelson of the University of Chicago announced the practical completion of the research that has occupied most of his time for forty years. The old rate of light travel, as used in close scientific research and given in all the textbooks, had been established at 299,860 kilometers per second, or 64 kilometers more than that determined by Doctor Michelson. Astronomers and physicists will now have to overhaul and reshape their calculations. The Chicago scientist's latest results were worked out in California by flashing a beam of light from Mount Wilson to Mount San Antonio and back again, a distance of 44 miles. This work was carried on all summer.

HUNDREDS of natives were drowned and great property damage was done by a typhoon that swept over a section of the island of Luzon in the Philippines. Many villages were wiped out and the inhabitants blown into the sea to perish. It was estimated that the storm destroyed 5 per cent of the world's coconut crop.

The town of La Plata, Md., was struck by a tornado that wrecked a schoolhouse and some houses and killed about a score of persons, fourteen of whom were school children.

AMONG the deaths recorded during the week was that of James K. Hackett, one of America's best actors, in Paris. He had spent much of his time of late in France and was exceedingly popular in that country.

C. G. Sholes, who as a youth was Sherman's personal telegraph operator on the march to the sea, passed away in Chicago. Rev. D. D. Forsyth, secretary of the Methodist board of missions, died in a Chicago hospital.

FOLLOWING the example of the governments of Italy and Russia, Marshal Pilsudski, dictator of Poland, caused to be issued a decree which threatens with fines and prison sentences ranging from three days to three months whoever spreads wrong information about government action or government members or military movements. If reports are spread by the newspapers, they will be suppressed and the owners, as well as the men responsible for the news, will be fined or jailed. The important point is that the Polish government reserves unto itself the right to interpret this law as it pleases, therefore everybody in Poland is living in the uncertainty of the days of despotism.

Will Continue Fight for Universal Draft

The American Legion will renew its five-year-old legislative fight for universal draft, at the earliest opportunity, according to James F. Barton, adjutant of the Legion.

"The Legion, at its national convention in Philadelphia, urged again upon congress immediate enactment of legislation to make possible mobilization of all resources, both of material and man power, in event of war," asserted the adjutant, in an interview.

"The first definite action toward universal draft legislation was taken by the Legion at its national convention at Kansas City in 1921, when Hanford MacNider, then newly elected national commander, and now assistant secretary of war, appointed a committee to study the question.

"The committee reported the following year and the form of legislation it recommended was approved. A bill was introduced in the house by Johnson of South Dakota, and another one in the senate by Capper of Kansas.

"There followed a series of attacks based on the fear that the law would allow the President to conscript labor in peace time. Last year Representative Johnson introduced the Legion's universal draft bill, slightly modified in language to completely refute the charge that it would provide for the industrial draft of workers in time of peace through presidential action alone. Senator Capper introduced an identical measure in the senate. These two bills are still before congress."

IN DAYS OF OUR FOREFATHERS

Women Prepared Their Own Medicines

The wise pioneer women learned to gather, in woods and fields, the remedies the Indians used. From the rafters of colonial houses, hung great bunches of dried roots and herbs. From these, in times of sickness, the busy mother brewed simple and powerful remedies. From roots and herbs, Lydia E. Pinkham, a descendant of these sturdy pioneers, made her Vegetable Compound. The beneficial effects of this dependable medicine are vouched for by hundreds of women.

Mrs. Wm. Kraft of 2838 Vinewood Ave., Detroit, Mich., saw a Pinkham advertisement in the "News" one day and made up her mind that she would give the Compound a trial. At that time she was very weak. "After the first bottle," she writes, "I began to feel better and like a new woman after taking six bottles. I recommend it to others and always keep a bottle in the house."

Mrs. Gust Green of 401 Lincoln Park Boulevard, Rockford, Illinois, found herself in a condition similar to that of Mrs. Kraft. "I was weak and rundown," she writes, "but the Vegetable Compound has helped me and I feel better now. I recommend it to all women who need more strength."

Let Cuticura Soap Keep Your Skin Fresh and Youthful
Sample Soap, Ointment, Talcum free. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. M, Malden, Mass.

Dog's Feelings Were Hurt

Offended because he was scolded by Mrs. H. C. Erno at Shasta Retreat, Calif., Teddy, a big collie dog belonging to her brother, William Menzel, disappeared. He was not seen again until he arrived at the Menzel home at Redding. The dog had traveled more than 70 miles of highway during the day to reach the friendly shelter of his master.

MANY SCHOOL CHILDREN ARE SICKLY

Mothers who value their own comfort and the welfare of their children, should never be without a box of Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for children for use throughout the season. They Break up Colds, Regulate the Bowels, Relieve Feverishness, Constipation, Teething Disorders, Headache and Stomach Troubles. Used by Mothers for over 30 years. These powders give satisfaction. All Drug Stores. Don't accept any substitute. Trial package sent Free. Address MOTHER GRAY CO., Le Roy, N. Y.

TRADE MARK
DON'T ACCEPT ANY SUBSTITUTE

THREE DAY COLDS THREATEN LUNGS

A cough or cold that hangs on after the third day is a threat.

Do something! Don't wait until it has run its course—from your head to your throat, chest and bronchial tubes. When you feel a cough or cold spreading down into the bronchial tubes it is in the "danger zone"—for these tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Quickly and unfailingly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of the trouble. Real medicine, reaching deep down with its soothing, healing power. Absorbed through and through the irritated throat, chest and bronchial membranes, it quickly stops the cough, breaks up the cold and brings prompt, lasting relief.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is hospital-proved and prescribed by physicians. Pleasant to taste. All druggists—60c and, twice the quantity, $1.00.

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVINE
for Epilepsy Nervousness & Sleeplessness.
PRICE $1.50 AT YOUR DRUG STORE
Write for free Booklet
KOENIG MEDICINE CO.
1045 N. WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

Playing Safe

"'Pears like the baby is pretty slow about learning to walk?" commented the brother-in-law.

"Nope," replied the brother. "He knows that as soon as he can walk he won't get carried no more."—Kansas City Star.

The knocker has a large audience because he gives a free show.

Too Weak To Work

LeRoy, Mich.—"I was troubled with a pain in my right side and in the small of my back. I could not sleep soundly and had no appetite—it seemed that nothing looked good to eat. I was so weak I could scarcely do any work. I wrote to Dr. Pierce, and, upon his advice, took three bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' two of 'Favorite Prescription,' and two of the 'Anuric Tablets,' and occasionally a 'Pleasant Pellet' at bedtime, and I gained nine pounds."—Mrs. Arthur Ruppert, Route 1, Box 15a.

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial pkg. of any of his medicines in tablet form.

INSIST UPON
KEMP'S BALSAM
for that COUGH!

Tests Again Aid in Fight on T. B.

Illinois Experiments Show Calves Are Susceptible to Avian Type.

What is considered another significant step in the control and eradication of live stock tuberculosis has been taken with the discovery by Drs. Robert Graham and E. A. Tunnicliff, of the animal pathology and hygiene division, college of agriculture, University of Illinois, that calves are susceptible to the avian, as well as the bovine, type of tuberculosis under farm conditions. The avian type of the disease is now widespread in poultry. Results obtained by the two investigators indicate, therefore, that tuberculosis among chickens must be given more consideration than it is now receiving if the disease is to be eradicated from live stock and a check made on the heavy losses which are being suffered by farmers.

Calves Are Susceptible.

The Illinois experiments constitute the first demonstration that calves are susceptible to the avian type of tuberculosis to a degree that may play a part in the control of the disease under farm conditions. It previously had been demonstrated in the same experiments that the avian type of tuberculosis can be transmitted to hogs, whereas the general supposition before had been that hogs were affected only by the bovine type.

In trying to determine whether or not calves are susceptible to the avian type of tuberculosis, the Illinois investigators allowed tuberculosis chickens to come in contact with healthy calves for periods of time varying from six months to three and a half years. The results indicated that avian tuberculosis is transmitted to calves more slowly and with less regularity than to swine, but that calves may contract the disease when exposed to infected flocks of chickens on the farm.

Infected Glands.

In a further study of the problem the investigators examined 47 bovine lymph glands, each infected with a localized case of tuberculosis, to determine the type of the disease present. Forty-one of the 47 glands were viable. Of the 41, a total of 8, or 19.5 per cent of them, carried a type of tuberculosis which was capable of producing slight lesions of the disease in chickens and progressive lessions in guinea pigs. In other words, since the typical avian type produces generalized lesions of tuberculosis in fowls and not in guinea pigs, while the typical bovine type produces generalized lesions in guinea pigs and not in fowls, it is apparent that the strains of tuberculosis present in the tight glands were aberrant, or intermediate, strains of tuberculosis in fowls as well as calves. Four of the 41 glands, or 9.7 per cent of them, carried typical avian strains of tuberculosis. The remaining 29 glands carried the bovine type of the disease.

These results suggest that occasional cases of avian tuberculosis develop in calves under natural conditions. It is logical to suppose that the transmission of the avian type of the disease to calves may be the result of continuous direct association with tuberculosis fowls, Doctor Graham pointed out.

Wood Ashes Unleached Make Good Fertilizer

Unleached wood ashes contain about 100 lbs. of potash, 40 lbs. of phosphoric acid, and 600 lbs. of lime per ton, according to J. W. Ames, chemist at the Ohio Experiment station. These make unleached ashes a valuable fertilizer.

A cord of hard wood will produce about 40 lbs. of ashes. Soft wood produces a little less and the potash content per ton is about one-third less. The potash in ashes is all water soluble and the ashes must be kept under cover or the potash will all be leached out.

Wood ashes must not be mixed with organic fertilizers, such as chicken or stable manure, as the lime in the ashes will liberate the nitrogen.

FARM NOTES

Before painting a floor fill the cracks with putty.

* * *

The farms in New York constitute an area of 20,000,000 acres.

* * *

The best time to sell boarder cows is when beef prices are good.

* * *

For permanent pasture sweet clover is preferable to sudan grass.

* * *

Use the disk in preference to the plow for preparing a seed bed for oats following corn.

* * *

Boarder cows and scrub sires make the dairyman's profit account balance on the wrong side.

* * *

Lack of paint on the farm buildings not only makes them look ramshackle—it lets them rot, too.

* * *

Lime put on the soil in the fall is best for the crops which follow and saves labor in the spring also.

* * *

Co-operative marketing is of the very essence of democracy, for it means working together, each for all, all for each.

* * *

A cow gives milk as the result of an internal stimulation to the udder applied from the inside. She is hungry and eats because she must replace nutrients taken from her body to produce milk.

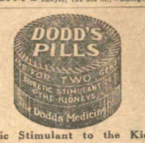
* * *

A satisfactory ration for 1,000-pound steers consists of all the ground ear corn, silage and hay they will eat, and 2½ pounds of cottonseed meal per head per day.

There is no Substitute For
KIRK'S ORIGINAL COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE

Try this wonderful soap now! Its selected cocoa oils produce instant, magic lather in any kind of water. It is perfect for face, hands, bath and shampoo. Thousands use no other. ©

PATENTS Booklet free. Highest references. Best results. Promptness assured. WATSON E. COLEMAN, Patent Lawyer, 724 9th St., Washington, D. C.



Diuretic Stimulant to the Kidneys

Standard for Generations.

Mrs. A. L. Crawford, Medfield, Mass., writes: "Dodd's Pills cured me of Bright's Disease, and I am healthy and strong today and have been blessed with good health ever since my cure. When the doctors pronounced my case Bright's Disease I was in such a serious condition that they could not do anything for me. I kept getting worse. My limbs from my ankles to my knees swelled and my eyes were so swollen that I couldn't see. As a last hope I thought I would give Dodd's Pills a trial. I gradually improved and kept on taking them and they cured me thoroughly."

Buy a box today, 60 cents at your drug store or the Dodd's Medicine Co., 700 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Porter's
Pain King
A Liniment
for
Lame Back for Soreness for Aches for Pains
Use It Today!
The Geo. H. Rundle Co.
Piqua, Ohio
Established 1871
TRADE PORTER'S PAIN KING MARK

Green's August Flower

is a mild laxative, and has been in use for sixty years for the relief of constipation, indigestion and similar stomach disorders. A trial will convince you of its merit. 30c and 90c bottles. At all druggists. If you cannot get it, write to G. G. Green, Inc., Woodbury, N. J.

Today's Big Offer to All Who Have Stomach Agony

Read About This Generous Money Back Guarantee

When you have any trouble with your stomach such as gas, heaviness and distention, why fool with things which at best can only give relief.

Why not get a medicine that will build up your upset, disordered stomach and make it so strong and vigorous that it will do its work without any help.

Such a medicine is Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a delightful elixir that is sold by your local dealer and druggists everywhere with the distinct understanding that if it doesn't greatly help you your money will be gladly returned.

It has helped thousands—it will no doubt help you.

Despises Himself

"I would like to get your idea of a true statesman," said the chap with the notebook.

"Young man," replied the senator, "I am willing to give you an interview, but I haven't time to spare for a full biography."

It takes much longer to cook foods high in the mountains, because water boils at a lower temperature at high altitudes.

Colds
By millions ended

Hill's stop millions of colds every winter—and in 24 hours. They end headache and fever, open the bowels, tone the whole system. Use nothing less reliable. Colds and Grippe call for prompt, efficient help. Be sure you get it.

Be Sure It's HILL'S Price 30c
CASCARA BROMIDE QUININE
Get Red Box with portrait

EPILEPSY RELIEF HAS DONE FOR ME what no other treatment did, had no attack for over two years, had them almost daily, lost many positions, but am now working steady. If only I could tell everyone afflicted as I have been. Enclosed $3.00 for another pkg. T. T. K. LABORATORY, INC., 1575 60th St., Brooklyn, N. Y. (Letter from thankful user.)

ASTHMA
DR. J. D. KELLOGG'S ASTHMA REMEDY for the prompt relief of Asthma and Hay Fever. Ask your druggist for it. 25 cents and one dollar. Write for FREE SAMPLE.
Northrop & Lyman Co., Inc., Buffalo, N.Y.
Dr. J. D. KELLOGG'S ASTHMA REMEDY

State News Briefs

Hamilton—The Welfare Association has purchased a plot of 20 acres adjoining the school-house, to be used for a community park and tourist camp when needed improvements are made.

Albion—Leslie Lee of Pontiac, Albion college sophomore, has been named as manager of this year's Purple and Gold Glee Club. Lee already has started to plan two trips for the Methodists, one of 10 days following final examinations in January and another of eight days during the spring vacation in March. The present personnel of 28 will be cut to 20 for the trips, the new manager has announced. In addition to being a singer Lee is a skilled pianist.

Holland—Warm Friends Tavern has been operating at a profit during the fiscal year just closed. The following directors were re-elected: A. H. Landwehr, Con DePree, Gerrit J. Diekema, E. P. Stephan, Hub Boone, John P. Kolla, C. M. McLean, B. P. Donnelly and D. B. K. Van Raalte.

Ellsworth—The new Christian Reformed church building which has been under construction the past two months, will be completed and ready for use about Jan. 1.

Traverse City—Grand Traverse county will contribute $800 to the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association this year, it has been decided by the board of supervisors. This is $200 more than the board appropriated last year.

Ionia—After a continuous business career of more than 60 years in Ionia as buyers of grains, etc., and dealers in all kinds of fuel, the pioneer firm of W. C. Page & Co. announced its retirement from business. Edward H. Spencer and Otto L. Rubach, long time employes, will carry on.

Allegan—The $500,000 damage case of Mrs. Gertrude Anderson of Detroit vs. Mrs. Florence Dardeen of Otsego has been put over until the December term of circuuit court. Mrs. Anderson charges alienation of the affections of her husband, Louis Anderson.

Grand Rapids—The Grand Rapids division of the Pennsylvania railroad won the T. B. Hamilton trophy for September, 1926, for greatest reduction of accidents among employes for that month, the reduction being 66.7 per cent. Indianapolis was the former holder of the trophy. Grand Rapids obtained it in April and again in June this year.

Hart—While digging potatoes Walter Sturtevant of Perry township unearthed what are believed to be fragments of a prehistoric reptile of the dinosaur type. Of the 14 pieces found one appeared to be the complete side of a jaw with all the teeth in good condition. The jawbone is about 10 inches long and about 3 inches wide and two thick, the teeth being attached to a shell-like bone and apparently in five sets of two teeth each, side by side. The piece weighed three and three-fourths pounds.

Hartford—The Van Buren County Fair, held at Hartford Sept. 28 to Oct. 2, emerged from its week of showers and little crowds and record volume of exhibits with a net profit of more than $2,000, according to announcement made by Secretary Doyle. Receipts for the year total $25,919.22, while expenditures to date are $23,161.53, leaving a balance in the treasury of $2,757.669.

Ludington—O. G. Barrett, county agricultural agent, recently resigned after three years' service, will become agent in Cook county, Illinois. The Mason County Farm Bureau contributed $1,500 annually for the agricultural agent and $1,800 per year was received from the state and federal government. The county board of supervisors turned down a request for $1,500, referring the matter to an informal ballot at next spring's election.

Holland—The biggest potato shown this season was raised on the farm of Arthur Nykamp at Bethlem. The specimen measured six inches and weighed two and one-half pounds. It was of excellent quality.

White Cloud—After being without a public hall since the village gave its city hall to the county for a court house several years ago, this place will again have a gathering place as W. T. C. Kingston, who recently purchased the Ubellar holdings here, including the Atlantic hotel, has transformed the hotel property into a recreation building, the old lobby and dining room having been made into one large room where dances, shows and public meetings can be held.

Kalamazoo—Kalamazoo's industrial field will soon be swelled by the addition of the Voightmann Metal Window corporation, with an authorized capital of $600,000. The concern has purchased the property formerly occupied by the Kalamazoo Motors corporation. The pay roll will eventually include 325 men.

Battle Creek—Report of the Postum Cereal company and its subsidiaries for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1926, shows a net profit of $2,958,208, or $2.02 a share on 1,465,000 shares of no par stock outstanding, as compared with $2,952,533, or $2.01 a share for the corresponding quarter in 1925. The figures for the preceding quarter this year were $2,972,317, or $2.03 a share. These rates are made after reduction of expenses, taxes and charges.

Lansing—All three Lansing automakers are exhibiting at the London show, which comes much earlier than its American counterparts. The exhibition, which contains displays of Reo, Olds and Durant, is considered the biggest event of the European motoring season and Lansing manufacturers are setting considerable store by the affair, which, they hope, will uncover considerable export business.

N. Y. C. Improves Stretch

Sturgis—Work of replacing the 60-pound rails with 100-pounders on the Battle Creek-Goshen branch of the New York Central railroad is going rapidly forward oer the two-mile stretch of track in this city. When that section is completed, activities will be suspended until spring, when the entire line will be improved.

$50 REWARD

$50 will be paid if R. V. Turner's Quick Relief Salve fails to relieve croups, head colds, catarrh, sore throat, headache, earache, eczema, itch, burns, risings, bruises, cuts, sores, rheumatic pains or piles. It is one of the most powerful, penetrating, germ-killing, pain-relieving and healing salves known to science. Removes corns in a few hours without pain; also seed warts. Large box by mail 60c. Agents wanted. Write for special terms. R. V. Turner, Box 1122, Montgomery, Ala.

CARPENTER'S The Original LIQUID COURT PLASTER

15

Antiseptic!
Protects & Heals
AT ALL
DRUG
STORES

LEARN
BRICKLAYING
In a School run by Building Contractors.
Catalog Free.
Associated Building Employers
13-21 McConnell St., Grand Rapids

Watch Elimination!

Good Health Depends Upon Good Elimination.

RETENTION of bodily waste in the blood is called a "toxic condition." This often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. Thousands have learned to assist their kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water and the occasional use of a stimulant diuretic. 50,000 users give Doan's signed endorsement. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c
Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys
Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chem., Buffalo, N.Y.

DR. E. HENRY MORIARTY
at the
MORIARTY CANCER SANITARIUM
Specializing in the treatment of cancer without the use of knife or electricity.
Reference given on request.
1411 E. FULTON ST. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Say it with Brakes and Spare the Flowers.

A Legal Reserve Automobile Insurance Policy at Lower Rates—No Assessments
REPUBLIC
Automobile Insurance Underwriters
WE WANT AN AGENT IN YOUR VICINITY
2163 Jefferson Ave., East, at Dubois
Detroit, Michigan

Classified Advertisements

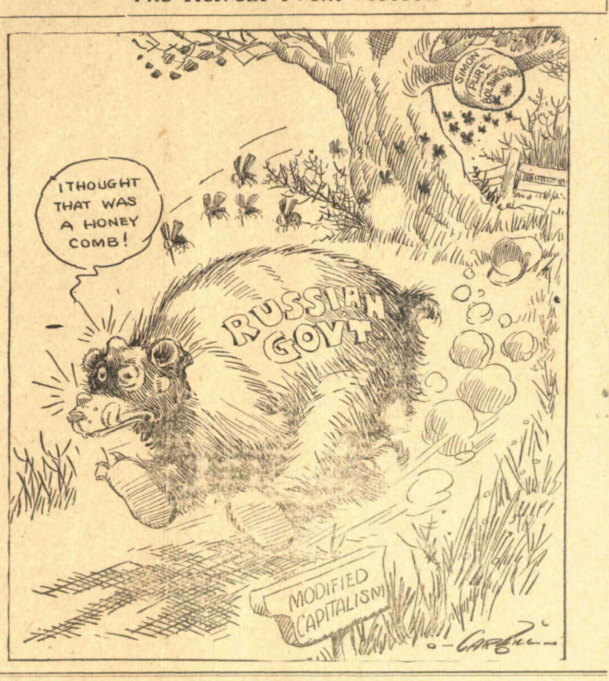
By a special arrangement and through an organization of newspaper men of which we are a member, we can run your classified advertisement in all these associated Michigan weekly newspapers at a very low price considering number of papers run in.
ASK US ABOUT IT IF YOU WANT TO REACH THOUSANDS

NEWS FEATURE PAGE

Happenings From Here and There and Everywhere.

Educational, Interesting and Helpful.

The Retreat From Moscow



GOOD ROADS AND AUTO FERRY HAVE MADE UPPER MICHIGAN

By FRANK W. BROWN, Editor, Bellevue Gazette

Northern Michigan is but awakening to its vast possibilities as a tourists' haven. Only during the past two or three years have the people of the Upper Peninsula and those of the northern part of the Lower Peninsula begun to realize and capitalize on the invaluable resources which their particular sections hold forth. The north lands of our state are now fast becoming a mecca for summer tourists from all parts of the nation. The influx of vacationers into Northern Michigan during the few summer months makes a strong bid to equalling the Florida pilgrimages of the past two winters. Automobiles may be seen through the northern wilds bearing license plates from every state in the Union and practically every province in Canada; a manifestation of the fact that Michigan has at last found its place among other states as a tourists' retreat.

Good roads have made Northern Michigan what it is today. The development of the upper Peninsula is but a few years old. When our present government took office and instantly perceived of the bright possibilities which the north possessed, he gave that country improved highways and a better ferry service at the Straits of Mackinac. The result has been that business is flourishing, real estate is booming and the people in general are a healthy, hustling lot, each and every one catering to the tourists of the nation.

At Mackinaw City is located the new state ferry pier from which the two ferry boats, the Saint Ignace and the Mackinaw City take off and land their cargoes on this side of the straits. Built entirely of concrete and field stones, the pier extends into the water for a distance equal approximately to the length of two city blocks. It is a two-way traffic dock, outgoing automobiles line up single file on the right and await their turn to be taken on board, while the incoming cars, that is, those unloaded, use the left of the roadway and in so doing interfere in no way with those waiting to be taken on. Cars are taken across at the rate of 50 or 60 a trip, the passengers of each machine being included and for whom no extra fare is collected. By the enlargement and improvement of the two ferries recently, excellent service is now being rendered the traveling public from the Mackinaw side of the straits as well as the Saint Ignace side. A ferry leaves each dock every hour and thirty minutes; sixty minutes are consumed in covering the six or seven mile distance, while the remaining thirty minutes are allowed for loading and unloading.

Tourists crossing the straits have the opportunity of viewing from a short distance Mackinac Island, much famed for its historic spots and the dazzling splendor which the "upper crust" has lent to its already beguiling natural beauty. It was this island on the Lake Huron side of the straits that furnished the late Gene Stratton Porter, renowned novelist, with many of her scenes for her "Girl of the Limberlost."

Automobiles are prohibited from the island, thus giving it an atmosphere antedating the present jazz age of high powered cylinders and snappy sport models. Horse drawn carriages are promiscuous because of their necessity. Cabs may be hired to transport the tourist over the island's 25 miles of improved highways.

In addition to the cabs for hire may be seen the elaborate coaches belonging to those of the "400 class" whose retinue of liveried attendants, together with their palatial homes, add the aristocratic air especially suited to the beau monde. Mackinac's gay summer festivities are said to vie with those of Palm Beach and Atlantic City.

Northern Counties May Combine and Build Sanatorium

Traverse City—A movement is on foot for Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Emmet, Antrim and Kalkaska counties to combine and erect and maintain a tuberculosis sanatorium at a place to be selected in one of the five counties. The board of supervisors now has this matter under consideration.

The state law permits counties to raise a 1-mill tax for the purpose of erecting and maintaining an institution for the care of the tuberculous sick, and this tax, raised in the five adjoining counties, would build and care for a sanitorium. It costs approximately $3,000 per bed to build an acceptable hospital of this sort.

A committee consisting of Supervisors Ward and Gallagher was appointed last spring to consider this matter and the problem was referred to it.

G. C. Dillman Sees 1,600,000 Michigan Motorcars by 1930

Lansing—Vast sums of money, scientific engineering and careful planning are necessary to provide an adequate state trunk line highway system in Michigan which will be used by an estimated 1,600,000 vehicles in 1930, according to G. C. Dillman, writing in Michigan Roads and Pavements.

Dillman traces the growth of automobile traffic in the state and forecasts the need for continued highway improvement. More grade separations, by-pass roads, wider highways and bridges, better drainage and improved construction will be necessary if interurban motor traffic is to be handled, he said.

As one item of cost, Dillman estimates that it will cost $50,000,000 to eliminate grade crossings on present trunk lines—more than the original building bond issue approved by popular vote in 1919.

Survey Reveals 32 Creeds at W. S. N.

Kalamazoo — A survey of the church preferences of the students of Western State Normal school which just has been completed shows 32 various denominations are represented by the student body.

The Methodist church by far has the largest representation with 661 students either members of the church or expressing preference for that denomination. The Presbyterians rank seconds with 332, and Congregational third with 171 and the Baptist fourth with 157. There are 131 Catholic students, 101 in the Reformed church, 80 in the Episcopal, 76 in the Lutheran and 34 of the Christian Science church.

Other denominations represented include the Christian church, United Brethren, Seventh Day Adventists, Jews, Latter Day Saints, Disciple, Unitarian, Universalist, Salvation Army, Apostolic, Mennonite, Pilgrim Holiness and Trinity.

Michigan Stadium Bond Issue Is Half Subscribed

Ann Arbor—More than half of the University of Michigan stadium bonds have been sold and the demand is such that the entire issue authorized by the board of control of athletics may be sold before the close of the 1926 season, Coach Fielding H. Yost, who is directing the sales, announced.

Each bond carries with it the privilege of purchasing two tickets for seats between the 30-yard lines in the new stadium for the next 10 years. Many who were unable to get tickets for this year's games were among the first bond buyers, thus insuring seats for approximately 100 games in the next 10 years.

Men and women from many cities in Michigan have bought the stadium bonds. Detroit is in the lead because of its large number of alumni. Grand Rapids, Flint, Jackson, Ann Arbor, Kalamazoo, Saginaw, Bay City, Port Huron, Muskegon, Lansing, Battle Creek, Monroe, Ionia, Holland and other Michigan cities have bought generously.

In the meantime, excavation for and construction of the new stadium is going steadily forward. Giant excavators are digging into the side of the hill where the bowl will be located and at the same time the immense concrete columns which will support the stadium are rising. Coach Yost has intimated that Ohio will be the football team to draw the dedication game. This will return the compliment Ohio extended Michigan in 1922. Navy and Minnesota also will be seen in the next stadium in 1927.

Leading Pomolgists and Fruit Growers to Address Joint Meeting

East Lansing—Leading pomologists and fruit growers in America will address the joint meeting of the American Pomological society and the Michigan State Horticultural society in Grand Rapids Nov. 30 to Dec. 3, according to announcement by H. D. Hootman, secretary of the state society.

The list of nationally known speakers includes Prof. J. H. Gourley, chief of horticulture, Ohio experiment station; R. G. Phillips, secretary of the International Apple Shippers association; William Meikle, commercial apple grower at Wenatchee, Wash.; Prof. V. R. Gardner, chief pomologist at Michigan State college; Ralph W. Rees, horticulturist for the New York Central railroad; D. E. Bingham, one of Wisconsin's leading orchardists at Sturgeon Bay; John W. Gourby, executive secretary of Apples for Health, Inc.; Prof. F. P. Culliman, horticulturist at Purdue university; W. F. Rofkar, Port Clinton, O., research specialist in marketing, and Prof. U. P. Hedrick, horticulturist at Cornell university.

One feature of the joint convention will be a fruit growers' banquet Tuesday evening, Nov. 30. Paul Stark, Louisiana, Mo., president of the American Pomological society, will be toastmaster. An effort is being made to obtain Secretary of Agriculture William Hardine as the principal speaker.

Many Michigan orchardists and small fruit growers have been assigned topics for discussion in the official program. All sessions will be held in the ball room of the Pantlind hotel.

Grand Ledge Boys Win Spud Contest

Greenville—Grand Ledge, which lays no claim to being much of a potato growing center. produced the best boys' potato judging team this year. In a contest at the Western Michigan Potato show, the Grand Ledge high school team nosed out the Manton high school delegation for first honors. Greenville placed third, St. Johns fourth and Hastings fifth.

R. Rees of Grand Ledge was the best individual judge of potatoes among the boys, while C. Deer of Grand Ledge placed second, with F. Derbershire and C. Wilson of Manton following closely in third and fourth places, respectively.

Winners in the growers' judging contest were: First, Delbert Hough, Howard City; second, Clarence Lincoln, Greenville; third, H. F. Reeves, Smyrna; fourth, George Harrison, Manton.

In the housewives' judging contest sponsored by the Greenville Independent News, the winners were: First, Mrs. Scott Griswold, Harvard; second, Mrs. Allen Edgerly, Howard City; third, Irma Terry, Greenville.

Cedar Springs Cats Kill Weasels, Moles, Snakes and Gophers

Cedar Springs—Bob and Tiger, cats belonging to Mrs. Lavinia Heminger of this community, lead active and useful lives.

Both are industrious in the pursuit of mice, rats, moles and gorphers, and Bob, the blonde feline of 6 years, also catches and kills weasels and garter snakes. His owner recalls that when Bob was a kitten his mother brought garter snakes to her babies, but as the owner promptly confiscated the delicacies it is unknown if an early snake diet is responsible for present preference in the hunting field.

Tiger, 11 years old, durig the summer made four trips out in the field and each time returned with a live gopher. Bob weighs 11 pounds and Tiger 13 pounds.

Incriminating Evidence

Judge—"Guilty or not guilty?"

Bastus—"Not guilty."

Judge—"Have you ever served a jail sentence?"

Rastus—"No, sah, judge. Ah nevah stole nothin' befo'."

Holland Home of New Enterprise

Holland—O. E. Szekely Co., mechanical and automotive engineers, will remove its plant from Moline, Ill., to Holland, according to announcement Friday by a subcommittee of the industrial committee of the Holland chamber of commerce.

The company has purchased the office building of the Aniline Dye works, on the north side of Black lake, and a machine shop, 40x90 feet, brick construction, will be built at once. The company will employ from 40 to 45 men, most of them graduates of engineering departments of universities, 21 of whom will remove their families from Moline to this city.

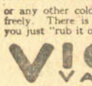
The company makes a specialty of engineering and designing work in blueprints and working models, and has a big foreign government contract for dynamometers, machine for testing automobile and airplane motors

Hogs in Van Buren Sick; Cholera Feared

Paw Paw—Hogs on a number of farms in Van Buren county are reported to be sick and the symptoms point to an outbreak of hog cholera, according to County Farm Agent William F. Johnston.

"Reports are coming into the county agent almost daily of sick hogs which show symptoms of cholera," Johnston said.

Local veterinarians are unable to get serum with which to vaccinate hogs, the county agent said. Johnston is mailing warnings to all farmers in townships in which suspected cases of cholera have been reported.



Mothers Treat Colds The New "Direct" Way

No Longer Necessary to "Dose" Children With Internal Medicines to Break Colds.

Children's digestions are easily upset by too much "dosing." Vicks VapoRub being externally applied, does not upset little stomachs.

At the first sign of croup, sore throat, or any other cold trouble, apply Vicks freely. There is nothing to swallow—you just "rub it on."

VICKS VAPORUB
Over 21 Million Jars Used Yearly

BARBER BEAUTY SHOP
Equipment
Cash or Terms
KOKEN BARBERS' CHAIRS ARE THE VERY BEST
Leo E. Morris Co.
522-528 Griswold
Cherry 0585 or 3331, Detroit

THE BEST RECOMMENDATION
— FOR —
BARE-TO-HAIR
Is the number who are trying to imitate it. If Bare-to-Hair was not growing hair on bald heads there would be no imitators. If there is baldness or signs of it you can't afford to neglect to use "Forst's Original Bare-to-Hair."
Correspondence Given Personal Attention
W. H. FORST, Mfgr.
SCOTTDALE PENN'A.

DEER HEADS MOUNTED
Write for free photos and prices before your hunt.
G. R. TAXIDERMY STUDIO
124 Division Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich. Phone 6-2952

Genuine BAYER
ASPIRIN
SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!
Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for
Colds Headache Neuritis Lumbago
Pain Neuralgia Toothache Rheumatism
DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART
Safe → Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.
Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Will You Have to Sell
blooded stock, hatching eggs, day old chicks, small fruit plants, real estate, etc.? If so, vonsult us, as we can place your ad in the associated weekly papers of Michigan and give you thousands of readers each week your advertisement appears. Rates very low.

WERTZ'

Cash Prices Now Selling

Hominy large can per can	12c	Peaches, large can per can	22c
Cranberries per pound	12c	Nice ripe bananas per pound	8c
Pure Lard per pound	18c	Lard Compound, per pound	16c
Michigan Cream Cheese per pound	33c	Macaroni, per pound	12c
Jumbo Pastry Flour per sack	93c	Wertz' Best Flour per sack	97c
Wertz' Real Coffee per pound	48c	Ginger Snaps per pound	12c
Ginger Snaps per pound	12c	50c Ladies Hose per pair	38c
Monarch Corn Flakes Large pkge.	14c	Monarch Corn Flakes Small	9c
25c Canvas Gloves Saturday only. 5 pairs	$1.00	8 pounds Sweet Potatoes	95c
Red Salmon per can	33c	Special for SATURDAY Ten Pounds Sugar with Other Purchases	58c

C. S. Wertz Store

Have You got Your Blankets For the Winter?

If not, now is the time to buy them. They are going fast at

$1.69 to $5.00 PLAIDS of all colors. also Greys and Tans.

Also lovely Linen Stamp Goods for your XMAS

Remember we have a big line of DRESS SHIRTS, white and colored, Save your $$ by trading at

SWAIN'S, North Adams

RADIOS

New Grossley Five-tube R. F. L. and Single Dial Control.

Florence and Glowboy

Circulating Heaters and the Range Eternal Can you

PAYNE & GREEN CO.

Authorized Agents

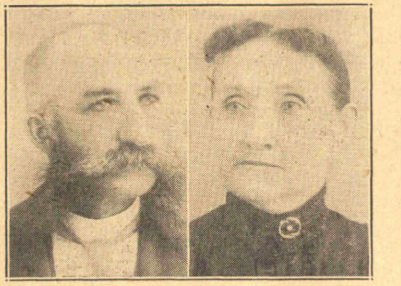
OUR STOCK OF "Uneeda Bakers" PRODUCTS IS ALWAYS FRESH

WE carry a full line of COOKIES AND CRACKERS and the quality is the best

A. DIETZ

Two Snbscriptions to McCall's and one Advocate 1 yr. $2.75

Two Anniversaries



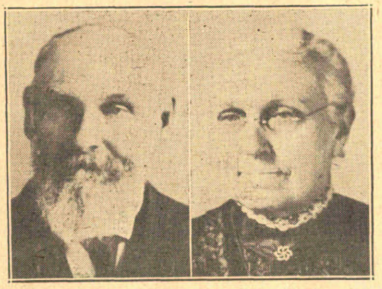
Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Knowles of this village passed the 59th anniversary of their marriage at their home on Saturday, November 13th with a pleasant family gathering in their honor on Sunday following. The children, grand-children and two brothers of Mrs. Knowles, Horton and Scott Winfield, of Mosherville. altogether sixteen being in the company. The occasion was observed on Sunday for the sake of convenience.

This couple were united in marriage by Rev. Clabine at Allen Village November 13, 1867, and two children came to the home, Jay D. and Clara, now Mrs. Robert Cuvler of Jackson. They have always had very good health and to-day are rejoicing in the fact they are able to enjoy the advantages of modern life fully as much as the old-time events of fifty years ago.

Within one year after marriage Mr. and Mrs. Knowles came to the farm in Moscow township, residing in an old log house. In 1875 the log house had to give way for the splendid modern brick house which has been kept in the best of repair. On this farm they lived and labored 38 years before coming to North Adams. Here the children were reared to adult life and buildings were constantly added until the farm home resembles a small village of itself. In the commercial life of Hillsdale county Mr. Knowles has played a very important part, having for many years followed the business of trading in implements, vehicles, horses and real estate, until his retirement only a short time ago.

They left the farm in 1906, since which time in the village they have helped to maintain, the are spending the sunset years of life, and receiving the congratulations of many friends and relatives,

At the Methodist church where Mr. and Mrs. Knowles have been life-long and efficient members a reception was given on Thursday by members of the church and friends, and a pot-luck dinner was served. There are seven grand-children and three great-grand children.



On Saturday. November 13th the relatives and friends numbering 63 met at the pleasant farm home of Jackson Barber and wife to help them celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary. It was an ideal autumn day and at an early hour guests began to arrive. The occasion was a most enjoyable family reunion.

After the bountiful dinner was served a short program was given. Greetings from far away relatives who were unable to be present, were read, also a short poem sent by Miss Ruth Robins of Cadillac, and a poem written for the occasion by C. W. Hoxie of Spencer Iowa, was read by Mrs. Bertha Wattles. Mrs. Berniece McBain sang "Silver Threads Among the Gold;" Mrs. Gertrude Thompson at the piano; Rev. Wylie made a few appropriate remarks and Mr. and Mrs. Barber responded in a few well-chosen words, after which all joined in singing "Bles't Be the Tie that Binds."

The remainder of the day was spent in a social time; many beautiful presents were received and guests were present from Elmira, Grand Rapids, Toledo, Charlotte, Detroit, Quincy, Battle Creek, Hillsdale, Moscow, and Wheatland.

Mr. Barber has lived on the farm for over 80 years, his parents coming from New York State when he was about two years of age. Mrs. Barber was formerly Miss Delia Robins of Wheatland. They were married November 15, 1876. There are two daughters, Mrs. Blanche Irish, of Elmira, Mich., and Mrs. Bertha Wattles who resides with her parents, and six grand-children. In looking back upon the last 50 years Mr. and Mrs. Barber can recall many changes Of the 75 guests who were present at their wedding, only 14 are living, five of whom attended the celebration Saturday.

Anyone Who can wind a watch

Now commands the air with

THE NEW ERLA MONODIC RECEIVER

Here is news for the whole family: Mother, Brother, and even little Sister can get new "thrills"—new stations they never could before. One after another stations come in with "next-door"' clarity and volume. Selectivity is now razor keen

Radiation, or the annoying broadcasting of squeals into neighboring antennae is eliminated removing one of the most prolific causes of radio interference and dissatisfaction'

Harshness and fuzziness of tone resulting from regeneration are eradicated. Even under full pressure, reproduction of voice or music is entirely natural and undistorted.

Mosher's Radio Shop

93 South Howell Street. HILLSDALE, MICH.

"I was bothered with a hard persistent cough, and tried other medicines, but none were so good and so relieving as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound."
E. Boggess,
Pomona, Calif.

Coughs and throat irritations, hard bronchial coughs, lingering "flu" coughs, yield quickly to

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND

Liked by children, effective for grown-ups — Sold everywhere

Clyde S. Wertz, North Adams

Hotels MADISON and LENOX DETROIT

These twin hotels, conveniently located downtown, offer you accommodations of great excellence at most reasonable rates...

MADISON AVE. NEAR GRAND CIRCUS PARK

CORRESPONDENCE

HOXIE

Earl Welker and wife of Hillsdale spent Sunday at W. E. Donihue's.

Geraldine Taylor of North Adams spent Saturday night with Lydia Welker.

Mrs. Ruth Deal of Bryan has been visiting Grace Smith for several days.

Will Wattles and son Merritt of Detroit were week end visitors at the Barber home.

Will Sanford and wife of Addison visited Corwin Cox and wife and other relatives here Saturday.

Mrs. Mabel Stev son is spending part of the week at Lansing visiting her cousin Norman Peacock and family.

F. M. Thompson and wife were in Detroit Monday. Little Gilbert Carney returned with them for a visit.

Mrs. Orpha Hoxie who has been visiting at E. J. Carney's at Detroit the past two weeks, returned Friday.

Mrs. Mabel Stevenson and Ruth and Mrs. Martha Brisbin visited at John Hicks at North Adams Saturday.

Mrs. Lucy Smith entertained her two little grand daughters Evelyn and Jean Smith also Dean Marks Saturday.

Archie Bleech and family of North Adams also Myron Thompson and wife of Brooklyn were Sunday guests at F. M. Thompson's.

Henry Owen who has been working on the A. J. Franks house, had the misfortune to fall from a scaffold Wednesday breaking an ankle.

Cecil Irish and sons of Elmira returned home Monday. Mrs. Irish remained for a two weeks visit with her parents Jack Barber and wife.

The Hoxie L. A. S. are holding their Xmas bazaar with chicken dinner at the parlors of the Methodist church at North Adams this week Friday Nov. 19.

Frank Moore and family and Mrs. Belle Sweezy and children of Pontiac spent the week end at the Sweezy home in this vicinity, returning Sunday afternoon.

Chas Chapman was taken suddenly worse Tuesday morning but at this writing is some better. Mrs. Etta McCarthy of Horton is helping to care for him.

Evart Kennedy and wife of Cement City, Leon MrCarthy and family and Mrs. Etta McCarthy of Horton, Harold Moore and family of Vandercook Lake were callers to see Chas Chapman Sunday.

Jerome

Arthur Burns spent the week end in Jackson.

Otto Miller was in Hanover one day last week on business.

Mrs. M. Kane and Mrs. M. Hammons were in Jackson Saturday.

Glenn Miller and wife have moved into the Cash Sawdey house.

The community ladies took in $15 at their dinner Thursday.

Mrs, Frank Anson was taken to the Addison Hospital Sunday.

Elmer Ward, Thomas Tryon and S. L. Tower were in Detroit Saturday.

Jay Pullen and wife are entertaining the former's mother Mrs. Alma Pullen of Lansing.

Clair Miller and family of Vandercook Lake visited Otto Miller and family Sunday.

Will VanAken and Will Anderson of North Adams were in town Monday on business.

William Fouty and wife are moving from town back to their farm this week while Raymond Fouty's will move from the farm to Jerome.

Christmas is only a short distance away.

Center Adams

Frank Dewey is confined to his home with pleurisy.

Mrs. Lulu Coryell visited in Hillsdale on Tuesday with Mrs. Belle Powderly.

Mrs. C. N. Williams and mother Mrs. Jennie Fairbanks have moved to Hillsdale.

Mrs. L. E. Chase is spending sometime at the Oren Lapham home near Frontier.

D. P. Gould and wife of Hillsdale were calling on friends in this vicinity on Sunday.

Will Burse and wife of Osseo visited Sunday afternoon with Ed Gray and wife.

Harry Foust and Glenn Scovile left Saturday for the North on a deer hunting trip.

Donna Hersh of Moscow was an overnight guest of Frances Ambler on Tuesday night.

Mrs. Linnie Post was the guest of Mrs. Alice Williams at North Adams on Tuesday.

J. I. Post and wife visited over Saturday night and Sunday at the Carl Vincent home in Frontier.

Marion Coryell and family were Sunday visitors at the James Bumpus home near Churches Corners.

Mrs. Will Peterson of North Adams spent Monday and Tuesday with her daughter Mrs. Ed Gray.

Rev. Albert Moore and family of Hillsdale were dinner guests at the Nathan Webster home on Sunday.

Wells Straw and mother Mrs. Julia Straw of Adrian were callers at the George Ambler home Sunday.

Floyd Fenwick and wife and Earl Curtiss and two daughters of Jackson visited Sunday with Geo. Bates and wife.

J. R. Dewey and family accompanied by Mrs. Delcie Shufelt and son Wayne of North Adams were at Bankers Sunday visiting Eben Petrie and wife.

E. D. Whalton of Detroit visited over Monday night at the Eugene McBain home, returning home on Tuesday. Mr McBain went home with him and will spend a few days with h's daughter Mrs Whalton and family.

Jonesville

L. W. Potter and wife are visiting in Chicago.

Miss Loraine Marvin was in Detroit Sunday.

R. S. Varnum and family were in Ypsilanti Sunday.

A. H. Dudley was in Detroit the first of the week.

Mrs. Addie Moffat is visiting her son Merle in Detroit.

Clyde Graves is on a hunting trip in Northern Michigan.

Mrs. Andora Benner is ill at her home on Maumee street.

Mrs. Geo. Fast entertained the Culture Club last week Wednesday.

John Moore and family now occupy the Tead home on East Chicago street.

Norman Chawlcraft and wife are the parents of a daughter born November 2.

Dr. Long of Pontiac has bought the Johnson place on Germaine street and will move here.

Mrs. Cora Curran of Elkhart Ind. spent the week end with her brother George McKercher.

F. H. Clearwater of Mosherville has bought the fine new home of C. W. Oppel on East street.

Clifford Walcott and wife of Coldwater spent the week end with their parents Dr. and Mrs. Garret Walcott.

The Annual Chicken pie supper given by the Ladies of the Presbyterian church will be held this Friday evening in the church.

The 1927 contest is starting with 100 pens of fine birds, Most of the states of the union have birds entered in an attempt to set still higher records.

A good beef cow is smooth, well proportioned, with short legs, short back, short and broad head, wide muzzle, glossy hair, and loose and pliable skin. She should have a good udder and give enough milk to feed her calf well. Beef cows are usually lower set, blockier, more symmetrical, carry more flesh, and have smaller udder than dual-purpose cows. Do not keep shy breeders or cattle with contagious abortion; lumpy jaw, or tuberculosis.

Dawn Theatre Hillsdale

A Butterfield Theatre

November 10
FRIDAY
Paramuunt Special
"FASCINATING YOUTH"

Saturday, Nov. 20
Ken Maynard
THE Unknown CAVALIER

Nov. 21, 22, 23
SUNDAY. MON. TUES.
Douglas Fairbanks
"THE BLACK PIRATE"

Wednes'y, Nov. 24
Anna Q. Nilsson
"MISS NOBODY"

Thanksgiving Day Nov. 25
Raymond Griffith in "YOU'D BE SUEPRISED"

I'm Telling You

The Majestic Furnace is a 'Winner'

Following are the names of satisfied users of Majestic Furnaces we have sold in the past two years:

Lud Chandler,
Roy Schmitt
Dr. Caswell
James Denning
Frank Holcomb
Frank Painter
Ross DeLamater
Lloyd Wilson
Will Wheaton
Rev. Kern, Camden
Ed Kempton
Will Oscius
Cash DeWitt
Geo. Bates
Art Calhoun

John Williams

THE NORTH ADAMS ADVOCATE

Vol. XXXI | NORTH ADAMS, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1926 | No. 26

Greendale Dairy

MANUFACTURERS OF

Pure Creamery Butter

Will Pay Cash for Good Cream

North Adams, : Michigan

THE CITIZENS BANK

[Unincorporated]

North Adams, Mich.

Resources Over $500,000

H. M. WILCOX, Pres. J. M. WILLIAMS V. Pres

A. J. HOFFMAN, Cashier

MRS. GRACE DOOLITTLE, Assistant Cashier

Co-Partners

J. M. WILLIAMS C. W. BLEECH A. WILLIAMS EST

A. J. HOFFMAN H. M. WILCOX B. I. LYNCH

[a] Safety on your money

[b] Yield on your money

I.—SAFETY : Building and Loan societies put 100 per cent of their investments in Real Estate. It is estimated that there are 9,000,000 share holders in Building and Loan Societies, having $5,000,000 in assets. Wayne county Savings Bank has $74,204,528 in savings :$41,140,576 is invested in Real Estate. The Central Savings and Trust Company has $28,961,093 in Savings, $27,294,298 are invested in Real Estate. The New York Life Insurance Company has $151,000,000 in assets invested in Illinois.

$94,000,000 Real Estate
$21,000,000 Railroad Bonds
$35,000,000 Public Utilities
$1,000,000 Municipal

Surely these facts are conclusive evidence of the safety of Real Estate.

II.—YIELD : In yield one cannot find so generous a return anywhere. In ten (10) years the following yields have been realized : Detroit 630 per cent; New York 217 per cent; Chicago 195 per cent; Atlanta 162 per cent; San Francisco, 159 per cent; Boston 137 per cent; Minneapolis 131 per cent; Kansas City 129 per cent; St. Louis 124 per cent; Cleveland 119 per cent; Philadelphia 116 per cent. Detroit yields three times as much as its next ranking city.

See DICK McBAIN, Moscow.

B. E. TAYLOR, Realtor
Community Builder

521-529 Ford Bldg. DETROIT, : I .

we will sell all
WALL PAPERS
in stock at a
25 PER CENT
DISCOUNT

H. E. Young & Son

NORTH ADAMS, MICH.

Local News

Patronize the item box at the post office.

Elmer Helmick nnd wife will attend the funeral of his brother-in-law at Frontier on Friday.

—Bazaar at the Methodist church next Wednesday. Bring all articles for Bazaar Tuesday.

Ed Kempton and family spent Thanksgiving with Lawrence Kempton and family at Mt Vernon, O.

Andrew Bemis entertained Roy Preston and family and Harold Bemis of Marshall for Thanksgiving.

Dr. Howard Wertz and wife of Jackson spent Thanksgiving with his brother, Clyde, and family in this village.

Carl Binns and family of Detroit were at the home of Fred Westcott and family on Thanksgiving to spend the day.

George and Seymour Combs spent Thanksgiving with the latter's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Masker, at Jackson.

The Rebekah Aid Society will serve a chicken dinner Friday November 26 in the Oddfellows Hall. Adults 35c. Children 25c. 25t2

Mrs. Arvin Fuller who has been caring for Mrs. A. J. Calhoun was called home by the illness of her husband and her place is being taken by Mrs. Wale.

Dr. Rockwell Kempton and family of Saginaw and M. Kempton and wife spent Thanksgiving with Fred Randolph and family near Jerome. The Randolph family were all home.

C. W. Bleech and wife, Lottie Keefus and son. Lawrence were invited guests at the Roy Dickey home in Coldwater for Thanksgiving. Both ladies are cousins of Mrs. Dickey.

George Combs, Jr., wife and son of Romeo came Wednesday to the home of A. J. Pendell and wife. On Tuesday afternoon both Pendells and Combs left for Kalamazoo to spend Thanksgiving wtih relatives.

Thanksgiving Mrs. D. A. Wisner and son, Fred entertained Orrin Wisner and family and friend, Mr. Curtis from Hillsdale, O. R. Thompson and family of Jackson and Mrs .Emma Young of North Adams.

Mrs. Sarah Kinney who has been a resident of this village during the summer, left on Friday morning last week for Grand Rapids where she will enter the Michigan Soldiers' Home for the winter so as to be near her daughter Mrs. Frank Curtis who is stopping in Grand Rapids.

Harold Hersh, Ione Young and Gladys Holkins were in Litchfield on Friday evening last week where the debating contest was pulled off for High schools. The subject was "Resolved; That the United States should own the Coal Mines". North Adams was adjudged the winner on the affirmative. Judges were Prof. Clark of Hillsdale College, Viola Moore, School commissioner and W. M. Wetmore of Jonesville.

Archie Bleech and family who left here last week Thursday for points in Florida particularly St. Cloud, wrote a card home from some point in Kentucky and the card arrived here Monday morning. They reported they were having a wonderful time seeing the "sights" and were just entering the Cumberland Mountains in Western Kentucky and Tennessee. The trip to the Ohio River was made very quickly and without accident.

The splendid new Masonic Temple which has been more than four years in building, located at Cass Park, Detroit, was dedicated on Thanksgiving day with an impressive ceremony and a big parade on the down-town streets in which a vast throng of 25,000 persons participated, and many bands joined in the national anthem including the famous "Kilties" of Canada. The new temple will seat 5,000 persons in the auditorium, hence it was deemed best to conduct the services in the open. Here is the program as carried out: Invocation, Rev. William Gallagher; "Star Spangled Banner" by assembled bands; introduction of speaker by Grand Master Charles A. Donelson dedication address, Rev. Ford Newton of Philadelphia, who is a prominent authority on craft matters and writer of many Masonic handbooks dealing with knotty problems for young members. The building was open for public inspection during the afternoon and in the evening a Master Mason's degree was put on by a Grand Rapids Lodge. The Speaker asserted that Masonry existed at the time of building Soloman's temple, and it might be stated that ancient Chinese craft antedated Soloman's temple by considerable. Two-thirds of the craftsmen in the whole Universe, or over 3,000,000, are in America.

Albert Dietz and wife were business callers in Hillsdale on Tuesday.

—Attend the Bazaar at Methodist church next Wednesday. Dinner at 11:30

C. J. Knapp and wife entertained her brother, James Jones and wife for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Edna Robins returned home Thursday from Marshall where she spent the past two weeks visiting relatives.

Chauncey Barber of Kunkle,Ohio and Geo. Barber and family spent Sunday with Lew Barber and family south of town.

Andrew Frank and wife of this place and Raymond Frank and family of Hillsdale spent Sunday with relatives in Camden.

H. C. Young and family, Mrs. Grace Westcott and Randell Westcott and family spent Thanksgiving with Earl Rush and family at Pittsford.

Born to Howard A. Williams and wife a ten-pound daughter to be known as Barbara Jean. Mother and child doing well at Hillsdale Hospital.

—Entire stock of Velour and Felt Hats going at One-fourth off. Original tickets remain on hat. You deduct 25 per cent at time of purchase
Corey Hat Shop

William Frederick was in Ypsilanti on Monday to meet his daughter, Miss Sarah, who teaches in the schools of Sag Harbor. The latter will remain home until Sunday.

Mrs. Leiter of Chicago, heiress to the Marshal Field millions, has begun proceedings to remove Joseph Leiter as administrator of her father"s estate, as she claims he is not handling the matter in a fair way for all concerned.

Visitors to the International Live Stock Show at Chicago from Nov. 27th to Dec. 4th will see the entire process of stock raising from the time the breed is selected until the meet is hung in the cooling rooms at the packing house.

Eugene McBain received by express from Ellwood City, Pennsylvania last week, a fine English Beagle puppy, registered as Wolverine U, No. Sired by Fd. Ch. "P R" Wolverine Radio ex Fd. Ch., Lady Rutter. Gene thinks this is the only registered U. K. C. pup, whose sire and dam were both Field Champions.

The basket ball games held on Wednesday evening at the Community hall were well attended. The High School girls engaged the Alumni girls and won. The High School boys engaged the Alumni boys and got beaten. After the game a boxing match was scheduled by Jack Wertz and Mr. Sawdey.

Grant Wirt, proprietor of the store at Churchs' Corners, was called out of bed Friday night by two men who claimed they wanted gasoline. This was about midnight, and as Mr. Wirt emerged from the store with lantern in hand he was knocked down and robbed of $18 in cash and a sheepskin coat from the store. As in the Hoxie job the miscreants made a clean get-away.

An agreement has been reached jointly by the American and Canadian governments whereby over $500,000,000 will be spent by the two governments for hydro-electric improvements on the border waterways of St. Lawrence and Niagara Rivers, which is believed to be the opening wedge of the general plan for the Great Lakes to Ocean waterway.

Latest Radio news says that a prominent Senator in Washington has stated the plan of President Coolidge to turn back to taxpayers over $3,000,000 excess taxes, will meet with the old high-jack gang and be completely defeated unless sentiment changes at once. This shows how strong the Senate is for the people, and how weak for the millionaire!

The Sorosis Club held its November meeting Tuesday afternoon Nov. 23 at the home of Mrs. Frances Cox in Wheatland Township. There wss a good attendance. Members answered to roll call with Thanksgiving thoughts. A paper on "William Cullen Bryant" was given by Mrs. Mabel Purcell and a paper on "Comtemporary Writers" by Myra Beecher. Both were enjoyed. Mrs. Edna Hewitt, delegate to the County Federation meeting held at Moscow Nov. 10 gave a fine report of the meeting. Music included the singing of "America, the Beautiful" by the Club, selections by a trio composed of Mrs. Edna Hewitt, Mrs. Alice Holcomb and Mrs. Angie Benge and a piano solo by the hostess' daughter, Miss Geraldine Cox. The December meeting will be held Tuesday December 21 at the home of Mrs. Ada Newman and will be a Christmas entertainment,

Methodist Church Calendar

REV. H. E. WYLIE, PASTOR
Supplication Period 10:00 A. M
Morning worship 11:00
Sabbath School 10:00 A. M.
Epworth League 6:00 P. M.
Evening Worship 7:00

BAPTIST CHURCH

A. REISER, PASTOR

Preaching service every Sunday at 10:30 a. m.

Sunday school at 11:45

Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:30.

Congregational Church Calendar

E. C. JANDY, Pastor

Regular morning worship at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school 11:45

This Saturday night at 6:45 p. m, is the All Congregational Church get-together. Remember to bring a few sandwiches or something eatable to help feed the comers to the potluck supper. Above all bring yourself, even if you can bring nothing else. Come and bring the family along.

The subject of the sermon for Sunday Nov. 28 will be "They found him in the Temple." This sermon is especially prepared for the young people of the church and the High School students of North Adams. All others, however, whether young or old, are warmly welcome to attend. Be there and bring a friend.

Notice

I will be at Citizens Bank North Adams on Saturday November 27 for the purpose of furnishing deeds to the purchasers of lots at Gray Goose Beach. George Morehouse Jackson Michigan. 25t2

—Dr. C. J. Howe, Optometrist Comfortable glasses, Hilldsale. 42tf

Jacob Lane and Charles Foster will attend the International Live Stock Show at Chicago.

—Some Fine Bargains in Miltex Dresses. Good choice of colors and styles. Corey Hat Shop.

—Bazaar at the Methodist church next Wednesday. Bring all articles for the Bazaar Tuesday afternoon.

For Sale—Duroc Jersey fall pigs
26t2 A. G. Meeks
Phone 1402 North Adams

For Sale—Round Oak Heating Sove No. 18. Bement Kitchen Rtange No. 8. Percy Wells, Phone 802 North Adams. 23tf

Lost—Brown and white bulldog 4 months old female. Blind in one eye. Reward if returned to Ed Shurlow, Addison Mich. 24t3

For Sale—Two registered ram lambs also popcorn, Wilbur Bohn North Adams. 24t3

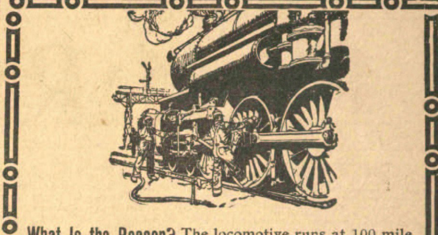
—During November and December the Advocate will take subscriptions for McCall's Magazine at the rate of two to be paid for by the same person at $2.75 with the Advocate. Thus if you wish to give a friend a present of a year's subscription to McCall's here is your chance to get the magazine cheap. It is better than ever and the new serial by Harold Bell Wright is "God and The Groceryman."

Albert Brown and A. J. Hoffman of North Adams were in Indianapolis, Louisville and Lexington, Kentucky, also visited Cincinnati Ohio, on business last week. They report that the farmers in the states covered by the trip have certainly suffered heavy losses from wet weather, as evidenced by the fields of grain rotting in the shocks.—Jonesville Independent.

Great Health Gathering

What will be a great health, also healthy gathering, is to be held at Lansing December 1, 2 and 3 for the sixth annual get-together of the doctors and nurses of the state who are interested in keeping the health standards up to date.

Hugh S. Cumming, Surgeon-general of the United States armies will be the guest of honor. Other speakers will include Dr. Bigelow of Massachusetts on "Milk Supplies" Doc. Fred Adams of Canada on "Severe Smallpox" Doc. Kimball of Cleveland on "Goitres and Public Health." Thursday evening, December 2, a joint meeting will convene and Dr. Josephine Baker, specialist in hygiene and maternity will address the meeting. Expectations are for 300 or 400 health workers to be in attendance. We should presume that the death rate of Michigan might at any time increase—or else things are not as they used to be. With the vast number of doctors turned out annually at Ann Arbor—how all these boys can live and eat three meals per day by keeping this state purged of its diseases, is more than we can understand. It appears that instead of working up jobs for themselves today, the doctors are constantly trying to make the human family so virile that disease will not attack them. At this rate the stylish guys will soon have to secure a license to have appendicitis.



What Is the Reason? The locomotive runs at 100 mile clip day in and day out. Because it is fed. Likewise you keep up your daily work by eating of wholesome, juicy steaks at least once a day.

Our Meats and Groceries are always fresh

EDSON J. BENGE

What you GET here depends on what you GIVE here

Did you ever stop to think that what you get in the milk pail you must first put into the feed box?

When production falls off it's easy to blame the cow. But she isn't a magician. She can't make something out of nothing.

A good cow, rightly fed, will pay for herself over and over; year in and year out.

But no cow, wrongly fed, will produce milk profitably for any length of time.

That's why it pays to feed Larro. Larro will produce more profit, dollar for dollar, than any other feed, however little you pay for it.

We can prove this by the actual experience of other dairymen; or by a test with your own cows.

Prices

One Hundred Pounds International Dairy Feed	$1.90
One Hnndred Pounds Hy-grade Como Oat Feed	1.25
200 pound Cost	$ 3.15
100 pound Cost	1.57

F. I. WILLIAMS & SON

Why Sheetrock is a different wallboard

What it is: Sheetrock is gypsum plaster cast in thick, rigid sheets. It is fireproof, non-warping and permanent. It can be sawed and nailed like lumber. Takes any decoration—wall paper, paint, or Textone in the new stipple finishes.

What it does: Sheetrock makes solid, highly insulating walls and ceilings that keep rooms warm in winter and cool in summer. That means more comfort and lower fuel bills. Then, too, Sheetrock walls and ceilings make buildings dust-tight, sound-proof and vermin-proof.

Where it is used: Sheetrock is the economical wall and ceiling material for many types of new construction and for all remodeling and repairs. It is just the thing for attic rooms, furnace rooms, fruit cellars, garages, offices and stores.

Where to get it: Get your Sheetrock from us. We carry it in standard ceiling heights and widths. Our trucks make prompt deliveries.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
SHEETROCK
THE Fireproof WALLBOARD

GRAVES & FORD LUMBER COMPANY

An Especially Interesting Page on Various Subjects

Prepared for all Classes of People in all Walks of Life

Roberta Risks It

© MARGARET CAMERON LEWIS

BEGIN THE STORY TODAY

P. G. (Piggy) Brazenose is a young man who has a habit of getting into trouble. It's probably because his mother named him Percival Galahad. He's really a good sort, but he doesn't take anything seriously, including the business that is Heaven and Earth to his dad. That gentleman calls Piggy into his office for a stern session. It appears that Piggy has done a sensational high dive to save a man from drowning. The papers play it up—and Brazenose Senior hates to have his name in the paper. Just as his father's indictment waxes warm, reporters are announced and Piggy leaves, promising to stay out of sight for a few days—and behave himself. He starts for New York but at the Hudson ferry a man, of his own general type accosts him and explains that he is unable to meet a certain young lady at Grand Central, that she must be met by someone—and will Piggy do it, as a matter or chivalry? Sure says Piggy. With a vague description of her he spots her in the crowds and steps up to her. The young lady is disconcerted. She was to have married that other chap. She is independent, very, and declines to trouble this handsome stranger. But Piggy insists on being troubled. He finds she is in real trouble. So he suggests breakfast at Sherry's and a "conference" on what to do.

Now what happens? Carryon with the yarn, you'll like it.

"Oh, come off!" Piggy elegantly remarked, in the tone he would have used had she been a man of his own age. "Don't be an idiot! If things are as bad as you say, you've got to get busy. Go on! I'll see you through. I happen to have a pretty fair bank balance right now, and I've seen enough of you already to back you to the limit. If I can help, I will. If I can't, I'll forget it and no harm done."

The friendly warmth of his manner, together with its utter lack of deference, the absence of the slightest implication that she was a maid and he a man, combined with her need and what she had previously heard about him to break down her reserve.

CHAPTER SEVEN

"It's my sister," said the girl slowly. "She's being kept a prisoner and I've come to get her out."

"A prisoner?"

"Oh, not in jail. In my—in a country house in New England. My father's an autocrat. He thinks we're puppets and ought never to move unless he pulls the string. He's always been like that. Mother's never thought for herself, nor decided anything for herself, since she married him. But then, she's never wanted to. She's a soft, pussy-cat sort of woman, perfectly contented to sit on a silk cushion by the fire and purr, and she thinks we ought to do it, too—as far as she thinks at all. Father provides nice fat cushions and a warm fire—and plenty of ice in summer. He's a good provider. I admit that. He's generous to everybody he approves of. But he wants to order everything his way. He can't see any other. I wouldn't be ordered, so there was a terrible quarrel and I've been supporting myself for two years."

"You have? How?"

"Honestly," she returned, with the ghost of a twinkle. "I'm building up quite a business in Paris as guide, interpreter and shopping expert for plutocratic American women who don't speak fluent French. My sister's younger than I. She's only seventeen, so you see she's a minor. And she's not like me. I have a hard streak in me, like father. That's the reason I could fight him. But she's tender and sweet and much too sensitive. She's crushable—and he's crushing her. I can't stand it. I won't have her life ruined!"

"What's he doing to her?"

"She and mother were abroad this summer. They didn't come to Paris, because I live there and they're not allowed to speak to me. I heard they were in London, though, and went over and managed to see Ce—to see my sister on the sly. Mother didn't know anything about it. On the steamer going over they met a young Frenchman, a mining engineer who lives in Mexico, and he and my sister fell madly in love with each other. He's a charming fellow, good family and all that, but he hasn't any money to speak of—yet. He's only twenty-six. Of course mother didn't do anything—she never does—except to write to father, and he came raging over on the next steamer to lay down the law.

"He caught Pierre and my sister together and there was a terrible scene. Pierre told me about it afterward. Father said she was a silly little fool, and no daughter of his should marry a penniless foreigner and go to live in Mexico. She defied him, for the first time in her life, and father almost lost his mind. He told her she was ungrateful and a disgrace—and remember he's done her thinking and choosing for her all her life, and she's sensitive and tractable. When he had about reduced her to pulp, he threatened to kick Pierre out of the hotel, and as he's a big man he could have done it. So Pierre left.

"Father brought the family home and Pierre came on the same steamer. He wrote me about the rest of it. He says my sister was locked in her stateroom all the way over. He tried to bribe the stewards to take a note to her, but father had fixed them, so probably she never knew that Pierre was there. When they got here he lost them, but found out after a while that father had taken them to a house he owns in New England—an isolated summer place off in the woods. He's had a barbed wire fence put all around the property and bought some savage dogs, and my sister's never allowed to be out of the house alone, not even in the garden. That's the only way we know she's still holding out. Pierre went up there, but he couldn't get word through to her and never saw her. Everybody has been warned against him and they're all afraid of father. And there she is!"

"H'mph! Regular medieval stuff."

"Patriarchal! Father's an anachronism."

"Where's the Frenchman?"

"In Mexico. Something went wrong at the mine and he had to go down and straighten it out. Anyway, he's been brought up to respect parental authority, and think's there's nothing to do except wait until she's of age. I don't mind that part of it. She is too young to marry. What I can't stand is to have father bully her into submission—and he will. She's never tried to stand out against him before, and if she fails this time she'll never try again. At her age and with her disposition he can break her, and he's set about doing it. He thinks that everybody who disagrees with him ought to be broken. He's like that in business, too—a rule-or-ruin sort of person. Maybe I'm not making him convincing—but he is."

"He's convincing, all right. Sounds a good deal like G. A."

"G. A.?"

"Short for God Almighty. There's a man we do business with who's like that. I never saw him myself, but the fellows in his office call him G. A."

"Then where does the detective person come in?"

"I don't know. Unless father found out somehow that I was coming. Nobody knew it, except Pierre and—one other man, and neither of them would tell him."

Piggy thought that a chap who failed to show up on his wedding day might be guilty of almost anything, but he kept that reflection to himself and she went on:

"I landed at Quebec because I was afraid somebody I know might see me on the dock here. I've lived in New York all my life until two years ago and know lots of people here, but I can't trust any of them with this, you see. Father must have found out. At first I thought perhaps he'd sent you. That was one reason why I was so nervous. He won't interfere with me unless I try to reach my sister, though he may spirit her away somewhere; but he'll know everything I do and everywhere I go unless I can slip away from that man. He's standing out there now, watching."

CHAPTER EIGHT

Piggy glanced out of Sherry's window and saw a small, dark man, wearing a blue suit and a gray fedora hat, loitering on the corner.

"H'mph! Foxy little guy, anyhow. He thought of the catering place, too, and planted himself where he could see both doors. All right. We'll fool him."

"How?"

"Wait a minute. Let me think."

He thought. Sometimes his lips twitched with amusement; sometimes he frowned and shook his head. The girl sat quietly awaiting the result of his lucubrations. At last he looked up with his wide smile.

"I've got it. It won't do for him just to lose you, for then they might think you'd gone to your sister and they'd yank her away somewhere. We might have the very deuce of time finding her. So we've got to make him think you're headed in some other direction. You've got some luggage, haven't you? Well, we'll go over to the Grand Central and order it transferred to the Pennsylvania. He'll find out all about that, and the Pennsy don't run to New England. Then you'll have to kill some time, so I'll take you to the Waldorf and leave you. You'll sit in plain sight in Peacock Alley, looking at your watch every little while. If you see your sleuth, don't notice him. I'll disappear. He can't follow both of us. When the time comes, you'll take your little bag into a cab and go to the ferry and across to the Pennsylvania Station. He'll be right on your heels and will see you buy a ticket for Washington."

"But I haven't any money!"

"Oh, rats!" said Piggy. "Forget it. This thing strikes me as a good sporting proposition and I'm for it. What were you going to do about money before you met me?"

"I—I thought I was going to marry a wealthy man today."

"Well, go ahead and marry him when he gets back. Then you can make him pay me what it costs. But if we wait for him, your sister may be on the way to China or Timbuctoo before you get there. And the principal thing's to get her before that happens, isn't it? Well, then! Now listen."

The man on the corner had a long wait, but eventually his patience was rewarded. After an early and brief luncheon, the young persons in whom he was interested emerged from Sherry's door, the girl again closely veiled and entered a cab. Again he took the next one, following them back to the Grand Central Station, where he contrived to overhear Piggy's clear-voiced instructions to the transfer agent to be sure to send the lady's trunks to the Pennsylvania station in time to catch the Congressional Limited. The dark man's expression at that moment might have led anyone watching him closely to suspect that he was puzzled. Piggy's glance touched him lightly, casually, indifferently, as the two turned to saunter back to their waiting cab.

Only when the vehicle had started did young Brazenose permit himself to chuckle.

"You're dead right. He's after us. Did you see him?"

"Yes. I knew he'd follow us."

"Well, we'll give him a run for his money." Piggy's gray eyes were luminous with the light of adventure, twinkling in triumphant and mischievous anticipation. "I only wish I could hang around and see how sick he looks when he finds he's lost you."

At the Waldorf he dismissed the cab, and they strolled, chatting, into the hotel. He took her to the news stand and bought a couple of magazines for her, after which he escorted her to a chair in the lounge, just off the popular corridor known as Peacock Alley, where he set down her bag.

"Good-by," he said distinctly, as the little man in the blue suit drifted in their direction. "It's been bully to see you and I'm terribly sorry I can't stay and take you to your train. You really think you'll sail Saturday?"

Their shadow stopped near them, looked at his watch and glanced around the room as if he expected to meet some one there. Piggy lowered one eyelid amusedly.

"I suppose so." Her low voice carried clearly. "That is, if Mrs. Miles is well enough. Of course, I only came over because she isn't able to travel alone, and it will depend entirely upon her arrangements. I hope we can go Saturday. I don't want to stay in this country any longer than I have to."

"No, of course you wouldn't—under the circumstances." Piggy's tone grew sympathetic. "It's a darn shame, too. Family fights are the dickens. Well, let me know if you have any time before you sail. I'll see you at the dock, anyway. Good-by."

Smiling, he departed, and the man in the blue suit found a seat down the corridor a little way, whence he could watch unobtrusively from behind a newspaper the quiet brown figure in the lounge.

Piggy walked briskly up the avenue, pausing now and then to look behind him until he had assured himself that he was not followed. Then he called a cab and drove to his bank, where he drew a substantial sum, afterward visiting a dealer in leather goods to buy a large dull-black suitcase which he took away with him in the cab. He then drove to a shop specializing in women's mourning apparel, spending some time in consultation with an eagerly sympathetic young woman over a list he carried. She obligingly had his purchases packed in the suitcase for him. After other brief stops for shoes and hosiery and gloves, he directed the driver to take him to the ferry, which landed him in time at the Pennsylvania Station—a terminal then on the New Jersey side of the river.

CHAPTER NINE

Piggy went directly to the door marked "Ladies' Room" at the Pennsylvania Station and signaled to the attendant, a grizzled Irishwoman, who responded promptly to his infectious smile.

"I wonder if you'd help me out?" he began, using the phrase that had enlisted his own co-operation earlier in the day. "I've got a suitcase here that belongs to a lady, and she hasn't come yet. I've got to go—can't possibly wait any longer—and I thought maybe you'd—"

The woman shook her head. "Aginst the rules, sorr. I ain't responsible for no parcels. Ye'll be after takin' it to the parrcel counter."

"But she'd have to have a check for it then, and I can't get it to her."

"Annyways, she w'u'dn't be knowin' it was here."

"Yes, she would. She said you were a nice, friendly-looking lady," he wheedled, at the same time pulling a roll of bills from his pocket, "and she thought, if I had to go before she got here, maybe you'd take care of it for her."

"It's aginst the rules," the woman replied, with an eye on the banknotes.

"Well, it isn't against the rules for me to set it down here and forget it." He gave her the smile that many of her younger and more prosperous sisters had striven in vain to win from him. "I'm sure you wouldn't leave it here to be stolen—not a kind, good-looking lady like you."

"Aw, gwan wid yer kiddin'!" she retorted, but she laughed and he dropped the bag.

"All right. Now I've forgotten it. And if you should happen to put it away somewhere, and if a little bit of a lady should happen to come in and ask for it, maybe you'd tell her where it was?" He winked at her impishly, edging nearer as he detached a banknote from the roll and folded it into a little wad. "She's an awfully nice lady and I shouldn't wonder if she'd have another one like this for anybody who found her suitcase for her."

"But s'posin' she niver comes at all, at all?" she asked, her fingers closing over the wad.

"Then you'd have to turn it in to the lost-property bureau, wouldn't you? They keep you pretty busy here, though. You might not have time to do that before—say 5 o'clock? That will be all right for everybody, won't it. And I'm awfully obliged to you. You're certainly a peach! Good luck!"

He waved a hand and was off, leaving the woman smiling after him. She put the suitcase out of sight.

Piggy returned to the city and went to a shop handling ready-made liveries, where he was not known, to invest in a complete chauffeur's outfit, which he said he wanted for a fancy-dress party. Taking his parcels with him he hastened home, packed a couple of bags and scrawled a scrupulously truthful though possibly somewhat misleading note to his paternal relative, informing that gentleman that his son was off for a few days in the woods and would be back when he arrived.

With the bags and a couple of guns in the high-powered car which more than once had helped him get into trouble, he drove rapidly to the Twenty-third street ferry, arriving with five minutes to spare.

Meanwhile Rowena Smith sat in the lounge at the Waldorf until her watch indicated the zero hour, then, without a glance toward the observant man down the corridor, she picked up her brown bag, walked slowly to the door, and called a cab. She caught sight of the man once on the ferry-boat, he was not far behind when she entered the station, and when she bought her ticket he was near enough to hear her say "Washington." From a greater distance he saw her enter the Ladies' Room, and he sat down facing the door to wait until she should reappear.

He waited for some time. A constant stream of women passed in and out, none of whom interested him. One diminutive figure swathed in fresh widow's weeds, her face hidden behind a long, thick crepe veil, came directly toward him, carrying a large black suitcase, but he did not give her a second glance. His eyes were fixed upon the doorway which had swalled up the brown-clad Rowena Smith. After the Congressional Limited had been called he grew restless. Later still, he interrogated the attendant in the Ladies' Room, who said shure, wid all the wimmen comin' an' goin' all the day, she couldn't be expicted to remimber the color o' their clo'es. For reasons of her own she neglected to mention an empty brown bag which had been found in her department and which in her own good time was sent to the lost-property bureau. With a worried look, the little man hastened to a telephone.

Considerably before that, however, Piggy had sprung out of his car to meet the woman in mourning whose appearance had not attracted the attention of the watchfully waiting one at the station.

"All right?" he asked as he took the suitcase.

"He never looked at me." Her reply came through a gurgle of laughter. "I almost stepped on his toes, bue he was looking at the door."

"Sure," said Piggy. "Pretty soon he'll begin wondering whether you came out behind some large, fat lady and took your train without his seeing you. You could, you know; you're so little. He's in for a bad time with his boss, and some Washington sleuth may get a job." Laughing, he helped her into the car, started his engine, and asked, "Where do we go now?"

CHAPTER TEN

"Why—I don't know," Rowena answered Piggy's question as to where they were to go next. "You said you knew of a hotel—"

"Not much! We've no time for hotels. Where's this place of your father's? We're going to drive up."

"Drive!" she exclaimed. "Oh no! that's too much! You mustn't!"

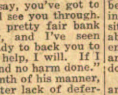
"I'm going to. We can't take any more chances on trains. They may be watching for you, and if we're going to do this thing at all, we've got to do it right. They won't be looking for a widow in a car, with a smart chauffeur." He giggled boyishly. "I've got a fairly decent livery in my bag. I'll stop somewhere along the road and put it on."

(To be continued.)

Children's Colds

Are best treated externally. Check them overnight without "dosing" by rubbing Vicks over throat and chest at bedtime.

VICKS VAPORUB



Get Settled

You surely don't intend to stay on your present job all your life. Become a barber the Moler way—from our school to independence in a shop of your own is a short and easy step. Change for better now. Write for free booklet today!

Moler Barber Colleges

33 Years Established 32 Branches
559 Michigan Ave., Detroit.

ENORMOUS PROFITS

Made by Investors

"No investment on earth is so safe, so sure, so certain to enrich its owner as undeveloped realty. I always advise my friends to place their savings in realty near some growing city. There is no such savings bank anywhere."
—Grover Cleveland.

The AVRAEGE annual rate of increase in value of Wayne County real estate outside the city limts—60% per year—AND CUT THAT INTO ONE-THIRD.

Let us say that instead of increasing 60% in value in ONE year, it takes THREE years for a piece of well located subdivision property to increase 60% in value.

On this assumption, a well located $1,000 lot bought today, would be worth $1,600 three years from now.

Our properties are strategically located, being surrounded by the greatest industrial activity the world has ever known.

For further information write

L. W. MARTIN
Second Floor American State Bank Bldg.,
DETROIT, MICH.
Banking reference.

MARKS
FURNITURE HOUSE
"Used But Not Abused Furniture"
125 SOUTH DIVISION
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
Some Antiques

When Moving to Grand Rapids Call on Us for Your Furniture.

IT'S A FACT

that notwithstanding the Superior quality of

RED ARROW

bread flour, its price is almost the same as ordinary flour. And it makes wonderful bread

WATSON-HIGGINS MILLING CO.
Grand Rapids, Michigan

Object Lesson in Oil

Probably no industry has ever had to meet a greater consumption demand under as rapidly changing conditions as has oil. That it has done this in an orderly fashion, and has been able to hold down prices of petroleum products, even to new low levels in many instances, on top of paying taxes of "57 varieties," speaks volumes for the management of this industry.

If our oil production had been under the thumb of government domination as in most foreign countries, it is probable that we would not have had the automotive development which we have enjoyed. The deadly parallel on which to base this opinion is found in the lack of electric power and telephone service in most European countries, and the few automobiles used in these countries by the people, where government ownership and development of basic industries and natural resources prevail.

ADVANTAGE IN BEING DEAF

A surgical operation made Jerry Keever temporarily deaf. To a friend who commiserated him on his bad luck, Jerry enumerated the advantages of deafness. "Telephone bells no longer irritate me;" said he. "I go out in my car and every squeak and rattle is gone; in a strange city hotel I sleep like a top because I cannot hear the clang of street car and auto horns." "I'm glad you are so cheerful about it," commented the friend, "also I have come to ask you if you can lend me a ten until Saturday." "That's another advantage," said Jerry, "I can't hear a word you say."

CHINA LIKES OUR VEGETABLES

Birds' nests and noodles are rapidly being superseded in China by a better diet. The President Jefferson sailing a recent week from Tacoma for the Orient, carried in her hold 2,000 cubic feet of assorted vegetables, 5,000 of cabbage, 8,000 of apples and 700 frozen carcasses of beef, which ought to bring in some cash for coast farmers and more business of the same kind is coming from both China and Japan in an increased demand for fresh vegetables on the Pacific Coast as well as fruit from many states. When the Japs begin to live on real food they will cease to be little people.

SPAIN SHIPS CHEAP PISTOLS

Every member of the police force at Berkeley, Calif., is a college graduate and politices is completely weeded out. The chief of this unique police force, Vollmer, is chairman of the special joint committee of the National Crime commission and the Association of Attorneys General. Chief Vollmer believes the revolver is largely accountable for crimes of violence in cities and recently called a meeting to consider the regulation of the sale and possession of revolvers. Senator Capper has a bill for federal control of the manufacture and sale of such weapons, which some day may become a law. Meanwhile it is known that half a million cheap foreign pistols, mostly of Spanish make, were imported into the United States last year, more than enough to supply every criminal in the land with a weapon. Bootlegging of firearms wouldn't last long under a gun-toting law.

SHE WAS HIS LITTLE GIRL

Martin J. Casey was a rewrite man on the New York Evening Journal several years ago. He rewrote and bettered the news stories the reporters turned in. One day a reporter telephoned to Casey the story of a little girl that had been killed by a heavy motor truck in front of her home. Silently as he listened Casey jotted down the facts. As silently he wrote out the account. Then he took it to the city editor's desk, laid it down without a word and collapsed. The little girl was his own, Virginia, aged 5. Casey never fully recovered from the shock. He died the other day in a Brooklyn hospital. * * * If you have a grief it is better to give away to it for a time, if you can, than to bottle it all up inside. It is sometimes too heart-breaking to force yourself to be a spartan.

THOUGHT MAGELLAN A GOD

In 1519 Magellan, Spanish mariner discovered the Philippine Islands, Paul Harrison, now visiting the islands and writing of their history tells us. Two thousand native warriors met the Spaniards and refused to let them land until the rite of the "blood compact" was observed. Piercing Magellan's breast the native chief sucked and drank of his blood. Then Magellan did the same to the chief. This made them "blood relations." The Spaniards landed, celebrated mass and baptized the natives and that is how Christianity was first established in the Philippines. But not long after this a native wounded Magellan with his spear to see if he really were human or a god. Magellan died and this human frailty disillusioned the natives. They killed 35 of the Spaniards and chased the rest to their ships.

At Least That Often

Stern Employer—Why do you want a day off tomorrow?

Applicant—I'm celebrating my silver wedding.

Stern Employer—Oh, and I suppose you'll be expecting a holiday every twenty-five years for these celebrations?—Boston Beanpot.

PRITCHARD'S
WEATHER
FORECAST.

Week of November 28

Temperatures extremely high for the season are to be expected on the opening days of this week in Michigan due to an area of warm air coming from the west. This warm weather will not necessarily be a record breaker although such a thing is possible.

Should the temperature at this time mark a new high for November it will have to surpass the 80 degree mark established on three different dates in 1924. The fact that this warm wave does not come until the end of the month, however, when temperatures are normally 10 degrees lower than at first of month in Michigan almost denies any possible chance of a new high record being made. In the early part of 1895, 1901, 1903, 1909, 1911 and 1915 the temperature stood at 78 degrees in Michigan, marking at that time the highest November temperatures since 1887.

We look for only light precipitation during the passage of this storm area resulting from the warm weather. By the end of the month the sky will clear off and temperatures will take a remarkable drop to quite unseasonable readings. It is not likely readings will drop 90 degrees in five days as in 1911 but quite probable that temperatures will fall to close to 20 to 25 degrees above zero, at least.

Indian Summer Coming?

The weather for the balance of the week in most parts of Michigan will be generally fair and dry. In fact, we are inclined to believe that conditions at this time might suggest a belated Indian summer.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

August was a record month for coal exports from this country, shipments being valued at $21,000,000.

Travel in day coaches declined 22 per cent between 121-25, while travel in parlor cars increased 22 per cent in spite of the surcharge.

There are some 24,000,000 automobiles registered throughout the world and over 20,000,000 of them are in the United States.

United States railroads are now bearing a daily load 30 per cent greater than they did in 1921, according to the American Railway Association.

United States revenue receipts in the last two quarters were $251,859,623 above the same period last year with total collections amounting to $1,130,000,000.

Dividend and interest payments in October will reach a new high mark, totaling $447,500,000, according to conservative estimate. This is an increase of $16,450,000 over last October.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has changed its method of calculating pensions. The new system will increase payments to retired employes by 50 per cent.

Classified Advertisements
MISCELLANEOUS

SIX PAIRS—$2.50 MEN'S SILK SOX; FOUR pair—$4.00 ladies' all silk. Any popular shade. Money back guarantee. Postpaid, cash with order. Lawtex, 1205 Broadway, Toledo, Ohio.

PHOTOGRAPH NOVELTIES, RARE, EXotic Spanish girls. Splendid sample 50c. Cuban Service, San Jose 105, Havana, Cuba.

MAKE MONEY SELLING CIRCULAR mailing instructions by mail. Good profits. Either sex. Plan 25c. Geo. C. Dayton, Box 1007, Buffalo, New York.

$50 REWARD

$50 will be paid if R. V. Turner's Quick Relief Salve fails to relieve croups, head colds, catarrh, sore throat, headache, earache, eczema, itch, burns, risings, bruises, cuts, sores, rheumatic pains or piles. It is one of the most powerful, penetrating, germ-killing, pain-relieving and healing salves known to science. Removes corns in a few hours without pain; also seed warts. Large box by mail 60c. Agents wanted. Write for special terms. R. V. Turner, Box 1122, Montgomery, Ala.

Would Save Drivers From Tangles of Old Traffic Rules

Safety leaders from the cities, towns, villages and counties of the state of Michigan have been collecting data in Detroit, where they were delegates to the Michigan conference on street and highway safety.

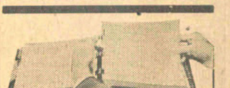
As a result of this safety meeting it appears safe to predict that the car owners of Michigan at last are to be rescued from the tangle of useless traffic rules, obsolete laws and local restrictions. The promise is that a real start will be made in the effort to realize the dreams and ideals of zealous officials and earnest community leaders who have been struggling almost hopelessly for years to improve conditions.

STATE PARK BETWEEN TWO LAKES IS MAGNET

The William Mitchell state park, between Lake Cadillac and Lake Mitchell was the host to many tourist parties this summer, although the number was slightly lower than for 1925, because of the late spring.

There were 16,496 tourists registered in the record kept by Samuel Goffar, caretaker. The number reached 17,339 in 1925.

Land Contracts
Yield 12% to 15%
FIRST MORTAGE BONDS
Secured by Improved
DETROIT REAL ESTATE
H. A. BENJAMIN & COMPANY
Investment Bankers
MEMBERS
Detroit Stock Exchange
905 Dime Bank Bldg.
Phones, Cadillac 1460-2892
DETROIT, MICH.
FURTHER INFORMATION SENT ON REQUEST



With the Proudfit Binder any leaf of a ledger can be removed or inserted in 30 seconds. The flexible arching steel bands show why. They give full access to the body of the book at any point. Loosen the bands, and lift out the sheet you need. That is all.

Proudfit Loose Leaf Co.
12 Logan Street
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

In Detroit
It is the Tuller
For Value
Facing Grand Circus Park, the heart of Detroit. 800 pleasant rooms, $2.50 and up. Ward B. James, Manager.
DETROIT, MICH.
HOTEL TULLER

U. W. No. 761—11-22—1926.

No one was ever thrown out of a bank for carrying too much insurance.

A Legal Reserve Automobile Insurance Policy at Lower Rates—No Assessments

REPUBLIC
Automobile Insurance Underwriters
WE WANT AN AGENT IN YOUR VICINITY
2163 Jefferson Ave., East, at Dubois
Detroit, Michigan

REMOVE CORNS and CALLUSES!

The RED FOOT WAY the NEW WAY

Stinging pain of hard or soft corns or calluses leaves when you apply RED FOOT CORN AND CALLUS REMOVER. After 4 to 10 days you lift the corn or callus right off, no matter how long standing or how many failures. Originated by famous French chemists. Thousands of grateful users all over the world. No pads, liquids or collodion. By mail only, large 1 oz. jar $1.00, prepaid.

RED FOOT PRODUCTS CO., Inc.
(Dept. B) 227 Woodward Avenue, DETROIT, MICH.

Every family needs a car

Within the General Motors line there is "a car for every purse and purpose."

And those who wish to buy General Motors cars out of income are offered a sound credit service at low cost. This is known as the GMAC Plan, operated by a member of the General Motors family and available through General Motors dealers only.

The GMAC Plan can be comfortably fitted to the individual circumstances of those with assured income; and the standard price of a General Motors car bought on the GMAC Plan is the cash delivered price, plus only the low GMAC financing charge.

Any General Motors dealer will gladly explain the GMAC Plan.

GENERAL MOTORS ACCEPTANCE CORPORATION

operating the GMAC Plan for the purchase of

CHEVROLET · PONTIAC · OLDSMOBILE
OAKLAND · BUICK · CADILLAC
FRIGIDAIRE — The electric refrigerator
DELCO-LIGHT — Electric light and power plants

Varieties of Jinxes

The natives of Galway consider the fox unlucky. If they meet a fox on their way to fish, they turn back for that day. If Irishmen or Italians pronounce the names of certain animals while they are fishing they are certain to have ill luck. In some sections of Scotland there are old women whose names are unlucky and such persons must be spoken of in an indirect way.

Better wear out than rust out.

There Are Others

A high school boy drives to school every morning in a much dilapidated machine.

"What kind of a car you got there, boy?"

"R. F. D.," was the answer.

"R. F. D.—what the heck?"

"Yep. Rescued from the dump."—Portland Express.

Sometimes even a fool makes a better friend than the man who knows too much.

The "U.S." Blue Ribbon Walrus

slips right over your shoes. Its smooth rubber surface washes clean like a boot. Either red or black—4 or 5 buckles.

Rubber like this means extra wear

IT'S a real test! You can stretch a strip cut from the upper of any "U.S." Blue Ribbon overshoe more than 5 times its own length! That means longer life.

The gray sole is oversize, tough as a tire for wear. And at every vital point in the "U.S." Walrus are from 4 to 11 separate layers of the toughest reinforcements.

Seventy-five years of experience in making waterproof footwear is back of "U.S." Blue Ribbon boots and overshoes. They fit right, they look right, they wear right. Get a pair and notice the difference.

United States Rubber Company

Trade Mark

"U.S." BLUE RIBBON
Boots Walrus
Arctics Rubbers

The Girl in the Mirror

By
Elizabeth Jordan

(© by The Century Company.)
WNU Service

This latest Elizabeth Jordan story is one of the most fascinating mystery novels of the last fifteen years, and that is saying a great deal when you realize that within this period such tremendous successes as "The Bat," "The Thirteenth Chair" and 'Seven Keys to Baldpate" were made known. "The Girl in the Mirror" is not only an interest-compelling story, but also possesses that quality of romance and adventure which sweeps the reader onward with increasing speed and delight to the astounding climax. Elizabeth Jordan has written many a good story, and in producing this she only adds another chapter in her own success story. And to say any more about a mystery story would be unfair. Elizabeth Jordan began her writing career with the New York World. After thirteen years of this kind of schooling she resigned to take the editorship of Harper's Bazar, which she held for another period of thirteen years. Later she became a literary adviser to this publication. Among her successes are "Wings of Youth," "The Lady of the Pentlands" and "The Blue Circle."

CHAPTER I

—1—

Barbara's Wedding

The little city of Devondale, Ohio, had shaken off for one night at least the air of aristocratic calm that normally distinguished it from the busy mill towns on its right and left. Elm avenue, its leading residence street, usually presented at this hour only an effect of watchful trees, dark shrubbery, shaded lamps, and remote domestic peace. Now, however, it had blossomed into a brilliant thoroughfare, full of light, color and movement, on all of which the December stars winked down as if in intimate understanding.

Automobiles poured through the wide gates of its various homes and joined a ceaseless procession of vehicles. Pedestrians, representing every class of the city's social life, jostled one another on the sidewalks as they hurried onward, following this vanguard. For the time, indeed, there seemed to be but one destination which a self-respecting citizen of Devondale might properly have in mind; and already many of the elect had reached this objective and had comfortably passed through its wide doors, down its aisles, and into its cushioned pews.

It was an interested, good-humored and highly observant crowd, pressing forward as each automobile approached, to watch with unashamed curiosity the guests who alighted and made their way along the strip of carpet stretching from curbstone to church. Devondale's leading citizens were here, and the spectators knew them all, from those high personages who were presidents of local banks down to little Jimmy Harrigan, who was Barbara Devon's favorite caddie at the Country club.

Unlike most of his fellow guests, Jimmy arrived on foot; but the crowd saw his unostentatious advent and greeted him with envious badinage.

"Hi, dere, Chimmie, where's yer evenin' soot?" one acquaintance desired to know. And a second remarked solicitously, "De c'rect ting, Chimmie, is t' hold yer hat to yer heart as y' goes in!"

Jimmy made no reply to these pleasantries. The occasion was too big and too novel for that. He merely grinned, presented his card of admission in a paw washed clean only in spots, and accepted with equal equanimity the piercing gaze of the usher and the rear seat to which that outraged youth austerely conducted him.

"There, round-eyed Jimmy stared about him. He had never been inside of St. Giles' before. It was quite possible that he would never find himself inside of it again. He took in the beauty of the great church; its blaze of lights; its masses of flowers; its whispering, waiting throng; the broad white ribbon that set apart certain front pews for the bride's special friends, including a party from New York. Jimmy knew all about those friends and all about this wedding. His grimy little ears were ceaselessly open to the talk of the town, and for weeks past the town had talked of nothing but the Devons and Barbara Devon's approaching wedding.

In the pew just in front of Jimmy, Mrs. Arthur Lytton, a lady he recognized as a ubiquitous member of the Country club, was giving a few intimate details of Miss Devon's life to her companion, who evidently was a newcomer to the city.

"You see," Mrs. Lytton was murmuring, "this is really the most important wedding we've ever had here. Barbara Devon owns most of Devondale, and her home, Devon house, is one of the show places of the state. She hasn't a living relative except her brother, Laurie, and I fancy she has been lonely, notwithstanding her hosts of friends. We all love her, so we're glad to know she has found the right man to marry, especially as we are not to lose her ourselves. She intends to live in Devon house every summer."

The newcomer—a Mrs. Renway who had social aspirations—was politely attentive.

"I met Laurence Devon at the Country club yesterday," she said. "He's the handsomest creature I've seen, I think. He's really too good-looking; and they say there's some romantic story about him. Do you know what it is?"

Her friend nodded.

"Mercy, yes! Every one does."

Observing the other's growing attention, she went on expansively:

"You see, Laurie was the black sheep of the family; so the Devons left all their great fortune to Barbara and put Laurie in her care. That infuriated him, of course, for he is a high-spirited youngster. He promptly took on an extra shade of blackness. He was expelled from college, and sowed whole crops of wild oats. He gambled, was always in debt, and Barbara had to pay. For a long time she wasn't able to handle the situation. They're both young, you know. She's about twenty-four, and Laurie is a year younger. But last year she suddenly put her mind on it and pulled him up in a rather spectacular way."

Mrs. Renway's eyes glistened with interest.

"Tell me how!" she begged.

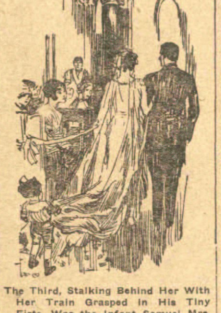
The raconteur settled back into her pew, with the complacent expression of one who is sure of her hearer's complete absorption in her words.

"Why," she said, "she made Laurie a sporting proposition, and he accepted it. He and she were to go to New York and earn their living for one year, under assumed names and without revealing their identity to anybody. They were to start with fifty dollars each, and to be wholly dependent upon themselves after that was gone. Laurie was to give up all his bad habits and buckle down to the job of self-support. For every dollar he earned more than Barbara earned, she promised him five dollars at the end of the year. And if he kept his pledges he was to have ten thousand dollars when the experiment was over, whether he succeeded or failed. He and Barbara were to live in different parts of the city, to be ignorant of each other's addresses, and to see each other only twice."

She stopped for breath. Her friend drove an urgent elbow into her side.

"Go on!" she pleaded. "What happened?"

"Something very unexpected," chuckled Mrs. Lytton. (For some reason, Barbara's friends always chuckled at this point in the story.) "Barbara, who is so clever," she went on, "almost starved to death. And Laurie, the black sheep, after various struggles and failures fell in with some theatrical people and finally collaborated with a successful playwright in writing a play. Perhaps it was partly luck. But the play made a tremendous hit, Laurie kept his pledges, and Barbara has had to pay him a small fortune to meet her bargain."



The Third, Stalking Behind Her With Her Train Grasped in His Tiny Fists, Was the Infant Samuel Mrs. Lytton Had Mentioned.

The hearer smiled sympathetically.

"That's splendid," she said, "for Laurie! But is the cure permanent, do you think? The boy's so young, and so awfully good-looking—"

"I know," Mrs. Lytton looked ominous. "He is straight as a string so far, and absorbed in his new work. But of course his future is on the knees of the gods, for Barbara is going to Japan on her honeymoon, and Laurie will be alone in New York the rest of the winter. Barbara found her husband in New York," she added. "He's a broker there, Robert Warren. That's what she got out of the experiment! She met him while she was working in the mailing department of some business house, for seven dollars a week—" Mrs. Lytton stopped speaking and craned her head backward. "They're coming!" she whispered excitedly. "Oh, dear, I hope I sha'n't cry! I always do cry at weddings, and I never know why."

From the crowd outside there rose a cheer, evidently at the bride's appearance.

"The mill people adore Barbara," whispered Mrs. Lytton. "She built a big clubhouse for them two years ago, and she's the president of most of their clubs."

In his seat behind her, Jimmy Harrigan, who had given his attention to the conversation, sniffed contemptuously. If the dame in front was goin' to talk about Miss Devon, why didn't she tell somethin' worth while? Why didn't she tell, fer ins'ance, that Miss Devon played the best golf of any woman in the club, and had beaten Mrs. Lytton to a frazzle in a match last month? An' why didn't she say somethin' about how generous Miss Devon was to caddies in the matter of skates and boxing gloves and clothes? And why didn't she say what a prince Laurie Devon was, instead of all dat stale stuff what everybody knew?

The excitement in the street had communicated itself to the dignified assemblage in the church. The occupants of the pews were turning in their seats. The first notes of the great pipe-organ rolled forth. Friends who had known and loved Barbara Devon since she was a little girl, and many who had known her father and mother before her, looked now at the radiant figure she presented as she walked slowly up the aisle on her brother's arm, and saw that figure through an unexpected mist.

"What a pair!" whispered Mrs. Renway, who had a pagan love of beauty. "They ought to be put in one of their own parks and kept there as a permanent exhibit for the delight of the public. It's almost criminal negligence to leave that young man at large," she darkly predicted. "Something will happen if they do!"

Mrs. Lytton absently agreed.

"The bridegroom is very handsome, too," she murmured. "That stunning, insolent creature who is acting as matron of honor, and looking bored to death by it, is his sister, Mrs. Ordway of New York. The first bridesmaid is another New York friend, a Russian girl named Sonya Orleneff, that Barbara met in some lodging house. And will you look at the Infant Samuel!"

An expression of acute strain settled over the features of Mrs. Renway. She hurriedly adjusted her eyeglasses.

"The what?" she whispered, excitedly. "Where? I don't see any infant!" Mrs. Lytton laughed.

"Of course you don't! It's too small and too near the floor. It's a thirty-months-old youngster Barbara picked up in a New York tenement. She calls him the Infant Samuel, and she has brought him here with his mother, to live on her estate. They say she intends to educate him. He's carrying her train and he's dressed as a page, in tiny white satin breeches and lace ruffles. Oh, don't miss him!"

A little ripple stirred the assemblage. Three figures in the long advancing line of the bridal party held the attention of observers. Two were the bride and her brother. The third, stalking behind her, with her train grasped in his tiny fists, his round brown eyes staring straight ahead, and his fluffy brown hair flying out as if swept backward by an eternal breeze, was obviously the Infant Samuel Mrs. Lytton had mentioned.

From a rear pew the Infant's mother watched her offspring with pride and shuddering apprehension. It was quite on the cards that he might suddenly decide to leave the procession and undertake a brief side excursion into the pews. But Samuel had been assured that he was "taking a walk," and as taking a walk happened to be his favorite pastime he kept manfully to his new form of diversion, even though it had features that did not strongly appeal to him. His short legs wabbled, and his tiny arms ached under the light weight of the bridal train, but Something would happen if he let that train drop. He did not know quite what this Something would be, but he abysmally inferred that it would be extremely unpleasant. He held grimly to his burden.

Suddenly he forgot it. The air was full of wonderful sounds such as he had never heard before. His eyes grew larger. His mouth formed the "O" that expressed his deepest wonder. He longed to stop and find out where the sounds came from, but the train drew him on and on. With an unconscious sigh he accompanied the train; bad as things were, they might have been worse, for he knew that somewhere in advance of him, lost in a mass of white stuff, was the "Babs" he adored

When the train stopped, he stopped. In response to an urgent suggestion from some one behind him, he dropped it. In obedience to an equally urgent inner prompting, he sat down on it and gazed around. The walk had been rather a long one. Now the big house he was in was very still, save for one voice, saying something to Babs. It was all strange and unfamiliar, and Babs seemed far away. Nothing and nobody looked natural. Samuel became increasingly doubtful about the pleasure of this walk.

A flower fell into his lap, and looking up he saw Sonya Orleneff smiling at him. Even Sonya was a new Sonya, emerging from what Samuel dimly felt to be pink clouds. But the eyes were hers, and the smile was hers, and it was plain that she expected him to play with the pink flower. He pulled it to pieces, slowly and absorbedly. The task took some time. From it he passed to a close contemplation of a pink-slippered foot which also proved to be Sonya's, and then to a careful study of a black pump and black silk sock that proved to be Lawwie's. Lawwie was smiling down at Samuel, too, and Wobert was standing beside Babs, saying something in a voice that wobbled.

Samuel sighed again. Perhaps by and by Lawwie would take him out for a real walk in the snow. All this pink-and-white display around him might be pretty, but there was nothing in it for a small boy. He gazed appealingly at Sonya, who promptly hoisted him to his fat legs. The man at the railing had stopped talking to Babs and the walk was resumed, this time toward the door. Again that especially precious part of the white stuff was in Samuel's keeping.

The sounds that now filled the air were more wonderful than ever. They excited Samuel. His fat arms waved, and the light train waved with them. A compelling hand, Sonya's, quieted them and it. There was absolutely nothing a little boy could do in this queer walk. Gloomily but sedately the Infant Samuel continued his promenade.

"Here he is," murmured Mrs. Lytton to her friend. "You can see him now, can't you?"

"Rodney Bangs, the playwright who collaborated with Laurie, is sitting in the front pew," continued her informant, "and the fat little bald man next to him is Jacob Epstein, the New York manager who put on their play."

At the same moment Epstein was whispering to his companion, as the two watched Barbara and her husband start down the aisle in the first little journey of their married life.

"Say, Bangs, if ve could put this vedding into a play, just like they done it here, ve could vake up Broadvay a little—ain't it?"

You'll learn more about Laurie in the next installment

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving dinner three times a day for those who have discovered Monarch Cocoa. Rich and delicious—invigorating and satisfying. A single trial reveals its matchless quality. Its low price makes it doubly attractive.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years
Never Sold Through Chain Stores
REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Chicago · Boston · Pittsburgh · New York

More than 200 Quality Food Products including
COFFEE and COCOA

The pleasure a woman gets out of a good cry has nothing in common with her sense of humor.

Every duty which we omit obscures some truth which we should have known.—Ruskin.

Yeast Foam Home bread-makers everywhere prefer it

The best way to learn to cook—begin making bread.

Send for free booklet "The Art of Baking Bread"

Northwestern Yeast Co.
1730 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago

Experience may be a great teacher, but a man's experience with a woman doesn't teach him sense.

A two weeks' vacation goes about as quickly as the day to pay the monthly rent comes around.

CHILDREN CRY FOR

Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is especially prepared to relieve Infants in arms and Children all ages of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and, by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas H Fletcher
Absolutely Harmless - No Opiates. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

The more a woman knows about the affairs of her husband, the less she has to say about them.

If there is any person whom you dislike, that is the one of whom you should never speak.—Cecil.

Demand BAYER ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN"— Genuine

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin prescribed by physicians and proved safe by millions over 25 years for

Colds Headache Neuritis Lumbago
Pain Neuralgia Toothache Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe → Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets. Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

THE BEST RECOMMENDATION
— FOR —
Bare-to-Hair

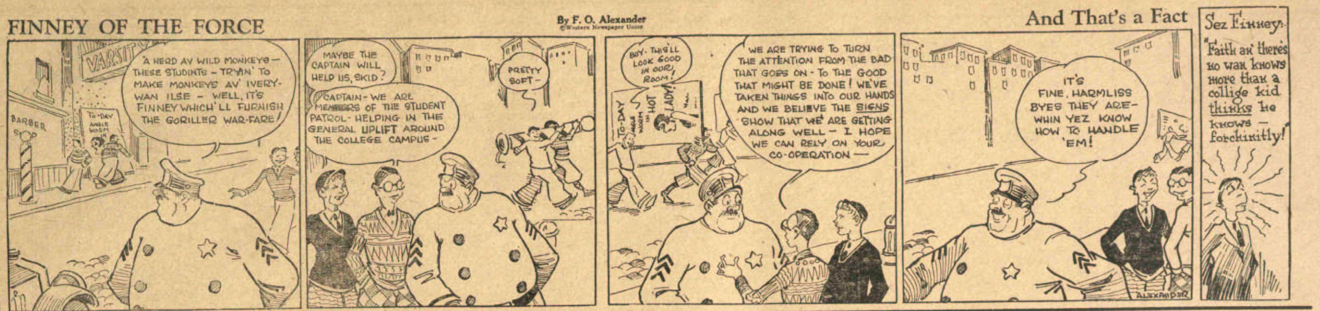
is the number who are trying to imitate it. If Bare-to-Hair was not growing hair on bald heads there would be no imitators. If there is baldness or signs of it you can't afford to neglect to use "Forst's Original Bare-to-Hair."

Correspondence Given Personal Attention
E. J. JAHN CO., Distributor
DETROIT - - MICHIGAN

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

By F. O. Alexander
©Western Newspaper Union

And That's a Fact



VARSITY
BARBER SHOP
TO-DAY ANGLE WORM
'A HERD AV WILD MONKEYS — THESE STUDINTS — TRYIN' TO MAKE MONKEYS AV' IVERY-WAN ILSE — WELL, IT'S FINNEY WHICH'LL FURNISH THE GORILLER WAR-FARE!
MAYBE THE CAPTAIN WILL HELP US, SKID?
PRETTY SOFT —
CAPTAIN — WE ARE MEMBERS OF THE STUDENT PATROL — HELPING IN THE GENERAL UPLIFT AROUND THE COLLEGE CAMPUS — BOY — THIS'LL LOOK GOOD IN OUR ROOM!
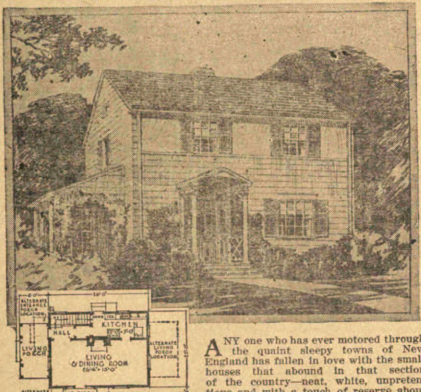
TO-DAY ANGLE WORM
HOT
LADY!
WE ARE TRYING TO TURN THE ATTENTION FROM THE BAD THAT GOES ON — TO THE GOOD THAT MIGHT BE DONE! WE'VE TAKEN THINGS INTO OUR HANDS AND WE BELIEVE THE SIGNS SHOW THAT WE ARE GETTING ALONG WELL — I HOPE WE CAN RELY ON YOUR CO-OPERATION —
IT'S FINE, HARMLISS BYES THEY ARE — WHIN YEZ KNOW HOW TO HANDLE 'EM!
ALEXANDER
Sez Finney:
"Faith an' there's no wan knows more than a collige kid thinks he knows — forchinitly!"

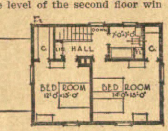
New England Atmosphere With 1926 Improvements



ALTERNATE ENTRANCE PORCH LOCATION
KITCHEN
HALL
LIVING PORCH
LIVING & DINING ROOM 26'-6" × 15'-0"
ALTERNATE LIVING PORCH LOCATION
ALTERNATE LIVING PORCH LOCATION
ENT. PORCH
FIRST FLOOR PLAN
CEILING HEIGHT 8'-6"

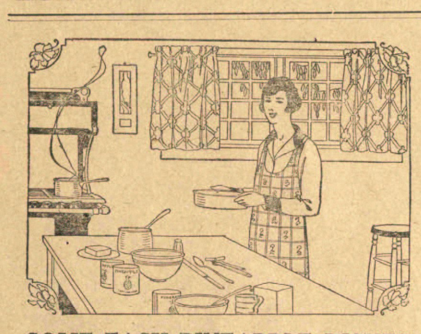
ANY one who has ever motored through the quaint sleepy towns of New England has fallen in love with the small houses that abound in that section of the country—neat, white, unpretentious and with a touch of reserve about them. Just such a house is the one pictured here. It is equally adaptable for town or country, and by merely shifting the living and entrance porches around can be built on a wide or narrow lot without spoiling it architecturally.

The house is sturdily built and has an exterior of wood siding except for the unusual stucco panels that start at the level of the second floor windows. The roof is of stained shingles, preferably moss green, in keeping with the window shutters. A house of this compact style is very easy to heat, especially when the specifications call for insulation throughout with celotex, which prevents heat leakage, and keeps the house cool in the summer.



The living and dining rooms are here combined into one large room flooded with light by windows on three sides. The two bedrooms on the second floor each have double exposure and an extra large closet in which a window may be placed.

©, Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926



SOME EASY PINEAPPLE DISHES

THERE are so many appetizing and attractive ways of serving pineapple that the wise housewife will keep a few cans of this delicious fruit on her supply shelf and will add new recipes to her collection. In purchasing pineapple it is well to get both the sliced and the crushed, as there are many recipes in which the one or the other is specifically desired.

Pineapple dishes, are, as a rule, very easy to prepare, if the canned pineapple is used. For the turning of a can opener brings to sight the golden colored fruit, already shelled, cored, and sliced, or crushed. It takes only a few minutes to combine it with other ingredients and the proper seasoning and it is ready to bake or saute according to the recipe.

The following recipes have been worked out with care and should be a welcome addition to the cook book of any woman, and particularly of one who entertains often:

Pineapple Isles

Place 6 slices of Hawaiian pineapple on a buttered tin, and sprinkle each with 1 teaspoon chopped nuts mixed with a few grains salt. Add 1 tablespoon water to whites of two eggs, whip very stiff, then beat in 4 tablespoons sugar. Heap in center of pineapple. Bake in slow oven for twenty minutes or until delicately brown. Nuts may be omitted.

Baked Apples and Pineapple

Pare and core six large apples. Mix one cup of crushed Hawaiian pineapple with one-third cup sugar, 1 tablespoon melted butter and one-fourth cup chopped raisins. Fill the centers of the apples with this mixture and arrange in a shallow baking dish. To the remainder of the mixture add 1 tablespoon lemon juice and one-half cup water and pour around the apples. Bake until tender, basting frequently with the liquid in the pan.

Criss Cross Pineapple Pie

Heat 2 cups crushed Hawaiian pineapple. Mix three-fourths cup sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, and 2 tablespoons flour. Add to the hot pineapple and bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly, and add 1 teaspoon butter. Cool slightly, add 1 beaten egg and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Pour into pastry lined pie pan and arrange strips of pastry across the top. Put into a hot oven. After 10 minutes reduce heat and bake 30 minutes longer.

Any one of these three recipes will serve six persons. The first two recipes may be served with the main part of the meal, while the Criss Cross Pie makes an excellent dessert. All are likely to prove popular with the average person whose palate seeks the tang and exotic flavor of tropical fruits.

Advocate and MICHIGAN FARMER, both one year $2.15

W. C. T. U. Column

LAURA WALWORTH, EDITOR

Enforce The Law

REMARKS BY THE HONORABLE JOHN G. SARGENT ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE U. S.

To me, the matter of having the law observed, in a county under a government like ours, seems a very simple thing. All that is necessary is that each member of each family in each community in each State shall go about his or her business each day with the purpose in mind to obey the rules made by society for its own guidance. But it happens that there are here and there among us persons who do not have such purpose; persons who, instead of trying to earn an honest living. by honest toil, undertake to get the means of living in what they think and hope will be an easier way.

We must remember that a living for all must be earned by all, and each member of society who does not by some useful action earn his keep, increases the burden of the rest who have to earn it for them.

With those who are a burden from being mere drones, shirks, we need not further concern ourselves here; with those who by active preying on their fellow members of the social body undertake to get a living, or more than a living—the means of luxury,—we are here very much concerned.

With those who undertake to set aside the rules of life which we ourselves have made. and satisfy their cravings of lust, of appetite, of revenge, of malice by reprisals on individuals, on the community, we are very much concerned.

We make law governing the relations individuals to each other and their property, and we provide courts in which individuals may seek redress for violatioss of their legal rights by other individuals.

We make laws governing the relations of individuals to the community, and provide by law penalties for infraction of such law. The community as a body cannot well impose such penalties, and so we provide courts to pass on the question of whether there has been an infraction of the law, and provide representatives of the community to present in such courts charges against persons accused of infractions of the law—prosecuting officers.

What is the duty of such a representative of the community toward its laws?

It seems to me that a prosecuting officer while and so long as he holds his place as the representative of the law, ought not to take the position that the law as it is ought not to be the law.

The law is the will of the body politic, and we are in our places by the will of the body politic, put there to execute that will:and if we go about declaring in speech and in print that the law ought to be changed, so that acts which are offenses against the law will not be offenses, we thereby weaken our causes in the minds of the tribunals before whom we must try them.

I notice on the letterheads of this Committee that the purpose of the organizations it represents is to encourage the enforcement of all the law, with especial emphasis on the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, and I have been informed by some of your officers that you are particularly anxious for an expression of my views on that subject.

Let me say that what my views are is not, as I see it, of much greater importance than what your views are. I can keep the machinery of prosecution of violators of the law in motion, but you can make the results of such work effective, or to a considerable extent impair its effectiveness.

In this country, under our system of Government, the will of the people expressed by their vote becomes and is the rule of conduct which all citizens are bound to observe, and which all citizens or aliens must be compelled to observe. That rule of conduct creates the duty of every inhabitant of the jurisdiction doing the voting.

The Eighteenth Amendment is the law of the land.

The Volstead Act is the law of the land. Both by constitutional command of the whole people and by legislative enactment of their representatives in Congress, it has been decreed that traffic in intoxicating liquor shall cease.

There is no room for discussion as to what the voters of the country have said. There is no half way place in the command they have laid upon their servants chosen and appointed to administer the law.

But, notwithstanding that the law is as it is, notwithstanding the the will of the people is that this traffic—and, of course, the drinking of alcohol,—shall cease, a considerable number of persons insist they will not obey the law, and persist in the traffic to supply drink for themselvas and others who are willing to reward them for the chances they take.

Those who engage in the business, those who furnish the business by buying its wares, and some who do not wish to sell or buy liquor, undertake te excuse the violators by saying over and over that this law is an infringement of personal liberty.

They declare that since the prohibition law went into effect it has never been practically in effect;

That it has been a disastrous, tragic failure.

(Continued next week)

Those who had the pleasure of listening to Wilbur Glenn Voliva over the radio recently, will agree that he is certainly a forceful talker and he gets right down to brass tacks when it comes to telling his followers where they stand. He promises to do great things for Zion City as he has already done, and he wants all his followers to enjoy the advantages of the beautiful community near Chicago that was first conceived in the brain of that brilliant but erratic fanatic, John Alexander Dowie. Voliva overthrew Dowie and established himself in true Mussolini style, since which time little has been heard of Zion. In 1901 the foundations of the city were laid and since that growth has been steady and permanent. Judging from Voliva's style of delivery he is about as sensational as the Free Methodists, as he warms up quite perceptibly in his sermons.

Persimmon and dogwood, so necessary for shuttles in the textile industry of the world, are valuable and are becoming increasingly more difficult to obtain, says the United States Department of Agriculture. As yet no satisfactory substitutes for these two woods, either native or foreign have been fouud.

The Medium's Request

"Spirit," murmured the medium, "are you there? If so, rap once. If not, twice."—London Daily Express.

Correct English
MONTHLY MAGAZINE
Authoritive Exponent of English for 24 Years
Edited and founded by
JOSEPHINF TURCK BAKER
Famous World English Authority

Send 10 Cents for Sample Copy
Correct English Publishing Company
Evanston, Illinois
Agents Wanted Everywhere

F. E. Caswell D. V. M.
Veterinarian
Office at Residence, West Main St
Private Phone 45
North Adams, Mich

Dr. L. R. ULRICH
DENTIST
Private Office in Room over Perkins' Restaurant
Thursdays hours 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.
Plate Work a Specialty

O. G. McFarland M. D.
North Adams, Mich.

OFFICE HOURS: 8:00 to 9:00 a. m.
1:00 to 4:00 p. m.
7:00 to 8:00 p. m.

A Deputy To Be Appointed

Colonel Kerr assumes office January first as Sheriff of Hillsdale County and it will be his duty to as sign the deputies to the different townships. Adams being entitled to its representative. Without any desire to mix in this business which belongs to Colonel Kerr and nobody else, we say candidly there are important matters to be considered and at least two reasons why this appointment should be made with great care and consideration.

First and most important is the "wet" trade which has its cloven hoof in North Adams as well as in other villages. When we say "wet" we don't mean the moistare which is imported into the township by unknown parties, but more particularly the rotten poison doped liquor that is a native here, and used perhaps only sparingly. Since it is known that a man simply signs his death warrant by drinking home distilled whiskey for any length of time, that, we should say, ought to be looked after first. We won't put it the way a neighboring editor did when he said:

"By this it is not meant to carry the idea that a 'good deputy' is an officer of the 'smelling' kind, who dodges the really important things and devotes his time and talent to finding out how much 'home brew' is being made, consumed or given away."

We think the above statement is paradoxical and possibly the writer don't realize that two-thirds of the blindness, paralysis, insanity and death from this source can be traced to the consumption of home-made liquors (so called) containing fusel oil, copperas and other dangerous chemicals—the residue of unsanitary utensils and unscientific modes of manufacture, enough of which can be found in a barrel of "home made hooch" to disable an army.

Second consideration for the appointment of a deputy is the jacking up of "speed maniacs" and other professional violaters of traffic laws, little occasions like Hallowe'en and local scrapes where a good upstanding citizen is needed on the job, and sometimes right quick.

We are positive Sheriff-elect Kerr will investigate quite thoroughly before making the appointments.

M. S. C. After Prizes At Big Stock Show

One of the best strings of livestock ever exhibited by the institution will be shown by M. S. C. at the International Livestock Show in Chicago, Nov. 26 to Dec. 4. The College has been a consistent winner at this show in the past and the livestock this year will be watched closely.

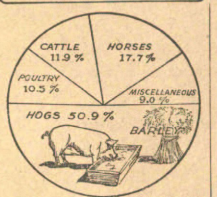
Pervenche, twice winner of grand championships at the International, will be represented in the show this year by two half sisters. These animals have already been rated as first and second in their class at the Ohio and Michigan State Fairs this year. One of them, Monetta De Rubis, was junior and grand champion at both these fairs. Maple Grove Lelia, a seven year old Percheron mare who has already won a grand championship at Chicago, will revisit the scene of her triumph. Two yearling Percheron stallions, Corbisal and Arvisal, are expected to be up at the top in their class.

Eleven head of steers will be shown in the fat steer classes. A feature of the steer show this year is the rearrangement of classes so that the oldest animal in this section will be less than two years old. This is done to stimulate the production of animals to meet the public demand for baby beef.

Forty head of sheep, 12 of which are breeders and the remainder fat wethers, will be a part of the College display. Hogs will be shown in the fat barrow classes only. All the College fat stock in the cattle, sheep, and hog classes will be sold in the auction at the close of the show.

Paint should never be allowed to dry on a brush. While still on a job, keep the brushes in raw linseed oil between intervals of work. Kerosene oil is better for brushes used with flat paint. Hanging brushes in raw linseed oil over long periods of time will keep them in good condition. Or they may be washed in turpentine, kerosene or mineral spirits and then with soap and water, dried thoroughly and covered with wrapping paper.

Hogs Get Barley Diet



(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

Approximately 50,000,000 bushels of barley will be fed to farm animals in the United States this year if the present crop outlook is fulfilled. Of this amount a trifle over one-half, or 50.9%, according to the figures compiled by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, is consumed by hogs. Next to them, horses eat the most barley, or 17.7% of all barley fed to farm animals. Then 11.9% is fed to cattle, mostly to dairy cows in the form of barley chop. Farm poultry flocks get away with another 10.5%, leaving 9% to be fed to sheep and used for miscellaneous feed purposes Barley is the chief competitor of corn as live-stock feed and is especially important in the northern corn belt and Pacific coast states, according to the Foundation's experts.

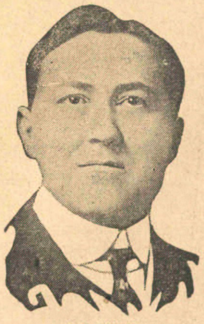
Music has become an indispensable part of college life. It is of inestimable value to the college proper, and of great material and spiritual benefit to the student who takes an active part in it.

This is the composite sentiment of close to 200 presidents of American colleges and universities and heads of music departments in institutions of higher learning who contributed to a survey of college music just completed by the Conn Music Center, Elkhart, Ind. The survey shows that musical training in colleges has doubled in popularity in ten years.

Music not only adds color to college athletic events, supplements and rounds out the varied activities of the campus and assembly hall, but is of distinct advantage to the member of the glee club, the sextette, the college orchestra, band or whatever other organizations may be functioning within the college, in the opinion of these college executives. Music helps preserve a high morale in the institution, it aids in building the character of its young men and women, provides an opportunity for a good number of them to pay their own way through college, and in many instances, prepares them for a life of usefulness along lines they are naturally best fitted for.

Helps Character Building.

Great stress is laid by college heads on the benefits of musical training in character building, the survey revealed. Fully one-fifth of the college executives who contributed the results of their experience to the survey considered this the best argument for music in their college or university. Others mentioned the social and cultural advantages accruing to the music student, the effect of music in refining the student's taste for art, music as an aid toward developing clear thinking, improving the discipline and enhancing the student's power of concentration, as well as making for better team work and co-operation in college matters. Music on the campus as an outlet for surplus energy and as a help in getting many youths through school, was brought in by still others.



J. F. BOYER
Supervisor Conn Music Center.

All but three of the colleges represented in the survey find their musically trained students more efficient in their studies than those not so trained. "They usually make grades above the average," is the experience at Bethel college, in Tennessee, and DePaul university at Chicago finds "musically-trained pupils at the top in their studies." At Wellesley college our best musical students are in-

Patronize Our Advertisers
They are all boosters and deserve your business.

Followed Directions

The young daughter wanted to practice at baking while the mother took a drive. Upon her return the mother found every bowl in the house had been used, and all were standing in a row on the kitchen table, ready for washing. Upon inquiry, the embryo cook explained: "Well, the recipe said to beat eight eggs separately."—Christian Science Monthly.

This coupon and 25c entitle the undersigned to one 35c can of Acme Quality Enamel-Kote, any color, and a special 20c Paint Brush.
Name
Address
To acquaint you with Acme Quality, we are making a special offer for a short time only.
SPECIAL OFFER
55c Value for 25c

Two things to watch when ordering your house paint

Make sure, for one thing, how long it will stay on—for another, how pleasing it will look.

Experience with all makes and qualities of paints qualifies us to be of real assistance. We'll see to it that you get paint that will last. We'll help you in deciding on a pleasing color effect.

And because we want you to be thoroughly satisfied, we will recommend that you make your choice from our complete line of

ACME QUALITY Paint and Varnish

Before you buy any paint, come in and see us. We are here to serve you.

J. M. WILLIAMS. North Adams

ACME QUALITY

Harley Voorhees
FUNERAL DIRECTOR
HANOVER MICHIGAN
Calls attended promptly day an night. Having the best of equipment, I can serve and please you.
Any of our friends who wish our servces, can reach u day or night bycalling Moscow Central.
HARLEY VOORHEES
Hanover, Mich.

Dairy Facts

Green alfalfa has a very pronounced off-flavor in the milk if fed an hour or two before milking, but no effect after five hours.

* * *

There is no long waiting period with the dairy cow—she pays as she goes. The cream and the milk sold are usually paid for each week or each month.

* * *

Milk utensils should never be left in the sun until after they are carefully cleaned and dried. The use of cotton disk strainers will save time and labor and insure cleaner milk.

* * *

During hot weather watch the dairy calves and keep them growing. They are quite susceptible to changes in feed and weather. Better not turn them on pasture under four months of age, and see that they have plenty of good feed, fresh water, and shade.

* * *

There are certain fields on every farm which cannot be cultivated profitably. These lands may be sown in pasture grasses and a profit secured from them through the dairy cow.

Hillsdale-Jackson Bus Line
Four Round Trips each Day
Two Round Trips Sunday
NORTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams......6:45 a. m
" " "......1:15 p. m
SOUTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams......8:15 a. m.
" " "......4:20 p. m.
SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS
Bus north at..........5:15 . m
Bus south (via Jonesville) p11 20

M. S. C. Plans New Inexpensive Silo

Need for a place to store shredded fodder has resulted in the development by the agricultural engineering department at M. S. C. of plans for use in the construction of a low cost silo which will successfully store the material.

This method will meet the needs of farmers in sections infested by corn borer, when the farmers want to husk a part of their corn and provide for the destruction of the borers in the stalks.

The silo is built of sheet iron, attached to an octagonal frame of two by fours which are bolted at the corners. These two by fours form the hoops and are spaced about three feet apart on the silo. The iron is attached to the inside of the hoops. The silo is built on the ground and raised to position by the use of a gin pole and tackle This saves the expense of erecting expensive scaffolds. Materials for a 10 by 30 foot silo will cost approximately one hundred dollars.

The owner of one of these silos will not be compelled to delay husking corn when the fodder is wet, it is said. The corn can be husked at any time, and the silo will take care of the fodder so that it will not spoil. Low cost ot materials and erection are expected to result in a number of the silos being built. The Department of Agricultural Engineering, M. S. C., East Lansing, will be glad to answer any inquiries on construction or materials.

The GIRL in the MIRROR

By Elizabeth Jordan

COPYRIGHT BY THE CENTURY CO.

IN this charming story Elizabeth Jordan indulges the most delightful turn of her genius—framing a mystery romance. Probably it is the best piece of work of the sort she has ever turned out. It is a love story abounding in the thrills of rapidly succeeding adventures. The outcome of the mystery is so totally unexpected that it brings the reader up with a sharp gasp, almost a jolt; but the surprise occasions no disappointment.

You'll Miss a Treat if You Fail to Read This New Serial in

Congratulations To Jackson and Delia Barber

On Their Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary
November 15, 1926

Dear Friends, we write you these few lines,
From hearts of ours to hearts of thine.
That fifty years you've walked together,
And have braved life's stormy weather.
Happy groom and happy bride.
You have journeyed side by side.

And may your joys be all complete,
As on your wedding day you meet.
And may love and joy be ever thine,
Throughout all your years of time.
Clinging like a tender vine.
May it round your hearts entwine.

God grant that many years may come.
Before the Lord shall call you home.
And may it be with joy and bliss,
To a better land than this.
To a home beyond the skies,
Where the soul never dies.

When this fleeting life is over,
May we meet to part no more,
But beyond the swelling tide,
There with Christ may we abide.
And may we reach that blissful shore,
Praising Him forever more.

Charles W. Hoxie, Spencer, Iowa

ADVOCATE AND
McCALL'S MAGAZINE Both $2.25

Help The Unfortunate

Numbered among the 28,161 inhabitants of Hillsdale county are nearly 100 children who if found, can be treated and partially or completely cured.

This the estimate of the Michigan Society for crippled children, with headquarters established for the past five years in Ann Arbor. Starting Thanksgiving week the organization will make an appeal for members to all of Michigan—its men, women and children. Hillsdale is expected to enroll 1,000 members, which is ten persons for each crippled child. The society purposes to start in aggressive manner a movement that will, it is expected, place Michigan among the first in finding and caring for its crippled youngsters, County chapters are being arganized to this end, all over the state.

One dollars will purchase a year's membership which will finance the local work and assist with the statewide program. The general movement deals with preventing conditions which create new cripples and bringing educational facilities to those now receiving care.

Sometime ago a clinic for crippled children was held in Hillsdale county under the auspices of a Rotary, and at that time more than 90 cases examined. The county chapter when organized will assist with this work and strengthen it by making its needs generally understood. Hugh E Van de Walker, Ypsilanti, is president of the Michigan Society; Paul H. King, Detroit, is treasurer and Miss Alberta Chase, Ann Arbor, executive secretary.

This month marks the passing of that old-war-horse in Republican politics, "Uncle Joe" Cannon of Danville Illinois, probably one of the most prominent figures in his party since the days of Lincoln Mr. Cannon suffered most from caricaturists and cartoonists during his numerous terms as speaker of the house of representatives of any known personality. No doubt he was the most aggressive and bitter of them all. Added to this he was a gruff, out-spoken demagogue; a man devoid of christian respect and given to profanity. Perhaps it would not be out of place and possibly pleasing to some to know that "Uncle Joe" actually died as a Methodist, although he put it off rather too long. It is claimed he joined a Methodist church at Danville and assisted financially in the erection of a splendid edifice there for that denomination. As a church member we would class him about as the First Admiral Porter of the U. S. Navy who always insisted upon opening the day's routine on deck with Christian services although he swore copiously while conducting the same on board his flagship.

More of the constituents of milk are either wasted or not well utilized in the manufacture of butter than in making any other dairy product, declared Dr. C. W. Larson, Chief of the Bureau of Dairying, United States Department of Agriculture in a recent address. While there are not now ways of using all of this in a better way than through the feeding of livestock, before long, said Doctor Larson, it will be necessary to use much more of it directly as food or otherwise dispose of it to better advantage.

One of the early dust explosions, which took a toll of 18 lives, occurred in 1878 in a flour mill. This disaster led to efforts to develop methods and equipment for effective dust control. Marked progress has been made in recent years in the control of dust explosions and in the prevention of resulting fires in flour mills particularly. Only 4 lives have been lost in dust explosions in flour mills since the original explosion in 1878. Heavy losses, however, have oceurred in many other grain and milling industries.

The oyster season is approaching and did you ever stop to think the amount of care and work necessary to procure this delicious table delicacy for cooking? In the first place oyster beds are constantly menaced by enemies even after they are well established. There are crabs which constantly cruise about in search of the young oysters and millions of them are literally gulped up, also a small worm called the borer which inhabits the sea bores a hole in the oyster's shell kills the bivalve and devours the body. Oysters fasten themselves to rocks, sticks and what-not at the bottom of the ocean and hence cannot migrate to get away from their tormentors. Oyster beds are often established by certain fishermen and they are always the property of the one who plants them in Government waters and any parties caught sniping are severely handled. It is quite customary to drop brush or small trees into the ocean for oysters to fasten to. In a short time these branches will be covered with mollusks hanging in clusters. Oysters are natural to the waters of the south Atlantic Coast, the Pacific Coast and Gulf of Mexico. Chespeake Bay in Maryland has always been noted for the most prized bivalves from the time of the earliest settlements in America Baltimore oysters were the delight of our boyhood days but the industry has changed wonderfully since that time Now instead of going out in small boats and hooking the oyster from the bottom with a long handled rake the steam tug goes out and throws overboard a dredge which is dragged along the bottom bringing up oysters, snails, seaweed and all manner of ocean life. The oysters are sorted out, the remainder being thrown back.

The "Ben Purnell" Job

We call this a job (not on "Ben" but on the people of the state of Michigan) because it looks like a filibuster of justice. Somebody has said that Justice is blindfolded. In this particular case Justice being a respectable God-fearing woman, specially desired to cover up her vision to shut out the nasty deals reported to have been consumated at Bentor Harbor the natural home of whiskers.

At different times during the past two years we have received from the house of David their paper which is a very interesting piece of nonsense indeed to one who never saw it before. There is a world of scripture quoted in it to prove where Ben was entirely justified in running a resort as it is claimed he ran.

We supposed when the State Police went after a man like Ben they usually got their man, but some way or other he escaped them until recently. Perhaps the obstacles were suddenly removed—at any rate the Police battered down a stout door or two and found just what they expected to find—the whiskered rascal living in peace and happiness—at least he would have been happy if he had no conscience. Every paper has about done itself out hashing up the disgusting details, and no doubt a whole passel of lies have been told but the fact remains Michigan has got Ben and got him good, whether for the violation of the Mann Act or for treason to the State nobody knows. It may be possible he will never come to trial. With soft coal at $11.00 and everything else climbing, money will do a lot of vile deeds—and it may save "Whiskers". As a real original old Boulevarder, King Ben has them all beat for sure. It is seldom a man who wears such hirsute adornments can maintain his standing with the fair sex, but it all goes to show as Henry Ward Beecher once remarked a watch is no better than its movement although it may be cased in a $100 demaskened lid. The ultra-particular folks of Michigan have for many years intimated that the House of David was a little immoral and more or less decayed, and most of what they claimed was purely hearsay, but the die is cast, and short work will be made of the bunch, if the stories of certain dissolute women can be proven. Most of the boobs who join such a community could not be of the elect—they must naturally come from a lower strata of society. For instance a good looking young woman old enough to know better who would join Purnell's notorious silly bunch and allow herself to be auctioned off to some whiskered polypus of the crowd would not be considered real intelligent in North Adams or Hillsdale but she might do for Benton Harbor.

Of course after these callow girls got older and grew in grace and understanding they became ashamed of their ways and tried to amend by marrying some outside party and assuming respectability. We looked over King Ben's paper carefully and we failed to find an atom of sense in its columns as applied to practical christianity. It was simply a mass of quotations from the Bible well garbled, and trying to fit these Bible texts to the House of Shiloh and its inmates.

We understand the State Troopers have some very interesting photos of King Ben and female members of his colony taken in very warm weather.

Milk For The Baby

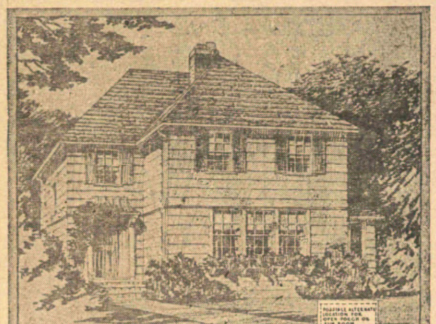
It has come to be said that for every baby that sickens and dies under one year of age 75 are raised in the best of health. But it is sometimes difficult to find a nourishing food for a sickly scrawny baby, and in such cases cows milk is often of no value because it has no richness. Such children must have milk of more than ordinary butterfat content, and goats supply this long-felt need.

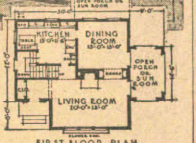
In many western states, particularly New Mexico, the farm women of two counties have purchased a herd of goats and propose to loan these animals to families around through the district having weak, sickly children. As is well understood, goats are mighty easy keepers and will eat practically anything from paper bags to wire nails. They keep county agents out there and one Sunday afternoon the County agent loaded a goat into her car and journeyed 50 miles to families with sick children New Mexico is rather poor pasturage for cattle and goats supply the demand with less up-keep. One baby girl who was in critically undernourished condition and about ready for the undertaker, was saved and gained five pounds in four months notwithstanding she had the whooping cough epidemic at the time.

The Supreme Sport

Baseball is the second greatest American sport. The greatest is passing the buck.—Toledo Blade.

This Thrifty Home Brings Joy to the Rent-Weary





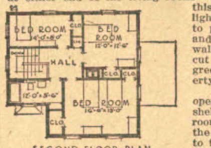
POSSIBLE ALTERNATE LOCATION FOR OPEN PORCH OR SUN ROOM
30'-0"
KITCHEN 15'-0"x11'-6"
DINING ROOM 13'-0"x13'-6"
OPEN PORCH OR SUN ROOM
LIVING ROOM 20'-0"x13'-0"
CLO.
DOWN
UP

FIRST FLOOR PLAN
CEILING HEIGHT 8'-0"

FOR THE family of four or five there is this attractive two-story, six-room house of beveled siding and slate or shingle roof.

One of the interesting features of this house is that every room has a double exposure, while the living room has three sides exposed. Extra windows not shown in the plan may at slight expense be added at either end of the living room. While this type of house affords the utmost in light and cross-ventilation, it would be well to protect it against the extremes of cold and heat by insulation with celotex for the walls and roof. Such insulation will also cut down outside noises to a marked degree, as in addition to its insulating property, celotex is an efficient sound deadener.

The living room has the much desired open fireplace and cleverly arranged bookshelves flanking the entrance to the dining room. The sun porch may be put either to the side or the back of the house, according to the builders' wishes or to conform to the demands of the lot.



SECOND FLOOR PLAN
CEILING HEIGHT 8'-0"

©, Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926.

BIG SUBSCRIPTION OFFER

THE PEOPLE'S POPULAR MONTHLY
GOOD STORIES
The Farm Journal
THE HOUSEHOLD

You Get ALL FOUR of These

MAGAZINES and OUR NEWSPAPER

For One Year Each FOR $1.80 Order Now

THIS EXCEPTIONAL OFFER IS GOOD FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY

Subscriptions may be new or renewal. All renewal subscriptions will be extended for one year from present date of expiration.

WOMAN'S WORLD
The GENTLEWOMAN
THE HOUSEHOLD GUEST
HOME CIRCLE
Today's Housewife
The HOME FRIEND MAGAZINE
THE AMERICAN NEEDLEWOMAN
MOTHER'S HOME LIFE
The HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE
The Farm Journal
Farm Life
GOOD STORIES
Farm & Fireside
Pathfinder
Capper's Farmer
BLADE AND LEDGER
Tractor and Gas Engine Review
AMERICAN POULTRY ADVOCATE
ILLUSTRATED MECHANICS

and Any 5

of this list of leading

MAGAZINES

$2.25

Why Pay More?

Get Your MAGAZINES NOW AT COST!

Take Your PICK

19

to Select From

Never before and probably never again will you have such an extraordinary money-saving opportunity. Note carefully the large selection of choice reading—all at a price to fit your pocketbook. Renewals will be extended one year from date of expiration. No need to wait.

CLIP AND USE THIS COUPON

Gentlemen: I wish to take advantage of your Magazine Bargain Offer. I am enclosing the above amount in payment for a one year subscription to your paper and the FIVE Magazines I have marked with an X below.

Name

Town State

St. or R. F. D.

☐ American Needlewoman

☐ American Poultry Advocate
☐ Blade & Ledger
☐ Capper's Farmer
☐ Farm & Fireside
☐ The Farm Journal
☐ Farm Life
☐ Gentlewoman Magazine
☐ Good Stories
☐ Home Circle
☐ Home Friend
☐ Household Guest
☐ Household Magazine
☐ Illustrated Mechanics
☐ Mother's Home Life
☐ Pathfinder (weekly) 26 issues
☐ Today's Housewife
☐ Tractor & Gas Engine Review
☐ Woman's World

CHOOSE Mark this coupon now and bring or mail it to our Business Office TODAY

UPHOLDS RIGHT OF WORKMEN

Noted Catholic Economist Tells Church's Stand at Special Mass

"The Catholic church clearly recognizes, and even more clearly declares, the right of the wage-earner to establish the kind of labor unions that will prove most effective for the protection of his welfare, and to better his condition to the utmost in body, mind and property."

With these words, the Rev. John A. Ryan, D. D., of the Catholic University of America, at Washington, D. C., an authority on the ethics of industrial relations, greeted over 500 Catholic delegates to the convention of the American Federation of Labor at a solemn high mass celebrated in their honor recently in St. Aloysius' church, Detroit.

"The question may be raised why the Catholic church gives to Labor the special recognition which is implied in a special sermon to the convention of the American Federation of Labor," Father Ryan said. "Undoubtedly some persons, including some Catholics, are saying that our churches should be used only for religious worship and for preaching the Gospel.

Church's Duty to Teach

"The church has the duty and the right to teach and expound all the principles and precepts of the moral law. She must apply the precept of charity and justice to economic conditions as well as to family relations and neighborhood relations. Wages, profits, hours of labor, woman labor and child labor and a hundred other industrial conditions and transactions present moral aspects. They are either right or wrong. It is the function of the church to say when they are right and when they are wrong.

"This is a continuous duty of the church. On special occasions, such as that presented by the meeting of hundreds of labor representatives in this city, it is quite natural and appropriate that the church should take special notice of the fact and utilize the opportunity to reassert Catholic principles concerning the condition and relations of labor.

Rights and Duties of Workers

"The foregoing statements have been emphasized and confirmed in a solemn way by the supreme authority of the church. In his great encyclical on the 'Condition of Labor', Pope Leo XIII declared that he was urged by the responsibility of his apostolic office to treat the question in detail. The encyclical sets forth a complete and detailed statement of the rights and duties of the working classes. They have a right to wages which shall be at least sufficient for the maintenance of decent family life and for provision against the contingencies of the future. They have a just claim upon the state for special protection and special legislation. The state should do its utmost to enable the working classes to become property-owners. The workers have a right to Sunday rest and to freedom from an excessively long working day."

The speaker called attention to the need for concord, stressed in the encyclical, and explained that the idea that class is naturally hostile to class is denounced specifically in the work. He deplored the fact that a Detroit organization had charged that the leaders of the American Federation of Labor 'are men who are admittedly attacking our government,' a charge which he declared to be cruel and unjust.

"All intelligent lovers of their country", he concluded, "and all believers in Christian principles of society and of civilization should rejoice that, in the United States, labor is organized according to the principles and the spirit of the American Federation of Labor. In this respect the contrast between most of the European countries and the United States is striking and profound".

Saxophones Used in Fight on Devil

The saxophone—"instrument of the devil"—is being enlisted by the churches in their fight on the devil, it is indicated in advices reaching the Conn Music Center, Elkhart, Ind. All-saxophone quartettes and sextettes in church and Sunday school are among the "devil's own weapons" being used to win folks over to religion.

"Not so long ago it was quite common for church people to shun the mention of saxophone, let alone go to hear one played," says James F. Boyer, supervisor of the Conn Music Center. "The sentiment seemed to be, even among musicians, that the saxophone wasn't much good for but jazz, and for a while it did appear that the jazz artists were the only ones to recognize and make use of this comparatively new addition to the brass instrument family. Reports now coming in here, however, indicate a changed attitude on the part of the public. Artists know that the saxophone tones come nearest of all others in resemblance to the human voice, and recognize that there is nothing so beautiful musically as a saxophone solo. H. Benne Henton, one of the greatest living masters of this instrument, claims that no cleaner, more elevating or inspirational music can come from any instrument, and will not play anything that has the slightest taint of jazz in it. Saxophone quartettes and saxophone sextettes are winning a place for themselves in churches, especially those that cannot afford a pipe organ, and other churches have found that the appearance of an orchestra at church functions invariably draws increased attendance. This is indeed fighting the devil with his own weapons."

EXPERIENCE OF WESTERN GIRL

Found Cannery Work Too Tiring

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible through the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 652 North Front St., Salem, Oregon.

Girls who work in factories know just how Miss Schmidt felt. Perhaps they, too, will find better health by taking the Vegetable Compound.

Of Course

"He believes in turning the other cheek."

"Preacher?"

"No, barber."

DEMAND "BAYER" ASPIRIN

Take Tablets Without Fear If You See the Safety "Bayer Cross."

Warning! Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for 26 years. Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin. Imitations may prove dangerous.—Adv.

No matter how often a man's heart is shattered it is always good for another break.

COUGHS

Throat tickle, sorethroat, huskiness and similar troubles quickly relieved with Luden's

LUDEN'S MENTHOL COUGH DROPS 5¢

Baby Loves A Bath With Cuticura Soap

Bland and Soothing to Tender Skins.

IF MOTHERS ONLY KNEW

TRADE MARK

DON'T ACCEPT ANY SUBSTITUTE

Many children are complaining of Headache, Feverishness, Stomach Troubles and Irregular Bowels and take cold easily. If mothers only knew what MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS would do for their children no family would ever be without them for use when needed. So pleasant to take and so effective that mothers who once use them always tell others about them. At all Druggists. Trial Package FREE. Address Mother Gray Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVINE

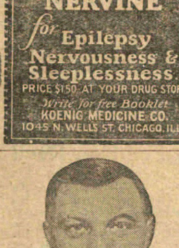
for Epilepsy Nervousness & Sleeplessness

PRICE $1.50 AT YOUR DRUG STORE

Write for free Booklet

KOENIG MEDICINE CO.

1045 N. WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

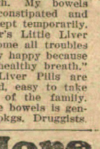


Claims Stomach Souring Causes Bad Breath

New York City. Mr. Ben Loheide writes:—"I was formerly a victim of constant upset stomach, bad taste in the mouth and very disagreeable breath. My bowels were constantly constipated and nothing helped except temporarily. After using Carter's Little Liver Pills I have overcome all troubles and I am especially happy because of a sweet clean healthy breath."

Carter's Little Liver Pills are small, sugar coated, easy to take by every member of the family. Their action on the bowels is gentle. 25 & 75c red pkgs. Druggists.

No More Croup!



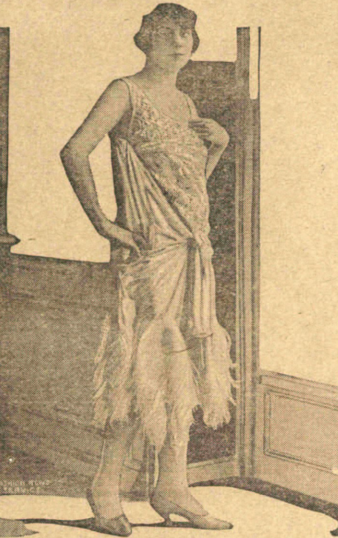
Sudden—frightening—spasmodic croup comes at night without warning when it is impossible to find a doctor. Minutes count. Have on hand this well known physician's prescription which brings relief without vomiting in 15 minutes. It is also the quickest known relief for coughs, cold and whooping cough. In use for 35 years, with largest sales of any croup remedy. If you have children get a bottle of this time-tried remedy at your druggists'. Be prepared to open the dangerously clogged throat the instant an attack arrives.

DR. DRAKES GLESSCO CROUP REMEDY

OSTRICH GRACES FORMAL FROCKS; SHOW NOVEL STYLING IN PAJAMAS

Now that society is banqueting, dancing, attending opera and making merry until the "wee sma' hours" of the morn, the mode is called upon to devise beauteous gowns for each lovely occasion. One of the fascinating fashions for evening this season is the pastel-colored supple velvet or chiffon frock graced with long flues of self-colored ostrich.

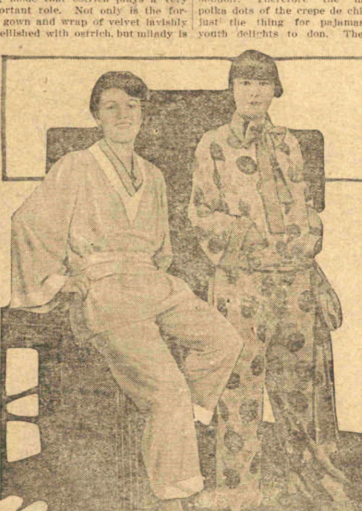
Sometimes a shoulder ornament of the ostrich complements that which accents the modish irregular hemline. A very delightful evening frock of pale-green shaded chiffon recently arrived from across seas showed not only ostrich about the hemline in deep points and at the shoulder, but a third touch was added in the way of a monture of ostrich at the girdle.



A Delightful Evening Frock.

The exquisite mauve panne velvet evening gown in this picture, which is a Doucet creation, artistically accents a unique hemline with drooping ostrich flues. There is an introduction of silver embroidery on the blouse front, with a knotted detail of velvet at the waistline, which are effective.

It is apparent throughout the evening mode that ostrich plays a very important role. Not only is the formal gown and wrap of velvet lavishly embellished with ostrich, but milady is again carrying a huge ostrich fan. Indeed so pronounced is the vogue for ostrich, even fantastic hand bags are made of ostrich which covers a fabric foundation.



Two of the Latest Pajama Models.

Young girls wear with simplest of tinted chiffon or velvet frocks, a boutonniere of ostrich inset with colorful flowers.

The latest ostrich novelty is that which is gilded or silvered. On brocades of rare and colorful weave, ostrich thus treated appears in regal splendor.

An outcome of this vogue for ostrich is the boa, long, reaching to the very hemline of the frock, or short, assuming the form of a fanciful neck ruff.

As a substitute for the nightie of old, we are liking the so-called "sleeping" pajamas right well. Maybe the popularity of pajamas is due to the fact that they present a never-ending opportunity to express novelty in their styling. Perhaps it is because they are so comfortable and practical. Whatever the cause, pajamas have found a recognized place among modern lingerie.

As a Christmas gift to one's nearest and dearest girl friend, pajamas ought to solve the problem most happily. Something we make our very own selves is always so deeply appreciated. Why not buy some pretty material and copy one or the other of the models shown in this picture? The model to the left was designed by that distinguished couturier, Madam Lanvin. It is developed of Brittany blue crepe de chine, with broad sash in oriental effect.

There is a decided charm in the one-piece pajamas offered by Lelong as shown here to the right. One finds a novelty touch in material and general design quite to one's liking when it comes to the intimate robes of one's boudoir. Therefore the mammoth polka dots of the crepe de chine seem just the thing for pajamas which youth delights to don. The quaint Buster Brown collar and tie, also the gipsy sash are charming details warranted to please any young girl who delights in cunning frivolities, such as the mode calls "clown" pajamas.

Appearing among the latest models are the "Mexican" pajamas as the creator of this type is pleased to call them. They are thus captioned on account of the decided flare at the bottom of the trousers, this being characteristic of the native Mexican costume.

Interest is mostly centered just now in the tailored pajama. These pajamas are often composed of two contrasting materials, a solid color bordering a figured fabric, is popular.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

Knitted Frock Smart; Sagging Is Overcome

It was a red-letter day in fashion history when knitted frocks were created. Nothing smarter and at the same time more serviceable has ever been designed, and now that the first fault of sagging and pulling out of shape have been overcome, they are almost an essential of any carefully planned wardrobe.

And yet there is no sign that two-piece frocks have had their day. They are quite as conspicuous in the new fashions as they were in those of the past season. Slight differences in detail and interesting combinations of fabrics give a new aspect to costumes whose general silhouette varies very little from that of the last two seasons.

Lingerie

Checked and striped voile are very practical for lingerie. Voile launders beautifully and is much softer and more sheer than most cotton products

Watch Elimination!

Good Health Depends Upon Good Elimination.

RETENTION of bodily waste in the blood is called a "toxic condition." This often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. Thousands have learned to assist their kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water and the occasional use of a stimulant diuretic. 50,000 users give Doan's signed endorsement. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c

Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys

Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chemists, Buffalo, N.Y.

Mr. Wize—"Do you know what is good for rats?"

Miss Slowe—"Why, poison, of course."

Mr. Wize—"No, that would kill them—cheese."

Do you know what's good for a cold, or more properly speaking, what's good for a person who has a cold? The answer is soothing and healing to throat and bronchial irritation. 30c and 90c bottles at druggists and dealers everywhere. Try it yourself and see how it works. If you cannot get it, write G. G. Green, Inc., Woodbury, N. J.

Boschee's Syrup

Today's Big Offer to All Who Have Stomach Agony

Read About This Generous Money Back Guarantee

When you have any trouble with your stomach such as gas, heaviness and distention, why fool with things which at best can only give relief.

Why not get a medicine that will build up your upset, disordered stomach and make it so strong and vigorous that it will do its work without any help.

Such a medicine is Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a delightful elixir that is sold by your local dealer and druggists everywhere with the distinct understanding that if it doesn't greatly help you your money will be gladly returned.

It has helped thousands—it will no doubt help you.

DR. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR

Splendid for CROUP and colds. Relieves congestion, hoarseness, coughing. Taken internally for inflamed membranes of throat and bronchial tubes.

HALL & RUCKEL, New York

FOR bronchitis

Not Too Many

Rich Old Aunt (recovering from accident)—I'm afraid I shall feel the effects of this accident for many years to come.

Nephew (with expectations)—I sincerely hope not, auntie.—Boston Transcript.

"DANDELION BUTTER COLOR"

A harmless vegetable butter color used by millions for 50 years. Drug stores and general stores sell bottles of "Dandelion" for 35 cents.—Adv.

Without economy none can be rich and with it few will be poor.—Johnson.

No man can answer for his courage who has never been in danger.—Rochefoucauld.

There is no Substitute For

KIRK'S ORIGINAL COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE

When dirt is stubborn, try this original Castile Soap. How it lathers in any water! How it cleans! Leaves skin healthy!

Handiest thing in the house

RELIEVES COUGHS

Take a teaspoonful of "Vaseline" Jelly. Stops the tickle. Soothes irritation. Helps nature heal. Tasteless, odorless. Will not upset you.

Chesebrough Mfg. Company (Consolidated) State St. New York

Vaseline

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF PETROLEUM JELLY

CHAFING and RASHES promptly relieved and healed by a few applications of

Resinol

GARDENS LAID OUT IN HERBAL GROWTH

Flower Plots of Today Heritage From Monks.

In the monks' herb gardens of early medieval times originated the art of present-day gardening. The monastery had to heal bodies as well as souls in those turbulent days, and the practice of medicine presupposed a good working knowledge of herb growing. Indeed, an early school of medicine, started by the Benedictines of Monte Cassion, can be looked on as precursor of our great modern botanic gardens, F. M. Verrall says, in the Commonweal.

Earliest records of gardens, after the day of imperial Rome, are of those belonging to the Ninth century monasteries in what is now France or Switzerland—St. Maurice, St. Germain des Pres, St. Amande and St. Gall. Of this last a fully detailed ground plan still exists. It shows the cloister garden for the use of the community in the center; the physic garden with its beds of sixteen kinds of medicinal herbs; the kitchen garden laid out in nine long narrow beds for cultivation of pot herbs, and the cemetery, which was burying ground and orchard in one. A peaceful God's acre it must have been, with graves separated by shrubs, and its fifteen fruit trees, of which even the names are given. Charlemagne ordered herbs to be planted in the imperial gardens in 812, and it is interesting to note the plants on his list correspond closely with those of St. Gall.

In England there is another ancient chart, a perspective plan of Canterbury monastery gardens. There is also clear evidence in English monastery records that corn, vines and fruit trees were grown in the Tenth century. As in continental gardens, there were not many different varieties of small plants and flowers. Roses, lilies, poppies and a few other flowers crept into the gardens, but only because of their supposed medicinal qualities.

In the Twelfth century both Bishop Grossetete of Lincoln and Alexander Neckham, abbot of Cirencester, wrote about plants; the first, in relation to medicine, while Neckham included a list of plants suitable for a "noble garden," still principally herbs, though peonies, daffodils and violets were added to the roses and lilies of an earlier day.

As to actual management of the grounds, all the gardens, vineyards, orchards, moats and fish ponds were under care of an officer, the gardinarius or hortulanus, who arranged for labor, bought any necessary cuttings or seeds, sold surplus cider or verjuice (raw grape juice) and kept accounts.

Accounts of a large monastery, such as Norwich priory or Abingdon abbey, show that within monastery walls there were other small gardens besides those for the cloister and the visitors. The abbot or prior, the treasurer, the precentor, the infirmarian and the sacristan had separate gardens, for which they paid a small rent to the gardinarius. The infirmarian grew medicinal herbs in his plot near the hospital, while the sacristan raised flowers for the altar.

Parish church and private chapel frequently had those sacristans' gardens. Henry VI, founder of Eton college, left "thirty-eight feet of land between the wall of the church and the wall of the cloister, to set certain trees and flowers behoovable and convenient for services of the same church."

Resourceful Woman

A western woman, touring Europe, writes home to tell how handy a scarf she was carrying came into use at Rome, says Capper's Weekly. She was dressed with sleeves to the elbow the day she was to visit the Vatican. When she reached the outer door a guard pointed to a sign which said that women who were "indecently dressed" were barred from entering. An interpreter informed her that she must have her arms covered. Whereupon she unwrapped the scarf from her neck, draped it over her shoulders and wound it around her arms. She was admitted. Her companion had to go to the nearest store and rent a black blouse, which she wore over her sport suit.

Comparative Values

"Doctor Smith seems to be a wonderful man," said Mrs. Snobleigh. "He charged me $25 to come and see Mimi."

"Doctor Brown is a robber," said Mrs. Snobleigh. "He charged me $10 to come and see Barbara."

Doctor Smith is the veterinarian. Mimi is Mrs. Snobleigh's Peke dog. Doctor Brown is the physician. Barbara is Mrs. Snobleigh's small daughter. Barbara was really sick. Mimi had merely been fed too much candy. So Mrs. Snobleigh paid Doctor Smith and Doctor Brown is still waiting for his.—Kansas City Star.

And That's That

"You ought to do things worth while, things that will make the world better," said the pious man in the seat with him.

"Apple sauce!" retorted the Flaming Youth. "You'd never get your name in the paper for doing such things. To get a front-page spread you gotta swim the channel, win a tennis game or knock your opponent in the ring into the arms of Morpheus. Those are the things that count these days."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mob and Mass Psychology

The term "mob psychology" refers to the mental processes of a mob. It is a well-known fact that persons will do things collectively, especially in a large and disorderly gathering, which they would never think of doing individually. "Mass psychology" is used in a closely related sense.

First Use of Keyboard

The manichord of the Thirteenth century was the first stringed instrument to be played from a keyboard.

Rabbit Wastes as Fertilizer

Feet, Heads and Other Discarded Refuse Have Commercial Value.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The left hind foot of a rabbit may or may not bring its possessor good luck. A sufficient number of rabbits' feet, however, together with their heads and the other refuse discarded when they are prepared for market, have a real commercial value. Raising rabbits for both meat and fur is a rapidly growing industry in this country, and the question of the most profitable disposition of the wastes is one of sufficient importance to challenge the attention of scientists.

Discarded Material Recoverable.

As in the case of packing-house wastes, part of the discarded material is recoverable as grease, part as dried blood, and the greater part as tankage or ammoniate fertilizer. Accordingly the bureau of soils has co-operated with the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture in an analysis of rabbit offal with a view to estimating its probable value if converted into these products.

Basis of Comparison.

Taking as a basis of comparison the fact that about 15,000 rabbits a week are slaughtered for meat in the neighborhood of Los Angeles, Calif., it has been found that products having an estimated commercial value of $30 daily should be obtainable from the offal of these rabbits. Incineration of these wastes would yield less than 150 pounds of ashes daily, containing bone phosphate of lime and possibly a little potash, worth less than $1 as fertilizer. While at the present time various practical problems present themselves to those who might consider establishing plants for reducing rabbit wastes, it may be possible for those persons to negotiate with firms already engaged in rendering meat scraps.

Mixing Acid Phosphate With Barnyard Manure

Fertilizer plots established 45 years ago at the Pennsylvania experiment station have yielded some very interesting information. According to Professor Gardner, manure applied at the rate of six tons per acre to these plots made it worth $3.85 per ton, but when used at the rate of ten tons it was worth only $2.72 per ton. The results of his experiment show that the most profitable use of manure is to spread it at the rate of five or six tons per acre rather than ten or twelve tons, which is commonly practiced.

These experiments also show that when manure was supplemented with acid phosphate, the increased crops produced yielded a substantial profit over the cost of the acid phosphate. It is profitable to mix barnyard manure with some form of phosphate fertilizer, especially on soils which have been growing crops for many years as they are likely to be deficient in phosphorus. Even the dairy farmer is finding it to his advantage to supplement manure with various fertilizers. The lowlands are quite likely to be lacking in potash and unless there is an unlimited supply of horse manure, some form of potash fertilizer can be used with profit on such soil.

Save Some of Choicest Leafy Hay for Chickens

In making plans for the poultry flock this winter save some of the choicest green leafy hay for the hens. This leafy material gives them to a certain extent a substitute for green grass at a time when everything is covered with snow. An easy way to feed it is to have a rack along the side of the wall and keep hay in this all the time much in the same manner as when feeding hay to other live stock. If the hay is put on the floor under their feet it becomes matted and holds moisture, and they do not get the maximum benefit from it. Alfalfa or clover leaves are about the finest thing you can have to stimulate egg laying during the winter.

FARM FACTS

Alfalfa is the oldest plant to have been cultivated for forage alone.

* * *

The road through the land of poor soils leads to uncomfortable homes.

* * *

More farmers must come to know that the soil they till is not just dirt.

* * *

If your sulky rake is 12 years old it has reached the average span of sulky rake life.

* * *

Get the doors and windows tightened up for cold weather. The house will be more comfortable.

* * *

In past years, without sanitary precautions, many pigs have died from worms and necrotic infection.

* * *

A good cat or two about the barns get the mice and rats, but too many cats about the premises are hard on the birds.

* * *

The farmer who sneers at science in farming generally has to get a scientific neighbor to endorse his note at the bank.

* * *

There is less risk in a crop rotation system than in a one-crop system; it seldom happens that a season is unfavorable to all crops.

* * *

Dry barnyards are always a blessing. If water is allowed to stand on the ground or collect in pockets it breeds foul odors and it may cause sickness or sore feet.

* * *

Creosoting soft wood fence posts makes ash, box elder or red oak last 20 years. Write the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for a bulletin

QUICK RELIEF

Popular Bluff, Mo.—"I had a terrible cold and cough, besides an ailment peculiar to women. My mother persuaded me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Favorite Prescription and I shall never forget how quickly they relieved me. I always recommend the 'Golden Medical Discovery' for colds or coughs, and the 'Favorite Prescription' for feminine weakness."—Mrs. Chas. Timmons, 245 North C St.

Dr. Pierce's famous family remedies can be procured from your neighborhood druggist. Write Doctor Pierce, President Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice.

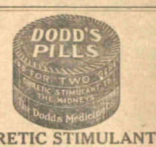
INSIST UPON KEMP'S BALSAM for that COUGH!

Spicy Story

George Plympton, the scenario writer, loves to tell how he broke into the literary game. He was in New York at the time, and personally submitted his first offense to the editor. The editor took one look at the main title and said:

"I can tell by the name of your story that it won't do for us. Our magazine prints only spicy stories."

"Then this ought to be just the thing," insisted George. "It's a story about a cinnamon bear."



DIURETIC STIMULANT TO THE KIDNEYS

Standard for Generations

This letter of gratitude from Philip Miller, Judge of Gray County, Cimmaron, Kan., a well-known Kansas judge, brings a message of hope to all heart and kidney sufferers.

"I took about six boxes of Dodd's Pills for heart trouble, from which I had suffered for five years. I had dizzy spells, puffed eyes, short breath, chills and backache. Am now 63 years old, well and hearty, able to do lots of manual labor, and weigh about 200 pounds. I feel very grateful that I used Dodd's Pills."

Philip Miller,

Judge of Gray County, Cimmaron, Kan.

Buy a box today, 60c, at your drug store or the Dodd's Medicine Co., 700 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Ma-Ma DOLL GIVEN

GIRLS: Large Ma-Ma Doll, richly dressed, removable cap and shoes, beautiful face and eyes. Given for selling 10 Right Silver Cleaners at 25c each. Cleans SILVERWARE in a second. Big special offer sent with goods. Order today—We trust you. SENGER SALES CO., FOND DU LAC, WIS.

IS YOUR COUGH THREE DAYS OLD?

A cough or cold that hangs on after the third day is a threat.

Do something. Don't wait until it has run its course—from your head to your throat, chest and bronchial tubes. When you feel a cough or cold spreading down into the bronchial tubes it is in the "danger zone"—for these tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Quickly and unfailingly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of trouble! Real medicine, reaching deep down with its soothing, healing power. Absorbed through and through the irritated throat, chest and bronchial membranes, it quickly stops the cough, breaks up the cold and brings prompt, lasting relief.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is hospital-proved and prescribed by physicians. Pleasant to taste. All druggists—60c and, twice the quantity, $1.00.

His Cure

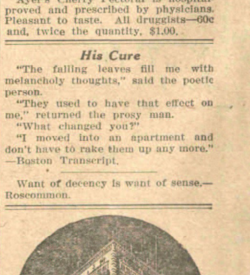
"The falling leaves fill me with melancholy thoughts," said the poetic person.

"They used to have that effect on me," returned the prosy man.

"What changed you?"

"I moved into an apartment and don't have to rake them up any more."—Boston Transcript.

Want of decency is want of sense.—Roscommon.



HOTEL FORT SHELBY

where Detroit won fame for courtesy

Week-ending at the Fort Shelby is a pleasant custom. An especially pleasant room with bath at $3.50 a day and up—other rooms at $2.50 and up. Servidor equipment with protection against excessive tipping. Central but quiet location. Fort Shelby Garage nearby.

Lafayette Blvd. at First St.

W. O. McKay, Ass't Sec'y

Seth E. Frymire, Manager

W. N. U., DETROIT, NO. 48–1926.

State News Briefs

Cadillac—Dr. and Mrs. F. D. Craggs have returned from a hunting expedition in Ontario with a moose, a black bear and a deer. The moose weighed 1,100 pounds and had an antler spread of 56 inches, with 29 points. The bear was seven feet long.

Portland—William Earl, a retired business man, received a letter recently from a former employe inclosing a sum of money and stating that while employed by Mr. Earl he had taken $2 from the till without his knowledge. Having been converted, he said, he returned the money with interest.

Muskegon—Dr. F. H. Bartlett, a graduate of Tufts Medical college and director of the county sanitarium at Pontial, Ill., for the past two years, on Dec. 5 will succeed Dr. W. C. Reineking, resigned, as superintendent and medical director of the Muskegon county sanatorium.

Ionia—Burdock was one of the big crops in Ionia county this year. Frank Phillips of Lyons township is showing a root five inches in diameter and fifteen and one-half inches in circumference. The stock grew seven feet tall.

Olivet—A bequest of $15,000 has been made to Olivet college by Charles B. Stowell of Hudson, who died recently. Mr. Stowell had been a trustee of Olivet college for many years and had been a generous contributor toward its financial support. Mrs. Stowell, who also is interested in the cause of Christian education, is a member of the woman's auxiliary board of the college.

Holland—Motorists on the park road witnessed an unusual friendship displayed by a large Shepherd dog for a tiny black kitten. The kitten had been injured by an automobile and the dog heard its cries and stood guard until it had been removed to safety. Then the dog wagged its tail and went on its way.

Saginaw—The oil industry of Michigan is rapidly approaching the million-dollar mark. More than $2,000 daily is being pumped from the ground in the Saginaw district. Production has reached 700 barrels daily, with 55 strings of drilling tools adding steadily to the volume of oil being taken from the field. Oil bearing stratum was first tapped in August, 1925.

Charlotte—Six months to one year at Ionia Reformatory was the sentence Judge R. R. McPeek in circuit court gave Bartie and Joe Piercefield convicted some time ago of violation of the liquor laws. The court gave these men a chance to get their fall farm work done before starting sentence.

Muskegon—Prospects for the largest fiscal year in the history of the Muskegon plant of the Continental Motors Corporation are in sight as a result of several large contracts signed during the past few months, reports Ross W. Judson, president of the corporation. During the year ended October 31, 1926, the Muskegon plant shipped more motors than during any other month since its organization. Installation of new equipment and an extensive change in the plant is now under way.

Pontiac—Consumers Power Company has granted the city of Pontiac a reduction in gas rates which will save residents between $15,000 and $20,000 a year. The new schedule reduces the cost of gas to residence users from $1.32 to $1.28 per first 1,000 cubic feet.

Mt. Pleasant—The third annual grain and stock judging contests will be held at the agriculture department of Central Michigan Normal Dec. 13. High school and rural school pupils and farmers are invited to compete. Silver cups to be retained one year will be awarded to the winner in each class.

Gaylord—The best single potato entered in the Top-O-Michigan potato and apple show was exhibited by an Antrim county grower, Theron Sutton, according to the decision of A. G. Tolaas of the University of Minnesota, the judge. Besides showing the best potato, Theron Sutton received an award of merit in the White Rural 32-potato class.

Reed City—The Osceola county board of supervisors has appropriated $2,500 for testing of cattle for tuberculosis, this work to begin in about a year. Osceola was one of the twenty-one counties of the state where no action had been taken.

Newaygo—For the first time in many years Newaygo county stands free of debt. A budget of $166,000 for the coming year has been adopted by the board of supervisors. About $84,000 will be expended on the county roads as compared with $40,000 last year.

Traverse City—With potatoes $1.35 on the local market farmers are storing more than they are selling. Growers believe higher prices are in prospect, but buyers are not so optimistic. Many potatoes are being brought in every day and many car loads are being shipped out daily.

Detroit — Aircraft Development Corporation, Detroit, is progressing on plans and construction of the new all-metal dirigible designed to secure the approval of the committee of the U. S. Navy department.

Jackson — Hancock Manufacturing Co., of Charlotte, has purchased the factory building of the Earl Motors company of Jackson. The Hancock company, which produces automobile hardware, is expected to move about 100 workmen from Charlotte to Jackson. H. W. Hancock is president of the concern.

Baby Loves
A Bath With Cuticura
Soap
Bland and Soothing to Tender Skins.

LEARN
BRICKLAYING
In a School run by Building Contractors.
Catalog Free.
Associated Building Employers
13-21 McConnell St., Grand Rapids

What Is a Diuretic?

People Are Learning the Value of Occasional Use.

EVERYONE knows that a laxative stimulates the bowels. A diuretic performs a similar function to the kidneys. Under the strain of our modern life, our organs are apt to become sluggish and require assistance. More and more people are learning to use Doan's Pills, occasionally, to insure good elimination which is so essential to good health. More than 50,000 grateful users have given Doan's signed recommendations. Scarcely a community but has its representation. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c
Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys
Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chem., Buffalo, N.Y.

BARBER BEAUTY SHOP
Equipment
Cash or Terms
Leo E. Morris Co.
1011 Farmer St
Detroit, Mich.
KOKEN
BARBERS' CHAIRS
ARE THE VERY BEST

DR. E. HENRY MORIARTY
at the
MORIARTY CANCER SANITARIUM
Specializing in the treatment of cancer without the use of knife or electricity.
Reference given on request.
1411 E. FULTON ST. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Safe, Speedy, Sure Relief from RHEUMATIC or NEURALGIC PAIN

For best results use T-R-C's (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules). This remarkable formula has for over twenty years been used most successfully by thousands suffering from RHEUMATISM and LESSER PAINS.

Absolutely harmless, T-R-C's do not deaden or dope the pain—they get rid of the pain and its cause. PROVE THIS TO YOURSELF—Ask your druggist for a $1.00 box which contains the T-R-C money back guarantee, or send 10c for literature and generous trial to Templetons Inc., 222 Congress St., W., Detroit, Mich.

Neuritis-Neuralgia-Sciatica Rheumatism Use T-R-C's TEMPLETON'S RHEUMATIC CAPSULES

Classified Advertisements

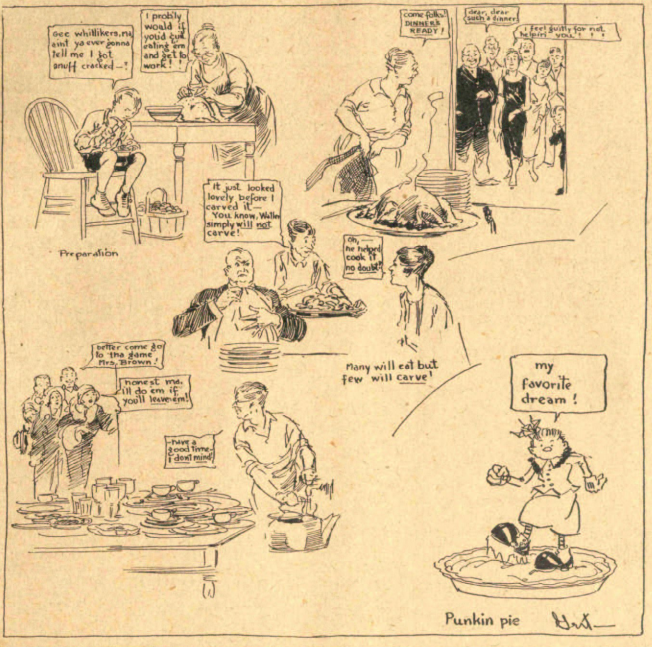
By a special arrangement and through an organization of newspaper men of which we are a member, we can run your classified advertisement in all these associated Michigan weekly newspapers at a very low price considering number of papers run in.
ASK US ABOUT IT IF YOU WANT TO REACH THOUSANDS

NEWS FEATURE PAGE

Happenings From Here and There and Everywhere.

Educational, Interesting and Helpful.

THANKSGIVING



Gee whillikers, ma, aint ya ever gonna tell me I got anuff cracked—?
I probly would if you'd quit eating 'em and get to work! !
Preparation
come folks! DINNER'S READY!
dear, dear such a dinner!
I feel guilty for not helpin' you! ! !
It just looked lovely before I carved it— You know, Walter simply will not carve!
Oh, he helped cook it no doubt?
Many will eat but few will carve!
better come go to the game Mrs. Brown!
honest ma, I'll do em if you'll leave em!
have a good time— I dont mind!
my favorite dream!
Punkin pie

MUNISING NAMED SEAT BY TRICK

Interesting sidelights on the early history of Alger county and Munising are told by Henry Russell of Marquette, who first came to that section of the peninsula in 1873 and who for many years was a director of the People's State bank of Munising.

An interesting incident connected with the building of Munising was the fight to establish the county seat.

Grand Marias wanted it. Au Train which already had the temporary county seat, desired to retain the title of county capital, and the new city of Munising, then in its boom period, coveted the prize and was determined to capture it. Grand Marais had a population roughly estimated at 2,800 and was capable of polling 600 votes. Munising was able to poll a similar number.

Means of communication were not so good as now. When election day came interest all over the county was running high. Anticipating that politicians of Grand Marais would resort to trickery to win the election, Munising leaders decided to "fight fire with fire." Russell, who was working at Wetmore on election day, came to Munising and was delegated to go to the Burt township village to get the election returns before politicians of that community should know the vote polled in Munising. The undertaking was not so easy as it appeared, since a spy from either city would be accorded rough treatment if discovered.

Accompanied by three other men, Russell started for Grand Marais aboard a launch. Cautioning his companions to keep out of sight, Russell proceeded into Grand Marais early in the morning, disguised as a timber cruiser just returning from a several days' sojourn in the wilderness.

Entering a saloon, he accosted the bartender, who also officiated in the capacity of town clerk. Fooled by the customer's raiment and his tale of just coming from the "bush," the bartender gave him the number of votes cast in Grand Marais.

Following his exit from the saloon, Russell proceeded to the telegraph office and sent the message to his waiting compatriots in Munising.

ANN ARBOR ROSTER SETS RECORD WITH 12,876

With a gain of 178 students over last year's registration, the University of Michigan has entered its eighty-ninth year with the largest enrollment ever recorded in normal times, according to final figures compiled by Ira M. Smith, registrar. The total number of students in the school for the year is 12,876.

ARCHERY IS SPORT FOR G. R .GIRL SCOUTS

Archery is to become a popular sport of the Grand Rapids Camp Fire Girls, who have been provided with ample space in the yard of their new home to devote to this old pastime.

The headquarters of the Camp Fire Girls are now located in the east wing of the old Platte house. This building will be operated by the girls themselves. They will tend the furnace and cut the grass, chop their own wood and bake their own biscuits.

In the spacious yard will be set up targets to be brought from the girls' summer resort known as Camp Keewano Wohelo, and a backstop will be erected to protect neighbors from the whistling arrows which may stray wide of their mark.

Keeping Highways Open Winter Not So Costly as Maintenance in Summer

Cadillac—Keeping the roads clear of snow and in good condition in winter is not as costly as maintaining them during the summer, is the statement recently made by J. T. Sharpenstein, maintenance supervisor.

Records kept last winter in the state highway office when the Mackinaw trail was kept open to Petoskey showed the daily average of winter maintenance was from 19 to 40 per cent of the cost per day during the rest of the year.

Taxpayers in general have considered the snow removal activities of the state highway department rather costly, but records show, said Mr. Sharpenstein, their fears are unfounded. Because of this showing the department is contemplating enlarging upon its snow removal program.

This winter out of 657 miles in the 13 counties comprising this district 563 are on the program for snow removal. Equipment available for this work consists of 10 heavy outfits consisting each of a 10-ton tractor and heavy plow, nine being rotaries and one big push plow. In addition there will be 25 lighter trucks equipped with V-plows.

Last year 45,000 feet of picket snow fence was used with satisfactory results. This year 140,000 feet of picket fence has been added to that already on hand, making a total of approximately 40 miles of all classes of snow fence available.

The new truck and plow here went into action Thursday near Kingsley, where 43 automobiles were found at a snow blockaded road. Under direction of William Lutman, maintenance superintendent of Wexford county, and with motorists assisting, the road was plowed out and the occupants of the cars, mostly hunters, went on their way.

All trunk lines in the district were reported open.

Ford Plant Turns Out Period Shingles For Old Residences

Henry Ford's automobile body plant at L'Anse is buzzing away to a new tune since the auto magnate has given this plant of his huge industry the job of making split pine shingles for his antiquated New England relic-buildings. Many of the old historical buildings in the eastern part of the United States have been purchased by the auto magnate, and with but a few exceptions the roofs are either in a sad state of decay or have been replaced by more modern material.

In refitting the buildings to their original style Ford found it was necessary to secure the hand-hewn, split pine shingle, similar to those used in the early days of American building. In his plant at L'Anse were a number of workmen, who in the pioneering of the upper peninsula were adept at making the style of shingle desired. The job of making a sufficient supply was started immediately and Ford soon will have enough of the crude but serviceable roofing to equip a sizeable town.

WOMAN OFFICER SHOWS COURAGE

Ontonagon—Mrs. Anne Goethehies, Michigan's only woman game warden, has proven her worth as an apprehender of deer law violators. The remarkable thing about her arrest of three alleged violators was she accomplished it at night in the woods, having the courage to patrol a thickly wooded district at White Pines. She caught the three men hunting deer with headlights.

She heard rifle shots and then hit the trail. Sighting an automobile and upon approaching it stealthily she found three men seated in it. She searched the car, but found no evidence of illegal hunting. Just as she was about to leave she saw a fourth man emerge from the darkness carrying a rifle. The man ran back into the woods when he saw her.

Offer Resistance

Mrs. Goethehies placed the three men under arrest as accomplices of the alleged violator. Theyp refused to go with her and started drive away. Here is where she showed her authority in no unmistakable manner by pulling a revolver and shooting holes in the front tires.

Frustrated in their attempt to escape the trio had to surrender to Michigan's only woman game warden and she took them to Trout Lake.

They furnished bail. Mrs. Goethehies then returned to the woods, where she found a doe which had been shot. She confiscated it and will use the deer as evidence.

FOR SALE
$1,000.00 for a well stocked Second Hand Furniture Store on one of the busiest streets in Grand Rapids. Good lease and store making money. Other business requires owner's entire time. If interested, write Marks Furniture Store, 125 Division Ave., South, Grand Rapids, Mich.

We Buy and Sell
Listed and Unlisted
STOCKS and BONDS
H. A. BENJAMIN & CO.
Member Detroit Stock Exchange
905 Dime Bank Bldg.
Cadillac 1460 Detroit, Mich.

Reed City Ag Fund Jumps Up to $1,000

Reed City—Reed City high school agricultural department will receive $1,000 next year from the federal government instad of $500, it was announced here by E. E. Gallup, in charge of the administration in Michigan of the Smith-Hughes act.

Gallup praised the administration of the department, which has met the highest requirements under M. J. Crawford, superintendent of schools, and L. C. Atkins, agricultural teacher.

SHOCKS 32 ACRES CORN IN 17 DAYS

Sparta—The champion corn cutter of Kent county and, possibly of the state of Michigan, is N. A. Vinton, 77-year-old farmer, living near here. Vinton wields a mean corn knife.

In 17 days of 9 hours each this fall he cut and shocked 32 acres of corn on the farm of Frank Ebers at Ballards oCrners. There were 1,502 large shocks on the field when he finished. He cut eight rows wide and about the same distance the other way, the corn being drilled.

Vinton prefers the old-fashioned method of cutting corn. He ties four hills together to get a start. He works without a "wooden horse."

Many farmers have sought his services at corn harvesting time, but for the past five years he has worked for Ebers. Last fall he cut more than 1,600 shocks of corn.

$250,000 Armory to Be at East Lansing

In the new $250,000 armory and field house, for which the state administrative board recently released funds, Michigan State college will have a building admirably suited to diversified uses. A large assembly at such events as Farmers' week gatherings; the cinder track with tanbark covering will be used by the athletic department; offices will be occupied by military officers, and the big indoor riding hall will serve for riding classes, polo games and the annual R. O. T. C. horse show, a brilliant social event for all the state.

Relief

"How can I keep my feet dry?"

"Try our pumps," replied the bright shoe clerk."

ANN ARBOR MECCA FOR PEACE TALK

Students from nearly every college and university of the United States will flock to Ann Arbor during the first week of December for the second annual congress of the National Student Federation of America. The program of the congress, which will be held from December 2 to 4, includes discussion and comment by student leaders on nearly every phase of campus life.

Decision to make the University of Michigan the host of the second congress came last year, when the federation was organized, and plans for welcoming this large body of student delegates are maturing rapidly.

Included in the tentative business that will be taken up during the three-day meeting is the adoption of a permanent constitution for the federation. Purposes of the organization, as set forth in the preamble of the constitution that is to be considered, include the development of a spirit of co-operation between students, to call forth intelligent student opinion on national and international topics, and to foster an understanding in furtherance of world peace.

Deserted Village to Come to Life With Activity in Copper

Cliff, a long deserted village in Keweenaw county, the scene of pioneer copper mining operations in the Keweenaw peninsula, is expected to come to life again through the reopening of the old Cliff mine by the Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper company. Cliff was operated in the '50s and paid several million dollars in dividends before values gave out in the fissure vein in which the shafts were sunk.

What is known as the old Avery shaft at Cliff will be reopened and used as the center of an important exploratory project. Electric pumps will be used to unwater the shaft.

"We also have some nice horseradish today," the grocer was explaining to the new bride out on her first shopping trip.

"Oh, but we keep a car," she explained sweetly.

CARPENTER'S The Original LIQUID COURT PLASTER
15¢
Antiseptic! Protects & Heals
AT ALL DRUG STORES

DEER HEADS MOUNTED
Write for free photos and prices before your hunt.
G. R. TAXIDERMY STUDIO
124 Division Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich. Phone 6-2982

Genuine BAYER
ASPIRIN
SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!
Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for 25 years.
DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART
Safe Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.
Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Will You Have to Sell
blooded stock, hatching eggs, day old chicks, small fruit plants, real estate, etc.? If so, vonsult us, as we can place your ad in the associated weekly papers of Michigan and give you thousands of readers each week your advertisement appears. Rates very low.

The Red Seal on a Continental Motor not only designates the source of the product but warrants full confidence in its quality. It is the hall mark of the master craftsman in motor building.
Continental Motors Corporation
Offices: Detroit, Mich., U. S. A. Factories: Detroit and Muskegon
The Largest Exclusive Motor Manufacturer in the World

Christmas With Atwater-Kent

There is no more pleasurable gift in the world than an Atwater-Kent Radio for her or for him. One-dial control; sure and selective.

How delightful to step to the Radio and at once place yourself and guests in the midst of the football grid or the great Orchestra Hall; an instrument so sensitive you can catch the captain's commands to his men or the scraping of a violin bow being rosined.

Ask the man who owns an Atwater Kent about the single dial

COME AND HEAR IT

C. S. Wertz Store

Have You got Your Blankets For the Winter?

If not, now is the time to buy them. They are going fast at

$1.69 to $5.00 PLAIDS of all colors. also Greys and Tans.

Also lovely Linen Stamp Goods for your XMAS

Remember we have a big line of DRESS SHIRTS, white and colored, Save your $$ by trading at

SWAIN'S, North Adams

RADIOS

New Grossley Five-tube R. F. L. and Single Dial Control.

Florence and Glowboy

Circulating Heaters and the Range Eternal Can you beat it?

PAYNE & GREEN CO.

Authorized Agents

Special Sale

We are carrying a Splendid line of GROCERIES at reasonable prices. Our speciais are on every day in the week.

A. DIETZ

Two Snbscriptions to McCall's and one Advocate 1 yr. $2.75

CORRESPONDENCE

Town Line

Albert Pease recently sold his apples to Mr. Wright.

Charles and Gael Giddings came home for Thanksgiving.

Ray Fast and family spent Thanksgiving at Haviland, Ohio.

R. C. Young and family spent Thanksgiving with friends in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Brown ate Thanksgiving dinner with Howard Kies and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirk of Town Line are entertaining Mrs. Kirk's mother from the west.

Mrs. Frank Anson returned home from Addison Hospital on Wednesday afternoon. She is feeling much better.

Mr. Charles from Bryan, Ohio, came Monday for a truckload of apples bought of C. H. and Abner Jennings.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Baker had for Thanksgiving guests Mr. and Mrs. Grover Mallory and children from Toledo, Ohio.

Frank Giddings of Wheatland had his tonsils removed Wednesday afternoon at Addison Hospital. He returned home Thursday and is doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Rickerd en route to Jackson, called on their aunt, Mrs. Kate Beecher, Sunday, Nov. 14th. Mrs. Pearson and son of Reading, were callers.

Jonesville

Frank E. Howland is at home from Florida.

Miss Winnifred Gaige of Gary, Indiana, is visiting here.

C. W, Oppel has bought the Lambert place on Evans street.

Clarence House and wife of Jackson spent Sunday in Jonesville.

Mrs. Alice Van Ness will spend the winter at Fort Myers, Florida.

Mrs. Arthur L. Massey entertained at a card party last Wednesday evening.

The first Pythian Party of the season will be held this evening at Castle Hall.

Mrs. John Fogg, who has been in New York City and Bridgeport, Conn. for sometime has returned to her home here.

David Watson of Hillsdale has purchased the Dennis property on Reading Ave. and will make some extensive repairs.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. church will hold their Annual Bazaar on December 10 and 11 in the church parlors.

Mrs. Victor Hawkins who has been in Flint for some time, is at her home on West street for a short time before going to Florida.

Mrs. George McKercher entertained the Wednesday afternoon 500 club this week. A one o'clock luncheon was followed by cards with four tables in play.

Jerome

Harley Lane was in Addison Saturday.

Martin VanTassel is visiting in Holland.

Mrs. Della Lowery spent the week end in Mendon.

Harry McClanahan and wife were in Hillsdale Saturday.

Sheriff Midgley and deputy Potter of Hillsdale were in town Tuesday.

Mark Clement and family of Jackson are spending the winter with R. M. Seeley.

The Community Ladies made seven dollars on their baked goods sale Saturday.

Mrs. Julia Potter and son Ora will return from Pittsford to their home here next week.

A chicken pie supper will be served at the I. O. O. F. Hall Saturday evening December 4.

About 40 persons from Moscow and Jerome attended a shower at the Linus McCowan home at Moscow Friday evening in honor of Ford McCowan and wife. The newly weds received many useful gifts and an enjoyable evening was spent by those present.

Center Adams

Lee Dewey and family spent Sunday at the Lenna Dewey home in Moscow.

Henry Marlowe and friend of Toledo spent the week end at the Frank Dewey home.

Earl Gordon and wife of Hillsdale were callers at the John Gordon home on Sunday.

Daniel Rouse and family of Nethaway district visited at the Nathan Webster home on Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. Reiser of North Adams were Sunday dinner guests of J. R. Dewey and wife.

Mrs. Will Keith was in Ann Arbor on Wednesday for a medical test at the U of M Hospital.

Miss Dorothy Ambler who has been with friends at Ypsilanti for the past ten days came home Tuesday.

J. I. Post and wife spent Wednesday in Jackson, the former helping with a sale and Mrs. Post sight seeing and shopping.

Local News

C. E. Haskell and wife of Toledo spent Sunday with Rev. and Mrs. M. D. Carrel.

Mrs. Frank Miller has been spending the past two weeks at the D. A. Hager home north of Hillsdale.

The Regular Annual meeting of the North Adams Switchboard Association will be held at the Town Hall Saturday December 4th 1926. 26t2

—Bazaar and chicken pie dinner beginning at 11:30 at the Methodist church next Wednesday December 1st. Supper served from 5:30 to 6.30 and program in the evening.

Mrs. Nora McBain of Battle Creek whose serious condition resulting from an automobile accident was reported in last week's issue has sufficiently recovered to be removed from the hospital to her room. She is suffering from nervous shock and bruises about the head and it is thought she will not be able for several weeks to resume her duties as teacher in the public schools.

A High Water Mark

Our state Institute director and house to house worker, Mrs. Jennie E. Lipe, has gained 1021 new dues paid members for our organization during the year just closed This is certainly a remarkable record and one of which Mrs. Lipe may well be proud. It also shows what one worker can do, when she makes a business of member-getting. Set a high number of new members for your goal and then go after them.

Mrs. Lipe has organized unions at the following places: Scotts, South Side, Kalamazoo; Willis, Belleville, Tecumseh, Hudson, Okemas, Mason, Stockbridge, Williamston. Reo union, Lansing; Ionia, Eaton Rapids, Springport, Vandercook Lake, Michigan Center, Pittsford, Waldron and Dansville. New members were secured at Dexter, Chelsea, Lakeview, Pierson, Bushnell and Fremont and several other places.

Michigan White Ribboners can well afford to take off their hats to Mrs. Lipe and wish her a double God speed, as she continues this wonderful work. It now remains for the older workers to look carefully after all these new members Get them busy at some line of our work. It is big enough and splendid enough to interest every one who knows about it. Take care of the W. C. T. U. children and see that they are nurtured and growing.

The visit of Mrs, Lipe to North Adams advertised for November 21st has been postponed for two weeks owing to the fact that she is meeting with splendid success where she is now located. She is the leading worker of Michigan and is sure to be a drawing card when she arrives, Watch for announcement later.

"Jehu" Long Famed

Jehu as a colloquial name for a coachman, or for one who drives recklessly, is derived from a biblical source (II Kings 9:20): "The driving is like the driving of Jehu, the son of Mimshi, for he driveth furiously."

Most Dangerous Snake

The curator of reptiles at the Bronx zoo, New York, Raymond Ditmars, is reputed to be the greatest authority on reptiles in this country. In his experience the black cobras that spit poison are the most dangerous of reptiles. They can eject venom fifteen feet with deadly precision and effect.

Anyone Who can wind a watch

Now commands the air with

THE NEW ERLA MONODIC RECEIVER

Here is news for the whole family: Mother, Brother, and even little Sister can get new "thrills"—new stations they never could before. One after another stations come in with "next-door" clarity and volume. Selectivity is now razor keen

Radiation, or the annoying broadcasting of squeals into neighboring antennae is eliminated removing one of the most prolific causes of radio interference and dissatisfaction.

Harshness and fuzziness of tone resulting from regeneration are eradicated. Even under full pressure, reproduction of voice or music is entirely natural and undistorted.

Mosher's Radio Shop

93 South Howell Street. HILLSDALE, MICH.

"I suffered from kidney trouble. Misery to stoop, agony to rise up, just sick all over. Foley Pills, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys, made a big difference in me. I feel like another person, stronger and better in every way."
(signed) Sara E. Weston,
Belvidere, Ill.

What FOLEY PILLS have done for others they will do for you

Take Them When Tired

Clyde S. Wertz, North Admas

Hotels MADISON and LENOX DETROIT

The twin hotels — where comfort is paramount and where prices are reasonable always. Close to everything worth while in Detroit

MADISON AVE., near GRAND CIRCUS PARK

Dawn Theatre Hillsdale

A Butterfield Theatre

November 26
FRIDAY
Olive Borden in
"YELLOW FINGERS"

Nov. 28, 29 30
SUN., MON., TUES'Y
BELLE BENNETT
"STEL LA DALLAS"

November 27
SATURDAY
RICHARD BARTHELNESS
in
"RANSON'S FOLLY"

December 1 and 2
WED'Y and THURS'Y
CONSTANCE TALMADGE
in
"DUCHESS OF BUFFALO"

I'm Telling You

The Majestic Furnace is a 'Winner'

Following are the names of satisfied users of Majestic Furnaces we have sold in the past two years:

Lud Chandler,	Frank Painter	Ed Kempton
Roy Schmitt	Ross DeLamater	Will Oscius
Dr. Caswell	Lloyd Wilson	Cash DeWitt
James Denning	Will Wheaton	Geo. Bates
Frank Holcomb	Rev. Kern, Camden	Art Calhoun

John Williams

THE HOSTESS SERVES PINEAPPLE

ALMOST any woman can be a charming hostess, given a day in advance to study her role. But the real hostess is the one who can prepare an attractive luncheon or dinner in a jiffy and make the unexpected guest, whom the husband has a habit of bringing along, feel as if he were expected.

And nine times out of ten, the hostess who has spent only a little time in preparing the dinner, finds that she is enjoying the dinner event far more than if she had spent the day in the kitchen fussing, cooking, and preparing the dishes with elaborate care.

A very real aid to the hostess who must be prepared at all times for friends at meal time is a shelf full of canned Hawaiian pineapple. First because it can be used in such a variety of attractive forms and is so tasty and wholesome, and second, because it can be prepared with the least possible expenditure of time. It takes only one minute to open a can of pineapple and pour the golden slices in a fruit bowl, which is the simplest way of serving it. And it takes only half an hour, if one is skillful, to make a criss-cross pineapple pie which is a work of art.

The meat often constitutes the most serious problem, when one has ordered, say, chops for the family, and the arrival of guests suddenly doubles the size of the family. Probably there is plenty of bacon in the ice-box, and if so, the hostess may put away the chops and in a few moments have a platter of crisp bacon with pineapple served on curly lettuce leaves that has all of the earmarks of a very special occasion.

It is prepared by first frying 12 strips of bacon, pouring off the fat as it forms in order that the bacon may be dry and crisp. Remove to a hot platter and keep hot. Season a little flour with salt and pepper. Dip the luscious slices of Hawaiian Pineapple, (or the contents of a large can) into the flour and cover both sides. Brown in a very little hot bacon fat. This may be served with crisp cold lettuce.

A pretty fruit cup is quickly prepared and often adds a touch of festivity to a meal that is otherwise not unusual. The hostess who enjoys arranging something both artistic to see and delicious to taste will resort to Grapefruit Hawaiian. The grapefruit is cut in halves crosswise, then the center membrane removed and the sections loosened with a sharp knife. Notch the top edge of the fruit. Sprinkle the grapefruit with powdered sugar and fill the centers with the contents of a medium size can of crushed pineapple. Chill before serving and top with a maraschino cherry.

Marshmallow and Pineapple Dainty is a light and delectable dessert if the meal has been a hearty one. Whip 1 cupful of thick cream, add ½ pound of marshmallows cut in quarters, and the contents of 1 can of Hawaiian sliced pineapple cut in small pieces.

A similar individual dessert is pineapple syllabub. Beat up the whites of 3 eggs stiffly, add gradually 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar and a teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Whip up 2 cupfuls of thick cream to a stiff froth and fold in, a spoonful at a time, the eggs and sugar. Add gradually one medium size can of crushed Hawaiian pineapple. Chill and serve.

But probably, if the meal were somewhat hastily prepared, it has not been an over-heavy one, in which case it will be well-balanced by a pie for dessert. Pineapple pie is fast becoming the universal favorite which old-fashioned lemon pie has always been, because it has that tart flavor so desirable in pastry, and many prefer the unusual taste of pineapple in pie to lemon.

Prize-pineapple Pie, so-called because it was awarded first prize at a Cleveland food show, is made in the following way: Mix ½ cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons cornstarch and slowly add hot milk. Cook in double boiler until thick and cornstarch is thoroughly cooked, or about 40 minutes. Pour on two egg yolks, return to double boiler and cook until the eggs thicken, or about 3 minutes. Cool and add contents of buffet size can of Hawaiian Crushed Pineapple and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Pour into a baked crust and cover with a meringue made of 2 stiffly-beaten egg whites and 2 tablespoons powdered sugar. Brown quickly in a hot oven.

If one likes, strips of the pastry may be used criss-cross fashion over the top of the pie, instead of making meringue.

With at least one of these dishes on her menu, the hostess may sit down with the assurance that her guests are going to have something that will be good to see, good to eat, and good for health, and it is easy then to devote herself to the business of being charming.

THE NORTH ADAMS ADVOCATE

XXI NORTH ADAMS MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1926 No. 27

THE
Greendale Dairy
North Adams, Michigan
For the past year Associated with
The Franklin Creamery Company
Now operated by
The Franklin Creamery Company
Come in and let us serve you

THE CITIZENS BANK
[Unincorporated]
North Adams, Mich.

Resources Over $500,000
H. M. WILCOX, Pres. J. M. WILLIAMS V.Pres
A. J. HOFFMAN, Cashier
MRS. GRACE DOOLITTLE, Assistant Cashier
Co-Partners

J. M. WILLIAMS	C. W. BLEECH	A. WILLIAMS EST
A. J. HOFFMAN	H. M. WILCOX	B. I. LYNCH

[a] Safety on your money
[b] Yield on your money

I.—SAFETY : Building and Loan societies put 100 per cent of their investments in Real Estate. It is estimated that there are 9,000,000 share holders in Building and Loan Societies, having $5,000,000 in assets. Wayne county Savings Bank has $74,204,528 in savings :$41,140,576 is invested in Real Estate. The Central Savings and Trust Company has $28,961,093 in Savings, $27,294,298 are invested in Real Estate. The New York Life Insurance Company has $151,000,000 in assets invested in Illinois.

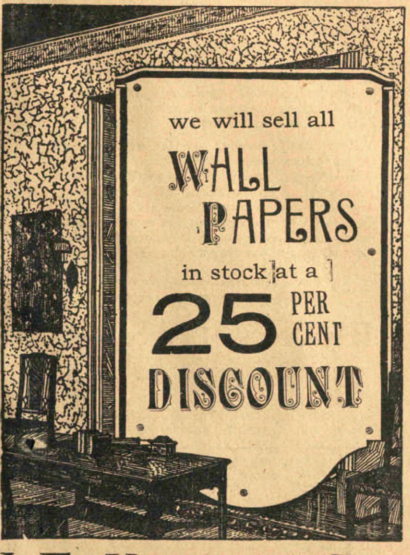
$94,000,000 Real Estate
$21,000,000 Railroad Bonds
$35,000,000 Public Utilities
$1,000,000 Municipal

Surely these facts are conclusive evidence of the safety of Real Estate.

II.—YIELD : In yield one cannot find so generous a return anywhere. In ten (10) years the following yields have been realized : Detroit 630 per cent; New York 217 per cent; Chicago 195 per cent; Atlanta 162 per cent; San Francisco, 159 per cent; Boston 137 per cent; Minneapolis 131 per cent; Kansas City 129 per cent; St. Louis 124 per cent; Cleveland 119 per cent; Philadelphia 116 per cent. Detroit yields three times as much as its next ranking city.

See DICK McBAIN, Moscow.

B. E. TAYLOR, Realtor
Community Builder
521-529 Ford Bldg. DETROIT, MICH.



we will sell all
WALL PAPERS
in stock at a
25 PER CENT
DISCOUNT

H. E. Young & Son
NORTH ADAMS, MICH.

Local News

Patronize the item box at the post office.

Dr. and Mrs. McFarland were in Detroit Thursday.

Moving Fast—At One-fourth Off on all Hats Corey Hat Shop

J. W. and Donna Lynch of Detroit spent Thanksgiving at their home here.

A. J. Hoffman left Saturday for a two weeks' stay in Kentucky on business.

The Woman's club will meet with Miss Ethel Clement Monday December 6th.

Miss Sarah Frederick returned Sunday to her school duties at Kego Harbor.

Mrs. Julia Straw and son, Wells of Adrian, were Sunday guests of George Ambler and family.

The regular W. C. T. U. meeting due Dec. 10 will be omitted because of the meetings to be held by Mrs. Lipe.

The 2nd and 3rd grade had a turkey race in reading. In language they dramatized "Silver locks and the Three Bears."

George Newman and wife, Howard Newman and wife spent Thanksgiving with Robert Newman and wife of Hillsdale.

Regular meeting of F. & A. M. No. 189 Monday evening December 6, 1926. Election and installation. Supper 7 o'clock. Be there!

A. Dietz is advertising their line of groceries this week. Here you will find a line of strictly fresh groceries at all times.

Mrs. Frances Rickerd returned home on Sunday from a four weeks trip to Erie, Pennsylvania, Toledo, Adrian and other points.

—See Clyde Wertz advertisement in this issue. It is chock full of cheap prices for goods you need every day. See if this is not correct.

—If you need a new top for your car let me order it for you. If you prefer to put in your curtain lights I have the Celluloid in sheets 20 x 50. A. J. Carpenter. 26t1

Mrs. Will VanAken and Miss Edith Westcott attended the funeral of Mrs. B. A. Barber on Sunday at Hillsdale, Mrs. Barber is a cousin of Mrs. VanAken.

Guests for Thanksgiving at the J. D. Knowles home were Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Gross and little son Dean of Royal Oak and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Caldwell and baby Jack of Springport.

Mrs. B. I. Lynch entertained the Birthday Club Tuesday. Visitors were Misses Lola Wilcox, Alice Taylor, Rena Knowles, Vera Sawyer, Vernice Fouty and Miss Hettie Shepard.

Reports from the Live Stock Show at Chicago, Illinois, say that Grand Champion Steer of the show weighed 940 pounds; sold for $3.60 per pound, or a total of $3,384.00. Quite a valuable steer we should say.

The S. E. class of the Congregational church will meet Tuesday evening Dec. 7th, with Mrs. Arthur Holcomb. Answer to roll call with short Christmas stories. Light refreshments, bring sandwiches and doughnuts.

Regular meeting of Mrs. J. Robins Sunday School class of the Congregational church will occur at the home of Mrs. M. Kempton Thursday evening Dec. 9th with pot-luck supper and program. Election of officers. All come.

C. B. VanWert had the pleasure of a family reunion on Thanksgiving. Their son, Ruel, who is employed in a bank at Sturgis, and their daughter, Lucille, who is attending Cleary Business College at Ypsilanti, joined the home circle.

Mr. and Mrs. Oray Holcomb entertained the following guests for Thanksgiving: Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kern of Camden, Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Price and family of Toledo; P. A. Kern and family, W. A. Kern and Herbert E. Kern of Pontiac, Prof. Clark of Hillsdale, Miss Gladys Clark of Ann Arbor, Miss Martha Kern, Miss Zella Mitchell and John A. Kern of Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. George Holcomb.

Next week Friday evening Dec 10th, North Adams high school will debate with Camden high school in North Adams. This will be the second debate of the preliminary series. Our team won the debate with Litchfield and the members of the team are very enthusiastic over the question which is "Resolved—That the Government should own the Coal mines" Camden has the affirmative and North Adams the negative. The question should be of interest to all, and we are looking forward to a good attendance.

CHAPMAN IS LOW

Charles Chapman who was slugged and robbed by a couple of bandits on Nov. 12th is in a very precarious condition with no hope of recovery, and it is only a matter of a few hours until his death, While this old gentleman was about the duties of his store the sluggers and would-be murderers entered and most brutally maltreated him. Some time after the crime it was reported some children from the neighboring school were present and saw the robbers before they assaulted the proprietor, but this has not been substantiated. The method of procedure would lead one to believe the same parties who robbed Grant Wirt, had also committed the Hoxie outrage, but this has not been proven. No doubt these crooks are a little afraid to confess the Hoxie crime as it would be first degree murder in event of Mr. Chapman's death.

We have never been in sympathy with the "snuff eaters" of the South who make a practice of raiding jails and taking prisoners out and hanging them, first riddling their bodies with 32's, but it is a source of regret that the citizens of Hillsdale county are at present very calm and unconcerned,

—Dr. C. J. Howe, Optometris Comfortable glasses, Hilldsale. 42f

Mrs. Carrie Scovill is quite ill at her home, and is being cared for by Mrs. Anna Payne.

The regular meeting of Hive No. 729 L. O. T. M. will occur on Wednesday evening Dec. 8. Election of officers and other important business.

Those who have Radio can get a pretty good report of the Chicago Live Stock Show by listening in each day at about 11:00 a. m. This is reported out by the Sears-Roebuck foundation from the glass studio just inside the big gate of the Stock Yards.

The W. C. T. U. wishes to announce that Mrs. Jennie C. Lipe, the state worker whose success was noted in our last issue will be in North Adams December 12 and 13. All who will help in the Chorus for Sunday evening please meet at 7:30 at the M. E. church, Thursday evening. Program next week.

L. B. Eggleston, who has conducted the Greendale Dairy for some years, and who established the business, has sold out to The Franklin Creamery Co. of Toledo Ohio, and the new concern took possession on Dec. 1st. The Franklin Company have for some time received most of the Greendale product which was retailed at the Detroit branch of their business. We are sorry to learn that Mr. Eggleston is to enter other lines of work. C. Hoffman is the man a er of the plant.

West Hoxie

The Hoxie Ladies bazaar was a big success.

Mildred Sprague spent Thanksgiving at home.

Mrs. Howard Wells visited the Jackson school Tuesday.

We are glad that Carl Selig and wife have decided to stay at their farm.

Mr. Porter ate Thanksgiving dinner at the home of his daughter Mabel in Jackson.

George Hayhoe and wife spent Thursday at the home of Ellsworth Sprague and wife.

Will Bloemker and wife spent Sunday at the Purcell home. Mr. Purcell is some better.

Mrs. Sprague and son Clyde spent Thanksgiving in Toledo with her sister who has been very sick.

Charles Chapman who was seriously hurt by robbers a week ago Friday is very ill with no hopes of recovery.

Iris Sutton of Hillsdale and Roy Householder, Paula More and Ike Magee of Moscow spent Thanksgiving at the Bloemker home.

Ben Pendell and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Duguid of North Adams, Mrs. Pendell's sister from Montgomery and Lillian Pendell of Hillsdale spent Thanksgiving with Will Anderson and family.

Jerome

Mrs. John Evans is very ill at this writing.

I. W. Wertenberger was in Hillsdale Saturday.

Ed Sawdey and wife of Hillsdale visited R. O. Sawdey and wife Sunday.

Harry Alley and Arthur Bovay are attending the Livestock show in Chicago.

About 35 people attended a surprise party at the home of Glenn Miller and wife Saturday evening.

Glenn Marriott who who was injured by a truck several weeks ago has been moved from the Hillsdale hospital to the home of R. L. Talmage in Hillsdale where he is being cared for by Mrs. Marriott.

Thomas VanAllen, Russell Sterling, Dr. Sterling, Wayne Miller, George Lee and wife have returned from a deer hunt in upper Michigan. It is understood that none of he party obtained a deer but Mr. itanAllen bagged a bear.

Methodist Church Calendar

REV. H. E. WYLIE, PASTOR
Morning worship 11:00
Sabbath School 10:00 A. M.
Epworth League 6:00 P. M.
Evening Worship 7:00

BAPTIST CHURCH

A. REISER, PASTOR
Preaching service every Sunday at 10:30 a. m.
Sunday school at 11:45
Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:30.

Congregational Church Calendar

E. C. JANDY, Pastor

Regular morning worship at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school 11:45

For Sale—Duroc Jersey fall pigs 26t2 A. G. Meeks Phone 1402 North Adams

—Good Selection of Silk Miltex Dresses left at $9.96 Corey Hat Shop

The regular annual meeting of the North Adams Switchboard Association will be held at the Town Hall Saturday, Dec. 4th, 1926. 25t2

For Sale—140 shocks corn on the Dan Hoxie farm. Inquire of Flutell Thompson. 27t3

Beans For Sale—Jesse Dewey. Phone 1313 North Adams. 27t3

The Congregational church bazaar will be December 9 and 10. The public is invited to attend. A good dinner will be served on both days and and a complete line of fancy work, aprons, handkerchiefs, quilts and rugs will be for sale also home made candy and home baked food. Come and enjoy a social hour with old friends and buy your Christmas presents. 27t1

Chancery Notice

State of Michigan, First Judicial Circuit, In Chancery. Suit pending in said court wherein Thompson Savings Bank is plaintiff and James F. Sutfin and Carrie Sutfin are defendants. In pursuance of a decree of the circuit court for the county of Hillsdale, in chancery, made and entered on the 29th day of November, 1926, in the above entitled cause, I, the subscriber, a circuit court commissioner for the county of Hillsdale, shall sell at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the courthouse in said city of Hillsdale, in the County of Hillsdale, on the 15th day of January, 1927, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, Central Standard time. all those certain land and premises situate and being in the Township of Pittsford, county of Hillsdale ond state of Michigan, and described as follows to-wit; the east one-half of the northeast quarter of Section 3, Township 7 south, Range 1 west, containing eighty acres of land more or less.

Dated, December 2, 1926.

Glenn E. Miller,
Circuit Court Commissioner
in and for the County of Hillsdale.
B. D. Chandler,
Attorney for Plaintiff, 27t6
Business Address, Hudson Mich.

Bross School Notes

By Myrtle Beach

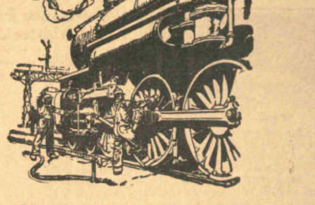
Our border last month was Pilgrim men and women.

We had a short program on armistice day. Mary Routzong was chairman of the program.

Mrs Moore visited our school last month We presentod our citizenship parade and much of our school work for her

The little children had an Indian day last week. They made Indian caps, colored Indian pictures and wrote Indian stories

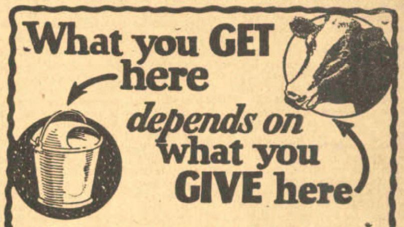
Tuesdays from 12:30 to 1:00 p. m. the boys receive instructions in manual training, and Wednesday noon the girls receive instructions in music. Each class is keeping note books.



What Is the Reason? The locomotive runs at 100 mile clip day in and day out. Because it is fed. Likewise you keep up your daily work by eating of wholesome, juicy steaks at least once a day.

Our Meats and Groceries are always fresh

EDSON J. BENGE



What you GET here depends on what you GIVE here

Did you ever stop to think that what you get in the milk pail you must first put into the feed box?

When production falls off it's easy to blame the cow. But she isn't a magician. She can't make something out of nothing.

A good cow, rightly fed, will pay for herself over and over, year in and year out.

But no cow, wrongly fed, will produce milk profitably for any length of time.

That's why it pays to feed Larro. Larro will produce more profit, dollar for dollar, than any other feed, however little you pay for it.

We can prove this by the actual experience of other dairymen; or by a test with your own cows.

Prices

One Hundred Pounds International Dairy Feed	$1.90
One Hnndred Pounds Hy-grade Corno Oat Feed	1.25
200 pound Cost	$ 3.15
100 pound Cost	1.57

F. I. WILLIAMS & SON

Why Sheetrock is a different wallboard

What it is: Sheetrock is gypsum plaster cast in thick, rigid sheets. It is fireproof, non-warping and permanent. It can be sawed and nailed like lumber. Takes any decoration—wall paper, paint, or Textone in the new stipple finishes.

What it does: Sheetrock makes solid, highly insulating walls and ceilings that keep rooms warm in winter and cool in summer. That means more comfort and lower fuel bills. Then, too, Sheetrock walls and ceilings make buildings dust-tight, sound-proof and vermin-proof.

Where it is used: Sheetrock is the economical wall and ceiling material for many types of new construction and for all remodeling and repairs. It is just the thing for attic rooms, furnace rooms, fruit cellars, garages, offices and stores.

Where to get it: Get your Sheetrock from us. We carry it in standard ceiling heights and widths. Our trucks make prompt deliveries.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
SHEETROCK
THE Fireproof WALLBOARD

GRAVES & FORD LUMBER COMPANY

An Especially Interesting Page on Various Subjects

Prepared for all Classes of People in all Walks of Life

PRITCHARD'S
WEATHER
FORECAST.

Week of December 5

We are looking for generally pleasant weather at the beginning of the week of December 5 in Michigan, with a moderate rise in the temperature. By Monday or Tuesday the sky is expected to become threatening to stormy with increasing winds, and as a result we believe many parts of the state will report damage to trees, wires, etc. The precipitation during this period is not expected to be very heavy.

There is a probability that these storm conditions will hang on until the middle of the week or shortly after. However, we believe the weather will clear up during the latter part of the week and that the temperature will fall to readings below the seasonal normal, which at this time is about 30 degrees for central counties of the state.

General Forecast for Winter

The style in Michigan for the coming winter months will be heavy fur coats with coat collars turned up, mittens on hands and hands in pockets. The most salable articles will be coal, oil and wood.

We are not trying to frighten the readers of this paper, but believe a warning like the above will help many to plan their work to a greater advantage. The fact that the winter will be cold seems almost certain, especially during January and February.

Precipitation will not be as heavy as some winters in the state as a whole, a fact that we believe will be especially noticeable during February, 1927. A lack of snow covering on the fields at this time, especially in the face of alternate thaws and freezes, which we believe will occur during this month, will be very destructive to the fields of grain.

Protest of Rail Merger Is Seen in Action of I. C. C.

The plan of the New York Central Railroad to acquire control under lease of the Big Four, Michigan Central and Chicago, Kalamazoo & Saginaw railroads will be vigorously protested before the Interstate Commerce Commission, it was indicated when the commission permitted various organizations to intervene in the case.

Window Display Man Enters Manufacturing

R. V. Wayne, president of the Wayne Laboratories of Detroit, incorporated Nov. 1 for $50,000 as proprietors of Check, the new cough syrup.

Druggists of Michigan know Mr. Wayne as the head of the Detroit Window Display Service. Mr. Wayne has helped many manufacturers to success in the Detroit field by combining window displays with newspaper advertising.

COUGHS
COLDS
Check
for that Cough!

A two days' Cough is your Danger Signal.

Persistent Coughs and Colds lead to serious troubles. You can stop them now with Check. It soothes and seals the inflamed membranes.

SOLD IN ALL DRUG STORES.

Keep in Trim!

Good Elimination Is Essential to Good Health.

THE kidneys are the blood filters. If they fail to function properly there is apt to be a retention of toxic poisons in the blood. A dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches, headaches, and dizziness are symptoms of this condition. Further evidence of improper kidney function is often found in burning or scanty passage of secretions. Each year more and more people are learning the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, in this condition. Scarcely a nook or hamlet anywhere but has many enthusiastic users. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c

Stimulant Diuretic to the Kianeys
Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chem., Buffalo, N.Y.

MARKS
FURNITURE HOUSE
"Used But Not Abused Furniture"
125 SOUTH DIVISION
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
Some Antiques
When Moving to Grand Rapids Call on Us for Your Furniture.

Intelligence Put as Matter of Heredity

Intelligence is inherited and passed on from generation to generation, according to the findings of a survey undertaken by Grace Allen of Carnegie institute of Pittsburgh, made public through the children's bureau of the Labor department.

Miss Allen reaches the "old conclusion that the highest intelligence comes out of stock that is highly developed on both sides," the announcement said, from a survey of the families of a group of 49 children, showing a high intelligence quotient.

The study was undertaken to aid in discovering how far superior intelligence is a family characteristic, and covered race and nationality, age, occupation and education of the parents rating of the homes, neighborhood conditions and mental status in the families, together with the rate of childbirth.

Play and Long Life Are Closely Allied

Since the life insurance business, one of the most prosperous and consistent in the country, is founded on the premise that the company knows just how long you ought to live, we have every reason to believe that the mortality tables, or whatever the technical name may be, are accurate.

In spite of the fast pace and the exacting requirements of modern business, fewer and fewer men are growing old before their time. And the principal reason for this is that they are learning to play.

It wasn't so very long ago that play was considered something that should be put away with childish things about the time the youth donned long trousers. Happily, the modern man of every age is able to appreciate the benefits of a regular play program in his life. As a result, he is working better and carrying his vitality to a greater age.—Fon du Lac News.

HALF-MILE AIR TUBE

To provide fresh air for mine headings, a flexible tubing which has an efficient air-delivery range of one-half mile from the fan has been tested by the bureau of mines, says Scientific American, and is giving satisfaction in both metal and coal mines.

This tubing is made of a heavy fabric thoroughly impregnated with fungus-and-acid-resisting compounds. It is light in weight—one man can readily carry 200 feet; and it can be quickly installed—one man in a timbered tunnel can put up over 400 feet in two hours.

Random Remarks

Doubt indulged becomes doubt realized.

Few minds wear out—more rust out.—Bovee.

To err is human, even though it may seem divine.

Forgetting a grouch will make it leave home.

Modesty is the citadel of beauty and virtue.—Demades.

It isn't the enemies outside a town that hurt it most.

If wrong our hearts, our heads are right in vain.—Young.

Gossip is the henchman of rumor and scandal.—Feuillet.

No one can exist in society without some specialty.—Taine.

Success at first doth many times undo men at last.—Venning.

The mother's heart is the child's schoolroom.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Men must not turn bees and kill themselves in stinging others.—Bacon.

Knowledge is the treasure, but judgment is the treasurer of a wise man.—Penn.

A man must stand erect, not to be kept erect by others.—Marcus Aurelius.

Sympathy, like ambition, has to be translated into action to be worth anything.

There isn't much hope for the fellow who is too busy to attend to his own business.

Let useful observations be at least some part of the subject of your conversation.—Watts.

"The self-earned property is the safest, sanest teacher of respect for the other fellow's property."

Fashion Has Put a Ban On Belle Fin Ghosts

There was once a time when ghosts were the fashion. Now the influence of the ghost, especially the vampire ghost, is becoming weaker and weaker everywhere. Scotland and Ireland, two countries that once supplied the entire world with them, have seen a distinct lessening in their exports, says Paul Morland in Vanity Fair.

The beautiful day of the Gothic castles, a la Walter Scott, is no more. Ghosts, reactionary by nature, have left Germany in the wake of the landed nobility—in spite of the immense and fictitious exploitation that was made of ghostly chronicles by the German cinema.

And if in the United States one should hear once more the clanking of chains in the middle of the night one might be quite sure that it was not caused by any specter, but by a flivver returning home late at night.

A Matter of Size

He—I am not such a big fool as I used to me.

She—I thought you looked thinner.

Roberta Risks It

© MARGARET CAMERON LEWIS

"No. Truly, Mr. Brazenose, you're awfully good, but you must not get into this. It—it's almost kidnapping, you know."

"Kidding's the best thing I do," was his flippant reply. "If they'll nap while we kid, we're all right. Only I've got to know pretty soon where we're going, because when we get out of town we're going to hit it up. You might as well come through," he said with a laugh, when she did not reply. "You can't do it alone, you know. Together we have a sporting chance. Anyway, suppose you did get her out all by yourself. What would you do with her?"

"We'd go somewhere and work, until—until I could make other arrangements. I've got that all planned."

"Huh! A fat chance you'd have of getting away with it! Two girls like you! There's going to be a large hullaballoo when she turns up missing and they'd get you sure. But—well—I've done pretty well so far, haven't I?"

"You've been a perfect wonder!"

"All right. Then that's settled. Now tell me where you're going."

"I'll have to tell you something else first," she said in a small voice behind her veil. "I—I lied to you. My name's not Rowena Smith. It's Roberta Scott."

"Roberta Scott, eh? All right. Roberta—Caesar's ghost! You're not Robert K. Scott's daughter?"

"Yes, I am."

"Well, can you beat that! Why, he's G. A.!"

"He's G. A.? You mean the man you told me about this morning?"

"Sure. I wondered how there could be two like that."

"You said you did business with him."

"We do. Quite a lot. He makes the shuttle we use in our automatic loom."

She swept aside her veil, showing him a white, tense face. "Then that settles it! You can't have anything more to do with this."

"Why can't I?"

"Because he never forgives anybody, and if he finds out—and he's sure to—he'll break you. He will, Mr. Brazenose, one way or another."

Remembering several men whom Scott was reported to have broken, and his reputation for Tartarean implacability, together with the threat of disinheritance hanging over his own head, Piggy thought that this was quite possible. But even had he known of a bomb thrown into the Brazenose citadel that very morning by Scott, it is doubtful whether the resultant consternation would have given him pause, for his fighting blood was up.

"The answer to that is to break him first," he returned, out of his experience with the bullying type in sports.

"It can't be done. Lots of men have tried."

" know oneI who could do it, if he would. But he wouldn't." He was thinking of his father.

"Please don't try to go on with this," she begged. "Take me to a hotel. "I'll accept the money now. You can loan me all you will. But please, please let me do this my own way. It doesn't matter about me. I'm already disowned and cast out. He can't do anything more to me. But I couldn't bear to know that you—"

"Look here, what do you think I am?" he indignantly interrupted. "A quitter?"

"Oh, no! I know you're not, but—"

"You're up against a stiff proposition, aren't you? And I said I'd see you through, didn't I? Well, if you think I'm going to back down now just because you happen to be G. A.'s daughter, you've got another guess coming. I got into this of my own accord and I'm going to stick. Maybe we can pull it off without his finding out who I am. I told dad I was beating it for the woods, and the servants know I brought my hunting kit and started off in the car, so he'll think I'm shooting. Maybe I will be before this is over! But whether I am or not—whether they find out or not—I'm going to play this game to the finish. I'm no quitter!"

With these brave words he settled a little lower behind the wheel and stepped on the gas. She pulled her veil over her face again and a silence fell between them. Five minutes later he growled:

"Where are we going, anyhow?"

She replied faintly: "Southern New Hampshire. Hartford and Worcester—and then north. That's the best way. I know the roads."

There was no more talk for an hour. But in Piggy's mind three words repeated themselves over and over as he reviewed the situation and its possibilities.

"Well—I'll be—Well I'll be—"

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Deciding to avoid New Haven, where he was widely and more or less favorably known among the college men, Piggy chose the longer route via Danbury and Waterbury; and as automobiles were less numerous then than now, speed laws less drastic, and traffic officers few and far between, his progress along the country highways left a wake of purple invective emanating from indignant citizens who conceived that they and their vehicles had narrowly escaped annihilation, though he drove with circumspection through the settlements.

They talked little. Once Roberta inquired whether he had any plan for rescuing her sister, and he answered that he was thinking it out. And once he asked whether she could comfortably wait for dinner until they reached Hartford, to which she agreed. Waterbury had been left behind when he spoke again.

"What are the nearest town to this place we're going?"

"Keene, Dublin, Peterborough, Jaffrey."

"Hully gee! I know a lot of the crowd who summer in that Monadnock country. I ought to have got a wig! Well—maybe they'll have gone home now. Do they know you in those towns?"

"Some of them might. I spent the summer there three years ago."

"Isn't there some place near by where they would not?"

She meditated awhile. "There's a village over on the Fitchburg road, but I can't remember the name of it. It's Fitz-something. Fitzroy? No—Fitzwilliam. That's it. But it's a long way from Birchwood. That's the name of father's place."

"So much the better. They won't be looking for you there. Suppose we can find a furnished house for rent?"

"A house!"

"Sure. We can't risk a hotel. Small-town hotel-keepers are curious, and we may have to do some queerish things. We can't pull this off in a minute, you know, and we've got to have same base that's fairly safe. You're Mrs. Rowena Smith, a broken-hearted widow, looking for a lonesome lodge in some vast wilderness where you can mourn and mourn. I can stay at a hotel. By the way, is there such a thing in this burg you spoke of?"

"I'm not sure. I think so."

"Well, I'll find some sort of place. A common chauffeur like me can bunk anywhere, but you've got to retire from the world to mourn properly. Gosh! Why didn't I think of that before? You ought to have a maid."

"But we're not going to stay up here."

"We're going to stay until we pull it off and we don't want to attract any more attention than we have to. Women like you don't have swagger chauffeurs and no maids. We've got to do this thing right or we'll fall down. If I'd thought in time I'd have brought Janet. I'll send for her, by jinks.!"

"Who's Janet?"

"An ex-housekeeper of ours. Scotch and a perfect old clam. Lives with her sister in Brooklyn now. She ran our house for years, and then dad pensioned her. She'll do anything on earth for me and neer open her head about it. She saved me many a licking when I was a kid. We can tell her everything, or nothing. She'll scowl, anyhow, but she'll see us through." He chuckled delightedly. "She's so darn respectable, too. We could commit murder and get away with it, with Janet behind us. How do you get to this place by rail?"

They discussed several routes, all involving one or more changes from one road to another, and at last she suggested that Janet could take a through train from New York to Greenfield, where Piggy could meet her with the car, as it was within easy driving distance from their destination.

"That's better," he said. "I'll wire her from Hartford."

Accordingly he drove to the Hartford station, found the schedule he sought, and telegraphed Miss Janet McDougall to take a certain train the next day for Greenfield, where he would meet her late in the afternoon. He signed it Hempie, which was what she had always called him when his offenses against decorum had been particularly flagrant. It is a Scots word signifying fit for hanging, and would be a sufficient warning to the experienced Janet to keep her own counsel regarding her sudden journey. It would also tell that the case was urgent.

Pleased with this happy device, he was turning away from the telegraph desk when a heavy hand smote him between the shoulders and a heavy voice boomed jovially:

"Hello, Piggy! what you doing here?"

"Hello, Brick," he returned, inwardly cursing as he shook hands with a former classmate. "Same to you. Off your beat, aren't you?"

"No, my married sister lives here. I thought I saw that red devil-wagon of yours outside."

"Mine?" Piggy opened innocent eyes. "Guess again. I left it at a garage to have the fan belt fixed."

"Like hell you did!" Brainerd Melvin, a red-haired giant with close-set, inquisitive blue eyes, poked him in the ribs, chuckling.

"Who's the lady?"

"What lady?"

"Oh, come off, Piggy! Your car's out there with a woman in it."

"Rats!" quoth young Brazenose scornfully. "Women aren't in my line and you know it, you crazy lunatic. I'm off on a hunting trip with another fellow."

"You don't say!" Melvin looked him over owlishly, and Piggy was smitten with a consciousness that his raiment was more suggestive of Fifth Avenue than of the wildwood.

"We're going to stop at a house or two on the way," he improvised, "and then maybe run on up into Canada, if the weather's good."

"Who's your friend?" Melvin asked, half convinced. "Anybody I know?"

"No. He's an important customer of ours from the west. Waiting for a train?"

"Yes. Jim Lamont's due in a minute or two. Bring your friend up to the house and we'll have a game."

"Wish I could, but we're due in Springfield tonight. Been there now if it hadn't been for that darn belt. I've got to hop along. Glad I met you Brick."

"Wait a minute and I'll drive you uptown. Jim's train is due now."

Unwilling to rearouse Melvin's suspicions, Piggy waited. Later the three men walked directly past Roberta, who sat motionless and unrevealing, muffled in her black veil.

"That's the car," Melvin said in a low tone.

Piggy glanced at it critically. "Same model as mine. But you must have thought I was off on a sobbing bee, Brick," he added, as they passed on. "That woman's covered with crepe."

Melvin laughed. "Well, you never can tell. Where'd you leave your devil-chaser? I'll drive you around."

"I dunno. Some place near the hotel. Didn't notice the name. Drop me at a drug store, anyhow. I've got to buy some stuff."

CHAPTER TWELVE

Breathing more freely when his friends had left him, Piggy made certain purchases, and with these under his arm and a wary eye out for acquaintances, returned to Roberta.

"Sorry to keep you waiting," he said, half under his breath, but I met a man I knew and had to lie like a trooper. Guess I put it over, though. Anyway, I'm primed for 'em now, all right."

"How?"

"Tell you later. Will sandwiches and doughnuts and fruit be enough dinner for you? I've got a thermos of hot coffee and some paper cups. But I'm afraid to tackle a restaurant. I know too darn many people in this neck o' woods."

She said this would satisfy her, and they drove through obscure, deserted streets until the danger of recognition was past. A few miles outside the city he turned into a narrow, little-used country lane overhung with trees, and there, sitting on a rug in the glow of the headlights, they made their frugal meal.

"Mind if I call you Bob?" he asked. "I've never had much to do with girls, and there's no sense in calling you Miss Scott, anyhow. You seem just like another fellow."

Her lips twitched at the corners, but she replied: "I don't mind at all. We're partners now, for a little while. What shall I call you?"

"John." He rejoiced that at last a time had come when he could assume, even temporarily, a sensible, solid-sounding name that a man needn't be ashamed of. "John Anderson."

"My Jo-John?" she flashed back, and then bit her lip.

But Piggy, being neither musical nor sentimental, was unfamiliar with the words of the old ballad, and looked blank. "What's that?"

(To be continued)

Classified Advertisements
MISCELLANEOUS

SEND 25c FOR WONDERFUL HAIR TONIC Formula and own a fine head of hair. Dr. Guy Northern, 1816 12th St., N. W., Washington, D. C. E-62-63

160 ACRES ALL TILLABLE PRAIRIE land near Faith, S. D., for sale, $1,200.00. Assume a mortgage of $400.00; terms, $600.00 cash. Write F. D. Rhodes, Mobridge, S. D.

TWO ORCHARDS FOR SALE NEAR Raleigh, the best fruit market in the United States, therefore no transportation to pay. Dr. J. R. Lowery, Raleigh, N. C.

DR. E. HENRY MORIARTY
at the
MORIARTY CANCER SANITARIUM
Specializing in the treatment of cancer without the use of knife or electricity.
Reference given on request.
1411 E. FULTON ST. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Jim never slowed down Till they put him in a hearse.

A Legal Reserve Automobile Insurance Policy at Lower Rates—No Assessments
REPUBLIC
Automobile Insurance Underwriters
WE WANT AN AGENT IN YOUR VICINITY
2163 Jefferson Ave., East, at Dubois
Detroit, Michigan

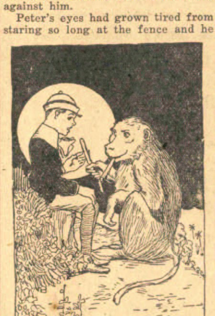
Peter's Adventures In Animal Land

FROM FIRST TO LAST

"Now you see it, now you don't," whispered Peter to his comrade after the Boy had tried in vain to make out what that thing was that so mysteriously appeared and disappeared between the rails of the far-off fence.

But the Baboon made no reply giving an impatient shrug of his shoulder as the boy leaned too closely against him.

Peter's eyes had grown tired from staring so long at the fence and he closed them for a moment, and when he opened them again he gave a start of surprise. Slowly, silently but surely the line had lengthened. Now the first Baboon was crouching near that fence. And as the Boy watched the leader moved. The Baboon next to the leader moved, then so did the third fellow and the fourth and the fifth. A ripple passed along the line.



"A STICK OF CANE" GASPED THE BOY "WHERE DID IT COME FROM?"

"What are your comrades up to now?" Peter knew his neighbor didn't wish to talk, but he couldn't keep his curiosity in check any longer. And the answer to his question came in most unexpected fashion.

"Hold out your hand!" The demand was given in a whisper.

Peter did as he was told. Something long and smooth and sticky was slipped into it, and the Boy's arm released.

"A stick of cane!" gasped Peter. "Where did it come from?"

"Straight from the cane field, of course!" coughed his comrade, and "Look, I have a piece, too!" And he held his stick up for the Boy to see.

"But—why—I don't understand! Why, you are the last Baboon on the line! How did you get it up here? Peter was puzzled.

His companion was blissfully sucking the juice from his stalk, but he stopped long enough to reply.

"Can't you guess?" the Baboon grinned. "'Twas passed along the line. Old Chacma went first and plucked it. Then he passed it to Trusty and Trusty passed it to Quick-Wits and Quick-Wits passed it on to the first fellow on this side of the fence and so on and so on until at last it reached you and me. Before we get through every one of us shall have as much cane as we can carry, to say nothing of the nibbles we take between times while waiting the order to break ranks and make for the grove."

Next: "Everybody's Doing It."

Points "Unloaded" Gun At Brother; He'll Live

Manistee—Believing the weapon was not loaded Alex McNiel, 14, son of a Manistee township farmer, pointed a 22-caliber rifle at his brother, Finley, 10, as they were playing Indian and pulled the trigger.

The bullet broke one of the lad's ribs and glanced under another rib near his spine. On operation failed to locate the bullet. Finley's condition is not considered serious.

This was the first shooting accident here this fall.

U. W. No. 762—11-29—1926.

THE FACTS ARE FREE—

Ask Us

About High Returns with Safety from our Land Contract Securities

EVERY MICHIGAN INVESTOR SHOULD BE POSTED ON

FENTON · SMITH & SAFFIR
LAND CONTRACTS
Yielding up to 12 and 15% Annually

Like every investor you are interested in thoroughly safe large yield investments. We can give you facts about Land Contract securities which prove them the kind of investment that thoughtful, careful men prefer.

Perhaps you have not considered Land Contracts as an investment possibility. The advantages of high return and complete safety which they offer are such that you can not afford to overlook them any longer. The soundness of Land Contract securities attract the most careful investors and they earn you anywhere from 12 to 15% annually.

All the Land Contracts we offer have Detroit homes behind them, homes built for reputable, well employed heads of families who have made substantial down payments. The conservative mortgages on these properties are held by Detroit banks and trust companies. Let us tell you the whole Land Contract story. The information costs you nothing and you are not obligated in any way.

You can have the complete facts without obligation by returning the coupon.

FENTON · SMITH & SAFFIR
INVESTMENT BANKERS
24th Floor, First National Bank Building
DETROIT, MICHIGAN

COUPON
FENTON, SMITH & SAFFIR,
24th Floor, First National Bank Bldg.,
DETROIT, MICH.
Without obligation to me, send me complete facts about your Land Contract Securites.
Name ______
Street Address ______
City ______ Mich.
COUPON

A Page Prepared Expressly For The Rural Home Makers

Farming—Horticulture—Fruit Growing—Stock Raising

RECALLS RAVAGE TO FARMERS' CROPS BY INDIANS' PONIES

Tales of early days spent among the redskins at Pound Hill, a small settlement two miles northwest of Memphis, are told by Charles Wesley DeLand, oldest remaining settler of Riley township. Pound Hill derived its name from the fact that a pound was built on top of a hill to confine the Indians' ponies, which continually overran the country and destroyed the crops of the few white settlers. The pound did not prove a success, DeLand recalls. As soon as the Indians had paid for the damages which had been done the ponies were at liberty to roam again.

Hunting and trapping formed the employment of the braves during the winter. With the coming of spring preparations were made for a trip to Saginaw to dispose of the furs. Frames were placed on the ponies' backs and the merchandise was piled on them. The squaws rode on top of the load. The journey to Saginaw and back covered about three weeks, as only a short distance was traveled each day.

Chicken Mites Destroyed By Thorough Disinfection

The common red mite of the chicken is responsible for a large part of the loss suffered annually by poultry raisers. Yet it may be dealt with rather easily and very effectively.

This mite is a parasite about 1-25th of an inch in length. It has dark spots upon it and is greyish in color before feeding. After it has become engorged upon the blood of fowls it takes on a reddish appearance.

At night the mite emerges from its hiding place and with its shart mouth parts pierces the skin of the fowls and sucks the blood, returning for the day to some secluded crack in or near the roost and building on any filth that may be in the hen house. In case of setting hens the mite may remain upon the bird both day and night. Mites lay their eggs in crevices about the perch and also in the droppings. The young hatch in a few days and grow rapidly for about ten days, when they reach maturity.

In severe cases of infection the head and comb of the fowls become pale. The birds look sickly, their feathers become ruffled, and shedding is prevalent. They may be noted picking at their feathers to remove the parasites. Such hens become droopy and generally stop laying. Setting hens often leave their nests and cases have been recorded where fowls actually die from the parasitic effects.

Treatment is rather simple because the parasites leaves the fowls during the day and breed in cracks and filth. Cleaning up all filth and thoroughly disinfecting the building, roosts, and nests with creosote, cresol-kerosene paint, Cresol soap or white-washing will prove very effective. One of these treatments should be repeated as soon as necessary. The droppings should be removed often and the houses kept clean. Plenty of good ventilation, cleanliness and sunlight will prevent the development of this pest.—C. R. Jones, Tssistant Entomologist, C. A. C.

Had Been There

Jill, you ought to have seen Jack when he proposed.

Joan—Oh, I have seen him.

CARPENTER'S The Original LIQUID COURT PLASTER
15
Antiseptic! Protects & Heals
AT ALL DRUG STORES

Get Settled

You surely don't intend to stay on your present job all your life. Become a barber the Moler way—from our school to independence in a shop of your own is a short and easy step. Change for better now. Write for free booklet today!

Moler Barber Colleges

33 Years Established 32 Branches
559 Michigan Ave., Detroit.

In Detroit
It is the Tuller
For Value
Facing Grand Circus Park, the heart of Detroit. 800 pleasant rooms, $2.50 and up. Ward B. James, Manager.
DETROIT, MICH.
HOTEL
TULLER

Cheap Livestock Shelter Can Be Made of Straw

A cheap shelter for livestock can be made from old straw stacks with a very small outlay of money. The structure will be temporary, but nevertheless it will give a good protection.

Where the straw is stacked close to the cattle yards very little labor is required. The straw is removed from the middle of the stock to a height of about seven feet. As the straw is removed supports are put in to keep the straw from falling down either from the top or the sides. Any old posts or old lumber or even old brush can be used for supports to keep the straw in place. The shed is made as deep and as long as the stack will permit. The opening should be made on the south.

If the straw must be hauled to the yards some method must be used to enclose the wall of straw. Mark out the inside size of the shed on the ground where it is to be placed. Enclose this space on three sides with a fence of wire netting or other fence material available. Two feet on the outside of this fence and parallel to it put up another fence. The height of the fence should be equal to the desired height of the walls.

The space between is filled with straw and well packed which serves as the walls. The roof can be made either of boards or of straw when proper supports are available. The board roof is perhaps the most desirable.

Select Farm Name as Carefully as Baby's

Names aid in distinguishing farms just as surely as they serve in recognizing individuals, declare advertising specialists.

The selection of an appropriate name is one of the first steps in business farming. The named farm is set aside, distinctive, from the unnamed farms in the community, and its name may help to establish a reputation for quality products.

The farm name, according to the advertisers, should be short and distinctive so that it may be easily read and remembered. Two and three word names are better than longer names. Used as the name for both the home and the business, it should be appropriate for each, carrying an appeal for all who may see it, whether they are business men, visitors in the home or tourists. Heart's Delight is not appropriate as the business name of the farm nor is R. B. Johnson's Utility Stock Farm desirable as the name of a home.

The name may be selected from an appropriate landmark or a distinctive feature of the farm, such as Twin Oaks or Lone Pine. Local historical events, Indian legends and even the location may furnish suggestions for the name. Many farm owners have incorporated the principal products of their farm into the name, as Guernweal Farm which specializes in Guernsey cattle and Wealthy apples. Others have used their own name either singly or with a suffix as Gordondale, obtained by adding "dale" to the owner's name.

Roadside signs, advertising in the local and farm papers and all printed matter may be improved by displaying in a prominent position the name of the farm.

What to Do With The Small Surplus

Twelve little apples, bound to be a loss—
Send 'em to the orphans, they'll thrive on apple sauce.
Two little pumpkins—don't let them lie;
Send 'em to the old folks' home for good old pumpkin pie.

* * *

Apples, pumpkins, potatoes, grapes, with or without rhymes, generally leave a surplus behind. When market is over, the quantities of produce shipped away, and the home supplies stored safely in bins and cellars, there are leftovers. Many a gardener frowns when he thinks of the waste, but does nothing about it. Many a housewife puts up more than she needs because she hates to see the garden truck spoil.

Only a few miles away there may be a hospital with many beds, or a humble home with a little shut-in. Either of them would welcome visitors bearing some of the season's surpius. Testimony from charitable institutions is strong. "We are very grateful for the fruits and vegetables you sent us," they say over and over in messages to the givers. In bringing together those who have more with those who have less, the following suggestions may help:

First, the need. In every community there are individuals and charitable institutions that appreciate gifts of fruit and vegetables. Often they have only limited funds with which to buy anything more than the bare necessities.

Second, the resources. Practically every farmer and gardener has something that he can spare for those in greater need. In many cases this amounts to heavy waste.

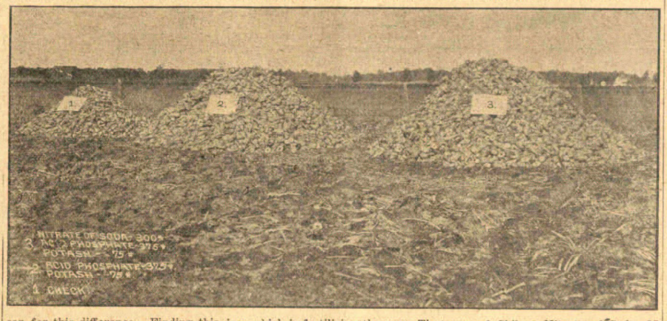
Third, the distribution. In most cities and communities the Red Cross worker, the Associated Charities or the minister will make suggestions.

"Conservation of food products" is an abstract term. What is urged here is prompt and liberal action on the part of readers so that red-headed Jimmy, at the orphans' home, can set his hungry teeth into a juicy apple that he would not otherwise have had.

Some Beet Experiments With Fertilizers

By B. T. BROTHERS

THE sugar beet fields of the United States are trailing those of Europe in yield per acre. European beet growers raise 14 tons of beets to the acre as compared with 10 tons, the average yield in this country. Putting this on the basis of the refined product Europe raises 4,000 lbs. of refined sugar per acre to 3,000 lbs. per acre in this country. This means that Europe raises 1,000 pounds or 40 per cent more sugar to the acre than we do. There must be a real reason for this difference. Finding this reason and correcting the defect would mean much to the growers in this country who must meet foreign competition.



It might be well, therefore, to review some recent experimental work in beet growing and fertilization in an effort to find some leaks in sugar beet growing as we do it. First of all it is well to call attention to a long common mistake held among beet growers that only certain soils will grow sugar beets. Although it is well to concede that there are such things as corn lands, potato lands and grass lands on which these certain crops grow best, yet recent experiments in sugar beet growing prove one thing conclusively, which is that the fertilizer used has more to do with the success in production than does soil type. However, this does not mean that all the crop needs, is a soil to grow in and the right kind of fertilizer. Sugar beets, like corn, cannot do their best unless the soil is well drained and warm. Neither will it do its best on a soil of improper tilth. But it does mean that if a soil is systematically managed it will grow a good sugar beet crop if the climate is right. Even heavy clay soils have given way before consistent liming and have produced good beet crops.

Right here we should emphasize the value of lime, not only as a soil sweetener but also to provide that friability that a good sugar beet soil must have. Consistent liming, fall plowing and deep cultivation of the crop have brought many heavy soils into production. Deep cultivation is necessary because sugar beets are unable to burrow for food and bring it up from the subsoil. Furthermore, deep cultivation makes possible a well proportioned tap-root which means a high sugar content.

In many sugar beet fields of Michigan and other states, commercial fertilizers are little used or understood. Many low-grade, low-priced, mixtures are applied and nitrogen, the most important constituent in a sugar beet fertilizer, is frequently lacking, or is present in inadequate quantities, and in a more or less unavoidable form.

With these brief considerations we will pass on to a review of the most important factor in sugar beet growing, which is fertilizing the crop. The Educational Bureau of the Chilean Nitrate of Soda during the past sugar beet season, 1925, carried on experiments co-operating with the Michigan Sugar company's branches located at Alma, Caro and Bay City, Michigan.

These experiments were laid out in three plots of one acre each. In order that our plan may be more readily understood, we have illustrated the crop yielded from one of the sugar beet experimental plots in the photograph by showing the varied sizes of the yields obtained from the three plots, which was taken on Mr. Jothan Allen's farm at Ithaca, Michigan. Each pile represents the yield from one acre. Plot No. 2, received three hundred and seventy-five (375) pounds of Acid Phosphate and seventy-five (75) pounds of Potash; Plot No. 3 received three hundred (300) pounds of acid phosphate and seventy-five (75) pounds of Potash.

Nitrate of Soda was used as the nitrogen carrier, 16% acid phosphate the phosphorus carried and 50% muriate potash as the potash carrier in in the fertilizer mixture. These three simples were purchased separately and then mixed thoroughly and broadcasted with a grain drill which had a fertilizer attachment. This application being made prior to seeding the beets. It is best to broadcast such a concentrated fertilizer before seeding rather than to apply it with the seeds. We have found this to be true from experiments carried on in 1922 and 1923 in Michigan where William S. Meyers, director, Educational Bureau of Chilean Nitrate of Soda, 25 Madison avenue, New York, co-operated, that so concentrated a fertilizer applied with the seeds retards germination.

The following gives the yields and percentage increase obtained from Mr. Allen's experiment as described above, and also shown in the photograph: Pile No. 1 yielded 4,510 pounds of sugar beets; Pile No. 2 yielded 17,230 pounds of sugar beets, and Pile No. 3 yielded 24,680 pounds of sugar beets. Pile 3 over 2 gave an increase of 43.24 per cent, which was due to the application of three hundred pounds of Nitrate of Soda, and pile 3 over 1 gave an increase of 447.22 per cent.

The same type of experiments with the same rate of applications of fertilizer per acre on each plot was carried on by Mr. E. W. Irwin at Saginaw, Michigan, and Mr. Chris Miller at Caro, Michigan, where yields and percentage shown in the table were obtained.

Results from the Application of Nitrate of Soda on Sugar Beets in Michigan

Name and Address	Plot Yields per Acre			Percentage Increase
	3	2	1	3 over 2	3 over 1
E. W. Irwin, Saginaw	40,851	36,230	13,431	12.75	48.98
Chris Miller, Caro	30,140	28,757	22,683	4.8	32.87

Results of Same Application of Fertilizer on Experiments in Indiana and Wisconsin

Name and Address	Plot Yields per Acre			Percentage Increase
	3	2	1	3 over 2	3 over 1
John J. Schwartz, Berne, Indiana	17,878	13,734	8,433	30.2	112.
L. M. Decker, Evansville, Wis.	32,100	23,565	20,020	36.21	60.33

These experiments were carried on on sugar beet type of soils, which, in most cases, was a heavy clay loam.

STORING POTATOES TO KEEP THEM WELL

Piling potatoes too deep or confining them in bins from which the air is excluded may result in the formation of dark brown or black areas in the center of the potatoes commonly known as blackheart. Too high a temperature in the storage place will also produce these symptoms, but exclusion of air, even at low temperatures, always results in loss from blackheart. These facts have been brought out by experiments made at the state experiment station at Geneva, where the effects of storing potatoes in different ways have been given special study.

If the tubers are to be stored at temperatures below 45 degrees Fahrenheit, they can be piled to a depth of six feet without danger of too closely confining the tubers on the bottom of the pile and leading to the development of blackheart, says the tsation potato specialist. Where the storage place will have a temperature of 50 degrees or more, however, as is the case in most home cellars, it is regarded as unsafe to pile potatoes to a depth of more than three feet if they are to be kept longer than three or four weeks.

Potatoes stored out of doors in pits on the station grounds also showed blackheart, due it is believed, to insufficient ventilation. As a rule, however, outdoor pits are probably well enough ventilated to make it unnecessary to provide special ventilation, it is said. Where potatoes have to be shipped long distances during cold weather blackheart may develop from overheating of the car in transit.

Severely blackhearted potatoes are unfit for seed purposes, but since blackheart is not a disease, it is declared that sound potatoes in the same lot or potatoes only slightly injured may be safely used for seed.

Final estimates of property loss in the Florida hurricane place it at 195 million dollars. But maybe it will come back. A piece of Miami property since the storm sold for $4,000 a front foot in real money.

12 Hour Day is Called Ample for Laying Hen

A 12-hour working day is enough for laying hens, advises J. A. Hannah, poultry extension specialist at Michigan State college and secretary of the Michigan Poultry Improvement association, in a letter to Michigan poultrymen cautioning them against excessive use of artificial lights in the laying houses.

There is danger of injuring the hatchability of the eggs if the lights are burned to prolong the winter days more than 12 hours, Hannah states.

Replaces Father

Dr. William Russell.

Dr. William Russell (above) succeeds his father, Dr. James E. Russell, as dean of Teachers' College, Columbia University. Dean Russell will remain as Dean Emeritus and Barnard Professor of Education.

Pit Storage Often Used Where Cellars Are Warm

Pit storage is used quite extensively by families living in towns or cities, where the house cellars or basements are too warm.

There are several kinds of pits. The ordinary pit is simply an excavation four to five feet deep. This is lined with clean fresh straw six to eight inches deep. The vegetables are then packed in, either together or sparatly, to about one and one-half to two feet of the surface, then covered with straw. The straw is kept loose until severe weather sets in, when it is packed down and more straw added. The chief objection to this type of storage is its inaccessibility during the winter months, though during a mild spell the pit may be opened.

Another type of storage that has proved a success is a large sugar barrel sunk into the ground to the top. Pack the vegetables in the barrel and cover heavily with straw.

Storing celery for Christmas is best done in a trench. The trench should be two feet deep and two feet wide and of any desired length. The whole celery plant, roots and all, are then set upright in the trench close together and the soil packed around the roots. The soil should be moist but not wet. The celery should be dry when stored. Place a board cover over the trench and cover with straw, sufficient to keep out frost. Only first class plants should be stored. Diseased or broken plants should be discarded; for if stored, decay will set in and spoil them.

Never store vegetables that are not in first class condition. They should be mature and the surface moisture dried off before storing.

RAISED GASOLINE WHEAT

Tom Gray, a farmer near Hutchinson, Kan., raised a 1,760-acre crop of wheat this year with gasoline power exclusively. There is not a horse or mule on the farm. Gasoline tractors pulled plows, drills and disks across the fields. Four big tractors and three combines cut and threshed it. A fleet of motor trucks hauled the grain to market. The total yield was more than 45,000 bushels.

"Pick-your-own" Is Latest Aid for Orchard Owners

Many orchard owners in western Michigan this year have found that the demand for fruit in seasons of bumper crops can be stimulated by appealing to city folks to "pick their own."

"Pick your own" signs were posted along the highways during the peach and plum season and as a result thousands of bushels of these fruits moved to market that otherwise might have rotted upon the trees for want of a profitable market.

There is a certain fascination about "picking your own" that lures city folks to buy more than they originally intended, fruit growers report. Many urbanites entered peach orchards with intentions of picking only a bushel, but it was so much "fun" and the fruit on the trees looked so tempting that many picked two and three times as many.

Tab Reveals Tax Burden on Farms

Decline in gross returns, increase of taxes, and a lowered purchasing power for the farmer, have combined to bring about a situation in Michigan rural districts as serious as any in the northwestern states, where agrarian discontent has attracted the attention of the entire country, according to a report issued by R. Wayne Newton, research economist at Michigan State college.

Early returns on an extensive investigation being conducted by the United States department of agriculture, indicate that farm land taxes are consuming two or three times as much of the rental value of Michigan farms as they did seven years ago. Newton reports that from preliminary tabulations it is shown that in Allegan, Berrien, Lapeer, Kent, Lenawee, Charlevoix and Antrim counties, taxes have consumed an average of 50 per cent or more of the net rents in one or more of the years 1919, 1922 and 1925.

In four of these counties, taxes have at times run from 70 to 85 per cent of the land's rental value.

Cold Weather Mushrooms

Mushrooms which thrive in the late fall and during mild spells in the winter come at a time of year when mushrooms are a luxury and make a valuable addition to the diet, declares a botanist who has made a study of mushrooms. Also, there is practically no danger of confusing the fall and winter mushrooms with poisonous kinds which cannot stand cold weather.

Two cold weather mushrooms found quite commonly in the woods in the late fall and during mild periods throughout the winter are the oyster mushroom and the velvet-stemmed Collybia.

"Oyster mushrooms are found on dead tree trunks, stumps, and logs, and are easily distinguished by their whitish or smoke-colored caps which have an oyster shell shape," says the station botanist. "The caps grow in dense clusters and closely overlap one another, a characteristic which distinguishes this mushroom from the poisonous kinds that grow singly.

"The velvet-stemmed Collybia is so characteristic in its habit of growth and coloring that no one can very well go wrong on it. This mushroom also grows in dense clusters on stumps, logs, and buried wood, but it has a reddish yellow cap, white gills, and a velvety grown stem. These markings render it quite conspicuous.

"The caps of the velvet-stemmed Collybia may freeze and thaw several times without injuring them for food. Also, surplus quantities may be dried and stored in a dry place for future use. Soaking in water a short time before cooking will revive the caps."

LAND CONTRACTS
Yield 12% to 15%
FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS
Secured by Improved
DETROIT REAL ESTATE
H. A. BENJAMIN & COMPANY
Investment Bankers
MEMBERS
Detroit Stock Exchange
905 Dime Bank Bldg.
Phones, Cadillac 1460-2892
DETROIT, MICH.
FURTHER INFORMATION SENT ON REQUEST

WINTER MEANS TO OVERHAUL OLD CAR

Winter is the most exacting time of year on automobile performance. It is during this period that the little things about the car which ordinarily would go unnoticed during the spring, summer and fall months develop into serious trouble.

Motors get cold and hard to start with the consequent drain on the battery, valves do not always function properly, oil congeals in the transmission and differential and makes gears hard to shift as well as cars hard to get under way, the clutch shifts harder and so on down through the thousand and one things that, coordinating, make for the satisfactory operation of an automobile.

The experienced motorist, with the coming of cold weather, remembers troubles of other years and sets about to profit by it. He takes his car into the service station and has it checked over and whatever work necessary done. Next he visits his battery man, if the service station does not operate a battery department, and sees that his battery is in good condition. A good battery is more essential during the winter months than any other time of the year.

Cars are harder to start and lights are burned more hours a day with the consequent greater drain on it. To offset this there are not the long trips over week-ends or even the drive at nights to help charge the battery as in the summer months. It is estimated that in ordinary service the battery is called on to do 50 per cent more work than during the summer.

In the matter of oil, care should be used. A lighter oil is recommended for winter. Likewise, it should be changed more often because the frequent use of the choke in starting a cold motor means that there is going to be more or less crank case dilution which destroys the lubricating qualities of the oil.

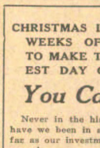
St. Joesph County Shows Loss of 448 Farms in 15 Years

Sturgis—In the 15-year period between 1910 and 1925 there has been a decrease of 448 farms in St. Joseph county, a report of the United States department of agriculture discloses. In 1910 there were 2,623 farms in this county and at the end of 1920 this had dropped to 2,436. By 1925 the number had declined to 2,175.

In 1910 there were 300,624 acres under cultivation, but in 1925 there were only 257,929.

In 1910 the farmers of this community owned land and buildings valued at $16,557,667, but the 1920 value was placed at $21,971,950, declining in 1925 to $16,370,102.

There are praises which reproach.



KOKEN BARBERS CHAIRS ARE THE VERY BEST
BARBER BEAUTY SHOP
Equipment
Cash or Terms
Leo E. Morris Co.
1011 Farmer St
Detroit, Mich.

CHRISTMAS IS BUT A FEW WEEKS OFF. YOU WANT TO MAKE THIS THE HAPPIEST DAY OF YOUR LIFE?

You Can Do It!

Never in the history of our company have we been in a better position insofar as our investment offerings are concerned.

Five years from now we will look back on land values near Ford's River Rouge properties just as today we look back on land opportunities of 1917 to the west of Detroit.

We want representation in this territory. Also part-time salesmen. We will personally direct you in placing our property on the market in your locality.

Write for territory assignment, maps and literature.

L. W. MARTIN
Care Ide & Meginnity
Second Floor American State Bank Bldg.,
DETROIT, MICH.

T-R-C's
RHEUMATISM

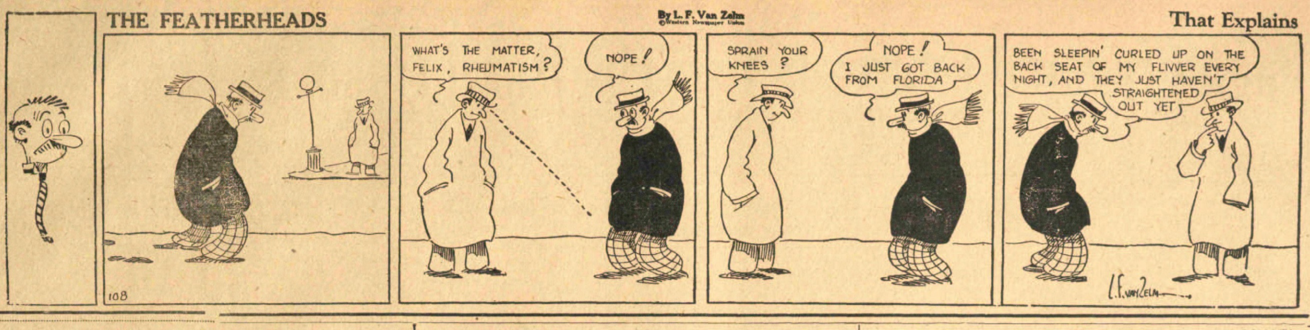
Be Rid of Your RHEUMATISM
Neuritis, Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago
Enjoy life as you should

For over twenty years TRC's (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules) have been effectively used by Thousands in the successful curbing of these cruel and gnawing pains. Be well advised:

START TAKING T-R-C's TODAY

Often a $1.00 box is all that is needed. Sometimes in more severe cases two or three boxes may be required to obtain the desired results, but T-R-C's are most efficient and we are therefore able to GUARANTEE them. Read about this MONEY BACK GUARANTEE in the circular of directions in your box.

At your druggists, $1.00 or send 10c for generous trial and literature to Templetons 222 Congress St., W., Letroit. Mich.



THE FEATHERHEADS
By L. F. Van Zelm ©Western Newspaper Union
That Explains
WHAT'S THE MATTER, FELIX, RHEUMATISM?
NOPE!
SPRAIN YOUR KNEES?
NOPE! I JUST GOT BACK FROM FLORIDA
BEEN SLEEPIN' CURLED UP ON THE BACK SEAT OF MY FLIVVER EVERY NIGHT, AND THEY JUST HAVEN'T STRAIGHTENED OUT YET 108
L.F. Van Zelm

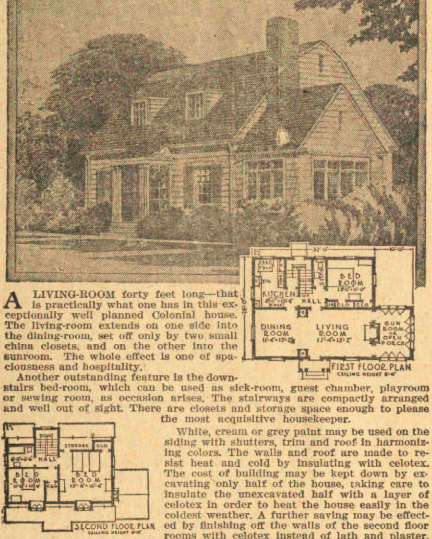
Patronize Our Advertisers

They are all boosters and deserve your business.

Must Extinguish Matches

It must become a habit of Americans to be sure that the lighted match is out before it is thrown away. The putting out of the camp fire must become the first and last thought of the departing camper. Thoughtfulness of others is a thing that spells good character. Carelessness spells weakness and failure.

Every Inch a Real Home Is This Colonial Type



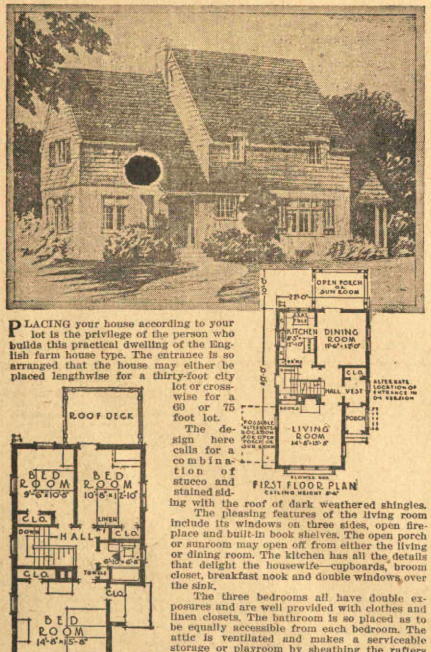
A LIVING-ROOM forty feet long—that is practically what one has in this exceptionally well planned Colonial house. The living-room extends on one side into the dining-room, set off only by two small china closets, and on the other into the sunroom. The whole effect is one of spaciousness and hospitality.

Another outstanding feature is the downstairs bed-room, which can be used as sick-room, guest chamber, playroom or sewing room, as occasion arises. The stairways are compactly arranged and well out of sight. There are closets and storage space enough to please the most acquisitive housekeeper.

White, cream or grey paint may be used on the siding with shutters, trim and roof in harmonizing colors. The walls and roof are made to resist heat and cold by insulating with celotex. The cost of building may be kept down by excavating only half of the house, taking care to insulate the unexcavated half with a layer of celotex in order to heat the house easily in the coldest weather. A further saving may be effected by finishing off the walls of the second floor rooms with celotex instead of lath and plaster. Left either plain painted, stained or finished with a dainty stencil such walls are extremely effective and durable.

©, Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926.

Old World Charm Meets New World Conveniences



PLACING your house according to your lot is the privilege of the person who builds this practical dwelling of the English farm house type. The entrance is so arranged that the house may either be placed lengthwise for a thirty-foot city lot or crosswise for a 60 or 75 foot lot.

The design here calls for a combination of stucco and stained siding with the roof of dark weathered shingles.

The pleasing features of the living room include its windows on three sides, open fireplace and built-in book shelves. The open porch or sunroom may open off from either the living or dining room. The kitchen has all the details that delight the housewife—cupboards, broom closet, breakfast nook and double windows over the sink.

The three bedrooms all have double exposures and are well provided with clothes and linen closets. The bathroom is so placed as to be equally accessible from each bedroom. The attic is ventilated and makes a serviceable storage or playroom by sheathing the rafters and sides with celotex, which serves both as a wall-board and insulating material.

This small home so light and spacious, yet compact and adapted to doing without a servant, is a typical 1926 product. The poky, dark houses of fifteen or even ten years ago with their fussy little hallways and poor planning would be scorned by the modern housewife who has learned to expect comfort built right into her home and to have everything planned for her convenience in working. Cold, draughty houses are also out of date. All well built houses, are insulated as this one is, with celotex sheathing on the exterior walls under the stucco. This effects a great saving in fuel in the winter and resists the intense heat of the sun in summer.

©, Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926.

Advocate and MICHIGAN FARMER, both one year $2.15

W. C. T. U. Column

LAURA WALWORTH, EDITOR

Enforce The Law

(Continued from last week)

That the federal government is powerless to enforce it; because, they say, "the instinct of personal liberty is very strong," "Man cannot be made over by law" and "Thousands of the best citizens of the country have been brought into contact with the bootlegger and have no compunction whatever about violating the law."

Let us examine these propositions briefly:

Though some of those who make these claims and arguments may not, do not, have in mind a purpose to make the thing prohibited easier to procure, and less dangerous to make and sell by those who would provide it, nevertheless such is the effect upon the execution of the law.

Personal liberty to do what? Anything except to facilitate the making, sale and use of intoxicants Why? Any reason except that the use of them may not be interfered with?

What other result can follow the constant declaration that the law in not binding on the conscience of those who do not favor its provisions because they say it interferes with personal liberty and the instinct of personal liberty is very strong—what other result can follow, than that juries will hesitate to convict on charges of violation of the law?

What other result can follow than that those contemplating engaging in the traffic will be encouraged by the thought that probably even if detected and arrested, conviction will not follow?

No compunction about violating the law? Violating it how? What for? Anything except to provide intoxicants for somebody to drink? No.

Such contentions, when made by those who do not want liquor for themselves, who would not intentionally put obstacles in the way of enforcement of the law, must be made without realization of tne effect of their position.

That effect can be and is only to weaken public sentiment in favor of any law enforcement, and to encourage violation of all law.

It is only a step—and an easy one—for the man of loose moral fibre, who hears and reads that men of education, of standing and influence, aver and urge that he is not in conscience bound to give allegiance to one provision of the Constitution, is not in conscience bound to observe one statute, because it interferes with his liberty to do as he pleases in that matter, to come to the conclusion that he is not in conscience bound to observe another law, and then another, which interferes with the liberty he would have to do some other act but for the law; and when he is told that many of the best citizens violate a part of the law without compunction, what conclusion can he reach but that he may violate any part of it without compunction?

The difference between civilization and barbarism is in the presence or absence of law.

The very idea of law in a community carries with it the surrender of individual freedom of action for the good of the whole body.

In a state of barbarism one may walk or drive where he please, unless the "personal libertv" of another stronger than he interferes.

In Washington one must drive on the right hand side of the street Why? Because the community has decided that the welfare of the whole, of which he is a part, demands that he be deprived of liberty to drive where he please, and compelled to go on the right hand side.

Does anyone contend that "man cannot be made over by law" in this matter?

Does anyone contend that because "the instinct of personal liberty is very strong" he has a right to endanger the safety of everyone in the street, including himself, by asserting his personal liberty and driving on the left-hand side?

What is the difference between insuring the safety of travel by depriving men of their personal liberty through compelling them to drive on the right side, and compelling them to be sober when driving through depriving them of the means of getting drunk?

The real source of the embarrassment to the enforcement of the law is, not that the law interferes with personal liberty,—any law which has any effect upon the conduct of the individuals composing society does that—must do that—but that so many well intentioned persons, thoughtlessly, or following some process of unsound reasoning, join hands with those who intentionally violate the law and give them aid and comfort in attempting to justify their unlawful conduct.

There is no right of personal liberty to perpetuate an institution which the law condemns. In this country that the liquor traffic shall be exterminated is established by solemn resolution of the electorate

That it ought not to exist is admitted by those making the arguments and claims I have been discussing when they say either by way of preface or conclusion to every discussion, "We do not desire to bring back intoxicating liquor;" "There is no intention ever to bring back the saloon." Those who say this honestly surely cannot have thought out the result to which their arguments tend. The rest "do protest too much."

(Continued next week)

A Simple Radio Hint

Have you ever had your A battery charged and been dissatisfied with the reception obtained immediately afterward? Perhaps you have blamed humidity, static or even the man who charged your battery.

Quite often the trouble is in your contact—where you screw or clamp the positive or negative wire to the terminal of your battery. The end of the wire may have been corroded by battery acid or even by long exposure to the air. Perhaps the terminal itself needs a little rub with sandpaper.

A sure method of making these contacts one hundred per cent efficient is to clean both terminals and wires, and then turn the dials so that some nearby station is tuned in. Clamp the negative terminal tightly, then adjust the wire of your positive until the music comes in the strongest—clamping it tightly when in that position. Where batteries are in the cellar it may be necessary to have some one upstairs tune in several stations before the program may be heard by you—but when this is done your contact may be made a perfect one.

An Advantage

The best thing about telling the truth is that you don't have to remember what you said.

Correct English
MONTHLY MAGAZINE
Authoritive Exponent of English for 24 Years
Edited and founded by
JOSEPHINF TURCK BAKER
Famous World English Authority

Send 10 Cents for Sample Copy
Correct English Publishing Company
Evanston, Illinois
Agents Wanted Everywhere

F. E. Caswell D. V. M.
Veterinarian
Office at Residence, West Main St
Private Phone 45
North Adams, Mich.

Dr. L. R. ULRICH
DENTIST
Private Office in Room over Perkins' Restaurant
Thursdays hours 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.
Plate Work a Specialty

O. G. McFarland M. D.
North Adams, Mich.
OFFICE HOURS: 8:00 to 9:00 a. m.
1:00 to 4:00 p. m.
7:00 to 8:00 p. m.

Beginnings Of Oil

In North-western Pennsylvania thern is today evidences of the first oil well which was ever drilled in the United States. The driller of the well was by no means the discoverer of the stuff, for as early as the exploring trips of George Washington at the time of the French and Indian war petrolium was seen in small quantities in springs within a few miles of the site of the first well. In 1753 Washington went through the region and found the Indians using a dark viscous fluid of exceedingly evil smell for both lights and fuel. This substance in the form of a thick oil they skimmed from the surface of the pools and in some places it oozed from the ground in small quantities. It remained for a man named Drake to first develop its possibilities. He finally drove a pipe down a few feet into the earth and got great quantities of petroleum. Washington was so impressed with the value of the land he decided to pre-empt several thousand acres and it is said the land was mentioned in his will. 126 years after that the first well was put down and the stampede began for buying options in northwestern Pennsylvania. Speculators everywhere proceeded to take advantage of the boom and millions of dollars of stock sold to unsuspecting patrons—much of which proved worthless. But the industry spread like wild fire and crossed the border into Ohio where it has since centered and the history of "Coal Oil Johnnie" and hundreds like him read like a romance. You have all heard the wild tales of "Johnnie" lighting his cigar with ten dollar bills, throwing twenty dollar gold pieces by the handfull into the street just for the fun of seeing the scramble to gather them up. The poor widow washerwoman his mother scarcely ever realized her wonderful fortune—she was completely paralyzed by the golden shower.

Assaulted With Piece of Gaspipe

Mrs. Patience Pauter, who has been living on a farm south of the city, was assaulted early Saturday morning at about one o'clock a. m. when someone called her to the door and hit her over the head with a piece of gaspipe or heavy piece of iron.

Mrs. Pauter was taken to the Thorn Hospital about 5;30 a. m. Saturday morning, where she received surgical treatment for her wounds, which consisted of a bad scalp wound over the left forehead

Deputy-sheriff Bert Winn took charge of the case and Saturday forenoon arrested her husband Grove Pauter and took him to jail at Adrian. His hearing was held there Monday forenoon of this week in the justice court.

He pleaded guilty to felonious assault less than the crime of murder. He was arraigned in justice Bennett's court Monday afternoon and bound over to the circuit court Pauter confessed that he struck his wife with a club which he threw in the river after the assault.

Mrs. Patience Pauter is the wife of Grove Pauter, but the couple have not been living together for sometime and there has been trouble between them it is said.—Hudson Post.

New License Plates To Be On Sale Soon

A conference between John S. Haggerty, secretary of state-elect, and Charles J. Deland, incumbent secretary, may be held in Lansing Wednesday in an effort to settle upon the appointment of branch managers so the sale of 1927 automobile license plates may open throughout the state prior to January 1.

At present Deland contemplates placing the plates on sale Wednesday only in about 30 of the 90 branch offices in the cities where Haggerty has agreed to reappoint the present branch managers. These include Detroit, Grand Rapids, Jackson, Ann Arbor, Pontiac, Ypsilanti and others. In the other cities in which branches are located the secretary of state has no one to ship the plates to, he said. He cannot send the consignment to the present manager because ha may not be reappointed by Haggerty.

It is possible, it was said that Haggerty will be prepared to name his entire list of appointments tomorrow. If he does, the plates will be shipped immediately to all offices.

DAIRY

GOOD ATTENTION IS REQUIRED BY BULL

When the dairyman has become interested enough in improving his herd to buy a good bull, he is interested in giving that bull care and attention to keep him in good breeding condition and prolong his usefulness. Careless handling will cause the average bull to become restless and vicious, he will not present a good appearance to prospective buyers who wish to see the herd sire, and a maximum amount of service cannot be secured from him.

If the bull is purchased as a calf or raised on the farm where he is to be kept for service, he should be grown out as rapidly as possible in order to insure his attaining his full size, for an undersize bull is never an attraction in the herd. As a supplement to grass or legume hay, a grain mixture of two parts corn, one part oats and one part bran will prove a good growing ration.

"The bull should never be allowed to run with the cows," said A. C. Ragsdale, head of the dairy department of the Missouri College of Agriculture. "Doing so results in getting heifers in calf too young and the bull will exhaust himself. Besides, it is impossible to keep accurate breeding records and there is always danger to persons and property when the bull is running loose."

Ragsdale considers most bulls sufficiently mature for light service when they are a year old, but service should be limited to one or two cows a week until they are fifteen months old. More than twice the service can be secured from the bull that is kept away from the cows, and a sire properly handled can take care of a herd of fifty cows after he is two years old.

By all means, the bull should have a ring in his nose, and this should be put in when he is about a year old. A trocar may be used in making the hole and the ring inserted as the instrument is pulled out. Ragsdale considers it best to wait until the bull is about two years old before dehorning, for at this stage dehorning has a marked effect in subduing him and he does not learn to use his head as well as he would if his horns were cut off at an earlier age. Unless the bull is to be exhibited in the show ring, he should be dehorned.

Dairying Is Profitable if Good Cows Are Kept

Dairying is profitable when good cows are maintained. The kind that are capable of producing no more than the average cow in Iowa—140 pounds of fat a year—is not the kind to buy. The man who owns a herd of that sort really owns nothing better than a manure factory. If he feels that it is worth while to milk a bunch of cows and get nothing better out of it than the manure they produce, he is justified in buying that kind, but if he really wants to get paid for the feed he puts into them and get wages for the time spent in caring for them, he must start with a better grade of cows. In the long run it would be much better for those farmers who have started in the dairy business or who are contemplating doing so in the near future to pick up the best cows they can in their own neighborhood, then buy a good pure-bred bull and start grading up a herd.

Legume Hay Will Supply Minerals Needed by Cow

The kind of a mineral mixture dairy cows need will depend on the feed they are getting. In addition to salt which should always be liberally fed, the minerals needed in the ration are lime, phosphorus and in localities where there is trouble with goiter in young calves either sodium or potassium iodide should be supplied.

The best way for the cow to get the needed lime is in legume hay such as alfalfa, clover or soy-bean hay. Phosphorus is best fed in the form of wheat bran, cottonseed meal, wheat middlings and linseed meal. When 20 per cent or more of the grain mixture consists of wheat bran, wheat middlings, linseed or cottonseed meal, the cows will get plenty of phosphorus. If less than this amount is fed some steamed bone meal should be added.

Feed Dairy Heifers

If dairy heifers are to grow into profitable cows they should be started quick and kept growing. This is especially important when some farmers are content to depend upon pastures for the greater part of the feed. Heifers make a maximum growth on pasture when it is properly supplemented with grain mixtures. In many cases the heifers do not do as well, however, in the summer as they do in winter on dry feed.

This coupon and 25c entitle the undersigned to one 35c can of Acme Quality Enamel-Kote, any color, and a special 20c Paint Brush.
Name__________
Address__________
To acquaint you with Acme Quality, we are making a special offer for a short time only.
SPECIAL OFFER
55c Value for 25c

Two things to watch when ordering your house paint

Make sure, for one thing, how long it will stay on—for another, how pleasing it will look.

Experience with all makes and qualities of paints qualifies us to be of real assistance. We'll see to it that you get paint that will last. We'll help you in deciding on a pleasing color effect.

And because we want you to be thoroughly satisfied, we will recommend that you make your choice from our complete line of

ACME QUALITY Paint and Varnish

Before you buy any paint, come in and see us. We are here to serve you.

J. M. WILLIAMS, North Adams

ACME QUALITY

Harley Voorhees
FUNERAL DIRECTOR
HANOVER MICHIGAN

Calls attended promptly day an night. Having the best of equipment, I can serve and please you.

Any of our friends who wish our servces, can reach u day or night bycalling Moscow Central.

HARLEY VOORHEES
Hanover, Mich.

MICHIGAN TUBERCULOSIS ASSN

The medico-social worker of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association not only arranges for the hospitalization of tuberculosis patients but very often she herself takes the patient to the sanatorium. This work is financed through the sale of the tuberculosis Christmas seals, the seals with the double-barred cross, whose life saving influence reaches every county in Michigan.

Hillsdale-Jackson Bus Line
Four Round Trips each Day
Two Round Trips Sunday
NORTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams.....6:45 a. m
" " "......1:15 p. m
SOUTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams.....8:15 a. m.
" " "......4:20 p. m.
SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS
Bus north at ....5:15 . m
Bus south (via Jonesville) p11 20

ARAB
700-Blaisdell-ARAB-No 2 Made in U.S.A.
Pencils
Blaisdell PENCIL COMPANY
PHILADELPHIA U.S.A.

The GIRL in the MIRROR

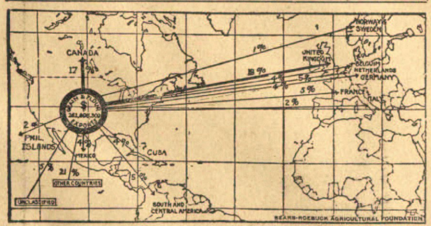
By Elizabeth Jordan

COPYRIGHT BY THE CENTURY CO.

IN this charming story Elizabeth Jordan indulges the most delightful turn of her genius—framing a mystery romance. Probably it is the best piece of work of the sort she has ever turned out. It is a love story abounding in the thrills of rapidly succeeding adventures. The outcome of the mystery is so totally unexpected that it brings the reader up with a sharp gasp, almost a jolt; but the surprise occasions no disappointment.

You'll Miss a Treat if You Fail to Read This New Serial in

$262,896,309 Grain Export—Wheat and Flour Top List



The value of grains and grain products exported from the United States in the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1926, is placed at $262,896,309 by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation in a survey of the situation just issued. Wheat and flour topped the list, making up nearly two-thirds of the total. Other exports in the order of value were barley, corn, oats, rye and oatmeal and rolled oats.

Investigation of the export figures makes Canada appear as the second largest receiver of American grain. This is due to the fact that much of the grain is shipped via the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river and is cleared to Canadian ports. The bulk of it, however, is destined for Europe. The leading buyer of American grain was Great Britain, with a record of 18 per cent of the total export. Next in order, following Canada, were the Netherlands, Cuba, Germany, Belgium, Mexico and Italy.

ADVOCATE AND McCALL'S MAGAZINE Both $2.25

What Has Become of the Pheasants?

The other day we interviewed an old huntsman who has spent many years tramping the woods with gun on shoulder, both here and in the northland, and we asked him if he had seen so many pheasants this fall as usual, and he replied "No I have seen very few. I do not believe that the pheasants are having a fair chance for their lives and to multiply as they should. These birds always lay from five to twelve eggs same as quails at a sitting and if one-half of these eggs on the average hatch something certainly happens to the birds before they become adults."

This reply coming from a man who knows what he is talking about aroused a train of inquiry. For at least five years the State of Michigan has been busy "planting" these beautiful game birds in pairs and trios throughout our wooded areas. If these first stock have increased as they should and the law has been compiled with, there should be thousands of them in the woodlots where there are not a dozen. What becomes of them? Our natural conclusion is that they are destroyed systematically by both pot-hunters and other wild game. It was at one time reported that quail were an inevitable enemy of the pheasants, but this has never been proved. It is a fact however, that pheasants are terrific fighters as many farmers know after seeing a chicken or cock tackle them. There should be some means of appointing game wardens for this purpose to see that this valuable and most beautiful of the game birds is protected. Snipers who make a practice of shooting pheasants in season or out of season to excess should be locked up and fined heavily. Surely this state cannot afford to assume such an expense of procuring foundation stock and then suffer humiliation and total extinction at the hands of snipers. Away with the illegal hunter.

M. S. C. Offers Home Extension Courses

An important addition to the extention work of the M. S. C. has been announced in the establishment of a correspondence school with courses in economics, sociology, and home economics to be ready for enrollment by January 1, 1927.

Administration of the new correspondence courses will be handled by the office of continuing education of which John D. Willard is director. Mr. Willard, formerly director of extension at Massachusetts Agricultural College came to M. S. C. in September to take up his new duties.

Details of the correspondence courses and the question of college credit for such work will be determined later according to Mr. Willard. It is probable that a nominal fee will be charged for enrollment.

The courses which will be ready by Jan. 1st will parallel courses in the regular college curriculum. Instruction will be under the direction of the regular college faculty members, and the material offered will approximate that which is studied in a four hour course during one term of the college year.

Additional courses will be developed by other departments of the college as rapidly as possible. It is expected that special emphasis will be given to material which is covered in extension projects in agriculture and home economics.

Courses which are expected to be ready by Jan. 1 are as follows: economics, agricultural economics, history and principles of cooperation, and principles of marketing; sociology-principles of sociology, and rural sociology; home economics, the modern family, and household management.

Obtain Winter Eggs With Cod Liver Oil

Results obtained by the ration fed to the contest birds in the last egg laying contest held at M. S. C. indicate that cod liver oil is a profitable addition to the feed giyen to birds for winter egg production. Cod liver oil contains vitamine which the hens are unable to get from other sources during the winter months. This vitamin is necessary to enable the hen to assimilate the mineral elements in its food.

The winter production of the hens in the contest was fourteen eggs per bird greater than for a similar period in any previous contest held at the College. The only change made in the ration last year was the addition of the oil. The eggs produced in the winter sell for a much higher price than those sold at any other time so an increase in production in cold weather has a marked influence on the profits received from the flock.

Hens which are fed cod liver oil appear to have a greater resistance to disease, they lay fewer soft shelled eggs, and the egg produced hatchse better than those from birds which receive no oil.

Two pints of cod liver oil should be fed every week to adult birds. If semi-solid butter milk is fed, add one pint to every 16 pounds of the buttermilk. The oil can be mixed with cottage cheese when the buttermilk is not available. Baby chicks should be given one pint of oil to every 20 pounds of feed during the first month. After that, they should get one pint to every 30 pounds of feed until they are placed on outdoor range.

Commercial cod liver oil can be obtained for approximately $1.25 a gallon in five gallon lots. The oil should be stored in an air tight container kept in a cool dark place.

In previous issues of this paper has been mentioned the new mono rail railroad which is to be built from Mt. Clemens to Detroit and it is now an established fact the road is to go in. It will extend from Detroit to South Park, a distance of sixty-five miles and the entire first cost will be $9,000,000. It is as far as we can learn only an experiment but so certain are its promoters of the practicability they are even now planning to extend the system still further into the remote portions of the state. The principle of the thing is slightly different than anything so far known. Instead of traveling on rails it will be suspended from one lone rail above, and can be elevated to any height from the street. In cities it will often pass over roofs and other obstructions similar to the elevated railroad. There will be little if any resistance and not much friction also practically no sound, so that the real benefits seem to be wide. Electricity will be the motive power supplied by regular stations and the overhead rail will be heavily charged. Stations will be built at more or less elevation as the case requires, and little interference will be had with surface traffic. All country crossings will be below the track probably, and the rail will be supported on gigantic concrete arches.

Why Not Safety, As Well As Convenience

Has your home every modern convenience? The average home owner would say, "Yes, we have running water, electric lights, modern plumbing, furnace heat, a gas or electric stove, a washing machine, telephone, radio," and so on, through the list of articles which make the American home the most pleasant, comfortable and sanitary in the world.

There is one big thing, however which the average home owner overlooks. After providing for all the comforts of his family and himself, he fails to provide safeguards against fire which is an ever present menace to life and property.

The average home is not built with any thought of fire protection There will be openings in the walls and between the floors, which offer a perfect draft for a fire when it is started. Chimneys will be constructed in the cheapest and most flimsy manner and after once built, will never be inspected or cleaned. Furnace and hot water pipes will be set close to inflammable wooden partitions. Rubbish of all kinds will be allowed to accumulate in basements and attics, and thereby form a veritable fire trap. Fuel will be piled against a furnace or hot steam pipe in such a way that the marvel is that there are not more fires than there are.

On top of all this carelessness, very few persons will ever have a faucet or a hose so arranged that it can be used for fire protection if occasion demands. The commonest kind of fire fighting appliances and fire prevention practices are conspicuous by their absence, in the "modern" American home which has "every modern convenience." With winter coming on, many lives and much property would be saved if simple fire prevention measures would be adopted by American home owners.

Michigan Judges To Compete At Chicago

Champions among the younger generation of Michigan livestock and crops judges will compete against the pick of other states for top honors at the big international livestock and grain shows, to be held in Chicago from November 27 to December 4.

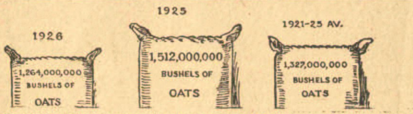
Representing M. S. C. in the collegiate stock judging events will be; A. B. Dorrance, Scotts; Kenneth Bordine, Dundee; W. H. Sherwood, Waterford, Penn.; Harry Cole, Lansing; and R. L. Cook, East Lansing, all students in the agricultural division at the State College.

Judging in the keen competition of the hay and grain show will be: R. W. Serverance, Decker; M. S. Grunder, Bentley; and H. L. Barney, Watervliet, also agricultural students at the college.

Boys and girls club champs from a half dozen different Michigan counties will compete in the events at the fifth annual club congress, to be held at Chicago in connection with the International. These youngsters all state champions at the 1926 Michigan State Fair are being sent to Chicago through the courtesy of the State Fair board.

Club teams who have won the right to enter the big show are: Wastenaw County: Clifford Boyer, Salem; Mac Olds. Ypsilanti; Raymond Girbach, Saline; Rodney Lincoln, Saline; Calhoun County: (Clothing judging team) Hildred Klingamen, Tekonsha; Marie Banger, Ceresco. Saginaw County: (canning judging) Irene Wierman, Chesaning; Mary Richmond, Hemlock. Hildred Klingamen, Tekonsha, will be the Michigan Style Show entry. The girls' health entry will be Adelma Hahn, St. Charles, and the boys' health entry, William Anderson, Manistique. Both were state champions at the Michigan State Fair. The state champion Home Economics club girl, Gladys Egger, Topaz, has been awarded the Montgomery Ward trip as outstanding home economics club girl for Michigan.

Gasoline Runs Oats Out of Gas



GASOLINE has oats on the run as a source of power on the farm, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. The increase in tractor farming and the decline in farm horses of 3,624,000 head from 1920 to 1925 has greatly reduced the demand for oats. The crop this year will be only 1,264,000,000 bushels, according to the latest official estimates, the Foundation states. Last year the crop totaled 1,512,000,000 bushels, while the five-year average is only 1,327,000,000 bushels. About 45,945,000 acres were devoted to oats this year, and it is expected that the yield will be around 27.5 bushels per acre. Like corn, most of the oats is consumed by live stock. Very little of it is sold and not more than 2 per cent of the crop is exported, as a rule. Since the demand as a horse feed has declined, a larger percentage is being consumed by hogs and cattle. The carry-over from the 1925 crop was large because of the bumper crop last year and due to the general scarcity of live stock, so in spite of the short crop this year, there will be ample to meet the demand.

Celotechnic Institute Studies Home Builders' Problems

THE Celotechnic Institute of America was recently established, with headquarters in Chicago, to study the problems of American home builders and to place at their disposal the latest discoveries in scientific construction.

B. G. Dahlberg.

It is the aim of B. G. Dahlberg, its founder, to delve into all home building problems and to give to the American public the benefit of its research work and to supply the very latest data on most modern building practices.

It will be a veritable laboratory of building facts including structural problems, modern plans, roof and floor insulation, building trends, analysis, laboratory tests, experimentation in refrigeration, sheathing and interior finishes.

"Important discoveries are constantly being made which practically revolutionize previous home building methods," declares Mr. Dahlberg. "In all the facts we give the public we will have an eye on economy, as well as utility, comfort, health and beauty. It is the aim of the Institute to help the home builder build better homes without any material increase in the cost of construction. It will be a real service bureau for the home builder."

Mr. Dahlberg is among the youngest of America's captains of industry. Born in Sweden, the early part of his life in America was spent in railroading, a good portion of it as an associate of the late James J. Hill, the great empire builder of the Northwest. In more recent years he has been prominently identified with a number of large construction projects. A vision of great efficiency and economy in building, growing out of his experience, finally led to the decision to establish the Institute.

BIG SUBSCRIPTION OFFER

THE PEOPLE'S POPULAR MONTHLY
GOOD STORIES
The Farm Journal
THE HOUSEHOLD

You Get ALL FOUR of These
MAGAZINES and OUR NEWSPAPER
For One Year Each FOR $1.80 Order Now

THIS EXCEPTIONAL OFFER IS GOOD FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY
Subscriptions may be new or renewal. All renewal subscriptions will be extended for one year from present date of expiration.

WOMAN'S WORLD
The GENTLEWOMAN
THE HOUSEHOLD GUEST
HOME CIRCLE
Today's Housewife
The HOME FRIEND MAGAZINE
THE AMERICAN NEEDLEWOMAN
MOTHER'S HOME LIFE
The HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE
The Farm Journal
Farm Life
GOOD STORIES
Farm & Fireside
Pathfinder
Capper's Farmer
BLADE AND LEDGER
Tractor and Gas Engine Review
AMERICAN POULTRY ADVOCATE
ILLUSTRATED MECHANICS

and Any 5 of this list of leading MAGAZINES $2.25 Why Pay More?

Get Your MAGAZINES NOW AT COST!

Take Your PICK 19 to Select From

Never before and probably never again will you have such an extraordinary money-saving opportunity. Note carefully the large selection of choice reading—all at a price to fit your pocketbook. Renewals will be extended one year from date of expiration. No need to wait.

CLIP AND USE THIS COUPON

Gentlemen: I wish to take advantage of your Magazine Bargain Offer. I am enclosing the above amount in payment for a one year subscription to your paper and the FIVE Magazines I have marked with an X below.

Name____________________

Town ________________ State__________

St. or R. F. D. ____________________

☐ American Needlewoman
☐ American Poultry Advocate
☐ Blade & Ledger
☐ Capper's Farmer
☐ Farm & Fireside
☐ The Farm Journal
☐ Farm Life
☐ Gentlewoman Magazine
☐ Good Stories
☐ Home Circle
☐ Home Friend
☐ Household Guest
☐ Household Magazine
☐ Illustrated Mechanics
☐ Mother's Home Life
☐ Pathfinder (weekly) 26 issues
☐ Today's Housewife
☐ Tractor & Gas Engine Review
☐ Woman's World

CHOOSE Mark this coupon now and bring or mail it to our Business Office TODAY

MUSIC AN AID TO ADOLESCENT BOY

Also Found Effective as Discipline in Corrective Institutions.

Rapid progress in the use of music as a means of discipline in corrective institutions, is reported by the Conn Music Center of Elkhart, Ind. Music is not only being used successfully as a tonic for diseased minds, but is also being found effective in safeguarding youth passing through adolescence. Wilhelm van de Wall, director of the Committee for the Study of Music in Institutions and a criminologist and sociologist who has spent a good portion of his life in experiments along this line, finds that musical work with the insane and mentally weak tends to make the inmates of such institutions forget their idiosyncrasies for a time at least. Musical exercises stimulate their mental activities, as well as their moral reflection. It makes them happier. Van de Wall tells of amazing transformations in patients brought about by music.

W. van de Wall.

"Music does for the abnormal mind identically what it does for the normal," says van de Wall.

"It dispels the gloom of morbid isolation and resultant delusions and hallucinations. It creates a direct, pleasurable, congenial and beautiful environment in tones. It stimulates some of the drowsy patients to vigorous action and many of the anti-social individuals to constructive activities. Even those unfortunates who are too handicapped mentally and physically to fit into the normal scheme of society, under the influence of music quickly drop their pathological moods and reflections, throw off their eccentric behavior and sing, dance, act and talk with full concentration of mind."

MUSIC PRACTICE AID TO SURGEON

Constant practice on a musical instrument as a means of acquiring that degree of skill which the surgeon must have for the successful pursuit of his profession, is advocated by a writer in an English medical journal, copies of which have been received by the Conn Musical Center. The editor of the magazine carrying the amazing article is a famous Gloucester surgeon whose advanced opinions are widely quoted.

The writer of the article maintains that constant and intensive practice on a musical instrument gives the surgeon a super-degree of dexterity. The difficult exercises required in bringing tuneful blasts from a horn are even superior to the skill required by the medical man in the midst of a major operation. Absolute muscular control of the fingers and their immediate response to mental suggestion are listed by the writer as paramount among the benefits derived from the musical sideline.

Road building also has claimed for years a large part of Mr. Haggerty's best efforts. He has served for years on Wayne county's board of road commissioners and was the pioneer concrete road builder. His first experiments with this type of road were looked upon doubtfully by many, but he soon showed their superiority over all other forms of road and Wayne county became the Mecca of road builders from all over the nation and from foreign lands as well. Now this type of road is almost universal.

As secretary of state, the post to which the Republican state convention nominated Mr. Haggerty, he will be the leader of the state's road building program and bring to that work his broad experience and wide knowledge gained during the past twenty years of development.

William W. Potter, third new candidate for a major state office, was nominated by the party convention for attorney general, a post for which he has been mentioned before because of his high standing in the legal profession. He has given the state splendid service as a member of the public utilities commission and has long held a commanding position in the state affairs of Michigan.

For the tenth consecutive time the Republican party has placed in nomination for auditor general Oramel B. Fuller, a man in whom the voters of the state, regardless of party, have placed implicit confidence in the handling of their business affairs. His splendid service over a period of eighteen years places him in a rank by himself among men who have labored in the interests of Michigan, and the voters of the whole commonwealth will welcome the opportunity to continue him in office.

Frank D. McKay, of Grand Rapids, state treasurer of Michigan for the past two years, has been nominated for a second term in the office which he has so well filled. Judge Ernest A. Snow, able jurist of Saginaw, now serving on the supreme court bench of the state by appointment to fill a vacancy, is the third candidate named by the party to continue in his office.

Luren D. Dickinson, of Charlotte, is the party's choice for lieutenant governor, having been chosen as the running mate of Fred W. Green in the September primary. Mr. Dickinson previously served six years in this office, having been elected to it in 1914, 1916 and 1918. His nomination again to his old post makes it certain that a man of dependable experience will preside over the deliberations of the state senate in the coming legislative session of 1927.

The Important Thing

"The important thing," remarked the young woman as she wrapped up a 15-cent present to look like a million dollars, "is the thought that goes with the gift."—Detroit News.

An Interesting Page Prepared For Our Lady Readers And The Home Beautiful

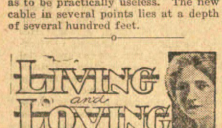
NEW CABLES LAID TO MANITOU ISLES

Leland—New telephone equipment linking the isolated Manitou Islands, 14 miles off this port in Lake Michigan, with the mainland has been completed by the department of communication of the United States Coast Guard service and is in operation.

The cost of construction is said to have amounted to more than $100,000. The installation work consumed most of the past summer and autumn.

A large crew of coast guard telephone experts, aided by civilian employes, laid the cables connecting South Manitou island with the mainland at Sleeping Bear coast guard station and linking the islands together. More than a dozen miles of submarine cable were laid, the United States lighthouse tender Hyacinth acting as cable ship. In addition 12 miles of land wire were strung to connect three coast guard stations and two lighthouses with mainland points and each other.

The cable service to the islands was first placed in operation many years ago, but had become so antiquated as to be practically useless. The new cable in several points lies at a depth of several hundred feet.



LESS SPEED, YOUNGSTERS!

"Youth with swift feet walks onward in its way!"

It certainly does. And if the wise gentleman who made this discovery so many years ago were here for a brief while to take notes on the doings of the young folks of today what would he say, we wonder! Undoubtedly he'd have to admit that while he was right as far as he went, he hadn't gone far enough.

For Youth no longer walks at all. It runs. And so fast that the rest of the world has much ado to keep up with it at all.

Perhaps this is why in this generation the second line of that couplet by the wise gentleman of a day long gone by even less aptly applies.

"The land of joy lies all before its eyes."

As a matter of fact, often when youth is but little past the starting point it has spent itself. Wearily, through disillusioned eyes, even as Old Age, it looks back upon its happiness.

* * *

In the same paper and upon the same day there appeared these three times:

"At twenty-one Rose Beach confessed to having married three men. Out of sympathy for her baby, five weeks old, the court gives her a suspended sentence. But she must be divorced from husband 1 and husband 2 before returning to husband No. 3 in the triangle."

What manner of woman is this, you ask?

No woman at all. Therein lies the trouble! Rose is just a silly, shallow slip of a girl, a flapper who has ridden fast at the urge of fickle desire. Rose's race might be nearly run were it not for the love of a man whose child she has borne and the clemency of a court who tempers judgment with mercy and forbears to visit the sin of a foolish mother upon the head of her baby.

* * *

"Dying with an assassin's bullet in his heart, James Odo, sixteen and a reigning sheik among countless flappers, lost all the braggadocio of flaming youth and became a little boy again, crying for his mother."

A pitiful ending to a joy ride in which all stop signals were disregarded. James thought it was smart to "step on the gas" and too late found instead it was inexpressibly stupid. And when he had come to this realization all the cynical sophistication upon which James had prided himself fell away and he became the little boy he really was, crying for his mother.

* * *

"Unaware that a few weeks before her middle-aged Prince Charming had married a pretty minor, Lucille Lee, fifteen years old, left her home town in Iowa intending to present herself as a claimant for the somewhat doubtful role of Cinderella."

Luck was with the lass and delivered her into the hands of the Children's Aid Society, who will return her to her home and family. Not every wilful little runaway meets with like good fortune.

But think of it, grown folks, and think well on the riddle! A little girl (and, despite what it seems, that is all that fifteen really means) attempting to make a dash to fame and fortune. How did Lucille happen to be thinking about such things at all? None but the youngsters who are traveling at the same rapid pace as Lucille herself can truthfully answer this query.

Youth is wholly experimental, of course. And so it should be.

But even in experimenting there are certain rules that will tend to make it successful. Break these, and even Youth, to whom much is forgiven, burns out its flame in failure.

Wins Fame With Brush and Pen

MISS CHARLOTTE MISH

Fame is coming to Miss Charlotte Mish, a beautiful young Seattle artist, in leaps and bounds. A collection of her canvasses is now being exhibited at the University of Washington galleries and, along with this announcement, comes one stating that she is just about to publish her firs' volume of verse. She is a graduate of the University of California's colleg of fine arts, and studied art in England.

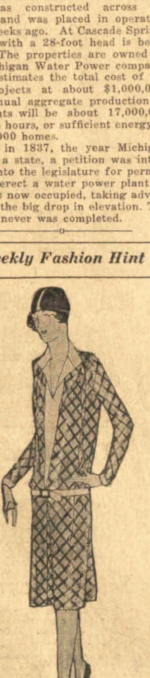
Second Hydro Unit On Thornapple to Be Ready in Winter

The second unit of two hydroelectric plants on the Thornapple river, which was recognized 75 years ago as a desirable power stream, is being rushed to completion and will be operating some time this winter.

At Ada a dam with a head of 23 feet was constructed across the stream and was placed in operation three weeks ago. At Cascade Springs a dam with a 28-foot head is being built. The properties are owned by the Michigan Water Power company, which estimates the total cost of the two projects at about $1,000,000. The annual aggregate production of the plants will be about 17,000,000 kilowatt hours, or sufficient energy to light 3,000 homes.

Back in 1837, the year Michigan became a state, a petition was introduced into the legislature for permission to erect a water power plant on the sites now occupied, taking advantage of the big drop in elevation. The project never was completed.

Weekly Fashion Hint



Plaid and plain crepe are effectively used together for this French design. The fronts are tucked on the shoulders, turned under and lapped on the front panel, which is slashed at the center-front, underfaced and rolled with the convertible collar. The belt is fastened under a buckle in front. Medium size requires 3¼ yards 36-inch plaid and 1⅝ yard plain material.

Pictorial Review Printed Pattern No. 3121. Sizes 14 to 18 years and 34 to 44 bust, 45 cents.

Air Line Extension Planned to Link State East and West

Completing the first three months of airline operation between Detroit and Grand Rapids with a record of 100 per cent efficiency and safety, the Stout Air Services, Inc., plans to extend its service, according to an announcement by Stanley E. Krauss, general manager.

Present plans, he said, call for an expansion to Milwaukee and St. Paul on the west and Cleveland and possibly Buffalo on the east.

Passengers carried by the airline during the three months totaled 399. Of these, 281 were "pay" passengers, 87 complimentary and 31 classed as company business.

Hints for the Housewife

MENU HINT

Breakfast

Grapes or Apples
Wheat Cereal with Top Milk or Cream
Whole Wheat Toast
Crabapple and Pineapple Jelly
Cocoa or Coffee

Dinner

Pork Roast Baked Sweet Potatoes
Creamed Onions
Cabbage-Apple Salad
Fresh Fruit and Nuts
Coffee

Supper

Cold Roast Pork
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Apple Sauce Relish
Cake Tea

Today's Recipes

Crabapple and Pineapple—Take crabapples, wash clean, cut in quarters and add small amount of water to boil them down soft, then place in jelly bag and drain. Place juice on stove and boil for twenty minutes, then add as much sugar as juice and resume boiling until it jellies, after which add the contents of one can of shredded pineapple (without the juice), stir well, let boil a little and place in glasses immediately.

Ginger Pickles—Twelve medium sized cucumbers, eight rather small onions, one pint vinegar, one cup granulated sugar, one teaspoon celery seed, one teaspoon powdered ginger, one-half teaspoon mustard seed. Slice cucumbers and onions, salt them, using three level tablespoons salt, and let stand three hours. Mix sugar and spice with the vinegar and boil together for two minutes. Drain cucumbers and onions; add to vinegar mixture and heat them to the boiling point. Then pack in cans and seal. Makes four pints of pickles.

Candied Sweet Potatoes—Peel the sweet potatoes left over from dinner. Brown in butter and brown sugar in proportion of three-quarters cup sugar to one-half cup butter.

Apple Sauce Cake—One cup light brown sugar, one-half cup melted butter, one and one-half cups strained, unsweetened apple sauce, one large teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, two teaspoons soda in a little cold water, one cup chopped raisins, two cups flour.

Auto Enamel Gives Workers Hunch for Manufactured Gem

Workers in some of the Detroit automobile factories are now "mining semi-precious stones" in the very shops where they work.

Like the man who found an "acre of diamonds," not on the opposite side of the globe, but right in his own back yard, some observing automobile sprayer discovered that the walls of his shop were thickly coated with a rich material not unlike agate.

He pried loose a layer of this dried nitro-cellulose lacquer and made his sweetheart a locket of it. Some of his shopmates followed his example, utilizing the brilliantly mottled material as settings for rings, stickpins and brooches.

In spraying automobile bodies with the new-fangled paint, now generally used, some of the stream of color hits the walls or pillars of the shop. In the course of months, such a coating gets to be an inch thick or more.

This factory offers its clientele a wide choice of body colors. So the walls become coated with every hue of the rainbow.

Cop Surprised as Night Roaming Mule Shows His Stuff

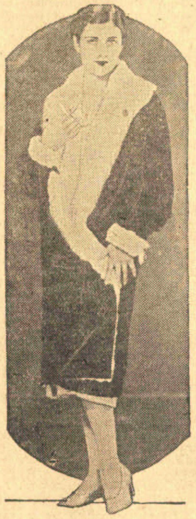
The next time Patrolman George Routley of the Detroit police force sees an unattached and obviously lost mule on his beat, he is going to take one look at it and walk rapidly in the other direction.

So Patrolman Routley stated as he started for home after struggling for several hours with Jake, a small brown mule of particularly mullish disposition, which he found on the street at 3 o'clock in the morning.

'Nice muley, muley, muley," said Patrolman Routley in a coaxing manner, as he took hold of the harness.

The mule responded by lying down in the street. Routley pulled the animal to its feet and started for the station. During the journey the mule established a worlds record' for obstacle racing, lying down and getting up.

Black and White Make Vivid Coat



By MME. LISBETH

When all is said and done there is nothing more stunning than the old reliable black and white motif, whether it is used for a single garment or for a costume. And it is adaptible to women of all ages.

Pictured is a handsome coat of black velvet in a straight line mode with cuffs and a long Tuxedo collar of white ermine. The design is American.

The showings of coats for the winter season accent especailly the straight styling, given occasional variety by the introduction of a bloused effect either in the back or at the sides. the straight line, however, with tight set-in sleeves registers the most strongly.

Pile fabrics make up the majority of models, although suede fabrics are used. Gracklehead is said to be the most popular color of the season, with black next in importance, and the shades of brown following.

Fur cuffs and collars of conservative size are the usual accompaniment of these models, although occasionally the sleeve is finished with a cuff or band treatment of favric at the bottom, with only the collar made of fur. Mendoza beaver, Manchurian wolf, squirrel paw and other furs are used for this purpose. Fur pockets are favored, frequently combined with a touch of embroidery.

Embroidery in self and contrasting colors is used moderately to trim these coats, and another favored decorative method is fabric manipulations at the side made by reversing the nap.

Failed to Qualify As Perfect Woman

I remember Belinda. She was arguing with another young woman about the car fare. "Let me pay," said Belinda; and she paid.

"There," I mused, "is a perfect woman, nobly planned."

I met her shortly after that, and she came through many a test. . . .

She could write a decent letter. She did. Lots of them. To me, too. She wrote the best letters I ever read. They were intelligent, humorous, and —why shouldn't I tell the truth?—ardent. Fervid is nearer. Candescent is not far off. And that is how I lost her.

"P. S.," she wrote, "Burn this letter and all of them."

A few weeks later Belinda said, "At the rate I write you, my letters must fill a large drawer by this time."

"Why," I said, "I burn them. They're all burned."

"I never want to see you again as long as I live," she said. "Good-by."

And my good-by was the last communication between me and Belinda. —Franklin P. Adams, in the Kansas City Star.

STEAM MADE A NEW WORLD

There were 500 manufacturing towns and villages in New York state in 1840. They were connected by a network of highways and canals. Each was surrounded by a prosperous farming region and the mills were run by waterpower. About 1860 the farm and village population began to shrink. Changes in transportation and power did it—railroads, steam engines, automatic machinery. Today, in New York state, fewer persons live on farms and in villages of less than 2,500, than in 1820, and since 1870 farm land has been abandoned at the rate of 100,000 acres a year. So George Soule tells, writing to the New Republic. Eleven cities in New York state account for more than 86 per cent of the population growth of the state since that time to the present. Now another great era of economic changes is on and the world is being made over.

TOO MUCH FOR HER

Two girls, evidently high school students, were standing on a corner waiting for a car.

"I've been reading about Queen Mary of England in a magazine," said one. "It says she never mentions the weather nor gossips about anything."

"Good Lord!" said the otner, "what does she talk about?"

"Darned if I know. Too much for me."—Portland Oregonian.

COME ON OVER. HAVE A BATH

There are few bathtubs in Nome, Alaska, so those who do possess them invite their neighbors to come over and have a bath, much as women in more advanced communities invite each other to come over for a cup of tea. Persons not fortunate enough to be invited out to bathe must pay 75 cents for the privilege of a public bath house.

Beyond Him

It was during a tennis match a year or so ago at Chevy Chase. Big Bill Tilden had been running into very poor luck all morning and things seemed to be going from bad to worse when a little old lady stepped up to Mr. Tilden between sets and asked him anxiously, "Will you please tell me when Mr. William Tilden, the great champion, is going to begin to play tennis?"

"God only knows, madam," replied that gentleman, as he walked sadly back to the court.—New Yorker.

Original Saver

Seth—Josh's boy sure does believe in daylight saving.

Eph—How so?

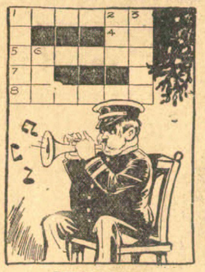
Seth—Why, he loafs all day. Never uses it for anything.—Allston Recorder.

New Viscountess Wears Title Well

VISCOUNTESS BYNG

When King George conferred the title of Viscount on Lord Byng of Vimy, former Governor General of Canada, his wife, Lady Byng, became a Viscountess. This is her latest photo. Viscountess Byng has always been a great favorite in Canadian and British circles.

Children's Pictorial Cross Word Puzzle



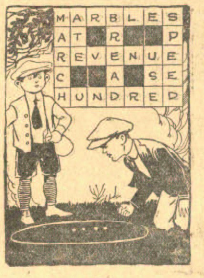
Running Across.

Word 1. What is the man in the picture playing?
Word 4. To exist.
Word 5. A famous river in Europe about which a song has been written.
Word 7. The neuter pronoun.
Word 8. That part of the heavens directly above one.

Running Down.

Word 1. A city in Spain.
Word 2. When a tide recedes it is said to ———.
Word 3. With what do we chew?
Word 6. Consumed.

Answer to Last Week's Puzzle



M	A	R	B	L	E	S
A	T	■	R	■	■	P
R	E	V	E	N	U	E
C	■	■	A	■	S	E
H	U	N	D	R	E	D

Newaygo Prepares For Winter's Snow

Fremont—The county road commission now is preparing to reconstruct snow fences that were used successfully last winter.

For the first time in the history of the county road commission the trunk lines were open last winter and this was due largely to the snow fences last year. But a careful check last winter has determined where the fences are needed most and they soon will be placed in these positions.

The commission also has purchased a big snow plow with which to keep the roads clear. The plows used last winter also were an experiment and while successful in light snowfalls they were too light to combat the heavy storms.

The one recently purchased is larger than any yet owned by the county. The commission also is having a large storage garage built in which to store all of its equipment. The contract has been let to Frank Hawkey of this city and will be completed by the first of the year.

Home Economics Work Shows Rapid Growth

Rapid spread of the work in home economics extension is indicated by recent reports of the Michigan State college specialists. Thes eshow that after the first visit of specialists to the counties this fall, there are 1,012 local leaders enrolled in the 37 counties doing project work.

The local leaders represent 580 different communities or groups. Mrs. Louise H. Campbell, state home demonstration leader, estimates that there is an average of at least 16 members in each group. This makes an approximate total of 9,280 women enrolled in home economics work.

The work includes home management, home furnishing, clothing and nutrition. The home furnishing course is new this year.

Transparent binding tape such as is used in libraries and offices will mend a rubber apron that has been accidentally torn. Slightly moisten the tape, being careful in getting the torn edges even, and bind it on the wrong side.

"The proper treatment of a skin," came the voice over the radio.

"Is to tar and feather him and ride him out of town on a rail," growled father, who had been recently skinned, as he tuned out.

STATE SURVEY MAPS CHIPPEWA COUNTY

Lansing—L. R. Schoenmann of the state geological survey and who has been the active head of the land economic survey in Chippewa county this year, has returned to Lansing for the winter. During the summer 922,878 acres of land were mapped by the survey.

The work this year included a game tally and a record of distribution. The lake shore line on Superior was also mapped and all adjoining islands surveyed with the exception of Sugar and Nebish.

Mr. Schoenmann reports abundance of game, with the exception of partridge. Chippewa county should make a great haven for the deer hunters, he says. He also found that there are a large number of predatory animals in the district.

A game tally and a record of distribution will form a part of the land economic survey in the future.

Banker Finds Canoe He Built 50 Years Ago

A canoe which he hewed from a log when a young man—50 years ago —was found by Joseph Hudson, Clare banker, to be part of the property he acquired when he purchased a summer home on Loon lake.

Hudson and a friend made the canoe to fish in Loon lake when he first came to Clare. The lake could be reached at that time only by following a trail for a long distance and then a four-mile walk, guided by a compass through virgin timber.

The old canoe was forgotten for many years until it was uncovered when workmen were clearing a site on the lake shore on which Hudson built a summer cottage.

Fennville Man, 78, Gets Deer License

Allegan—The oldest deer hunter to take out a hunting license in this county is Zach Foster, 78, of Fennville, who has enjoyed this sport for many years. The youngest is Glenn Shook, 18, of Shelbyville.

Three women of the county have taken out licenses. They are Mrs. A. C. Hofacker of Otsego, Mrs. Margery Brown and Mrs. William Blanchard of Hopkins. They will accompany their husbands and camp 60 miles northwest of St. Ignace.

Crippled Children In Kent Total 549

Ann Arbor—Numbered among the 183,041 inhabitants of Kent county are at least 549 crippled children who, if found, can be treated and partially or completely cured.

This is the estimate of the Michigan Society for Crippled Children, with headquarters established for the past five years in this city. The organization is now making an appeal for members to all of Michigan.

Kent is expected to enroll 5,490 members, 10 persons for each crippled child. The society purports to start in an aggressive manner a movement that will, it is expected, place Michigan among the first in finding and caring for its crippled youngsters. County chapters are being organized to this end all over the state.

One dollar will purchase a year's membership, which will finance the local work and assist with the statewide program. The general movement deals with preventing conditions which create new cripples and bringing educational facilities to those now receiving care.

Clinic workers from headquarters here who have invaded Kent county report that regular clinics for crippled children are held on Tuesdays and Saturdays at Blodgett Memorial hospital. Since May, 1920, more than 800 crippled youngsters have been examined and 247 treated to prevent deformity. The Mary Free Bed guild is the guiding genius behind the work in Grand Rapids, materially aided, however, by the Grand Rapids Rotary club. The Stocking school furnishes education facilities to nearly 75 crippled children.

There are some things that are better said than done, but lovemaking isn't one of them.

$50 REWARD

$50 will be paid if R. V. Turner's Quick Relief Salve fails to relieve croups, head colds, catarrh, sore throat, headache, earache, eczema, itch, burns, risings, bruises, cuts, sores, rheumatic pains or piles. It is one of the most powerful, penetrating, germ-killing, pain-relieving and healing salves known to science. Removes corns in a few hours without pain; also seed warts. Large box by mail 60c. Agents wanted. Write for special terms. R. V. Turner, Box 1122, Montgomery, Ala.

REMOVE CORNS! and CALLUSES!

The RED FOOT WAY the NEW WAY

Stinging pain of hard or soft corns or calluses leaves when you apply RED FOOT CORN AND CALLUS REMOVER. After 4 to 10 days you lift the corn or callus right off, no matter how long standing or how many failures. Originated by famous French chemists. Thousands of grateful users all over the world. No pads, liquids or collodion. By mail only, large 1 oz. jar $1.00, prepaid.

RED FOOT PRODUCTS CO., Inc.
(Dept. B) 227 Woodward Avenue, DETROIT, MICH.

BIBLE HAS PLACE ON JUDGE'S DESK

In his little office in the city hall at Belding, behind a desk on which are stacked worn Corpus Juris, a much-thumbed Bible, his marriage records and an heirloom dictionary—companions of the years—Embree B. Lapham is rounding out half a century as justice of the peace.

For 46 years, "Judge" Lapham has been, in his own words, "marrying those that wants to, maintaining the peace and mixing mercy with justice" His election recently satisfied his ambition to maintain his long record as justice and he now hopes to live to hold his office for another term of four years despite the fact that he soon will be 77 years of age.

It was back in 1881 in Rockford that Justice Lapham was elected for the first time and he has administered the law and performed the many functions of his office ever since. His father, Smith Lapham, son of Rhode Island Quakers, came to Michigan in 1830. He founded Laphamville on the site of what is now Rockford, building the grist and saw mill which drew the first pioneers to the settlement, and served as the first supervisor of Algoma township and the first justice, a post he held for 15 years.

Following his father's footsteps, Embree Lapham became interested in politics and at the same time founded a hotel business in Rockford, building the old Betts house in 1882. A friend saw Lapham perusing his father's law books and forthwith he found himself endorsed to "keep the peace" in early Rockford.

Justice Lapham came to Belding in 1889 and with Charles R. Cowder, now of Detroit, founded the Belding Banner. The following year he was elected justice and has served in that capacity ever since with the exception of one year, 1894, during which he was mayor.

Beaver Islanders Form Game Protective League

The residents of Beaver island lying out in Lake Michigan have organized their first game protective league. The members plan to plant the several lakes on the island with mature bass caught by commercial fishermen. They have the promise of the conservation department of a few white-tailed deer from the mainland to form the nucleus of a permanent herd. A campaign of fox eradication will also take place so that grouse need have no fear.

SIMILAR GAIT

Out on the edge of the desert, a rancher owned a popular priced car which he had painted white. He entered a nearby village one day, slightly madder than a wet hen.

"Look at my car!" he fumed. "Shot plumb full of holes!"

"Meet some bandits," corused the corner loafers.

"No!" he snorted. "As I was drivin' into town some blame tenderfoot hunters mistook it for a jackrabbit."

Treat Colds Externally

For sore throat, bronchitis or deep chest colds, rub Vicks VapoRub briskly over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel.

Vicks acts in two ways—both direct: absorbed like a liniment and inhaled as a vapor. A quick relief for the cold troubles of all the family.

VICKS VAPORUB

Over 21 Million Jars Used Yearly

IT'S A FACT

that notwithstanding the Superior quality of

RED ARROW

bread flour, its price is almost the same as ordinary flour. And it makes wonderful bread

WATSON-HIGGINS MILLING CO.

Grand Rapids, Michigan

With the Proudfit Binder any leaf of a ledger can be removed or inserted in 30 seconds. The flexible arching steel bands show why. They give full access to the body of the book at any point. Loosen the bands, and lift out the sheet you need. That is all.

Proudfit Loose Leaf Co.

12 Logan Street

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Discovery of Iron Ore in Casnovia Rouses Muskegon

Large deposits of iron ore have been found on the farm of "Capt." George M. Smith in Casnovia township. This is believed to be the only deposit of iron yet found in the lower peninsula.

Announcement has been made of the intention to form a holding company to be incorporated for at least $100,000, possibly $200,000, to develop the property for commercial purposes.

The Smith farm is located on the Trent road, 18 miles from Muskegon. Iron ore was found several weeks ago by employes who brought it to the surface of the ground while doing fall plowing.

Cadillac Company Makes Offer

Samples of the ore have been sent to the Mitchell Smelting Company of Cadillac for assaying, and so favorable was the result of the analysis that the smelting company has offered $7.50 per ton for the ore in any quantity.

Tests on the farm show the ore deposit extends deep into the ground and that it may be found in large quantities all over the property. Farmers owning adjoining property believe the deposits reach several hundred yards from the place where the ore was first unearthed.

The company, which is to be organized, will be known as the Muskegon Iron Ore Company. Attorney Jerome E. Turner is handling the legal work and has several samples of the ore at his office.

Northwestern Fair Assn. Reports Good Year

The Northwestern Michigan Fair Association at its annual meeting held in Traverse Ctiy reported the largest attendance in its history, with receipts in excess of expenses.

The following officers were elected: Secretary, Arnell Engstrom; treasurer, Robert Barney; directors, Fred Otto, George Heimforth, Edwin Rawlins and Lowell B. Sours.

Skeleton Found by Hunter Gives Rise to Many Theories

A human skeleton found in the deer country about 15 miles east of Manistee, near the Lake county border, by Arthur Golembo, Scottville hunter, today occupied the attention of state police stationed here. Weird theories of murder, accidental death while hunting or suicide in the slashings were dispersed with the information that there are Indian burying grounds in the vicinity.

Several bones brought in by Golembo were shown the troopers. They were believed to have been exposed by drifting away of sand on the burial mounds.

Hastings Girl Will Represent Union of M. S. C. at Conclave

Miss Ruth Ketcham, Hastings, has been elected to represent the Michigan State College Union at the national convention of college union presidents. This announcement was made recently by the Union board of the East Lansing school.

The convention is to be held at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 2-4.

The belief is expressed that Miss Ketcham will be the only coed delegate to the convention since she is generally conceded the honor of being the only girl union president of a college or university in the land.

Three Holland Churches Build Homes for Pastors

Holland—Holland's building program this year includes three new parsonages. The first to be completed was for Rev. Lambertus Veltkamp, pastor of Central Avenue Church. The second was for Rev. J. H. Bruggers, pastor of Sixth Reformed Church, which recently was opened to him and his family, and work has just been started on a new home for Rev. James Wayer, pastor of First Reformed Church.

The three homes will represent an investment approximating $30,000.

Manistee Commission To Consider New Milk Ordinance on Dec. 7

A new ordinance assuring Manistee a milk supply of the highest quality is to be written and presented to the city commission at its next meeting, Dec. 7, as the result of a recommendation of Dr. A. G. Hoekzema, milk inspector.

Dr. Hoekzema recommended adoption of the state regulations for grade A and grade B milk, covering some points not covered in the present ordinance. In addition the ordinance will require all grade B milk depots handling the product of more than three producers to pasteurize their milk.

Had Taken No Inventory

An aged Negro, taken ill, called a physician of his own race. But the doctor's treatment did no good and the old man grew weaker and weaker until a white physician was called.

"Did the other doctor take your temperature?" asked the new M. D.

"Ah don't know, sah," answered the patient feebly. "Ah ain't missed nothing yit 'ceptin' mah watch an' a paih o' shoes."

Long Hair—and Whiskers

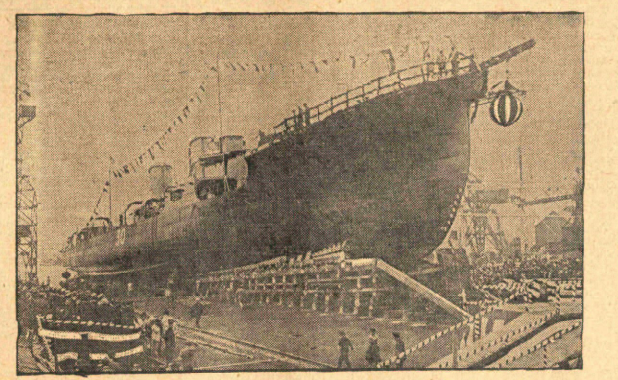
When Miss Jean Morris became a city magistrate in New oYrk the other day, she promptly bobbed her hair. Asked by reporters if she would not like long hair back again, Magistrate Morris replied, "You don't see men going back to side whiskers, do you?" They didn't. Sidewhiskers disappeared nearly 50 years ago and have never come back.

NEWS FEATURE PAGE

Happenings From Here and There and Everywhere.

Educational, Interesting and Helpful.

Japan Adds New Destroyer



This new unit for the navy of Japan, designated as Destroyer No. 30, is said to be one of the most powerful additions made to the Japanese fleet in some time. The boat, which will receive its name after it has been placed in commission, is shown about to slide down the ways at the Ishikawajim shipyards in Tokio.

REPORT MOOSE ON ISLE ARE STARVING

That moose on Isle Royale are threatened with extinction is the belief of four Keweenaw county men who just have returned from making a survey of the island for the purpose of revaluing the land for county tax purposes. The survey party reported that trees on the island are stripped of their bark by the hungry moose in an area more than 20 miles long and nearly 12 miles wide. There is very little brush and no trace of ground hemlock left in the tract, while grass feeding is impossible, they say.

The report of the surveyors differs from that of William Lively, state game warden, who resides on the island. Lively claims there is plenty of food for the moose on the island and points to their increasing numbers as testimony of his belief. There are approximately 2,000 moose on the island at the present time, averaging six to each square mile, he declares.

On the island there are 60 fishermen's camps, four summer resorts and a few campers. Lively is the only person who winters there.

The surveyors report seeing a few elk, not many grouse and very few deer. There are many coyotes, and rabbits are scarce. The island is the home of countless squirrels, who thrive on the nuts and berries found there.

The Keweenaw men report finding the remains of an ancient village on the island. A number of pits were found and nearby were numerous logs. Scientists who have visited the place declare the logs were used by the early men to smooth stone into suitable shapes and sizes. The pits are shallow and are located at least five miles from the nearest mining ruins.

Muskegon Co-eds Comply With Edict On Green Hosiery

Muskegon—With a "There, now!" attitude, freshmen co-eds at Muskegon Junior College donned emerald green cotton hosiery Monday in compliance with a bitterly contested school edict, and "stomped" defiantly into classrooms.

Their opposition to the school ordinance, which was passed to offset the "green pot" order for male members of the class, was seconded by Dr. S. S. Brooks, director of the college.

But the class outvoted their pleas for independence of garb, and in a dignified "huff" the co-eds Monday paraded into school, their nether limbs vieing with the rain-drenched greensward.

Male members of the class scented possible coersion in the act of the girls, designed to force a vote on the whole matter. The girls refused to divulge their full plans, but indicated they would wear the green cottons "at least for a while."

Cat Returns to Old Home After a Year

Charlotte—When Mr. and Mrs. Harold Groom moved to Charlotte from Portland more than a year ago they brought with them Peg, an Angora cat. About two months ago Peg was missed and it was learned just recently she had returned to her former home in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Groom went to Portland and returned her. The cat took nearly two months in making the trip of about 25 miles. The fur around her paws was worn off.

24,000,000 Machines Produced in Michigan

Of the world's output of 4,800,321 motor cars in 1925, production in the state of Michigan for that period was 3,131,524. Michigan has produced 24,000,000 vehicles since the industry began to flourish there.

Third of 5 Reserves Opened By State on 5,000 Acre Tract

The establishment of Ogemaw-Roscommon Game Reserve gives the Lower Michigan sportsmen the third of five reserves and public hunting grounds ordered by the conservation commission early this year. This particular area, of about 5,000 acres, is destined to become one of the best deer and grouse sanctuaries and breeding grounds in America. In it is some of the finest swamp cover in the state, all surrounded by ample high ground. Two other areas, one in Montmorency county and the other in Iosco county, have already been dedicated. According to authorities one of the two remaining reserves for the lower part of the state will be located in the northwest section, in the Antrim-Emmett-Grand Traverse district.

ADD NEW FERRY TO ANN ARBOR FLEET

Frankfort—In the spring of 1927 the Ann Arbor Railroad Co. will place an additional carferry in operation on its Lake Michigan routes, bringing the fleet to six.

The keel for the new boat was laid Oct. 20 at the plant of the Toledo Shipbuilding Co., Toledo, O. The construction work is progressing at a rate which insures delivery of the new craft not later than May 1, 1927, it has been announced.

Largest Capacity

The new ferry will have a greater carrying capacity than any boat of this type heretofore built. The principal dimensions are: Length overall, 380 feet; beam molded, 57 feet, 6 inches; depth molded, 21 feet, 6 inches, and freight car capacity 30 42-foot cars. In addition there will be ample room provided for automobiles.

The propelling power will consist of two vertical triple expansion engines of 1,500 horsepower each. Steam will be supplied by four Scotch marine boilers at 185-pound working steam pressure. Particular attention has been given to the design of the cabins, staterooms, dining rooms, etc., to provide every comfort for the traveler.

R. H. Reynolds, marine superintendent of the Ann Arbor Railroad Co., is supervising construction.

Unique Glass Used Not to Bar Rays Called Healthful

Glass so made that it will not obstruct the health producing ultra violet rays received from the sun is to be placed in the windows of two Oakland county public institutions.

The Pontiac board of education has decided to install the new glass in the Pontiac school, now building, and the building committee of the Oakland county board of supervisors has decided to use it in the windows of the second floor of the new tuberculosis sanitorium in Waterford township.

Tab Shows Methodists Lead Normal Roster

An interesting survey of the church preferences of the students of Western State Normal school has just been completer, showing that 32 different denominations are represented by the student body.

The Methodist church has by far the largest representation with 661 either members of the church or expressing preference for that denomination. The Presbyterian rangs second with 332, the Congregational third with 171, the Baptist fourth with 157. There are 131 Catholic students and 101 from the Reformed church, 80 from the Episcopal, 76 from the Lutheran and 34 from the Christian Science church.

U. S. SHOWS WHY STATE IS GREAT

Explanation of Michigan's remarkable era of prosperity, is to be found in figures released by the United States internal revenue bureau revealing the enormous additions to the creative wealth of the commonwealth made by the state's industrial organizations.

The report, covering the income and excess profits tax year of 1924, shows that of the 12,788 corporations doing business in the state in 1924, 7,429 reported gross incomes aggregating $4,110,638,642, the remainder showing deficits aggregating $63,963,119. It is this enormous production of Michigan's factories which has brought this state to third place among the states of the union in value of such production. It is the foundation on which the state's prosperity at recent years has rested.

Cash dividends paid by these corporations during the year amounted to $193,653,218 while a valuation of $20,902,013 was placed on stock dividends distributed.

Fire Crews Will Aid in Preventing Smuggling of Doe Slain by Hunters

Deer hunters who in past seasons succeeded in smuggling the carcass of a doe or an extra buck across the Straits of Mackinac into the lower peninsula or into Wisconsin will not find the game as easy this year, according to game law enforcement chiefs of the upper peninsula.

The upper peninsula's unusually heavy rainfall this fall has set aside any possibility of forest fires, and the fire fighting crews will be added to the game warden list during the remainder of the fall and early winter.

$25,000 to Be Raised For Alma College

Cecil MacDonald and John Dawson, representatives of the Students' Athletic association of Alma college, appeared before the board of trustees at its annual meeting and put over a proposition looking to the raising of a $25,000 fund for the development of a new athletic field. By the terms of the agreement the board is to meet every dollar raised by the students with an appropriation of two dollars.

Plans were laid for the celebration of the fortieth commencement of the college next June, and for a $45,000 addition to the library building.

FOR SALE

$1,000.00 for a well stocked Second Hand Furniture Store on one of the busiest streets in Grand Rapids. Good lease and store making money. Other business requires owner's entire time. If interested, write Marks Furniture Store, 125 Division Ave., South, Grand Rapids, Mich.

LEARN

BRICKLAYING

In a School run by Building Contractors.
Catalog Free.
Associated Building Employers
13-21 McConnell St., Grand Rapids

We Buy and Sell
Listed and Unlisted
STOCKS and BONDS

H. A. BENJAMIN & CO.

Member Detroit Stock Exchange
905 Dime Bank Bldg.
Cadillac 1460 Detroit, Mich.

92,466 Raises in Pay Are Granted By Henry Ford

The Ford Motor company has granted 92,466 raises in pay to its workers in the first move toward restoration of the wage scale which prevailed before the company's work week was reduced to five days.

Men in the blast furnaces and coke ovens are now getting the same pay for five days they did for six. As soon as other adjustments can be made this policy will be extended to other departments.

The exact number of employes now receiving as high a wage for five days as they did for six is not known.

Edsel Ford said: "About one-third of the men are working five days and receiving the same pay equivalent as under the former six-day system. One-third more are in process of adjustment. With that done, the remaining third will be cared for. The whole process is and must be gradual"

Jail, Old Landmark That Housed High and Low, is Razed

Ingham county jail, one of the old landmarks of Mason, is being razed. This old red brick bastile of the county has had a hectic existence. It has housed people from many walks in life, from stage officials to tramps and bootleggers. It has seen its fair share of jail deliveries. Prisoners learned the weaknesses of this old building and took advantage of them. Among these was Molly McGuire, who had acquired notoriety as a shoplifter. She was captured, brought back to Mason, where she was tried.

The new jail, which will soon be opened on the site of the old one, meets all modern requirements, no stuffy cells or unsanitary conditions anywhere within its walls. The walls are strong enough, it is believed, to resist all attempts of the inmates to escape, while architecturally it is a structure that Ingham county may look upon with pride.

Skunk Dead, But Memory Lingers In Belding Folk

Belding—An inquisitive dog, nosing about a trash pile, frightened a skunk from its hiding place. The skunk ran; the dog followed.

The prey ran up a leaning clothesline pole. The dog didn't but got close enough so the skunk—well, you know.

The dog, his spirit broken, retreated—into a home where a Sabbath dinner party was in progress, as a man, armed with a small caliber rifle, arrived to occupy the vacated "front line."

The man's aim was good, but not good enough. He wounded the skunk and the skunk—well, it wasn't dead yet, and the man, like the dog before him, speedily was repulsed. Other men arrived, more shots were fired and finally the offensive animal yielded up the ghost. But not before inflicting more casualties.

Dry cleaning establishments prospered. A dog, in disgrace, scratched and whined at his master's door in vain.

Owosso Artist, Now an Ohioan, Honored By Town

Mrs. Alice Rogers Fisher, wife of a Canton, O., attorney, and native of Owosso, was honored by her home town when 70 of her paintings were exhibited in the city library. Mrs. Fisher graduated from Owosso schools before she studied art in Rome and at Capri, Italy. She also spent some time in Egypt and Palestine. Her work has won praise of critics in leading national galleries.

PAYS TO ENCOURAGE MINING INDUSTRY

For the next several years or longer the mining industry will be one of the main factors in western prosperity. There is not a western state that is not humming with new mining activity and new ore discoveries are being made daily.

Payrolls of the mines are a big part of western prosperity. Legitimate mining also affords the small investor a real opportunity for good profits.

DEER SLAUGHTER TO MOULD LAWS

This year's trek of deer hunters through the Michigan north woods holds an important influence on future game laws of the state.

The effect on the state supply of deer during the two week's lifting of the conservation ban will not in itself be particularly destructive, but the aftermath will make the usual inroads on smaller wild life, state sportsmen fear.

As in former seasons, the majority of the visiting sportsmen will not break camp with the closing of the deer season, but will stay through the period of rabbit and small game hunting.

The present hunting season on gray bunnies and snowshoe or jack-rabbits is expected by state conservationists to influence the proposal that the bag limit be reduced from seven to five in one day. The Northern Michigan Sportsmen's association has favored the proposal. Lower Michigan sportsmen, however, depend upon the rabbit as the principal small game during the hunting season, whereas the upper peninsula has its larger wild life, offering a wider choice to hunters.

Moose, elk, caribou and reindeer have long been under absolute protection of the department of conservation. Male deer taken must have not less than three-inch antlers, this measurement applying to those killed under both camp and hunters' licenses. Coyotes, wolves, lynx, foxes, weasels, owls, woodchucks, crows and hawks still are outlawed as undesirable members of Michigan's wild life family and are unprotected by closed seasons.

The black squirrel and the gray squirrel remain this year under the protection of a ban which makes hunting or killing of the two wood rodents unlawful until October 25 next year.

Great Lakes Higher Than 12 Months Ago

Each of the Great Lakes, with the exception of Michigan and Huron, attained a higher level in October than in September, according to the summary of the United States lake survey office, Detroit. All of the lakes were higher last month than in October a year ago, but all were below the average for October of the last 10 years.

Mean stages of the lakes in October in feet above mean sea level, are reported as follows: Superior, 601.68; Michigan-Huron, 578.32; St. Clair, 574.10; Erie, 571.69; Ontario, 244.93.

WHY LOCAL TAXES INCREASE

In our federal government, the president and budget commissioner make a constant fight to keep down and, wherever possible, reduce the national tax burdens.

The federal government is working for direct reduction of taxpayers' burdens, while most state and local politicians seem unable to retrench, and can only think up schemes to increase official functions and heap up new burdens of taxes and debt.

The Purity of Cuticura
Makes It Unexcelled
For All Toilet Purposes

WANTED —MEN—

to earn $30 to $50 per week while attending evening school of ELECTRICAL AND AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEERING
We place you in position immediately upon entering school. 60% of our 1,300 students are married.
Write or see at once
W. L. GEORGE
250 Pearl St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

DEER HEADS MOUNTED

Write for free photos and prices before your hunt.

G. R. TAXIDERMY STUDIO

124 Division Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich. Phone 6-2983

Genuine BAYER

ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for

Colds Headache Neuritis Lumbago
Pain Neuralgia Toothache Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

CORRESPONDENCE

HOXIE

F. M. Thompson and wife visited relatives at Brooklyn Saturday.

George Oaks and wife of Hudson were Sunday guests at Vern Cox's.

B. Hueston and family moved from the Rickerd house this week.

Will Wattles and son Merrit of Detroit came home for the week end.

Mrs. Edna Garwin Jones of Hillsdale spent Tuesday with Mae Chapman.

Maxine Kime of Hillsdale visited her grandparents A. J. Franks and wife the last of the week.

Mrs. Martha Brisbin is spending the winter with her sister Mrs. John Hicks at North Adams.

Frank Moore and family and Mrs. Belle Sweezy and children of Pontiac spent Sunday at the Sweezey home.

Mrs. Rex Northrup and Myra Beecher of North Adams were Wednesday afternoon callers at Mae Chapman's.

Mr. Ruffner of North Adams is assisting in the care of Chas Chapman who at this writing continues very low

Hubert Iveson of Kalamazoo and Mabel Stratton of Litchfield spent Thanksgiving with his parents John Iveson and wife.

Chas Canfield and wife of Bronson and Earl Welker and wife of Hillsdale were Sunday guests at Walter Donihue's.

Paul Coutz and Will Steveson and wife made a business trip to Jackson Monday also visited the Earl Campbell home.

The teacher Geraldine Cox, pupils and patrons enjoyed a potluck Thanksgiving dinner at the school house on Wednesday.

F. M. Thompson and wife and Mrs. Orpha Hoxie were Sunday guests at Dick McBain's, the latter remained for a longer visit.

Dow Kennedy arrived Wednesday from Florida, being called on account of the serious illness of his uncle Chas Chapman.

Floyd Livermore and family of Detroit visited their sister Mrs. Floyd Thompson and family and Will Steveson's Saturday and Sunday.

Everett Kennedy and wife of Cement City were called to the Chapman home Monday on account of the serious illness of their uncle Chas Chapman.

Mrs. Cecil Irish and son Newton of Elmira who have been visiting her parents J. Barber and wife for two weeks left for her home Sunday being accompanied as far as Charlotte by her sister Mrs. Will Wattles and son Russell.

A. J. Franks and wife entertained at a family dinner Thanksgiving day. Two nieces from Lansing were also guests.

Leon McCarthy and wife of Liberty and John Hicks and wife of North Adams were Tuesday callers at the Chapman home.

A bee was held Thursday for Harry Roberts who recently had the misfortune to be seriously injured in an auto accident.

Center Adams

Helen Foust was home from Ypsilanti for the Thanksgiving vacation.

Nathan Webster and family spent Sunday at the Frank Harding home in Rollin.

R. H. Wyman and wife spent Sunday in Hillsdale at the David Goold home.

Harry Foust and Glen Scoville returned home from their hunting trip Sunday night.

G. R. Ambler and family were guests of D. P. Gould and wife of Hillsdale for Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Coryell and children were Sunday visitors at the Earl Shipman home in Jonesville.

Marion Coryell and family were Thanksgiving visitors at the James Bumpus home near Churches Corners.

Mrs. Julia Straw and son Wells Straw of Adrian were Sunday visitors at the home of George Ambler and wife.

Mrs. Mary Chase who has been spending sometime at the Orin Lapham home in Frontier came home Sunday.

Carl Shull and family spent the week end at Claypool Indiana visiting Mrs. Shull's father Mr. Merchant and family.

J. H. Gordon and family entertained members of the Gordon family to the number of twenty one for dinner on Thanksgiving day.

Eugene McBain and wife had for Thanksgiving guests their children, T. H. Tierney and family of Toledo and E. D. Whalton and family of Detroit.

Catherine and Anna Tierney who spent their Thanksgiving vacation with their grandparents Eugene McBain and wife returned to their home in Toledo Sunday evening.

Jonesville

John T. Reed is confined to the house by illness.

L. E. Swan and wife are in Detroit this week.

Mrs. J. A. Banks is ill at the home on Evans street.

E W. Merchant is ill at his home on the Litchfield road.

C. C. Redlam was at home from Lansing over the week end.

Alger Baker made a business trip to Chicago the first of the week.

Mrs. Harry Randolph and daughter Mary visited in Quincy last week.

Mrs. Harry Tubbs of Detroit is visiting her mother Mrs. George Sharp.

Mrs. F. W. Graves entertained the Culture Club on Tuesday November 30.

D. J. Donahue and family were guests at the home of their parents Mr. and Mrs, Massey West street over the week end.

Mrs. Olive S. Wisner and son Edgar were in Monroe and Toledo from Wednesday until Monday for a visit with relatives.

Wm Manning and wife, Ray Manning and family and Mrs. Ella Whitmore spent Thanksgiving with Ora Lint and family of Battle Creek

Friends and relatives here have received word of the death of Mrs. Grant Warner in a Sturgis hospital. Mrs. Warner was a resident of this village for many years.

Mrs. Edwin Brown of Ann Arbor and Miss Josephine Poor of Birmingham were guests at the B. E. Poor home here over the week end.

Mrs. Roy McKercher of Fort Myers Fla. is here for a few days visit, called here by the death of her father who resides in Eaton Rapids.

The K of P party given last Friday evening in the Castle hall was a very enjoyable affair. Music for dancing was furnished by L'Amoreaux's Orchestra. Light refreshments were served.

Fowler District, Wheatland

Geraldine Cox, Teacher

School was closed Thursday and Friday November 25th and 26th.

The Sixth Grade have made Good English Posters and Codfish Booklets this month.

Wayne Reimschisel has been absent several days having been exposed to the measles.

Wednesday November 24th, the pupils, teacher and a number of the parents enjoyed a potluck dinner.

Famous pictures used for picture study during November are "The Song of the Lark," by Breton. "Sir Galahad," by Watts.

Those who received 100 in Spelling this month were Theron Post, Anna Hoyt, Ilah Groom, Pearl Beveridge, Richard Iveson.

Ilah Groom was absent last Wednesday. Her brother Lawrence age 9 of Geneva, was burned by a kerosene explosion, that morning which proved to be fatal.

Visitors during November were Mrs. Moore, Commissioner, Mrs. Will Post and daughter Gladys, Mrs. Fred Miller, Mrs. LaVerne Cox, Helen Iveson and Fred Fowler.

The Eighth Grade Agriculture class have been testing seed corn. Turkey Track corn in the Box Tester, tested 79.4. Yellow Dent corn, in the Rag Doll Tester, tested 100.

Those who were neither absent or tardy during November were John and Richard Iveson, Theron Post, Richard Woodby, Pearl Beveridge, Glen Pifer, Harlie VanEtten, and Charles Doolittle.

Busy work for the lower grades has consisted of the following, Sewing cards; Little Boy Blue, Jack be Nimble, and Armistice Day Posters; Sunkist Orange and Turkey Puzzles colored and cut apart by the pupils.

The General Information Class, including the Chart and Second Grades, have learned the names, location and products of Fifteen States in the United States. They are making a product map now.

Those receiving 100 in our Clean Teeth Contest were Theron Post, Anna Hoyt, Kenneth Woodby, Wayne Reimschisel, Glen Pifer, Harlie VanEtten, Pearl Beveridge, and Richard Woodby.

Charles Doolittle, Chart class; Richard Iveson, Pearl Beveridge, and Ilah Groom, Second grade; and Richard Woodby, Fourth grade, obtained the highest number of merit cards for perfect reading lessons and were awarded pencils this month.

PROBATE ORDER

STATE OF MICHIGAN, Probate Court for the County of Hillsdale.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Hillsdale in the said County, on the 1st day of December A. D 1926.

Present. Hon. Arthur L. Guernsey Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of George W. Dow Deceased.

It appearing to the court that the time for presentation of claims against said estate should be limited, and that a time and place be appointed to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against said deceased by and before said court:

It is Ordered, That creditors of said deceased are required to present their claims to said court at said Probate Office on or before the 5th day of April A. D. 1927 at ten o'clock in the forenoon, said time and place being hereby appointed for the examination and adjustment of all claims and demands against said deceased.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the North Adams Advocate a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Arthur L. Guernsey
27t3 Judge of Probate

"My little girl had a bad cough. I gave her a few doses of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and she was greatly relieved. If you want rest at night, especially where there are children, keep Foley's Honey and Tar Compound on hand."
Clyde H. Benson,
Marlboro, Va.

No opiates, no chloroform, a fine dependable family cough remedy for children and grown persons

Remember the Name
FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND
Sold everywhere

Clyde S. Wertz, North Admas

Dawn Theatre Hillsdale.
A Butterfield Theatre

December 3
FRIDAY
JOBYNA RALSTON
in
"SWEET DADDIES"

December 4
SATURDAY
JACK HOLT in
"FORLORN RIVER" by
ZANE GREY

December 5 and 6
SUNDAY, MONDAY
Mary Pickford
in
"SPARROWS"

December 7 and 8
TUESDAY and WED'Y
BEBE DANIELS
in
"THE CAMPUS FLIRT"

I'm Telling You

The Majestic Furnace is a 'Winner'

Following are the names of satisfied users of Majestic Furnaces we have sold in the past two years:

Lud Chandler,
Roy Schmitt
Dr. Caswell
James Denning
Frank Holcomb
Frank Painter
Ross DeLamater
Lloyd Wilson
Will Wheaton
Rev. Kern, Camden
Ed Kempton
Will Oscius
Cash DeWitt
Geo. Bates
Art Calhoun

John Williams

Xmas

OPENING SATURDAY, December 4th

Put Santa Claus in charge this season at the SWAIN'S Dry Goods Store for your Xmas Shopping. There you'll find Toys, Dolls, Fancy Goods and Handkerchiefs for everybody. Dress Goods in Flannel 54 inches wide, Bath Towels. Kimono Cloth. Full Fashion Silk Stockings, all colors, silk and wool and mercerized, (all colors) You'll find Specials all through the store. Don't overlook our Shoe Department for the whole family, also in RUBBERS and ARCTICS, many kinds of Xmas House Slippers, alse OVERCOATS.

SWAIN'S, North Adams

RADIOS

New Grossley Five-tube R. F. L. and Single Dial Control.

Florence and Glowboy

Circulating Heaters and the Range Eternal Can you beat it?

PAYNE & GREEN CO.

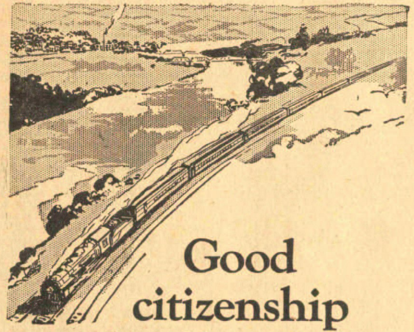
Authorized Agents

Special Sale
Cheese Tid-bits
Lemon Snaps
Chocolate Snaps
Zu Zu Ginger Snaps
Vanilla Snaps
Uneeda Biscuit
Uneeda Lunch Biscuit
Premium Soda Crackers
Uneeda Graham Crackers
Lemon Snaps
Zu Zu

We are carrying a Splendid line of GROCERIES at reasonable prices. Our specials are on every day in the week.

A. DIETZ

Two Subscriptions to McCall's and one Advocate 1 yr. $2.75



Good citizenship and railroading

The requisites of good citizenship today include honorable and effective effort in such enterprises as farming, steel making and railroading, just as much as in political or social activities.

Thus by its service and other achievements may the quality of citizenship of a corporation be measured.

On its ability to supply regular, dependable and efficient transportation at reasonable rates rests the New York Central's record as a good citizen in the towns and communities which it serves.

New York Central

NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES

Anyone Who can wind a watch

Now commands the air with

THE NEW ERLA MONODIC RECEIVER

Here is news for the whole family: Mother, Brother, and even little Sister can get new "thrills"—new stations they never could before. One after another stations come in with "next-door" clarity and volume. Selectivity is now razor keen

Radiation, or the annoying broadcasting of squeals into neighboring antennae is eliminated removing one of the most prolific causes of radio interference and dissatisfaction.

Harshness and fuzziness of tone resulting from regeneration are eradicated. Even under full pressure, reproduction of voice or music is entirely natural and undistorted.

Mosher's Radio Shop

93 South Howell Street. HILLSDALE, MICH.

WERTZ' CASH PRICES

Red Salmon per can	33c
Pink Salmon per can	18c
Best Evaporatad Milk 5c and	10c
Peas per can	13c
Household Ammonia	10c
Potatoes per peck	35c
Michigan Onions per pound	3c
Pure Lard per pound	18c
Bacon faucy Strip, per lb.	40c
Michigan Cream Cheese per pound	33c
Raisins Package	13c
Matches Six boxes	33c
Jello Pkge	10c
Pastry Flour 24½ lbs Sack	93c
Besco Flour 24½ lbs. sack	$1.08
Wertz' Real Coffee, lb.	48c
Dates per lb.	15
McKenzie Buckwheat Compound, sack	27c
Addison Buckwheat Compound	23c
Corn Meal 5 pounds	23c
Smacko Oleo	25c
Badger Oleomargarine per pound	30c
Broken Taffy per pound	10c

Saturday Only, 10 Pounds Sugar with other trade 57c

CLYDE S. WERTZ

THE NORTH ADAMS ADVOCATE

Vol. XXXI — NORTH ADAMS, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1926 — No. 28

THE
Greendale Dairy
North Adams, Michigan
For the past year Associated with
The Franklin Creamery Company
Now operated by
The Franklin Creamery Company
Come in and let us serve you

THE CITIZENS BANK
[Unincorporated]
North Adams, Mich.

Resources Over $500,000
H. M. WILCOX, Pres. J. M. WILLIAMS V.Pres
A. J. HOFFMAN, Cashier
MRS. GRACE DOOLITTLE, Assistant Cashier
Co-Partners

J. M. Williams	C. W. Bleech	A. Williams Est
A. J. Hoffman	H. M. Wilcox	B. I. Lynch

[a] Safety on your money
[b] Yield on your money

I.—SAFETY : Building and Loan societies put 100 per cent of their investments in Real Estate. It is estimated that there are 9,000,000 share holders in Building and Loan Societies, having $5,000,000 in assets. Wayne county Savings Bank has $74,204,528 in savings :$41,140,576 is invested in Real Estate. The Central Savings and Trust Company has $28,961,093 in Savings, $27,294,298 are invested in Real Estate. The New York Life Insurance Company has $151,000,000 in assets invested in Illinois.

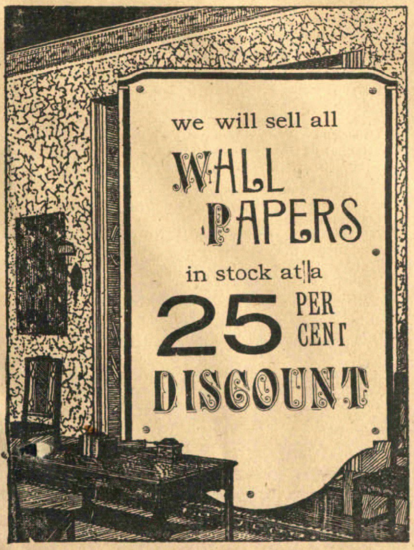
$94,000,000	Real Estate
$21,000,000	Railroad Bonds
$35,000,000	Public Utilities
$1,000,000	Municipal

Surely these facts are conclusive evidence of the safety of Real Estate.

II.—YIELD : In yield one cannot find so generous a return anywhere. In ten (10) years the following yields have been realized : Detroit 630 per cent; New York 217 per cent; Chicago 195 per cent; Atlanta 162 per cent; San Francisco, 159 per cent; Boston 137 per cent; Minneapolis 131 per cent; Kansas City 129 per cent; St. Louis 124 per cent; Cleveland 119 per cent; Philadelphia 116 per cent. Detroit yields three times as much as its next ranking city.

See DICK McBAIN, Moscow.

B. E. TAYLOR, Realtor
Community Builder
521-529 Ford Bldg. DETROIT, MICH.



H. E. Young & Son
NORTH ADAMS, MICH.

Local News

Patronize the item box at the post office.

Frank Holcomb is on the sick list.

Mrs. Frances Rickerd spent Monday and Tuesday with relatives in Jackson.

Mrs. A. J. Calhoun is reported as gaining from a long and serious illness.

Mrs. Whitney Johnson who was seriously ill last week is somewhat improved.

Walter Heath and wife attended the funeral of Mr. Wilson Tuesday near Hillsdale.

Mrs. Nettie Collins will spend the remainder of the winter with Mrs. Lavina Lamb.

R. C. Young and wife were Saturday evening supper guests of T. N. Lamb and wife in Horton.

Mrs. Etta J. Pray primary teacher in the school spent the week end at her home in Jonesville.

—We Pay Cash for cream. Tested while you wait. Crater & Edinger. Phone 44 North Adams 28t4

—A Silk Miltex Dress for wife or daughter would make a nice Christmas Gift $9.95. Corey Hat Shop.

R. C. Young and family were Sunday afternoon visitors at the home of Mrs. Young's parents in Hudson.

The S. P. I. Class of the Methodist S. S. will meet with Mrs. Hattie Scrivens Friday December 17th Program and potluck dinner.

Regular meeting of Alpha Chapter No. 288 O. E. S. Tuesday evening Dec. 14. Past Matrons night will be observed at this time. Supper at 6:30.

Ellis Wood of Manton formerly a resident of Moscow township is spending a few weeks in North Adams at the home of John Fitton and wife.

License plates for 1927 are now on sale at the treasurer's office in Hillsdale. Get your's early and avoid the rush of the last few hours of December.

Cleo Foster and friend Mr. Roy were in North Adams Saturday and Sunday, leaving Sunday night for Chicago where they expect to work this winter.

Mrs. Anna VanAken celebrated her 80th birthday Monday Dec. 6. A few invited relatives and many kind remembrances made the day one to be remembered.

Will VanAken and wife spent Sunday in Detroit. Mrs. Will Corey accompanied them as far as Wayne where she spent the day with her mother Mrs. N. R. Jones.

Mr. Smith, representing the R. W. Carr Monumental Company of Charlotte was in North Adams on Thursday. We understand the Carr Company is putting in a number of new monuments in our cemetery.

Charles Manzer who recently purchased the Dunkirk (Indiana) News and has been located there since early fall is quite ill with diabetes and practically is unable to attend to his work as publisher and printer. He is receiving treatment and it is hoped some benefit will accrue. Marguerite Manzer of Lansing who is engaged in Y. W. C. A. work has been at the parental home.

Hiram Cane who has been a resident of this vicinity about five years, passed away at his home 3 miles east of North Adams on Tuesday evening after a short illness of cancer. He was 58 years of age and is survived by the wife and brothers. Funeral services will be held on Saturday at the home, Rev. Reiser officiating, and burial will be in the cemetery north of this village at 10:30 a. m.

Mrs. Lipe will conduct an all day Institute at the Methodist church Monday December 13, beginning at 10 o'clock. An effort has been made through the local and neighboring Clubs and by personal notice to invite every woman in the radius of North Adams as those who have heard her know that we are fortunate in having Mrs. Lipe with us. Please bring sandwiches, one other article, and dishes for the potluck dinner. Let's make this the best meeting that Mrs. Lipe has in her two weeks in our County.

The funeral services for Kenneth Wilson, who was killed in an automobile accident Saturday night on M-23 two miles east of Allen, were held at the family home east of Hillsdale at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday conducted by Rev. Virgil Hunt of Hudson. Burial was in East Hill cemetery. Many flowers were sent by friends and neighbors testifying to the popularity of the young man Following from this vicinity attended the funeral services, Jack Roy and wife, Walter Heath and wife, Levi Rogers and wife all of North Adams and F. Burt and wife of Moscow.

Mrs. Susie Caskey and daughter of Mishawaukee Indiana who have been visiting Mrs. Frances Rickerd for a few days returned home on Tuesday.

The Hoxie Ladies Aid Society will meet with Mrs. Belle Jennings Wednesday Dec. 15th. Christmas Grab-bag. Price limit 25 cents. Please notice the change in date.

P. T. A. meeting at the school house next Monday evening December 13th with Dr. McLain of Quincy, extension speaker of the U of M as speaker of the evening. Subject will be "Diet of The Child" His talk will be supplemented by a program of music etc. Please make it a point to come out and hear a good speech also help to increase the interest in this line of work. Election of officers.

Earl Rush of Pittsford passed away at his home near that village Monday morning after an illness reaching over several years. Funeral services were held at 1:30 standard time Wednesday December 8th at the home and interment was at at Pittsford. Mr. Rush was formerly proprietor of the livery barn in this village in partnership with Frank Day who was also deceased some years ago. Mr. Rush was a resident here some 25 years ago. He is survived by the wife and two daughters.

Obituary

Charles Chapman was born in Liberty, Jackson Co. Michigan. August 10, 1844 and passed away Dec. 4, 1926. His early life was spent in Jackson County.

On December 2, 1872 he was united in marriage to Ella J. Chapman who preceded him in death September 18, 1891.

To this union was born one daughter Mae who has faithfully cared for her father and who with two nephews Evarts A. Kennedy of Cement City and LaDow Kennedy of Jacksonville Florida, a niece Mrs. Cora McReynolds and Brother in-law W. E. Kennedy are left to mourn their loss. His nephews LaDow and Evarts have faithfully helped to care for him through his illness.

Mr. Chapman has lived at Hoxie for the past 52 years and for 33 years has conducted a general store in the community where he leaves a host of friends who are grieved to lose such a friend and neighbor He was a member of the order of Masons.

Funeral services were conducted from the home Tuesday Dec. 7, Rev. H. E. Wylie pastor of the M. E. Church of North Adams, officiating and burial was in the Pease cemetery.

Notice

I will be at Thompson Savings Bank in Hudson December 15th and at Citizens Bank in North Adams December 16th to collect taxes for Wheatland Township. Ernest Fuller, Treasurer of Wheatland Township. 27t1

Concert

North Adams public schools will give a concert in the M. E. church Thursday evening Dec. 16, under the direction of Francis Perkins. The entire school will take part. A short Christmas pageant will be included in the program. There will be an admission charge of 15c and 25c.

Adams Tax Notice

I will be at Citizens Bank North Adams Friday December 17 and at the First State Savings Bank in Hillsdale beginning Saturday December 18th, 1926 and each succeeding Friday and Saturday thereafter until Jan. 15th, 1927, for collecting taxes of Adams Township. Pay dog tax before January 9th, 1927, Arthur Holcomb, Treasurer. 28t3

Community Temperance Meeting

Sunday evening December 12 at 7:00 at the Methodist church.

Music—Orchestra. Opening Prayer Rev. Wylie. Song Service, Congregation led by Community Choir. Scripture Lesson, Rev. Jandy Singing, Congregation. Address, Mrs. Jennie C. Lipe, State W. C. T. U. worker, introduced by Mrs. Geo. Holcomb. Offering and music by Orchestra. Song Service, Congregation. Closing prayer, Rev. Reiser. Recessional, Orchestra.

CREAM
We want your Cream
Tested while you wait.
We pay best marketprice
CRATER & EDINGER

Methodist Church Calendar

REV. H. E. WYLIE, PASTOR
Morning worship 11:00
Sabbath School 10:00 A. M.
Epworth League 6:00 P. M.
Evening Worship 7:00

BAPTIST CHURCH

A. REISER, PASTOR

Preaching service every Sunday at 10:30 a. m.

Sunday school at 11:45

Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:30.

Congregational Church Calendar

E. C. JANDY, Pastor

Regular morning worship at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school 11:45

For Sale—140 shocks corn on the Dan Hoxie farm. Inquire of Flutell Thompson. 27t3

Beans For Sale—Jesse Dewey. Phone 1313 North Adams. 27t3

Dr. C. J. Howe, Optometrist—Comfortable glasses, Hillsdale. 42tf

Chancery Notice

State of Michigan, First Judicial Circuit, In Chancery. Suit pending in said court wherein Thompson Savings Bank is plaintiff and James F. Sutfin and Carrie Sutfin are defendants. In pursuance of a decree of the circuit court for the county of Hillsdale, in chancery, made and entered on the 29th day of November, 1926, in the above entitled cause, I, the subscriber, a circuit court commissioner for the county of Hillsdale, shall sell at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the courthouse in said city of Hillsdale, in the County of Hillsdale, on the 15th day of January, 1927, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, Central Standard time. all those certain land and premises situate and being in the Township of Pittsford, county of Hillsdale ond state of Michigan, and described as follows to-wit; the east one-half of the northeast quarter of Section 3, Township 7 south, Range 1 west, containing eighty acres of land more or less.

Dated, December 2, 1926.

Glenn E. Miller,
Circuit Court Commissioner
in and for the County of Hillsdale.
B. D. Chandler,
Attorney for Plaintiff, 27t6
Business Address, Hudson Mich.

Red Front Prices

These prices in effect until advertised to the contrary

McKenzie's Pride Flour per sack	98c
1900 Flour, sk	$1.04
MeKay's Best	$1.04
Quick Naptha Soap Chips pkge,	19e
Velvet smoking Tobacco per can	12c
Lighthouse Macaroni and spaghetti pkg	8c
Mothers' Good coffee per pound	29c
Barber's special Coffee per lb.	39c
Campbell's soups	9c
Eatmore Cranberries per lb.	12c
Pork and Benns 3 cans for	25c
Blankets left in stock 66 x 80 at	$1.79
4 buckle Arctics	$3.50 $3.95 pr.
Comfortable Challies per yard	14c
Paisley Crepes	21c
Cretonnes yd,	20c
Stevens Linen erash per yard	19c
O. N, T. Crochet cotton per ball	8c

R. A. Barber
North Adams, Mich.

I'm Going to
Ed Benge's market
Don't Stop me!

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year

We houe Fruits for the Holiday Season Oranges Grape Fruit; Grapes, Cranberries, Celery, Lettuce and a full line of Christmas Candies.

Groceries A good place to trade

EDSON J. BENGE

What you GET here depends on what you GIVE here

Did you ever stop to think that what you get in the milk pail you must first put into the feed box?

When production falls off it's easy to blame the cow. But she isn't a magician. She can't make something out of nothing.

A good cow, rightly fed, will pay for herself over and over, year in and year out.

But no cow, wrongly fed, will produce milk profitably for any length of time.

That's why it pays to feed Larro. Larro will produce more profit, dollar for dollar, than any other feed, however little you pay for it.

We can prove this by the actual experience of other dairymen, or by a test with your own cows.

Prices

One Hundred Pounds International Dairy Feed	$1.90
One Hnndred Pounds Hy-grade Corno Oat Feed	1,25
200 pound Cost	$ 3.15
100 pound Cost	1.57

F. I. WILLIAMS & SON

Why Sheetrock is a different wallboard

What it is: Sheetrock is gypsum plaster cast in thick, rigid sheets. It is fireproof, non-warping and permanent. It can be sawed and nailed like lumber. Takes any decoration—wall paper, paint, or Textone in the new stipple finishes.

What it does: Sheetrock makes solid, highly insulating walls and ceilings that keep rooms warm in winter and cool in summer. That means more comfort and lower fuel bills. Then, too, Sheetrock walls and ceilings make buildings dust-tight, soundproof and vermin-proof.

Where it is used: Sheetrock is the economical wall and ceiling material for many types of new construction and for all remodeling and repairs. It is just the thing for attic rooms, furnace rooms, fruit cellars, garages, offices and stores.

Where to get it: Get your Sheetrock from us. We carry it in standard ceiling heights and widths. Our trucks make prompt deliveries.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
SHEETROCK
THE Fireproof WALLBOARD

GRAVES & FORD LUMBER COMPANY

An Especially Interesting Page on Various Subjects

Prepared for all Classes of People in all Walks of Life

PRITCHARD'S WEATHER FORECAST.

Week of December 12

By the time this week begins in Michigan temperatures will be somewhat above freezing, at least during the day time and there will be storms of rain or snow. The character of the precipitation will depend, of course, upon each locality and the time of day or night it should occur.

During Tuesday and Wednesday there will be moderate falls of rain or snow in many parts of the state. With these conditions will come high winds.

About Thursday the sky will show tendencies of clearing off, but we expect more precipitation of rain, sleet or snow, together with high winds during Friday and Saturday. The latter part of this week temperatures will show a marked fall in most parts of the state.

During the greater part of the week temperatures will average normal to slightly below and precipitation will average above normal.

Farmers' Outlook for 1927

We do not believe the farmer, nationally, will suffer as he did this past fall because of the cotton price slump. Last year this department correctly forecast this fall's position of the farmer.

The national farmers' outlook this winter will be much better than last fall. Conditions will not be particularly adverse this coming spring and the farmer in need will see a more rosy sky.

By summer there will be increased commercial activity among the rural population. The outcome of the spring oat crop east of the Mississippi river will favor the farmer.

In the fall harvest we expect there will be a varied result, but nothing severely adverse unless it should be corn. We will give a definite forecast on corn in a later issue. Farmers raising cucumbers, pumpkins and cabbage should find this coming autumn favorable for them. Farmers generally will do well to watch their expenditures closely next fall.

HOW GOLD MINE WAS ROBBED

Years ago proprietors of a gold mine in Australia discovered someone was stealing gold from the mine, but were never able to catch the thief The mystery has been cleared by the death of a saloon keeper at Kalgoorlie. In his youth this man had lost an eye and a glass one had been put in the socket. A cavity in the back of the glass eye provided a hiding place for gold stolen from the mine and though as a miner he stole only a small bit of gild each day, it amounted to about $40 a week. Before his death he confessed to friends he had stolen several thousand dollars' worth of gold in this way, but fearing he might be found out some day, he had retired and bought a public house. * * * That case would have set Sherlock Holmes to guessing.

COUGHS

Check
for that Cough!

COLDS

A two days' Cough is your Danger Signal.

Persistent Coughs and Colds lead to serious troubles. You can stop them now with Check. It soothes and seals the inflamed membranes.

SOLD IN ALL DRUG STORES.

Too Much "Acid?"

Excess Uric Acid Gives Rise to Many Unpleasant Troubles.

AUTHORITIES agree that an excess of uric acid is primarily due to faulty kidney action. Retention of this toxic material often makes its presence felt by sore, painful joints, a tired, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backache and headache. That the kidneys are not functioning right is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Thousands assist their kidneys at such times by the use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Doan's are recommended by many local people. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c

Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys

Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chem., Buffalo, N.Y.

MARKS
FURNITURE HOUSE
"Used But Not Abused Furniture"
125 SOUTH DIVISION
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
Some Antiques

When Moving to Grand Rapids Call on Us for Your Furniture.

Zangwill Not Exactly Ideal, Obedient Son

Week-ends Israel went to his mother's house in Kilburn. A valiant creature was that mother, strong, simple, iron-willed, with fixed beliefs impermeable to dull, prosy fact. When the author had become world-famous, when his position was assured and spacious, when he had made his mother absolutely free from all toil and worry; when he was giving with a generous hand to everyone in distress; when every Jewish immigrant landing on the shores of Britain with no property other than a stiff bowler hat, a long shabby frock coat, a pair of trousers, boots and an impossible manuscript in Hebrew or Yiddish, would go to the British Museum library with a magic talisman, his sole store of English, "Zangwill," and be sent from the museum to the quiet Sussex village, when the author was at the height of his fame, his mother shook her head at her son's first disobedience, although not at the fruits thereof.

Had he not given up the certainty of an income as a schoolmaster—who knows, he might have become second headmaster with perhaps a salary of $1,350—and instead—it was impossible that the public would really continue to pay any man for writing things which everybody knew; the public would soon discover the cheat. The writing was not very clear either, and she could tell better stories than her son.

And she could and did.—From the New Judea.

Good Judgment Instead of Luck

One quite often hears the expression, "Bill Jones always was a lucky fellow."

When former Governor Cox of Ohio planned a building for his paper, the Miami News, in Florida, several years ago, he checked over the plans drawn by the architects and said: This building is going to be built in the tropics. Is the construction such that I can get hurricane insurance on it?"

The architects didn't know. Cox told them to find out. The result was that the building had to have additional bracing at the corners. But the cost of this was only $8,000, and Governor Cox got his hurricane insurance.

After the hurricane which wrecked so many buildings, the Miami News tower, said to be the highest inhabited structure in the tropical world, came out with only a few broken windows and some water in the basement.

Was Governor Cox any more "lucky" than the owners of other buildings which were completely demolished or badly wrecked by the hurricane? Apparently there was no luck about the fact that his building stood. He simply used good judgment which even his architects failed to show when designing a building for the tropics.

Holland Free of Smallpox, Health Officer There Says

Dr. D. G. Cook, health officer of Holland, stated that the vaccination of 250 school children here recently is in accordance with the usual custom at this time of year, and that the only case quarantined here now is of scarlet fever. There is no smallpox, he said.

Mrs. Richard Smith, reported to have died of smallpox contracted from her small children, died of pneumonia, he said, and the nurse who cared for her, also reported ill of smallpox, had scarlet fever instead.

The children have all left for Iowa, he declares, and at the time of their departure, no illness had developed.

WHAT IS THE ANSWER?

Not one of the alleged senatorial corruption cases in the 1926 primaries involved as much as $1 a voter; most of the charges were based on alleged expenditures of from 10 to 50 cents per voter. It actually costs that much to fairly circularize the voters, without a cent for traveling or newspaper advertising. If it costs $23,000 to mail three campaign letters to the voters of the little state of Oregon, how much will it cost to reach the voters of a state with a large population?

ORIGINAL CINDERELLA

An authority says that the story of Cinderella is founded on fact, and that she lived 2,000 years before the Christian era, being known in history as the "Rosy Cheeked Queen." The story runs as follows: "One day a lady named Rhodopis was bathing in the Nile and the wind carried one of her sandals and laid it at the feet of the king of Egypt, who was holding a court of justice in the open. His curiosity was excited by the singularity of the event and the elegance of the sandal, and he offered a reward for the discovery of the owner. Rhodopis claimed it, and the sandal was found to fit her exactly. The king married her."

WOMEN GIVE JOBS TO MEN

The large number of unemployed in England and in other countries of Europe has led many mercantile and other establishments to dismiss their women employes who are married and fill their positions with men.

Ten to Choose From

Boss—Have you added up that list of invoice figures?

Office Boy—Yes, sir, and I went over it 10 times.

Boss—That's fine. What's your total?

Office Boy—Right here, all 10.

Roberta Risks It

© MARGARET CAMERON LEWIS

START THE STORY HERE

P. G. (Piggy) Brazenose is an amiable young man with a diverting habit of getting into strange escapades to the discomfort of his Big Business dad. By sheer chance he is placed in a position to be of aid to a spirited young lady, Roberta Scott. Her dad is holding "captive" her younger sister because of a love affair. He threatenes to spoil her whole life in his misplaced zeal to "save" her from the lover he disapproves.

Piggy and Roberta elude a detective who is following her—a precaution of her father's—and head for the Scott country home where the sister is held. They use Piggy's car. For safety's sake, Roberta is disguised in widow's weeds. On the way, it develops that her father are Piggy's business rivals. Undismayed they hurry on to the New Hampshire country place. En route, at a small town, Piggy is "discovered" by a college pal, but manages to shake him.

And then several things happen—read on!

"Nothing. Just a song. Hadn't you better stick to your own initials? Aren't any of your things marked?"

"Gee! It's lucky you thought of that. Well, then, I'll be Peter G. Brown, chauffeur for Mrs. John Smith."

"Oh, not John Smith! That's too drab! Let's give hubby a high-sounding first name to make up for the last one. Let's call him Horatio, or Percival. How do you like Sylvester? Or Roland? I think Horatio's best, don't you? Mrs. Horatio Smith. Sounds all right."

"Do you like giddy names like that?" he asked uneasily.

"That depends, Smith calls for something. What does P. G. stand for?"

"Piggy," he gruffly returned, wondering whether she was going to be like other girls, after all.

"But you weren't christened Piggy, were you? Is it short for Pygmalion? Don't tell me it's Pygmalion Galatea!"

Percival Galahad Brazenose exploded. "Oh, good Lord! Haven't girls got any sense at all? Pygmalion! Rats!"

"Well, Peter's a perfectly good name." Perceiving that she had unwittingly touched a sensitive spot, she instantly veered away. But curiosity waxes and grows strong on prohibition, and Robert's mind ran rapidly through a list of improbable P's—Plantaganet, Phineas, Philemon, Peregrine, Philander — wondering with which he had been cursed. Piggy changed the subject.

"Do you know how to dye hair?"

"Good heavens, no! Why?"

"I got some dye." He pulled a bottle from his pocket. "Meeting Brick Melvin threw a scare into me. It would mess things up like the deuce if anybody recognized me. There isn't time to get a wig, and anyhow it might be a giveaway. You can generally spot 'em a block off. So I thought of dye, but I'm not sure I can put it on myself. I got a pencil to blacken my eyebrows, too!"

Chuckling over the brilliancy of this idea, they studied the directions in the glare from the road lights. Piggy took off his coat and collar, produced comb and brush from a bag, Roberta contributed a towel for his shoulders, and then, slowly, carefully, she invested him with raven locks, afterward darkening his eyebrows with the pencil.

No apprehension that the one stain might be less easily removable than the other dimmed their enthusiasm. Nor is it likely, even had doubt entered their minds, centered as they were upon the exigencies of the situation, that it would have influenced their action. For, however they might enliven life's surface with persiflage, theirs was the prophet's vision, the divine insanity of noble minds, and deep within their souls each felt that they were bound upon a sublime crusade. Not that either of them would have relished hearing their expedition described in these terms. Were they not modern? And above all else, practical? Undeniably they were young.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

"Now go off a little and let me look at you," Roberta commanded when she had finished.

"Not yet. Wait a minute."

Seizing his other bag, he made off into the brush, to reappear after a little in correct chauffeur's livery, capped, leather-gaited and spruce. Saluting smartly, he asked:

"Any orders, Mrs. Smith?"

"Oh, la la!"

Their laughter waked distant echoes and caused a farmer jogging along the highway to shake his head over the wild and degenerate behavior of modern youth.

Roberta insisted upon his getting out his shaving mirror to see himself as others saw him, and when he looked into it he ejaculated:

"For the love of Mike! Why, even dad wouldn't know me! I wouldn't know myself. Who'd have thought it would make all that difference? We're safe enough now—on that score, anyway. Come on, let's go. We've got to make Worcester tonight."

"Isn't that a long way from here?"

"Yep. But we've got to be on the ground early tomorrow morning."

"Have you thought how to get Celia away?"

"Can't, until I see the lay o' the land."

At a late hour that night the clerk at Worcester's best hotel was surprised by the arrival of a young widow, motoring alone with her chauffeur—bound, she mentioned casually, for her family residence in New Hampshire and delayed by engine trouble. The situation was more unusual then than it would be now, but her quiet manner, impeccable accent, and deep mourning convinced the clerk of her respectability, and he gave them rooms.

About 9 o'clock the next morning the touring car of Mrs. Horatio Smith rolled slowly into Fitzwilliam, a village consisting of one tavern, one general store, one butcher shop, two churches and a few houses. High, timbered hills, now aflame with autumn foliage, rose behind it, and off in the distance Monadnock reared his solitary blue peak. Mrs. Smith directed her respectful chauffeur to stop at the tavern, where she descended to make inquiries.

The proprietor told her that there were several available houses in the vicinity, already deserted by their summer occupants, but when it came to obtaining one that very day there were difficulties. They would have to get permission from the owners. Perhaps Mrs. Smith would stay at the tavern for a day or two until arrangements could be made? Mrs. Smith gently demurred. She was in deep trouble and wished to be alone. Her housekeeper would arrive that night and she was extremely anxious to be settled immediately in her own quarters. She was a stranger in the East and could give no references, unfortunately, but she would take a suitable house for a month, paying the rent in advance, with the option of keeping it all winter if she liked it. She had heard of Fitzwilliam from a friend who had once visited in the neighborhood and thought she would prefer it to the larger towns, because she wished to be very quiet. If she decided to stay, an aunt of her husband's would join her later.

Impressed by her charm, her evident prosperity, and her pathetic straits, the tavern-keeper admitted he had the keys of certain houses and the matter might be arranged by telephone. In the end, Mrs. Smith found herself in possession of a comfortably furnished domicile belonging to a well-to-do Boston couple named Finlaw, who used it only in summer. It was removed from the center of the village, on a lonely road which seemed to lead nowhere, and was without near neighbors. There was a barn where the car could be kept. Linens and silver were not provided, but she said she could pick up enough of these at Keene to serve until her own things arrived. Whereupon, convinced that the stranger would be a valuable acquisition to the village, the kind-hearted tavern-keeper turned over the keys and withdrew.

After airing the house a little and putting a few things in order, Roberta and Piggy locked the doors and set off again in the car, ostensibly for Keene. They made a wide detour, however, skirting the foot of Moonadnock by winding ways through thick forests of small pine and slender, pale-barked, golden-leaved birch, coming at last to an aggressive, freshly painted sign beside a forking road.

BIRCHWOOD
No Tresspassing
Beware of the Dogs!

"That's it," she murmured, from her seat in the tonneau, as he slowed up and looked about to fix the surroundings in his memory. "The house is back on the hill to the left, behind the trees. To think that Celia's shut up there and I can't go to her! There's the barbed wire. See it?"

"That's easy. I'll get a wire-cutter at Keene—no, Greenfield, tonight."

They drove on toward the local metropolis, where they purposed doing some shopping, but had gone only a short distance when they heard the engine of a heavy car whining as it came up a grade ahead, and Piggy drew aside to let it pass.

He had a fleeting glimpse of a gray-clad chauffeur behind the wheel, and in the tonneau a big, broad shouldered man whose cap was pulled low over his brow, leaving only his beaky nose, stubby dark mustache, and heavy jaw. As the car tore past them this man turned, eying them sharply, and Piggy thought he looked a good deal like a bulldog getting ready to spring. A second later he had disappeared around a curve in the road.

"Peter!" Roberta gasped, behind her veil. "Peter! That was my father! He's found out!"

"Ho-lee smoke," said Piggy. "We've got to hump ourselves."

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Meanwhile, events necessarily beyond the ken of Roberta and Piggy had taken place in New York, and her father's presence in New Hampshire was due less to the omniscience with which she was at first inclined to credit him than to one of the qualities making him a successful business man. He was a good guesser, and, having decided upon the probable goal of any opponent, it was his policy to arrive there first, if possible. Assuming that anyone was to be taken by surprise, he preferred it to be the other fellow.

His knowledge of Roberta's expected arrival in New York may be regarded as the result of pure chance by those who believe there is any such thing.

Four days before Piggy was sent to meet Roberta at the station, while Scott's mind was chiefly engaged in business, a friend from Montreal had called upon him unexpectedly at his office. Scott invited the man to dine that night at his club, explaining that his family was in the country.

"Have they come back?" the other asked, with surprise. "I saw Mrs. Scott and Miss Celia in London in June, and they said they were going to Italy later and wouldn't be home until Christmas."

"Um—yes—that was the plan. But Celia had a bad nervous breakdown. I had to go over and bring her home."

"Nothing serious, I hope?"

"No. It's persistent. But not serious. If we keep her quiet enough—long enough—she'll come around all right."

"Probably that's the reason her sister's coming home, then," said the Montreal man, who knew nothing about the family breach.

"What's that?" Scott's tone was sharp.

"Am I giving away a secret? Perhaps she meant to surprise you."

"Perhaps she did. It's a way she has. What makes you think she's coming back?"

"I saw her in the steamship office buying a ticket the day before I sailed. I came on the last ship to Quebec myself, and heard her ask for a cabin on the next one."

"Sure it was Roberta?"

"Why—I thought so. I never saw her but once before. I didn't speak to her, because I was in a great hurry, and I don't think she recognized me. I may have been mistaken. Anyway, I'm sorry if I've spoiled her plan."

"No harm done. If she is coming, I'm glad to know it," an equivocal statement producing the desired effect upon the mind of the Canadian.

In his morning mail, the day after the Canadian's revelation, Scott found a notification from one of his numerous henchmen that Clifford Nixon, the young manager of a Cleveland company manufacturing automobile engines, was in New York, and his mind leaped to the solution of a simple equation wherein two and two added up to fifty per cent; or, algebraically stated, a plus b equaled half the sum of x. Nixon had been one of Roberta's suitors from the time she left school, and she had repeatedly refused him. In fact, her obduracy in this matter had been one of several factors in her final break with her father, who had regarded the young man with something more than favor. Ergo: Roberta being due in New York in three days, Nixon appeared, certainly to meet her, probably to propose to her again, possibly to aid and abet her in an attempt to remove Celia from the proper and ordained jurisdiction of her natural guardian.

Scott's most distinctive trait was an egotistic pride. Ruling men with a heavy hand, it irked him sore that his most formidable foes should be they of his own household, and mere girl at that. Inwardly still raw and embittered by Roberta's successful revolt, he was determined to nip Celia's unfilial defection in the bud. And while he never admitted it even to himself, he was a little afraid of his elder daughter.

Temporarily dismissing all other claims upon his attention, he went into secret session with himself, from which he emerged after half an hour or so to order his secretary to telephone a message to Clifford Nixon's club that Mr. Scott wished to see him immediately on important business and to cancel any other appointment for an hour when Nixon could be home.

During the afternoon the young man accordingly presented himself, wondering, and was at once admitted to the Presence. His wonder, however, was short-lived.

"Hello, Clif!" said Scott. "So you've come to meet Roberta."

The other, taken aback, hesitated a second before replying. "Is Roberta coming?"

"You know damn well she is." Her father thrust out his heavy chin, his small, dark eyes gleaming. "You're here to meet her."

"Well—what if I am?" A note of defiance colored Nixon's tone.

"Nothing. That's your affair. Going to propose to her again?"

"No. I'm going to marry her."

"The devil you are! Got tired bucking the world, has she? Finds it isn't such a snap as she thought? Well, I don't envy you or your job. All I've got to say about it is this: There's a certain situation which you may or may not know about, in which she's likely to try to take a hand. If she does there's going to be trouble, so you'd better see that she doesn't."

"I don't recognize your right to dictate—"

"Don't, eh? Well, you will. Just to show you that it's not a bluff, I'll tell you now that I own a large interest in your concern. My name doesn't appear on your books—stock's held by dummies. When you formed your company four years ago I thought you might marry Roberta, and I wanted a finger in the pie. I've still got it. I can make it hot for you if I want to, and if you or anybody connected with you tries to mix up in my private affairs I'll do it! That's one thing I won't stand from anybody. Now marry her if you want to. She's no daughter of mine. But if you know what side your bread's buttered on, you'll see to it that she lets me and my family alone. Think it over—and don't talk back," he added, as Nixon, recovering a little from the first impact, threw up his head and opened his lips. "I've got you where the hair's short and you want to watch your step. Business is business, and you're doing well. I'm not likely to interfere with you as long as you don't interfere with me." He pressed a button on his desk. "If you do—look out. That's all I have to say now. Tell Mr. Norris to come in," he commanded, as a girl opened the door. "Good-by, Clif. Think it over."

Nixon walked out with his head in a whirl.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

Scott was satisfied that he had put an effective spoke in Robreta's wheel, Clif might even hesitate to marry her at all, in circumstances now clear to him. But having had experiences of his own with his daughter and desiring to make assurance doubly sure, he called his stenographer and dictated certain telegrams calculated not only to demonstrate his own power and engage Nixon's attention at a critical moment, but to give the young man time for mature thought before meeting Roberta.

He then visited a detective agency, where he gave explicit directions, thereby setting in motion the last of several currents which were to sweep his daughter into the hands of a much more adventurous and ingenious conspirator that Clifford Nixon; all of which merely goes to show that excessive caution not infrequently defeats its own end. His savage breast somewhat soothed by the esoteric music of these machinations, Scott returned to his office to resume his plan of campaign against the Brazenose Company.

(To be continued.)

U. W. No. 763—12- 6—1926.

Classified Advertisements
MISCELLANEOUS

SEND 25c FOR WONDERFUL HAIR TONIC Formula and own a fine head of hair. Dr. Guy Northern, 1816 12th St., N. W., Washington, D. C. E-62-63

LAND OF ORANGES AND FLOWERS. Invest in the new seaport, Corpus Christi, Texas, in the Sunny Southland. Write G. A. Girl, Box 165, Corpus Christi, Texas.

DR. E. HENRY MORIARTY
at the
MORIARTY CANCER SANITARIUM

Specializing in the treatment of cancer without the use of knife or electricity.

Reference given on request.

1411 E. FULTON ST. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

After the Wreck Comes the Reckoning.

A Legal Reserve Automobile Insurance Policy at Lower Rates—No Assessments

REPUBLIC
Automobile Insurance Underwriters

WE WANT AN AGENT
IN YOUR VICINITY

2163 Jefferson Ave., East, at Dubois
Detroit, Michigan

THE BEST RECOMMENDATION
— FOR —
BARE-TO-HAIR

Is the number who are trying to imitate it. If Bare-to-Hair was not growing hair on bald heads there would be no imitators. If there is baldness or signs of it you can't afford to neglect to use "Forst's Original Bare-to-Hair."

Correspondence Given Personal Attention

E. J. Jahn Barber Supply Co.,
1267 Park Place, at Grand River,
Detroit, Michigan.

THE FACTS ARE FREE—

Ask Us

About High Returns with Safety from our Land Contract Securities

EVERY MICHIGAN INVESTOR SHOULD BE POSTED ON

FENTON · SMITH & SAFFIR
LAND CONTRACTS
Yielding up to 12 and 15% Annually

Like every investor you are interested in thoroughly safe large yield investments. We can give you facts about Land Contract securities which prove them the kind of investment that thoughtful, careful men prefer.

Perhaps you have not considered Land Contracts as an investment possibility. The advantages of high return and complete safety which they offer are such that you can not afford to overlook them any longer. The soundness of Land Contract securities attract the most careful investors and they earn you anywhere from 12 to 15% annually.

All the Land Contracts we offer have Detroit homes behind them, homes built for reputable, well employed heads of families who have made substantial down payments. The conservative mortgages on these properties are held by Detroit banks and trust companies. Let us tell you the whole Land Contract story. The information costs you nothing and you are not obligated in any way.

You can have the complete facts without obligation by returning the coupon.

FENTON-SMITH & SAFFIR
INVESTMENT BANKERS

24th Floor, First National Bank Building
DETROIT, MICHIGAN

COUPON

FENTON, SMITH & SAFFIR,
24th Floor, First National Bank Bldg.,
DETROIT, MICH.

Without obligation to me, send me complete facts about your Land Contract Securites.

Name ____________________
Street Address ____________________
City ____________________ Mich.

COUPON

FIRES BLAMED FOR IDLE SOIL

While Michigan holds her head proudly with the other agricultural states, she has many acres of plains upon which nothing will grow but scrubby oak and jack pine. Huckleberry brush and sweet fern are the main lesser growths. No need to describe this soil. It is just sand! But why is it worthless? Many firmly believe that the answer to this question is fire.

You will notice, if you care to investigate, that as soon as a root system with its layer of humus gets established, a forest fire sweeps over the plains, burning and injuring the trees and very often killing them. The land is left with nothing but a layer of ashes. This takes place time after time and the vitality of the soil is soon completely destroyed...We have left jack pine plains.

On a small area of land in Wexford county, which has been protected from fire for years, is growing the following different kinds of trees of sizable growth: Pine, Norway and white with here and there a jack, oak, maple, popular, white birch, cherry and many lesser plants and shrubs. Yet a sampel of soil taken from this land had the same appearance as the soil from the true plains. It was white and sandy and could not be distinguished when mixed.

Farmers Weary of Sheltering Wanton Hunters On Lands

Although the fall hunting season doesn't enter into the picture for a couple of months, hunters who live in cities and haven't an yhook-up for a shooting place this fall are advised to get busy now to make their arrangements.

With farmers forced to lock their gates and bar all free lance hunters because of the depredations of a few, it behooves the responsible city hunter to enter into a combine or compact with one or two friendly farmers who are willing to permit one, two, three, or four fellows to hunt upon acreage for a nominal sum.

[illegible] the hunters are responsible men [illegible] will not tear down fences and destroy stock the average farmer will be glad to take a small sum from them for exclusive hunting privileges on his fram. Friendship and gentlemanly conduct get results in this game.

The farmer has had his fill of the other kind of contracts judging by a farmers' meeting when some of the men present related what they had suffered from careless and vicious property-destroying gunners.

Pike Fishermen Haunt Former Trout Streams

In spite of the fact that the northern pike is gradually coming to be considered a game fish in Michigan, some sections of the country still scorn it.

In Canada and northern Minnesota the pike is outlawed as a destroyer of bass. Michigan conservation officials declare there was a time in this state when the banks of the Au Sable river were strewn with decaying pike. Trout fishermen made a practice of destroying the pike on the grounds that it was an enemy of trout with which the riven then abounded.

The trout supply in Michigan has decreased rapidly in recent years and the pike gradually is coming to hold a place as an accepted game fish. Hundreds of fishermen who once went to the Au Sable for the trout fishing now regularly make the trip for pike.

Bishop of Detroit Is Threatened In Note Demanding $30,000

Letters demanding $30,000 from Rt. Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Detroit, are not the product of a crank but are from professional blackmailers, it was declared by E. E. Fraser, postoffice inspector of Detroit.

As the result of the receipt of the letters by Bishop Gallagher, police and private detectives are guarding the episcopal residence in Palmer Woods, and strangers approaching the bishop's house are closcely scrutinized.

Threats of assassination were contained in one of the letters unless the money was deposited in postoffice substation No. 54.

$2,000,000 Is Involved in Akron - Detroit Merger

Consolidation of the Whitman & Barnes [illegible]facturing Co., of Akron, Ohio, and the Detroit Twist Drill company, of Detroit, has been paproved by a large majority of the stockholders, according to W. H. Edgar, president. Approximately $2,000,000 is involved in the merger.

Radio Lighthouses On Great Lakes Are Planned By U. S.

Plans for extending the government program for protection of shipping along the Atlantic coast, the Great Lakes and aroun dHawaii, calling for establishment of 15 new radio beacon stations by next June 30, have been announced by the Light House bureau.

Sites for 11 of the new stations have been selected and, if funds permit, four others will be set up

The new stations, which will augment the 27 now in operation, will be established at Stratford Shoal, Long Island sound; winter quarters lightship, Va., St. John river and Jupiter Inlet Fla.; Dry Tortugas, west of Key West in the Gulf of Mexico; Thunder Bay island, Lake Huron, Mich.; Passage island, northe npart of Lake Superior; Point Betsie, near Frankfort, Mich.; Milwaukee breakwaters, Lake Michigan; Grays Harbor, Wash., and Makapuu Point, Hawaii.

If money is available two other stations will be located in Long Island sound and two others in Lake Michigan.

WHIPPOORWILL IS FOE OF INSECTS

While the nighthawk, a cousin in relationship, may be seen flying at a considerable height in the early evening and later afternoon, the whippoorwill does not stir until twilight has fallen.

It is doubtless because of its nocturnal habits, as wll as the mournful notes, that the bird has been credited with an evil influence by credulous people. It seldom affords anyone an opportunity for a good look.

The robin-size whoppoorwill is exclusively a bird of the woods and hills If disturbed, it disappears almost as noiselessly as an owl, gliding silently from post to post at low elevations. For a calling station it selects a fallen tree or a shed roof. It always perches lengthwise instead of crosswise, as do all other birds. It walks awkwardly.

On moonlight nights the male whippoorwill continues the whistled repetition whip-poor-will thruoghout the live long night. When the mating fervor is most impulsive, he will vociferate his name hundreds of times without the slightest paust.

The probabilities are that you, although reasonably observant, could pass within a few feet of a brooding whippoorwill without distinguishing her, so perfectly does the brownish plumage blend with the sticks, leaves and bits of decaying bark. She sits very closely and will not move unless convinced of discovery. From the two eggs will emerge a pair of chicks covered with yellowish down. If disturbed, the babies give one jump and then become as motionless as the inanimate surroundings.

The mother will simulate injury in order to decoy the intruder from the vicinity. It is claimed that she sometimes removes the nestlings in her beak like pussy transports her kittens. The whippoorwill becomes very attached to locality, returning to the same woods year after year.

Of few birds can more good and less harm be told than of the whippoorwill. The entire food consists of flying insects, of which it devours proiduigso sects, of which it devours prodigious quantities, in particular destroying the night-flying moths which, in the larval state, commit fearful devastation. It consumes millions of mosquitoes, flies, gnats, squash beetles, chinch bugs and leaf-hoopers. The usefulness is increased by keeping up the war against insects after the other birds have retired.

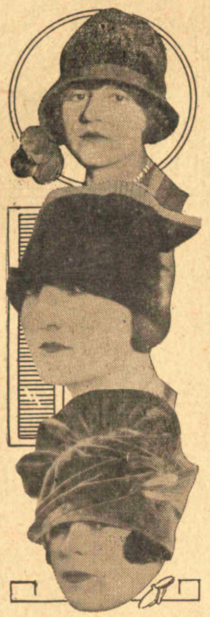
Sneeze Pilgrims Begin Trek to North of State

The annual pilgrimage of thousands of hay fever sufferers to northern Michigan has started. The first "Sneeze Pilgrims" arrived last week from southern Michigan, Illinois and Indiana, and within another two weeks thousands will take up their temporary homes in Traverse City and other northern Michigan resorts. They will be fleeing from the wind-driven pollen of the ragweed and ohter plants. Traverse City is near the southern line of the relief belt. The refugees remain during August, September, and many of them into October.

Clock 180 Years Old Is Owned by Rose City Pair

Mr. and Mrs. John Parliament of Rose City own a clock 180 years old, with the mechanical parts made of wood. The clock has been handed down for a number of generations. An offer to buy it recently was received from Henry Ford, but the family announced that the heirloom was prized too highly to sell it.

Women Will All Be "High Hats"



We will all be "high hats" this fall according to the latest styles. Above, a red velvet model "patched" with lighter shade with trimming of feather tulips. Center, the square crown and rolled brim is illustrated, the model suggesting an Alpine hat of a decade ago. Below, saxe-blue velvet with fan-like back to the crown and crystal hatpin decoration

Two Art Schools In Detroit Merge Under Old Name

The Commercial Art School, said to be the first one of its kind in Detroit, having been founded ten years ago, consolidated September 1 with the Detroit Academy of Art. The academy was founded two years ago by Mrs. E. Roblin Peck, who will have charge of fashions, costume designing, decorative pen and ink work and arts and crafts including pottery, basketry, batik and tooling of leather.

Mr. LeRoy Gray will remain as director of the combined schools which will retain the present teaching forces and assume the name of the older institution. Mr. Gray will have charge of the couses in life drawing, poster designing and color and still life.

Mr. George Rich, of Chicago, who has held exhibits of his work in many art centers, among them the Pennsylvania Academy of Fne Arts, will teach portrait, landscape, composition and illustration.

Rumanian Queen and Daughter to Pay Detroit Visit

Queen Marie of Rumania, and her daughter, Princess Ileana, will visit Detroit on their proposed American tour in October.

At the end of September, the queen will leave for New York for a tour, during which she hopes to visit each of the 48 states of the Union and probably the chief cities of Canada. Her visit to Detroit is to be included.

An invitation to Queen Marie and her daughter was extended by Constantine T. Dinu, chairman of the Twentieth Annual Convention of the Union of Rumanian Beneficial Societies, Inc. He has received a cablegram that the queen accepted the invitation with joy.

Mrs. Isobel J. Hurst, president of the Twentieth Century Club, also invited the queen to Detroit. The invitation was accepted by Irene Procapiu, lady in waiting.

Bumper Peach Yield Is Promised at Romeo

In the opinion of J. P. Vallis, manager of the Romeo Orchard company, the yield of peaches in his orchards this year will be the largest in its history. The quality, too, bids fair to be slightly above the average.

Everything moves in circles, which naturally includes the man who is stewed.

MOIRE, TAFFETA, WINTER FEATURES

While women still cling to mid-summer garments, these have long since ceased to be of special interest, and merely mark the transition period between the warm days and the cooler ones of autumn, which, if shops are to be credited, are not far away—at least in the realm of fashionable garb.

So, while white, and lightweight clothing is still in the majority for present wear, new materials and styles are everywhere to be seen in shop windows and in fashion displays, and it is here that woman's interest centers.

Among materials, two which have been absent from the first of favorites for several seasons are again prominent. These are moire and taffeta, which will both be featured for winter wear, if advance reports are to be credited. Kasha cloth still holds its place for both frocks and coats, jersey jumper suits are again present, and chiffons and georgettes are just as popular in the fall showings as they have been for several seasons past.

As for styles, the yhint at a little more fullness in the skirts, but the extra width is so deftly achieved by means of circular flounces, inverted pleats, and other subtle devices, that it is scarcely apparent, and the illusion of straight line still maintains. Waist lines are coming back for slim figures and are often quite clearly marked by a belt at the normal height. For the stout woman, however, this style is taboo. A fact which need cause little worry, for she is properly considered in the various styles that give a slender line, and still suit her type of figure.

Travelers returning from Paris who have seen the fall openings of the biggest designers declare that all the latter have done is to take the fashions of 1900 and cut them in half. That is they say the tight plain bodices, the long sleeves and rather full skirts are exactly like those worn a quarter of a century ago, with the skirts cut off at the knee. The fullness of the skirts seems the prevailing feature of the fall styles.

For the slim, real waistlines are back. Tight belts or girdles are employed to accentuate the slimness of the waist measurements and the result has necessitated a bloused style of daytime bodice an da flare of skirt. The very slim only are likely to follow this style, however.

Canaries Drive Away Inmates' "Blues" At Marquette Prison

Canaries in cages appear to have become a recognized power in modern criminology. This apparently absurd irrelevancy is reached on considering the fact that three big American penitentiaries (those at Sing Sing, N. Y.; Fort Madison, Ia., and Marquette, Mich.) have large numbers of canaries, whose song is believed to have a wholesome effect upon the prisoners.

At Sing Sing, a life prisoner was permitted a year or so ago to have a few pet birds, and now he has a large number of canaries, thrushes and cardinals, which make the prison's green house resemble a millionaire's conservatory. In Marquette, too, the cheery song of the little yellow birds makes prison life more endurable and more smooth for both nimates and wardens.

Still Found When Brothers Drown In Fermenting Liquor

One of the largest distilleries ever found in Berrien county was uncovered at Benton Harbor when the sheriff's office investigated the deaths of Frank Dimaria, 27 years old, and Sam Dimaria, 17 years old, who were drowned in a vat of fermenting liquor. The two men, Italians, were brothers.

According to relatives the younger man went to the barn, where the distilling plant was hidden and climbed to the top of the big vat. He fell into the liquor and called for help. His brother went to his aid, and he, too, fell into the vat. It is believed fumes from the 75-gallon vat caused the men to drown.

Port Huron in Sept. to Open Cripples' School

Definite assurance that the city of Port Huron would open a school fro cripples early in September was made by Harlan A. Davis, superintendent of Port Huronschools.

The new school for cripples, which will be the first of its kind ever attempted in Port Huron, has been under consideration for some time, and has encouraged much opposition, principally from property owners residing in the district where it was proposed to install the school.

No bore equals the bore who tries to tell everything he does'nt know at one sitting.

Experiment On Oil Expected to Cut Motoring Expense

The American motorist may soon see the day when a comparatively inexpensive apparatus, which he may own himself or find at the garage, will reclaim his oil and thereby reduce the expenses of utomobile ownership.

Work in this direction is being performed at the University of Michigan College of Engineering at Ann Arbor by Prof. W. E. Lay, at the request of a group of upstate business men. Prof. Lay is experimenting to learn whether the reclaiming process he has devised will enable oil to be used over and over without permanent loss of its lubricating quaility or whether it is already doing the most that can be expected of it.

Cabbage Aphids Spread to Radish Seeds On Farms

Cabbage aphids are destroying truck crops in several parts of the state, particularly in southern Michigan. The pests have centered their attack in some communities upon radishes, destroying whole fields which were being grown for seed.

The aphids are present in nearly all truck growing communities but they are more destructible in some sections than in others. Radish seed fields in Anrim county are badly damaged. Farmers in that section produce between 50 and 75 per cent of all radish seed grown in the United States. Upstate reports say many fields have been ruined.

Growers have tried to combat aphids with sprays and dusts but these materials have proved ineffective where pests were present in large numbers before spraying began. In most instances aphids were in the fields for days before their presence was discovered.

'Coons, Transplanted, Put End to Duck Haven

"You can't raise raccoon and ducks in the same place," says William H. Wallace, chairman of the conservation commission. "A number of years ago I planted a few raccoon on Heisterman's Island in Saginaw Bay. I thought they would be an added attraction to woods on the island. I soon found out hat as destroyers of duck eggs and nest nothing equals the coon. housands of ducks used to breed along the shores of this island, but now you will find only an occasional nest. Of late years we have been attempting to kill off the coon. Rewards have been offered, hunters employed, and still the island is not rid of them. Until they go there is no hope of restoring this island as a duck breeding ground."

Potatoes On Sale Are Ordered to Be Tagged

Potatoes offered for sale by truckers in crates or baskets must either be tagged to show the grade and packer, or a large placard must be placed in some conspicuous place upon the truckload giving the grade and the name and address of the trucker, according to a ruling this week by John I. Breck, director of the State Bureau of Foods and Standards.

Shippers recently complained to Mr. Breck that truckers were selling potatoes in crates and baskets on the Grand Rapids market without declaring their grade or displaying the name of the seller.

$50,000 Gift Brings Dormitory to College

With a gift of $50,000 from the Ball brothers of Muncie, Ind., to Hillsdale College, construction of the new woman's dormitory has been started and is expected to be completed in the coming college year.

The new building will be known as the "Frances Ball Mauck Dormitory," in honor of the late president of the woman's commission of Hillsdale College and late wife of President Emeritus Joseph W. Mauck.

The structure, consisting of two units, connected by a solarium, will cost $200,000.

The Tokio (Japan) street railway company, noticing a falling off in business, has begun the employing of pretty Japanese girls as conductors to draw patronage.

A Study in Thrift
A simple plan which outlines to the individual of limited means a practical method of acquiring
FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE
Write for a free copy of this book
B.W. JACKSON & CO.
INVESTMENT BANKERS
FIRST NATIONAL BANK BUILDING
DETROIT, MICH.

$40,000 JEWELS SAVED FROM RIVER

Beneath the black, slimy waters of a boatwell on the Detroit river lay a beautiful white-gol ddiamond-studded mesh bag. In the bag was jewelry worth $40,000 belonging to Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell. To Dorsey Mallett it was but a dive through ten feet of dirty, black water, a groping hand in contact with the soft meshes of the bag and a struggle to the surface with the small fortune—that, and nothing more.

Mallett, his body covered with the green slime and reeking of the stench of dirty water, handed the bag to Mrs. Cromwell, who accepted it with a sigh of relief and said, "Oh, thank you so very much, Mr. Mallett. I never dreamed anyone could see in that dirty water."

A party, consisting of Mrs. Cromwell, her brother, Horace E. Dodge, Jr., and Strasburg, were inspecting a new speed boat when the bag slipped from the fingers of Mrs. Cromwell. The bag fell between the boat and the dock and disappeared. Strasburg dived until he was exhausted and after repeated failures it was decided to call Mallett.

Experts By Feeding Step Up Production of Eggs In Contest

Records in the fourth international egg laying contest at Michigan State College show how poultry specialists have been able to step up production in the course of four years' experimenting to find the most efficient rations for hens.

To August 1, the 1,000 hens in the contest had produced more eggs than in the corresponding period in any of the previous races. In fact, the records show the production each year has been increased over the previous season.

The hens, to August 1 this year, had produced 156,827 eggs, compared with 136,474, in the corresponding period of 1925, a total of 123,147 in 1924, and 123,064 in 1923.

$2,312,325 Held Value Of Michigan Railroad

Final valuations for four railroads have been announced by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Manistee & Northwestern of Michigan was valued at $2,312,325 as of June 30, 1919; the Pacific Coast Railway of California, $1,765,160, June 30, 1916; Kankakee & Seneca, of Illinois, $800,000, 1915; Sand Springs Railway, Oklahoma, $646,323, June 30, 1918.

WE TEACH
STEAM ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL POWER
And
HOUSE WIRING
DETROIT
PRACTICAL SCHOOL
23 East Jefferson, Detroit
W. B. MacDonald, M.E.I.C., M.I.E.S.
Gus Lender, M.A.I.E.E.; U.C.C. of E., N.A.S.E.

WINNERS
The man who wins is the man who "does" — and the man who becomes a barber the Moler way wins for himself a permanent, pleasant profession and an enviable income. There's goood money in it and a job wherever you go. Send for booklet today. FREE!
Moler Barber Colleges
33 Years Established 32 Branches
559 Michigan Ave., Detroit

FORD'S SHIP IS CIRCLING GLOBE

Out on the Pacific ocean with her prow pointed toward the Orient, the big motorship East Indian of the Ford Motor company's fleet, is on a voyage which will take her around the world. She is the first Ford vessel to circumnavigate the globe.

The East Indian, loaded with a cargo of Ford parts sufficient for the complete assembly of 2,500 For dcars and trucks and destined for delivery to the Ford plant in Yokohama, Japan, and to service plants in Manila and Shanghai, sailed from New York harbor July 13, heading south for Cuba. At Tarafa and Manatia cargo of 7,000 tons of sugar was also taken on board for delivery at Takao, Formosa.

After discharging her cargo on the other side of the world, the East Indian will follow the practice pursued by Ford carriers, that of delivering finished products and returning with raw materials to be manufactured into more Ford products.

Work Speeded to Open Road For Lapeer Fair

Concrete pouring on M-21 now has been practically completed. A small portion of the newly constructed road will have to be torn up and relaid because of the center being lower than the sides. The east end of the new road now is being used and after the west portion has stood the required length of time to season it will be opened. The goal aimed at the past few weeks has been to have the entire stretch opened when the Imlay City fair opens, Sept. 14.

HAY-FEVER
AND ASTHMA
CONQUERED

You can be permanently relieved from the distressing diseases, Hay Fever and Asthma. No matter of how long standing or how violent your case may be, permanent relief may be obtained in most cases by the use of HIMALYA.

"Covena, Ga., July 7, 1925.
"The HIMALYA CO.,
"Detroit, Michigan.
"Gentlemen:-
"Replying to yours of the 11th instant, will say that I am glad to add one more testimonial to the praise of HIMALYA. I am 44 years old and when I was 15 years of age I began to suffer with Asthma, and the paroxysms got worse and more frequent for the next ten years, until I could rest no way when an attack was on; but thanks to 'HIMALYA' I am well and I suffer no more from Asthma, and as it has been ten years since I was cured, I feel that the cure is permanent, but should it ever recur, I would send for another treatment of HIMALYA. I had used every remedy I could hear of, all to no good, but HIMALYA gave me relief from the start. HIMALYA is the one great boon for Asthma and Hay Fever sufferers, and I will always be glad to recommend it to all who suffer with same. As ever,
"Yours truly,
"E. H. HOLTON,
"Covena, Ga., R. 1, Box 77."

WHATEVER WE HAVE DONE FOR MR. E. H. MORTON, OF COVENA, GA., SPEAKS FOR HIMALYA.
Write to
The HIMALYA Co.
416 WEST WARREN AVENUE
DETROIT, MICH.

FREE-
10 days treatment of The Orange Lily Suppository for women, will be sent absolutely free.
Address
The C. M. Co.,
Box 74, Maxwell Station
Detroit, Mich.

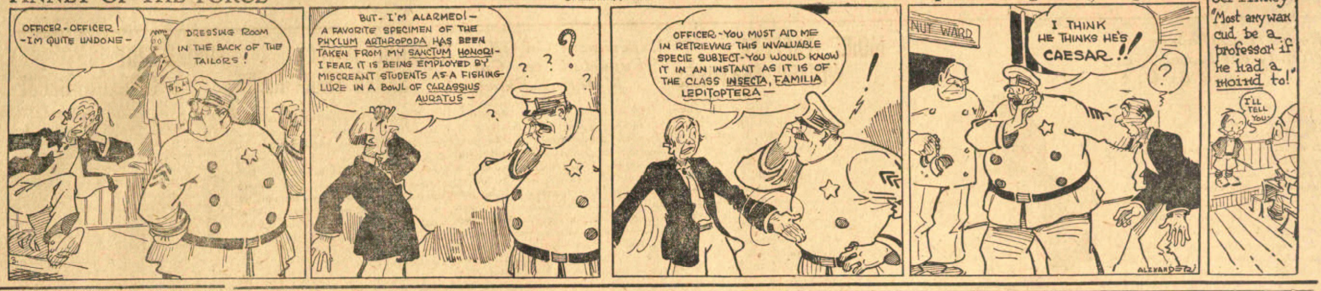
Mechanical — Professional
TRADES
Learn Mechanical Dentistry
A big pay trade with a future—easy to learn—open day and evenings. Jobs paying $25.00 to $40.00 per week while learning. Learn the practical way.
Write Department D for Information
R. B. Waggoner School of Mechanical Dentistry
1550 BROADWAY—ROOM 610 CAPITOL THEATER BLDG.
DETROIT, MICH.

BRICKLAYING —
is not learned in a week or two, no matter what some advertisements say. Yet the reward for the real man is ample.
It is taught successfully on a non-profit basis by the Contractors Association in Detroit.
Write to or Visit
THE DETROIT BRICKLAYING SCHOOL
1944 E. WOODBRIDGE
EDGEWOOD 0467
DETROIT, MICH.

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

By F. O. Alexander
©Western Newspaper Union

Impersonating Something Dead



OFFICER - OFFICER! -I'M QUITE UNDONE -
DRESSING ROOM IN THE BACK OF THE TAILORS!
BUT - I'M ALARMED! - A FAVORITE SPECIMEN OF THE PHYLUM ARTHROPODA HAS BEEN TAKEN FROM MY SANCTUM HONORI - I FEAR IT IS BEING EMPLOYED BY MISCREANT STUDENTS AS A FISHING-LURE IN A BOWL OF CARASSIUS AURATUS -
? ? ?
OFFICER - YOU MUST AID ME IN RETRIEVING THIS INVALUABLE SPECIE SUBJECT - YOU WOULD KNOW IT IN AN INSTANT AS IT IS OF THE CLASS INSECTA, FAMILIA LEPITOPTERA -
NUT WARD
I THINK HE THINKS HE'S CAESAR!!
?
Sez Finney: "Most any wan cud be a professor if he had a moind to!"
I'LL TELL YOU
ALEXANDER

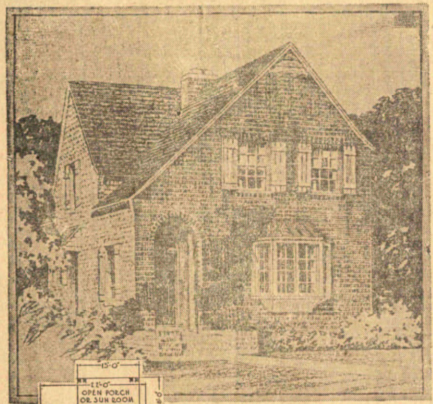
Patronize Our Advertisers

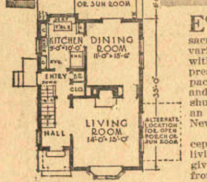
They are all boosters and deserve your business.

Coleridge's Hat His Bank

Coleridge the writer, had a peculiar way of keeping his money concealed in his hat and kept his manuscripts in the bathtub. For many years he had little change money and didn't need much room for it, whereas his manuscripts during that time required a spacious container.

Home-Builder Gets Good Investment Plus Comfort



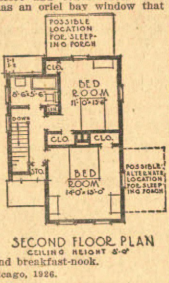


15'-0"
22'-0"
OPEN PORCH OR SUN ROOM
8'-0"
KITCHEN 9'-0"×10'-0"
DINING ROOM 11'-0"×15'-6"
ENTRY
CLO.
LIVING ROOM 14'-0"×15'-0"
HALL
33'-0"
ALTERNATE LOCATION FOR OPEN PORCH OR SUN ROOM

FIRST FLOOR PLAN
CEILING HEIGHT 8'-6"

ECONOMY of space in this five-room English town house has not meant a sacrifice of an artistic exterior. Built of variegated or common brick, whitewashed, with a roof of stained shingles or slate, it presents an unusually attractive and compact appearance. The portico is arched and roofed, and has a red brick floor. The shutters of solid, weathered boards give an interesting departure from the usual New England type.

A number of features provide for exceptional comfort and convenience. The living room has an oriel bay window that gives light from three directions and affords a window seat or fernery within. Every room has windows on two sides, giving cross-ventilation. The house is insulated, walls and roof, with celotex as protection against cold and waste of fuel in the winter, and the hot rays of the sun in summer. The floors are hardwood throughout, and have a layer of celotex placed between them to deaden noises within the house, a feature that is especially appreciated where there are small children and noisy boys in the house.



POSSIBLE LOCATION FOR SLEEPING PORCH
CLO.
8'-6"×5'-6"
BED ROOM 11'-0"×13'-6"
CLO.
CLO.
STO.
BED ROOM 14'-0"×13'-0"
POSSIBLE ALTERNATE LOCATION FOR SLEEPING PORCH

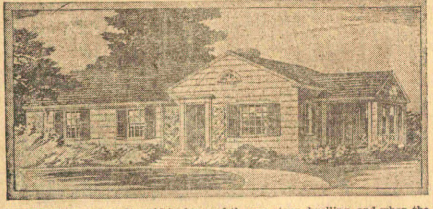
SECOND FLOOR PLAN
CEILING HEIGHT 8'-0"

The living room has an open fireplace and built-in book case. The porch or sun room may open off the living room or dining room, and can well have a sleeping porch above if extra sleeping quarters are needed. The service entry is conveniently placed at the side, to save the housewife steps. The kitchen has built-in cupboards, ironing-board and breakfast-nook.

©, Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926.

At an imposing ceremony before their headquarters in New York City the famous Old Guard of New York under the command of Major E. Havemeyer Snyder, commandant of the organization, received the invitation from the officials of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, opening in Philadelphia June 1 and continuing to December 1, to celebrate 150 years of American independence, to attend the Flag Day exercises on June 14, when all the historic military commands of the thirteen original colonies will assemble for a big military display and parade headed by General Pershing. Captain James A. B. Franciscus, of the Old Guard State Fencibles, of the Sesqui city, is presenting the invitation to Major Snyder. At Major Snyder's left stand the commanding officers of the Philadelphia organizations, while the members of the two famous commands are grouped about their leaders in their striking dress uniforms.

This Six-Room Bungalow Adapts Self to Any Lot

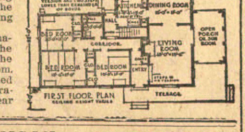


THERE is much to be said in favor of the one-story dwelling, and when the floor plan is as expertly arranged as in this Colonial bungalow the usual objections of lack of privacy and long distances to walk, are avoided.

This house may run either lengthwise or across the width of the lot. The exterior is of stained grey shingles with either a green shingled or tiled roof. The trimmings should be white and the shutters green to harmonize with the roof.

The three bedrooms are well shut off from the rest of the house. The large open porch or sunroom can be made to open off either the living or dining room. The kitchen has the desired built-in features, including the useful breakfast nook.

The cost of this house can be materially reduced by omitting the basement and allowing space on the main floor for a small boiler room. The walls and roof also are sheathed with celotex to keep the temperature at comfort point the year round.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN

Advocate and MICHIGAN FARMER, both one year $2.15

W. C. T. U. Column

LAURA WALWORTH, EDITOR

Enforce The Law

(Continued from last week)

Again, if it be true that "the prohibitory law has never been practically in effect", that "it has been a disasterous, tragic failure," that "the Government is powerless to enforce it," in what way does it interfere with the personal liberty of those who would drink intoxicants?

The answer is, as everybody knows, that by reason of the existence of national prohibition, by reason of its practical effect, by reason of the exertion of the power of the federal government. the traffic in liquor is becoming day by day more and more difficult and dangerous to carry on.

As the application of the federal power grows more strict, and the manufacture within the country and importation from without becomes more restricted, as the business becomes more difficult and dangerous, the price of the goods dealt in rises, and right there is where the shoe pinches; right there is the evidence which cannot be converted, that the federal government is not "powerless to enforce" the law.

I maintain that to show the law, any law, is violated, is not to show that it is not being enforced, or that it cannot be enforced.

If that argument were sound, then because crimes of murder, rape, robbery, smuggling, stealing embezzlement continue to be committed, we must say the penalties against them cannot be imposed.

No one thinks that.

As the amount of liquor available for consumption decreases, and the price of liquor rises and the profit per quart or per gallon increases, new and keenest wits and ingenuity are attracted to the business, new and complicated and skillful schemes are devised for evading the law, and constantly increasing watchfulness, activity and study required for their detection; many of them go on for a time without detection. But ways of meeting and overcoming them are found, and can be found for all of them.

Recently someone made an argument that the great increase of cases in Court for violation of the prohibitory law is an indication that law is not being and cannot be enforced.

I submit that the increase in cases in Court is an index of the activities which have resulted in whiskey being unobtainable except at an expense many times as great as before those activities were exerted by the federal government.

And as the work of detection, seizure and arrest resulting in such cases in Court goes on, the extinction of the traffic draws so much nearer.

That this traffic may be declared an evil thing, and may be abated under the provisions of the now existing law, is firmly settled by judicial decision of the highest court.

What remains in the way of its complete abatement? The temptation to make money in the traffic, created by those who either wilfully or thoughlessly disregard their highest obligations to their country and themselves and offer and pay for violation of the law a bribe large enough to offset the danger of prosecution, fine and imprisonment.

To those "thousands of the best citizens of the country who have no compunctions whatever about violating the law" I address the question:—Upon reflection, having called to your attention what your action really means and is in paying an outlaw for violating the law of your country in order to furnish you the means of gratifying your desire for drink, didn't you think it better to refrain from such bribery in the future?

Don't you feel that, unless you so refrain, there may be some doubt about your being longer entitled to the designation "best citizens of the country?"

Can you afford to endanger your property, your safety, your lives, and the property, safety and lives of your wives and children by teaching and practicing the doctrine of purchasiug the commission of crime? Laying aside for the moment any consideration of your duty as citizens, does not your interest lie the other way?

To those who, after considering the character and consequences of their acts, persist in promoting and fostering the violation of the law, I say that the hand of punishment shall fall as often and as heavily as those now charged with the duty of administering the law can cause it to fall.

To you, the women of this country, I say, you can by your influence and your votes secure the election and appointment of honest, faithful administrative officers, and the discharge and retirement of those who prove to be dishonest, unfaithful, inefficient.

More than this,—

Remember that the business of making, transporting and selling liquor is not entered upon from the motives which incite the commission of most other crimes,—jealousy, revenge, sudden anger, ill will toward society generally, but only for profit.

The market for the goods is the whole foundation of the great cost in money, time and effort of suppression of the traffic.

You can, if you will, make the serving of unlawful liquor at social functions of your acquaintances so unpopular that it will cease.

Will you do your part?

I notice further on your letterheads "Allegiance to the Constitution" on the one side, "Observance of law" on the other side. With two such supporters staying up its hands, Enforcement of the Law must win. "Then came Amalek and fought with Israel in Rephidim

"And Moses said unto Joshua, Choose us out men and go out and fight with Amalek; tomorrow I will stand on top of the hill.

"So Joshua did as Moses had said to him and fought with Amalek, and Moses, Aaron and Hur went up to the top of the hill.

"And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand that Israel prevailed: and when he let down his hand Amalek prevailed.

"But Moses' hands were heavy; and they took a stone and put it under him and he sat thereon: and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun.

"And Joshua discomfited Amalek and his people with the edge of the sword."

(The end)

First in Silk

When you admire a piece of silk tapestry or silk damask adorning a piece of American-made furniture, it is interesting to know that America ranks first among all the countries manufacturing silks, with France second in production.

Correct English

MONTHLY MAGAZINE

Authoritive Exponent of English for 24 Years

Edited and founded by
JOSEPHINF TURCK BAKER
Famous World English Authority

Send 10 Cents for Sample Copy
Correct English Publishing Company
Evanston, Illinois
Agents Wanted Everywhere

F. E. Caswell D. V. M.

Veterinarian

Office at Residence, West Main St
Private Phone 45

North Adams, Mich.

Dr. L. R. ULRICH

DENTIST

Private Office in Room over Perkins' Restaurant
Thursdays hours 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.
Plate Work a Specialty

O. G. McFarland M. D.

North Adams, Mich.

OFFICE HOURS: 8:00 to 9:00a. m.
1:00 to 4:00 p. m.
7:00 to 8:00 p. m.

Pills

He is a workman in a factory employing some five thousand men and while he does not know personally all of the five thousand his particular job brings him in contact with many men. A few he knows well, many he knows slightly. He said, "I am the only man that I know in the whole shop, as far as I know it, who is not taking pills every night. Everyone of the fellows is forever taking pills. They have a vast scorn for anything that goes under the name of healthful diet, but they'll take any thing that goes under the name of medicine. It is a crime too. All kinds of fakirs come down to the shop, stand around at noontime and they can sell the fellows anything. I've seen some of the boys fellows working for forty-five cents an hour, pay ten or fifteen dollars for some remedy that was no good on earth or worse than no good. "No", in reply to a question. "I never try to tell them anything. It wouldn't do them any good. I am one of them so they don't respect my opinion anyhow. But it is a shame the way they are forever dosing themselves and the way they are cheated too."

What that workman said was only too true. Because America is a nation of readers, and because the vendors of fake remedies write such glowing accounts of the curative properties of what they have to sell. Many readers believe these accounts. They wish to believe them; they wish to feel well, and it is easier to swallow a pill, than it is to exercise self control, eat the food that makes us well. However, though the pill may be the easy way today, there may come a tomorrow when it will prove to be the hard way. When more and more pills must needs be taken to secure any results, and when because of the long habit of dosing the entire digestive system has become deranged. The moral of which is, watch yourself, to see what foods are best for you personally, eat plenty of vegetables, besides potatoes, plenty of fruit, drink plenty of water, at least six glasses a day, and plenty of milk. Eat right, work right, play right, and sleep right, and a long useful life will be yours.

Mrs. C. Grant Warner for many years a resident of Jonesville and vicinity, and at one time living in Moscow township northeast of this village passed away Wednesday November 24th at a hospital at Sturgis, death being due to a complication of diseases. She was 66 years of age and her maiden name was Fannie Sawyer. She at one time was a teacher in the district schools of the vicinity. She will be remembered by many in this village as having resided on the Horace Wisner farm and attending church here. She was a member of the Methodist church and leaves two brothers Willis Sawyer of Albion and Irving Sawyer of Moscow besides the husband. Funeral obsequies were at Sturgis on Saturday with interment at Litchfield Mt Hope cemetery.

In his article "Lumber Finds Widening Markets," in the November Nation's Business, Frank G. Wisner says: "Wood is both light and strong, tough, resilient and elastic. It can be worked and fabricated with small tools, easily portable and used on the job. It can be shaped by lathes and pressed into manifold forms with startling rapidity. "Weight for weight it is as strong as steel, and much stronger than cast iron. It burns but heat does not distort it, and it is rustless. Wood is natural heat, sound, and electricity insulator, which is one of the reasons for the instinctive liking of American people for as much wood as possible in their dwellings. The well-built frame house is a conserver of heat and reducer of fuel bills. "The trees are always growing, always manufacturing wood, always synthetizing wood from air, water and a dash of salts. Measured in lumber only—and that classification of wood represents only a third of the annual consumption of tree material in cubic feet—the silent forests are producing today as much wood by weight, as all the roaring blast and open hearth furnaces of America are producing steel."

An Advantage

The best thing about telling the truth is that you don't have to remember what you said.

PASTOR GIVES CAMP FOR BOYS

Camp Ke-No-Kee, in Macomb County, Nearly Completed

DETROIT, MICH.,—Camp Ke-No-Kee, a summer camp for small boys of the Annunciation Parish of this city, located in the northeast corner of Macomb County four miles from Richmond, Mich., will open this month, according to the Rev. Fr James Stapleton, pastor of Annunciation Church.

The camp will accommodate 30 youngsters and is the gift of the pastor to the children of his church. Although only boys will be admitted to the camp this summer, Father Stapleton contemplates erecting a similiar camp for girls next year.

Camp Ke-No-Kee, which takes its name from an Indian word meaning "Crossing of the Trails", occupies 40 acres of meadow-land divided into two nearly equal parts by the Belle River. The river at this point is four feet deep, which reduces the danger from accidental drowning to a minimum.

Four of the seven buildings on the camp property are already completed and the other three are rapidly nearing completion. The main building will contain a dining room and dormitory capable of housing 30 boys. On one side will be the manager's cottage and on the other a storehouse. At the extreme southern end of the property the Priest's cottage is under construction.

Good roads connect the camp with the towns of Memphis and Richmond and Detroit is only 40 miles away, a journey of an hour and a half by automobile. All expenses in connection with Camp Ke-No-Kee will be met by Father Stapleton personally and the boys will be charged only a nominal sum to cover their board.

WEEDS NOT GOOD ENOUGH, GOATS EAT SHRUBS; BANISHED

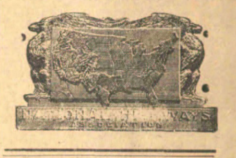
DETROIT, MICH.,—Angora goats it would seem, have little to do with church matters but the fact remains that the Roman Catholic Diocese of Detroit has an extensive herd of them. The diocese recently acquired a large tract of land for use as a cemetery. To clear off the underbrush which covered this land, someone suggested goats.

Five hundred were immediately purchased and pastured on the property. All went well until T. Glenn Phillips, former city planner, discovered that the goats were not only devouring the underbrush and rubbish but the natural shrubbery as well. And in addition to eating everything on the place they were increasing like the bibilcal loaves and fishes.

As a result the goats were banished from the proposed cemetery site and will be disposed of shortly.

When Boy and Puppy Meet

When boy and puppy meet, even though it is against the tuberculosis sanatorium rules, there is joy in the hearts of both. And why shouldn't there be joy, especially in the heart of the boy for he is going home soon after a stay in the Ingham county tuberculosis sanatorium, and then he can play with puppies to his heart's content. Through the Christmas seals, which finance the work of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, frail lads are found throughout Michigan, and helped to grow into strong and healthy ones.



Hotels MADISON and LENOX DETROIT

In Detroit's downtown center close to all public buildings, theatres and department stores: Quality of accommodation considered; the rates are the most reasonable in all Detroit

MADISON AVE., NEAR GRAND CIRCUS PARK

Harley Voorhees

FUNERAL DIRECTOR
HANOVER MICHIGAN

Calls attended promptly day and night. Having the best of equipment, I can serve and please you.

Any of our friends who wish our servces, can reach us day or night bycalling Moscow Central.

HARLEY VOORHEES
Hanover, Mich.

Always at Your Service for Printing Needs!

Is there something you need in the following list?

Birth Announcements
Wedding Stationery
Envelope Inclosures
Sale Bills
Hand Bills
Price Lists
Admission Tickets
Business Cards
Window Cards
Time Cards
Letter Heads
Note Heads
Bill Heads
Envelopes
Calling Cards
Leaflets
Statements
Milk Tickets
Meal Tickets
Shipping Tags
Announcements
Briefs
Notes
Coupons
Pamphlets
Catalogues
Blotters
Circulars
Invitations
Posters
Folders
Checks
Blanks
Notices
Labels
Legal Blanks
Menu Cards
Placards
Dodgers
Post Cards
Programs
Receipts

Prompt, careful and efficient attention given to every detail

Don't Send Your Order Out of Town Until You See What We Can Do

Hillsdale-Jackson Bus Line

Four Round Trips each Day
Two Round Trips Sunday

NORTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams.....6:45 a. m
" " "......1:15 p. m

SOUTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams....8:15 a. m.
" " "........4:20 p. m.

SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS
Bus north at ....5:15 . 20
Bus south (via Jonesville) p11 m

State Farm Builds Up Soil Profitably

Results obtained in the past two years on the farm of Arthur Keesler, near Okemos, Michigan show that an adequate soil building program and profitable farming operations can be carried on simultaneously.

Professor C. E. Millar, M. S. C. has drawn up a plan for using fertilizers upon this farm, and the plan is being carried into execution by Mr. Keesler. This farm was chosen for the experiment because it was typical of the Michigan sand loam farms which have been badly depleted of soil fertility.

The first step in soil building was the application of lime to all ground which showed an acid reaction. A thorough test of the soil permitted the saving of some expense in liming, because a few areas were found which did not require lime. The test saved the waste of lime which would have occured if the material had been sown indiscriminately over all the farm. Acid phosphate and ammonium sulphate have been used as fertilizing agents. The sulphate is used in the spring as a top dressing on wheat.

In 1925 wheat on unfertilized ground yielded 13.6 bushels. Where acid phosphate was used, the yield was 21.8 bushels, and when ammonium sulphate was used in ad. dition to the phosphate, the yield was 24.9 bushes an acre. This year unfertilized ground produced 11.4 bushels an acre, and ground where both fertilizers were used gave a yield of 30.1 bushels.

The Keesler farm contains 60 acres and the experimental results obtained are therefore based on a large scale area. The next step in building up this farm will be the seeding of alfalfa and sweet clover. These legumes will increase the humus content of the soil and also make it possible to carry livestock on the farm.

Convention to Mark Cooperation Between Business and Government

R. D. BENSON
Vice President
N. Y.

W. S. FARISH
President
HOUSTON
TEX.

AMOS L. BEATY
Treasurer
N. Y.

W. N. DAVIS
Vice President, BARTLESVILLE OKLA.

J. EDGAR PEW
Ex-President, DALLAS
TEX.

THE annual convention of the American Petroluem Institute at Tulsa, December 7, 8 and 9, will bring together the the largest and most representative gathering of leaders in the petroleum industry that has ever been held. From 1,500 to 2,000 chiefs of corporations, technical experts, scientific authorities, state and national officers, economists and engineers, will consider in the broadest way the questions that relate to permanently supplying fuel to America's 20,000,000 motor cars, and meeting the multitude of other demands on petroleum. Officers of The Institute are shown in the illustration. All rank among the leaders of the industry.

President Coolidge recognized these problems when he created the Federal Oil Conservation Board, nearly two years ago, and commissioned it to study them. The board's report recognized the desirability of a close cooperation between the industry and the government in planning constructive, practical measures. It declared that these must rest chiefly on the initiative of the industry itself.

Since that report was issued, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, a member of the Oil Conservation Board, has declared emphatically in favor of such modification of the anti-trust laws as will open the way to desirable co-operations within the industry, prevent wastes and encourage economies.

The aspects of demand, supply, future sources of oil, possible substitutes for it, etc., are at the top of all thought concerning the industry. They will give direction and definite purpose to the considerations at the Tulsa convention, which promises to mark a significant advance toward understanding and mutually helpful co-operations between business and government. Secretary Hoover, speaking on this point, said the other day:

"The way to do business in America today is to do it with glass pockets, and show the public what you really have, and what you really are doing. You may take the case of several industries, which have adopted this policy, and observe the very satisfactory results which have been obtained.

"I believe that the oil industry is clean and has nothing to fear from a program such as these other industries have adopted. When one considers the widespread distribution of gasoline and the very limited amount of profit in a gallon of gasoline, surely not over 2 cents a gallon considering everything, it is surprising. It is a wonderfully distributed product.

"You have the annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute coming to Tulsa in December, and if members of this body can get together and formulate some plan regarding modification of the Sherman anti-trust act, as applied to drilling flush fields, and properly present this plan, I see no reason why it should not receive favorable action at the hands of Congress."

FIND YOUTH IS "HORNING" WAY AROUND WORLD

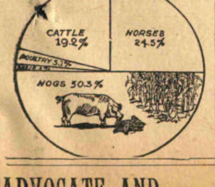
"Horning one's way around the world," is rapidly becoming a popular means by which Young America is gratifying its "going abroad" hunger, according to information reaching the Conn Music Center, Elkhart, Ind. Music is not only the wherewithal which makes it possible for him to satisfy his desire for travel, but it is also keeping his pockets rather well lined.

The American band is found aboard the ships of every flag, and in the capitals of the nations of the Orient and Occident. Members of orchestras provide music aboard boat at comfortable salaries and further increase their earnings through concerts in foreign ports. The story of America's symphonic jazz has penetrated every nation, and the natives are waiting to know more of it. They are anxious to try their tuck with America's dance steps, too.

Even the American girls are "horning in" on this free but de luxe travel scheme. When Jack Sutherland returned to the United States recently his saxophone sextette included four American girls. They had stopped in Honolulu for their first appearance, then jumped to Japan. From there they kept on going, and playing.

"We were treated like ambassadors," reported Jesse Wright and his fellow members of the S. S. Franconia orchestra, when they docked at San Francisco after circling the globe on one of their tours.

Cutting Down Corn Surplus

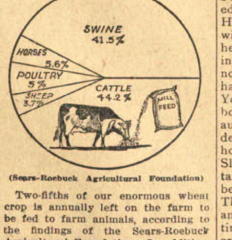


(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

Whether you prefer your corn nicely buttered on the ear, or in the form of roast pork with fried apples, there are on the average 25½ bushels of corn coming to each person in the United States every year, according to experts of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. In 1925 there was a bit more; this year there will probably be a few ears less apiece but plenty for all of us just the same.

Less than a fifth of all this corn leaves the farm. Excluding a small fraction of the best grade that is kept out for seed purposes, 81% of those 2,850,000,000 bushels runs around on legs in the following forms: Hogs, 50.3%; horses, 24.5%; cattle, 19.2%; poultry, 5.1% and sheep, 0.9%.

Cattle Eat Our Mill Feeds



(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

Two-fifths of our enormous wheat crop is annually left on the farm to be fed to farm animals, according to the findings of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. In addition, 28% of the wheat that is shipped off or 17% of the total wheat crop comes back to the farm as mill feeds, where it is made into human food in the form of meat.

Mill feeds are a valuable and important feed item, especially in the dairy section. Cattle consume on an average 44.2% of all mill feeds. These are rich in protein and used in connection with corn and tankage make a balanced hog ration. Swine are the next greatest consumer of mill feeds, with 41.5%. Besides, 5.6% goes to horses, 5% to poultry and 3.7% to sheep.

ADVOCATE AND McCALL'S MAGAZINE Both $2.25

The Cussedness of Interference

Secretary Hoover is going to have some trouble when he starts weeding out the surplus broadcasting stations in the country so says the National Tribune published at Washington D. C. There is expected to be a bill enacted in the coming legislature which will give the Secretary power to abolish many of the smaller and less important broadcasting stations. Hoover is the man to do it if its done, and we are of the opinion with the money tied np in such plants all over the United States we will see a lot of trouble and much discussion before it is accomplished.

Secretary Hoover says "To say the air is chaos is putting it mildly. I find conditions somewhat better in the far west but the middle and eastern portions are a hopeless muddle." 615 stations are at work broadcasting most of the time night and day and so it is impossible to get any satisfaction no matter how good your outfit is, unless you are tuned in on Detroit or Pontiac. Tnere is no reason in the world why such should be the case with a fairly good radio with batteries fully charged. Such stations as Jacksonville Florida, Davenport. Iowa, Atlantic Beach and New York City, Chicago Edgewater Beach Hotel, Kansas City should come out clear and distinct instead of squeaks and squawks and continual interference. The logical explanation is that so many stations of nearly the same wave length are operating all the time. This has got to bo done away with At such a time eachday New York should have the air alone. At another time Chicago should be heard. Likewise Minneapolis St. Paul, Cincinnati, Jacksonville Pittsburgh, Davenport, etc. Whether this will be accomplished or not nobody knows. Most of our readers know what the mortification is of getting tuned in on a splendid historical talk by Dr. Palmer at Davenport Iowa then all at once you begin to sense that horrible whistle then presently your radio seems to be tortured and mutilated screaming and howling like a mad thing—and that's the end of your talk from Davenport. You must tune in on Detroit or Pontiac if you wish to get anything at all. Added to this, is the "fading" habit that has never been explained and probably never will—they all do it. One man in Hillsdale paid $300 for an outfit supposing he could get away from "fades" but the "fades" are with him yet, so don't begin to blame your machine when this thing is noticed, Contributors to Radio literature tell us that they have proved that fading is not controlled or augmented by changes in temperature, by storm periods or day and night. This is easily established by listening to the sound of a train of heavy freight cars lumbering along in the distance. The sound comes and goes—in other words it almost ceases at times and you think the train is beyond the ear range—but directly it begins again a little farther away. So it is with the great ariificial ear, the Radio. Investigation has found the night hours or darkness a much better conveyor of sound, but high or low antennas make no difference. Sound waves apparently travel just as strongly up and down to right or to the left, unless there is leakage by means of limbs of trees or roofs.

Rev. Father Slane Again

Charles Slane, Customs Inspector in New York City, brother of the late Rev. Father Slane formerly of Hillsdale but now deceased, has just made a statement in Probate Court at Owosso where Father Slane was stationed before they went east, that he has a claim for $5,300 or about that against the estate of the Reverend Father. Father Slane it will be remembered was found dead in a deserted Hotel at Coney Island, New York with absolutely no clues as to how he came there or what he was doing in such a grotesque place. It now transpires that the brother had to bribe the police in New York City in order to get the dead body of the priest away from the authorities. As in other strange deaths the police wanted to know how it all came about but Charles Slane defeated their purpose by taking the corpse out of the city before an autopsy was performed. These things took place in 1925, and shortly after the estate was estimated at $158,000, although everybody had supposed the priest was penniless. It seems the dead man had made most of his coin by speculation. The brother claimed $410 was paid by him as expenses of the bribe and the remainder of the $5300 went for administration of the estate. It is said there are several heirs who are fighting the case, but there is one dead sure thing—Father Slane left no wives or children.

Did You Get A Tie?

"We did not" Some are more than pleased to answer in the negatiye, while others say "yes, we did and we are of the latter class. Tha Editor was one of the guilty parties, He received a box of three handsome four-in-hands from the notorious "PawneeBill" of StLouis Missouri, This was some time ago and we have found the goods were as represented and we remitted with a sharp warning to "Pawnee" never to send us another order without instructions. Since that time there has been a lot of discussion concerning the identity of the business at St. Louis. We supposed we were of a select few but we find we are only one of many: looking about the next Sunday morning we enumerated a large number of other unfortunates who had been solicited by Bill.

In a comparatively short time the sleuths of the information departments of various magazines of the country have gotten after Bill and quite a thorough overhauling has been accorded him, by request of many customers throughout Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio New York and adjoining states.

The Michigan Business Farmer published at Mt. Clemens made the fiist attack, followed directly by the Rural New Yorker and other journals. The Business Farmer made this observation: "We have learned from reliable sources that he is blind all right, and has taken this way of making a living.. He uses his blindness as a hook to get your sympathy, and he generally succeeds."

By good business methods Bill has accuumulated a considerable fortune, ond possibly should uot be criticised too severely for this.

Probably he is as deserving of your patronage as any other mail order tradesman, and no more. He has a right to do business in that way if people will take up his offer and we do eot believe his business is in any way illegal unless he misrepresents his financial condition by claiming he needs charity, and appeals for alms. Then he is an imposter and should be prosecuted

You have the ties subject to your option, but as to obligations for returning them—there are none Those ties are here and the return of them or the money depends upon your good nature alone. To our knowledge a number have not returned the ties or the money, and Bill has no redress, but the average citizen who wants his integrity intact, would hardly consider them his property to wear under these circuustances. We believe in patronizing home stores; hence we shall not deal with "Pawnee Bill" even though he gives us standard goods at a slight reduction.

At any rate "Pawnee Bill" is blind but opulant, shrewd but impudent, pitiful but business-like. If a man snbmits his goods to you and trusts your honesty to return them, he is certainly not a rogue, but he seeks to make a crook of the eustomer—heuce we see no good reason for patronizing him.

Michigan Pigs Win Ton Litter Honors

Twenty-three litters of pigs which were entered in Michigan's ton litter contest this year attained the weight goal of 2,000 pounds, according to figures given out here this week by the M. S. C. animal husbandry department

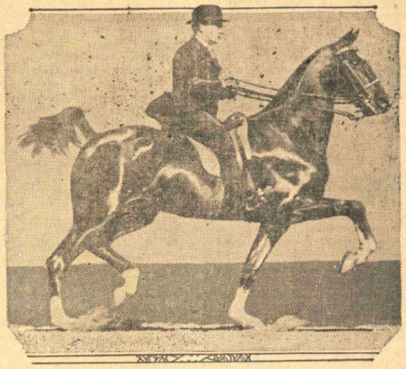
Fourteen crossbred hogs owned and entered by A. C. Landerberger, Albion, won first place in the contest by tipping the scales at 3,107 pounds. Second place went to 12 Chester White grades owned by W. S. Drake and son, Utica.

The highest average weight gain was made by a litter of eight cross bred Hampshire and Duroc Jersey owned by David Thompson, Akron, These hogs averaged 273 pounds when six months old.

The 23 farmers whose entries reached the coveted goal are: A. C. Landenberger, Albion, 3,107 pounds; W. S. Drake and Son, Utica, 2,824; H. Brado, Coldwater 2,766; Harry Ward, McBain, 2,750; Albert Pearce, Lapeer, 2,626; George M. Bartha, Bangor, 2,624; Henry Lane, Fairgrove, 2,614; Herman VanSteenis, McBain, 2,507; John H. Uhl & Son, Unionville, 2,500; Peter Zylstra, Zeeland 2,484; John H. Uhl & Son, Unionville, 2,447; H. M. Randall, Tekonsha, 2,426; Hugh Ward, Fowlerville, 2,365; Clarence Blasius, Caro, 2,251; W. L. Brooks, Sunfield, 2,244; Walter Elliott, Coldweter, 2,216; Buys Brothers, Harvard, 2,192; Findlay Brothers, Vassar, 2,184; David Thompson, Akron, 2,184; Roy Barlett, Sterling, 2,166; R. G. Elliott, Paw Paw, 2,124; Jay Wierman, Chesaning, 2,116; Leonard Mahney, Moore Park, 2,064.

The Hillsdale Daily News reports that a couple of men were rounded up in Toledo recently in a drag net thrown out by the police in accordance with instructions from Hillsdale officers. The Sheriff of this county and Mr. Grant Wirt of Churches Corners went to Toledo and the latter positively identified the men who knocked him down and rifled his cash at a recent date about midnight. Under pressure the two men confessed the deed and latter said they supposed their victim was dead. No doubt they were somewhat shocked to confront him at the jail in Toledo. It develops they were formerly residents of Wheatland and have been crooks for some years. A deputy here remembers of pulling one of the men for some offense. Their names are as given George and Charles McClure and their preliminary examination will take place before Justice John Fitzsimmons next week. $10,000 bail is the amount fixed and it is not likely it will be furnished.

Nation's Champion Horses To Compete in February



Nancy Highland, horse shown in the above picture which last year gained the title of the best three gaited saddle horse in the United States is to be shown again this year with the severest competition imaginable at the Los Angeles Horse show, February 5 to 12. Nancy Highland won the national championship at the New York Show last year dethroning Bohemian Actress which had held the title for six years. The horse is owned by Maud Fawn Banks of Covina, California, and is trained and ridden by Roy Davis, shown riding.

The Los Angeles show is to have 110 classes with a total of $35,000 in prize money. This is more than ever awarded before in any show. It is to bring out the liveliest contest of them all when Edna May's King owned by Revel Lindsay English, and Easter Star owned by Marco Hellman, meet in the five gaited championship.

Easter Star won last year after the judges were obliged to keep the horses in the ring for twenty extra minutes to determine which was the better. Since that time Edna May's King has won the $10,000 stake at the Kentucky state fair. One of the horses will gain the distinction of being the best five gaited horse in the United States.

The 110 classes, which include five $2,000 stakes, will show a total of about 400 horses. More than 150 of these are from East of the Rocky Mountains.

BIG SUBSCRIPTION OFFER

THE PEOPLE'S POPULAR MONTHLY
GOOD STORIES
The Farm Journal
THE HOUSEHOLD

You Get ALL FOUR of These
MAGAZINES and OUR NEWSPAPER
For One Year Each FOR. $1.80 Order Now
THIS EXCEPTIONAL OFFER IS GOOD FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY
Subscriptions may be new or renewal. All renewal subscriptions will be extended for one year from present date of expiration.

WOMAN'S WORLD
The GENTLEWOMAN
HOUSEHOLD GUEST
HOME CIRCLE
THE HOME FRIEND
AMERICAN NEEDLEWOMAN
MOTHERS HOME LIFE
HOUSEHOLD
The Farm Journal
Farm Life
GOOD STORIES
Farm & Fireside
Pathfinder
Capper's Farmer
BLADE AND LEDGER
Tractor and Gas Engine Review
AMERICAN POULTRY ADVOCATE
ILLUSTRATED MECHANICS

and Any 5
of this list of leading
MAGAZINES
$2.25
Why Pay More?
Get Your MAGAZINES NOW AT COST!
Take Your PICK
19
to Select From

Never before and probably never again will you have such an extraordinary money-saving opportunity. Note carefully the large selection of choice reading—all at a price to fit your pocketbook. Renewals will be extended one year from date of expiration. No need to wait.

CLIP AND USE THIS COUPON

Gentlemen: I wish to take advantage of your Magazine Bargain Offer. I am enclosing the above amount in payment for a one year subscription to your paper and the FIVE Magazines I have marked with an X below.

Name ________________
Town ________________ State ________________
St. or R.F.D. ________________

☐ American Needlewoman
☐ American Poultry Advocate
☐ Blade & Ledger
☐ Capper's Farmer
☐ Farm & Fireside
☐ The Farm Journal
☐ Farm Life
☐ Gentlewoman Magazine
☐ Good Stories
☐ Home Circle
☐ Home Friend
☐ Household Guest
☐ Household Magazine
☐ Illustrated Mechanics
☐ Mother's Home Life
☐ Pathfinder (weekly) 26 issues
☐ Today's Housewife
☐ Tractor & Gas Engine Review
☐ Woman's World

CHOOSE Mark this coupon now and bring or mail it to our Business Office TODAY

HALF MILLION FOR HOSPITAL

Sisters of Mercy to Operate Wealthy Woman's Gift to Battle Creek

In recognition of her philanthropic work in her home city, leading citizens of Battle Creek recently tendered a complimentary banquet in the Post Tavern to Mrs. Leila Y. Post Montgomery, who some time ago crowned a series of bequests to the people of Battle Creek by donating the Leila Y. Post Montgomery Hospital, which is rapidly nearing completion. The new hospital, which will be operated by the Sisters of Mercy, is being erected at a cost of approximately a half million dollars.

The first of Mrs. Montgomery's gifts to the city was the Leila Arboretum, comprising 90 acres of ground formerly owned by the Battle Creek Country Club. This land, costing approximately $30,000, was presented to the city in 1922, and since that time has been constantly developed as an arboretum. Various families of trees and shrubs have been planted there for educational purposes, forming a magnificent park in which a succession of buildings, all for educational purposes, will be erected.

The second gift was the Emily Andrus Home for aged women. Purchased at a cost of about $15,000, this property was turned over to an association of public-spirited women in 1923. Here a home is provided for aged Battle Creek women, who are enabled to pass their declining years in comfort amid its surroundings under conditions that are made as pleasant as possible for them. Those inmates who are able, pay a nominal board, while those who are not are cared for by the $5 membership fee paid by the members of the Emily Andrus Home Association.

The third and largest gift, the new hospital, splendidly equipped and handsomely designed, stands at Emmett and North avenues. It is expected that the building will be completed by January 1, 1927, at which time it will be turned over to the Sisters of Mercy, the quality of whose work in their many hospitals throughout the nation led the donor to commit the operation of the new Battle Creek institution to their charge.

Among the speakers at the complimentary banquet tendered Mrs. Montgomery was the Rev. Fr. Michael B. Burke, of Ann Arbor, who, speaking of the gifts which Mrs. Montgomery has bestowed upon the city, declared that "each and every one of them bespeaks a clear mind, a motherly heart and a genrous soul." Speaking of the new hospital, Fr. Burke said. "Such a gift as this is the greatest of benefactions because it serves to build strong bodies and after all, God's greatest gift to humanity is strength and health of mind and body."

He told of Mrs. Montgomery's plan that the institution should care for rich and poor alike, a fact, he said, which evidenced that the new hospital was going to have "a heart, a mind, a conscience". "If you subtract any one of these elements", he said, "you have merely a barracks for the sick".

Following the dinner an informal reception was held, Mrs. Montgomery meeting and receiving the personal congratulations of those in attendance. The dinner was given under the auspices of the Battle Creek Chamber of Commerce, Earl M. Marvin, chairman.

TRUTH ABOUT MEXICO DIFFICULT, WALSH SAYS

Speaker Says History of Southern Republic Known to Few

Americans are asked too often to view Mexico and the Mexicans through the eyes of mining and oil men, Dr. James J. Walsh, noted author, lecturer and scientist, declared recently in a talk on the present Mexican situation delivered in the Knights of Columbus clubhouse, Detroit.

"Despite the proximity of Mexico we of the United States are not at all well informed concerning conditions there", the speaker declared. "For example it is not generally known that Mexico has a 300 year start on the United States in educational and cultural affairs. Mexico had a university with over 1,000 students when Harvard College, the first in the U. S. had an attendance of barely 100. The first medical book published in the New World, a volume dealing with surgery, was printed in Mexico City".

Differences in Spanish and English methods of colonization must be taken into consideration in any discussion of Mexico, Dr. Walsh said. The English drove the Indians steadily westward until at last they ceased to become an important factor in the development of the country while in Mexico there are more Indians today than were there when Cortez landed, he said.

"It is recorded that the first act of the Pilgrim Fathers upon landing on these shores was to fall upon their knees", he said. "It might be added that on the second day they fell upon the aborigines a policy which was continued until there were no longer any natives to deal with".

To His Wife

You make me do what you will; you have full sovereignty here, and I award you with all my heart the command in all household matters, reserving my rights in other points. Never any good came out of female domination. God created Adam master and lord of all living creatures; but Eve spoilt all when she persuaded him to set himself above God's will. 'Tis you women with your tricks and artifices that lead men into error.—Luther.

SUBWAY SEEN AS DEARBORN BOON

Detroit's first subway system, to cost about $280,000,000, which has been approved by the Detroit common council and the Detroit Rapid Transit commission, and which will go to the voters for acceptance at the polls next November, will prove to be the great boon for Dearborn and the west side of Detroit.

The west side, and Dearborn particularly, has abundant transportation now, but the present facilities will not be adequate in the next two or three years, if Dearborn continues to grow as it has grown in recent years and months and as it is growing now.

There are, today, approximately 125,000 skilled wage-earners on the west side, all within a short distance of Dearborn, and this number will be doubled long ere the subway system is in operation.

House of David Is Denied Dismissal of Receivership Suit

In a 6-page opinion handed down, Circuit Judge Charles E. White at St. Joseph denied a motion to dismiss the state's receivership suit against the House of David.

The suit was brought by Attorney General Andrew B. Dougherty to enjoin perpetually the colony, to dissolve the voluntary association, and to take charge of the property and assets for the purpose of distributing it to the parties found lawfully entitled thereto, on the grounds that it is a public nuisance.

The bill of complaint alleges that the organization is a religious fraud, organized by "King" Benjamin Purnell, a fugitive cult leader, and Mary Purnell, for their own profit. It alleges further that immoral teachings and practices alleged to have been carried on in the organization, are against the interest of the people of the state, and constitute a public nuisance.

The House of David, through Attorneys W. J. Barnard, of Paw Paw, and H. T. Dewhirst, colony lawyer, filed an answer citing 43 reasons for dismissal.

State Completes Work For Year of Restocking Streams

The state has about completed its fish planting operations for this year. Millions of trout rfy have been distributed, together with bass, bluegill and other fish.

No one can estimate the percentage of the planted fry that reaches maturity. Certainly it is small. Nature's intention is that little fish should be devoured by big fish, and to provide for that produces many, many times the number of eggs and fry needed to perpetuate a species. If all the baby fish grew up, there would very soon be no room for them in lakes and streams, and not enough for them to eat.

But with man's heavy inroads on fish of edible size, it becomes important that nature's method must be corrected. Collecting spawn in hatcheries is a step toward that end. To keep the fry until they are able to fend for themselves, with a fair chance of growing to frying-pan dimensions, is an even more important step.

More than 30,000,000 trout have been planted this year by conservation department representatives in Michigan lakes and streams.

Only a few bluegills remains to be planted.

Several thousand breeding bass were planted this year, due to an oversupply in the hatcheries.

Experiment In Mud House Expected to Aid Home Builders

Michigan home builders may reap actual dollars-and-cents profit from the experiments concluded at Ann Arbor, when F. N. Menefee and R. E. Franklin of the University of Michigan College of Engineering finished their mud houses.

Reminiscent of the day when adobe construction was standard in the West are the methods employed by the experimenters. They first excavated the space for their basements, and then proceeded with construction of the walls, utilizing the earth excavated. It was found necessary to mix certain other sorts of earth with this to insure mass adhesion, a mixture of sand, clay and loam being found most suitable.

The sifted and mixed earth is moistened and then stamped into forms, which are removed when it has dried. The completed structures were coated with a stucco-like paint which makes them impervious to weather, and the roofs and trim are added by carpenters.

Keeping up with the neighbors is what keeps so many of us down.

RAILWAY BLASTED HOPES OF TOWN

Flowerfield is Southwestern Michigan's "deserted village." Tufts of grass growing in its streets testify to its decay. The few remaining inhabitants, whenever they speak of their village, refer only to its past.

Flowerfield was a thriving community 70 years ago, the largest between White Pigeon and Kalamazoo and striving with both those places for the industrial leadership of Southwestern Michigan. At that time it seemed to be winning the race. The second flour mill had been erected. Two factories manufacturing furniture and well-known ingrain cradle were in operation. A huge distillery bottled famous liquor.

Located on the St. Joseph River, the town prospered and grew for years. Then came the invasion of the speculator and the railroad, upsetting the hopes of the inhabitants. Wealthy men purchased land in and around the village. Zachariah Chandler, at one time Governor of Michigan and later senator, came to Flowerfield with the expectation of locating here. That was about the time the railroad came through this section of St. Joseph County.

The town's energies seemed to be dissipated in speculation. So confident were the people of their community's future prosperity they refused to assist the railroad company with the subsidy, which, in those days, was eagerly extended by most communities to encourage railroad building. When the railroad did build, it was routed a mile east of the village. Too late, the community leaders saw their error, and unavailing efforts were made to have the route of the road changed.

Bigger Towns Are Likely Added to State League

Directors of the Michigan league are planning as the 1926 season draws to a close, on a better circuit including possibly South Bend and Fort Wayne next year, President Emerson W. Dickerson said at Grand Rapids.

He said Jackson and Lansing are also bidding for berths and that negotiations are already under way for the lease of a park at Lansing which is better located than any the city has had for some time.

Charlotte, which overestimated its capacity when it took over the Flint franchise, and went out to sell 1,500 tickets at $1 each, failed by a considerable margin, it is said. Six weeks of unfavorable wather at the beginning of the present season cut into receipts and caused financial trouble for every team in the league.

A post-season series between the champions of the Michigan and the Three-I leagues is planned.

$2.73 Average Price For Certified Potatoes

In the sale of 50,000 bushels of certified seed potatoes last year, the Michigan Potato Growers' Exchange obtained an average price of $2.73 a bushel, according to the annual report of the exchange.

Owing to the prevailing high prices for table stock during the winter months, the exchange reported the seed deal was the most difficult ever experienced. GreenM Mountain seed brought the best prices, averaging $3.16 a bushel. Irish Cobblers stood second with an average of $3.15. Russet Rurals averaged $2.43 and White Rurals $2.19 a bushel.

Manistee Gives $7,00 To Orchard Beach Road

Construction bids for paving the Orchard Beach State park highwya have been asked. The pavement is to be more than a mile long. Manistee county has agreed to turn over to the state $7,000 it has aprpopriated for reconstruction of the road if it is paved. The highway is more used than any other in the county except for M-11 and is seriously in need of paving.

$13,000 to Be Spent On State Hatchery

To treble the present trough capacity of the Grayling Trout Hatchery the state will spend $13,000 for materials and a new water supply. This is being done that more of the brook trout fry can be held until they reach the fingerling stage before distribution.

Sturgis Lays Plans To Wipe Out City's Debts

The present indebtedness of the city of Sturgis is to be wiped out by 1947, according to a sinking fund plan adopted by the city commission. A second plan providing for a refund of bonds and an extension of payments over a longer period of years was rejected as additional interest would amount to about $30,000.

IN THE HOUSE OF SUDDHOO

By Rudyard Kipling.

A stone's throw out on either hand
From that well-ordered road we tread,
And all the world is wild and strange;
Churel and ghoul and Djinn and sprite
Shall bear us company tonight,
For we have reached the oldest land
Wherein the powers of darkness range.

From the Dusk to the Dawn.

The house of Suddhoo, near the Taksali Gate, is two storied, with four carved windows of old brown wood, and a flat roof. You may recognize it by the five red handprints arranged like the five of diamonds on the white wash between the upper windows. Bhagwan Dass, the bunnia, and a man who says he gets his living by seal-cutting, live in the lower story with a troop of wives, servants, friends and retainers. The two upper rooms used to be occupied by Janoo and Azizun and a little black-and-tan terrier that was stolen from an Englishman's house and given to Janoo by a soldier. Today, only Janoo lives in the upper rooms. Suddhoo sleeps on the roof generally, except when he sleeps in the street. He used to go to Peshawar in the cold weather to visit his son, who sells curiosities near the Edwardes' Gate, and then he slept under a real mud roof. Suddhoo is a great friendn of mine, because his cousin had a son who secured, thanks to my recommendation, the post of head messenger to a big firm in the Station. Suddhoo says that God will make me a Lieutenant-Governor one of these days. I daresay his prophecy will come true. He is very, very old, with white hair and no teeth worth showing, and he has outlived his wits—outlived nearly everything except his fondness for his sons at Peshawar. Janoo and Azizun are Kashmiris, Ladies of the City,' and theirs was an ancient and more or less honorable profession but Azizun has since settled down to a most respectable life somewhere near Bareilly. Bhagwan Dass is an extortionate and an adulterator. He is rich. The man who is supposed to get his living by seal cutting pretends to be very poor. This lets you know as much as necessary of the four principal tenants in the house of Suddhoo. Then there is Me, of course, but I am only the chorus that comes in at the end to explain things. So I do not count.

Suddhoo is not clever. The man who pretended to cut seals was the cleverest of them all—Bhagwan Dass only knew how to lie—except Janoo. She was also beautiful, but that was her affair.

Suddhoo's son at Peshawar was attacked by pleurisy, and old Suddhoo was troubled. The seal-cutter man heard of Suddhoo's anxiety and made capital of it. He was abreast of the times. He got a friend in Peshawar to telegraph daily accounts of the son's health. And here the story begins.

Suddhoo's cousin told me, one evening that Suddhoo wanted to see me; that he was too old and feeble to come personally, and that I should be conferring an everlasting honor on the House of Suddhoo if I went to him. I went; but I think, seeing how well off Suddhoo was then, that he might have sent something better than an ekka, which jolted fearfully, to haul out a future Lieutenant-Governor to the city on a muggy April evening. The ekka did not run quickly. It was full dark when we pulled up opposite the door of Ranjit Singh's Tomb near the main gate of the fort. Here was Suddhoo and he said that by reason of my condescension, it was absolutely certain that I should become a Lieutenant-Governor while my hair was yet black. Then we talked about the weather and the state of my health, and the wheat crops for fifteen minutes, in the Huzuri Bagh, under the stars.

Suddhoo came to the point at last. He said that Janoo had told him that there was an order of the Sirkar's against magic, because it was feared that magic might one day kill the Empress of India. I didn't know anything about the state of the law; but I fancied that something interesting was going to happen. I said that so far from magic being discouraged by the government it was highly commended. The greatest officials of the State practiced it themselves. (If the Financial Statement isn't magic, I don't know what is.) Then, to encourage him further, I said that, if there was any jadoo afoot, I had not the least objection to giving it my countenance and sanction, and to seeing that it was clean jadoo—white magic, as distinguished from the unclean jadoo which kills folk. It took a long time before Suddhoo admitted that this was just what he had asked me to come for. Then he told me, in jirks and quavers, that the man who said he cut seals was a sorcerer of the cleanest kind; that every day he gave Suddhoo news of his sick son in Peshawar more quickly than the lightning could fly, and that this news was always corroborated by letters. Further, that he had told Suddhoo how a great danger was threatening his son, which could be removed by clean jadoo; and, of course, heavy payment. I began to see exactly how the land lay, and told Suddhoo that I also understood a little jadoo in the Western line, and would go to his house to see that everything was done decently and in order. We set off together; and on the way Suddhoo told me that he had paid the seal cutter between one hundred and two hundred rupees already; and the jadoo of that night would cost two hundred more. Which was cheap, he said, considering the greatness of his son's danger; but I do not think he meant it.

The lights were all cloaked in front of the house when we arrived. I could hear awful noises from behind the seal cutter's shop front, as if some one were groaning his soul out. Suddhoo shook all over, and while we groped our way upstairs told me that the jadooo had begun. Janoo and Azizun met us at the stair head, and told us that the jadooo work was coming off in their rooms because there was more space there. Janoo is a lady of a freethinking turn of mind. She whispered that the jadoo was an invention to get money out of Suddhoo, and that the seal cutter would go to a hot place when he died. Suddhoo was nearly crying with fear and old age. He kept walking up and down the room in the half light, repeating his son's name over and over again, and asking Azizun if the seal cutter ought not to make a reduction in the case of his own landlord. Janoo pulled me over to the shadow in the recess of the carved bow-windows. The boards were up, and the rooms were only lit by one tiny oil lamp. There was no chance of my being seen if I stayed still.

Presently, the groans below ceased, and we heard steps on the staircase. That was the seal cutter. He stopped outside the door as the terrier barked and Azizun fumbled at the chain, and he told Suddhoo to blow out the lamp. This left the place in jet darkness, except for the red glow from the two huquas that belonged to Janoo and Azizun. The seal cutter came in, and I heard Suddhoo throw himself down on the floor and groan. Azizun caught her breath, and Janoo backed on to one of the beds with a shudder. There was a clink of something metallic, and then shot up a pale blue-green flame near the ground. The light was just enough to show Azizun, pressed against one corner of the room with the terrier between her knees; Janoo, with her hands clasped, leaning forward as she sat on the bed; Suddhoo, face down, quivering, and the seal cutter.

I hope I may never see another man like that seal cutter. He was stripped to the waist, with a wreath of white jasmine as thick as my wrist round his forehead, a salmon colored loin-cloth round his middle, and a steel bangle on each ankle. This was not awe-inspiring. It was the face of the man that turned me cold. It was blue-gray in the first place. In the second, the eyes were rolled back till you could only see the whites of them; and, in the third, the face was the face of a demon—a ghoul—anything you please except of the sleek, oily old ruffiian who sat in the daytime over his turning-lathe downstairs. He was lying on his stomach with his arms turned and crossed behind him, as if he had been thrown down pinioned. His head and neck were the only parts of him off the floor. They were nearly at right angles to the body, like the head of a cobra at spring. It was ghastly. In the center of the room, on the bare earth floor, stood a big, deep, brass basin, with a pale blue-green light floating in the center like a night-light. Round that basin the man on the floor wriggled himself three times. How he did it I do not know. I could see the muscles ripple along hsi spine and fall smooth again; but I could not see any other motion. The head seemed the only thing alive about him, except that slow curl and uncurl of the laboring back muscles. Janoo from the bed was breathing seventy to the minute; Azizun held her hands before her eyes; and old Suddhoo, fingering at the dirt that had got into his white beard, was crying to himself. The horror of it was that the creeping, crawly thing made no sound—only crawled! And, remember, this lasted for ten minutes, while the terrier whined, and Azizun shuddered, and Janoo gasped and Suddhoo cried.

I felt the hair lift at the back of my head, and my heart thump like a thermantidote paddle. Luckily, the seal cutter betrayed himself by his most impressive trick and made me calm again. After he had finished that unspeakable crawl, he stretched his head away from the floor as high as he could, and sent out a jet of fire from his nostrils. Now I knew how fire-spouting is done—I can do it myself—so I felt at ease. The business was a fraud. If he had only kept to that crawl without trying to raise the effect, goodness knows what I might not have thought. Both the girls shrieked at the jet of fire, and the head dropped, chin down on the floor, with a thud; the whole body lying then like a corpse with its arms trussed. There was a pause of five full minutes after this, and the blue-green flame died down. Janoo stooped to settle one of her anklets, while Azizun turned her face to the wall and took the terrier in her arms. Suddhoo put out an arm mechanically to Janoo's huqua, and she slid it across the floor with her foot. Directly above the body and on the wall were a cuple of flaming portraits, in stamped paper frames, of the Queen and the Prince of Wales. They looked down on the performance, and, to my thinking, seemed to heighten the grotesqueness of it all.

Just when the silence was getting unendurable, the body turned over and rolled away from the basin to the side of the room, where it lay stomach up. There was a faint "plop" from the basin—exactly like the noise a fish makes when it takes a fly—and the green light in the center revived.

I looked at the basin, and saw, bobbing in the water the dried, shriveled black head of a native baby — open eyes, open mouth and shaved scalp. It was worse, being so very sudden, than the crawling exhibition. We had no time to say anything before it began to speak.

Read Poe's account of the voice that came from the mesmerized dying man, and you will realize less than one half of the horror of that head's voice.

There was an interval of a second or two between each word, and a sort of "ring, ring, ring," in the note of the voice like the timbre of a bell. It pealed slowly, as if talking to itself, for several minutes before I got rid of my cold sweat. Then the blessed solution struck me. I looked at the body lying near the doorway, and saw, just where the hollow of the throat joins on the shoulders, a muscle that had nothing to do with any man's regular breathing, twitching away steadily. The whole thing was a careful reproduction of the Egyptian teraphin that one reads about sometimes; and the voice was as clever and as appealling a piece of ventriloquism as one could wish to hear. All this time the head was "lip-lip-lapping" against the side of the basin, and speaking. It told Suddhoo, on his face again whining, of his son's illness and of the state of the illness up to the evening of that very night. I shall always respect the seal cutter for keeping so faithfully to the time of the Peshawar telegrams. It went on to say that skilled doctors were night and day watching over the man's life; and that he would eventually recover if the fee to the potent sorcerer, whose servant was the head in the basin, were doubled.

Here the mistake from the artistic point of view came in. To ask for twice your stipulated fee in a voice that Lazarus might have used when he rose from the dead, is absurd. Janoo, who is really a woman of masculine intellect, saw this as quickly as I did. I heard her say, "Ash nahin! Fareib!" scornfully under her breath; and just as she said so, the light in the basin died out, the head stopped talking, and we heard the room door creak on its hinges. Then Janoo struck a match, let the lamp, and we saw that head, basin, and seal cutter were gone. Suddhoo was wringing his hands and explaining to anyone who cared to listen, that, if his chances of eternal salvation depended on it, he could not raise another two hundred rupees. Azinun was nearly in hysterics in the corner; whille Janoo sat down composedly on one of the beds to discuss the probabilities of the wholle thing being a bunao, or "make-up."

I explained as much as I knew of the seal cutter's way of jadoo; but her argument was much more simple: "The magic that is always demanding gifts is no true magic," she said. "My mother told me that the only potent love spells are those which are told you for love. This seal cutter man is a liar and a devil. I dare not tell, do anything, or get anything done, because I am in debt to Bhagwan Dass the bunnia for two gold rings and a heavy anklet. I must get my food from his shop. The seal cutter is the friend of Bhagwan Dass, and he would poison my food. A fool's jadoo has been going on for ten days, and has cost Suddhoo many rupees each night. The seal cutter used black hens and lemons and mantras before. He never showed us anything like this till tonight. Azizun is a fool, and will be a pur dahnashin soon. Suddhoo has lost his strength and his wits. See now! I had hoped to get from Suddhoo many rupees while he lived, and many more after his death; and behold, he is spending everything on that offspring of a devil and a she-ass, the seal cutter!"

Here I said: "But what induced Suddhoo to dray me into the business? Of course I can speak to the seal cutter, and he shall refund. The whole thing is childs talk—shame—and senseless."

"Suddhoo is an old child," said Janoo. "He has lived on the roofs these seventy years and is as senseless as a milch goat. He brought you here to assure himself that he was not breaking any law of the Sirkar, whose salt he ate many years ago. He worships the dust off the feet of the seal cutter, and that cow devourer has forbidden him to go and see his son. What does Suddhoo know of your laws or the lightning post? I have to watch his money going day by day to that lying beast below."

Janoo stamped her foot on the floor and nearly cried with vexation; while Suddhoo was whimpering unde ra blanket in the corner, and Azizun was trying to guide the pipe-stem to his foolish old mouth.

. . . .

Now the case stands like this. Unthinkingly, I have laid myself open to the charge of aiding and abetting the seal cutter in obtaining money under false pretenses, which is forbidden by Section 420 of the Indian Penal Code. I am helpless in the matter for these reasons. I cannot inform the police. What witnesses would support my statements? Janoo refuses flatly, and Azizun is a veiled woman, somewhere near Bareilly—lost in this big India of ours. I dare not again take the law into my own hands, and speak to the seal cutter; for certain am I that, not only would Suddhoo disbelieve me, but this step would end in the poisoning of Janoo, who is bound hand and foot by her debt to the bunnia. Suddhoo is an old dotard; and wherever we meet mumbles my idiotic joke that the Sirkar rather patronizes the Black Art than otherwise. His son is well now; but Suddhoo is completely under the influence of the seal cutter, by whose advice he regulates the affairs of his life. Janoo watches daily the money that she hoped to wheedle out of Suddhoo taken by the seal cutter, and becomes daily more furious and sullen.

She will never tell, because she dare not; but, unless something happens to prevent her, I am afraid that the seal cutter will die of cholera—the white arsenic kind—about the middle of May. And thus I shall have to be privy to a murder in the house of Suddhoo.

(The End.)

Pair Defrauded On Bond Deal As Two Are Hunted

At the direction of Judge W. McKay Skillman in the Detroit Recorder's Court, Detective-Lieut. Charles Lambert began a search for two men who posed as detectives to defraud Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kane out of $1,000.

The fraud was disclosed when Kane asked John Taylor, deputy clerk of the Recorder's Court, how he might recover $1,000 cash posted as security on a $1,000 bond.

Kane displayed a receipt torn from a regulation Recorder's Court clerk's receipt book. It was made out to Kane, with his name mis-spelled as Kanner, was dated Aug. 13, and was signed "Clerk of the Court McLearn." There is no employe of that name in the office and Taylor took Kane before Judge Skillman.

Spinster, Grandpa Success, Asks to Run Couzens Farm

Men with a vast knowledge of farming, but not versed in business, college graduates and spinsters, have applied for the position of manager of the Sen. James Couzens farm, near Detroit, since it became known a week ago that the senator wanted to turn over the farm to some one who could keep it in condition.

One applicant gave a complete accounting for the farm for a year showing a profit of "$21,950 a year, eggs not included."

A spinster wrote from New York city that her grandfather came from Scotland 100 years ago and made a success of farming in Sullivan county, New York. A college graduate who lately came from M. S. C. teresely said he wanted to "investigate and be investigated."

Man Held in Port Huron For Eloping With Girl

Sheriff's officers have brought to Port Huron, John E. Robinson, 37 years old, Capac, Mich., who several weeks ago deserted his wife, the former Mrs. Smith, to elope with his 18-year-old stepdaughter.

Mrs. Robinson is 10 years older than her second husband.

Robinson was captured in Flint.

Rhinestone-pins, in animal shapes, are used with the light colored hats of crocheted straw. Crystal pins are also very prominent.

FOUR YEARS AGO a young farmer, married, one child, was $6,000 in debt. His net earnings from LIFE INSURANCE the first year were $3,000. The next year he was listed on the company's Honor Roll for Production. Now he owns a beautiful home. His wife and family enjoy the luxuries of life, possible by an income which runs into five figures.

We want a District Manager in each county to represent us.

Instructions FREE.

NATHANIEL REESE, Gen'l Agt.
Provident Mutual Life Insurance Co.
3012-15 Book Tower Detroit, Mich.

FAULKNER'S LEECH TIRE PATCH

LEECH TIRE PATCH

More For Your Money

If Your Dealer Can't Supply You, Write

FAULKNER SALES CO., DETROIT, MICH.

1241 Junction Ave., :-: 1931 W. Forest Ave.

DIT

The SCHOOL FOR MEN

CLASSES NOW FORMING

The Detroit Institute of Technology announces the beginning of the Fall semester of its Thirty-sixth year, September 20. Our co-operative plan of education has been expanded to include courses in Accountancy and Business Administration. Other courses offered are Marketing, Traffic Management, Real Estate, Public Speaking, Salesmanship, Advertising, Letter Writing, Bookkeeping, Typewriting, Secretarial, Co-operative Engineering, Drafting, Tool Design, Architecture, Pharmacy, Chemistry, Law, and Accredited High School. Day and Evening Classes.

For complete information fill out and send in this coupon.

Name . . . .
Address . . . .
Course . . . . Day ( ) Evening ( )

Detroit Institute of Technology

303 Y. M. C. A. Building Detroit, Mich.

NOTED MASSACRE MARKED BY STONE

In a little park by the shore in Mackinaw City is a monument, well known to tourists, marking the spot of the Old Fort Mackinac massacre. Here, on June 4, 1763, the Chippewas, participating in the "Conspiracy of Pontiac," slaughtered many members of the English garrison then holding the post. Alexander Henry, an English trader, who was a survivor, gives a vivid account of the massacre. He tells, too of his friendship with an Indian, WaWatam, who tried to warn him away from Mackinac before the bloody event.

In September, 1761, Alexander Henry arrived at Old Fort Mackinac. He found there a cedar stockade enclosing an area of two acres. There were about 30 houses, a Jesuit mission and a garrison, which Henry numbered at 90, but which, according to the report of Captain Etherington, then commandant, was only 35. Mounted on the bastions of this little northern fortress wree two small brass cannon.

Henry tells how Wawatam related to him a dream in which the Great Spirit had pointed out to him this English trader, commanding that Wawatam take him as a brother. The two exchanged gifts and the bond was affirmed. About a year later many Chippewas assembled at the fort, ostensibly to trade; but their numbers aroused suspicion. Rumors flew thick, but Captain Etherington discredited them and forbade their circulation. Wawatam returned, much perturbed, and urged Henry to leave there with him, saying that he had been disturbed for a long time with "the noise of avil birds." Henry, however, would not leave.

A holiday was appointed in honor of the king's birthday, and the Chippewas promoted a game of baggatiway, or ball, with the Sacs. The commandant promised to attend, lending his support to the Chippewas. Two goal posts were set, and the object was to carry or hurl a ball, by means of small, long-handled rackets, across the opponents' goal. The goals were far apart and hundreds might play

The match, noisy and exciting, was played just outside the stockade, while members of the garrison looked on, unarmed. Suddenly the Indians knocked their ball into the stockade and swarmed in after it. As they milled about the enclosure their squaws, bearing weapons under their blankets, flocked in and armed the braves.

* * *

Jack Benny tells of a fellow living in Los Angeles. This fellow heard that his mother, who was visiting in New York, had suddenly become ill. Hopping on his bicycle, he rode day and night until he arrived in New York. The doctor informed the son that only California air would help his mother, and that she was too ill to travel. What was he to do? He let the air out of his bicycle tires, and his mother, breathing that California air, promptly became well again.—The Outlook.

The Baby's Cold

Continual "dosing" with internal medicine upsets delicate little stomachs. Treat colds externally with Vicks. You just rub it on.

VICKS VAPORUB

IT'S A FACT

that notwithstanding the Superior quality of

RED ARROW

bread flour, its price is almost the same as ordinary flour. And it makes wonderful bread

WATSON-HIGGINS MILLING CO.

Grand Rapids, Michigan

Coopersville Pulling Hard for Bus Permit for G. R., G. H. & M. Ry.

Letters of protest to the state public utilities commission against the granting of any permit to a bus line to operate through this village, in lieu of the Grand Rapids, Grand Haven & Muskegon Railway company, have been given to officials of the interurban company to be presented at the hearing in Lansing tomorrow.

Business men and citizens of Coopersville are pulling hard for the interurban company to obtain the permit to operate the buses, if one is to be granted, for they feel that if any other concern is granted permission to run passenger-carrying vehicles between Grand Rapids and Grand Haven, that it will mean the end of present service on the G. R., G. H. & M. This company has in its employ 31 residents of Coopersville, and its payroll amounts to $1,500 a month for these men alone; besides paying more than $400 per year in taxes into the village treasury. Business men feel that were this to be cut off, it would be a serious blow to the prosperity of Coopersville, and they stand ready to get behind the company in its fight before the utilities commission.

RIVERS FLOORED BY LUMBER "GOLD"

Gold, but not the kind that glitters, covers the bottom of certain rivers in northern Michigan. This gold is in tens of millions of feet of valuable logs lying in the mud and sand of the Muskegon, Au Sable, tributaries of the Saginaw and other streams down which the early lumbermen drove the white pine. For years they have lain there waterlogged and heavy, but sound today when salvaged. One prominent logger estimated that on the bottom of the Muskegon river alone there are more than 75,000,000 feet of lumber, timber worth $30 a thousand feet today if it could be salvaged. Scores of lumber companies own this timber theoretically. Many companies have been out of existence for years.

Each log bears the company stamp which is peculiar to the company which cut it. Under the law it remains that company's property so long as it bears that distinguishing mark. Any attempt to salvage the logs would be, in the eyes of the Michigan law, theft—unless the salvager had previously made arrangements with the heirs of the members of the lumber company whose mark covered the timber in question. Because this would prove so costly a venture no attempt ever has been made to regain them.

Albion Scholarship In Honor of Mrs. Loud

An annual scholarship of $100 a year for some worthy Albion college student in honor of Mrs. E. R. Loud of Albion was announced by the Alpha Chi Omega sorority of Albion college, of which Mrs. Loud formerly was a member. Mrs. Loud is one of the most outstanding members of the national sorority, having been for 11 years its national president and in that time having traveled from coast to coast on her visits to the various chapters scattered through the colleges and universities of the United States. For two years she was national secretary and since 1912 has been chairman of the endowment fund committee.

* * *

A new criminal "racket" has been disclosed by a recent arrest in Los Angeles. The culprit made a practice of renting furnished homes from a realty company and then driving up a truck and stripping the houses of everything of value within them. The schemer would call up an auctioneer, asking him to send his truck. He would explain that the house had just been sold and that the furniture must be disposed of at once. By offering a high commission he was able to collect the proceeds within a few days, besides getting free trucking service.—The Outlook.

for Colds

ASPIRIN

TAKE "BAYER ASPIRIN"—Genuine

Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for

Colds Headache Neuralgia
Neuritis Toothache Lumbago
Pain Sciatica Rheumatism

Safe Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets. Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.
Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

NEWS FEATURE PAGE

Happenings From Here and There and Everywhere.

Educational, Interesting and Helpful.

Largest Vertical Lift Bridge Nears Completion

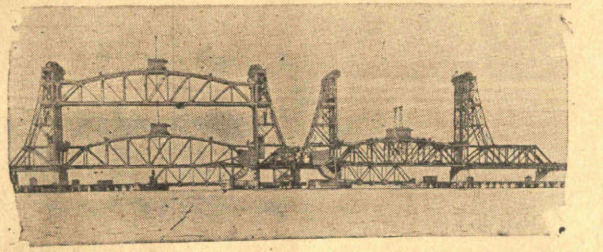

Photo shows the world's largest vertical lift bridge, spanning Newark Bay between Bayonne and Elizabeth, N. J., which is expected to be ready soon for trains of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and Baltimore & Ohio. The structure, costing $13,000,000, contains in its great length four ponderous spans, each 260 feet wide and lifting high enough to permit a 135-foot clearance.

AVERS BENITO IS ALL RIGHT FOR ITALY AT PRESENT

Prof. Claude S. Larzelere, head of the history department at Central Michigan Normal school, returned this week from an extensive tour of the Mediterranean countries and the Holy Land. Remarkable revelations concerning ancient history are being made through the extensive excavations now in progress in the cradle lands of early civilization, Prof. Larzelere reports.

The Larzelere party, which included Mrs. Larzelere and Miss Elizabeth Wightman, head of the art department at Central Normal, tramped the excavated ruins of ancient Jericho, the city about which the old testament says the 12 tribes marched around the walls seven times and then blew trumpets while the walls of Jericho fell. They also visited the ruins of Gnossus, the ancient capital of the Cretan civilization that preceded the glorious Athenian civilization.

When asked about Italy and Mussolini, Prof. Larzelere replied he had noticed considerable change in Italy since he had been there three years ago and conditions there were greatly improved.

"If you are thinking only of the present," said the professor, "Mussolini is the man for Italy."

Harbor Springs Hopes for Rebate in $25,000 Claim

The village of Harbor Springs is anxiously awaiting the outcome of an appeal to the court of claims at Washington, D. C., in which it asked for a rebate in the $25,000 judgment secured by Ella K. Haines, widow of the government meteorologist, as damages for the death of her husband. The appeal was supposed to come up before the court some time this month.

Swager Shirley of the firm of Shirley, Faust & Wilson of Washington, D. C., has been retained by the village to look after the matter before the court of claims.

Mr. Haines was killed on July 26, 1922, by an electric shock caused by contact with a high voltage wire maintained by the municipal lighting plant of the village. The suit subsequently brought by the widow was tried in federal court in Grand Rapids, resulting in the $25,000 verdict in favor of the plaintiff.

Last June, through the efforts of Cong. Frank D. Scott, congress was induced to pass a bill reopening the case and permitting the village to appear before the United States court of claims and present its arguments for relief from a judgment which it considered unjustly imposed. The village hopes to secure from the court of claims a recommendation for a rebate by the government to the village of one-half of the amount of the judgment.

It is understood that the court of claims has no jurisdiction in cases of this nature except to hear the arguments, weigh and review the case, and make a report of its findings to congress, in which the right of action is solely vested.

High Schools of Thumb Form Athletic Groups

A Thumb High School Athletic association has been organized with a membership of 11 schools in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties.

The object of the association is to promote better athletics in the Thumb territory and to define just what territory is in the Thumb. This will put a stop to schools farther south in the state laying claim to the Thumb championship. This year a team near Flint is claiming this honor.

The towns now in the association are: Tuscola county: Caro, Cass City, Vassar. Huron county: Sebewaing, Pigeon, Bad Axe, Harbor Beach. Sanilac county: Croswell, Marietta, Sandusky, Brown City.

Dark Future for Farming Seen in Water Diversion

Dark prophecies for the future of the Great Lakes farming area were made in the Great Lakes water diversion hearing before Charles E. Hughes in Washington.

Dr. Sven A. Norling, Minnesota, told Hughes that lowering of the lakes water level already had affected Michigan fruit growing and general farming conditions in the region around the lakes by disturbing the sub-surface water supply.

Albert E. R. Scheider of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron and Steamship company testified that ship owners could not carry capacity cargoes in their larger vessels because of lowering of the water level.

State Wins Fight With Wisconsin for Menominee Island

Michigan has won its fight in the United States supreme court in Washington for title to Sugar Island, in the Menominee river, just south of the city of Menominee, control of a triangle of valuable fishing waters in Green Bay, and title to Merryman's Island, another small island.

The decree ends the long dispute between Michigan and Wisconsin.

Sugar Island, which Michigan retains under the decree, is assessed at more than $2,000,000, the plant of the Menominee River Sugar company being located on the property. The "island" is now a part of the mainland of Menominee county and Michigan has been collecting taxes on it since 1863.

The decree also gives to Michigan jurisdiction over valuable fishing grounds with about $3,000 per year in revenue from fishing licenses to commercial fishermen from Wisconsin who use these waters. Merryman's Island is used for resort purposes and assessed at $30,000.

Holland Pays Its Debt to Sheriff Once Counted Out

Holland believes it has paid its debt to Fred Kamferbeek, who was counted out in the race for sheriff four years ago because election officials in this city initialed the ballots with a common lead pencil. In that election, Kamferbeek, a Democrat, won over Delbert Fortney. But 1,500 votes in Holland were thrown out as a result of the error of the election officials. This defeated Kamferbeek.

Holland carried Kamferbeek's contest to court and lost. Voters then decided to right the wrong.

Two years ago, Ottawa county, largely through the vote in Holland, elected Mr. Kamferbeek sheriff. He is the first Democrat elected in this county in 44 years. Again, at the recent election, Holland gave the Democratic candidate a majority of 1,500 and insured his re-election.

Kamferbeek is known as 'The Golden Rule Sheriff." He joins with the Salvation Army in holding religious services at the jail.

Horned Grebe's Cry Strangest of Marshes

One of the strangest sounds to be heard upon the duck marsh in the fall is the cry of the horned grebe. It is shrill and penetrating, carries long distances and reminds the hunter of the creaking of a vast barn door.

The author of this plaintive cry is a small grayish bird, whose white cheeks and neck give it a decided resemblance to a butterball duck. Horned grebes migrate in small flocks, probably family parties, and when the younger birds become separated from each other, they give vent to their peculiar cry.

War on Corn Borer Also Death to Other Pests

Many crops will be benefitted by Michigan's compulsory war against the corn borer, it was stated by Prof. R. H. Pettit, entomologist at the Michigan State College.

Professor Pettit said that numerous pests in addition to the borer would be destroyed in the cleanup campaign which would involve the cleaning out of fence rows, ditch edges, weed patches and other breeding places for larvae.

WINTER LIKELY TO MAKE AUTO JUNK

Winter imposes a heavy strain on the automobile which can be greatly lightened by sensible driving.

There are many accessories to the modern machine to relieve motorists of the dread of cold weather. But with all these a car can be driven to the junk heap just as fast as ever if the driver doesn't consider the whims and caprices of winter.

Sot spot manifolds and other preheating arrangements, winter fronts, blankets and alcohol may help fight the cold, but when the car is left in a freezing garage over night, the care of the cautious motorist is needed.

The oil has become thick and sluggish, the water-cooling system might have frozen, yet a good motorist can start that car and get it going without a bit of trouble.

What should be done in a case like this amounts to putting as little strain on the engine as possible. It should be started with the spark retarded and the gas administered in a slow, steady stream.

Slow heating of the engine is essential. If the cooling system happens to be frozen, racing the engine will merely overheat it, while the water remains frozen. The result, from the difference in temperature, will be a cracked cylinder case and leaking radiator.

Time and patience are required.

Canada to Copy State In Reindeer Experiment

In spite of the fact that Michigan's experiment with raising reindeer proved a failure and the imported Norwegian herds have all but disappeared from the barrens of Luce county in the upper peninsula where the deer were under the care of a Norwegian herdsman, Canada is now seriously considering a similar project.

The Canadian plan, however, is different from Michigan's. The Dominion will place herds in the northern part of its domain near Hudson Bay, along the MacKenzie river and Yukon district.

The Canadian conservationists are not planning on going to Europe for their initial herds, but will bring Alaskan deer overland into the new feeding grounds.

* * *

Father—"I want to apprentice my boy to you."

Master Plumber—"Where is he?"

Father—"Well—er—he forgot his references and has gone back home for them."

Master Plumber — "Righto!—I'll take him."

FOR SALE

$1,000.00 for a well stocked Second Hand Furniture Store on one of the busiest streets in Grand Rapids. Good lease and store making money. Other business requires owner's entire time. If interested, write Marks Furniture Store, 125 Division Ave., South, Grand Rapids, Mich.

LEARN

BRICKLAYING

In a School run by Building Contractors. Catalog Free.

Associated Building Employers
13-21 McConnell St., Grand Rapids

State College on Ambitious Program For Winter Sports

With football a matter of history, sport followers at Michigan State have turned to winter sports, although the season will not be in full swing until after the new year.

This year's winter program at East Lansing will undoubtedly be the most ambitious in the history of the college. Four full-time coaches have been added to the State staff, and during the winter their time will be fully occupied.

Heading the sports of the new season are basket ball and track. Coach Ben Van Alstine, formerly of Ohio Wesleyan, will have charge of the cake squad. The State season opens in December with games with Michigan and Adrian, and a holiday trip to Chicago when the University of Chicago and Northwestern University will be met.

Basket ball prospects are not very bright. Only three or four veterans from last year's none too successful team are available, and the sophomores are far from brilliant. The State schedule, moreover, is an ambitious one, including home games with Notre Dame, Butler, Marquette and the University of Detroit. In addition to the contests mentioned, the University of Pittsburgh, Butler, and Earlham are other high lights on the schedule. Barney Traynor, assistant football coach, will have charge of the freshman basket ball squad and the winter football workouts.

The State varsity and freshman track squads will be directed by Coaches Young, Castell and Mason. Young will handle the sprinters and weight men, with Castell directing the hurdlers, pole vaulters, and high jumpers. Mason will have charge of the distance men.

State is looking forward to a banner year in track, barring the shattering of the team by ineligibility. Captain Frederick Alderman is one of the greatest sprinters in America, and his teammate, John Grim, is another headliner. Both are holders of world's records.

Bees Locked Out, Build Comb Beneath Eaves

Bees are persistent creatures possessed of many vagaries. There was ample evidence of this in Hillsdale recently. A swarm of bees constructed a giant series of honeycombs under the eaves of the home of the late J. S. Galloway on Broad street. For nearly 40 years the colony had been in the habit of storing honey under the attic floor of the house. This past summer the house was closed for the first time and the bees could not gain entrance to their storehouse. They did the next best thing and started to hive under the eaves, clinging to their familiar surroundings.

The comb mass at present is about the size of a bushel basket but doubt is expressed that these little workers will winter through in their newly constructed home where it is subject to the pranks of winter.

* * *

In his sixth year of prohibition a sign appears on the front of an employment agency in West 46th street, New York city, reading as follows:

"Wanted a bartender to work out of town. $75 a month, plus room and board."—The Outlook.

* * *

"Advertising certainly pays. We lost our mongler pup."

"And did you get it back again?"

"No, but we got two better dogs."

OLD GUIDE RECALLS GAME-FILLED WOOD

"Rube" Babbitt, age 67 years, one of the best known guides in the state and country, has seen Michigan's forests ravaged, its greatest and gamiest fish, the grayling, virtually erased, and one of the outstanding features of its wild life, the passenger pigean, exterminated, but he is as enthusiastic regarding Michigan's outdoor appeal as he was in the palmy days of his young manhood when Michigan's popularity as a vacationland was undreamed.

For 53 years, since 1873, he has been a resident of Grayling, the town named after Michigan's ichthyological favorite. He was there with Shoppenagon, the Chippewa Indian, and with this redskin, after whom a Grayling hotel is named, fished and hunted along the Au Sable. He saw the first lumber camp built in Grayling in 1876. He saw the timber go. He remembers vividly the attention which the grayling, then called the "Au Sable trout," began to attract in 1876. He saw and guided many of the noted men and women visitors who came from all sections of the He has seen rookeries of passenger pigeons 35 miles long, he says. And today, as you study him and talk with him, you think of Wordsworth's phrase, "A man he seems of cheerful yesterdays and confident tomorrows."

For a while he has seen the tragic metamorphosis in the forests, the streams and the air—the gradual persistent annihilation of the trees, the fish, the birds and wild life—he is optimistic of the future. If our remaining treasures are carefully guarded and conserved and the proper methods of propagation and development utilized, the new generations yet to come will get health, pleasure and happiness out of the outdoor treasures of this state, he says.

* * *

Another wonderful accomplishment of California air:

Some time ago a request was made to the city council of Venice, California, for funds to buy six gondolas for the canal there. The amount was about $1,000. A council man rose in objection, "Why go to all that expense? Venice is a wonderful place and we can breed them all right here."—The Outlook.

* * *

Too frequently when a man reaches the turn in the lane he finds that it turns in the wrong direction.

Try the New Cuticura Shaving Stick Freely Lathering
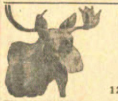
Medicinal and Emollient

WANTED MEN!

To earn $30 to $50 per week while attending night school of
Automotive and Electrical Engineering

We get you a position—you can earn while you learn.
Out-of-Town Men, Write!

W. L. GEORGE
250 Pearl St., Grand Rapids, Mich.



DEER HEADS MOUNTED

Write for free photos and prices before your hunt.

G. R. TAXIDERMY STUDIO

124 Division Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich. Phone 6-2983

Children Cry for

Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is a pleasant, harmless Substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Teething Drops and Soothing Syrups, especially prepared for Infants in arms and Children all ages.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

The Continental Red Seal on the engine signifies motor superiority and user satisfaction. It protects manufacturer, dealer and user.

Continental Motors Corporation

Offices: Detroit, Mich., U. S. A. Factories: Detroit and Muskegon
The Largest Exclusive Motor Manufacturer in the World

CORRESPONDENCE

HOXIE

Ida Pierce of Coldwater came Thursday to visit Mae Chapman.

Dow Kennedy, Mae Chapman and Ida Pierce were in Jackson Wednesday.

School was closed Tuesday on account of the funeral of Chas Chapman.

Mrs. Will Steveson and daughter Ruth and Paul Coutz were in Jackson Saturday.

John Iveson and wife attended the funeral of a friend Mr. Sprang at Amboy Friday.

Mrs. L. J. Dutcher of Hillsdale spent Monday afternoon at the F. M. Thompson home.

Paul Marks of Napoleon spent Sunday at home with his parents Albert Marks and wife.

The bee held for Harry Roberts recently was attended by 32 men, who accomplished a fine lot of work.

Mrs. Will Steveson and Ruth visited at the home of John Hicks and wife at North Adams Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Dick McBain and Opal and Denzell of Moscow and Verl and Val Bleech of North Adams spent Saturday at F. M. Thompson's.

Harry Roberts who was seriously injured in an auto accident a month ago, was brought home Monday from the Hillsdale City Hospital.

The December meeting of the Hoxie L. A. S. will be held at the home of Belle Jennings on Wednesday the 15th. One of the entertaining features of the day will be a Christmas grab bag.

A. J. Franks met with an accident Friday while walking in the woods his feet became entangled in a wire which caused him to fall, striking his head against a tree. No bones were broken but he sustained some very bad bruises.

The death of Chas Chapman, one of our oldest and highly esteemed residents surely casts a gloom over the whole community and he will be missed by a host of friends. His funeral was held Tuesday and was very largely attended. Those from a distance were George McClintic, Chas Woodward of Hillsdale, Mrs. Pierce and daughter Ida and son Leonard of Coldwater, Eugene Cronk of Jackson, Mrs Edna Jones of Hillsdale, Everett Kennedy and wife of Cement City, Dow Kennedy of Jacksonville Florida, Will Sanford and wife of Addison.

Jonesville

R. B. Howard is at home from Chicago.

George D. Harding was in Chicago during the week.

R. S. Varnum made a business trip to Bronson Tuesday.

Marian Gillespie was at home from Big Beaver over Sunday.

Margaret Griffeth of Jackson was at her home here a few days last week.

Paul Wood of the Ypsilanti Normal was at home for over Thanksgiving

Maurice Pierce and family of Plymouth Mich. were guests at the Wetmore home during the week.

W. E. Sangster and family of Detroit were over Sunday guests at L. E. Swan home on Reading Ave.

F. E. Howland and wife are in Detroit for a few days visit with their son L. Woodward and family.

Raymond Pierce and family of Ypsilanti spent Sunday at the home of their parents George McKercher and wife.

Mrs. Frances Tiffany of Adrian and Bernice Tiffany of Detroit spent a few days last week at the W. M. Wetmore home here.

A. D. Storer and wife celebrated the forty fifth anniversary of their marriage last Friday evening at their home in this village.

The death of Cyrenas Jackson occurred Sunday at the home of Fred Ryan and wife where he had been cared for for several years. The funeral was held Tuesday at the Ryan home and burial in the Jonesville cemetery.

Jerome

L. D. Walworth of Albion spent the week end with his parents here.

About $24 was cleared at the Chickenpie supper and bazaar at I. O. O. F. Hall Saturday evening.

Rev. Dempster Yinger of Spring Arbor will exchange pulpits next Sunday evening with Rev. Johns.

Fred Eagle of Pioneer, O. also V. C. Green and wife of Pittsford have been recent guests of Thomas Lane and family.

The net proceeds of the box social which took place at the school Friday amounted to $15. A good program was put on by the H. S. students.

Supt. Wertenberger and the law class attended court a: Hillsdale Tuesday. Those taking the trip were Lyle Miller, Facelia Carpenter Nettie Sawdey, Ransom Sawdey, Jane Randolph, Geraldine Little, Bessie Olney, Lawrence Walworth, Clayton and Robert McGregor.

Darkness Is Black Light

Children should be taught early in their lives to be perfectly at home in the dark. If not, they are likely to be timid as long as they live—and surely as long as they remain children.

A light at night is not only dangerous, but a constant reminder to the child that there is a darkness, and a suggestion that the light is to ward off the evils that come with sun-down.

Take the child upstairs some day and go into a closet with him. Shut the door and show how dark it is. Open it, and prove that darkness is nothing but black light and consequently not to be feared.

If he demands a light at night, ask him if he wants it so flies may see to bite him, and suggest that kittens, puppies and even chickens sleep in the dark and little boys surely should do the same. As he grows older, intimating that you will leave the light so that he can "play he is still a baby" will often cause him to order it put out immediately.

At any rate, teach the child to appreciate the dark and to feel out of place when a night lamp is anywhere around.

Drop in and renew your subscription on the Advocate if you are in arrears,

Hotels
MADISON and LENOX
DETROIT

These twin hotels, conveniently located downtown, offer you accommodations of great excellence at most reasonable rates ...

MADISON AVE. NEAR GRAND CIRCUS PARK

PROBATE ORDER

STATE OF MICHIGAN, Probate Court for the County of Hillsdale.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Hillsdale in the said County, on the 1st day of December A. D. 1926.

Present, Hon. Arthur L. Guernsey Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of George W. Dow Deceased.

It appearing to the court that the time for presentation of claims against said estate should be limited, and that a time and place be appointed to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against said deceased by and before said court:

It is Ordered, That creditors of said deceased are required to present their claims to said court at aid Pro bate Office on or before the 5th day of April A. D. 1927 at ten o'clock in the forenoon, said time and place being hereby appointed for the examination and adjustment of all claims and demands against said deceased.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the North Adams Advocate a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Arthur L. Guernsey
27t3 Judge of Probate

The late general election in our County shows that political leadership in national and state affairs is rapidly being assumed by the press The country weekly and small town daily exercise dominant and direct leadership in building and political fortunes of individuals, and molding public sentiment on principles and ideals in public affairs. Their power is increasing, and they are rightly called the home newspaper, in towns and on the farms.

John Litchhult and Mrs. Della Gillett visited Burr Hewitt and family at Addison last week.

Mrs. J. Kajohn of Marshall spent the week end with her brother John Litchhult and Mrs. Della Gillett in this village.

Tracing the "Limerick"

Limericks were usually extemporaneous compositions and produced at convivial parties in Ireland by each individual in turn, while the entire party joined in singing a chorus in which were the words, "Will you come up to Limerich?" From this it is supposed that the word "limerick," applied to a special type of poetry, is derived.

Dawn Theatre Hillsdale
A Butterfield Theatre

December 10
FRIDAY
MARTHA SHEARER in
"THE DEVIL'S CIRCUS"

December 11
SATURDAY
HOOT GIBSON in
"The PHANTOM BULLET

December 12 and 13
SUNDAY, MONDAY
THOMAS HEIGHAN in
"THE CAMPAGN"

December 14 15
TUESDAY and WED'Y
ALICE JOYCE in
"Dancing Mothers" "Moanna"

Thursday, December 16th
CONWAY TEARLE in "THE SPORTING LOVER"

XMAS GOODS

Carving Sets, Chafing Dishes, Silverware, Aluminum Ware, Enameled ware Flash Lights, Sleds, Skates, Radio Sets, Safety Razors, Ete. Etc.

We Can Supply You with the best makes of Radio. Come in and listen to the Stewart-Warner

John Williams

Xmas

Try Swain's Store for your XMAS wants and see it you don't save $$
Just Received a nice line of Bath Towels, also Bath Towel Sets

SWAIN'S, North Adams

Useful
Gifts for xmas

We have Pyrex, Aluminum and Enameled Ware, Cutlery of all kinds, Sleds and Skates, Silverware, Watches and Jewely.

New Grossley Radio
PAYNE & GREEN CO.
Authorized Agents

The Store of the Holiday Spirit

XMAS
Goods now in

Fruits, Nuts, Oranges, Bananas, Figs, Dates. Books Novelties. Come in and look the stock over.

A. DIETZ

Two Snbscriptions to McCall's and one Advocate 1 yr. $2.75

Christmas Time at Wertz

YOU WILL FIND

Beautiful Cut Glass, Hand Painted China, White Ivory, Silverware, Box Stationery, Jewelry, Smoking Sets, Thermos Bottles, Books, Boxed Handkerchiefs, Suspenders, Neckties, Hosiery, Hose Supporters, Arm Bands, box Perfumes, Toilet Waters. Hoover Suction Sweepers, Phonographs, Thermometers, Electric Lamps, Quite Light Lamps, Electric Irons, Serving Trays, Safety Eazors, Ladies' Purses. Towels, Fountain Pens, Watches, Pipes Cigarettes, Holders and Cases, Dolls and a full line of Toys.

Candies, Grapes, Oranges, Bananas, Walnuts, Brazil Nuts, Cigars, Peanuts

I will give away on CHRISTMAS

$95.00 Crossley Pup Radio Set [No Equipment]
"Oh Mamma" Doll. Ladies Fountain Pen
Gentleman's Flash Light. For particulars Inquire at the store.

C. S. Wertz

Anyone Who can wind a watch

Now commands the air with

THE NEW ERLA MONODIC RECEIVER

Here is news for the whole family: Mother, Brother, and even little Sister can get new "thrills"—new stations they never could before. One after another stations come in with "next-door" clarity and volume. Selectivity is now razor keen

Radiation, or the annoying broadcasting of squeals into neighboring antennae is eliminated removing one of the most prolific causes of radio interference and dissatisfaction

Harshness and fuzziness of tone resulting from regeneration are eradicated. Even under full pressure, reproduction of voice or music is entirely natural and undistorted.

Mosher's Radio Shop
93 South Howell Street. HILLSDALE, MICH.

WERTZ'
CASH PRICES

Red Salmon per can	33c
Pink Salmon per can	18c
Best Evaporatad Milk 5c and	10c
Peas per can	13c
Household Ammonia	10c
Potatoes per peck	35c
Smacko Oleo	25c
Better Chocolate Symonds Inn ½ lb.	27c
Symonds Inn Cocoa half pound	17c
New Walnut Meats ounce	7c
New Cleaned Currents pke	20c
Lemons per dozen	20c
Eight Bars Lenox Soap	25c
Michigan Cream Cheese per pound	33c
Raisins Package	13c
Matches Six boxes	33c
Jello Pkge	10c
Pastry Flour 24½ lbs Sack	93c
Besco Flour 24½ lbs. sack	$1.08
Wertz' Real Coffee, lb.	48c
Dates per lb	15
Badger Oleomargarine per pound	30c
Broken Taffy per pound	10c

Saturday Only, 10 Pounds Sugar with other trade 57c

CLYDE S. WERTZ

THE NORTH ADAMS ADVOCATE

Vol. XXXI NORTH ADAMS, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1926 No. 29

THE
Greendale Dairy
North Adams, Michigan
For the past year Associated with
The Franklin Creamery Company
Now operated by
The Franklin Creamery Company
Come in and let us serve you

THE CITIZENS BANK
[Unincorporated]
North Adams, Mich.

Resources Over $500,000
H. M. WILCOX, Pres. J. M. WILLIAMS V. Pres
A. J. HOFFMAN, Cashier
MRS. GRACE DOOLITTLE, Assistant Cashier
Co-Partners

J. M. WILLIAMS C. W. BLEECH A. WILLIAMS EST
A. J. HOFFMAN H. M. WILCOX B. I. LYNCH

[a] Safety on your money
[b] Yield on your money

I.—SAFETY: Building and Loan societies put 100 per cent of their investments in Real Estate. It is estimated that there are 9,000,000 share holders in Building and Loan Societies, having $5,000,000 in assets. Wayne county Savings Bank has $74,204,528 in savings :$41,140.576 is invested in Real Estate. The Central Savings and Trust Company has $28,961,093 in Savings, $27,294,298 are invested in Real Estate. The New York Life Insurance Company has $151,000,000 in assets invested in Illinois.

$94,000,000 Real Estate
$21,000,000 Railroad Bonds
$35,000,000 Public Utilities
$1,000,000 Municipal

Surely these facts are conclusive evidence of the safety of Real Estate.

II.—YIELD: In yield one cannot find so generous a return anywhere. In ten (10) years the following yields have been realized: Detroit 630 per cent; New York 217 per cent; Chicago 195 per cent; Atlanta 162 per cent; San Francisco, 159 per cent; Boston 137 per cent; Minneapolis 131 per cent; Kansas City 129 per cent; St. Louis 124 per cent; Cleveland 119 per cent; Philadelphia 116 per cent. Detroit yields three times as much as its next ranking city.

See DICK McBAIN, Moscow.

B. E. TAYLOR, Realtor
Community Builder
521-529 Ford Bldg. DETROIT, MICH.

Your Home should come
FIRST
For Gifts we have Rugs, Rockers, Kitchen Cabinets, Bed room Suites, appropriate for the Holiday season
and useful to all in the home
How about a Radio Cabinet?
We Have them at
$12.00 and $18.00

H. E. Young & Son
NORTH ADAMS, MICH.
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING

Local News

Patronize the item box at the post office.

Read H. C. Young's advertisement.

Mrs. Helen Crowell remains about as usual.

Snappy new designs in Christmas cards here.

The North Adams Womans Club meets Monday, Dec. 20th with Mrs. Harriet Shepard.

For Rent—Barn suitable for garage in North Adams. Phone 5001. Mrs. Frances Rickerd. 29t3

Frank Holcomb has been confined to his bed with heart trouble for the past two weeks. At this time he is slightly improved.

Mrs. Luella Helmick spent the week end in Lansing visiting Rev. W. H. Hutton and family and a nephew R. A. Gillett and family.

Miss Rosene Baker will conduct a Christmas tree and program at her school (J. L. Buck district) on Thursday evening, December 23.

Harold, son of John Gordon and wife underwent an operation at Hillsdale Hospital on Saturday for tonsils. Doctors Miller and Johnson did the work.

The Friendship Club will meet with Mrs. Sarah Winchell Friday afternoon, Dec. 17th. Program, Answer roll coll with Christmas names. Christmas exchange.

The Rebekah Aid Society will meet at the hall Wednesday Dec. 22. Pot-luck dinner and program Answer roll call with Christmas thoughts. Christmas exchange.

Alpha Chapter, No. 288, will conduct a dance ae the Town Hall Tuesday evening, December 28th with a good orchestra and Mr. Schumaker as caller. All invited.

The Methodist Sunday school will conduct a Christmas entertainment at the church Friday evening, December 24th, with a pageant, Watch for particulars in next issue.

North Adams is soon to have an up-to-date bakery. Mr. Ferguson has rented the Higley building east of the old Lynch Block, and will install an outfit and expert operator from Sturgis.

Arvin Fuller will conduct an auction on his farm 3½ miles west and ½ mile north of North Adams Thursday, Dec. 23rd, beginning at 10:30 a. m. and will sell some farm tools, 2 good work horses; some cows, hogs and sheep. See ad on back page.

Radio from W W J, Detroit' says Miss Helen Nevison has been missing since last week Tuesday from her home in Detroit. Anyone seeing her notify Robert Nevison. Large grey eyes, brown curly hair, bobbed: five feet, three inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, age 20 years. Wore silk dress, grey coat.

Letter received from Archie Bleech and wife states that they are enjoying life immensely visiting at Augustus Bleech's in St. Cloud. Wild game is plentiful in Florida and Archie has shot a deer but no turkeys as yet. He reports the weather uncomfortably warm in St Cloud and he had a very interesting and eventful trip going through. Saw the Blue Ridge Mountains and many scenic points. They will return about January 1st 1927.

Representative Joseph L. Hooper of Washington, D. C. writes he is about to appoint a cadet to Annapolis Naval Academy from the third district of Michigan some time in January, and all eligible young fellows who want to try for this position will undergo rigid examinations in postoffices at Marshall, Hillsdale, Coldwater, Bronson, Battle Creek and Kalamazoo January 8th. Come on, Boys. pep up a little. This is one of the most desirablo appointments on earth.

Saturday, December 11th. was the birthday of Mrs. Lester Daniels and so on Sunday following she was given a party by relatives to the number of twenty-one. A splendid pot-luck dinner was a feature of the gathering and those present were: Oray Holcomb, wife and daughter, Muriel George Holcomb and wife, Will Crandall and family of Hillsdale, Clement Schilling and wife of Hudson, Earl Schilling, wife and daughter of near Hudson.

On Sunday evening last at the Methodist church occurred the W. C. T. U. annual meeting for temperance. Mrs. Lipe was unable to be present and the ladies secured instead Prof. James of Hillsdale College who delivered the address of the evening. Music was rendered by an orchestra composed of Gordon Walworth, Arthur Holcomb, Edith Westcott, Mr. Gould, Mrs. VanDuesen director, with Wendell Swain at the piano. Prof. James is a Persian and stated to begin with that he was totally unacquainted with conditions in this country, but he said the 18th Amendment was very efficient and should be enforced. He made a startling statement that the Catholic church as a body was wet, also that the Rev. Fathers if they chose could stop 85 percent of the intemperance but they would not do so. Meeting was in charge of Mrs. Delilah Holcomb.

Dr. C. J. Howe, Optometrist—Comfortable glasses, Hillsdale. 42tf

—Christmas cards at this office

Mrs. Carrie Scoyille is practically the same.

For Sale—Twenty five Pullets Inquire at Dietz Store, North Adams Mich.

—Christmas cards. Genuine steel die work, with envelopes at Advocate office.

Mrs. Carrie Bryant recently received an announcement of the birth of a son December 8th to Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Ruble of Battle Creek. Mrs. Ruble was formerly Miss Berniece Fowle daughter of O. J. Fowle of Moscow. The young ster is to be known as Laurence Harmon and this makes Mrs. Bryant Great, Great aunt.

The second number of the High School Entertainment course appears here Wednesday evening December 22. This number "The Little Theatre Party" is composed of four characters all ranking high in their ability in the portrayal of characters. Season tickets for the remainder of the course are $1.20 for Adults. 80 cents for Juniors. Single Admission same 35c and 50c.

P. T. A. Meeting

On Monday evening the important meeting of the year for the P. T. A. occurred at the school house with but small attendance on account of inclement weather conditions. President Laura Meeks called the meeting to order and proceeded to election of officers. Lewis Hersh was chosen president; Mrs. H. E. Wylie vice president and Lauren Radabaugh secretary and treasurer.

Dr. McLain of Quincy, Extension lecturer of the U. of M. was then introduced and gave the address of the evening which was immensely interesting both from a medical and common sense stand-point. He made one or two "hot" allusions to failings of the human family, as doctors are apt to do. Among other things he said that after years of investigation the medical profession had concluded that seven eights of human disease was the result of wrong use of the body, only he didn't give it as polite name as I have. He cautioned teachers to consider the work of training pupils in hygiene one of the highest callings, and he warned them that the future longevity and intelligence of the Nation rests in their hands. He deplored the use of condiments and high seasonings in children's food and recommended the "kibosh" on candy and non-calcinous foods. Lime he said, was the greatest need of the body. We think if the doctor should learn of the heavy lime impregnation of most North Adams wells, he would never again insinuate more lime for our children. Dr. McLain deplored the necessity of expending nine million dollars for asylums, prisons and reformatories and only eight millions for our educational institutions in the state. Modern science has uncovered so many health helps it is impossible to speak of them here, but breathing of foul odors will contaminate the blood stream by way of the lungs.

There was but one child present and the doctor left a quarter for this kid to write him a letter telling what the child had learned from the lecture.

Adams Tax Notice

I will be at Citizens Bank North Adams Friday December 17 and at the First State Savings Bank in Hillsdale beginning Saturday December 18th, 1926 and each succeeding Friday and Saturday there after until Jan. 15th, 1927, for collecting taxes of Adams Township. Pay dog tax before January 9th, 1927, Arthur Holcomb, Treasurer. 28t3

DANCE
TOWN HALL, North Adams
Fri. Dec. 24 1926
Dance Bill $1, special

CREAM
We want your Cream.
Tested while you wait.
We pay best marketprice
CRATER & EDINGER

Methodist Church Calendar

REV. H. E. WYLIE, PASTOR
Morning worship 11:00
Sabbath School 10:00 A. M.
Epworth League 6:00 P. M.
Evening Worship 7:00

BAPTIST CHURCH

A. REISER, PASTOR

Preaching service every Sunday at 10:30 a. m.
Sunday school at 11:45
Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:30.

Congregational Church Calendar

E. C. JANDY, Pastor

Regular morning worship at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school 11:45

Christmas exercises will be held this Sunday, extending through the Sunday School hour. The subject of the sermon will be "The Star of the East and the West."

For Sale—140 shocks corn on the Dan Hoxie farm. Inquire of Flutell Thompson. 27t3

Beans For Sale—Jesse Dewey. Phone 1313 North Adams. 27t3

Chancery Notice

State of Michigan, First Judicial Circuit, In Chancery. Suit pending in said court wherein Thompson Savings Bank is plaintiff and James F. Sutfin and Carrie Sutfin are defendants. In pursuance of a decree of the circuit court for the county of Hillsdale, in chancery, made and entered on the 29th day of November, 1926, in the above entitled cause, I, the subscriber, a circuit court commissioner for the county of Hillsdale, shall sell at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the court-house in said city of Hillsdale, in the County of Hillsdale, on the 15th day of January, 1927, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, Central Standard time. all those certain land and premises situate and being in the Township of Pittsford, county of Hillsdale ond state of Michigan, and described as follows to-wit; the east one-half of the northeast quarter of Section 3, Township 7 south, Range 1 west, containing eighty acres of land more or less.

Dated, December 2, 1926.

Glenn E. Miller,
Circuit Court Commissioner in and for the County of Hillsdale.
B. D. Chandler,
Attorney for Plaintiff, 27t6
Business Address, Hudson Mich.

Red Front Prices

These prices in effect until advertised to the contrary

McKenzie's Pride Flour per sack	98c
1900 Flour, sk	$1.04
McKay's Best	$1.04
Quick Naptha Soap Chips pkge,	19c
Velvet smoking Tobacco per can	12c
Lighthouse Macaroni and spaghetti pkg	8c
Mothers' Good Coffee per pound	29c
Barber's special Coffee per lb.	39c
Campbell's soups	9c
Eatmore Cranberries per lb.	12c
Pork and Benns 3 cans for	25c
Blankets left in stock 66 x 80 at	$1.79
4 buckle Arctics	$3.50 $3.95 pr.
Comfortable Challies per yard	14c
Paisley Crepes	21c
Cretonnes yd,	20c
Stevens Linen crash per yard	19c
O. N, T. Crochet cotton per ball	8c

R. A. Barber
North Adams, Mich.

I'm Going to Ed Benge's market Don't Stop me!

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year

We have Fruits for the Holiday Season Oranges Grape Fruit; Grapes, Cranberries, Celery, Lettuce and a full line of Christmas Candies.

Groceries. A good place to trade

EDSON J. BENGE

What you GET here depends on what you GIVE here

Did you ever stop to think that what you get in the milk pail you must first put into the feed box?

When production falls off it's easy to blame the cow. But she isn't a magician. She can't make something out of nothing.

A good cow, rightly fed, will pay for herself over and over, year in and year out.

But no cow, wrongly fed, will produce milk profitably for any length of time.

That's why it pays to feed Larro. Larro will produce more profit, dollar for dollar, than any other feed, however little you pay for it.

We can prove this by the actual experience of other dairymen, or by a test with your own cows.

Prices

One Hundred Pounds International Dairy Feed	$1.90
One Hnndred Pounds Hy-grade Corno Oat Feed	1.25
200 pound Cost	$ 3.15
100 pound Cost	1.57

F. I. WILLIAMS & SON

Why Sheetrock is a different wallboard

What it is: Sheetrock is gypsum plaster cast in thick, rigid sheets. It is fireproof, non-warping and permanent. It can be sawed and nailed like lumber. Takes any decoration—wall paper, paint, or Textone in the new stipple finishes.

What it does: Sheetrock makes solid, highly insulating walls and ceilings that keep rooms warm in winter and cool in summer. That means more comfort and lower fuel bills. Then, too, Sheetrock walls and ceilings make buildings dust-tight, sound-proof and vermin-proof.

Where it is used: Sheetrock is the economical wall and ceiling material for many types of new construction and for all remodeling and repairs. It is just the thing for attic rooms, furnace rooms, fruit cellars, garages, offices and stores.

Where to get it: Get your Sheetrock from us. We carry it in standard ceiling heights and widths. Our trucks make prompt deliveries.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
SHEETROCK
THE Fireproof WALLBOARD

GRAVES & FORD LUMBER COMPANY

An Especially Interesting Page on Various Subjects

Prepared for all Classes of People in all Walks of Life

PRITCHARD'S WEATHER FORECAST
463 [illegible] GRAND RAPIDS MICHIGAN

Week of December 19

The week of December 19th in Michigan begins with generally stormy weather. Temperatures will be warm for this time of year with readings standing at about 50 degrees or more in many parts of the state.

There will be general and plenty of precipitation during the early part of this week together with some very strong winds. With some variation in strength these conditions will last over the middle of the week. At this time there will be a rapid fall of the temperature to much lower readings.

Temperatures will remain below the seasonal normal up to the end of this week. About Christmas Day the general readings of the thermometer will record normal and above. The weather conditions at end of week will become unsettled, but we look for no real storminess until the beginning of next week.

Christmas Day

Michigan will be under the influence of a warm wave about Christmas day, but we do not expect any actual storminess in Michigan. We look for moderate temperatures and a generally fair day or as much of one as Michigan can usually produce at this time of year.

Cold Wave Next Week

We wish to take this opportunity to warn readers of this paper of the severe cold wave we are expecting in Michigan during the early part of next week. Shortly after Christmas day temperatures will begin to fall to decidedly low readings. Temperatures will not fully recover by the end of this year.

Egg Eating Champ Makes Challenger Do His Bit to Qualify

Like all champions, Roy Comer, America's king egg eater, his his spells of temperament and pride.

"Dutch" Hoyt, Mt. Pleasant, Mich., traveling salesman and challenger of the champion, arrived to keep his egg bout with Comer despite the fact that the latter has cancelled the contest.

"I'm like Dempsey," Comer said proudly. "I'll not combat with each and every person who would like to be monarch of the egg eaters. Dempsey made his challengers eliminate each other until the best man was lft. That is what Mr. Hoyt must do. He must first demonstrate his right to enter a contest with me. If Mr. Hoyt eats 33 eggs and equals my record then I will concede his right to challenge me."

Mr. Hoyt says he'll break Comer's record if he "busts," which is what a lot of persons think will happen.

POOR RISKS

He desired to take out a life policy for $50,000.

Smiling eagerly, the agent drew forth a blank form and began the usual questions:

"Do you drive an automobile?"

"No, I do not."

"Motorcyclist, perhaps?"

"No."

"Then surely you aviate?"

"No."

The agent with a sigh laid down his pen.

"I'm sorry," he said, "but we no longer insure pedestrians."

Check
for that Cough!
Check

COUGHS COLDS

A two days' Cough is your Danger Signal.

Persistent Coughs and Colds lead to serious troubles. You can stop them now with Check. It soothes and seals the inflamed membranes.

SOLD IN ALL DRUG STORES.

A Word With the Old Folks

Elderly People Are Learning Importance of Good Elimination.

IN the later years of life there is apt to be a slowing up of the bodily functions. Good elimination, however, is just as essential to the old as to the young. Many old folks have learned the value of Doan's Pills when a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys is required. Scanty or burning passages of kidney secretions are often signs of improper kidney function. In most every community are scores of users and endorsers who acclaim the merit of Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c

"Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys"

PICKANDS, MATHER OPERATE 18 MINES

2,750 Men Employed in Properties in Michigan and Minnesota; Report.

Pickands, Mather & Co. will operate 18 underground iron mines at capacity all winter and between now and the opening of navigation next spring will put about 2,250,000 tons of ore in stockpiles, Skilling's Mining Review says. The close of the season of navigation finds the company's old stockpiles virtually all shipped. There is ample room for stocking the new ore to be produced this winter. The average number of men to be employed this winter by the Pickands, Mather & Co. is about 2,750. The usual repairs to equipment will be made and there will be some mine stripping done, particularly at the Plymouth iron mine on the Gobegic range, this winter. Some stripping will also be done at the Corsica and Bennett mines on the Mesaba range.

Of the 18 underground mines which will be operated by the company this winter 14 are situated in Michigan and four in Minnesota. The Michigan mines are the Penn, Judson, Warner, Baltic, Fogarty, Buck, Caspian, Bengal; James Isabella, Cary, Newport, Palms, Anvil and Sunday Lake. The Minnesota underground mines operated by this company are the Zenith on the Vermilion range and the Utica, Dunwoody and Bennett on the Mesaba range.

Pickands, Mather & Co. put one new iron mine on its shipping list this seoson, the Volunteer, Marquette range, Michigan. There will be considerable work at that property this winter by way of installing additional equipment. A secondary Traylor crusher of the same size and type as the one installed last spring, has been ordered. It is designed to take some of the burden off the present secondary crusher. Contracts have been awarded for the housing of the new crusher. A local contractor has secured the work of putting in the foundation and the Worden-Allen company will supply and erect the steel. The Volunteer mine began producing August 1 and has been shipping at the rate of 450,000 gross tons per season. The record for the initial partial season will be about 156,000.

W. P. Chinn, general manager of mines for Pickands, Mather & Co., announces that the Majorca iron mine on the Mesaba range is expected to be in the shipping list in 1927. This property has been idle since 1923, when the shipments for that season totaled 151,743 tons. During this winter some additional equipment will be installed at the Majorca washing plant for the benefication of the ore produced at the property.

Aldermen Shout for Coughlin Skirt Bill To Keep Them Short

"Bathhouse" John Coughlin Wednesday did the bravest act in his long career as alderman of the first ward of Chicago. He asked the city council to tell Chicago women how long to wear their skirts! Coughlin introduced the following resolution:

"Whereas, we are of the firm opinion that any additional abbreviation of the skirt would be a menace to the health with winter coming on and everything.

"And we are equally sure any lengthening would destroy an important element of civic beauty.

"Therefore, resolved that we urge the women to maintain the existing skirt length, steadfastly refusing to add or subtract the smallest fraction of an inch."

The grayhaired alderman started a speech but he got only to the declaration that "skirts are going up" when the aviation committee was called for.

"The women look like they are wearing kilts"—he began again, and there was a shout for committee on health.

The resolution finally went to the committee on health. The vote to send it there was one unanimous whoop.—Chicago Tribune.

Bolivia Air Mail Brings Republic Closer to World

La Paz, Bolivia—The inauguration of aerial mail and passenger service between Santa Cruz and Yacuiba, on the Argentine frontier, reduces the time between these two places from 15 or 20 days on mule back to about seven hours. The distance is 1,000 kilometers, the greater part being covered by swamps, woods and large rivers, impassable in the rainy season. The new service will place Buenos Aires at only two days from Santa Cruz and will make still closer the ties between the River Plate republic and the eastern part of Bolivia.

CANOES BY AIRPLANE

So many gold seekers are going into the remote parts of northern Ontario that one of the airways companies is to provide airplanes that will

Roberta Risks It

© MARGARET CAMERON LEWIS

BEGIN THE STORY HERE

P. G. (Piggy) Brazenose is an amiable young man with a diverting habit of getting into strange escapades—to the discomfort of his Big Business dad. By sheer chance he is placed in a position to be of aid to a spirited young lady, Roberta Scott. Her dad is holding "captive" her younger sister because of a love affair. He threatens to spoil her whole life in his misplaced zeal to "save" her from the lover he disapproves.

Piggy and Roberta elude a detective who is following her—a precaution of her father's—and head for the Scott country home where the sister is held. They use Piggy's car. For safety's sake, Roberta is disguised in widow's weeds. On the way, it develops that her father and Piggy's are business rivals. Undismayed they hurry on to the New Hampshire country place. En route, at a small town, Piggy is "discovered" by a college pal, but manages to shake him. Back on the road, they make a halt and dye his hair black to save him from further recognition. Also he dons a chauffeur's costume. Arrived at last at the scene of action, which is carefully guarded, Roberta and Piggy investigate. Without warning Roberta's father speeds into the situation; obviously the attempted "rescue" has been reported to him. He, fortunately, does not recognize them. Here the story pauses while the events leading up to the adventure are cleared. It is shown why Roberta's fiance, Nixon, was forced to ask Piggy to help her in his stead. Her father owns considerable stock in Nixon's struggling business and threatens to ruin him if he attempts to help Roberta in her crusade in her sister's behalf.

And then several things happen—Read on!

The following Monday morning while Piggy reflected upon his father's unjust strictures regarding his proclivity for getting into headlines, Nixon, still at the house of friends in New Jersey, where he had spent the week-end, was called on long distance by an excited secretary in his Cleveland office, who told him that a meeting of the directors of his company had been called for eleven o'clock on Tuesday, to consider the sale to a competing concern of certain important patents. Only his presence at the meeting would prevent the deal's going through, as she had learned that a majority of the available directors favored it.

Nixon instantly recognized Scott's hand in this. Fully informed concerning the business by the men nominally holding his stock, unquestionably Roberta's father knew that without these patents several contemplated improvements in the engine would be impossible. There was nothing for it but to call the bluff, hasten back to Cleveland and block the maneuver by his vote and influence. Not only his own interests, but those of every stockholder in the company, were involved. He had scant time to make the Limited, the last train by which he could hope to reach Cleveland in time for the meeting, but he must get word to Roberta.

He had at best, only a mild sympathy with her determination to free Celia from her father's domineering rule, but had consented to help her when she made this the condition upon which she would marry him. Now she must leave her sister to her fate; the price of rescue was too high. Roberta would understand this herself when he explained it. Anyway, Celia would be of age within a few months and qualified to choose her own path. The psychological disaster that might overtake her meanwhile did not impress him; he thought Roberta exaggerated its importance. The business situation was another pair of sleeves. Valuable property was threatened.

Swearing under his breath, he threw his things into a bag and made for the ferry—to choose Percival Galahad Brazenose as his messenger. An hour later Scott issued what was in effect an ultimatum to the Brazenose Company.

For years the looms manufactured by the latter had been recognized by men in the textile trade as the best of their kind, and now, after the expenditure of much effort and money, Brazenose was promised to revolutionize the weaving industry.

Inventors in his employ had labored long to perfect it, but the automatic threading device upon which he had insisted baffled them. His ostensible reason for demanding this contrivance had been the great saving of time and labor it would effect; but he had another, deeper one. Attributing the prevalence of tuberculosis among weavers to the lint, dyestuffs, sizing material and what not necessarily inhaled while threading their shuttles, he had determined to prevent this waste of life by finding some mechanical method of doing the work.

At that time a Boston inventor named Killigrew was also working on an unperfected automatic loom, and when Brazenose learned that this man had succeeded at the point where his own experts had failed he used every legitimate means at his command to obtain possession of the Killigrew device. But Killigrew, dreaming roseate dreams of financial backing, fame and fortune when his machine should be completed, planned to enter the manufacturing field himself, and refused either to sell his patents or to accept a royalty for their use. At last, baffled and discouraged, Brazenose, perforce, accepted this decision.

Whereupon Scott, whose many lines of activity included the manufacture and exploitation of a great number of specialties, and who was always alert to acquire a share in any profitable project, appeared upon the horizon with an extraordinary, automatically threading shuttle. Informed of Brazenose's search and forseeing an expansion of the weaving industry, especially in the South, he had bought the patent from a stray inventor, shrewdly certain that it could be adapted to the new loom. In return for it he demanded a considerable block of stock in the Brazenose Company, 98 per cent of which was owned by its president.

Parleys ensued. Brazenose would not give up the stock and Scott refused to sell his patent or even to allow Brazenose to make the shuttle, except upon the terms he dictated. In the end they compromised, agreeing that Scott should make the shuttle himself and also receive a large royalty payable by either party upon twelve months' notice. This Scott regarded as an entering wedge.

Presently, however, the unqualified refusal to grant him an interest in the Brazenose Company began to impress him as an affront, calling for the counter-check quarrelsome. This he interpreted in action by quietly putting inventors to work upon another automatic loom. Their progress was slow, and when he had watched during three or four succeeding years the rapid growth of the weaving industry and the tremendous labor-saving value of the Brazenose machine, his autocratic nature asserted itself and he itched for dominance. Nothing less than full control of the new wonder-worker and the emoluments thereunto appertaining would satisfy him. He employed another expert to assist those already striving toward the rival invention, with certain small results and a large crop of confidently optimistic promises.

These in hand, he proceeded on that eventful Monday morning to make his next move. He would buy the Brazenose plant, lock, stock and barrel, for a sum in six figures, or he would cancel the contract, build his own factory and manufacture a new loom using his own shuttle.

Brazenose was wroth. He would as soon have sold his son into captivity as to consider transferring his altar to the service of alien hands. Even the thought was a kind of desecration. And consternation fed his anger, for without the Scott shuttle not only would he be unable to maintain the standard he had set, but his loom would lack the one device most precious to his secret soul, the labor-saving, time-saving, life-saving automatic threader. As the day wore on, while Piggy was buying widow's weeds and driving Roberta toward the goal of their high emprise, his father wrestled with great wrestlings, until the hollow of his mind was out of joint, trying to prevail over his problem.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

Piggy's dad found no solution, but by the time the adventurers had reached Worcester, Brazenose, sleepless, had soothed himself with the reflection that Scott was a notorious bluffer. Unquestionably he intended to control the Brazenose Automatic Loom himself, if possible; perhaps, in the event of failure, he really meant to manufacture a similar machine. But the cost of perfecting one and building a factory would be high and the time required long, and possibly meanwhile he might be conciliated. Resolving to resume his search for another threading device and at the same time to walk warily, permitting no crinkled roseleaf to further endanger his relations with Scott, toward daylight Piggy's father slept.

Not so Roberta's sire. He had heard from the detective. Late in the afternoon the little dark man in the blue suit had called him by telephone from the Pennsylvania Station, reporting that his quarry had vanished. Scott said things shattering the rules of the telephone company, and the detective submitted a full verbal report of his discoveries.

The lady had been met by a young man of about twenty-five, he thought, with thick, wavy light-brown hair and gray eyes. No, he hadn't been able to learn who he was. They had gone to Sherry's, back to the Grand Central Station to order her trunks sent to the Congressional Limited, and then to the Waldorf. He repeated the conversation he had overheard there about Roberta's mythical client, Mrs. Miles, and the probable Saturday sailing. He had followed her across the river, some time after the young man had left her, had seen her buy a ticket for Washington, and had not lost sight of her until she entered the Ladies' Room at the station. To the best of his knowledge she had never come out.

Scott said more unprintable things, even while his eyes narrowed thoughtfully. It was possible that Roberta had come to take a client back with her—Nixon's expressed intention of marrying her might have been hope translated into conviction—but in that case why had she landed at Quebec? Yet why should she have bought a ticket for Washington unless she intended going there? Questioned, the detective said he was positive that neither the lady nor the young man had noticed that they were followed. They had taken no notice of him, and they would if they had been suspicious. Scott told him to telephone a Washington agency to send a man to meet the Congressional Limited and to report to him by telephone whether or not the lady was on the train. He would wait at his office for this information.

He hung up the receiver and thought for a moment. It looked all right. But Roberta was clever. And if she intended to try any funny business at Birchwood, he wanted to be there himself. Calling up his chauffeur, he instructed the man to be ready with the car and a packed bag at ten o'clock; they might have to drive all night. Then he rang for his secretary and informed her that they would work after dinner.

About nine o'clock Washington reported that there had been no passenger answering the lady's description on the Congressional Limited; and at midnight, having set his affairs in order for a few days and given his heavy-eyed secretary innumerable detailed directions, Scott set out for New Hampshire, via Greenfield and Winchester, a more direct though rougher route than that chosen by his daughter.

Thus it was that he chanced to meet between Keene and his country place a certain smart touring car, and turned to eye sharply the black-haired young chauffeur suspecting their identity, but inquisitive on general principles about any strangers following that road. And thus it was, too, that Piggy was led to remark:

"Ho-lee smoke! We've got to hump ourselves."

"How could he have traced us?" Roberta asked.

"Give it up. I don't believe he did. But he knows you're in this country and his sleuth lost you. Maybe that's why he hit the pike for the battlefield. It would be like him."

"Yes—it would. But suppose he takes Celia away before we can get hold of her?"

"We mustn't let him."

"How can we prevent it?"

"Dunno. Depends on how he does it. But I haven't come up here to be licked at this game. Nary bit. There's too much at stake," quoth Pericval Galahad, little wotting that he played against the future of his own house.

"What are we going to do?" Roberta asked. "If we go on to Keene, he may take her away before we can even get back."

Piggy nodded thoughtfully.

"Perhaps I'd better go straight to the house and have it out with him now."

"Not on your life! Bearding the lion and defying Jove may be all very well in poetry but you don't want to try any of that stuff on G. A."

"I did once."

"You were of age. She isn't. Legally he's the whole thing and we're nowhere, and if he ever catches us at this our name's Dennis. It's a case for strategy, Bob. Finesse and strategy." He stopped the car and looked back. "Anybody live on that high hill over there?"

"No. Not when I was here, anyway."

"Is your house in sight from the top of it?"

"Yes. Why?"

"We've got to see what's going on. Can you drive a car?"

"No."

"Then you'll have to be lookout. I'll leave you as near the bottom of the hill as we can get and hustle back to the house for my field glass. Lucky I brought it. You hike for the hilltop and I'll find you. I'll be back p. d. q."

"But—Peter! It's all thick woods and brush. I'll tear my veil and—"

"Rats! Buy a new one. We've got to know what's doing."

"Well, suppose he does take her away? What can I do about it?"

"Beat it for the foot of the hill and tell me which way they went when I get back. We'll trail 'em. I don't believe he'll leave right away—he must have driven all night—but we've got to be sure."

(To be Continued)

Grand Rapids Youth Kills Big Wild Goose

It isn't every mature wild fowl hunter who has a wild goose to his credit; but Howard Hawkins, 13-year-old son of C. E. Hawkins of Grand Rapids, has put himself in the preferred classification. With his father Howard was at Angell lake, north of Grand Rapids, when he saw what he assumed to be a large duck on the water. The goose measured 54 inches from wing tip to wing tip.

U. W. No. 764—12-13—1926.

Cuticura Soap
Pure and Wholesome
Keeps The Skin Clear
Soap, Ointment, Talcum sold everywhere.

MARKS FURNITURE HOUSE
"Used But Not Abused Furniture"
125 SOUTH DIVISION
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
Some Antiques

When Moving to Grand Rapids Call on Us for Your Furniture.

IT'S A FACT

that notwithstanding the Superior quality of

RED ARROW

bread flour, its price is almost the same as ordinary flour. And it makes wonderful bread

WATSON-HIGGINS MILLING CO.
Grand Rapids, Michigan

A Job and Schooling in One!

We see you get position paying you $30 to $50 per week while attending night school of Automotive and Electrical Engineering. A very unusual opportunity. See or write

W. L. GEORGE
250 Pearl St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Pre-Announcement

Michigan Memorial Park

Wayne County, Detroit, Michigan

The outstanding development of the Century, dedicated to the greatest need of this, the world's fastest growing metropolis.

A new phase of investment with profit possibilities beyond that ever before offered the people of our sovereign State.

The men behind this great project are men who have done things, men of position and money, men who stand out in the history of great achievements as leaders, men who, when they attached their names to the directorate of MICHIGAN MEMORIAL PARK, pledged themselves to make this the most beautiful, efficient and modern burial estate in the Middle West.

Hon. William M. Heston, President; James E. Spencer, Joseph Meadon, Vice Presidnts; Frank C. Sibley, Secretary, and W. R. McDonald, J. W. Sutton, William James Learmonth, Donald Sears, John L. Austin, Buhl Burton, Rupert E. Paris and Charles L. Bockus, Directors.

Detroit has upwards of one and a half million of population.

Detroit has only fourteen last resting places for those who have passed on.

Detroit ranks lowest per population in the United States in this vital necessity.

Detroit burial sections will average $500.00 per section at the present time.

Detroit needs Michigan Memorial Park and its sections and right now in its pre-development stage Michigan Memorial Park offers the outstanding investment of the universe—non taxable—non assessable, cannot be attached for debt—and a quick profit taking investment that is incomparable.

NOTE

Then—We maintain a resale department to sell the sections you buy in Michigan Memorial Park at a Profit.

$190.00

PER SECTION

11 x 21 Feet

Greater in size and lower in price than ever before offerd.

Over a Million Dollars to Be Expended in Improvements and Beautification $500,000.00 permanent upkeep fund.

The first cost is the last investment necessary, no further assessments of any nature.

CLIP AND MAIL COUPON TODAY

WE WANT LIVE REPRESENTATIVES IN EVERY COUNTY OF MICHIGAN

Michigan Memorial Park, Inc.,
Entire Fifteenth Floor,
Washington Boulevard Building,
Detroit, Mich.

Please send me details of the money-making possibilities of Michigan Memorial Park.

Name ....

Address ....

Town ....State

A Page Prepared Expressly For The Rural Home Makers

Farming—Horticulture—Fruit Growing—Stock Raising

The Home Garden
What is Home without a Garden?

Double Tulips Again Popular

The double peony-flowered early tulips which fell into disfavor for a time are once more recognized as a valuable garden material in spring and especially desirable as they hold their bloom so much longer than the single earlies that in conjunction with them they extend the tulip season continuously from April till toward the end of June. They bridge the gap that usually comes between the single earlies and the late tulips. The flowers are larger than the single earlies and as they open flat give the impression of a peony.

The double tulips like a richer soil than the singles as they need more plant food to perfect their huge blooms, but manure is sure death to tulip bulbs, so the beds need to be prepared some months in advance if manure is to be used. Bone meal is the only safe fertilizer for bulbs and after they are planted a dressing of wood ashes is also excellent, as it furnishes potash which the bulbs need as well as providing lime for the soil. Tulips grow best in a sweet soil.

There are a few late double tulips but they are rarely offered and efforts are being made to get them into commerce again. The two most common ones are Blue Celeste and Yellow Rose. The latter is the latest blooming of all tulips and deliciously scented. Bleu Celeste isn't blue as its name might suggest, but a handsome shade of pale purple and it is a handsome subject to plant in small groups in the shrubbery or among the perennials.

The most popular of the double tulips for many years has been the old double white Schoonoord or White Murillo. It is one of the tallest of the class and is fine for cutting as it usually furnishes at least ten-inch stems. Double tulips provide the most gorgeous early spring beds that we can plant. They are finest in beds of a single variety as they are even less effective than the singles when in mixed plantings. In a mass of a single color they make a solid sheet of bloom that hides the leaves.

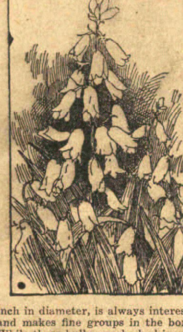
Little Bulbs to Start the Spring Season

The little flowers that spread their petals while the snow is still lurking in the corners to announce the glad tidings that spring is on the way are the most welcome visitors in the garden and the most enthusiastically received. We may still buy them cheaply and in quantity as the federal horticultural board still permits their importation, but we are warned that they may be shut off at any time. Now is the time to get a supply as they will increase rapidly in happy situations and be permanent investments.

First on the calendar is the little snowdrop with its pendant snowy bells with a green cup which last year bloomed in February during thaw in some of the northern states. It requires a lot of these little bulbs to make a show, but even a dozen in a sheltered corner are delicate beauties and as much appreciated in their season as a peony in June.

Following them closely are the brilliant bubbles of the crocuses to swell up through the sod in the lawn or in patches in the border. With them come the brilliant blue of the scilla sibericas, the starry Glory of the Snow and the grape hyacinths. Even a small garden will accommodate hundreds of these little bulbs which will make the garden gay with color before the perennials are fairly out of the ground. The brilliant yellow winter aconites spangle the sunny slopes at the same season.

The one plant of large dimensions to flower with the early bulbs is the crown imperial, sending up a stout two-foot stem crowned with a whorl of green leaves from beneath which hang a circle of bells two inches wide in orange and red. This is always a distinctly decorative subject for the spring border. A near relative, the guinea hen flower, fritillaria meleagris, with curious checkered bells an inch in diameter, is always interesting and makes fine groups in the border. While these bulbs can be had in quantity and cheaply it is a wise plan to stock up. Their requirements are slight and they have ripened their foliage and disappeared before the other plants of the garden need the space.



OUR POULTRY DEPARTMENT

SHAPE AND WEIGHT OF EGGS IN RELATION TO SEX

Inquiries are frequently made as to whether there is any correlation between the length or weight of eggs and the sex of chicks which are hatched from them.

An investigation on this subject, which was conducted by the poultry section of the Bureau of Animal Industry, shows that there is no correlation between these factors. The bureau ran a test during the normal laying season with Plymouth Rocks and Rhode Island Reds. A total of 990 eggs were used in the experiment. Of these, 512 produced males and 478, females. The average length of the eggs producing males was 55.31 millimeters and the length of eggs producing females was 55.42 millimeters, showing that there was no significant difference in size.

A total of 664 eggs were weighed daily as laid, the weight being recorded to the hundredth of a gram. The eggs producing males weighed 58.64 grams, while those producing females weighed 58.53 grams.

As a result of this study, the following observations were made, applying to eggs producing during the normal laying season: First, there is no correlation between the absolute length of the egg and the sex of the chick hatched from it; second, there is no correlation between the relative length or shape of the egg and the sex of the chick hatched from it; third, there is no correlation between the weight of the egg and the sex of the chick hatched from it.

NEED MORE MINERAL TESTS

There has not been as many experiments conducted with the feeding of minerals to chickens as in the case of the larger animals, particularly pigs, so that experimental feeding data on mineral mixtures for poultry are somewhat scarce. The results that have been obtained in tests with other animals and in the feeding of simple minerals to poultry indicate that this will be a profitable field for additional experimental work.

For a long time it has been common practice to keep oyster shell and grit before the chickens at all times. Beneficial results have been obtained from adding bone meal to the mash feed. Bone meal contains calcium and phosphorus. This has proved particularly beneficial to growing chicks. Practically all growing rations contain from 5 to 10 per cent of this substance in the mash. Good results have come from adding at least 5 per cent to the laying mash. One per cent of common salt is also added to the mash. These are the principal minerals that are used at the present time.

CAPON INTEREST INCREASING

Increased interest in capons has been shown during recent months. Undoubtedly this is due to poultry raisers studying methods of making their business pay the best possible returns.

Making capons of the young roosters is not a get-rich-quick scheme but it is a good method of marketing the surplus cockerels. This is especially true of the later cockerels that cannot be sold early in the season at a good broiler price.

The operation of making capons is remarkably simple. It consists of removing the two male glands. Removing these glands causes the cockerels to grow larger than they would otherwise and their flesh is softer. This makes them very attractive for people who want large birds for special dinners. On account of their size and quality, they sell at a better price per pound than ordinary roasters. The best market for capons usually comes after the Christmas holidays. Until this time the needs of the market will be largely supplied by turkeys, ducks and geese. When capons are raised it should be in sufficient numbers so that they can be shipped, as there is seldom a local demand for them at the special price which they deserve.

Beef Quality Tested In M. S. C. Feed Lots

East Lansing—Is there a sound reason for the fact that "heifer beef" brings a lower price than steers when the farmer consigns a shipment to market?

An answer to this question is being sought in a special beef production experiment being carried out in the feed lots at the Michigan State College, the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the college co-operating in the tests.

The almost universal custom of a lower price scale for heifers on the beef market has come under fire, and the specialists at M. S. C. are out to prove the right or wrong of the practice. Complete scientific data will be kept all through the experiment, ending in a careful chemical analysis of the meat after the animals are finally slaughtered.

Thirty head of calves which are on feed were separated into lots according to sex, and then split into sections for various rations used in the test. The analysis when the beef is dressed out will also show the difference between the three rations used. Cattle men are said to be especially anxious to determine whether or not ensilage effects the quality of the mat.

The calves, grade Shorthorn and Angus, were purchased on the Chicago market, according to Prof. G. A. Branaman of the M. S. C. animal husbandry department, who is conducting the experiment.

Michigan Hens Win By Stretch Sprint

East Lansing—High production in the closing weeks of the Michigan State College egg laying contest won the contest cup for a pen of Michigan White Leghorns, owned by J. Pater & Sons, Hudsonville.

Birds owned by Hanson's White Leghorn Farm, Corvallis, Oregon, led the production race for forty-nine weeks, but faltered in the home stretch and finished third. The pen of White Leghorns owned by George S. Sutton, Aurora, Ind., came up from behind to secure second place.

The previous record for production of individual hens was broken by hen No. 4 in Hanson's pen. This bird laid 309 eggs in 358 days. The best previous record was 308 eggs in 365 days. White Leghorns won the first nine places in individual production and tied for tenth with a Barred Rock owned by F. E. Fogle of Okemos. To tie for tenth in this contest a bird had to lay 293 eggs in 358 days.

Records for average production for each breed shown an increase over that of any previous year. The increase made this year over the 1923 production are 23 eggs for Barred Rocks, 41 eggs for Rhode Island Reds, 10 eggs for Anconas and 32 eggs for White Leghorns. This shows the value of egg laying contests for the stimulation of interest in the breeding of high producing strains, according to poultry men at Michigan State College.

The 1927 contest is starting with 100 pens of fine birds. Most of the states of the Union have birds entered in an attempt to set still higher records.

The jungle fowl ancestor of the present day hen probably would like to issue a statement condemning present day methods and lauding the old days when 20 eggs was a year's work.

Lost Section Corners Are Not Easily Located

Few land owners realize the work involved for surveyors in subdividing sections or in locating lost section corners.

It seems to be the general idea that a surveyor only has to find one land corner and measure off a quarter or half mile distance, turn a right angle and again measure off the desired distance to get the corners for a certain piece of land. Such a survey does not follow the set laws covering subdivision, and such survey cannot hold in court. To make the survey according to law requires more time, and therefore more expense, than the landowner feels that he should pay.

The land owner should consider other than the minimum cost of a survey. It would be better for him to pay for an accurate survey that will hold for all time, rather than several haphazard surveys that mean nothing.

Where a section corner is lost it cannot be re-located by simply chaining a mile from one corner and marking this as the official corner. The law requires definitely that this corner must be located by running from the nearest existing corner in all four directions, which will probably give four separate points for the corner. This error should then be pro-rated, and the corner placed to give each line its proportion of the error.

Unless this method is used the corner cannot be considered as official and the survey means nothing.

Having Plenty of Fruit Is Important

Many farmers are so intent upon the care of the general field crops that they fail to appreciate or see the importance of the orchard or garden. Their advantages are many and every farmer, large and small, should have a good, thrifty orchard and a well planned garden. Especially the orchard, there are many that are not worthy of the name. Every one will admit that a good orchard is desirable and the farmer, after offering excuses for being without one, will dismiss the subject by saying that next year, or some time in the future, he intends to make a beginning, but when the time comes he is not ready. The location has not been selected or ground prepared, even the varieties of trees have not been considered, other work is very pressing and so it is put off for another year. The family must depend upon buying fruit, often taking up with that which is stale or of the very poorest quality, and generally not having half enough because they could not afford to buy the amount wanted, and which could have been raised at home at a small cost in money and labor.

Now is a good time to choose a piece of ground for the purpose and start preparing it for next spring planting. If the orchard and small fruits are both to be in one enclosure, select a good, loamy soil, high and well drained, and if not already fertile enough to produce good farm crops, apply a good dressing of barnyard manure and turn it under at a good depth this fall, leaving the surface unharrowed, then harrow, or better disk in the spring before setting trees or plants. The next in order after the location is found and preparations made, comes the kinds of fruit to be grown and the place to buy the trees. Most kinds of fruit, both large and small are just as well if not better, set in the fall as in the spring, if the ground is ready and the climate not too severe. The small plants, such as currants, gooseberries, blackberries and red raspberries should be given some winter protection if set in the fall.

Cover Berry Brambles Before Freezing Weather

Small fruit growers should cover all their brambles, including the red, black and purple raspberries, blackberries, dewberries and loganberries, as soon as possible, in order to avoid any chance of injury from early hard freezes. Brambles growing in especially protected places may not need covering, but this is not often the case.

Before covering, it is advisable to remove all old canes that bore fruit this year, where they were not removed at the end of the bearing season. Remove all inferior and weakened canes, leaving eight to fifteen canes per hill, and cut them back to three or four feet long. Cutting back may be delayed until after the canes are uncovered in the spring.

Cover the canes on days when there is no freezing temperature, as they break easily if partially frozen. Bend the canes over and weight the tops down with some soil and then shovel enough dirt over them to completely cover them to a depth of three or four inches. They must be covered completely. If the canes tend to break on bending, remove a shovelful of dirt from the side of the canes toward which they are bent. Covering is facilitated by plowing two furrows on each side of the row before shoveling the earth on to the canes. This allows the formation of a well-rounded ridge with wide bases to prevent the earth falling off the ridge. Strawy manure can be used when it can be secured in sufficient quantities for complete covering.

One should be careful in bending blackberry canes, since they tend to break easily. Bend them at an angle of 45 degrees with the rows to facilitate covering, to give the canes more room, and to avoid the tendency for the rows to become ridged.

Small fruits must be covered completely and covered before freezing weather if winter injury and consequent crop reduction is to be avoided.

Value of Manure Often Lost Through Careless Handling

Fully fifty per cent of the value of farm manure may be lost through careless handling.

One way of handling farm manure is to apply it to the land as it is produced. This may be accomplished to advantage by pasturing off crops, provided animals are not allowed to run on the fields when the soil is wet. When the manure is handled this way, the losses are perhaps not as great as through improper storage. There is, however, a serious disadvantage to the method in that one cannot always apply the manure where it should go, and, in some cases, it may be necessary to store it at least a part of the year.

The liquid portion of manure contains a large percentage of the total nitrogen and potassium. When this is not saved, much of the value of the manure is lost. Therefore, when cattle are fed in the feed lot and the manure is stored in the open, the manure pile should be on level ground to prevent the liquid from easily draining away. If the manure is stored in a loose pile, rapid fermentation dries it out and much of the organic matter is lost. Such losses, however, may be reduced by keeping the manure firm and moist.

Piling the manure in the field, expecting to scatter it quite awhile later, is bad practice and should not be followed. The loose open nature of the pile encourages fermentation which increases the loss of organic matter and nitrogen.

A CHANCE TO SAVE LIFE

Fires occur in the United States on an average of one every three minutes. More than half of the 15,000 annual human toll of fire is taken in the home. Why take chances with fire? Be careful!

Michigan at the Chicago Stock Show

In recognition of its educational value to the stockmen and farmers along their lines, all railroads in upper Michigan granted an open round-trip rate of a fare and one-third to the International Livestock exposition at Chicago, November 25 to December 1, inclusive, and will have a return limit of December 10. All railroads in lower Michigan will put in effect a rate of a fare and one-half, with a similar period of sale and a return limit of December 6. This offers an excellent opportunity to enjoy to the world's greatest agricultural show and a trip to the metropolis with all its attractions at special reduced rates.

Early entries in the livestock classes by Michigan exhibitors include: Gotfredson Land Co., Ypsilanti, 7 Shorthorns; F. E. Shepperd & Son, Charlotte, 1 steer; Rosewood Farm, Howell, 8 Shorthorns; Woodcote Stock Farm, Ionia, 15 Angus; Bursley Bros., Charlotte, 8 Oxfords; C. H. Prescott & Sons, Tawas City, 8 Shorthorns; W. S. Wood & Sons, Rives Junction, 10 Milking Shorthorns; L. C. Kelly & Son, Marshall, 12 Polled Shorthorns and 24 sheep; H. D. Crandell, Cass City, 54 sheep; Owosso Sugar Co., Alicia, 18 Belgians and 4 drafters; Michigan State College, East Lansing, 11 steers, 19 hogs, 45 sheep and 8 Percherons and 5 Belgians; Wm. Scripps, Orion, 1 car Shropshire lambs, 3 sheep and 19 Angus; C. A. Gross, Hartford, 23 hogs; Edwin A. Knapp, Manchester, 1 Shorthorn; Howard Hereford Farms, Ionia, 2 Herefords; Herbert M. Vincent, New Holland, 10 Spotted Poland Chinas and 1 Poland China, and Corey Farms, New Haven, 18 Berkshires.

Michigan will be represented in the Non-Collegiate Livestock Judging contest at the International Livestock Exposition, Nov. 26, by its state champion team from Washtenaw county, composed of Raymond Girbach, Saline; Mac Olds, Ypsilanti; Clifford Boyer, Salem, and Rodney Lincoln, Saline. This team from the Washtenaw County Livestock club won first in the junior judging contest at the recent Michigan State Fair. It will compete at Chicago against similar state champion teams from all parts of the country to decide the national title. The three highest ranking individuals will receive agricultural college scholarships of $500, $300 and $200, offered by the Chicago Association of Commerce. Michigan has entered a team in the national contest every year since it was established in 1919.

Calves Need Good Feed During Winter Months

Many dairy calves are neglected during the winter month because the owners feel that feed is too expensive and that it does not pay to give the calves proper care. When these same men try to buy heifers or young cows, however, they find that good ones are very expensive.

Calves should have skim milk at least until they are six months old. They will come through the winter in fine shape when this is available along with a limited amount of grain and good alfalfa hay. Such calves should gain around one pound per day or slightly more. A fine heifer will result when this gain is not lost by improper feeding later in the life of the calf.

Some of the best grains to use along with skim milk in calf feeding are cracked corn, ground oats, ground barley and bran. These can be used alone or in combination and supply the needed fat that has been taken out of the skim milk. Corn is especially good as a feed to supply fat.

Pincking the Crate

A given crop of apples can be harvested with from one-third to one-half less pickers if the harvesting is done by the bushel rather than by the day. Considering the abnormally large crop in Virginia this year it is probable that there will not be sufficient labor to harvest it unless the growers generally adopt the piece method.

The following methods have been used with success in picking by the bushel:

The orchard must be equipped with an ample supply of orchard crates or boxes that hold a bushel. Each picker is provided with a picking sack and ladder. The picking gang is put in charge of a foreman, who assigns an equal number of pickers to each row of trees. Each picker is assigned to a tree which he picks entirely himself. When he finishes the tree assigned he takes the first vacant tree in the same row. Pickers are not permitted to work except during the regular hours when the foreman is present.

The rule of one picker to a trees is varied to suit conditions. Members of the same family frequently work together. This is especially true where women help.

On very large trees two pickers may be assigned to a tree. When this is done they place their ladders side by side and work in opposite directions, each picking the tree from bottom to top as they go.

Each picker is assigned a number and given a package of tickets with his number printed on each ticket. These tickets are printed on both sides to facilitate sorting, and are provided in packages of about 150 of each number. Pickers put a ticket in the bottom of an orchard box and fill it with apples. These tickets are collected at the packing house and counted. The picker is given credit and the tickets tied up and returned to him.

PROBLEMS OF CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATIONS

MANAGERS of co-operative associations that market fruits and vegetables have reported to the United States Department of Agriculture that insufficient business is their greatest handicap in achieving success. Six other difficulties are emphasized by these managers, ranging from "too many varieties" and lack of grade standards, to the effect of retailing methods and margins on consumption.

The value of fruits and vegetables marketed by co-operative associations increased approximately 170 per cent between 1915 and 1924, or from $110,000,000 to $300,000,000, says the department. The relative prices for fruits and vegetables during these years indicate an increase in the quantity of products handled by associations of a little more than 80 per cent.

During the ten-year period it has become increasingly difficult to market fruits and vegetables at prices satisfactory to the growers. Increases in prices of other commodities have been greater than for fruits and vegetables, with the result that the position of the growers is relatively less favorable than during the pre-war years.

Two fundamental factors are said to have served to keep fruit and vegetable prices at low levels, as compared with other commodities. They are: (1) production in excess of what the market will absorb at prices profitable to producers, and (2) curtailment of purchasing power of consumers, to a greater or less extent, expressed perhaps by the purchase of greaeter quantities of more staple foods at the expense of fruits and vegetables.

There is a wide variation in the completeness and efficiency of marketing services by fruit and vegetable co-operatives, just as there is in the services of non-co-operative agencies. There is little question of the value of the services rendered by large, well-established associations and exchanges, but many small local associations fail to realize their opportunities to improve marketing conditions.

In part, the general attitude of producers toward their organizations is said to have retarded the development of the co-operative marketing of fruits and vegetables. As long as the associations are judged altogether by the price they are able to obtain for the current crop, their existence, as a class, says the department, will be precarious and the services they can render will be limited.

In some cases, it is stated, the financial stability of the associations is threatened and their reserves depleted through the anxiety of directors to give the members a higher price than that paid by private dealers who handle the same commodity. The members of co-operative associations, naturally, expect their organizations to obtain the full market price for their products and to render marketing services economically, but at the same time a long time view of production and marketing problems shows the necessity of establishing well-financed, efficient agencies, which can handle the crops of succeeding years effectively. This means investment by the members of a part of their returns during the early years of the organization, as well as expenditures by the association to strengthen their marketing services, the value of which cannot be measured immediately in dollars and cents.

A long-time view of co-operation, the department points out, will consider the associations as service agencies of the growers, concerned with stabilized production, the production of suitable varieties, standardization, distribution and the other factors which enter into the production and marketing of fruits and vegetables. The organization and operation of associations on a crop-to-crop basis is a short-sighted policy which handicaps the organizations and nullifies many of the services they might otherwise render.

The seven factors most frequently mentioned by managers of fruit and vegetable organizations that operate to reduce the effectiveness of the associations are listed as follows:

1. The volume of business handled by the association is not sufficient to stabilize the market.
2. Too many varieties are produced, including many varieties difficult to sell or of poor-keeping quality.
3. Poor packing, careless handling, inadequate storage facilities, a lack of grade standards, and other difficulties are encountered incidental to the preparation of the products for market.
4. The association is unable to control the delivery of the product or to specify the time of delivery.
5. Sales service is inefficient. Small markets are not supplied regularly and directly, while the large markets are often oversupplied. Too many shipments are moved unsold or consigned to commission merchants or auctions.
6. Retailing methods and margins restrict the consumption of fruits and vegetables.
7. Car shortages, delays in transit, and other difficulties incident to transportation are encountered.

Unsound or inadequate financing was given as a sole or contributing cause of failure in reports concerning 927 co-operatives, handling various farm products, which went out of business between 1913 and 1923. An analysis is made in Department Bulletin No. 1414-D, entitled, "Management Problems of Co-operative Associations Marketing Fruits and Vegetables," of the financial requirements of associations and the methods employed to meet these requirements are described.

Sad State of Decay.

Customer—"My, what smells so?"

Hebrew Merchant—"Do you smell it, too?"

Customer—"Yes, what is it?"

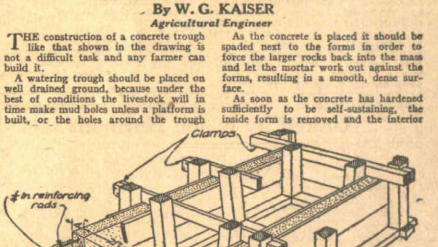
Hebrew Merchant—"Business. It's rotten."

WATER TROUGHS

By W. G. KAISER

Agricultural Engineer

THE construction of a concrete trough like that shown in the drawing is not a difficult task and any farmer can build it.



When you get this tank finished it will last as long as you'll probably ever need it.

A watering trough should be placed on well drained ground, because under the best of conditions the livestock will in time make mud holes unless a platform is built, or the holes around the trough are filled in as soon as they are made. Sometimes it is advisable to put the trough on a small knoll in order that the water will quickly drain away.

The ground under the trough should not only be drained but also leveled and packed.

The outside forms of the trough are made of one inch boards and 2 by 4-inch pieces as shown in the drawing. After these forms have been securely braced, the concrete can be deposited in the bottom to half the depth of the floor. Reinforcement consisting of ¼ inch round rods are then placed on the partly constructed floor. These rods are bent in "U" shape so that the ends will project up into the sides and reinforce the walls. All the rods are bent to the proper shape before any concrete work is started, so that they can be quickly put in and the remainder of the concrete floor placed without delay or making any joints.

The inside form which has been made previous to mixing any of the concrete is then quickly lowered in proper place and fastened to the outside forms with clamps as shown in the drawing. Speed is necessary in order that the walls can quickly be placed so there will be a strong bond between walls and floors.

In order to insure water-tightness a 1:2:3 mixture of concrete is recommended. This means 1 sack of cement to 2 cubic feet of sand and 3 cubic feet of pebbles or crushed rock. The aggregates should be free from sticks, soil or foreign material. Only enough clean water should be used in mixing to make concrete of a jelly-like consistency.

As the concrete is placed it should be spaded next to the forms in order to force the larger rocks back into the mass and let the mortar work out against the forms, resulting in a smooth, dense surface.

As soon as the concrete has hardened sufficiently to be self-sustaining, the inside form is removed and the interior of the trough given a cement wash made by mixing cement and water until it is about as thick as cream. This wash can be put on with an ordinary brush or broom. The wash will make a smooth surface and insure water-tightness.

The new trough should be kept moist by sprinkling for at least 10 days before using.

The inside of the trough is given a slope outward toward the top. This is important because if water freezes in the tank, the pressure will lift the ice and thereby prevent the formation of cracks in the walls.

For a trough of the size shown in the drawing, the following materials will be needed:

MATERIALS REQUIRED FOR TANK

Outside dimensions		3 ft. 2 in. by 8 ft.
Walls		2 ft. 8 in. high
Floors		6 in. thick
Concrete Mixture		1:2:3
Volume of Concrete		1¼ cu. yd.
Materials required:
Portland cement	9	sacks
Sand	¾	cu. yd.
Pebbles or broken stone	1	cu. yd.
¼-in. round steel rods	215	ft. (36½ lb.)

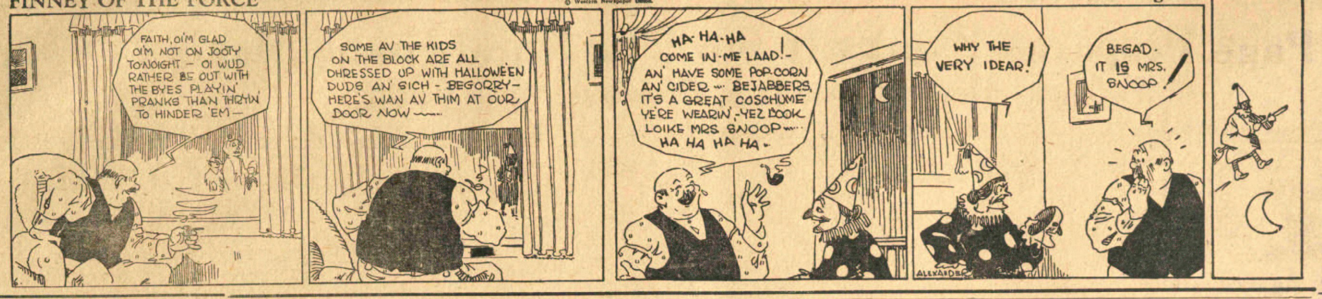
For each additional foot of length add to the foregoing quantities:

Portland cement	1 sack
Sand	2 cu. ft.
Pebbles or broken stone	3 cu. ft.
¼-in. round steel rods	22 ft. (3¾ lb.)

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

By F. O. Alexander
© Western Newspaper Union

A Perfect Disguise



FAITH, OI'M GLAD OI'M NOT ON JOOTY TONOIGHT – OI WUD RATHER BE OUT WITH THE BYES PLAYIN' PRANKS THAN THRYIN' TO HINDER 'EM –
SOME AV THE KIDS ON THE BLOCK ARE ALL DHRESSED UP WITH HALLOWE'EN DUDS AN' SICH – BEGORRY – HERE'S WAN AV THIM AT OUR DOOR NOW ——
HA-HA-HA COME IN-ME LAAD! – AN' HAVE SOME POP-CORN AN' CIDER — BEJABBERS, IT'S A GREAT COSCHUME YE'RE WEARIN' – YEZ LOOK LOIKE MRS. SNOOP —— HA HA HA HA –
WHY THE VERY IDEAR!
BEGAD – IT IS MRS. SNOOP!
ALEXANDER

Patronize Our Advertisers

They are all boosters and deserve your business.

Coleridge's Hat His Bank

Coleridge, the writer, had a peculiar way of keeping his money concealed in his hat and kept his manuscripts in the bathtub. For many years he had little enough money and didn't need much room for it, whereas his manuscripts during that time required a spacious container.

Faith and Firm Purpose Create Women's Club Home

A new era has dawned for the woman who visits Los Angeles. Once she had to go to a hotel. Now she can go to her hotel. For by skill, energy and perseverance a group of Los Angeles women alone have put up a new million and a quarter dollar structure devoted to women and to their families—including men.

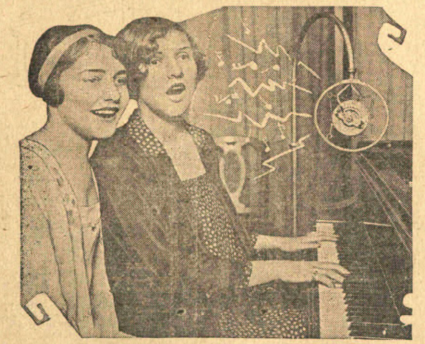
It is more like a giant hospitable club than a hotel. The women have a plunge and a gymnasium at their disposal. If they wish to play golf the hotel will give them courtesy cards to their choice among the many famous Los Angeles all grass golf courses.

More than a score of years ago some women in Los Angeles were given a modest piece of land on Figueroa street. It was then so far out in the country that orange orchards were very close to it. It was then that women with high faith and firm purpose resolved to convert that land into a treasure. They held to it. They guarded it against unwise building. They woke up almost literally one morning to find that their dream of a hotel was within reach. The growth of the city had surrounded the land with large buildings. Its value leaped skyward. It went so far skyward that the value of the land plus the value of the intended building permitted the women to sell bonds in the sum of three-quarters of a million dollars. With this and other money accumulated they put up a twelve story class A building and adorned it with a delicacy of taste that has made it generally admired.

Mrs. Chester C. Ashley, shown in full face in the picture is the moving spirit of the Hotel. She is chairman of the Building Committee. Mrs. Maude N. Bouldin, shown in profile, is managing director.

The profits of the Figueroa hotel are to be used in the creation of a new building fund. When it is of sufficient size it will be employed in the erection of a new hotel for employed women.

United by Radio Harmony



FROM more than fifty candidates, Juanita Rae and Harriet Lee have been selected as the new harmony team at WLS, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation radio station, Chicago. Miss Lee hails from Indianapolis. Her partner is a product of Adrian, Mich. By virtue of their victory over all vocal competition the girls have become members of the station staff. They are now heard blending their voices on all popular programs. Miss Lee plays the piano accompaniment.

It was accidental, this forming of the Rae-Lee partnership. Miss Lee was playing an occasional piano accompaniment at another Chicago station. One evening Miss Rae appeared on the program. On an orchestra "break," while the station was broadcasting from a ballroom removed from the studio, the girls decided to try a duet. They discovered their voices blended in the most perfect harmony.

When WLS announced an open competition to select an additional entertainment feature, Miss Rae and Miss Lee were among the first entrants. So impressed were the station directors with the girls' work that they were immediately booked for appearances pending the outcome of the competition. While the contest brought forward other highly competent teams, no one succeeded in making off with higher honors and the girls were adjudged winners.

Advocate and MICHIGAN FARMER, both one year $2.15

W. C. T. U. Column

LAURA WALWORTH, EDITOR

Norway's So-Called Prohibition

One of the current misconceptions concerning prohibition has to do with the situation in Norway where the people have just voted out "prohibition" and substituted government control of the liquor traffic. The opponents of American prohibition believe they see in Norway an object lesson for the United States and are vociferously urging the new Scandinavian national policy as a model for our own.

The truth is that Norway never had prohibition. Their law, which the people have just retired, prohibited the sale of liquor with more than twenty one percent alcohol,

To the clear thinker, Norway's experience proves the correctness of the W. C. T. U. statement: "Prohibition is the best method of dealing with the liquor traffic." Not Norwegian prohibition, but the 18th Amendment sort. Constitutional prohibition was not put over on the American People—it was put over by the American People—a majority of whom are heartily in favor of doing away with alcoholic liquor and the train of evils always present wherever there is drink.

Norwegian drinkers, like American drinkers are not to be satisfied with two-seventy beer or twenty one percent "light" wine. What they want is hard liquor. In America the wet contingent does not admit this.

Many Americans know that the present American prosperity is due in large measure to the efficiency and productivity of Americans whs have quit drinking. And the recent elections, resulting in a national congress three-fourths dry, show that the United States will never repeal the 18th Amendment.

Has it ever occurred to you that the wets during the past few years have had an enormous advantage?

Law breaking and arguments against prohibition have constituted news and got widest circulation Because there is never anything spectacular about goodness, even the best stories about the dry movement (proofs of prohibition benefits and informative material that every voter should at least have the opportunity to read) all this has been heavily blue pen ciled when printed at all.

Once wet stories appear in print wet claquers have called the public's attention to this newspaper stuff as concrete evidence of the failure of prohibition.

For the most part, the drys have made little attempt to answer. This, I think, is a mistaken policy. Many people believe what they read and it is only wisdom to point out the many glaring untruths constantly being voiced by the wets.

Take the favorite statement made by many wets "there is more liquor drunk now than before prohibition." That is not so. Irving Fisher, a Yale professor, who has made a scientifically accurate study of the matter reports "that not one-sixth as much liquor is being made or drunk. Before prohibition 250,000 saloons were open and half a million saloon-keepers tried to get a market for their goods, unhindered by the government." Now the only dispensors are bootleggers and they are outlaws, gradually being caught and punished,

Another favorite argument is "that prohibition causes crime." Not at all. It is the revolver, a tool of crime, coupled with the automobile and the failure of the courts to punish crime, that causes crime.

It is perfectly easy to answer wet propaganda. All you have to do is tell the truth about prohibition. That effectively answers every wet argument.

Test Questions For Bible Study

1. Who were the three great Hebrew fathers? 2. Who interpreted Pharaoh's dream? 3. Who was the father of the twelve tribes of Israel? 4. What book and what chapter gives Jacob's dying blessing? 5. How old was Joseph when he died? 6. How long did the children of Israel eat manna? 7. Whose face shone so with the glory of God that he had to veil it before he could talk to the people? 8. Where are the Ten Commandments? 9. Where did God first appear, and to whom? 10. Where was the first place of worship? 11. Who gave the pattern? 12. What and where was the second place of worship? 13. What was the third place of worship called? 14. How many creatures were acceptable for sacrifice in temple worship? 15. What tribe was set apart to minister in and attend to the tabernacle? 16, Where do we find harp and organ first mentioned? 17. How did Aaron die, and who succeeded him? 18. What priest wore goodly bonnets of fine linen?

19. How many Cities of Refuge? 20. When did the feast of weeks begin, and how many were there? 21. What was the test of a prophet, and how did the Lord know him? 23. What was the sin of Achan? 24. When was it that every man did that which was right in his own eyes? 25. Who prayed for a son, and the priest who heard her thought she was intoxicated? 26. What priest fell off his seat backward and broke his neck? 27. What turned the love of Saul for David to hatred? 28. Who was it that said, "I shall go to him, but he will not return to me?" 29. How was Solomon's temple builded? 30. Who was mocked by little children because of his bald head, as he was going up to Bethei? 31. Who saved a man's life by shooting arrows? 32. Who prayed for a longer lease of life and it was granted him? 33. What caused the division of the twelve tribes of Israel? 34. Name the book in the Bible in which the name of God does not occur. 35. Who came heralding the birth of Christ? 36. Where is "church" first mentioned?

37. How many Marys mentioned in the Bible? 38. Who wrote the Gospel of St. Luke? 39. When did Jesus turn water into wine? 40. Who was the first missionary? 41. What caused the separation of King Ahasuerus and his queen, Vashti? 42. How do we know that it was Aaron's rod that budded? 43. Who made the ark of the Lord that was placed in the holy of holies? 45. What woman prophet dwelt in a college in Jerusalem? +9. What was it that was put upon blue lace? 47. How was Elisha called to succeed Elijah? 48. What king burned incense upon the altar of incense and was made leper "unto the day of his death?" 49. Who wrote the book of Acts? 50. What is a Nazarite? 51. Who was Ezra? 52. Where are the ten great proverbs?—Nina G. Tasker, Supt. Evangelistic Dept., Bible in Public School and Bible Study.

No Favored Ones

All the students in the school of experience work their way.—Boston Transcript.

Correct English

MONTHLY MAGAZINE

Authoritive Exponent of English for 24 Years

Edited and founded by

JOSEPHINF TURCK BAKER

Famous World English Authority

Send 10 Cents for Sample Copy

Correct English Publishing Company

Evanston, Illinois

Agents Wanted Everywhere

F. E. Caswell D. V. M.

Veterinarian

Office at Residence, West Main St

Private Phone 45

North Adams, Mich.

Dr. L. R. ULRICH

DENTIST

Private Office in Room over Perkins' Restaurant

Thursdays hours 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.

Plate Work a Specialty

O. G. McFarland M. D.

North Adams, Mich.

OFFICE HOURS: 8:00 to 9:00a. m.
1:00 to 4:00 p. m.
7:00 to 8:00 p. m.

For Would-be Pilots

Just as an artist or a poet "is born not made" so is the airman. Training will not make a flyer; either you are or you are not. Just now only one in four flying cadets qualify, Gen. Patrick, Chief of the Air Service, says.

The whirling bathtub arrangement, officially known—and feared among aspirants for air pilot jobs in the Army as the Ruggles orientator, may prove an invaluable aid in determ ning quickly who can and who cannot fly, in the opinion of Air Secretary F. Trubee Davison, just back from a Texas inspection trip. To date, he says, the machine has made few mistakes in its forecasts.

The new method, devised to test all the muscular, nervous and mental faculties that come into play in handling a bucking, rolling airship in flight, is installed at Brooks Field. "Victims," whether Army elders seeking transfer to the Air Corps or youngsters out of their first commission, are placed in the tub, told to hang on anyhow and that the controls at their hands can correct the motion if used right.

Then the show starts. The operator in charge begins playing jazz tunes on his levers and the tub and its occupant start rolling, twisting looping the loop, tail spinning, wing skidding, and stimulating every other kind of motion known to the most acrobatic airship.

Every reaction of the man in the tub is recorded mechanically or noted by his judges. It is all written down and summarized in an estimate of his probable capacity as a flyer. It is a sealed verdict, however, put away to be opened when a candidate has been thru the regular training mill and the judgment of the flying board has been pronounced upon him. Then the orientator's verdict is examined and it has been found, Mr. Davison said, to have an uncanny accuracy in showing whether the man tested ever learn the flying art.

With another year of experiment the Secretary believes, it will be possible to eliminate without delay many air pilot candidates who now must go thru a long expensive course of examination and testing, only to be rejected in the end.

Motoring Through Snowdrifts

From now until the end of winter, snow is likely to occur at any time—at least, in most sections. A week-end trip, begun in warm weather, may finish in a drifting snowstorm.

Old drivers know how to handle a drift that has formed in the roadway and causes the wheels to spin around and around. New motorists may have had no chance to learn their their lesson, and are thus likely to attempt to force their way through the drift without pressing out their clutch.

The clutch will soon burn out completely if this method is practiced. The only way to force your car through the small tantalizing drift (unless you wish to get out and kick the snow away) is to press out the clutch as you strike the drift. If you do not get through back out in your tracks for ten yards or so, and again charge the drift—pressing out your clutch at the last moment. A few charges of this kind will put you on the home side of the average small drift, with nothing to worry you except the slight delay.

Hotels MADISON and LENOX DETROIT

The twin hotels — where comfort is paramount, and where prices are reasonable always. Close to everything worth while in Detroit

MADISON AVE., near GRAND CIRCUS PARK

JESUIT ORATOR GETS VACATION

Father McClorey Will Visit Holy Land and Study In Rome

DETROIT, Mich., — Several changes in the faculty personnel of the University of Detroit for the coming school year were announced recently by the Rev. Fr. John P. McNichols, S. J., president.

The Rev. Fr. John A. McClorey, S. J., noted Lenten speaker and for the last eight years professor of philosophy, has been granted a sabbatical year which he will spend in travel and study. Father McClorey plans to visit the Holy Land and will engage in scriptural research at the Scriptural College in Rome. He will be succeeded temporarily by the Rev Fr. Frederick Meyer, S. J., formerly of Creighton University.

The Rev. Fr. Aloysius Frumveller, S. J., for the last 12 years professor of mathematics at Marquette University, will head the mathematics department at the U. of D. next year. Others to assume faculty posts are the Rev. Fr. Charles Metzger, S. J., professor of history and Emmanuel Pena, professor of Spanish.

Those leaving the University are: The Messrs. Bernard Hausman, who will go to John Carroll University; Daniel Moynihan, who will go to Holy Cross College, and the Rev. Fr. John Sullivan, S. J., who has been granted a year's leave of absence.

The Rev. Fr. Lionel Carron, S. J., a native of Detroit and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Carron, 1445 Virginia Park, has been appointed principal of the University High School. Three instructors have also been added to the High School staff. They are the Messrs. Ray Dunst, James Maguire and Everett Hogan.

CROWDS STAND BAREHEADED AT FUNERAL OF PRIEST

DETROIT, MICH.—A crowd estimated at more than 10,000 persons attempted to gain entrance to St. Stanislaus' Church during the Requiem High Mass sung at the funeral of the late Rev. Fr. Francis Gzella, noted Polish Priest, who died following a paralytic stroke.

When the church was filled to overflowing, thousands of friends and parishioners of the late clergyman stood bareheaded in the streets until the ceremonies were over. The Mass was celebrated by the Right Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, D.D., Bishop of Detroit.

Father Gzella was one of the city's leading clergymen, especially among Detroiters of Polish descent. He was born 58 years ago in West Prussia and came to this city as a child. He studied at the University of Detroit and was ordained by the late Right Rev. John S. Foley, D.D., Bishop of Detroit.

For more than 10 years Father Gzella was engaged in pastoral work in the Thumb District, where he had many friends and admirers. For the last 26 years he had been in charge of St. Stanislaus' Parish.

SITE OF FIRST DETROIT CHURCH TO BE MARKED

DETROIT, Mich.—A bronze tablet marking the site of the original Ste Anne's Church in this city, erection of which was begun July 24, 1701, the day of Le Chevalier Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac's landing, has been presented to the city by The Catholic Study Club of Detroit.

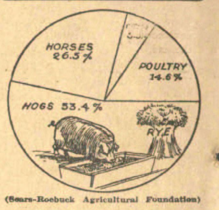
The original church was completed on July 26 and was the first church in Fort Pontchartrain, later called Detroit. Its first pastor, the Rev. Fr. Nicholis Constantine d'la Halle, was killed by Indians, June 6 ,1706. The marker was placed with appropriate ceremonies on the building now standing on the northwest corner of Jefferson avenue and Griswold street.

Among the speakers were Clarence M. Burton, city historian; the Right Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, D. D., Bishop of Detroit; Joseph T. Belanger, French consul; T. A. E. Weadock, vice-president of the Detroit Historical Society; Mrs. Marie B. Ferrey, curator of the Historical Museum at Lansing, and Mayor John W. Smith.

MEET DEATH TOGETHER; CHUMS REST SIDE BY SIDE

DETROIT, Mich.,—The last chapter in a tragedy involving two Detroit families closed recently when funeral services were held in Holy Rosary Church for 9-year-old Willard LaMere. The child, with his chum, Lawrence Flavin, disappeared March 10. Flavin's body was taken from the Detroit River May 10. Willard's was found July 11.

More Rye This Year



(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

American thumbs have always been turned down where rye for table purposes is concerned. Most of our rye crop has been exported to Europe and the bulk of the remainder fed to farm animals, according to a survey by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. This year, however, a crop of 42,000,000 bushels is expected and less than usual will be sent to Europe as their crops will also be fairly large. This fact, coupled with feed-crop failures in many of our rye-growing sections, means that more of our rye crop will be fed to farm animals this year than usual. Hogs, on an average, consume 53.4% of the rye used on the farm, horses 26.5%, poultry 14.6% and cattle 55%.

Harley Voorhees

FUNERAL DIRECTOR
HANOVER MICHIGAN

Calls attended promptly day an night. Having the best of equipment, I can serve and please you.

Any of our friends who wish our servces, can reach u day or night bycalling Moscow Central.

HARLEY VOORHEES
Hanover, Mich.

Always at Your Service for Printing Needs!

Is there something you need in the following list?

Birth Announcements
Wedding Stationery
Envelope Inclosures
Sale Bills
Hand Bills
Price Lists
Admission Tickets
Business Cards
Window Cards
Time Cards
Letter Heads
Note Heads
Bill Heads
Envelopes
Calling Cards
Leaflets
Statements
Milk Tickets
Meal Tickets
Shipping Tags
Announcements
Briefs
Notes
Coupons
Pamphlets
Catalogues
Blotters
Circulars
Invitations
Posters
Folders
Checks
Blanks
Notices
Labels
Legal Blanks
Menu Cards
Placards
Dodgers
Post Cards
Programs
Receipts

Prompt, careful and efficient attention given to every detail

Don't Send Your Order Out of Town Until You See What We Can Do

Hillsdale-Jackson Bus Line

Four Round Trips each Day
Two Round Trips Sunday
NORTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams ....6:45 a. m
" " " .... 1:15 p. m

SOUTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams ....8:15 a. m.
" " " ....4:20 p. m.

SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS
Bus north at ....5:15 p
Bus south (via Jonesville) 11 m

Handling Fur Skins

The big thing in handling fur skins is thoroness and care. There is no knack about it; no trick; no secret. It is work; just plain, careful, painstaking work, like hunting or trapping or fishing. But it is work that pays well. Pelts that have been properly handled are always more valuable than those that have been skinned, fleshed, stretched and cured in a hap-hazard manner. There is a right way to handle fur pelts and a wrong way to handle them; and the difference between these two ways is care or lack of care, which effects the sale value of fur pelts fully thirty percent.

There are four distinct operations in the handling of fur pelts, each of which should receive the utmost care and attention; they are skinning, fleshing, stretching and curing. It is only perfectly handled prime pelts that bring top market prices; imperfectly handled pelts are always graded down, even if they are prime and in other wise good condition.

In skinning fur pelts one should always work with a sharp knife, using it very carefully about the ears, eyes and nose. The skin is pulled from the carcass after the necessary incisions have been made with the knifa, using the thumb and fore finger of each hand to work it loose around the legs, tail and shoulders. Do not use the knife more than is absolutely necessary. A little work with the knife in starting to loosen the skin about the feet and legs and a little more cutting around the base of the tail and about the head are usually sufficient knife work for most skins.

There are two methods of skinning fur game; one method gives the open skin, the other gives the cased skin. In skinning an animal so as to produce an open skin one first makes an incision from one front foot to the other, following down the inside of the front leg, across the chest, and up the inside of the other front leg. The next incision is made lengthwise of the belly from the vent to the chin. The tail is then opened its full length.

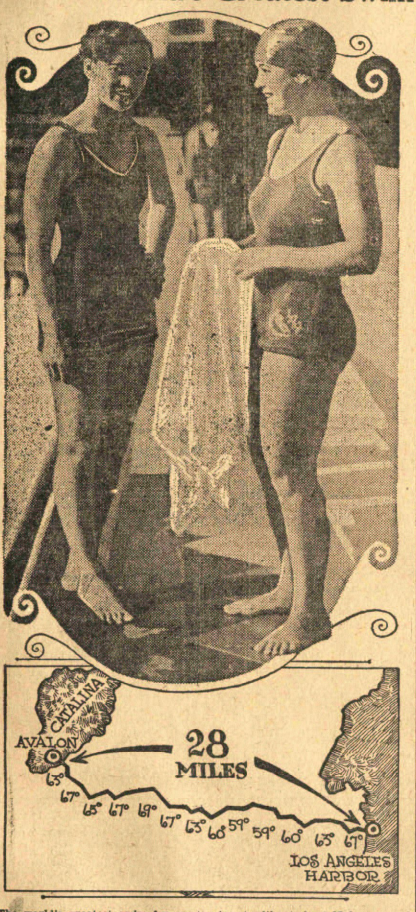
This method is used in skinning raccoons, bears, beavers, wolves, goats and sheep. Such skins should be strecthed on a board or frame with the flesh side out. Mink, skunk, oppossum, coyote, lynx, fox, and muskrat should be skinned so as to produce the cased skin. This is accomplished by making an incision down the inside of the hind legs (well toward the back part of the legs) from the feet to the vent. The skin is then removed by pulling it towards the animal's head, turning the pelt inside out. The skin is stretched with the flesh side out. The tail is split to remove the bone and to facilitate proper curing.

Before stretching, all dirty skins should be washed thoroly and the fur examined carefully for burrs or tangled mats, which if found should be removed by combing. Then, too, all skins must be thoroly fleshed before stretching. This is best accomplished by placing the cased skin loosely oyer a stretching board, or the open skin flesh side up on a smooth board, and, after fastening it there by driving a couple of tacks at the lips, beginning at the head end of the skin and with a sharp knife and the thumb and forefinger of the right hand removing all surplus fat and flesh.

A little practice will enable any one to do this work nicely. The main requisite is to do this work thoroly, to remove every particle of flesh and fat, down to the tough underskin which forms a part of the pelt. If this is not done, the fat is likely to turn rancid during warm weather and damage the pelt. Those who receive top prices for their raw furs remove every shread and particle of fat and flesh from the skin before stretching.

Stretching the skins is a job that requires care and patience. Many dollars may be made by properly stretching the skins; likewise many dollars may be lost by wrong handling.

Relay Maps Route for World's Greatest Swim



The world's greatest swim for one of the greatest prizes ever hung up —$25,000 in cash—is to be staged in Southern California January 15 and thereafter until the swim is accomplished.

The swim is the Catalina channel. It seperates the island of Catalina from the California mainland. The nearest distance is approximately twenty-three miles.

In the English channel the big problem was rough water and tides. In the Catalina channel an entirely new problem comes up. It is currents and change of temperature in the water.

Along the California shore the temperature is, as noted, 67 degrees. This is ideal for swimming. It is a factor that has made the California beaches the most popular in the world. But as one gets out a mile or so from shore the temperature starts downward. There is always a variable of eight degrees and frequently a greater variable. The shore temperature remains steadily at about 67 degrees and the channel temperature dropping to ten or even twelve degrees lower.

That the channel can be crossed by a swimmer has been demonstrated. Recently Fred Cady, coach at the Los Angeles athletic club, who has been a large factor in turning out crack California swimmers, crossed it with a relay of swimmers. The first in the water was Viola Hartman Cady, his wife. After she swam a mile, another swimmer entered. Temperatures were taken as the swimmers stroked across the water. They are shown. The journey with fourteen swimmers in the relay took 23 hours and seventeen minutes, and the zigzag course measured 33 miles. This is indicative of the difficulty of the swim. Trudy Ederle swam the English channel alone in fourteen and one half hours.

But then the English channel swimmers swam for glory. This swim is for $25,000. The effort to cross on January 15 will be enormous. Will it be done?

Noted Music Bowl Self Sustaining

Symphony music is now within reach of the hundreds of thousands and even at the modest fees of twenty-five and fifty cents, the very finest of symphony music in America can pay for itself.

This is revealed by the annual report just made by Raymond Brite, manager of the Hollywood Bowl, America's greatest outdoor music audience chamber. The Bowl seats twenty thousand persons. During the summer just past concerts were given three times weekly. They were listened to by 293,082 persons who paid $110,188.79. This gives a surplus of nearly $1,000 over expense.

The series of concerts will be given again next summer with world famous conductors drawn from all over the world.

ADVOCATE AND McCALL'S MAGAZINE Both $2.25

Pittsford Fire Bug Rounded Up

The occurrence of numerous fires in the vicinity of Pittsford and Hudson during the past two years has aroused considerable excitement and unrest in Hillsdale and Lenawee counties and in-asmuch as no clues to the perpetrator have been secured up to the time of the arrest of Grover Pauter, the affair has puzzled the officials of both counties. Patience Pauter wife of Grover after having been severely beaten up by her brutal spouse, went to Adrian and notified the officers and also leaked out the circumstances of arson of which Pauter is guilty. When he found that the truth was out he confessed practically the whole matter and is now in Lenawee county jail. He claims he started most of these fires which consumed valuable farm and other buildings and stock simply because he wanted excitement.

In every instance he had no reason except for diversion. He would leave his home early in the evening and drive a distance of many miles sometimes and then seeing a large barn he would ignite it by means of candles which he carried in his machine, so arranged as to burn slowly and give him plenty of time to be far away when the fire would break out. At the time of the fires no one ever suspected Pauter and it is probable if he had not aroused the anger of his wife nothing would have been known as to the miscreant. It develops Pauter has been married three times and his wives have been more or less accomplices to the fires so it will be seen the family are a bad lot. Property owners of this and other counties will be very glad to know that the fire bug is in custody as his operations round-about have been a source of much worry to the farmers of the vicinity Insurance business has increased amazingly since the burnings began. The farm dweller is practically helpless in such an emergency as his premises are often far from neighbors and not policed as in cities. It is safe to presume if the fire bug had been caught red handed in his crime at the time of the barn burnings when so many sheep perished he would have been lynched by citizens. Estimated damage is around $400,000, not very well covered by insurance.

River Rouge Minister Goes After 'Em

Rev. W. E. Marvin the new minister of the Methodist church at River Rouge a suburb of Detroit, recently appointed, is vastly different from his predecessor inas much as he does not believe in mixing too generally with the liquor trade and "bootlegging." He expressed his sentiments directly after he assumed his new charge at Rouge in a way that would hardly please Hillsdale county Methodists. He is quoted as seying that it is no job for a minister to be interfering personally with the liquor traffic in which ideas he differs widely from Rev. Hoyt who preceded him. Rev. Hoyt thought it proper to play sleuth and did upon many occasions disguise himself and go out with officials gathering in the "blind piggers" thereby gaining considerably notoriety and possibly many enemies. This work among a population so sprinkled with Catholics and French descendants as River Rouge is known to be, is unique to say the least and Rev. Hoyt found it somewhat exciting. For a Methodist minister to don his rough and ready clothes and gun and go out on a whiskey raid, then come into the pulpit next Lord's Day morning and give it all away is quite unusual but productive of results no doubt. Any suburb of Detroit is wet as sop with its Catholic adherents and great danger is incurred by such a performance. So far as known Rev. Hoyt is the only man in Detroit who ever stirred up the animals in that way. Such a minister certainly must be admired by his followers. His appointment to other fields should be a disappointment to the people of River Rouge, Rev. Marvin who takes his pulpit is preparing sermons especially for "blind Piggers", "Sheiks" and "Flappers" and illustrates his talks by steroptican slides.

M. S. C. Horses Rank With Nation's Best

That the horses in the herds of M. S. C. rank with the best animals of these breeds in America is shown by a final summary of prizes won by the college livestock at the recent International Livestock Show in Chicago. The fat cattle, sheep, and hogs shown by the institution were also well up in the list of winners at the show.

Percherons exhibited won first on the yearling stallion, Corvisal; first on five year old mare, Maple Grove Leila; first on three year old mare, Utelem; second on two year old mare, Marion; first on yearling mare, Delila; first on stallion and three mares; first on American bred stallion and three mares; first on three mares; reserve junior champion stallion, Corvisal; reserve junior champion mare, Delila; and senior and grand champion mare, Maple Grove Leila,

The M. S. C. winners in the Belgian classes were: first on two year old mare, Manitta de Rubis; second on yearling mare in the futurity class, Belle Phoenix; 3rd on stallion and three mares; third on three mares; and junior champion mare, Manitta de Rubis.

In the fat stock classes the College won firsts on Oxford wether lambs, on pen of three Oxford wether lambs, on pen of three Tamworth hogs, and also had the champion pen of Tamworths. In carcass classes firsts were won on senior yearling steer carcass, on hog carcass weight 200 to 300 pounds. and on hog carcass weight 300 to 400 pounds.

Potato Fertilizer Shows Big Return

Use of fertilizer on Michigan potato crop has paid fine profit this year. Results obtained on field fertilizer test plots conducted by M. S. C., in cooperation with farmers who specialize in growing potatoes, show that an average increase of 50.9 bushels an acre was obtained through the use of fertilizers.

This increase in yield was worth over 50 dollars per acre this year. The cost of the fertilizer used was 12 dollars an acre. The average price of potatoes over ten year period is sixty cents a bushel, and so the average profit which would be obtained from the use of fertilizer would be 18 dollars an acre, based on this year's results.

It is believed that the quality of the potatoes is much improved on the fertilized fields. The better quality is due to the tendency of the phosphoric acid in the fertilizer to force early maturity. The ripe potatoes have a better color and the skin of the tuber is not bruised as easily as that of an unripe tuber.

Experiments on the influence of closeness of planting on the yield of potatoes obtained show that close planting increases the yield to a marked degree. The average yield on fields planted 36 by 36 inches was 82.9 bushels an acre. When a portion of the same field was planted 36 by 18 inches, the yield was 140.5 bushels. Close planting also reduces the number of hollow potatoes in the crop. There are not so many over sized potatoes in the closely planted field, but the tubers run a nice average size which is desired on the market.

The Holiday Cheer

We shall shortly find ourselves in the midst of the Holidey season with its holly, cedar and window wreaths, a time in Michigan when families both large and small, like to congregate about the home-fire and pertake of bountiful spreads of food rarely seen at any other time of year. Somehow, as the years come and go' Christmes don't seem quite as it once did. Possibly the most of us have looked into the face of too many Michigan blizzards and bought too many tons of expensive coal to he pleased with typical cold weather. There are some changes in the femily circle and many old familiar faces are not with us. The Great Beyond if it could be radioed, might send its greetings of thousands long since gathered to their Eternel rest.

Father and Mother have older grown and cannot take their place at the head of affairs Some one must take care of preparations which are not as they used to be 40 years ago. At that time most of us sat by the roaring fires in the great "Round Oak" stove, as furnaces were a luxury rare indeed. How time has metamorphosed us all since those days! Seams in our faces and grey streaks in our hair tell the story. As boys and girls we loved the snappy cold, frozen lakes and rivers; we coasted the snow-clad hills with childish abondon, filled as we were with rich blood and vivacity. Zero weather made little difference to a crowd of healthy boys and girls who trudged three miles to school. 'Twas all in a day's work. Today there is little if any, trudging to school. From the country districts come great buses or "Tin Lizzies" which eat no hay, require no warm stable, never grow tired and absolutely refuse to wear out. Those who can, park their cars in a shed but those who dont—get there just the same No matter if "Lizzie" stands for days in the open, she'll start. The Christmas cheer even gets in her bones and she's happy

The presentation of gifts is the one thing in which we are particularly interested, and it is deplorable so much of the old-time spirit has departed.

And then we might say that old St. Nicholas has lost most of his charm for the children. Our method of instruction has about ruined the traditions of Santa Claus, but it is hardly worth while to deplore this fact. Children of today are children in name only. Their heads and bodies work in conjunction with the modern instruction in hygiene, physics and personal preservation to the extent that is astounding. They have no more time for fables or foibles. They speak the slang of the streets; they play in a modern way which is not play at all, but formality. Hence it will be seen the Holiday season means less to them.

Train Calf by Gentle Treatment at All Times

Make the calf like to be handled. This can best be accomplished by gentle treatment at all times. Teach the calf to lead by handling it gently. One good way to do this training is to use a small stick. The calf should walk on the right side of you and should be trained to mind the stick.

Teach the calf to stand quickly in one position. Then it should be trained to stand with its weight evenly distributed on all four legs, which should be squarely placed. The head should be held up and to the front and the back straight and firm.

Because the calf which flinches, pulls, kicks, is easily frightened, or stands in a position that makes its back sway, or its rump appear faulty does not readily catch the eye of the judge, the calf should become accustomed to strange people, sights, and sounds. A little training every day is much better than a half day of it once each month.

Large Amount of Silage Proves Harmful to Bull

Many farmers allow the bull to run with the herd and consequently pay no particular attention to his feed. Where silage forms a part of the ration this is to be discouraged.

It has been proved that a liberal amount of silage, six pounds or over, promotes sterility in the bull. From the data gathered in numerous experiments it would seem that even a small allowance will reduce his vitality. With farmers learning to have milch cows freshen in the fall it would appear that silage can be wholly omitted from the ration for the bull.

It is true that the bull recovers from the effect of silage, but this means early spring calves, a thing that the man with milk cows does not want.

BAND IS BETTER THAN THE 'GANG'

Why United States Is Becoming Most Musical Nation in World.

Radio, the phonograph and the public school band are conspiring to make the United States the most musical nation in all the world, according to C. D. Greenleaf, of the Conn Music Center.

With the ether wave charged with melodies—with the phonograph bringing into the living room the gayety of the million-dollar jazz band—and with son regarding the post of first cornetist in the High School band as a position as vital as that held by the quarterback of the football eleven, the band instrument manufacturers are reporting a demand for their wares such as they have never before known.

C. D. Greenleaf.

U. S. Creating Music.

"After hearing more music than any other generation has ever heard, America is expressing an ardent wish to 'blow its own horn,' in the actual sense of the phrase," says Mr. Greenleaf. "The creative spirit is lifting its head and today the United States is housing more musicians and embryo musicians than ever before.

"Scarcely a day goes by during which the American family isn't treated to the most pleasing of harmonies. This harmony is recruiting a vast army of men, women and children who are setting out to create their own music. It is one of man's inherent instincts, this desire to produce pleasing tunes.

"No matter how far short he may be from the accepted standards of his instrument, the player derives far more satisfaction and pleasure in the knowledge that he is creating music than he could possibly feel from the strains of the modern masters, artificially reproduced.

Music as a Vocation.

"Our schools have been developed so that now a child can learn to be a carpenter, mechanic, printer, or any one of a number of other professions, all at the public expense, which is as it should be," says Mr. Greenleaf. "The day is at hand for school authorities to extend the same opportunity to children who desire to take up music as a life work.

"Music is a healthful influence. Parents are learning that the band is better than the 'gang' for their youngsters.

"Music is a mental stimulant. A survey recently conducted in the schools of a mid-western city revealed that children who had studied music averaged considerably higher in all lines of school activities."

Music Lures High School Students

One in Three of Denver Pupils Trained by Private Instructors

Elkhart, Ind.—More boys and girls of high school age are seriously studying music today than ever before. Information reaching the Conn Music Center here indicates an unusually high degree of interest in music by secondary school pupils.

An example of conditions said to be representative of the country is to be found in Denver, according to the Music Center, where the ratio of students studying music is one in three. A report on 1,746 high school pupils by J. O. Kendel, director of music in the Denver schools, showed that 623 were studying music under private instructors.

There are 3,292 musical instruments in the families from which these boys and girls come, and in 61 of the homes there is a definite musical organization such as an instrumental trio, a quartette or a small band. One home even reported an 11-piece orchestra as their solution to the problem of holding a large family together.

Orchestra music is preferred by 27 per cent of the Denver children, dance music by 20 per cent, instrumental by 19 per cent, band music by 17 per cent and vocal by 14 per cent.

Cottonseed Important

For decades cottonseed was a waste product. Today cottonseed is one of the country's foremost food and feed products, furnishing vast quantities of meal for animals, with a result that cottonseed alone, apart from cotton lint, is exceeded in value by only seven American farm crops—corn, cotton lint, hay, wheat, white potatoes, oats and tobacco. Cottonseed has greater value than the combined barley, rye and buckwheat crops of America and twice the value of America's apple crop.

BIG SUBSCRIPTION OFFER

You Get ALL FOUR of These MAGAZINES and OUR NEWSPAPER For One Year Each FOR $1.80 Order Now

THIS EXCEPTIONAL OFFER IS GOOD FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY

Subscriptions may be new or renewal. All renewal subscriptions will be extended for one year from present date of expiration.

and Any 5 of this list of leading MAGAZINES $2.25 Why Pay More?

Get Your MAGAZINES NOW AT COST!

Take Your PICK 19 to Select From

Never before and probably never again will you have such an extraordinary money-saving opportunity. Note carefully the large selection of choice reading—all at a price to fit your pocketbook. Renewals will be extended one year from date of expiration. No need to wait.

CLIP AND USE THIS COUPON

Gentlemen: I wish to take advantage of your Magazine Bargain Offer. I am enclosing the above amount in payment for a one year subscription to your paper and the FIVE Magazines I have marked with an X below.

Name

Town State

St. or R.F.D.

☐ American Needlewoman
☐ American Poultry Advocate
☐ Blade & Ledger
☐ Capper's Farmer
☐ Farm & Fireside
☐ The Farm Journal
☐ Farm Life
☐ Gentlewoman Magazine
☐ Good Stories
☐ Home Circle
☐ Home Friend
☐ Household Guest
☐ Household Magazine
☐ Illustrated Mechanics
☐ Mother's Home Life
☐ Pathfinder (weekly) 26 issues
☐ Today's Housewife
☐ Tractor & Gas Engine Review
☐ Woman's World

CHOOSE Mark this coupon now and bring or mail it to our Business Office TODAY

An Interesting Page Prepared For Our Lady Readers And The Home Beautiful

Thanksgiving DAY

Over the river and through the
wood,
To grandfather's house we go;
The horse knows the way
To carry the sleigh
Through the white and drifted snow.

Over the river and through the
wood—
Oh, how the wind does blow!
It stings the toes
And bites the nose,
As over the ground we go.

Over the river and through the
wood,
To have a first-rate play.
Hear the bells ring,
"Ting-a-ling-ding"
Hurrah for Thanksgiving
Day.

Over the river and through the
wood,
Trot fast, my dapple-gray!
Spring over the ground,
Like a hunting-hound!
For this is Thanksgiving
Day.

Over the river and through the
wood,
And straight through the barn-yard gate.
We seem to go
Extremely slow,—
It is so hard to wait!

Over the river and through the
wood—
Now grandmother's cap I spy!
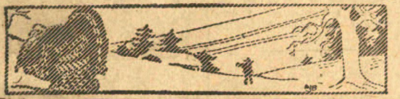
Hurrah for the fun!
Is the pudding done?
Hurrah for the pumpkin-pie!

By Lydia Maria Child.



Hints for the Housewife

Menu Hint

Here is a dinner menu that is a little different and therefore a help to the housewife who is a bit tired of planning meals and may be getting into a rut:

Yet-ca-Mein
Sliced Tomatoes and Mayonnaise
Celery
Peach Cobbler Tea

Today's Recipes

Yet-ca-Mein—When you have a chicken the day before boil the white meat and use it and the broth for this meal. If you have not had chicken buy a small piece of pork shoulder and boil it. Then removing the meat from the broth, of which there should be about a quart, add one can of Chinese noodles and boil them for four minutes. Remove broth and noodles to soup plates and place match-like pieces of meat on top. Serve with soy sauce if desired.

Peach Cobbler—Make a rich biscuit dough. In bottom of a shallow pan place halves of peaches, which have been well sugared. Use the balance of the cup of sugar and mix with it a tablespoon of flour. Pour over peaches. Place biscuit dough covering over all and bake. Serve with top milk, to which a small amount of sugar and nutmeg have been added, or serve with sugar and cream. Canned peaches may be used in place of fresh, but you will, of course, need little sugar with the latter.

SUGGESTIONS

Mother Saver

A camp stool is a boon to a mother of small children. Use one at the sand pile, in the bathroom and for numerous odd jobs. It is so easily carried about and saves both back and feet.

For the Pan Covers

A very convenient and easy arrangement for pan covers is this: Place on the cupboard door where kitchen utensils are kept two tacks spanning the width of your largest kettle cover. From one tack to the other stretch a heavy string. About six inches below, screw securely two clothes hooks five inches apart with the prongs upward. In this way the covers are supported on the prongs while the string holds them against the door at the top.

Dressing Up the Bedroom

When you are making over your bedroom buy an extra rayon bedspread of the same pattern as the one you get for the bed and make a set of drapes with valance, dresser and dressing table scarfs and chair pads. Be sure to use the scalloped edges of the spread for finish on drapes and valance, using the center portion of the spread for scarfs and pads by merely hemming.

The Weekly Fashion Hint

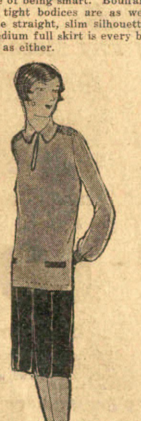
SKIRT DROOPS FRONT AND BACK

By MME. LISBETH

A dip in the front and back of the skirt of this evening dress is a bit of a novelty—like finding the apple in the dumpling surrounding the crust instead of vice versa. We have been carefully trained this season to have our skirts dip at the sides and slightly shorter in the front if there has been any irregularity in the line.

Net is the material chosen for this gown. The hip-length bodice is so heavily beaded in crystal and gold beads that the net is hardly visible, however. The skirt, too, is beaded, in gold, and the frock is worn over a flesh colored slip. Doroth Sebastian posed.

There is not a particle of excuse for a woman to be unbecomingly dressed this season, as so great is the variety of cut that she only needs to decide which particular style is most becoming to her and she may wear it and be sure of being smart. Bouffánt skirts and tight bodices are as well liked as the straight, slim silhouette, and the medium full skirt is every bit as popular as either.



Here is a frock done entirely in jersey, which is exceedingly smart this season. The blouse has long raglan sleeves, which are shirred on the shoulders, while the two-piece skirt is laid in plaits. Quite novel are the long sleeves with their rows of shirring above the turn-back cuffs. Medium size requires 3⅛ yards 54-inch flannel with 1¼ yards lining.

Pictorial Review Printed Pattern No. 3155. Sizes, 14 to 18 years and 34 to 48 bust, 45 cents.

LIVING and LOVING

BY FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

SINS OF THE CHILDREN

The sins of the children shall be visited upon the fathers!

Basing our conclusion upon much that we see and hear and read, we declare this to be the converse and strictly up to date version of a certain ancient and honorable maxim.

Through memory's kaleidoscope we review the year gone by.

We see:—

Within the dingy walls of an old court house a famous desperado at bay before the law. On the stand a turncoat friend is swearing his erstwhile boon pal's life away.

The prisoner is a "bad man" and admits he is, coolly scorning to lighten his black sheep's wool with a coat of hypocrisy's whitewash. But the witness hesitates and is lost in a labyrinth of evasions and deceits. Thief and traitor, self-confessed, he adds to his misdemeanors against decency and self-respect unfilial indifference and ingratitude.

"In all past scrapes you got out scot free because your poor old father paid the bills. And he'll pay the bill today, sacrificing himself for you!"

Caustic question of cross-examining counsel.

"Oh, I suppose he will!"

Careless answer indicative of a weak soul calloused by too "tightly fitting" parental pride and protective affection.

Financial loss and failing prestige. This is visited upon a father for the sins of a son.

* * *

The scene shifts.

We look upon a prodigal's return to his native shores. Rumor riding on the wings of the wind had landed first with news of his losses at the gaming tables of the Continent. And in consequence there ran to meet him the inquiring reporter.

"Have your doings abroad drawn censure from your father?"

His cheeks flushed and his eyes mist-veiled. But the prodigal made brave answer to the intimate query:

"My father? He's the best friend I have! I am ashamed that a father like he is has to have a son like I am!"

Disppointment and notoriety are again a worthy father's portion. But it may be they will not continue so in vain nor for much longer. In this instance, close upon the heels of repentance follows regeneration.

* * *

A third quick change. We're out in The Golden West! And our glance follows a starbeam as it falls upon a father's bowed head, passes on to rest in pitying benediction above a late-made mound, then to force its way into the dimmest corner of a matricide's cell, where, behind the bars, a girl in her teens waits for the dawn of a one more horror-ridden tomorrow.

Here is visitation with a vengeance upon a family for a jazz-maddened daughter's crime!

These tragedies and countless others like unto them are the results of—

What?

Shall we perhaps and after all have to reverse our own version and go back to the original of a certain ancient and honorable maxim for the real reason?

"The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children even unto the third and fourth generation!"

WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES

At the end of the fourth year of married life no celebration is scheduled, nobody seems to know why. The fifth is the wooden wedding, and such things as furniture of all kinds, bread and cake boards, rolling pins, clothespins, steak or fish plank, wooden spoons and salad sets, chopping bowls, etc., may be given as appropriate gifts.

STYLE WHIMSIES

High collars knotted at the side with floating ends are by no means passe, according to the latest style edicts. And those dainty and becoming white organdie collars and sleeve finishes are also "in."

Pleated band collars terminating at front in pressed jabots are a feature of many new models.

Cleaning Hint

Walls and delicate woodwork may be washed with water, white soap and a little ammonia added to the water. Be sure to change the water as soon as it becomes dirty and wash every inch of the surface.

Add Orange Peel

Grated orange peel is the best addition possible to molasses cookies or soft gingerbread. It gives a delicious elusive flavor.

Sun Leaves Streaks

When having windows cleaned, choose a time when the sun is not shining, for sun shining on a wet window leaves streaky traces behind.

FAMILY BUDGETING

After making an estimate of all the family income, as far as possible, list all the articles and servives that your family is likely to need during the coming year. Start with food. If you have no definite idea of what you have been spending for this item, keep a record for a week or two.

Movie Notes

There won't be a scarcity of comedies built around well-known players this winter since Hal Roach has been steadily gathering in "big names" under his banner. At present thirty or forty actors and actresses are under contract to him.

Among the women most recently signed are Marjorie Daw, Priscilla Dean, Anna May Wong, Mae Busch and Agnes Ayres.

MAE BUSCH

MARJORIE DAW

AGNES AYRES

PRISCILLA DEAN

ANNA MAY WONG

Seems as if really good comedies become scarcer each day while the with Chaplin, Langdon, Keaton and Harold Lloyd firmly devoted to feature length productions, there is a good market for comedies like those Hal Roach proposes to put out in his "Star Comedy" series.

"River's End," which Famous Players made several years ago, is to be filmed again under the direction of Lewis Stone and Marshall Neilan, Stone will probably play his old role in the new picture.

Greta Nissen has changed her mind again. Some time ago she announced she was through with pictures and was returning to the stage. Now she says she's in pictures to stay and will leave for the coast shortly to appear in Adolphe Menjou's next starring picture.

During the recent world's series, William Haines, football hero of "Brown of Harvard," appeared in uniform at the Yankee stadium and warmed up with the regular players. All this for ball game scenes in "Slide, Kelly, Slide," now being filmed at the M-G-M studios.

"Barbed Wire," based on Hall Caine's "The Women of Knockaloe," is to be Pola Negri's next production. It is a story of the late war.

A record engineering feat was recently accomplished at Astoria, L. I., when an entire city block was torn down in one day and replaced by the new Ginsburg Department store, which covers the total footage of the block in question. The latter was a replica of a street in New Orleans and was located at the Paramount studio for use in Herbert Brenon's picture, "God Gave Me Twenty Cents." The set, 600 feet long by 50 feet wide, was demolished to make room for the department store, which will be used in Frank Tuttle's latest production, "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em."

"Oh for the life of a dog!"

Mutt, the pup assisting Bebe Daniels in her latest starring vehicle, "Stranded in Paris," is the envy of the extras. Mutt himself admits he hasn't many aversions to being a lonely canine of uncertain parentage. And why should he?

He travels with the elite of Hollywood, earns a fat salary, emotes before the kleigs and lives on the fat of the land. He has no pedigree—but that troubles him least of all.

The pup, who is a cross between terrier, airedale and bull, is an actor of no mean ability, having exhibited his talents in many productions in his two years and a half of life. He was the small white dog with the soulful eyes in Wallace Beery's and Raymond Hatton's "Behind the Front." And now as the canine friend of Bebe Daniels he's been crowding everybody out of the camera's focus.

Arthur Rosson is directing "Stranded in Paris." The cast includes James Hall, Paramount's new leading man, Ford Sterling and Mabel Julienne Scott.

PETER'S ADVENTURES in ANIMAL LAND

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

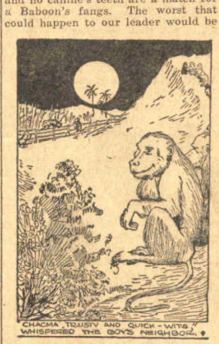
THOSE WHO WAIT

The word was passed along the line, until, last of all, Peter received Chacma's orders. The Boy felt a thrill.

"What if Chacma should be caught?" whispered he fearfully to the Baboon who had told him. "Wouldn't those Sentry Dogs make short work of him?"

The Baboon was scornful.

"H-m! I should say not. I pity the Dog who attacks Chacma tonight. He would fight for his honor and his life, and no canine's teeth are a match for a Baboon's fangs. The worst that could happen to our leader would be to have the Two-Legs brought upon him, and how he would hate to have to run away from them! 'Twould be a deep disgrace. But no fear! Chacma is too old a hand at playing the sneak thief to take many chances. He'll wait until the coast is clear and then he'll enter the field. Look! There he goes now!"



"CHACMA, TRUSTY AND QUICK-WITS," WHISPERED THE BOY'S NEIGHBOR.

Peter stared in the direction of the pointing paw, and, sure enough, away down at the bottom of the hill three dark shapes detached themselves from the long line.

"Chacma, Quick-Wits and Trusty," whispered Peter's neighbor, and clutched the Boy's arm in his excitement. "Aha! They're climbing the fence. Now they are out of sight. I shall have my share of the sugar cane before long unless I am much mistaken."

Here was something Peter hadn't thought about.

"Your share!" echoed he. "Do you mean to say Chacma and his two aids are going to bring out of the raid sugar enough for you all? There are so many of you how could those three possibly carry such a load?"

The Baboon chuckled 'way down low in his throat.

"Wait and see!" commanded he, and not another word would he say. He turned his head away from the boy to start at the cane field. Peter had nothing better to do than to follow suit.

"Not a sound," thought he. "All must be well so far." And just at that second he thought he saw something move between the rails of the fence. Was it an arm? He couldn't be sure. It had vanished. There is was again.

Next—"First to Last."

GAMES TO PLAY

CIRCLE BALL

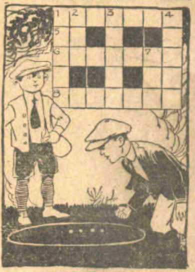
Form a circle of the players with one of them standing inside. The players throw a light medicine ball or basket ball from one to another, and the one in the center tries to intercept the ball or make one of the players drop it. If a player muffs the ball he becomes "it," or if the player in the center blocks the throw or catches the ball, the person who threw it becomes "it." This game can be played anywhere with almost any kind of a ball and develops judgment in throwing and catching.

HAND TAG

This is a good game for young people of school age, and should be played in a gymnasium or barn or some other suitable place. It is like ordinary tag, except that anyone is safe who is hanging from a piece of gymnasium apparatus, if the game is played in a "gym"; or from a rafter or beam in a barn, or from the limb of a tree if it is played outdoors, as it may be in the summer time. Any one who has his feet on the floor or ground may be chased, and if he is caught becomes "it." The game may be continued indefinitely.

A dress-making club has been formed by London women. It is completely equipped with sewing machines and other gear of the tailor shop.

Children's Pictorial Cross Word Puzzle



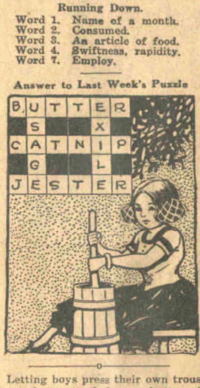
Running Across.

Word 1. In the picture.
Word 5. A preposition.
Word 6. An item of income.
Word 8. How many years old is a person who is called a centenarian?

Running Down.

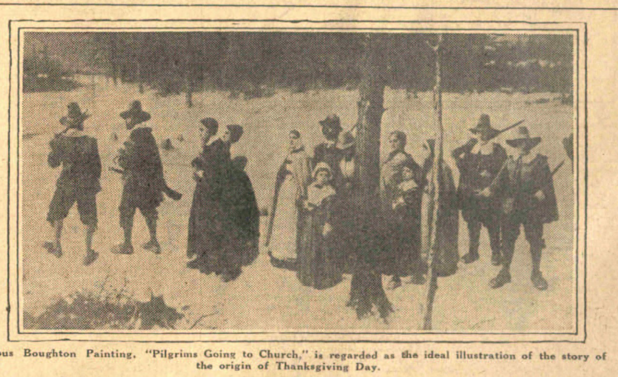
Word 1. Name of a month.
Word 2. Consumed.
Word 3. An article of food.
Word 4. Swiftness, rapidity.
Word 7. Employ.

Answer to Last Week's Puzzle



Letting boys press their own trousers and sew on their own buttons is an item in training them for self-reliant manhood.

Puritans Didn't Originate Thanksgiving



Famous Boughton Painting, "Pilgrims Going to Church," is regarded as the ideal illustration of the story of the origin of Thanksgiving Day.

By MARGERY PICKARD

Bouf! goes another popular belief. New research shows that the idea that Thanksgiving was originally a New England festival and belongs distinctively to the Puritans is all wrong.

Neither Boston Puritan nor Plymouth Pilgrim had anything to do with it, for it was first practiced by the Popham colonists of Monhegan, Me., and it was in a Church of England thanksgiving service—"A Giving of God Thanks for a Safe Voyage."

The practice of setting aside certain days for thanksgiving had become a custom long before the Reformation. Protestants followed the practice, especially in the established church, where it had become a fixed practice long before New England began the observance.

Nothing Religious About First One

It seems strange that the Pilgrims, who hated so heartily all the observances of the Church of England, should have been so willing to follow this practice so early in their history. The first Thanksgiving day of New England was, however, never appointed nor intended as a day of religious worship. It had nothing in common with the Church of England day of prayer and praise for past blessing and future need. It was appointed as a day of recreation and freedom from work, which made the colonists' days one ceaseless grind of care.

The first Thanksgiving day which was publicly appointed was set for Feb. 22, 1630, in gratitude for the "Friend-bringing and food-bearing ships." Nov. 4, 1631, Winthrop wrote, "We keep Thanksgiving day today in Boston." In 1677 the first Thanksgiving proclamation was printed, a copy of which is said to be in existence. Until 1684 the day was celebrated about every two years.

There is no certain record when it became a fixed annual observance in New England. But in 1742 there were two Thanksgiving days and Massachusetts and Connecticut celebrated without reference to each other. As time passed, it became more and more a day of prayer and thanksgiving.

Used to Be Preceded by Fasting

It was not regularly observed until 1766, and then more as a day of worship than a day of feasting.

These early Thanksgiving days were on many different days of the week, and of no certain month for many years. After the day began to be observed annually it came to be the custom to hold the festival in the fall, and following harvests. The feast was usually prepared for by some days of fasting.

Those who are wont to think of the Pilgrims as a group of sober and morose men and women, with no idea in life beyond work and prayer, should read an account of that week of Thanksgiving which was the first real play time of the Pilgrims.

Edward Winslow wrote to a friend in England on Dec. 11, 1621:

"Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent four men out fowling, so that after a special manner we might rejoice together, after we had gained the fruit of our labors. That four killed as much fowl as, with little help beside, served the whole company about a week. At which time, among other recreations, we exercised our arms, many of the Indians coming among us, and among the rest, their great King Masasoyt, with some ninety men, who for three days we entertained and feasted. They went out and killed five deer, which they brought and bestowed upon our governor, upon the captain and others."

There were games—jumping, leaping and running, in which they all took part.

There were only four women to do the cooking, with the help of one maid servant and a few maidkins. There were 120 men to be served, and ninety of them Indians, whose hunger had to be appeased for three days.

NEWS FEATURE PAGE

Happenings From Here and There and Everywhere.

Educational, Interesting and Helpful.

HOSPITAL REALIZES "DYING MAN'S WISH

A sick man laid in his bed in a great home in Detroit one day some three years ago. He was soon to know the answer to the great question of the universe and he knew that to be so. He had been ill a long time with one of those slow diseases that mocked the efforts of all medical science, pernicious anaemia.

"Illness is the great scourge of mankind," he told his wife. "When I have gone I would like to see a hospital or research unit at Ann Arbor, in the university, where suffering humanity can be helped by original research of trained scientists."

The man died in course of time and within a few months the doors of one of the greatest original research units in any American university will be thrown open to visitors and will begin to function in its work of discovering the secrets of disease that disease may be conquered. The opening of those doors and the death of the man with pernicious anaemia are linked, for the unit is the gift of the widow, a living, working, vital memorial.

The man was Thomas Henry Simpson, Detroit manufacturer, and the building is to be known as the Thomas Henry Simpson Memorial for Medical Research.

The building, located near the new University hospital, was erected at a cost of $225,000 and has an endowment of $250,000. Said to be one of the most completely equipped in the country, the structure is nearly finished and, it is expected, will be formally dedicated about Jan. 1.

Billion and Half Are Resources of Michigan's Banks

During the last year the state banks and trust companies of Michigan have increased their resources by $140,327,874, to a grand total of $1,593,436,059, to which gain the 584 state banks contributed $91,028,215 and the 21 trust companies $49,299,659, according to a comparison of the statements as of September with those of October.

In the same period total deposits of the banks increased $66,652,605, savings advancing from $697,767,115 to $750,948,151 and commercial deposits advancing from $452,933,182 to $466,404,752, a gain of $53,181,035 for savings and $13,471,570 for commercial deposits.

Turning the Tables

A member of a congregation, becoming angry at a sermon the minister was preaching, wrote the single word "Fool" on a sheet of paper, called an usher to him and had it delivered to the minister in the middle of the sermon.

The minister opened the paper and read what was written, then he said: "An unusual thing has happened. A member of the congregation has signed his name without writing the letter."—N. K. V. K.

—LEARN—

BRICKLAYING

In a School run by Building Contractors. Catalog Free.

Associated Building Employers
13-21 McConnell St., Grand Rapids

Here lies
young Willie
Wanderlust,
A model friend
and pal
Who took a curve at 55
With his arm around a gal.

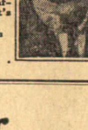
A Legal Reserve Automobile Insurance Policy at Lower Rates—No Assessments

REPUBLIC
Automobile Insurance Underwriters

WE WANT AN AGENT
IN YOUR VICINITY

2163 Jefferson Ave., East, at Dubois
Detroit, Michigan

THE BEST RECOMMENDATION
—FOR—
BARE-TO-HAIR



Is the number who are trying to imitate it. If Bare-to-Hair was not growing hair on bald heads there would be no imitators. If there is baldness or signs of it you can't afford to neglect to use "Forst's Original Bare-to-Hair."

Correspondence Given Personal Attention

E. J. Jahn Barber Supply Co.,
1267 Park Place, at Grand River,
Detroit, Michigan.

Children Cry for

Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is especially prepared to relieve Infants in arms and Children all ages of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and, by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving natural sleep.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas H Fletcher
Absolutely Harmless—No Opiates. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

Sells Liberty On Installment Plan For Poor's Benefit

Liberty may be bought on the installment plan at so much a month, like an automobile, a piano or a home in Flint, because of the policy inaugurated by Presiding Judge James S. Parker in the Genesee county circuit courts, "to give the poor lawbreaker the same opportunity as the wealthy."

In this time payment for freedom there are no defaulted bills, nor are there any bill collectors to dun the buyer. The shadow of prison gates, waiting to swing open, proves sufficient inducement for prompt payment.

"The sentence of this court is that John Doe, who has admittedly transgressed the state liquor laws, be placed on probation for two years and fined $200, which will be paid at the rate of $10 a month, in addition to the probation cost of $2 a month."

This sentence, with name and amount varied to suit the case, has become the ritual in Judge Parker's court.

Ford Co. Perfects Vacuum Machine To Harvest Cotton

The first bale of cotton known to have been produced entirely by machinery has just been turned out at Memphis, according to officials of the Ford Motor Company, who planted, picked and ginned the bale.

Cotton is picked today in much the same way it was in India a thousand years ago. People are born, die and are buried in cotton. And now comes modern methods of harvesting the product.

No importation of labor or taking children from schools to harvest the cotton crops would be necessary with the vacuum process, it is pointed out by the Ford Motor Company. The new harvester accelerates the hand about five or six times.

Cop in Coal Dust Disguise Finds Detroit Blind Pigs

Inspector Fred Raymond of the Detroit police schemed for a long time to close Michigan avenue blind pigs in his precinct. But no one was able to make "buys" until Patrolman Jacques La Pere borrowed a coal wagon and a team and disguised himself as a coal heaver.

With coal dust on his hands and face he took his seat on the wagon and made the rounds. According to his report he bought liquor at seven soft drink stands.

Six Canadian Geese in Day, Ypsilantian's Luck

A bag of six Canada geese in one day from Fife lake, near clare, was the luck of H. E. Reed of Ypsilanti. After having spent the entire week duck hunting on the marsh bayous of the lake, with fair luck, Mr. Reed was fortunate enough to have a flock of the honkers light in front of his blind about when he was ready to give up for the day. The six geese weighed 35 pounds.

No Alibi for the Choir

A young clergyman gave out the weekly church notices as follows:

"On Thursday, God willing, there will be a mothers' meeting at 5 p. m.

"On Friday, God willing and the weather permitting, we will hold the church committee meeting at 7 p. m.

"On Saturday, in any case, there will be the usual choir practice at 6 p. m."—Boston Transcript.

MUSTY RECORDS "SHOW UP" DADS

Superintendent of Grand Rapids Schools Leslie A. Butler may "call dad's bluff" that "when he was a boy" his standing in his studies at school were much higher than that of his son or grandson of today. The superintendent has discovered an opportunity of matching the wits of the boy of 1926 with the youngsters of 1884. Recently the clerks in the board of education, ransacking a storage vault in the city hall, came upon a file of bound examination papers dated 1883 and 1884.

Each examination paper, except those of the third graders, was written in ink. Each pupil was required to copy the question, then answer it and at the end of the paper to state the length of time taken to answer the entire test. Each file possesses the certification of the teacher of the class.

The files reveal the records of grave and dignified citizens of today with regard to spelling, geography of Europe and other subjects. They disclose just how much geography Brig. Gen. John H. Schouten, prominent in the National Guard, knew while studying in the seventh grade at Central; what John Duffy, one of the best known of Grand Rapids' business men, wrote when the teacher assigned an English composition on the theme, "The Two Cousins," when he was a student at Union; how one of the present popular school teachers, then in the third grade, spelled "which" with a "t" and another doubled the "l" in always.

Boats Groomed For Winter Rest

Although deep sea sailors may hold in contempt those lovers of the water who are not near the ocean, proof that sailing craft and motorboats find a spot deep in the hearts of many Detroiters may be found these days along Motorboat Row, which runs parallel to the west side of Waterworks park, where with infinite care the amateur sailors of the city put up their boats for the winter. The wanderlust which Masefield put into his "Sea Fever" is reflected in the attention lavished by the yachtmen on their boats. They scrape the hulls, cover the ships with canvas, oil metal parts against corrosion, and talk the while of the sailing that next spring will bring.

At the clubs on Belle Isle this work is done mainly by employes who exercise workmanlike care in storing their charges, but at the boat wells and shelters which skirt the river front on the Detroit side the owners of the boats put in most of their spare time getting ready for the ice which will close navigation.

Here are men who have tattooed symbols on their arms, their hands capable and calloused, their fingernails marked with the shredding of oakum which is caulked into the seams of their boats. They are taking out the masts of their yawls and catboats, or greasing the engines in their motorboats before they haul the craft clear of the water, blocking them upon timbers over the open wells.

$250,000,000 Spent By Tourists in State During Last Season

With the close of 1926 fast approaching, Detroit has enjoyed the greatest tourist year in its history. More than 1,500,000 persons came to Detroit during the season. Michigan also has enjoyed the greatest tourist season in the history of the state. From every source come figures showing that all previous records were surpassed this year.

P. J. Hoffmaster, superintendent of state parks, recently announced that 3,409,425 persons visited the state parks during 1926. Those who have come to the "Playground of the Nation" have left behind a flood of gold in Michigan.

Enforced Rules Blow to Shift Play In Yost's Opinion

The "shift-play," long a bone of contention in football circles, and the subject of much recent discussion, is already done away with if present rules are enforced, according to Fielding H. Yost, director of athletics at the University of Michigan.

According to Coach Yost, the violations of the "full stop" rule in the case of the shift play is the cause of more ill feeling between opposing players and more dissension among officials than all other violations combined.

"I do not know of more than three or four major teams in America using 'shift' play today," Yost declared. "What possible advantage is there in shifting when the players have to come to a full stop and maintain immobility before resuming play?" Yost asks. Only by the violation of an already existing rule and clearly worded rule can there be any advantage in the shift.

The rule reads: "In all shift or 'huddle' plays, the players must come to an absolute stop, and remain stationary in their new positions and without movement of the feet or swaying of the body, sufficiently long to prevent any doubt in the minds of the officials that the players have come to the full stop. In case of doubt, the penalty shall be enforced."

Prize Window Soon to Be Seen Here

Check
for that Cough!
Children Like It

This is the prize-winning window display draped by the Detroit Window Display Co. This window will be shown all over Michigan and soon will be on display here in a local drug store.

UPPER PENINSULA ROADS ARE TO BE KEPT SNOW FREE

For the first time in the history of the upper peninsula autoists will be able to drive from town to town this winter. The state highway department is planning to keep all main trunk highways open to wheeled traffic during the major part of the winter.

The eastern end of the peninsula, from Sault Ste Marie south to Escanaba, over toward Marquette and Iron Mountain, will profit most by the effort to be put forth early next year. Because of the lack of funds, counties in the peninsula have been unable to cope with the snow problem in the winter, but the new state machinery will solve the question, it is believed. Marquette, Iron, Gogebic and Houghton counties have carried on a tractor-plow fight against snow for the past two winters, more successfully than at first was believed possible.

In Houghton county the district from Hancock to Calumet gets probably the heaviest snow in the entire peninsula, yet only for a few days following heavy blizzards last winter was traffic entirely cut off on the main trunk line.

Under the present plan the trunk line to St. Ignace will be kept open and will offer an avenue to anyone driving to lower peninsula cities, as the commission plans to keep at least one highway open as far as Mackinac City.

Kellogg Would Have Gull Lake Bird Sanctuary

Announcement has been made by W. K. Kellogg that attempt will be made to duplicate at Gull Lake, Kalamazoo county, the migratory fowl feeding place of Jack Miner in Kingsville, Ont.

It will be necessary, Kellogg said, to obtain consent of every riparian right owner of property abutting the lake to make of it a game preserve and then obtain a special act of the Michigan legislature to provide sanctuary in the vicinity of the lake.

The Kellogg estate, Kellogg Heights, the largest individual piece of property at the lake, was recently presented to the city of Battle Creek, together with an endowment for its perpetual upkeep. He has offered to procure decoy ducks, geese and swans and to provide endowment for feeding of migratory waterfowl.

According to the plan, the project would be started next spring, and it is estimated it would require eight years to persuade the great group of waterfowl that it would find refuge and food at Gull Lake, unmolested by huntsmen.

Kellogg plans to obtain the aid of Miner to work out the project.

Woodsmen Start On Trek to Timberland In Upper Peninsula

Any one who thinks that the logging industry in the upper peninsula has waned and is a thing of the past should hie himself to the Ishpeming depot some morning about train time where he can see row on row of woodsmen waiting to be whisked away to their winter's work.

The men's waiting room of the station is quite lonesome in the summer time compared with the colorful scenes which are now enacted as the lumberjack and his "turkey" put in their appearance.

The first heavy snowfall has been the signal for taking down the old pack and treking to the woods camp.

WILL PREACH BUDDHISM

The first great missionary venture of one of the most famous old Oriental religions is being planned by the supreme prelate of the Buddhist

Three Grid Captains Supplied State By Saginaw High Team

With the election of Paul Smith of Saginaw to the captaincy of the 1927 state football team, Saginaw Eastern High school scores the unique distinction of furnishing the third successive football leader at East Lansing—a record probably unparalleled.

Don Haskins started the Saginaw reign by leading State's 1925 squad at tackle. Marty Rummell, another tackle, was named as the 1926 captain, but a serious injury to his foot this summer robbed him of a chance of playing. Like Haskins and Smith, he prepped at Saginaw Eastern. Smith, the 1927 choice, is a backfield ace, and for the past two years has stood out as a punter and dropkicker. He is also adept at advancing the ball, and leads the state scoring for the past season with nearly 40 points.

Saginaw Eastern may have two captains on the 1927 team, if Rummell returns to school. He will be eligible for another year of competition, and if his foot heals he will probably appear in uniform. He is one of the best linemen ever turned out at East Lansing. In recognition of the fact that he attended almost every football practice during the past season on crutches, and accompanied the team on all of its trips, Rummell was voted a major award along with the regular players—probably the first award ever given at East Lansing to a man who never wore a uniform during the season.

Saginaw, moreover, has furnished two other major captains at State during the past two years. Paul Hackett, 1925-26 basketball captain, and Chuck Fredericks, the present cage leader, both claiming the Salt City as their home town.

Grand Rapids Girds for Fight on Tuberculosis

A preventorium with a capacity of 40 children is being planned by the Grand Rapids Anti-Tuberculosis society, although no method of financing erection of the building has been determined.

Out at Sunnybank, as the society's property on Michigan street, a mile east of the city limits, is known, is an old farm house where a maximum of 16 children are taken under the organization's care for treatment for the prevention of tuberculosis.

Hunt Club Sued for Big Sum Under New Law

The Birmingham Hunting Club, which recently acquired a hunting preserve in Alcona county, is being sued by the county for a penalty of $50 a day, the suit being filed under the provisions of a recent state law which prohibits any hunting club from acquiring more than 15,000 acres in one tract for hunting purposes or from locating a hunting tract within two miles of any similar game preserve. It is charged that the Birmingham club's property approaches within less than two miles of that of the Turtle Lake Club. The Birmingham Club has held its property since April.

FOR SALE

$1,000.00 for a well stocked Second Hand Furniture Store on one of the busiest streets in Grand Rapids. Good lease and store making money. Other business requires owner's entire time. If interested, write Marks Furniture Store, 125 Division Ave., South, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Windustite

KEEP THE COLD, SOOT and DUST OUT

Installing "American Windustite" weather strips saves coal, makes housecleaning easier, gives more comfort from your furnace, and protects furnishings and draperies from outside dirt, soot and dust.

Storm-proof, Dirt-proof, Leak-proof and Rattle-proof

Made and Installed Only by
AMERICAN METAL WEATHER STRIP COMPANY
144 N. Division Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich.

SHIPS TESTED FOR RADIO EFFICIENCY

Every ship that touches Detroit has its radio equipment tested at each landing. Every ship must carry two licensed operators and must be able to transmit messages 100 miles on two minutes' notice.

Back in 1917 when the Secretary of Commerce gave S. W. Edwards the air—or more specifically that part of it included in the Eighth Radio District—to supervise and inspect, his job was comparatively easy.

It was his duty merely to inspect the wireless equipment on ships and to examine and license operators.

Today the eighth radio district, which includes Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York state outside the Hudson Valley, contains 76 broadcasting stations alone, not to speak of 3,000 other transmitters.

Lack of legislation is causing a new crop of squeals, whistles and interferences to spring up like weeds in a neglected garden. From five states a flood of complaints pours into Mr. Edwards' office beseeching him to put this or that station out of business or to compel them to transmit accurately on their allocated wavelengths. Compared with some other places in Mr. Edwards' jurisdiction, Detroit is a listener's paradise. But that city also has its quota of wrathful receptionists who demand: "For heaven's sake, do something!"

But much as the radio supervisor would like to take action on just complaints, he is unable to do anything.

"The failure of congress to complete radio regulation and the confusing decisions of the courts on the radio law of 1912," said Mr. Edwards, "led the Department of Commerce to request from the Attorney General an opinion on the whole question of departmental authority."

State College Seeks Cause of Low Veal Price

The cause for lower prices of "heifer beef" to the farmer is being investigated at Michigan State College by the animal husbandry department.

Beef production experiments are under way in the feed lots of the college, with the United States Department of Agriculture and the college co-operating. Complete scientific data will be kept and a careful chemical analysis will be made of the meat after the animals are slaughtered.

Thirty calves used in the test are separated in lots according to sex. Different pens will be fed different rations. The analysis, when the beef is dressed, also is expected to show the difference in results of the three rations used.

No Place to Go

Pat and Mike were good friends. Pat was trying to tell Mike unless people were good they would be lost in the hereafter. Mike said he did not believe in heaven, hell or purgatory. Soon Mike took sick and died. Pat was sad and stood gazing on Mike's quiet face and finally said: "Poor Mike—all dressed up and no place to go."—B. T.

St. Clair Road Chief Uses Steam Jets in Winter War On Ice

Included in the apparatus which W. W. Cox, St. Clair county road engineer, is making ready to combat the handicaps which winter and the spring thaws spread over highways is a "mechanical thawer," his own invention. If a thaw follows a period of freezing the culverts of the county are a mass of ice. As a result the surface water sweeps over driveways, highways and farm lands.

Formerly crews of men were employed to clear the ice from culverts to precent flooding of concrete highways and gravel roads. That was an expensive process. Two men cleared an average of two culverts a day. The "'mechanical thawer" will take the ice out of 25 to 30 culverts a day and only two men are needed to operate it. The thawing is done by steam jets forced through pipe and hose.

Deer Rests in Weeds Beside City's Highway

Half a century ago deer were not at all uncommon in Michigan, but Mr. and Mrs. William Bartle, living north of Brown City, were somewhat surprised to find a full grown and apparently healthy specimen of the deer family lying in a patch of weeds alongside the road.

The Bartles were on their way to the home of a neighbor when Mrs. Bartle noticed the antlers of the animay sticking out of the weeds. They made an investigation and the brown beauty beat a hasty retreat.

One Name for It

A man and his wife went into a store to buy a suit of clothes for the hubby. The suit which they wanted cost $70.

Hubby tried to make the merchant lower his price. But the salesman was stanch to anything below $60. After a long argument, wifey finally said:

"O, Abie, let the man have his price. Don't be so Scotch."—E. C.

Fine for catarrh when melted in a spoon or snuffed up the nose and vapors inhaled.

Head and Chest Colds Relieved In a New Way

A Salve which Releases Medicated Vapors when Applied Over Throat and Chest.

Inhaled as a vapor and, at the same time absorbed through the skin like a liniment, Vicks VapoRub reaches immediately inflamed, congested air passages.

This is the modern direct treatment for all cold troubles that is proving so popular in Canada and the States where over 17 million jars are now used yearly.

Splendid for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, croup, head and chest colds, catarrh, asthma or hay fever.

Just rub Vicks over throat and chest and inhale the medicated vapors. It quickly loosens up a cold.

VICKS VAPORUB
Over 21 Million Jars Used Yearly

OPPORTUNITY

We will put you in the Tire business in your city, without any investment on your part, furnish you a complete stock of High Grade, Guaranteed, Nationally Known and Advertised Tires and Tubes, to be paid for only as you sell them, if you are well known in your community, and can furnish good references as to your character and ability as an ambitious worker. This wonderful opportunity will produce for a real worker an established business with a highly profitable return.

Address P. O. Box 525, Grand Rapids, Michigan

DR. E. HENRY MORIARTY
at the
MORIARTY CANCER SANITARIUM

Specializing in the treatment of cancer without the use of knife or electricity.

Reference given on request.

1411 E. FULTON ST. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for

Colds Headache Neuritis Lumbago
Pain Neuralgia Toothache Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe → Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Auction

Thur., Dec. 23

Beginning at 10:30 Sun Time. on my farm 3½ mi. west, ½ mi. north of North Adams, I will sell

2 good Work Horses; 5 head of Cattle; 2 Cows been fresh 2 wks. 25 head of good Sheep, 15 of them mature Ewes, 10 Ewe lambs; 9 head Chester White Hogs; 20 ton Alfalfa; 500 bushels old corn and a few tools. Lunch Wagon of the Ground

ARVIN FULLER, Proprietor

JAMES POST, Auctioneer E. WILLIAMS, Clerk

Xmas

Try Swain's Store for your XMAS wants and see it you don't save $$ Just Received a nice line of Bath Towels, also Bath Towel Sets

Do Your Christmas Shopping at Swain's Dry Goods Store. Only Six More Shopping Days

SWAIN'S, North Adams

Useful Gifts for xmas

We have Pyrex, Aluminum and Enameled Ware, Cutlery of all kinds, Sleds and Skates, Silverware, Watches and Jewely.

New Grosley Radio

PAYNE & GREEN CO.

Authorized Agents

The Store of the Holiday Spirit

XMAS

Goods now in

Fruits, Nuts, Oranges, Bananas, Figs, Dates. Books Novelties. Come in and look the stock over.

A. DIETZ

Two Snbscriptions to McGall's and one Advocate 1 yr. $2.75

CORRESPONDENCE

Jerome

Wendell Wertenberger has been quite ill.

Mrs. H. A. Voorhees and daughter of Hanover also Art Hart and family of Jackson have been recent guests of R. O. Sawdey and wife.

The school will hold its annual Christmas program at the M. E. church on Thursday evening of next week. Santa will be present to distribute presents from the tree.

HOXIE

Grace Smith was home from Jackson Sunday.

Otis Rickerd and wife of Jackson were callers at F. M. Thompson's Friday.

Flutell Thompson and wife spent Sunday with his parents at Brooklyn.

Mrs. Orpha Hoxie spent Tuesday and Wednesday with Mrs. Kate Beecher.

Mrs. V. Morehouse fell Thursday at the home of L. Murdock and broke her hip.

Will Steveson, wife and daughter Ruth were Sunday guests at Chas Bradley's near Churches Corners.

Ida Pierce who has been spending the past two weeks with Mae Chapman returned to her home at Coldwater Tuesday.

Vern Cox, wife and daughte Geraldine and A. J. Franks and wife attended Past Matron and Past Patron banquet at North Adams Tuesday night.

The Hoxie L. A. S held a very pleasant meeting at the home of Mrs. Belle Jennings Tuesday. The gentlemen were invited and all enjoyed a bountiful dinner. A Christmas grab basket was a pleasing feature also an auction of the left over Bazaar articles.

Jonesville

Melvin Burnett is the new clerk in the Post Office.

There will be a K of P party Friday evening December 31.

Mr, and Mrs. Darling of Bronson were in town during the week.

Mrs Frank Howland entertained at a one o'clock luncheon Monday.

Miss May Haselschwerdt will spend the holiday vacation at her home in Grass Lake.

Charles Lewis who has been in Florida since last May returned to his home here Sunday evening.

The next meeting of the Social Thursday club will be held January 5th at the home of Mrs. V. J. Chase

Mrs. Charles White entertained the Helen Cnilds Missionary Society Wednesday afternoon this week.

Fred Reed and wife, Merle Andrews and family of Hastings were week end guests of J. T. Reed and wife.

Mrs. James Monroe and Mrs. Ellen Hang of Detroit visited a few days last week at the G. C. Varnum home here.

Arthur Wells and wife attended the Gleaner meeting Tuesday at the Percy Wells home near North Adams.

Mrs. Fanny Danhousen has bought the Perry Redman farm in Scipio Township. Her brother Fred Stanley will move there in the near future.

Town Line

Mrs. Kirk entertained the club Thursday to an all day meeting,

Mrs Orpha Hoxie spent Wednesday with Mrs. Kate Beecher.

F. Southard and wife of Addison were callers at Abner Jennings on Saturday.

Mrs. Ray Fast was in Hudson Saturday and visited Charley Fry and wife.

Clarence Jennings and family spent Sunday in Allen at the John Corey home.

Mrs. Sterling has exercises and a Christmas tree at the Viele school next Wednesday night December 22.

Eugene Gamble in planning to go to Toledo for a visit with his daughter Mr. and Mrs. Grover Mallory.

The Hoxie Aid Society who met at the home of Mrs. Belle Jennings Wednesday was attended by about 30. All seemed to enjoy the program grab bag and dinner. It turned out to be a good winter day.

Mrs. Morehouse who is at the Lew Murdock home fell on the walk and broke her hip but is doing nicely. Mrs. Belle Jennings stayed with her Friday and Saturday of last week. Dr. McFarland is the attending physician.

Mrs. A. J. Calhoun remains about the same.

Marv Jane Stansill of MtPleasant Mich., is the guest of her sisters, Mesdames Sharp and Hard, in this village,

A number from this vicinity attended the "Messiah" at the College Church last Sunday afternoon. Among the people that sang in the program were: Mrs. Mildred Miner Hunt, Miss Elizabeth Smith, Rollin Pease and Wylie Stuart. The entertainment was much enjoyed by all present,

Card of Thanks

I wish to extend my thanks to the members of the Sorosis Club, Alpha Chapter O. E. S. and others who so kindly remembered me during my recent illness at the hospital Mrs. Howard Williams, Osseo Mich.

PROBATE ORDER

STATE OF MICHIGAN, Probate Court for the County of Hillsdale.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Hillsdale in the said County, on the 1st day of December A. D. 1926.

Present. Hon. Arthur L. Guernsey Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of George W. Dow Deceased.

It appearing to the court that the time for presentation of claims against said estate should be limited, and that a time and place be appointed to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against said deceased by and before said court:

It is Ordered, That creditors of said deceased are required to present their claims to said court at aid Probate Office on or before the 5th day of April A. D. 1927 at ten o'clock in the forenoon, said time and place being hereby appointed for the examination and adjustment of all claims and demands against said deceased.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the North Adams Advocate a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Arthur L. Guernsey
27t3 Judge of Probate

The Social Improvement Club met with Mrs. Vira Sharp Thursday December 9th with a good program. There were 14 members present and a potluck dinner was served at noon, after which the meeting was called to order. After business the following program was carried out: Roll call; paper "Farming in Northern California", Grace Sharp; biography of Milton by Maude Anderson; music, radio Next meeting will be with Mrs. Kate Winchell December 23rd. Grab Bag and program. Potluck dinner.

At the Regular meeting of North Adams Hive No. 729 held Wednesday evening December 8th, the following officers were elected; Past Com., Luella Helmick; Com., Grace Williams; Lieut. Com., Allie Holkins; Chap., Lydia Keefer; M at A, Etta Corey; Sergt. Mabel Goodacre; Sent., Frances Rickerd; Picket, Harriett Holkins. Installation will be held sometime in January.

Yeggs blew the safe at the New York Central depot in Coldwater sometime between Saturday night and Sunday morning last. They obtained $135 but there is no clue to the miscreants. A traveling man said he was sleeping near the depot and being restless all night he heard a noise during the night and supposes that was the explosion of the safe.

Christmas Time at Wertz

YOU WILL FIND

Beautiful Cut Glass, Hand Painted China, White Ivory, Silverware, Box Stationery, Jewelry, Smoking Sets, Thermos Bottles, Books, Boxed Handkerchiefs, Suspenders, Neckties, Hosiery, Hose Supporters, Arm Bands, box Perfumes, Toilet Waters. Hoover Suction Sweepers, Phonographs, Thermometers, Electric Lamps, Quite Light Lamps, Electric Irons, Serving Trays, Safety Razors, Ladies' Purses. Towels, Fountain Pens, Watches, Pipes Cigarettes, Holders and Cases, Dolls and a full line of Toys.

Candies, Grapes, Oranges, Bananas, Walnuts, Brazil Nuts, Cigars, Peanuts

The place where you have always bought your presents

C. S. Wertz

Anyone Who can wind a watch

Now commands the air with

THE NEW ERLA MONODIC RECEIVER

Here is news for the whole family: Mother, Brother, and even little Sister can get new "thrills"—new stations they never could before. One after another stations come in with "next-door" clarity and volume. Selectivity is now razor keen

Radiation, or the annoying broadcasting of squeals into neighboring antennae is eliminated removing one of the most prolific causes of radio interference and dissatisfaction.

Harshness and fuzziness of tone resulting from regeneration are eradicated. Even under full pressure, reproduction of voice or music is entirely natural and undistorted.

Mosher's Radio Shop

93 South Howell Street. HILLSDALE, MICH.

Dawn Theatre Hillsdale

A Butterfield Theatre

December 17
WILLIAM HAINES in
"BROWN of HARVARD"

Decembor 18
SATURDAY
TOM MIX in
"NO MAN'S GOLD"

December 19 and 20
SYNDAY and MON'Y
JOHN BARRYMORE in
"THE SEABEAST"

December 21
TUESDAY
LEON ERROL in
"CLOTHES MAKE THE PIRATE"

Wednesday, December 22nd
RENEE' ADOREE in "BLARNEY"

XMAS GOODS

Carving Sets, Chafing Dishes, Silverware, Aluminum Ware, Enameled ware Flash Lights, Sleds, Skates, Radio Sets, Safety Razors, Et. Etc.

We Can Supply You with the best makes of Radio. Come in and listen to the Stewart-Warner

John Williams

WERTZ' CASH PRICES

Red Salmon per can	33c
Pink Salmon per can	18c
Best Evaporatad Milk 5c and	10c
Peas per can	13c
Household Ammonia	10c
Potatoes per peck	35c
Smacko Oleo	25c
Better Chocolate Symonds Inn ½ lb.	27c
Symonds Inn Cocoa half pound	17c
New Walnut Meats ounce	7c
New Cleaned Currents pke	20c
Lemons per dozen	20c
Eight Bars Lenox Soap	25c
Michigan Cream Cheese per pound	33c
Raisins Package	13c
Matches Six boxes	33c
Jello Pkge	10c
Pastry Flour 24½ lbs Sack	93c
Besco Flour 24½ lbs. sack	$1.08
Wertz' Real Coffee, lb.	48c
Dates per lb	15
Badger Oleomargarine per pound	30c
Broken Taffy per pound	10c

Saturday Only, 10 Pounds Sugar with other trade 61c

CLYDE S. WERTZ

THE NORTH ADAMS ADVOCATE

Vol. XXXI — NORTH ADAMS, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1926 — No. 30

THE
Greendale Dairy
North Adams, Michigan
For the past year Associated with
The Franklin Creamery Company
Now operated by
The Franklin Creamery Company
Come in and let us serve you

THE CITIZENS BANK
[Unincorporated]
North Adams, Mich.
Resources Over $500,000
H. M. WILCOX, Pres. J. M. WILLIAMS V.Pres
A. J. HOFFMAN, Cashier
MRS. GRACE DOOLITTLE, Assistant Cashier
Co-Partners
J. M. WILLIAMS C. W. BLEECH A. WILLIAMS EST
A. J. HOFFMAN H. M. WILCOX B. I. LYNCH

[a] Safety on your money
[b] Yield on your money

I.—SAFETY: Building and Loan societies put 100 per cent of their investments in Real Estate. It is estimated that there are 9,000,000 share holders in Building and Loan Societies, having $5,000,000 in assets. Wayne county Savings Bank has $74,204,528 in savings: $41,140,576 is invested in Real Estate. The Central Savings and Trust Company has $28,961,093 in Savings, $27,294,298 are invested in Real Estate. The New York Life Insurance Company has $151,000,000 in assets invested in Illinois.
$94,000,000 Real Estate
$21,000,000 Railroad Bonds
$35,000,000 Public Utilities
$1,000,000 Municipal
Surely these facts are conclusive evidence of the safety of Real Estate.
II.—YIELD: In yield one cannot find so generous a return anywhere. In ten (10) years the following yields have been realized: Detroit 630 per cent; New York 217 per cent; Chicago 195 per cent; Atlanta 162 per cent; San Francisco, 159 per cent; Boston 137 per cent; Minneapolis 131 per cent; Kansas City 129 per cent; St. Louis 124 per cent; Cleveland 119 per cent; Philadelphia 116 per cent. Detroit yields three times as much as its next ranking city.
See DICK McBAIN, Moscow.

B. E. TAYLOR, Realtor
Community Builder
521-529 Ford Bldg. DETROIT, MICH.

Your Home should come
FIRST
For Gifts we have Rugs, Rockers, Kitchen Cabinets, Bed room Suites, appropriate for the Holiday season
and useful to all in the home
How about a Radio Cabinet?
We Have them at
$12.00 and $18.00

H. E. Young & Son
NORTH ADAMS, MICH.
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING

Local News

Patronize the item box at the post office.

Dr. C. J. Howe, Optometrist—Comfortable glasses, Hillsdale. 42tf

Mrs. George Swain is confined to her home with the grip.

Harold Shults of Skillman, Kentucky, visited here this week.

Miss Ona Fowler of the University of Michigan is home to spend the Christmas vacation.

—Remember the Christmas pageant at the Methodist church this evening, Dec. 24th.

For Rent—Barn suitable for garage in North Adams. Phone 5001. Mrs. Frances Rickerd. 29t3

Burr Hewitt and daughters of Addison and Basel Johns of Jackson visited Mrs. Della Gillett last Sunday.

Prof. and Mrs. C. B. Clark of Hillsdale College were guests on Wednesday of Rev. Jandy and family in this village.

Rev. Jandy, wife and baby expect to spend the week following Christmas in Chicago, as guests of Mr. Jandy's relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tetzlaff and sons Elwyn and Lawrence came Wednesday to spend Christmas with George Swain and wife.

—If you don't go anywhere else this Holiday Season, come to the Town Hall Tuesday Dec. 28th, and have a good time at the Eastern Star Dance.

Members of the W. C. T. U. and others interested in Bible Study are asked to preserve for reference the list of questions printed in the W. C. T. U. column of last week as these are sent out by the state and are to be used in regular meetings.

The Wolcott and Meeks families will spend Christmas day in Jonesville at the home of Adrian Smith. Mrs. L. W. Culver who is at present with her daughter in Jonesville will come later to pass the remainder of the winter in North Adams.

A meeting of all the clubs of Adams Township will be held Wednesday evening December 29 at the Grange Hall in this village. The election of officers followed by a program and light refreshments. Bring sandwiches or cake. All club members and parents are welcome.

The Womans League of the College church at Hillsdale will give a series of Holiday entertainments beginning December 31st in the shape of movies at the church at 4:00 in the afternoon and 7:00 in the evening to which North Adams people are most cordially invited. The subjects will be "In Bethlehem" "crooge" from Dickens Christmas carols and "Snow White".

The N. A. Library is indebted to Dr. Rockwell Kempton for the donation of the following books: "Max" R. C Thurston. "Capt. Blood" by R, Sabatini. "The Net" Rex Beach. "The Spoilers" Rex Beach. "The Riddle of the Rhine" Victor Lefebure, The Library will not be opened on Saturday, Christmas day. Those holding books due on that date, may keep them over without charge.

The first fire call for the new engine came Wednesday a little before noon when the house on the Jimmie Crisp farm first south of the railroad crossing on the angling road caught fire near the chimney. Unfortunately some confusion resulted and by the time the fire apparatus arrived the fire had been extinguished. Damage about $50. The house is occupied by Mr. Kroh and family,

The giant Sequoias are the largest and oldest living things in the world, says the Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture. The General Sherman tree, in the Sequoia National Park California, is thought to be the largest living tree. It is 279.9 feet tall and 36.5 in diameter above the root swelling. The bark, which is about a foot thick, affords a measure of protection against insect attack. Trees of this species live to be 3,000 or more years old. They are found only in California at present, but in earlier times they grew in other regions as well.

The time of year is at hand for renewing subscriptions on the Advocate and we wish to remind our patrons that we expect a generous remittance at this time. We shall have some very nice calendars and we hope every subscriber will take advantage of this opportunity to get one and at the same time square up for another year. The past year with us has been a busy one and to say that we are pleased would be putting it mildly. With one or two exceptions we have been awarded the printing in this territory. We hope to be the owner of a linotype before the year 1927 closes and this will enable us to handle late news more satisfactorily. A Merry Christmas to all.

Merchants report Holiday trade slightly below normal.

For Sale—Twenty five Pullets Inquire at Dietz Store, North Adams Mich.

On Wednesday Mrs. Frances Rickerd went to Mishawaka Indiana to spend the Holidays with her daughter Mrs. Caskey and family.

Miss Loritta Wertz was hostess at a six o'clock dinner Tuesday evening to the members of the class of '26. Music and games were enjoyed Miss Elsie Duval of Buffalo N. Y. was a guest of honor. Miss Wertz and Miss Duval are both student nurses at the U of M hospital.

Invitations have been received announcing the marriage of Margray Hayhoe of Hoxie to Mr. Earle Williams Friday evening December 24th at the Congregational church in this village at 8:30 also Miss Oleta Corey of Jonesville to Clyde Bemis at the same time. This double ceremony will be performed by Rev. Jandy.

Secretary of State Deland has taken the sale of license plates away from County Treasurer Aldrich and no license plates can now be bought in this county. The only reason given is that the Secretary of State elect does not approve of the present appointments as sellers of plates. The rather large shipment of plates which were sent to Hillsdale must be held up until further notice.

The Womans Club met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harriett Shepard, with a good attendance. Roll call was responded to with Christmas quotations. A paper on Stories of Emotions was read by Mrs. Allie Holkins who also read a story of VanDyke's to illustrate the paper. Mrs. Grace Williams sang a solo and the remainder of the time was spent in packing Christmas boxes.

Christmas at the Methodist church Friday evening 7:30. The following program will be given: Christmas Carol, Congregation; Prayer, Pastor; Recitations by Emma Beecher, Orlin Wells, Dorothy Smith; Song, Zella Wells; Recitations Laura Sommers and Barbara Gordon; Pageant "Star Beams" by the Children's Division; Recitation, Harlow Walworth Santa Claus will be present with gifts and hopes to see every child.

Among the young people home for the Holidays from school and college are Hillsdale College—Clara Burri, Lillian Pendell, Albert Roberts, Franklin Hill, and Lawrence Wilcox. From M. S. C.—Everett Westcott, Ralph Wolcott, Keith Williams and Marion Pierce. From State Normal College Ypsilanti, Frances Young, Ethel Brewer, Genevieve Roberts, Ethel Bohn. Cleary Business College Ypsilanti,—Lucille VanWert. Western State Normal Kalamazoo, Frances Bohn. Lorita Wertz Nurses Training School U of M Hospital Ann Arbor.

Senior Lecture Course

The second number on the Senior Lecture Course "The Little Theatre Party" was well patronized and we hear good reports of the repertoire of the players. These versatile people seemed to strike a true chord in the hearts of their hearers in their rendering of the three-act play "The Cure All". There will be no more entertainments on this schedule until February.

Adams Tax Notice

I will be at Citizens Bank North Adams Friday December 17 and at the First State Savings Bank in Hillsdale beginning Saturday December 18th, 1926 and each succeeding Friday and Saturday thereafter until Jan. 15th, 1927, for collecting taxes of Adams Township. Pay dog tax before January 9th, 1927, Arthur Holcomb, Treasurer. 28t3

DANCE
TOWN HALL, North Adams
Fri. Dec. 24 1926
Dance Bill $1, special

CREAM
We want your Cream.
Tested while you wait.
We pay best marketprice
CRATER & EDINGER

Methodist Church Calendar

REV. H. E. WYLIE, PASTOR
Morning worship 11:00
Sabbath School 10:00 A. M.
Epworth League 6:00 P. M.
Evening Worship 7:00

BAPTIST CHURCH

A. REISER, PASTOR
Preaching service every Sunday at 10:30 a. m.
Sunday school at 11:45
Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:30.

Congregational Church Calendar

E. C. JANDY, Pastor
Regular morning worship at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school 11:45

Chancery Notice

State of Michigan, First Judicial Circuit, In Chancery. Suit pending in said court wherein Thompson Savings Bank is plaintiff and James F. Sutfin and Carrie Sutfin are defendants. In pursuance of a decree of the circuit court for the county of Hillsdale, in chancery, made and entered on the 29th day of November, 1926, in the above entitled cause, I, the subscriber, a circuit court commissioner for the county of Hillsdale, shall sell at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the courthouse in said city of Hillsdale, in the County of Hillsdale, on the 15th day of January, 1927, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, Central Standard time. all those certain land and premises situate and being in the Township of Pittsford, county of Hillsdale ond state of Michigan, and described as follows to-wit; the east one-half of the northeast quarter of Section 3, Township 7 south, Range 1 west, containing eighty acres of land more or less.

Dated, December 2, 1926.

Glenn E. Miller,
Circuit Court Commissioner in and for the County of Hillsdale.
B. D. Chandler,
Attorney for Plaintiff, 27t6
Business Address, Hudson Mich.

BARBER'S
Pre-Inventory
SALE
CASH PRICES
Bring your Cash here and see what you can save

Over the Top flour, per sack	98c
Pride of Quincy flour, per sack	98c
Prince Albert smoking Tobacco	12c
Velvet smoking	12c
Camel Cigarettes per carton	$1.25
Barber's special Coffee per lb.	39c
Rosebud Tea 3 40c packages	$1.00
Quick Naptha Chips pe package	19c
Ivory Soap 7c; three cakes for	20c
All Matches pkg	5c
Challies, per yd.	14c
Stevens Crash	18c
English Prints yd	20c
Indian Head yd	25c
Stevenson and other brands Overalls and Jackets ea.	$1.19
Cotton Work Shirts	75c
Fleece Lined Underwear Union Suits	$1.29
Ladies Slippers	$3.95

R. A. Barber
North Adams, Mich.

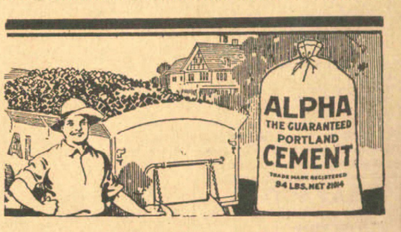
I'm Going to Ed Benge's market Don't Stop me!
Merry Christmas and Happy New Year
We have Fruits for the Holiday Season Oranges Grape Fruit; Grapes, Cranberries, Celery, Lettuce and a full line of Christmas Candies.
Groceries. A good place to trade
EDSON J. BENGE

20 Extra Quarts of Milk
Count 'em
From Every Sack of
International Special Dairy Molasses Feed
as compared to using wheat feeds or ground grains. We guarantee this increase has been secured in hundreds of actual tests.
INTERNATIONAL SPECIAL DAIRY MOLASSES FEED contains protein, molasses and fat combined in proper proportions to provide the necessary nutrients and energy required for maximum milk production. Both protein and molasses produce milk. Special Dairy contains both.
This great feed is digestible and palatable and is skillfully processed and mixed, thus insuring a big extra gain in milk.
Accept no substitute. Inferior brands offered by other mills cannot produce the same profitable results as Special Dairy.
Ask Your Feed Dealer
INTERNATIONAL SUGAR FEED CO.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA

Prices

One Hundred Pounds International Dairy Feed	$1.90
One Hnndred Pounds Hy-grade Corno Oat Feed	1.25
200 pound Cost	$ 3.15
100 pound Cost	1.57

F. I. WILLIAMS & SON



Coal That's All Coal—
Hourly Tested Cement
The Famous
POCAHONTAS CLINKERLESS
one of the cleanest burning coals of the Bituminous line
HARD COAL in Chestnut and Egg Sizes, We carry only the best Brands
GRAVES & FORD LUMBER COMPANY

An Especially Interesting Page on Various Subjects

Prepared for all Classes of People in all Walks of Life

PRITCHARD'S
WEATHER
FORECAST.

Week of December 26

The warm weather expected in Michigan at the very beginning of the week of December 26 will not last long and when the change to colder weather does come, it will be a decided cold wave. Although we are not expecting the worst of the cold wave will be felt in this state, there will be a marked drop in temperature about Tuesday.

The very early part of this week will bring rain or snow storms to many parts of the state.

During the middle days of the week temperatures will be low for the season and the weather generally fair. By Friday, however, the weather will begin to moderate and the sky cloud over. The end of the week will bring storms of wind, rain or snow.

New Year's Day

As the New Year comes to Michigan we are expecting wind storms together with a moderate fall of precipitation. Temperatures at this time will probably range below the seasonal normal.

January

Summing all weather conditions for the greater part of Michigan during January, 1927, we foresee temperatures ranging close to normal. Precipitation during this same period will average slightly below normal during the entire period, although there are apt to be one or two heavy rain or snow storms. While we believe weather conditions will be more or less steady during the month, there will be some sharp extremes.

Wholesale and retail fresh meat sales will run close to the average during January this year.

Virgin Timber Strip Borders Highway For Eight Miles

Four hundred feet of virgin timberland, exteanding along the Forest Lake-Au Train drive, declared by many to be the most beautiful roadway iin Michigan, will be conserved to perpetuate the natural setting which makes the road beautiful, as a result of the action taken by the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company, which leased the strip to the township of Au Train. The forested strip will extend 200 feet on either side of the highway for approximately eight miles.

Track Fox But Prize Proves to Be Badger

Tracking a fox which turned out to be badger was the experience of a party of Holland hunters near Port Sheldon. The dogs took the scent and led the hunters to the animal's hole. The badger had made a safe retreat and it took the hunters several hours to get the trophy. The animal weighed about 20 pounds.

Retain the Charm
Of Girlhood
A Clear Sweet Skin
Cuticura
Will Help You
Use Cuticura Soap Every Day

MARKS
FURNITURE HOUSE
"Used But Not Abused Furniture"
125 SOUTH DIVISION
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
Some Antiques
When Moving to Grand Rapids
Call on Us for Your Furniture.

IT'S A FACT
that notwithstanding the Superior quality of
RED ARROW
bread flour, its price is almost the same as ordinary flour. And it makes wonderful bread
WATSON-HIGGINS MILLING CO.
Grand Rapids, Michigan

Keep Eliminative System Active

Good Health Requires Good Elimination.

ONE can't feel well when there is a retention of poisonous waste in the blood. This is called a toxic condition, and is apt to make one tired, dull and languid. Other symptoms are sometimes toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Many people have learned the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, when the kidneys seem functionally inactive. Everywhere one finds enthusiastic Doan's users. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c
Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys
Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chem., Buffalo, N.Y.

"Find" Made Possible Longed-for Taxi Ride

One of the rarest books in the world in the first edition of Edgar Allan Poe's "Tamerlane." When it was printed he had only a few copies struck off and his name did not appear on the title page. Few copies were printed, because he could not pay his printer. So rare are these books now that, when they come up in the auction rooms, they command from $10,000 upward.

Not long ago a frail little women well over 60 appeared at the shop of a well-known Boston dealer in rare books with a bundle wrapped up in brown paper.

"I understand this is quite a valuable book," said she, as she unwrapped it before the eyes of the interested dealer. To his amazement a perfect copy of "Tamerlane" was disclosed which she said had been in her attic ever since she could remember. Having heard it was valuable, she wanted to know what he would give her for it.

"I should rather sell it for you on commission," said he—to which she agreed.

Later, when he sold it for $25,000 and turned the proceeds, less the commission, over to her, she said as she left his place of business: "I am going to have a ride in a taxi now. I have never had one in my life."—The Market for Exchange.

Single Error Fatal In Diamond Cutting

Great skill is required to produce the little flat surfaces popularly called facets, but technically known as tables, of cut diamonds. The work is exacting and entails much strain on the cutter's patience and on his eyes, a strain intensified by the knowledge that one false cut may ruin the size structure of a valuable gem. The rough diamond that is to be cut to a jewel is first worked in rubbing it with another rough diamond until the stone is roughly round. Next it is set in a composition of lead and tin to keep it from slipping during the cutting of the first facet. Mounted, it is placed in a lathe, which works at a speed of 2,800 revolutions a minute. When the facet is large enough and stands out at the proper angle to the axis of the lathe, it is polished till its characteristic radiance is displayed to the best advantage. It is then removed from the setting and the process is repeated for the subsequent facets. The number of facets depends on the size of the stone. Large stones have 58 facets, smaller ones 42, 34 or 18. Even the smallest diamonds, so small they can hardly be seen, have 18 facets.—London Daily Express.

Would Give Relics To Historical Body

J. B. Hecox of Portland recently came into possession of a number of relics, the former property of William W. Bogue, one of the pioneer residents and first merchant of the town, who has been dead many years.

Among them are two Howe sewing machines of the first types made and both inperfect order; a flint lock shot gun of colonial type, believed to have been the property of Indians, and many books and papers of early dates.

Mr. Hecox says he has no use for the relics and will turn them over to some historical society for safe keeping.

MOLE'S FOOD SUPPLY

The mole has the storing instinct well developed. It requires an enormous amount of food to keep it going, for every 48 hours it will devour about its own weight of food. Large stores of worms are sometimes found in a mole's run, and these appear to have been deprived of their powers of traveling in some way, although they remain alive. Thus the mole has a supply of food close at hand which is very serviceable in dry weather when its favorite article of diet is difficult to find.

PLAYER-PIANO ROLLS

Where it used to take weeks to make the 65-note roll for a player-piano it now takes but a very few minutes for a good player to make the modern player-piano roll. On this roll only the theme is played by hand. The orchestra and jazz notes are inserted by a mechanical process. The paper on which these rolls are made is 33 1-3 per cent rope or fiber. The perforated paper roll was invented in 1887 and the perforated music sheet appeared as early as 1842, when a Frenchman patented it in France.

The hills of Calhoun county, West Virginia, are noted for their steepness. A tourist from some western state was driving along one day when he came upon a man struggling in the road just ahead of the car. The driver stopped the car and helped the native to his feet.

"What's the matter, my good friend, an automobile hit you?" inquired the tourist.

"Hell, no!" replied the native, pointing to a cornfield above the road. "This makes the third time I've fell out of that there corn patch this year."

My, What a Shirt.

News item in Danbury, Conn., paper: "Orders for products are now so numerous that the Central Worsted Co. is on a day and night shirt."

Roberta Risks It

© MARGARET CAMERON LEWIS

SYNOPSIS

P. G. (Piggy)) Brazenose is an amiable young man with a diverting habit of getting into strange escapades—to the discomfort of his Big Business dad. By sheer chance he is placed in a position to be of aid to a spirited young lady, Roberta Scott. Her dad is holding "captive" her younger sister because of a love affair. He threatens to spoil her whole life in his misplaced zeal to "save" her from the lover he disapproves.

Piggy and Roberta elude a detective who is following her—a precaution of her father's—and head for the Scott country home where the sister is held. They use Piggy's car. For safety's sake, Roberta is disguised in widow's weeds. On the way, it develops that her father and Piggy's are business rivals. Undismayed they hurry on to the New Hampshire country place. En route, at a small town, Piggy is "discovered" by a college pal, but manages to shake him. Back on the road, they make a halt and dye his hair black to save him further recognition. Also he dons a chauffeur's costume. Arrived at last at the scene of action, which is carefully guarded, Roberta and Piggy investigate. Without warning Roberta's father speeds into the situation; obviously the attempted "rescue" has been reported to him. He, fortunately, does not recognize them. Here the story pauses while the events leading up to the adventure are cleared. It is shown why Roberta's fiance, Nixon was forced to ask Piggy to help her in his stead. Her father owns considerable stock in Nixon's struggling business and threatens to ruin him if he attempts to help Roberta in her crusade in her sister's behalf. Meanwhile Piggy's father worries over business troubles, chief of which is Scott's threatened invasion of his own field. On the field of action Piggy and Roberta establish a look-out post overseeing the Scott place.

And then several things happen—Read on!

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

As a matter of fact, Scott had considered during his long night drive the possibility of removing Celia and hiding her elsewhere, but the plan presented difficulties, for it required another spot as remote from officious neighbors as Birchwood, where the girl might be safely sequestered under strong guard. And there was the rub. As a watchdog his wife had lamentably failed; otherwise this situation would not have arisen. With Roberta at large in the country, her whereabouts and purposes alike unknown, he must keep Celia as much as possible under his own eye, and the business situation made it inexpedient for him to be away from New York for more than a few days at a time. All things considered, she was probably safer at Birchwood than elsewhere.

It should be said for Scott that he was honestly convinced of the infallibility of his own judgment. When events proved these to have been wrong, he never found the erroneous element in himself, but always in persons or circumstances thwarting him, which made him doubly ruthless in retaliation; and his great strength, physical and mental, combined with confidence to give him power. His lack was less intellectual than spiritual. Conceiving every man as the indisputable ruler of his own house and himself as inevitably right, he sincerely believed it to be his duty as a parent to dictate the direction of his daughter's thoughts and to govern the details of their lives, and felt himself aggrieved by their recalcitrancy. As Roberta had said, he was an anachronism, but he was not entirely unique. Here and there his like exists, the most recent and striking public example perhaps, being found in the person of a gentleman named Hohenzollern.

Confidence in the integrity of his fellow men had never been a conspicuous factor in Scott's character, and he put his faith now in his own strength and acumen, supplemented by conditions he could command at home; a barrier of barbed wire, trained dogs to keep out marauders, and a small corps of thoroughly intimidated servants who did his bidding at all times, if they knew what was good for them.

Unaware of this decision, however, Piggy careened over narrow winding roads to Fitzwilliam, where he got his field glass, laid in a supply of crackers and cheese at the general store of the village, and tore back at a speed imperiling the springs of his car, to the spot where he had left Roberta. Near by he found one of the many old wood roads of the region, made for hauling out brush or timber and seldom used, and followed it into a copse where he hid the car, erasing as well as he could the marks of his tires as he returned to the road.

Near the top of the hill he whistled several times, and at last a low echo answered him. He found Roberta crouching at the edge of a thicket. Her face was white against the somber cloud of her veil, her brown eyes blazing.

"Look!" she exclaimed. "He's bullying her."

Below them, set in a clearing on the opposite hillside, he saw a large flat-roofed gray house with many chimneys. Behind it was a large barn, a garage, and dog kennels. Adjoining the barn was a covered, open-fronted woodshed, perhaps originally designed as a shelter for wagons. Along the wide front of the house a terrace stretched, surrounded by small shrubberies and a few late-blossoming flowers.

On the terrace were two figures; a woman sat in a wicker chair, the cushions of which, tossed aside, made bright spots of color on the gravel, and before her stood a man, his feet well apart, evidently haranguing her.

"They've been there for half an hour," said Roberta. "Celia's been crying a little. I wonder what he's saying to her?"

Piggy handed her the glass, and while she adjusted it he spread the rug he had brought from the car for her to sit on, settling himself beside her to peer through the light screen of brush.

"She's discouraged," Roberta reported, watching through the glass. "I think she held her own at first. It looked that way. But now he's beating her down. I wish I knew what he's saying."

Scott was using strategy. Celia had withstood his primary onslaught, with its familiar charges of ingratitude, undutifulness, and obliquity. Again she had refused to tell him whether or not she had seen Roberta abroad. She had even sustained with a show of courage, though a few tears escaped her control, his statement that obviously Pierre had forgotten her, since no letter had come from him in the months she had been at home. At last, exasperated by continued failure, he said savagely:

"You needn't think anybody sympathizes with you. The last time I saw you you said that the Frenchman or Roberta would come for you. He's quit you cold, as anybody would, and Roberta's in this country now and hasn't made a move toward you."

"She is? Roberta's here?" Celia looked up with a flash of hope.

About Roberta's height, she had the same delicately-cut features; but her hair was lighter than her sister's, her brown eyes less clearly deep and sparkling, even when she was happy. Of late they had been dull. Now she was pale, but ordinarily the sensitive color came and went, varying with her emotions, under a peculiarly fair skin.

"She's here, all right, but she's not bothering about you," Scott replied. "She said she was going to Washington to get some client who's sick, and would sail again Saturday."

"Then you've seen her!"

"I have not."

"But how do you know—"

"I had her watched. I knew she was coming, and a detective followed her—"

"A detective! Oh, father!"

"—every minute she was in New York. Some friend of hers met her, and my man heard her say that she was going to Washington to get this woman—a Mrs. Miles—and that they'd sail Saturday. She said she didn't want to stay in this country any longer than she had to."

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

To Scott's satisfaction Celia shrank at this. But though these circumstantial details carried a certain conviction, her faith in her sister's loyalty and determination was not easily dispelled.

"I don't believe—I mean, she might have said that to deceive the detective, but she'd never come here without—"

"She didn't know he was a detective. He said she never looked at him. But he heard her order her trunk sent to the Congressional Limited, and afterward he followed her across the river and saw her buy a ticket for Washington. The man she was with said he'd see her at the dock Saturday. So you see what she amounts to. She's fooled you—thrown you over, as she does everybody. She's a selfish, disloyal ingrate, without any natural affection or any common sense—and you're headed in the same direction. As long as you keep it up you won't have any friends. Nobody has any use for you now, and nobody's going to do anything for you. When you come to your senses and promise to do as you're told—and apologize to your mother and me for this performance—you can go down to New York and enjoy yourself, with friends I approve of. Until then you'll stay here."

"You can't lock me up long—not after I'm of age," she faltered.

"What's the reason I can't? If you make trouble after you're of age, I'll have you declared mentally incompetent and put into a sanitarium under guard."

"Oh no—no, you couldn't!" she gasped, as much in question as in protest. She was too young and ignorant to be sure, that he could not carry out his threat, and experience had given her a terror of his power.

"You'll see whether I can or not. No girl in her right mind acts as you have. I think you're just a fool, but you may be crazy. If you're not, prove it. It's up to you. Think it over."

With that he turned abruptly and entered the house, from which a woman immediately emerged to keep an eye on the culprit. A few minutes later Celia also went in, drooping. To the two watching from the hillside she seemed like a wilted flower.

For some time they kept their glasses focused upon the house, but could discover no indications of unusual activity, no bustle of preparation for a hurried flitting. Servants appeared and disappeared apparently following their customary routine. The only one whom Roberta recognized was Cody, the chauffeur; the others, she said, she had never seen before.

They discussed briefly various impracticable suggestions for Celia's rescue, but in the end Piggy dismissed them all with a shrug.

"It's no good planning," he said. "Nothing ever happens as you think it's going to. The best way is to be ready for anything and jump when you see a chance. We'll stay here watching as long as we can. Then, if there's no sign of their skipping out, we'll go straight to Greenfield and buy the stuff we need before Janet comes. You'd better make a list."

He gave her an envelope from his pocket and a pencil, but Roberta sat looking off over the tapestried autumnal hills with a troubled frown.

"It isn't fair," she said, after long thought.

"What isn't fair?"

"For you to have to spend a lot more money for knives and forks and towels and things."

"Rats! That's what money's for. What does a little more matter?"

"But you're doing so much, anyway. I don't know what I should have done, if it hadn't been for you."

She lifted clear, glowing eyes to his and Piggy was shaken by a new sensation—an anomalous compound of warmth and shivery chill, creeping skin, tingling nerves, and racing pulses. He had felt something remotely akin to it before—when he stood poised to dive off Brooklyn Bridge, for example. But this was different.

"Rats!" he said gruffly, averting his glance. "That's all right. It's bully good sport."

"I know. I wouldn't mind so much if I could do my share. If only I had a little money, for instance."

"Well, I offered to loan you all you need, didn't I? That goes. Want some more? It's cheap at the price." Recovering himself on familiar ground, he gave her his wide, boyish smile. "I haven't had so much fun since Towser was a pup. But it's a fool thing to let yourself get so short, especially while traveling. How'd you you come to do it?"

"I didn't have very much saved, you see, and I spent most of it for—for my trousseau. Then, that last morning on the train, my purse disappeared. I must have dropped it, and whoever found it kept it. After I left the train I found a quarter in my pocket—"

"And gave it to the red-cap!" he exclaimed, his eyes shining. "By golly you're a sport!"

"It wouldn't have done me much good," she said, laughing, and coloring a little, too. "But I can't let you do it all. I'm going to write to Clif and ask him to send me some money."

"Who's Clif?"

"Clifford Nixon—my fiance."

"Oh."

"I'll have to tell him where I am anyway, and while I'm doing that—"

"What for? What's he got to do with it?"

"Well, we're engaged, you know."

"Are you going to marry that fellow, after the way he threw you down?" he demanded, forgetting that the conjugal transference to Nixon of the not inconsiderable cost of this expedition had been his own suggestion.

"Why, of course! He didn't throw me down—exactly."

"Huh!"

"You see, Clif's a business man. He makes the Nixon engine."

"A punk engine it is, too."

"He's trying to make it better, and something must have happened—something important—so he had to go somewhere right away. It's a comparatively new company, and he can't afford to have things go wrong. He'll come back as soon as he can, and he'll be frantic if he finds I've disappeared and left no word for him."

"Let him fran," Piggy callously recommended. "Do him good."

CHAPTER NINETEEN

"I don't think that would be quite fair, do you? Besides, he might be so worried that he'd tell father." Roberta's brow clouded.

"He can't tell him what he doesn't know, can he?" asked Piggy.

"He can say I made him promise to help me get Celia away—but I don't think he'd tell father that."

"Well, he didn't help you. He said you mustn't make a move on any account, and something about serious consequences. What did that mean?"

"I don't know," she admitted uneasily. "Unless father's got some hold on him. They used to be great friends. You see, I've been living abroad and haven't seen Clif for a long time—it's a year and a half—so I'm not as well posted as I might be. Anyway, I think I ought to let him know I'm not lost."

"All right. Let him know. Piggy was as near being sullen as one of of his cheerful nature could become. "Go and spoil it all, if you want to. Just like a girl!"

"But—Peter!"

"Go ahead and give the whole thing away. I'll get out."

"Oh, la, la! What on earth's the matter with you?"

Piggy was quite sure that he knew what was the matter. She was going to mess up a perfectly corking sporting proposition with sentiment. She wanted to bring into the game again a fellow who had already backed down once and left her in a hole. Of all despicable creatures in the known world, the one he most hated was a quiter. Nixon was a quitter. Therefore he hated him. To his mind his reasoning was axiomatic in its clarity, but he did not voice it.

Instead, he sat dumbly poking into the pine needles with a twig, flushed and indignant, and after regarding him a moment in dismay, Roberta said softly:

"I never dreamed you'd feel that way about it. Why, Peter, I can't do this without you! You've been perfectly wonderful, and if anybody can get Celia away you can. I thought I ought to let Clif know I hadn't been murdered, or kidnapped, or pushed down a crack somewhere and stepped on. But I won't if you don't want me to—if you think it would spoil anything."

"Sure it would. Spoil everything—every way," he grumbled. "In the first place, he doesn't want you to do this and he'd stop it if he could. In the second place, the fewer people who know where we are, the better. In th third place, he'd come chasing up here after you and queer the whole works by showing himself or something. Besides, I'm not going to take any more chances than I have to of being identified with this business. We can do it by ourselves, but if you want to get him into it, all right. I'll get out."

"I don't want to. You're a lot better at this sort of thing than he'd be," she said frankly. "But so far you've done everything, and I—"

"Your turn will come. Don't fret."

"All right. I won't any more. We're partners, Peter." She held out her hand and Piggy took it in a close grip, man-wise. Tiny like the rest of her, it was a firm little hand, yet curiously soft. He liked the feeling of it, but it gave him again that queer warm shiver, and he dropped it precipitately. Turning away to cover his strange embarrassment, he caught sight of the parcel of crackers and cheese.

"Hungry?" he asked, picking it up.

"Peter! Did you bring something to eat? Oh, la, la! You are a wonder! I'm ravenous."

Peace established between them again, they contentedly munched their food. Evidently luncheon was in progress at Birchwood, also, as no one was visible for some time. Eventually the door opened and a short, pudgy woman crossed the terrace, followed by Celia's listless figure.

"That's mother," said Roberta.

Piggy surveyed the lady through the glass in silence, but to himself he said: "She certainly looks the part. Cushions and cream for hers. Claws, too, I shouldn't wonder."

The two below, unconscious of observation, walked slowly toward a small orchard stretching along the hillside to the edge of the woodland.

"Out for exercise, I guess," he commented.

"And nagging," Roberta added. "Poor Celia!"

Presently the chauffeur was seen going toward the garage. Three dogs who had been asleep behind their kennels made a dash for him and were jerked to a stop at the end of their chains, when they fell to barking.

"Aha!" said Piggy. "There's the rest of the garrison. Turned loose at night, I suppose. Well—I like dogs, but there are times when they're superfluous. I wonder what that fellow's up to? Looks as if he was going to take out the car."

The chauffeur had opened the wide door of the garage and a moment later he backed out Scott's heavy black automobile, turned, and drove down the private road toward the highway.

"Going for gas, I guess," Piggy said. "Listen."

Through the crisp, silent air came the hum of the engine as the car turned westward up a slight grade.

"Sure Mike! come on," he commanded triumphantly.

"Where?"

"Wherever he's going. Keene probably. They can't get away while he's gone. That just shows you that plans are no good. You never know what chances may offer."

"But I don't see—"

"Aw, wake up! I'll cultivate him while you shop. Us shofers stand together, lady. Maybe I'll find out something. Come on. Hustle!"

(To be continued.)

"You are sun kissed," remarked Margie.

"There were others," announced Maud.

20 KINDS OF SNOW FENCE ARE TESTED

High snow fences do not always stop the most snow, according to J. T. Sharpenstien, maintenance superintendent of the local state highway office, who with V. R. Burton, research engineer from the Lansing office, has just returned from an inspection of the state highway experimental station near Alba. There the state highway department is testing about 20 varieties of snow fence, with 50-foot spaces between.

Stakes of various heights with marked scales for readings are set at convenient points. Sharpenstien says the high fences so far this season have not stopped the most snow, but later readings may change the total winter results.

Take Many Readings

There will be two observers stationed at the snow laboratory to take readings on the "habits" of drifting snow. Approximately 700 readings will be taken twice daily on snow depths besides the readings of the battery of meteorological instruments

It had been assumed that where it is necessary to place the snow fence the deeper the drift, but it was found that the the four solid board sections exactly the opposite had happened. These sections range in height from four to ten feet. The drifts were close to the low fence and higher while those caused by the high fence were farther away and not so deep.

These experiments are being watched not only throughout Michigan, but in many other states.

Charlie Sap—I thought you were a mind reader. Why do you study my hand?

Clairvoyant—Hand reading is less difficult in your case. Something more tangible to work on, you see. To begin with, I am sure you have a hand.

U. W. No. 765—12-20—1926.

BARBER BEAUTY SHOP
Equipment
Cash or Terms
KOKEN
BARBERS CHAIRS ARE THE VERY BEST
Leo E. Morris Co.
1011 Farmer St
Detroit, Mich.

ONE DIAL
Lowered Prices
Best possible Radio Performance at prices to suit every pocketbook
Prices according to Models from $65 to $300
Mohawk One Dial Radio
Of the "Airedale" it has been said:—"He can do anything the other dog can do and then whip the other dog."
That's Mohawk all over—and we can direct you to a dealer in your vicinity ready to prove it.
Write for literature and dealer's name.
SIX TUBES
CHIPPEWA $110
Shielded
Sole Michigan Distributors
Republic Radio Corporation
A. ZIMMERMAN, President
523 Jefferson Avenue
Detroit
54 N. Division St.,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

A Page Prepared Expressly For The Rural Home Makers

Farming—Horticulture—Fruit Growing—Stock Raising

Profitable Utilization of Sound Undergrade Fruit

By HOWARD F. McMILLAN, Hydraulic Press Manufacturing Co., Mt. Gilead, Ohio

The cream of the profits in the apple business is being dissipated each year by the costs of growing and handling unmarketable and low priced grades. For a period of five years the average annual crop has been two hundred and twenty million bushels. The United States Department of Agriculture divides it approximately as follows:

1. Marketed crop, 165,000,000 bushels or 75 per cent.
2. Unmarketed crop converted into by-products, 33,000,000 bushels or 15 per cent.
3. Unmarketed crop not utilized in any way, 22,000,000 bushels or 10 per cent.

The last item represents an enormous loss since these 22,000,000 bushels cost about as much per bushel to grow as the others, yet have brought the American orchardists no return.

The actual loss, however, totals considerably more than that shown in this one item, due to the quantities of fruit classed as "marketed" which are sold at profitless prices. For example—a survey of market conditions of Philadelphia in 1923 showed that two-thirds of the fruit sold at 50 cents or less, whereas the very minimum expense of only handling this low priced fruit was about 29 cents. This included the basket, packing, transportation and commissions. It is apparent that the growers of such fruit would not get production costs, much less a profit. As a result of this survey the growers serving the Philadelphia market are endeavoring to discourage attempts to sell under-grades, contending that the costs not only exceed the returns, but that the cheap crop blocks the market, hurting the sale of A-grades. All growers will recognize this as a concrete illustration of a general problem.

Including this class of profitless fruit as a part of the total unmarketable crop, the entire volume of undergrades to be disposed of increases considerably beyond the original figures given above.

A greater part of these apples of unmarketable grade, possess high potential value which gives the orchardist a splendid opportunity to increase his profits. The solution is the same as in many other industries—elimination or utilization of waste products.

In searching for a definite solution it is necessary to classify the undergrade fruit as to quality.

Unsound, rotten, wormy apples are worthless and it is a case of throwing good money after bad to attempt to make any use of them. This part of the present under-grade crop is complete waste which can be reduced only through scientific care of the orchard and the crop. Fortunately, however, the bulk of the under-grade crop from our modern commercial orchards is comprised of sound fruit. Their defects are those of undersize or superficial blemishes such as hard scab.

Solution to the Problem

The solution to the problem is the conversion of such apples into by products. In this class are such standard commodities as: Sweet cider, vinegar, apple butter, apple jelly, concentrated cider, pectin, canned apples, dried apples and perhaps others.

However, as has already been pointed out, the by-products business (largely the production of cider and vinegar) has been using only two-thirds of the present unmarketed crop, not to mention the fruit which should be taken off the market and converted into by-products.

It is therefore necessary to nearly double the volume of the by-products produced—and at the same time maintain the scale of prices. Here the law of supply and demand steps in. To double one (i.e. supply) means a radical increase in the other. This can best be done by concentrating production on the by-product which the public most desires, have it available when they desire it most—and in a form that meets with their heartiest approval.

Considering statistics as well as other forms of evidence the public's choice is a pure, high grade form of beverage cider. A potential market for genuine pure fruit drinks already exists. The public wants them, but thus far has been able to get but little in the way of fruit drinks that are real in anything except the name. The fruit growers who will give the consumers what they want will certainly cash in on a big market.

The so-called "sweet" cider business has failed to measure up to the situation for several reasons, among which are the following:

First—The quite prevalent use of distinctly unsound fruit, resulting in a product of equally inferior character.

Second—The sale of large quantities of juice in raw form. Such a product is strictly perishable and seasonable. The selling season is short and the markets consequently flooded.

Third—To get around the second difficulty, preservation of the raw juice is frequently attempted by methods which depreciate the quality and character, making it unacceptable to most consumers. The worst of these is the use of chemical preservatives, injuring both the flavor and healthfulness of the product.

To produce the sweet cider which will meet with the necessary widespread public demand, the following results must be attained:

1. The cider must keep sweet indefinitely, so as to be available for year 'round consumption, as well as to comply with the Federal law.
2. It must be pure.
3. It must have pleasing flavor.
4. It must have attractive appearance.
5. It must retain all of the healthful constituents of the raw fruit.

When these requirements are met "sweet" cider will become both popularized and legalized as well.

Eminent Authorities in Agreement.

Fortunately for the fruit grower, a number of authorities have concentrated their attention on the development of a means of producing cider and other fruit juices which measures up to these standards. The answer has beyond all doubt been reached—since all of these different authorities agree on fundamentals.

Dr. Frederick W. Murphy of New York City has given his conclusions in an article published recently by the New York Telegram and reprinted in The Fruit Products Journal, under a title which is a key to the whole problem, namely: "Apple Cider Is Real Food if Patseurized and Unfermented from Sound and Ripe Fruit." The following are significant quotations:

"Many inferior brands on the market are a serious menace to the public health—cider should be an all-year 'round drink.

"The separation of the bad from the good in the world is an important problem. The meat packing industry and the dairy industry perhaps have received more rigid inspection to eliminate contaminated products than most of the others. There are other perishable products, however, which are not so carefully supervised and regulated in their process of manufacture. The juice of the apple is a most beneficial food when unfermented and uncontaminated by putrifactive bacteria, otherwise not.

There is only one grade of apple cider fit for the human stomach and of real food value, that which is made from sound, ripe apples. Pure cider is a good natural laxative; but made from half-rotten apples, much more laxative, sometimes producing diarrhea, not from the pure natural constituents of the apple juice, but from the putrifactive bacteria.

"All cider will ferment unless pasteurized or treated with a preservative and fermentation means that the sugar has been changed into alcohol, which, in turn, oxidizes to cider vinegar. Slightly fermented cider in moderate quantity will not injure the body, but that which has had the sugar almost completely converted to vinegar is a diminisher of the red blood corpuscles.

"The pasteurized unfermented apple juice in sealed bottles is unquestionably the only product to buy. It contains all the antiscrobutic principles, with sodium, potassium, calcium of the apple and its mildly natural laxative property. We are assured that the heat of pasteurization has killed the bacteria before they had an opportunity to form compounds of decomposition. Pasteurized, unfermented apple juice in bottles is one of our most valuable and desirable fruit juices and beverages and does not contain tannin in excessive quantities as some other fruit juices do."

What could be more authoritative and final than the federal prohibition regulations. Note the following quotation from Section 631, Page 66 of the latest revised regulations No. 60, dated March, 1924:

"The process of preservation shall be adequately described in the application. A method of preserving by pasteurization and bottling in closed sterile containers is generally recognized as efficient."

As Professor Irish says—"For a first-class fruit product one should start with good fruit." We have already pointed out that this paper is concerned with the utilization of the sound fruit which is under-grade in point of size or superficial blemish. Sound windfalls which may be brought to the proper stage of maturity (as indicated later) may be included.

The Brown Fruit Farm, pioneer users of the Mount Gilead Process, advertises that every apple going into their cider is good enough to eat. That is the right idea since if it is not edible neither is it drinkable. Professor Chenoweth of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, in one of his papers, recently made this statement:

"There is a common belief that anything that looks like an apple or that has at sometime in the past been an apple, is good enough for cider. It is this belief more than any one other thing that has prevented sweet cider from taking the place it deserves as a nutrious, healthful soft drink."

Only fully matured, tree-ripe fruit should be used to secure juice of the proper quality. The ideal condition is when it is somewhat riper than fruit for packing and marketing, having developed the flavor and aroma characteristic of the particular variety, but is still too firm for eating. However, since cider making is a secondary orchard operation, the crop will no doubt be harvested at the market ripe condition. It is therefore desirable to hold the sorted cider apples for a few weeks until proper maturity is attained.

Ripening can be hastened by "sweating." This is best done by piling the fruit to a depth of not more than three feet on a false floor in a dry, airy place. Great care should be taken to keep any infected fruit out of these piles. Apples should never be piled in unsorted heaps on the ground and in the open.

The use of windfall apples should be governed by their condition and maturity. If their condition is such that they can be successfully matured by the method already indicated, they can be successfully used; otherwise they would ruin the quality of the juice.

In general, winter varieties only should be used, and these selected and mixed in definite proportions according to their character. To be acceptable to the user, a fruit beverage in addition to having the aroma and flavor characteristic of the fruit from which it is made must have the three constituents—sugar, tannin and acid, present in amounts which bear a rather definite ratio one to another.

If the tannin content of a juice is high in relation to its sugar and acid (as in many crabapples) the juice will be harsh and astringent; if the acidity is high the juice will be sour; if the sugar content is high in relation to the other constituents the juice will be more or less insipid. Moreover, apple varieties differ greatly in the amount of characteristic apple flavor possessed by their juices.

All apples naturally divide themselves into five general groups, according to their constituents and characteristics. These are:

(1) Sweet Sub-Acid — Such as Baldwin and Rome Beauty.
(2) Mildly Acid to Tart—Such as Jonathan and Stayman.
(3) Aromatic—Such as Delicious.
(4) Astringent—Such as Crab.
(5) Neutral—Such as Ben Davis.

All of these groups can be utilized in making batches for cider with the first two in predominance.

The fruit should be brought to the press in batches as it is required, and should not be stored for any length of time near the press or other equipment. The reason is that the skin of the fruit frequently bears yeast and fungi which, if left to grow undisturbed, may easily get into the juice. Many of these yeasts are quite resistant to heat with the result that they would pass through the pasteurization unharmed, and later form molds in the bottled juice.

The best preventative is to keep the apples away from the cider machinery and practice strict cleanliness in every part of the plant. This starts with the apples—they should be thoroughly washed before grinding and pressing.

Extracting the Cider.

The first operation in the production of cider is of course extracting the juice. The method used is important since it has much to do with the profitable operation of the cider business. With good equipment a maximum yield of juice will be secured from each bushel of apples, with low operating and labor costs. Any available juice which is not secured is absolute waste and, in some cases, represents a loss of profits of 25 to 50 per cent.

The factors which govern the juice yield are:

1. Reduction of apples to pomace.
2. Pressure.
3. Drainage.

The most favorable conditions with respect to each of these factors are met by the use of modern machinery. The apples are thoroughly ground in the modern style of high speed apple grater. The powerful hydraulic type of press will apply ample pressure and the use of the rack and cloth system of retaining the pomace while pressing permits the juice to escape readily.

Processing.

Once the juice has been pressed from the fruit it must be treated or processed to place it in a final stable form suitable for marketing. In this case where we are concerned with producing a high grade beverage juice, the chief steps are:

(1) Refining, (2) Bottling and (3) Preserving.

Refining is desirable for two reasons, i. e.: (1) To improve appearance and (2) To aid in preservation.

The first is accomplished by a particular method of clarification, filtering the juice through cakes of diatomaceous earth especially treated for this purpose. A plate type of filter suited to this method is used. The United States Bureau of Plant Industry has determined, through years of extensive research, that this is the only completely satisfactory method of clarifying fresh fruit juices. This method not only clears the juice, but also removes particles of microscopic size, thus giving it a brilliance and polish which greatly enhances the appearance and consequently the market value. This process is aided through the precipitation of certain gummy materials, pectins, etc., by a method of pre-heating. Otherwise these substances would be carried over in solution into the bottled juice to appear after pasteurization which would be too late for removal.

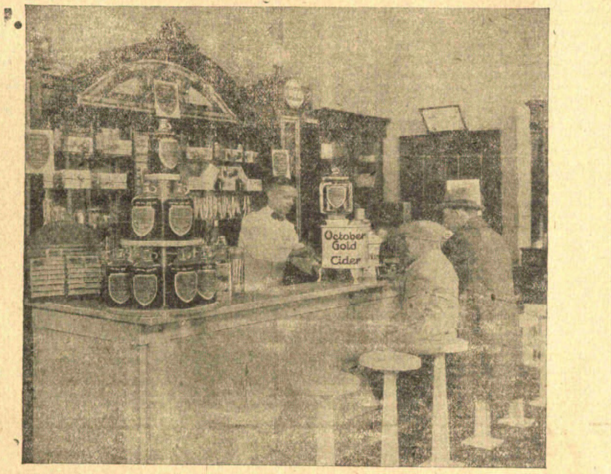
The part which the refining process plays in the preservation of the juice is two-fold:

First—By the removal of certain soluble substances as already indicated, the juice is placed in shape that it may later be pasteurized at safe temperatures without the remotest possibility of acquiring the so-called "cooked" taste. It isn't the juice that is affected by pasteurizing temperatures, but these unnecessary soluble substances.

Second—This particular method of refining removes any mold spores which might be present in the juice carried in with the fruit. This is great insurance against subsequent spoiling of the large quantities of juice in storage or on the market due to the development of fungus growths. It is not feasible to kill these spores by pasteurization as excessive temperatures would be required.

Immediately after the refining process is completed, the juice should be placed in sterile glass bottles or jugs which are hermetically sealed. This is important for the keeping qualities of the juice are dependent upon complete exclusion of outside air.

Pasteurizing is the final step in the process. This function is to kill the yeasts present which would otherwise cause the conversion of the sugar of the juice into alcohol.



A Columbus, Ohio, Soda Fountain that does a large business selling refined cider.

Remedy for Crown Gall

Crown-gall of nursery trees has caused serious loss to both nurserymen and fruit growers for many years. Root grafts of apples commonly develop the disease at the point of grafting probably due to infection through the cuts.

A partial solution to the problem at least has apparently been reached. E. A. Siegler of the U. S. Department of Agriculture has shown that an organic mercury compound is a practical germicide for controlling the crown gall disease upon root grafts.

When dug, as one-year-old trees, 2619 treated grafts showed only 6.1 per cent with galls of any sort while the same number of untreated grafts resulted in 32.6 per cent of trees with galls.

It is recommended that uncut seedlings and scions be first washed and then dipped in a solution of "Semesan"—1 part to 400 parts of water; 2. The grafts dipped again after being made and a third time just before planting.

Mulch Strawberry Patches Before the Heavy Freezes Come

Strawberry patches should be mulched as soon as possible so that they may be well protected when severe winter weather begins.

A good mulch prevents the drying out of the plants from the cold winter winds, since it reduces transpiration from plants to a large extent. A mulch also causes a more even soil temperature which reduces heaving caused by alternating freezing and thawing. Heaving tears the plant roots loose from the soil and the plants that are not killed during winter die early when dry weather sets in.

The strawberry field should be mulched to a depth of four or five inches with the cleanest straw obtainable. Clean straw is used to lessen the growth of weeds in the spring. When growth starts in the spring, remove the straw from the field or work it around the crowns of the plants to form a bed which keeps the berries out of the dirt and helps to keep down weeds and retain moisture. Remove the straw from between the rows to allow cultivation.

Hairless Peaches or Nectarines

Nectarines are peaches without fuzz and as such deserve the serious consideration of fruit growers who are so situated that they can grow peaches, declares the horticulturist at the State Experiment Station at Geneva. Nectarines are just as thrifty, bear as abundantly, and require no more care than peaches, while they are no smaller, have firmer flesh and greater aroma than peaches, and possess a rich, nectar-like flavor, says this authority.

There are cling-stone and free-stone varieties of nectarines, just as there are of peaches, while the flesh may be red, yellow, or white. The trees of the nectarine cannot be told from peach trees, except when the fruit is present. Nectarines are peaches in every respect save for the fuzziness of the skin, it is said.

Nectarines may spring from peach stones, and peaches sometimes come from nectarine stones. Peach trees now and then produce nectarines on a twig or branch, the rest of the tree bearing peaches, and nectarine trees likewise have been known to produce peaches. Once in a while a peach tree or a nectarine tree will bear an individual fruit that is part nectarine and part peach.

There are now more than 30 varieties of nectarines growing on the Station grounds, the best of which is probably the Hunter. Other good sorts include the Downton, Elruge, Hardwicke, Newton, and Victoria. Certainly all who grow fruit for their own pleasure should try one or more of these varieties, while nectarines would undoubtedly sell well in local markets and on the roadside stand.

Fruit a Body Builder

The brain is a parasite which is nourished by the human body and contributes nothing directly to the support of it. It draws all it contains and all it gives out from the body, just as the tiny worm receives its nutrition by burrowing into the heart of the tree. Yet the brain cannot live and be energetic, and in turn give out brilliancy unless what it derives it from is properly fed with the brilliant food elements.

There are fifteen elements which compose the human body, and though the body is composed mostly of water the other elements are the brilliant ones. We are in an age of fads and fancies. Dress, mannerisms, etiquette, hair dressing, etc. I am not interested in the outward fads, and by this I mean what our bodies, dictated to by our brains, put forth for external impressions for others. Sometimes we gather to ourselves worthy fads, and at other times unworthy ones. For several years we have had with us the vegetable, fruit and nut fad; the eating of these three foods to the exclusion of other foods. This fad has much to recommend it, and yet at the same time much to condemn it. This fad is a food paradox.

Vegetables, nuts, and particularly fruits, contain some of our most valuable body builders and maintainers; but they must be balanced with other foods. The American public as well as the people of other countries do not eat enough vegetables, fruits and nuts; but to eat these foods to the exclusion of other foods such as red meats, fad meats, lean meats, fat gsh, lean fish and shell fish is equally as bad and will cause "body deficiency." And the parasite brain will not and cannot give out proper brilliancy. The dried fruits offer, as they are produced today by the reputable manufacturers, a very economical nutritious food containing a wealth of mineral salts.

The raisin contains a large amount of iron, without which the red blood corpuscle cannot continue to function in the body. One concern advertises very aptly to present its chocolate-covered product when they call it "the Iron Man." Iron in the blood makes an "Iron Man." Iron absent from the blood makes an enaemic man. Dried fruits today are excellent foods but only when produced by reputable manufacturers. Dried fruits of a few years ago were body destroyers. Bleached with sulphur, which in the body turns to sulphuric acid, which is a body destroyer, dried fruits of years ago were worse than useless. But why go back to years ago! We live in the present and that is all you and I are interested in, and today the use of sulphur, except in rare cases, has been abandoned. It had to be!

A man who signs his name to a loan note is accepted as guaranteeing the payment of the note, and a man who puts his name or firm name on a box of dried fruit and sells it to the public guarantees, or should, payment in health and nutrition. There are two methods of drying fruits for preservation. By the sun and by mechanical means.

Our Poultry Department

LATE MOLT AND CULLING

The time of molting and the condition of the plumage are one of the best indications of egg production. Most hens stop laying while they are shedding their feathers. The heavy producers are usually those that lay longest through the summer. These hens spend all their time and energy in the production of eggs and therefore keep the old coat of feathers regardless of how worn and untidy they may be. The hen that begins to shed her feathers in July or August, or that has a bright, clean plumage through the summer, spends much of her time looking after herself and is a poor producer. The best hens molt late in the fall and the late molters renew their feathers much more rapidly than those that shed early. The hen that stops laying in June or July and begins to molt should be culled at once. The time of hatching apparently has nothing to do with the time that a hen will molt.

The hen that is hatched early and starts to lay early does not necessarily start to molt early the following fall, nor does the hen that starts to lay early continue to lay any later the following fall. The hen that has a natural tendency for egg production will continue laying through the summer until she has completed her period of production, regardless of the time she started, and will molt afterward. Hens of the general purpose and those of the meat breeds sometimes lay and molt at the same time. The feathers are dropped gradually and the hen has every other indication of a high producer. Disease, irregular feeding or anything that will check egg production in early summer tends to force the molt and such condition should be taken into consideration when culling. Select the late molter as a high producer.

Cull all hens that are sick, weak, inactive, lacking in vigor, poor eaters, with shrunken, hard, dull or whitish-colored comb; with thick, stiff pelvic bones that are close together; small spread or distance between rear end of keel and pelvic bones; full, firm or hard abdomen; and usually those that have molted or begun to molt in August or September. In breeds having yellow legs and skin the discarded hens should also show yellow or medium yellow legs and yellow beaks and vents.

Keep the hens that are healthy, vigorous, active, good eaters, with plump bright-red combs; large, moist vents; thin, pliable pelvic bones spread well apart; a wide spread between pelvic bones and rear of keel; large, soft, pliable abdomen; and neither molted nor molting in August or September. In breeds with yellow legs and skin the hens kept should also show pale or white legs and pale or white beaks and vents.

M. S. C. TO EXPERIMENT ON CORNLESS POULTRY RATION

The fight against the European corn borer is not just in the front line trenches, it extends away back down the line. Now the poultry husbandry department of the Michigan State College is making plans to carry on extensive experiments during this winter to determine substitutes for corn in the poultry ration, if there are any.

The experiments will be placed in charge of a graduate student. He will be given a flock of hens to feed and the eggs produced by these birds will be placed in incubators to study the effect of various feeds upon the hatchability of the eggs. In this respect the project will "kill two birds with one stone."

Prof. C. G. Card, head of the department, recently outlined this program to members of the Michigan poultry Improvement Association who had suggested the college give some consideration to the relationship of poultry feeds to the hatchability of eggs produced on different rations.

In the experiment hens of the same parentage, breeding, age and vigor will be used. Prof. Card proposes to divide the flock into pens, feeding one pen on a ration in which corn will be the basic element, while the other pens will receive limited quantities of corn or none. As far as possible the eggs will be taken directly from the laying houses to the incubators, where the hatchability will be checked.

We Buy and Sell
Listed and Unlisted
STOCKS and BONDS
H. A. BENJAMIN & CO.
Member Detroit Stock Exchange
905 Dime Bank Bldg.
Cadillac 1460 Detroit, Mich.

WE TEACH
STEAM ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL POWER
And
HOUSE WIRING
DETROIT PRACTICAL SCHOOL
23 East Jefferson, Detroit
W. B. MacDonald, M.E.I.C., M.I.E.S
Gus Lender, M.A.I.E.E.; U. C. C. of E., N.A.S.E.

Get Settled

You surely don't intend to stay on your present job all your life. Become a barber the Moler way—from our school to independence in a shop of your own is a short and easy step. Change for better now. Write for free booklet today!

Moler Barber Colleges
33 Years Established 32 Branches
559 Michigan Ave., Detroit.

ENORMOUS PROFITS
Made by Investors

"No investment on earth is so safe, so sure, so certain to enrich its owner as undeveloped realty. I always advise my friends to place their savings in realty near some growing city. There is no such savings bank anywhere."
—Grover Cleveland.

The AVRAEGE annual rate of increase in value of Wayne County real estate outside the city limts—60% per year—AND CUT THAT INTO ONE-THIRD.

Let us say that instead of increasing 60% in value in ONE year, it takes THREE years for a piece of well located subdivision property to increase 60% in value.

On this assumption, a well located $1,000 lot bought today, would be worth $1,600 three years from now.

Our properties are strategically located, being surrounded by the greatest industrial activity the world has ever known.

For further information write
L. W. MARTIN
Second Floor American State Bank Bldg., DETROIT, MICH.
Banking reference.

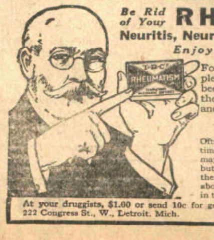
Land Contracts
Yeild 12% to 15%
FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS
Secured by Improved
DETROIT REAL ESTATE
H. A. Benjamin & Company
Investment Bankers
MEMBERS
Detroti Stovk Exchange
905 Dime Bank Bldg.,
Phones, Cadillac 1460-2892
DETROIT, MICH.
FURTHER INFORMATION SENT ON REQUEST

REMOVE CORNS and CALLUSES!

The RED FOOT WAY the NEW WAY

Stinging pain of hard or soft corns or calluses leaves when you apply RED FOOT CORN AND CALLUS REMOVER. After 4 to 10 days you lift the corn or callus right off, no matter how long standing or how many failures. Originated by famous French chemists. Thousands of grateful users all over the world. No pads, liquids or collodion. By mail only, large 1 oz. jar $1.00, prepaid.

RED FOOT PRODUCTS CO., Inc.
(Dept. B) 227 Woodward Avenue, DETROIT, MICH.



Be Rid of Your RHEUMATISM
Neuritis, Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago
Enjoy life as you should

For over twenty years TRC's (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules) have been effectively used by Thousands in the successful curbing of these cruel and gnawing pains. Be well advised:

START TAKING T-R-C's TODAY

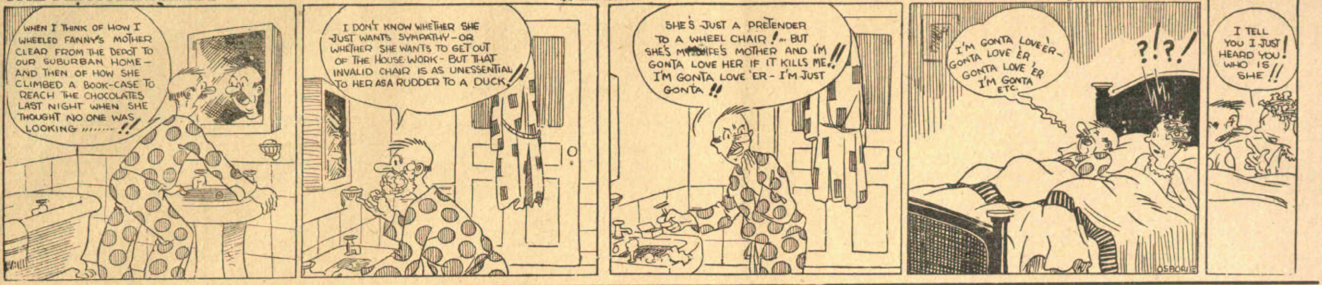
Often a $1.00 box is all that is needed. Sometimes in more severe cases two or three boxes may be required to obtain the desired results, but T-R-C's are most efficient and we are therefore able to GUARANTEE them. Read about this MONEY BACK GUARANTEE in the circular of directions in your box.

At your druggists, $1.00 or send 10c for generous trial and literature to Templetons 222 Congress St., W., Detroit. Mich.

THE FEATHERHEADS

By Osborne
(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

Felix Disciplines Himself



WHEN I THINK OF HOW I WHEELED FANNY'S MOTHER CLEAR FROM THE DEPOT TO OUR SUBURBAN HOME – AND THEN OF HOW SHE CLIMBED A BOOK-CASE TO REACH THE CHOCOLATES LAST NIGHT WHEN SHE THOUGHT NO ONE WAS LOOKING ....!!
I DON'T KNOW WHETHER SHE JUST WANTS SYMPATHY – OR WHETHER SHE WANTS TO GET OUT OF THE HOUSE WORK – BUT THAT INVALID CHAIR IS AS UNESSENTIAL TO HER AS A RUDDER TO A DUCK!!
SHE'S JUST A PRETENDER TO A WHEEL CHAIR!... BUT SHE'S MY WIFE'S MOTHER AND I'M GONTA LOVE HER IF IT KILLS ME!! I'M GONTA LOVE 'ER – I'M JUST GONTA!!
I'M GONTA LOVE 'ER – GONTA LOVE 'ER, GONTA LOVE 'ER I'M GONTA ETC.
?!?!
I TELL YOU I JUST HEARD YOU! WHO IS SHE!!
OSBORNE

Patronize Our Advertisers

They are all boosters and deserve your business.

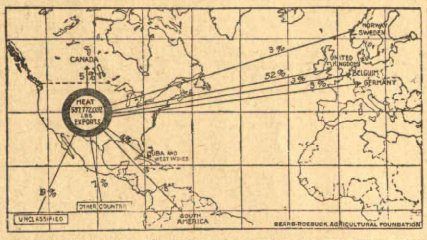
Coleridge's Hat His Bank

Coleridge, the writer, had a peculiar way of keeping his money concealed in his hat and kept his manuscripts in the bathtub. For many years he had little enough money and didn't need much room for it, whereas his manuscripts during that time required a spacious container.

Quickest Market Service by Air

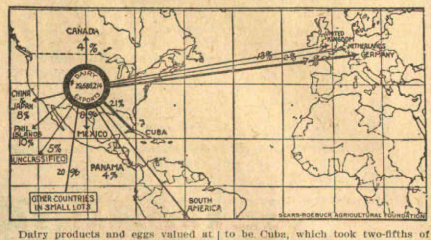
THE farmer today has a better market ticker service than the Wall Street broker. James E. Poole, for more than twenty years recognized as the best-informed live-stock market reporter in Chicago, steps to the microphone every morning at 9:30 and via WLS, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation Station, Chicago, gives the farmer the most complete live-stock market report broadcast from any radio station in the country. At 12:20 he is on the air again with ten minutes full of terse advice to farmers on market conditions, and whether to sell quick or hold cattle, hogs and sheep for better prices. This lightning market report service, which gives the farmer the current price on his produce at the moment he wishes to make his deal, is reorganizing farm marketing and making the farmer a better business man, according to Samuel R. Guard, Director of the Foundation.

U. S. Exports 537,772,092 Pounds of Meat, Worth $109,872,185



Exports of meat from the United States in the twelve months ending June 30, 1926, amounted to 537,772,092 pounds, valued at $109,872,185, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation in a survey of the 1926 meat situation. Great Britain was the biggest customer, taking 52 per cent of all the meat exports in the last fiscal year and more than six times as much as Cuba and the West Indies, the next largest buyers. Canada ranked third but took only 5 per cent, and Germany was fourth, taking slightly less than 3 per cent. Belgium and the Scandinavian countries are other nations to which the United States delivers yearly substantial quantities of meat. Germany, on the other hand, was a lard customer, taking about 13 pounds of lard for each pound of our meats she purchased. Beef and veal exports make up only about 4 per cent of the total amount of United States meat exports.

$29,686,214 in Dairy Products and Eggs Shipped Out of U. S.



Dairy products and eggs valued at $29,686,214 were exported from the United States in the year ending June 30, 1926, according to a statement on the export situation issued by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Canned milk topped the list, with eggs second, cheese third and butter fourth. The principal export market for these products proved to be Cuba, which took two-fifths of the eggs shipped abroad and was next to the United Kingdom as a buyer of canned milk. Great Britain was the second largest customer for these products, with the Philippine Islands in third position. Mexico, Germany, China and Japan, Panama and Canada were the other markets which bought the surpluses of these products.

Advocate and MICHIGAN FARMER, both one year $2.15

W. C. T. U. Column

LAURA WALWORTH, EDITOR

Panic Proof Christianity

The apparent state of the public mind on the prohibition question makes appropriate a few words on the need of our keeping cool as part of our duty as Christian citizens According to some of the newspapers, one would think that the people of this country were about to repeal the Volstead Act and the Eighteenth Amendment forthwith. As a result some good poople—thoroughly devoted to the prohibition cause—are in such despair that they are almost tempted to ask, "What's the use?"

Suppose we look at a few facts. I am not much given to drawing on war for illustrations, but one principle of fighting in the Great War has at least figurative suggestiveness for the matter in hand. It used to be said among the trench-fighters of the Great War that they had not completed an attack till they had dealt with the counter attack. We are now in the stage of dealing with the counter attack in the prohibition warfare. In other words, there is no cause for surprise in the present activities of the foes of prohibition. Surprise is an element of panic and any fighter is anxious to astonish his opponents with a show of unexpected vigor. When we consider the extent of drinking in the United States in pre-prohibition days, when we remember how little the moderate drinkers and the immoderate drinkers cared for any interests except their own, when we reflect on the money to be made out of the liquor traffic, what is there surprising about the uproar of the counter attack? The soldiers used to tell us that a counter attack after an advance was always to be expected—and that the way to deal with a counter attack was to dig in and hold steady.

A good deal is being made just now of the threat to democracy in the denial of personal liberty involved in prohibition. My own memory now has a span of fifty years and during all that I have heard this argument for personal liberty discussed—heard it as a child, as a youth, as a man—heard all the changes rung on it. After more than fifty years' discussion the people of this nation decided that social liberty is, so far as the liquor question goes, of more importance than personal liberty. A little good sense and a little sense of humor ought to help us with some of the personal liberty advocates. Sometime ago a brother with a grave and serious face told me of a citizen who had always been a total abstainer but who had become so outraged at the denial of personal liberty in prohibition that he had taken to drinking as a protest against the law! Well! Well! Was it not Dickens who told of a man who took offense at the statement that a certain favorite food tended to kill people, filled himself up with that delicacy, and then blew his brains out to show that he would die of something else than his precious dish? Sam Weller said that it was death for principle and even the Pickwickians were keen enough to catch something of Sam's humor.

Whatever else we may say about the advocates of liquor we can hardly say that they are talking much more logically now than they formerly did. In one breath they tell us that more liquor is being sold now than ever before and in the next they rail against the hampering restrictions of the law. They tell us of the terrible ravages of poison whiskey, allowing us to infer that they want the sale of "good" whiskey restored; and then when we talk of the social dangers of good whiskey they shriek out, "Who wants whiskey back? All we want is beer and light wines." They tell us that nobody wants the saloon, and rather give the impression that they want a prohibition of the saloon to stand, till somebody points out that saloons as such are not prohibited.

In 1917 this country had become sick and tired of the saloon and all that went with it. The saloon and the liquor traffic were looked upon as past redemption. Every argument for them has been given a hearing, every expedient for lessening their deadliness had been tried out. The whole business got steadily worse. Not one constructive suggestion is being made today by the friends of a liquor traffic that a patient, indeed a too-patient, nation has not in principle tested and found wanting. If American democracy goes back to the saloon, it will be a manifestation of social shortness of memory beyond anything in history.

I repeat that there is no occasion for panic. On the other hand, it would be unpardonable folly to go to sleep during the liquor traffic's counter attack. We need to keep our eyes open and our wits about us. We can and will hold steadily till final victory is assured, —The Union Signal.

Clubs Train Leader State Girl Typical

Gladys Egger who lives at Topaz in Ontanagon county typifies the ideal club girl in the opinion of leaders of boys and girls club work in this state. In order to express appreciation of the work which Gladys has done, the leaders awarded her a trip to Chicago to the Boys and Girls Club Congress.

Miss Egger is sixteen years old and now is completing her high school work. She has completed three years of garment club work and three years of the canning club project. During these years, this girl has won a county championship and a state championship in club activities. This year, the trip to Chicago was given her as a sweepstakes prize.

Last summer the girls who live near Topaz wanted to enroll in a new club project, and to enable them to get this opportunity Gladys was appointed local leader for them when it was found impossible to get an older person to take the responsibility. In addition to this outside work, Gladys does the sewing for her family and puts up over a hundred cans of fruit and vegetables each summer. She also cared for a fair sized dairy herd last winter when her father was sick for six weeks.

Miss Emma DuBord, assistant state club leader, says that, while Gladys Egger is an outstanding example of the boys and girls enrolled in club work, many cases of the assuming of responsibility by such youngsters is found on the records of boys and girls club work Club projects are planned to train the members to help themselves, their families, and their communities, according to Miss DuBord.

Good Seed Brings Oat Championship

Good seed of an adapted variety has brought the oat championship of Michigan to William Schweitzer, Bay county farmer, who grew 964 bushels of oats on nine and one half acres a yield of slightly more than 101 bushels to the acre. He has been unofficially named champion oat grower of the Michigan Crop Improvement Association by officials of the organization

The farm on which the record yield was produced is composed of low lying, heavy, black soil known for its productivity but on which oat growing is attended by the risk of having the crop go flat about the time it ripens. Worthy oats, a variety with stiff straw developed at M. S. C. several years ago avoids much of this danger according to Mr. Schweitzer and has always produced well. This is the third successive year that his oat yield has exceeded 95 bushels to the acre Statistics on yields over Michigan show that Mr. Schweitzer produced a crop on his nine and one half acres as valuable as the average Michigan farmer produces on 19 and one-half acres.

Correct English

MONTHLY MAGAZINE

Authoritive Exponent of English for 24 Years

Edited and founded by
JOSEPHINF TURCK BAKER
Famous World English Authority

Send 10 Cents for Sample Copy
Correct English Publishing Company
Evanston, Illinois
Agents Wanted Everywhere

F. E. Caswell D. V. M.
Veterinarian
Office at Residence, West Main St
Private Phone 45
North Adams, Mich.

Dr. L. R. ULRICH
DENTIST
Private Office in Room over Perkins' Restaurant
Thursdays hours 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.
Plate Work a Specialty

O. G. McFarland M. D.
North Adams, Mich.
OFFICE HOURS: 8:00 to 9:00 a. m.
1:00 to 4:00 p. m.
7:00 to 8:00 p. m.

"I was bothered with a hard persistent cough, and tried other medicines, but none were so good and so relieving as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound."
E. Boggess,
Pomona, Calif.

Coughs and throat irritations, hard bronchial coughs, lingering "flu" coughs, yield quickly to

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND

Liked by children, effective for grown-ups — Sold everywhere

C. S. Wertz, North Adams

Through cooperation of the Michigan Forestry Association and the Michigan State Department of Education, 45,000 copies of the "Forestry Primer" will be distributed to the schools of Michigan according to Prof. A. K. Chittenden, head of the M. S. C. forestry department and president of the forestry association. A copy of the "primer" will be placed in the hands of each of the 26,000 teachers of the state. The "Forestry Primer" has been written in a manner to show the importance of forestry to the individual and to show the need for timber growing and fire protection.

Blankets For President Coolidge

Kind friends of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge have obligingly sent to them woollen blankets for winter use and these like countless other things have been duly acknowledged by the Chief Executive, but of course as everybody knows they can never use half the stuff which is sent them.

With each pair of blankets, Mr. Probert has sent a beautiful card emblazoned with a medallion portrait of Woodrow Wilson and a vista showing the dome of the Capitol, the Washington Monument, and a peaceful stretch of grassy sward, with this explanatory text:

"President Wilson, during the great World War, kept on the White House lawns a flock of sheep. Many who saw these peaceful animals contentedly grazing there while a world was aflame little realized that they were doing war duty. While they adorned the landscape, they kept the greensward trimmed down and thus released for war service the men who had been engaged in that work. They performed a further patriotic service. Their wool the President gave to the American Red Cross, which apportioned it among the Red Cross chapters of the States. At patriotic auctions, it brought as high as $10,000 a pound—the highest priced wool in history. How many American soldiers on Flanders Fields were relieved of their pain by the ministrations made possible in part by these sheep no one knows. The Great War President, in the dark days of that time found peace of mind in having these beautiful, docile animals about him. When Mr. Wilson left the White House, this flock of sheep went to live at Homeland Farms, at Olney Md., where they have since remained and increased in number until in 1926 they numbered more than 50. None of their wool ever has been sold in the channels of trade. It has instead been carefully preserved, to be manufactured into these blankets, for distribution among the Great War President's close friends and admirers.

They See Everything

Though angleworms cannot distinguish objects, they are not blind. They have light-sensitive organs distributed along the whole length of their bodies that perform the function of the normal eye.

TO MARK FIRST HOSPITAL SITE

Location of St. Mary's Forerunner One of 20 Selected by Local Firm

The site of the first hospital in Michigan, St. Vincent's, the fore-runner of the present day St. Mary's Hospital, which was opened in three log cabins on the southwest corner of Randolph and Larned streets by four Sisters of Charity, June 9, 1845 is one of 20 historical spots in Detroit which are to be marked with bronze tablets in September, 1926, by a leading department store, it was recently announced.

Announcement of the forthcoming erection of these markers calls to mind the seldom remembered fact that the Sisters of Charity have been caring for Detroit's sick and afflicted, rich and poor alike, from that June day, 81 years ago, right up to the present time. St. Mary's Hospital is the direct outgrowth of the original St. Vincent's and it has occupied the same location, on St. Antoine street between Clinton and Mullett streets, for the past 76 years.

The first patient received at St. Vincent's was Robert Bridgman, a city charge suffering from an ulcerated leg. According to the records, Bridgman remained at the hospital until 1850, when he left "greatly improved and very grateful". Bridgman was an Englishman, an Episcopalian and without means. He was cared for by the Sisters until ready to leave—their aim being, as it is today —to care for all the sick poor, regardless of creed.

When the hospital was established, Detroit had a population of approximately 11,000. The records of the old institution show that even in that early day people of all nationalities had flocked to the city. Among those treated at the hospital during the first few months are listed Frenchmen, English, Swiss, Germans and Irish. Out of the first 20 patients cared for, eight were Protestants and about two-thirds were city or county charges.

There has seldom been a time in the history of St. Mary's Hospital when it was not crowded for room. In 1849 it found relief when Antoine Beaubien presented the Sisters with a plat of land on his farm at the corner of Clinton and St. Antoine streets. Here a substantial brick building was erected and opened in 1850. In 1879 the front part of the present structure was opened. Since that time the building has been remodeled, enlarged and added to at frequent intervals until it now comprises three large sections with a total normal capacity of 300 beds, a nurses' home and a power house.

Today St. Mary's Hospital has reached a size undreamed of by its foundresses. It has been recognized by the American College of Surgeons as one of the first hospitals of the land. Every modern device which science has perfected for the alleviation of human suffering is to be found in the hospital, which is advancing constantly with the fields of medicine and surgery.

X-ray rooms, a modern pharmacy, bacteriological laboratories, physiological chemistry laboratories, a division of serology, and one of therapeutics where modern "heat and light" treatments are used, 10 large fully-equipped operating rooms, sterilizing chambers, one of the most modern maternity divisions in Michigan and half-a-dozen other features all contribute to the high standard of efficiency maintained in the institution by the Sisters of Charity.

The records of the original institution, for the first few years, are contained on two or three pages of the admission book. During the year 1925 St. Mary's took care of 8,118 patients and at the close of the present year the figure will be even higher

The Sisters of Charity were founded by St. Vincent de Paul in 1617. They were the first to gain a wider sphere of action as nuns at that time belonged to cloistered orders. The American branch was founded in 1809 by Mother Elizabeth Ann Seton, a pious convert to Catholicism, at Emmitsburg, Md. In 1850 the American branch was affiliated with the French congregation and is now presided over by the Director General of the Congregation of the Mission.

In America the Sisters are sometimes known as the "Cornette" sisters on account of their distinctive head-dress. At the time of their foundation in France it was found necessary to get girls and young women from the country districts to take over the onerous duties of caring for the sick poor. Society women of Paris promised St. Vincent to aid him, but their zeal for the work soon failed.

As a result the wide and stiffly starched head-dress which was worn by the Breton peasant women of that period has been adopted by the Sisters of Charity as a part of their habit and remains so to the present time. In 1845 the sight of those spotless white bonnets surmounting calm faces brought peace to the sick poor of Detroit.

And today the ill and suffering by the thousand depend upon the Sisters for the mitigation of their pain and for care and attention when they are unable to help themselves.

Cows in milk should be well fed at this time of year to guard against a rapid decline in production.

* * *

Herd improvement can come only when discarded cows are replaced by well-raised heifers of good breeding and type.

* * *

With milk worth on the market from $2.50 to $3 per hundredweight, the expense of raising the calves to replace the cows which must be culled from the herd is very great.

* * *

Why not organize a co-operative bull association in your community and have the use of a number of real dairy sires during the next few years and at less cost than the owning and keeping an ordinary bull yourself?

* * *

Even if there is no evidence of scours in the herd it is well to feed [illegible] to all of the calves at [illegible] give a chance to [illegible] effective the [illegible]lf's stom-

Harley Voorhees
FUNERAL DIRECTOR
HANOVER MICHIGAN

Calls attended promptly day an night. Having the best of equipment, I can serve and please you.

Any of our friends who wish our servces, can reach u day or night bycalling Moscow Central.

HARLEY VOORHEES
Hanover, Mich.

Always at Your Service for Printing Needs!

Is there something you need in the following list?

Birth Announcements
Wedding Stationery
Envelope Inclosures
Sale Bills
Hand Bills
Price Lists
Admission Tickets
Business Cards
Window Cards
Time Cards
Letter Heads
Note Heads
Bill Heads
Envelopes
Calling Cards
Leaflets
Statements
Milk Tickets
Meal Tickets
Shipping Tags
Announcements
Briefs
Notes
Coupons
Pamphlets
Catalogues
Blotters
Circulars
Invitations
Posters
Folders
Checks
Blanks
Notices
Labels
Legal Blanks
Menu Cards
Placards
Dodgers
Post Cards
Programs
Receipts

Prompt, careful and efficient attention given to every detail

Don't Send Your Order Out of Town Until You See What We Can Do

Hillsdale–Jackson Bus Line
Four Round Trips each Day
Two Round Trips Sunday
NORTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams....6:45 a. m
" " "........1:15 p. m
SOUTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams....8:15 a. m.
" " "........4:20 p. m.
SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS
Bus north at............5:15 p. m.
Bus south (via Jonesville) 11:20

Threats Of Many Persons

Men who stand on the sidelines at a ball game are more impartial judges of the merits of the game than the rooters who are in the midst of activities. The men on the sidelines are not so deeply interested; they see with an impartial eye. A street fight is neyer quite so serious with the bystander as with the participants.

Those of us who were outside the range of the recent tropical storm that swept over the south end of the peninsula of Florida can hardly appreciate the state of mind of the people who faced that storm and suffered mental anguish and physical pain of indescribable severity. To them it is a horrible picture and they never want to be made to face another.

When the storm warnings came that Wednesday morning for the lower east coast of Florida, there was panic in some localities. People from the outskirts of Miami hastened to the city to find refuge in the larger and more substantial buildings such as the church and school buildings. The public buildings and the well built hotels were crowded with people who feared another storm such as they had recently passed through. People on the water front moved back. The lower areas for miles around the city were practically deserted. Thousands sought places of safety in Miami. Boats in the bay scurried to places of apparent safety.

To add to the confusion and the panic everywhere in evidence, hundreds of people quickly packed their suit cases and took to their autos to flee from the hurricane district. Highways leading out of Miami were lined with autos by mid-afternoon, and by dark there was a solid stream of autos headed northward. At midnight so man were the autos passing through Melbourne that it looked as though the cars were parked in a solid line as far as the eye could see.

The storm, however, changed its course and did not hit Miami with so much force as had been predicted, and did not extend many miles north of Miami. By the time the fleeing people had reached Melbourne the moon was shining and there were no signs of storms and autoists began stopping for information. When told that the storm had not been severe and was veering off in a direction that would not cover a great deal of Florida territory, they stopped their flight and decided to remain in Melbourne until morning when most of them would return to Miami and surrounding territory. As a consequence, all the hotels and rooming houses in Melbourne were filled to capacity with these people who were flying they knew not where. Those who could not find rooms, slept in their cars. They were just anxious to get away from the storm.

World's Record Golf Expected This Winter

The world may look forward toward January ninth as the day on which the greatest thirty-six holes of golf ever played will be turned in. The golf will be played by the winner of the Los Angeles $10,000 open championship and will be to the credit of George Von Elm or of the man who beats him.

Von Elm is only in his middle twenties. And although he has never had the distinction of being a boy wonder he is within a few months of the age of Bobby Jones of Atlanta who has always had that title.

In winning the national amateur championship at Baltusrol Von Elm was one under even fours for thirty-five holes. He has a record of 63, that is nine under even fours, for eighteen holes at the Rancho Club in Los Angeles. And the Rancho Club course may be selected for the finals of the L. A. Open championship.

If it is the champion, who is still a youngster and whose game is getting better, will be playing in his first big tournament since winning the championship. He will be playing at home before his thousands of friends who have presented him with a magnificent sedan and who have otherwise crowned him king.

He will be pressed by one of the greatest fields of golfers ever put together. He will be driving with the narrow stance, and the full pivot—this is the altered style that helped him to the championship. He will be playing in perfect golfing weather for the records reveal January days in Los Angeles to be bright and sunshiny, with comparatively little wind and neither too hot nor too cold.

With the driving he did to win the amateur champicnship at Baltusrol his sixty-three at Rancho would have been more than likely a sixty-one.

The man who beats Von Elm the day of the finals is likely to have in his record the greatest round ever turned in. Hundreds will be in the play. The prize is the richest in golf and it is played at a time when most of the golf courses of the United States are closed. This will permit scores of professionals to be in the Southland who have to remain at their home clubs at other seasons.

Spiritual Symbols Will Grace Floral Tourney

SOUTH PASADENA

A new fame and a new glory is to be shed on Pasadena's famous Tournament of Roses on this coming New Year's day. This year the cities will send floats as before, but they will be expressive of a more spiritual side of life. Some will represent songs. Others will represent graces and abstractions such as beauty, idealism, courage, patriotism, faith, hope, charity and kindness.

The new note was given to the great day of flowers by Carrie Jacobs Bond, shown in the inset, and others of the famous creative artists of Southern California. They believed that in the twenty years of showing that the tourney had outgrown its primary intercity competition. All of the cities fell in with the idea and this year will bring to their aid the ablest creative minds in the Southland in the fabrication of their entries.

As in the past all of the flowers used in the parade must be such as can be grown in Southern California at the New Year Season. These include roses of every description, carnations, sweet peas, calendulas, narcissus, bachelor buttons, larkspur, violets, marigolds, baby breath, heather, sunflowers, bourgonvilla, geraniums, calla lilies, orange blossoms, shasta daisies, chrysanthemums, poinsettias, straw flowers, camellias, tulips, daffodils, poppies, California poppies, pansies, sweet alyssium, azaleas, dahlias, simlax, English ivy, asparagus, plumosa, evergreens (all varieties.) hawthorne, holly, sage, dogberry and huckleberry.

ADVOCATE AND McCALL'S MAGAZINE Both $2.25

Beans In Michigan

The severe loss to Michigan bean growers during the past season is evidenced by the fact that 174,000 acres, or 24 percent of the total acreage planted was not harvested. The special report just released by L. Whitney Watkins, Commissioner of Agriculture and Verne H. Church, U. S. Agricultural Statistician for Michigan also points out that 20 percent of the beans actually harvested were too poor in quality to be salable, leaving a crop of 5,299,000 bushels of marketable quality. Deducting from this the pickage, which average 17.9 percent for the state as a whole, there remains only 4,350,000 bushels of graded beans available for food and seed, as compared with 6,471,000 in 1925.

The State of New York reports 900,000 bushels of clean beans which, added to Michigan's 4,350,000 makes a total for the two states of 5,250,000 as compared with 7,580,000 bushels in 1925, or slightly more than two thirds as many graded beans as last year. It may also be noted that the total crop of white beans in the United States is only about three-fourths as as large as last year, with a much larger pickage to be deducted.

The harvested acreage in Michigan this year was 552,000 and the average yield per acre, 12 bushels. Last year, 639,000 acres were harvested with an average yield of 13.5 bushels per acre. The unharvested acreage in 1925 was 87,000.

Invention of The Dynamo

To look out on the great electrical world after nightfall any evening and to see the thousands of sparkling scintillating lamps in every city and hamlet is but to wonder and marvel at the handiwork of man. Southern Michigan cobwebbed with electric lines carrying high voltage is the condition to day, brought about by the inventive genius of a man born many years ago in a small village in Ohio Thomas Edison. But with all of Edison's ability we must take some of the credit from him. He was not the pioneer. Way back in 1831 Michael Farnday of England discovered that by rotating a copper core between the ends of a magnet he could excite a current of electricity. He knew little of electricity and little is known today as to what this fluid is or where it comes from. A little later Farnday invented a crude model of the dynamo which really generated a weak current. This was considered little short of marvelous. One day a Cockney Lord visited Farnday's work shop and viewed the new contraption which the inventor took great pride in exhibiting. His Lordship evidently did not appreciate the value because he remarked "Very interesting indeed Mr, Farnday, but what good is it?" to which the quick witted rejoiner was: "Perhaps some day you can tax it."

Farnday was probably a little sore over the tax situation as many people are to-day, but he little knew the ironical significance of the remark. It has come true today that the mammoth electrical companies of the world pay the heaviest tax of any industry extant. One needs but to visit the great Edison plants at Chicago or any city to understand what this means Little did Michael Farnday in his dingy little shop in far away England dream of the octopus of the future which was to honey-comb the world. Even the tombs of the Kings in the valley of the Nile are now illuminated with electricity. It is safe to presume that two thirds of the copper mined in the world goes in electrical apparatus, and it is well worth the effort to slavage every vestige of copper no matter how old or remote to take care of the shortage which is bound to come some day. Machine shops and garages in all parts of the country usually become the grave yard of hundreds of pounds of valuable copper which will be worth its weight in gold some day—simply because there is no known substitute for this metal.

With a Cold Towel

By flicking the chest with a cold wet towel a physician in Calcutta recently caused a patient to resume breathing after fifteen minutes of complete cessation of respiration, absence of heart sounds and pulse at the wrist.

and Any 5 of this list of leading MAGAZINES $2.25 Why Pay More?

Get Your MAGAZINES NOW AT COST!

Take Your PICK 19 to Select From

Never before and probably never again will you have such an extraordinary money-saving opportunity. Note carefully the large selection of choice reading—all at a price to fit your pocketbook. Renewals will be extended one year from date of expiration. No need to wait.

CLIP AND USE THIS COUPON

Gentlemen: I wish to take advantage of your Magazine Bargain Offer. I am enclosing the above amount in payment for a one year subscription to your paper and the FIVE Magazines I have marked with an X below.

Name……

Town…… State……

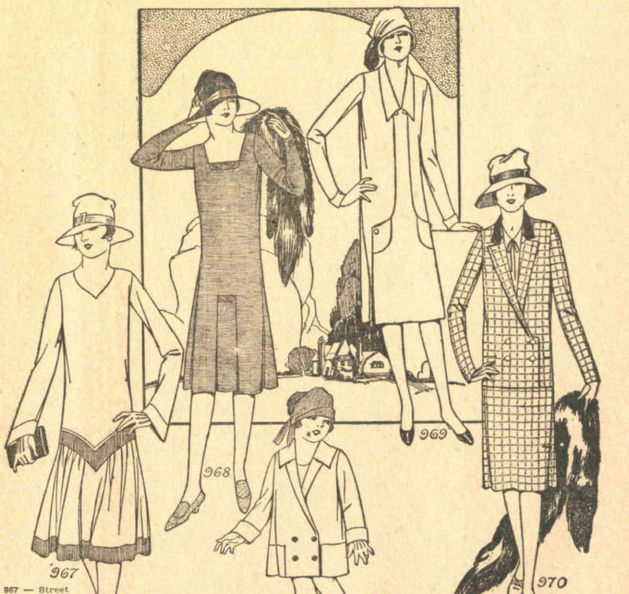
St. or R.F.D. ……

☐ American Needlewoman

☐ American Poultry Advocate
☐ Blade & Ledger
☐ Capper's Farmer
☐ Farm & Fireside
☐ The Farm Journal
☐ Farm Life
☐ Gentlewoman Magazine
☐ Good Stories
☐ Home Circle
☐ Home Friend
☐ Household Guest
☐ Household Magazine
☐ Illustrated Mechanics
☐ Mother's Home Life
☐ Pathfinder (weekly) 26 issues
☐ Today's Housewife
☐ Tractor & Gas Engine Review
☐ Woman's World

CHOOSE Mark this coupon now and bring or mail it to our Business Office TODAY

EXCLUSIVE "PRACTICAL" FASHIONS



967 — Street dress made of silk or velvet. Requires for size 36, three and one-quarter yds. 40 in. material. Sizes 16 to 44. For each additional size add one-quarter yd.

968—Afternoon Dress made of cloth or satin. Requires for size 36, one and one-half yds. 54 in. material. For each additional size add one-quarter yd. Sizes 16 to 44.

969—Street Dress made of cloth or satin. Requires for size 36, two and one-half yds. 54 in. material. For each additional size add one-quarter yd. Sizes 16 to 44.

966—Childs coat made of silk or cloth with novelty patch pockets. Requires for size 4, one and three-quarter yd. 40 in. material. For each additional size add one-eighth yd. Sizes 2 to 6.

970—Novel Suit made of cloth. Requires for size 36, two and one-half yds. 54 in. material. For each additional size add one-quarter yd. Sizes 16 to 44.

Youthfulness is the keynote of the mode. The matron must forget her years; the maid revel in them. The slenderizing straight line, unbroken from shoulder to toe, despite the changes that each season brings, still holds supremacy over the style. Two of the Practical Patterns presented herewith offer the unbroken straight line in dresses for street and afternoon wear. One of these is Number 969, a street frock with a front panel like an elongated apron. The dress effect is perfectly tailored, with a straight back. Two unique pockets are tucked into the corners of the panel.

Even the smallest girl in the family comes in for attention, and Number 966 is a child's coat which can be made of silk or light weight cloth by the mother who is looking ahead toward Spring, or of heavier material for present wear.

"PRACTICAL" PATTERN ORDER COUPON

FASHION EDITOR:

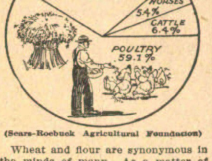
Enclosed please find twenty-five cents, together with two cents for mailing, for which please send me the following "Practical" Patterns:

Style Number…………………Size…………………………

Please Print	Name……………………………………
Name and	Street and Number…………………
Address.	City and State……………………

If more than one pattern is desired, enclose 25 cents plus postage for each pattern.

Chickens Top Wheat Eaters



(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

Wheat and flour are synonymous in the minds of many. As a matter of fact, however, forty per cent of our mammoth wheat crop never leaves the farm at all, but is used for seed purposes and feeding farm animals, states the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation in a survey recently completed on wheat consumption. It is used most abundantly for feeding in those sections of the country having a wheat surplus and a shortage of the usual feed crops such as corn, oats and barley. The poorer qualities of wheat, not suited for making flour, are kept behind for this purpose.

Chickens are the heaviest consumers of wheat fed on the farm using 59.1% of all wheat so distributed. Swine are next, with 29.1%. In wheat-growing sections horses are fed wheat and consume on an average 5.4% of all wheat fed on the farm, while the remaining 6.4% goes to cattle.

The DAIRY

COW TESTING PAYS LARGE DIVIDENDS

Records kept by cow-testing associations in North Carolina pay large dividends when the results are studied and applied to the owner's herd, states J. A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at the North Carolina State college.

More than 1,000 University of Detroit students received Holy Communion in a body in SS. Peter and Paul (Jesuit) church recently. The custom of an annual general communion was established by the students last year when 800 of them assembled in their chapel. This edifice however, was found too small to accommodate the throng which assembled this year. Some 100 co-eds formed a special section on one side of the church and participated in the services.

The DAIRY

DAIRY LOSSES CUT BY MILK COOLING

A large proportion of the loss from sour milk, high bacteria counts, and low quality butter and cheeese, might be avoided through prompt and thorough cooling of milk at the dairy barn, asserts the dairy department of the College of Agriculture, New Brunswick. All milk should be cooled to 50 degrees F. or lower and should be kept at that temperature until delivered at the receiving plant.

In the matter of dairy temperatures one should never guess. A good thermometer will always pay for itself in a short time. One can of rejected milk will cost more than four or five good thermometers.

To cool milk to 50 degrees F. or below, ice is nearly always necessary. If ice cannot possibly be had, only the coldest water should be used. This means water direct from the well or spring unless a colder source is available. Running surface water or tank stored water is never very cold. If ice is not to be had, it is desirable to arrange the equipment so that spring water may run constantly through the milk storage tank, or so that all water pumped for farm stock passes first through the tank.

The cooling of morning's milk is the important problem just now. A surface cooler will save time and ice, and will enable the farmer to cool it at the farm.

Once the milk has been cooled to 50 degrees F. or below, if it is to be held, a cooling tank in the milk house becomes a necessity for final cooling and storage. Milk plant operators can advise farmers as to the best types of coolers, cooling tanks and milk houses to meet the requirements of their respective companies and boards of health.

Bloody Milk Caused by Ruptured Blood Vessel

When a cow gives bloody milk it is due to the rupture of a small blood vessel in one or more of the quarters. This condition usually leaves as soon as the cause is removed.

Immediately after freshening this condition is caused by the inflammation in the udder and leaves as soon as the inflammation leaves the udder. When it takes place later in the lactation it is usually caused by an injury of some kind to the udder. It may be due to lying on a cement floor or by bumps from calves or other cows in the herd. To effect a cure the cause must be removed. Watch the cow carefully to find how she injures the affected quarter and then remove the cause and you should have no further trouble with bloody milk.

Some Grain Is Essential When Pasture Gets Short

To keep up the milk flow of his herd the dairyman who has no sudan-grass pasture must increase the grain feed when natural grass pasture gets short. Due to the exertion a cow may actually require more feed when on a sparse pasture than when shut in a dry lot. All cows giving over three gallons of milk daily should get a pound of grain for each five pounds of milk while on pasture. Cows nearly dry and not due to freshen within two months can economically go without grain at present. The chore of milking cows in fly time can be avoided by breeding in late December.

The Seal With the Double-Barred Cross

If you could know
That the pennies
That you spend
For Christmas seals
Might chance to be
The very pennies
That would surely bring
To some little child
The health that otherwise
It might not know,
Would you not
spend,
More and more such pennies?
Would you not forego
Some lesser pleasure even
If you knew
You could do that?
Or it might chance
That yours might be
The pennies
to restore
A stricken mother
To her stricken brood.
Or to bring a broken father
Back to earning power.
Would you not spend more pennies?
The more
the pennies
That you spend
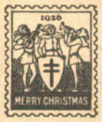
The more
the good
The pennies
do.
Then buy the Christmas seals
Tuberculosis Seals.



Hats of Horsehair

The conical hats universally worn by the Koreans are made of horsehair.

Much Admired

She was fashionably dressed and ornamented. After examining her carefully the doctor finally said, "Madam, you have acute tonsilitis." The patient blushed and admitted, "Yes, so many have admired it, but what I came to see you about, doctor, was why my throat hurts so badly."—Capper's Weekly.

An Interesting Page Prepared For Our Lady Readers And The Home Beautiful

Wigs and Curls Returning

MLLE. GINETTE MADDIE

The wig will be popular again throughout the winter season, according to the latest fashion reports from Paris. Fashion decrees that the artificial hirsute adornment shall be curled and silvered. The fad is designed, of course, only for formal occasions, the object being to make mademoiselle's "crown" conform and harmonize with her filmy formal costumes. Photo shows Mlle. Ginette Maddie, famous French beauty, wearing one of the new wigs.

The Weekly Fashion Hint

SERVICEABLE BLACK FROCK FAVORS TWO-PIECE STYLING

By MME. LISBETH

The serviceable black frock is frequently made in two-piece styling As pictured here a simple but very smart blouse of black satin is worn with a pleated skirt of Canton crepe. The blouse has kimono sleeves and a low standing collar, and the only touch of contrasting color is a narrow leather girdle and a row of white pearl buttons at the neck.

An unusually pretty afternoon frock in black and white came from Drecoll, Paris couturier. Black taffeta was combined with white organdie, the organdie being pleated and forming the collar and undersleeves and appearing under the uneven hemline of the taffeta skirt.

Varied skirt treatments are effected by the use of pleats, and pleating is not confined to skirts either. In one dress of black canton crepe pleated bell sleeves were an interesting feature and pleating was also used for the upper tier or peplum of the skirt.

Clothes Remodeled to Cut Dress Bills

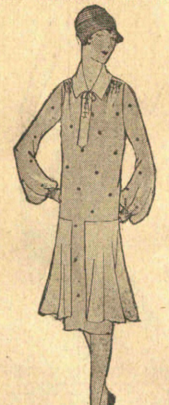
The cost of dressing the family may be reduced by making over and changing the style and color of the clothes that are out-grown by the children. This method of making old clothes appear new is recommended by clothing specialists, of the home economics department of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Instead of discarding the dresses and suits, simply because they are too small, the experts suggest that they be made over and worn by a smaller member of the family. The objections to wearing big sister's or brother's clothes can easily be removed by changing the style and, if necessary, dying the cloth.

Remodeling the clothes is important for another reason. Unless, they are large enough to allow perfect freedom the clothes may be the cause of poor health. Tight clothing may interfere with breathing and the circulation of blood, and it may also be responsible for poor posture of children. Garments that are too large should also be avoided. They wrinkle and chafe the body.

Often children grow so rapidly that they outgrow their clothes in a single season. When clothes are taken out of storage for the winter, the specialists advise trying them on just as if they were purchased at the store. If they do not fit properly at every place, they should be altered.

Very chic is the frock for afternoon wear pictured here, developed in polka-dotted crepe, trimmed with plain Georgette. It closes to the neck and has a collar that is pointed in front. There are shirrings at the shoulders, the back of the dress extending over the front to form a yoke effect. On the front a two-piece tunic is adjusted, while the sash-ends and tunic are included in the underarm seams. Medium size requires 3 1-2 yards 36-inch figured and 1 1-2 yard plain material.



Pictorial Review Printed Pattern No. 3126. Sizes, 14 to 18 years and 34 to 44 bust, 45 cents.

Distantly Related.

"An' so your name is Riley?" said one chance acquaintance to another over their cups. "Are ye anny relation to Tim Riley?"

"Only disthantly. Oi wuz Dennis Riley's first child an' Tim wuz his tinth."

LIVING and LOVING

BY FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

WE CAN'T HELP LOVING

He who declared:

"'Tis love that makes the world go 'round!"

told the literal truth, according to the latest theory in scientific research.

Before a gathering of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, Professor Julian Huxley, descendant of two famous men—Mathew Arnold and Thomas Huxley, —made this statement:

"Lovemaking cannot be helped!"

We are somewhat startled, because we had always supposed that in the bestowal of our affections at least we were freewill agents. Now the professor would have us believe that we make love not because we wish to but because we just naturally must!

And this is not the half of what the young sage has to say. If his first remark increases our knowledge, his ensuing words deal a blow to our pride in our race.

As aristocrats of the Animal Kingdom we thought we held the corner in courtship. The sweet nothings of wooing time could be common to us Humans only.

We have been deceiving ourselves in our self-conceit, says Professor Julian. Lovemaking is an art as old as the world itself, and from the very beginning of things has been generally practiced not alone by the lords of creation but by the humblest folk in the least exalted circles of existence.

Consider the crab, for instance.

"The crabs have a love ceremony in which the male strikes at attitude on his toes, holding aloft one claw!" explains Professor Huxley. "If the female does not notice him he hurries ahead and repeats the procedure, but if she runs too far past him he returns to his burrow in the mud."

Isn't this an appealing portrait of a patient, pleading wooer? Nor does the crab waste his time, you see. Once convinced persistency will avail him nothing, graciously and without vain regret he passes out of the picture.

Not so sensible is Mr. Spider. Carried away by his ardor, he insists upon proving the Perfect Lover, and when he fails, as he often does, he pays the price of his daring. Without mercy and with evident relish Miss Spider, whom he has wooed but not won, gobbles him up for dinner.

What price loving? However heavy may be the cost, no man gives his all so completely as does the spider.

"The lover sings of his lady fair," runs a certain sonnet, and we vision a soulful gallant twanging a tuneful guitar beneath some fair damsel's window. How about letting our imagination paint another picture?

It is night and moonlight in the marshes. There's music in the air.

"Come live with me and be my love!" Fraught with tender passion rises the chorus to the stars. 'Tis the spring song of countless lovers, each pouring out his longing in throbbing ecstasy. Imagination blurs. Reality stirs! We hear naught but hoarse croaking of wakeful frogs!

The soulful gallant beneath his sweetheart's window is but an imitator, in the opinion of the professor. The frog who would a-wooing go is the original serenader.

"Birds are the showiest lovers," says Professor Huxley. "They exhaust themselves in love ceremonies, romantic fellows that they are, thus striving to establish emotional ties with the lady birds of their fancy."

By these and other examples does the professor prove his point. We conclude that the jungle beast has his tender moods, the blind mole his moments of glory.

Lovemaking cannot be helped. If this be the inexorable law of nature, it follows, then, that by no law of man can it be hindered.

Hints for the Housewife

MENU HINT

Breakfast

Orange Juice
Cooked Cereal
Poached Eggs
Toast
Milk
Coffee

Dinner

Baked Potatoes
Stewed Tomatoes
Breaded Veal Chops
Tiny Sponge Cakes
Cocoa

Supper

Southern Soup
Baked Beans
Marquise Salad
Pineapple Muffins
Milk
Cocoa

TODAY'S RECIPES

Veal Chops

Take nice small chops, dust each one with salt, pepper and flour. Dip into one egg, beaten with one tablespoon milk, then in cracker dust. Brown on both sides in frying pan, add boiling water to cover, place in oven and allow to bake one hour.

FINE NEEDLE

If you like a fine sewing needle, but have difficulty in threading it, try using regular embroidery needles. The eye is large and easily seen.

With the Women of Today

The woman in business. Does she belong there or should she confine her activities to the home? Does she use her feminine allure to help her succeed or does she depend on her brains and and knowledge? Does she inject her personality into the business world to her detriment and man's peril or is she so occupied with home cares that she cannot properly attend to her work?

All these and a thousand more questions are whirling about her ears as she strives to earn her bread and butter, and possibly an occasional bit of pie or cake. Miss Emma Dot Partridge, executive secretary of the Federation of Business and Professional Women, an organization of 47,000 women in business, declares that they take their labor too seriously and therefore work too hard.

MISS EMMA DOT PARTRIDGE

"Women cannot close the office door and forget business when they go home," she says. "Consequently they work too hard—particularly women in executive positions.

"Where a man will knock off work, forget it and play golf a woman is unable to throw herself into the relaxation of recreation. In all of my immediate acquaintances I do not know a single woman who plays golf."

Listed on Miss Partridge's files are horse breeders, dentists, sheriffs, brokers, bankers, varnish manufacturers and all descriptions of professions.

She also thinks that too much courtesy is expected of the women in business. "The world is expecting the woman to act the hostess, and if she is anything less than gracious comment is made," she declares. "Women executives should not be any more courteous in their dealings than men," Miss Partridge avers.

It is not the college woman who is filling the highest salaried position in Miss Partridge's experience. It is held by the girl who has gone through the laborious steps upward. A good many college graduates are unwilling to undergo an apprenticeship.

As to the personal element Miss Partridge claims that women in business have not yet achieved the frankness and openness that the impersonality of business demands, and the young woman is often playing hide and seek with the matrimonial bug, thus lessening her efficiency.

SUGGESTIONS

To sponge woolen goods lay the material flat on the table or floor and place over it a wet sheet or strip of muslin wrung out just enough not to drip. Begin at one end and roll the two together. Let them lie overnight Then press the material on the wrong side, using a hot iron but taking care not to scorch the cloth.

If you really want to have an attractive as well as a sanitary kitchen, you should have a good linoleum on the floor. And while you are getting one, get a good one as well as one that will not be unattractive to the eye.

"Sandwich Island help," writes a Boston woman, "have a curious habit of calling their employes by their first names, as 'Yes, John,' and 'Very well, Mary,' instead of the conventional 'sir' and 'ma'am.' My husband and I, on hiring a new cook, planned to obviate this by refraining from mentioning each other's names, substituting common terminal endearments. 'If he does not hear me called Mary,' I said, 'he won't know that's my name.'

"It happened shortly after that we had some officers to dine with us, and the cook entered and said to me, 'Sweetheart, the dinner is served.'

"'What?' I stammered aghast.

"'Dinner is served, dearie,' answered the new cook."

Two Irish-Americans, one of whom had never seen Erin before, were representing the United States at a convention in Dublin.

"Fifty-three years ago," declared one, I left Ireland without a penny in my pockets."

The audience was greatly affected, and the other speaker decided not to be outdone.

"Until last week," he declared, "I had never set foot in the land of my birth."

PETER'S ADVENTURES in ANIMAL LAND

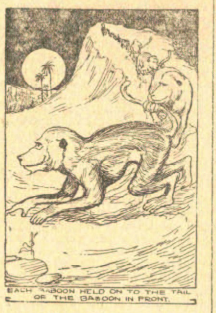
BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

UNDER ORDERS

Chac!

The idea of creeping into the cane field under the very noses of the Sentry Dogs was too much for one of the Baboons. The threw up his head and laughed out loud. His comrades snickered.

"Silence!" Chacma held up his pay and scowled at the thoughtless fellow. "He woh laughs best laughs last. We have nothing so far to pat ourselves upon the back for. And, clever as we think we are, who knows—something may happen yet to upset our well laid plans. Silence in the band! This is no time for nonsense!"



EACH BABOON HELD ON TO THE TAIL OF THE BABOON IN FRONT.

Chacma's word was law. The Baboon band—crouching shadows in the deepening dusk—became so still one could have heard a leaf fall.

The Great Red Ball dropped behind the trees. The sky hung out its twinkling lanterns. Still the Baboons lay low. Then when it seemed to the Boy that if he had to sit still on that stone for another moment he should scream, Chacma rose slowly upon his haunches.

"The hour has come, comrades. The moon is bright. Now, if ever, are the Sentries snoozing. Are you ready for the raid?"

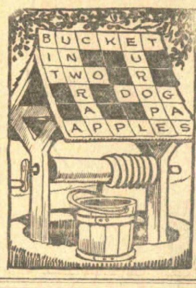
"All ready!" chorused the Baboons and jumped to their feet. Chacma began to issue orders.

One by one the Baboons went over the top, and when they were half way down the hill they arrayed themselves in line, each Baboon holding onto the tail of the Baboon in front. Step by step they advanced. Chacma leading the way, Peter bringing up the rear. Suddenly Chacma stopped. The line halted.

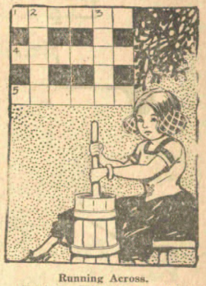
"The field lies before us! Trusty and Quick-Wits, you follow me. The rest of you wait here. Watch! Listen! Should one of you hear a sound, spy a movement that means danger, give the alarm, break ranks and make for the cocoanut grove!"

Next: "Those Who Wait."

Answer to Last Week's Puzzle



Children's Pictorial Cross Word Puzzle



Running Across.

Word 1. What is the child in the picture churning?
Word 4. What do cats like to eat?
Word 5. A court fool.

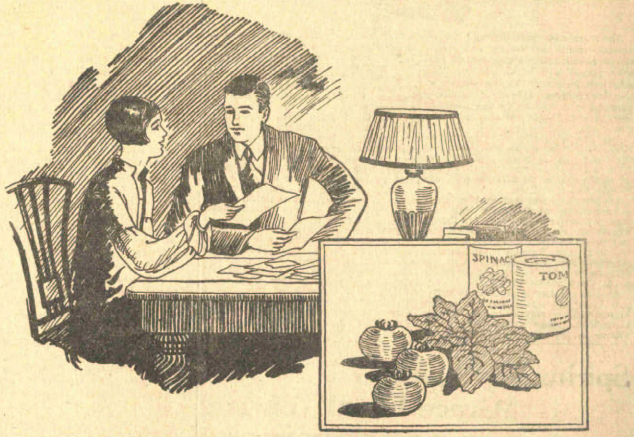
Running Down.

Word 2. Custom, use.
Word 3. One who is barred from his country by order of the government.

MUD STAINS

Allow mud stains to dry and brush carefully before any other treatment is used. If the fabric is washable and the brushing fails to remove the stain use soap and water. Sponge the stains on nonwashable material with wood or denatured alcohol. For black silk rub the spots with cut raw potato. This leaves a thin film of starch on the surface which can be brushed off when dry. This treatment will leave a spot on all but black materials and is too harsh for any but firm, smooth goods.

National Canned Food Week



Shows Housewife Advantages of Buying by the Case

Many weeks during the year are appropriated to acquaint us with some particular subject. Some weeks we are urged to own our own homes or to clean up either our morals or our streets. Few, however, have the practical side attached to them which National Canned Foods Week offers. Food is of paramount importance, so, to most of us, is economy. National Canned Foods Week is designed to acquaint the housewife more extensively with canned foods, not only by telling her how good and how extensive are the foods to be bought in cans, but to give her the opportunity of buying canned foods at reduced prices,—a practical aspect that should appeal to every woman.

National Canned Foods Week begins on November tenth and runs through to November twentieth. During this time, retail grocers, wholesalers and canners unite to put canned foods before the public in an extensive advertising campaign. They go further, for the housewife has a chance to test the merit and use of canned foods as told her through the special bargains during that time.

What better chance can the housewife find to stock her pantry with favorite staples? Owing to the close co-operation of all parts of the industry, reductions are considerable and a case of tomatoes, corn or peas, for instance, if bought during Canned Foods Week, will result in very worth while savings.

Many a housewife will say that she does not care to buy an entire case of one kind of food. If so, the grocer will mix a case, give her three or four different foods in one case, still with the advantage of the reduction which follows quantity buying. The case may contain a good supply of varied foods, each can representing a worth while food economy. For unexpected guests, or any emergency, the supply stands in good stead.

Make this week, with its budget helping prices, an opportunity to try out canned foods you may not already know about, besides stocking your regular staples. There are two hundred and one varieties in all classes of canned foods. Vegetables are put up in forty-nine varieties, fruit in thirty-seven, fish, twenty-eight; there are twenty-seven kinds of canned soups, twenty-nine kinds of meats. Of miscellaneous specialties such as spaghetti, exaporated and condensed milk, jams, jellies, Boston brown bread, sauces, spices, there are twenty-five. Six de luxe entrees are offered.

What more varied, appetizing and wholesome menu could one ask than that offered us in canned foods? The nutritive value of them has been proved beyond doubt and how convenient it is to have them at any time or place throughout the year, regardless of season! If we had to depend on the fruits and vegetables which are in season or which keep unpreserved, what a boresome diet we would have throughout the winter! How delightful to serve peas, August lima beans, tomatoes, corn, stringless beans, peaches, pears, and all the others,—the wealth of the summer gardens,—straight through the winter months. Out of season foods, such as tomatoes, when raised in hot houses, soar in price and would soon tear the household budget to pieces were we compelled to use them. Many supposedly "fresh" foods come from long distances, too, and lose nourishment and flavor with every day they are on the road.

There will be a comfortable margin left on the budget, on the other hand, if the housewife is thrifty and shrewd enough to take advantage of every opportunity to buy canned foods at reduced prices. One of the soundest principles of economy is to buy in large quantities. There is always a normal saving in price on quantity purchases, but during this week, it is even greater. It is an opportunity not to be missed. Call your grocer on the telephone, or better still, go down to the store and see what he has to offer you in cases of canned food bargains. Stock your pantry and count up your worth while food economies.

NEWS FEATURE PAGE

Happenings From Here and There and Everywhere.

Educational, Interesting and Helpful.

AIRPORT SITE ONCE GOAL OF SQUATTER

The Middle Ground between Belle Isle and the American shore, which the City of Detroit desires to build up for use either as a terminal landing field for air planes or for park purposes, first interested Detroit in 1892 when Jesse Burk attempted to bring the submerged land above water level and squat on it.

Burk drove a number of stakes in the shoals so the drifting delta would adhere and form an island. The stakes were unrooted by the Federal Government and Burk was arrested on a charge of obstructing navigation.

He was released on $500 bail and his case never prosecuted because "of the humorous way the newspapers treated the affair and of Burk's ec- read. centricities," a report of that year

Burk was again arrested July 24, 1893 for the same offense, and Jan. 25, 1895, "Squatter Jesse Burk was fined $150 and taxed about $140 costs by Judge Swan for trying to locate an island on the middle ground near Belle Isle."

Burk, it was stated at the time, appeared to have strong financial and legal backing. The story when he was arrested reads:

"Like the proverbial puppy to the root, Jesse Burk has again fastened himself to the middle ground near the head of Belle Isle. This time, instead of merely driving piles, as he did before, he has carried a house bodily to his alleged claim.

"Saturday night Jesse towed a scow on which a small cottage had been placed and anchored on the scow in the three feet of water that covers the middle ground opposite the Park house. At an early hour Sunday morning the Ida Burton steamed over to the scene of action and proceeded to fill Jesse's scow full of sand to secure permanent foundation.

"The services of the Ida Burton had been secured by Burk, who although a man of little means, found a way to pay for the steamer's services and also for the old scow and the assistant who helped him make the removal.

"The talk in the United States marshal's office was that Burk's financial backing comes from an ice man."

Veteran Judge Of Grand Rapids Ends Case No. 90,000

Police Court Judge Frank A. Hess of Grand Rapids, one of the oldest police judges in the United States in point of service, has begun his twenty-third year in that office and has turned the page of his blotter on the ninety-thousandth case in his court.

Becoming an attorney, or a judge, was not a boyhood dream of Judge Hess, he said. His first employment with any substantial compensation attached was with a concern whose carpet sweepers "have swept the world." Then he turned to railroading and was employed for a time in the old Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad yards.

An early policy adopted after he went on the bench and which gave him considerable publicity was his plan to place "drunks" on probation rather than to send them to jail.

LEARN
BRICKLAYING
In a School run by Building Contractors.
Catalog Free.
Associated Building Employers
13-21 McConnell St., Grand Rapids

CARPENTER'S The Original
LIQUID
COURT PLASTER
15¢
Antiseptic!
Protects & Heals
AT ALL
DRUG STORES

Windustite
KEEP THE COLD, SOOT and DUST OUT
Installing "American Windustite" weather strips saves coal, makes housecleaning easier, gives more comfort from your furnace, and protects furnishings and draperies from outside dirt, soot and dust.
Storm-proof, Dirt-proof, Leak-proof and Rattle-proof
Made and Installed Only by
AMERICAN METAL WEATHER STRIP COMPANY
144 N. Division Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich.

ALLEGAN PLANTS PLAN TO COMBINE

Hollis Baker, manager of the Baker & Co. factory, Allegan, has announced plans are complete for the consolidation of Baker & Co. with the Allegan Furniture Shops and that papers have been made out for the purchase by the consolidated companies of the Jewett Radio & Phonograph Co. plant in this city. Baker also says that as soon as the papers for the purchase of the Jewett plant have been returned from New York a definite statement of the company's plans will be made.

The Jewett factory comprises three large buildings and at times has employed more than 300 men. The acquisition of this plant by the Baker interests will mean the employment of many more men and will bring more skilled labor here.

Kindergarten Moves Into Fremont's New $200,000 Building

Fremont—In less than 10 months after ground was broken for the erection of Fremont's new $200,000 school, a part of it now is being used. Monday of this week the kindergarten took over the room intended for its use, which was the first to be completed.

Present indications are that another portion of the building will be ready for occupancy after the Christmas vacation.

The kindergarten room is modern in every detail and is one of the finest rooms in the building. It has an artistic fireplace, a wardrobe recessed flush with the wall; a fine cabinet for play materials and shelves for books and other equipment are also recessed. A workroom, storage space and toilet facilities are accessories of the room. The room is well lighted with a large bank of windows on the east side. The pupils in the kindergarten have their own entrance, so that they are not bothered or disturbed by the older pupils.

P. M. Reports Increases In Car Loadings

The Saginaw traffic territory shows increases in both in and out-bound traffic for the week ended Dec. 5, over the corresponding one for 1925, according to the Pere Marquette Railway traffic representatives. The forwarded traffic is 9 per cent. They received 2 per cent higher than the corresponding movement last year. The sugar beet movements are better and will continue for some time, these having been retarded on account of bad weather. The new Saginaw oil fields shipped out several carloads of oil during November, more than in any previous month.

In the Grand Rapids traffic district there is a considerable movement of lumber and coal inbound just at present. For the week ended Dec. 5, the forwarded traffic was below last year by 17 per cent, while the inbound shows an increase of 8 per cent. Through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce of Benton Harbor and Chicago Pump Company has been secured a new industry for that section. This company will give employment to 150 men.

In the Detroit traffic territory both in and outbound traffic show decreases. The forwarded is 14 per cent below last year while the received is offi 26 per cent. There is a certain slowing up in other industries following the lull in the automobile production. Nevertheless, from the present outlook the January production schedule promises to be very good.

The Chicago and Buffalo gateways show increased movements over the corresponding week of last year, while the movements through the Toledo portal and across Lake Michigan by car ferry are off.

Development Body Outlines Program

A movement to make western Michigan a great homeland the year around was put under way here when the work of the Development League of Western Michigan was started following a meeting of the board of directors.

The organization was formed recently to protect and further the interests of the property owners, purchasers and developers in western Michigan and has 13 member counties between Ottawa and Emmet on the Lake Michigan shore and Wexford, the only inland county that has applied for membership.

Col. John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, former national commander of the American Legion and president of the new organization, in addressing a large gathering, stressed the fact the league seeks to help locate the summer and permanent home owners developing horticulture and industrial as well as the rapidly growing summer resort trade of this side of the state.

Clarence V. Smazel, young Manistee newspaper man, has been appointed executive secretary of the league and will undertake a survey of the western Michigan resort property as the organization's first effort. Later every field designed to better life for the summer and permanent home owners will be entered, including the promotion of needed legislation, of outdoor entertainment, such as golf courses, tennis courts, bathing beaches, of safe motoring and uniform traffic regulations.

Shed a tear for little Nell;
She had a car
and drove quite fast.

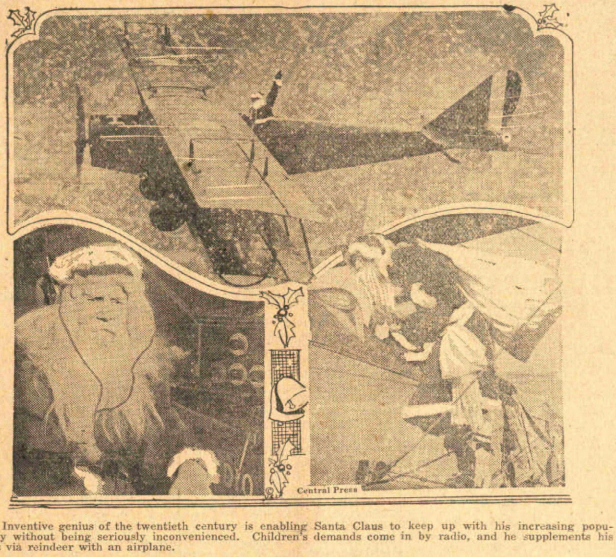
A Legal Reserve Automobile Insurance Policy at Lower Rates—No Assessments
REPUBLIC
Automobile Insurance Underwriters
WE WANT AN AGENT
IN YOUR VICINITY
2163 Jefferson Ave., East, at Dubois
Detroit, Michigan

THE BEST RECOMMENDATION
—FOR—
BARE-TO-HAIR
Is the number who are trying to imitate it. If Bare-to-Hair was not growing hair on bald heads there would be no imitators. If there is baldness or signs of it you can't afford to neglect to use "Forst's Original Bare-to-Hair."
Correspondence Given Personal Attention
E. J. Jahn Barber Supply Co.,
1267 Park Place, at Grand River,
Detroit, Michigan.

Santa Uses Plane and Radio to Keep Step With Times



Inventive genius of the twentieth century is enabling Santa Claus to keep up with his increasing popularity without being seriously inconvenienced. Children's demands come in by radio, and he supplements his calls via reindeer with an airplane.

12,500 MAIMED IN STATE SEEK AID

Bravely the ships embark on the Sea of Life, sails set and captains eager. But some are faulty in the building. Others, stauch and beautiful, quickly encounter storms and are broken, many sink from sight into that larger Sea of Memory, others to struggle on, sail tattered, spars broken, but fighting still, on a tardy voyage toward doubtful harbors.

There are 12,500 of these broken barques in Michigan — the children who are born crippled or meet crippling disease and accident early in life.

For some the light of sun and stars there is blotted out forever. For others there are still the guiding compasses, eyes to see, minds to know the longed-for harbor, but, alas! the crippled barque moves slowly, painfully, swept by tides and battered by storms, outrun in the voyage by the happy and fortunate ones that carry full sail and strong-limbed crew.

Such is the task the Michigan Society for Crippled Children sets itself putting the little voyageurs again on the high seas, outfitted to reach harbor and rejoice.

Zeeland Furniture Plant Sold Again

One of Zeeland's oldest industries changed hands when the former Wolverien Furniture Co. was purchased by interests including Herman Miller, prominent in furniture circles.

The Wolverine Furniture Co. was founded 26 years ago. The firm originally was located at the brick yards. After two and one-half years the business demanded a larger factory and the company built the present plant in the city.

For several years it made kitchen tables, cabinets and other kitchen furniture. Then it turned to bedroom furniture and continued operation along these lines until passing into the hands of receivers about a year ago.

Peter DeSpelder obtained the plant when it was sold about five months ago. He in turn sold it to the new company.

It is believed the newly-organized concern will manufacture mantel clocks and other small articles.

New Englander—How do you like our climate?

Stranger—This one, or the one a few minutes ago?—Christian Science Monitor.

INDIANS DEMAND RIGHT TO IGNORE STATE GAME LAW

Upper peninsula Indians are indignant over the fact that two of their race recently were arrested for violating the state game law. They contend they are not subject to the game laws of the country under provisions of an ancient treaty which gave the Indian access to the forests in hunting, trapping and fishing.

Two Chippewas, Elijah Tadgersson and Dan Williams, braves of the tribe at Raco, were arrested recently and fined $15 each for trapping beaver, and as a result a public meeting of the Ottawa and Chippewa tribes will be held in the near future to protest the cases. Indians of the Assinins and Baraga district are interested in the outcome of the meeting.

Williams has been arrested previously for violating the game laws. He believes he is entitled to hunt in his father's forest and is making his second attempt to make the state of Michigan recognize the original treaties which grant all ntive Indians perpetual right to hunt and fish in Michigan territory.

25 at Ann Arbor Are Honored by Coach

Twenty-five players from the squad of the Michigan reserves at Ann Arbor received the reserve numerals indicating Coach Ray Fisher considered them the best individuals of the squad. The squad in general was more even than in former years, with the only outstanding player, Joe Gembis, Vicksburg, who played at fullback.

Four of the men receiving numerals, Totzke, Williams, Dahlem and Miethe were members of the varsity squad at some time during the year, Totzke and Dahlem appearing in varsity games.

The men receiving the award were:

George Volow, Newark, N. J.; Harold W. Kellogg, Allegan; Earl R. Lillie, Ann Arbor; Clare H. Timberlake, Jackson; William R. Stephens, Michigan City, Ind.; George T. Gundry, Grand Blanc; John T. Hecker, Poplar Bluffs, Mo.; J. T. O'Toole, Jersey City, N. J.

M. M. Cunningham, Petersburgh, Tenn.; H. G. Tozke, Benton Harbor; Wallace F. Ardussi, Saginaw; Allen Ben Bleyker, Kalamazoo; Douglas S. Dickie, Indianapolis, Ind.; R. J. Williams, Detroit; Frederick B. Schanz, Detroit; Charles D. Peet, Ann Arbor; George Hammond, Lansing.

Frederick J. Kountz, Toledo, O.; Charles W. Schurrer, Highland Park; Joe Gembis, Vicksburg; A. G. Dahlem, Jackson; Herman Miethe, Escanaba; Richard J. Preston Jr., Chicago; August R. Roti, Buchanan; Raymond C. Iossa, Western Springs, Ill.

This Year Ends Road Taxes for Imlay City

The 1926-27 tax will wind up the Imlay City pavement tax. The fact that Imlay City is located at the intersection of two state trunk lines, M-53, running north out of Detroit to the south shore of Lake Huron, and M-21, running east from its intersection with M-13 north of Grand Rapids, is partly responsible for the fact that Imlay City has more paved streets than any other village in that section, both roads being paved all the way from one village limit to the other.

Four Doctor Sue Bay City for Fee For Vaccinations

Suits have been filed against the city of Bay City by Dr. George W. Gustin, Dr. J. A. Kehoe, Dr. G. W. Moore and Dr. Matthew R. Slattery, formerly of the city board of health, asking $1,147 each for services performed in the vaccination of 2,294 persons against smallpox in the spring of 1924.

The physicians hold that the state law provides for such vaccination at public expense. Attempts to obtain payment have been made several times. When the county was sued the supreme court denied the claims, ruling that the city was liable. As the city charter provides that no city officer shall receive any remuneration other than his regular salary for services given the city, the city commission refused to pay the bills. Two members of the board of health, Dr. Gustin and Dr. Kehoe, then resigned from the board.

President's Post Again Begging at Harbor Springs

The Harbor Springs chamber of commerce recently filled all its offices except that of president. No one present would accept the management of the organization for the coming year and a committee was appointed to obtain a man who would act as president.

The situation is somewhat similar to the condition that existed last spring, when none would accept the nomination for president of the village.

Other officials elected are: vice president, Thomas Linehan; treasurer William J. Clark, jr.; secretary, W. D. Wright.

Wright also is clerk of the village and of the board of public works,so his recent election will bring all these clerkships together in the village hall. The added duties probably will require the assistance of a stenographer and plans for this arrangement already are contemplated.

Between Bridge Players

"Playing bridge much lately, Mittie?"

"Not much. Haven't playea sirce yesterday."

FOR SALE
$1,000.00 for a well stocked Second Hand Furniture Store on one of the busiest streets in Grand Rapids. Good lease and store making money. Other business requires owner's entire time. If interested, write Marks Furniture Store, 125 Division Ave., South, Grand Rapids, Mich.

STATE ACQUIRING HUGE NORTH AREA

Northern Michigan gradually is becoming a state-owned area and at the present rate at which its acres are being deeded to the state there may come a day when the northern counties will be a gigantic playground—owned by the people themselves.

To this end the conservation commission has prepared a bill for the legislature that will allow the state to hold permanently all lands reverting to it through non-payment of taxes. Today the state owns more than 800,000 acres, and half as much again is now in the process of reverting from private to public ownership.

There are counties in the north in which several townships are wholly state-owned. Roscommon, for instance, is almost half public land. And at the rate of more than 50,000 acres a year, section after section of once timbered and profitable land is becoming public waste.

It was the intention of the legislatures that created the land laws that this property should be returned to private ownership, accelerating the growth and prosperity of the poorer counties, according to O. B. Fuller, auditor general. But the present conservation commission has held steadfastly to all state lands, refusing to sell. Much of it has been made into game refuges and state parks.

Christmas Clubs Pay Millions in Michigan

Distribution of Christmas savings funds to club members by banks in Michigan this year is estimated at between nine and nine and a half million dollars. This compares with a distribution of between eight and a half and nine million dollars in 1925. Christmas club deposits for the entire country are estimated at close to $400,000,000 — or $398,268,000, which will be checked out to 7,800,000 members. This figure represents an increase of about $85,000,000, or 27 per cent over the total for last year—a great tribute to systematic saving.

The average distribution per member in the country this year amounts to $51.32. This is an increase of about 11 per cent over 1925 when per member distribution was $44.88. The value to business throughout the United States of Christmas savings clubs is shown by the fact that, of the total, close to $175,000,000 will be spent in Christmas purchases.

Michigan ranks eighth among the states in its total of Christmas savings deposits, New York being first, with a total of $88,367,000. Others in their order are: Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Illinois, New Jersey, Ohio and California.

U. of M. Educator Doesn't See Dark Future for Youth

Prof. William A. Frayer of the history department of the University of Michigan is one educator who has nofears regarding the future of the younger generation.

"The pet fallacy of the older generation is that youth is degenerating," he said to Junior college students Tuesday, "and the curious fact is that the young folk themselves think so. But men who have observed conditions over many years are convinced conditions are better than they ever have been before."

Prof, Frayer took issue with President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university, who is reported to have said the average freshman regarded events which happened 30 years ago as unimportant.

"I should say," Prof. Frayer remarked, "that the freshman thinks the world started 18 years ago."

Maimed Lawyer in Wheeled Chair Kills 187 Pound Buck

Joseph J. Schnitzler, the Mt. Pleasant lawyer, who has no legs and only one arm, sat in a wheel chair next to a windfall which served as a support for his rifle, and shot a 187-pound buck in the woods near Deerton.

The life of Schnitzler, who is a past president of the Michigan Elks' Association, has been a series of triumphs over pain and the handicaps imposed by his crippled body.

Forty-three years ago Schnitzler was a normal boy at Reed City. He worked his way through the high school there. Soon after he was graduated a disease of the bone cost him his right arm. But he kept on with his struggle for a university education. He taught school and performed other work, being graduated from the University of Detroit. Then he spent a year at the University of Michigan.

In 1912 the disease came again and he lost a leg. For a time his ambition faded, only to flame forth again. He was admitted to the bar in 1914 and two years later went to Mt. Pleasant. A few years later he lost his other leg. Schnitzler is prominent as a public speaker and frequently makes addresses from his wheel chair. He is a Rotarian.

Power Replaces Water At Century Old Mill

Electricity has taken the place of water power that turned the wheels Memphis, Mich., for nearly a cen- of the old mill on Belle river, at tury. The structure was built in 1835 and still is in good state of repair. When the village of Memphis was founded in that year the power resources of the river were discovered by Oel Rix, who caused a race to be dug and large and small dams constructed. This spring the flood, aided by the weight of great floes of ice, carried away the dams. The mill is owned by A. G. Taylor, a descendant of the original owner.

2 BABY WOLVES ARE IN GRAND RAPIDS ZOO

Two additions to the John Ball Grand Rapids school children, have Park Zoo, which has become an important part in the nature studies of recently been placed in their cages.

Nellie and Flash, tame timber wolves, were taken by Edward R. Baumgartner, keeper of the zoo, to his home soon after they were born last May. Now they are back at the park, instructed in all the etiquette that belongs to such zoological specimens.

After arguing with a man for half an hour a woman invariably says: "Now, why can't you be sensible?"

For Sore Throat
Rub throat and chest with Vicks; cover with warm flannel. Its double direct action (inhaled and absorbed) brings welcome relief.
VICKS
VAPORUB

WANTED!
Mechanically inclined men to earn
$30.00 to $55.00 per Week
While Attending School of
Automotive and Electrical Engineering
We get you daytime job immediately! Night school three times per week. A real opportunity backed by an institution 24 years old.
See or Write W. L. GEORGE
250 Pearl St.,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

OPPORTUNITY
We will put you in the Tire business in your city, without any investment on your part, furnish you a complete stock of High Grade, Guaranteed, Nationally Known and Advertised Tires and Tubes, to be paid for only as you sell them, if you are well known in your community, and can furnish good references as to your character and ability as an ambitious worker. This wonderful opportunity will produce for a real worker an established business with a highly profitable return.
Address P. O. Box 525, Grand Rapids, Michigan

DR. E. HENRY MORIARTY
at the
MORIARTY CANCER SANITARIUM
Specializing in the treatment of cancer without the use of knife or electricity.
Reference given on request.
1411 E. FULTON ST GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Confidence in their dependability and performance is the answer to the great popularity of Red Seal Continental Motors among motor car users.
Continental Motors Corporation
Offices: Detroit, Mich., U. S. A. Factories: Detroit and Muskegon
The Largest Exclusive Motor Manufacturer in the World

THANK YOU!

We are Taking fhis opportunity to thank the people of North Adams and surrounding country for their patronage during the past season and during the Xmas Time which we appreciate very much, and hope we may be of better service to you the coming year.

We wish you all a
MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A
HAPPY NEW YEAR

SWAIN'S, North Adams

Useful
Gifts for xmas

We have Pyrex, Aluminum and Enameled Ware, Cutlery of all kinds, Sleds and Skates, Silverware, Watches and Jewely.

New Grosley Radio

PAYNE & GREEN CO.

Authorized Agents

Mary Wayne
Chocolates

I Have a Full Line of BOX CANDY
1 lb. 5 lb. Boxes

Mary Wayne Chocolates

and all kinds of BULK CANDY

Christmas gifts

Box Handkerchiefs, Toilet Sets, Hosiery, Arm Bands, Garters; Fancy Vanity Cases, Neckwear and Shirts. Rayon Vests, Pencil Sets, Blazers, Overcoats, Sweaters, Caps and Wool Shirts

R. A. BARBER
North Adams, Mich.

Two Snbscriptions to McCall's and one Advocate 1 yr. $2.75

CORRESPONDENCE

HOXSIE

Merritt Wattles of Detroit is spending the week at home here.

Elba Sweezey left for Pontiac on Thursday for an indefinite stay.

Geraldine Gox was the guest of Ruth Williams at North Adams Thursday evening.

John Iveson and wife visited at the Pat McMahon home in Moscow Towhship Friday.

Harry Roberts seems to be convalescing nicely since his return home from the Hillsdale hospital, but he is unable to walk.

Lillian Pendell attended the Xmas tree and program at the Fowler school and was an overnight guest of the teacher, Geraldine Cox, Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. John Iveson, Walter Donahue, Ettie Welker, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Will Steveson and Ruth attended the golden wedding of John Hicks and wife at North Adams on Tuesday.

Our teacher, Ruth Williams, and pupils, gave a very entertaining Xmas program consisting of songs, recitations and a playlet "The Light at the School house" A pretty Xmas tree with plenty of gifts and Santa Claus to distribute them was a pleasing feature

Jonesville

R. D. Fogg is ill at his home on West Chicago Street.

J. T. Reed is seriously ill at his home in this village.

Mrs. Anna Graham entertained the 500 club Monday afternoon.

The High School closed Thursday for the Holiday vacation.

Earl Hughes and family of Washington are visiting at the Barney Hughes home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ora Lint and two sons Robert and Max of Battle Creek are here for Christmas.

Several young people from here attended the Christian Endeavor Rally last Sunday in Marshall.

Dr. Stoner a former resident of this village now of West Durham N. C. was visiting here during the week.

The entertainment committee of the Eastern Star Lodge are planning a ladies masquerade for January 12.

Arthur Wells and family will spend Christmas at the home of his brother Percy and family near North Adams.

Arthur L. Massey and wife will go to Toledo Friday evening to visit their daughter Mrs. D. J. Donahue and family over the week end.

Joseph B. Jacobs and Miss Floy Jacobs of Toledo will spend Christmas and the week end with their sister Mrs. Olive S. Wisner, West street.

West Hoxie

Wm Bloemker and family spent Saturday in Hillsdale.

The Jackson school gave their program Thursday evening.

Lillian Pendell visited at the Bloemker home Monday afternoon

Edward Bloemker of Detroit will spend Christmas at the home of him parents.

Ben Pendell who had the misfortune to break his leg is getting along nicely.

Merritt Wattles of Detroit is at home for the holidays. Will Wattles is expected home Saturday.

Wilbur Sprague and wife will spend Christmas and New Years at the Sprague and McLaughlin homes

Miss Ruth Williams and pupils of the Hoxie School gave a Christmas program which was much enjoyed by patrons and friends.

Neighbors and friends of George Hayhoe surprised him Saturday evening, it being his birthday. A fine potluck supper was served and all enjoyed a social evening.

Line 39 gave a farewell party for Henry Porter Monday evening. Mr. Porter is going to Sacramento California to spend the winter with his sister and brother whom he has not seen for 20 years. He expects to start Monday.

—Eastern Star Dance, next Tuesday, Dec. 28th. Good music, a good Caller and a good time for everybody. Keep the date in mind. Town Hall.

Jerome

I. W. Wertenberger and wife motored to Jackson Saturday.

Born Monday to Murl Morehead and wife a daughter, Beverly Jane.

H. H. Alley, Arthur Bovay, Harry McClanahan and wife, Vern Moore and wife also Thomas Lane were in Jackson Monday.

L. D. and Phyllis Walworth of Albion College also Harold Sterling and Guy Baker of Ypsilanti Normal are spending their vacations here.

The school held its annual Christmas exercises at the M. E. church Thursday evening December 23, with a good sized crowd in attendance. A Christmas cantata lasting about an hour composed the program after which Santa Claus distributed gifts from a well filled tree.

Obituary

Hiram Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cain was born in Washington Co. Pa. April 29 1868. Departed this life December 7th 1926 aged 58 years, 7 months and 8 days. At the age of 14 years he with his parents came to Putnam Co. Ohio to their new home.

On November 24 1895 he was united in marriage to Fannie Rickerd. To this union were born two children, one died in infancy and the other lived to the age of 27 years. His wife also passed away in the year of 1902.

On the 29th of October 1923 he was again united in marriage to Mrs. Anna Barnhart having moved to Michigan in 1920. He leaves to mourn his departure his wife, and three brothers all of Leipsic Ohio and a host of relatives and friends.

In the year 1902 he united with the Church of Christ at Belmore Ohio. He also was a member of the Odd Fellows Lodge.

Card of Thanks

The family wishes to thank the neighbors and friends for their assistance during the time of trouble

Mrs. Anna Cain and Brothers
Joseph Alexander
George Cain

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council Room Dec. 15, 1926

Meeting called to order by President Stevens; Roll called; trustees present Eggleston, Carney. Ford and Fry. Absent Mercer, Caswell.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved as read.

Motion made that J. W. Losey receive 50c per day for building fires. Carried.

Motion made that the fire truck and building be insured. Carried.

On motion several bills were allowed;

So. Mich Light and Power	$316 85
W. Frederick, rd'g mct.	25 00
Graves & Ford, lumber	6 47
J. W. Losey, supplies	6 12
Harley Fry, team work	1 20
J. W. Losey, labor	2 50

On motion, meeting adjourned.
B. R. Shepard, Clerk

North Adams Cagers Win First Game

The North Adams Panthers, a fast organization of Basket Ball stars, opened the season here Tuesday evening by defeating the Camden Independents 29 to 20. The new team was not greeted with a great deal of enthusiasm, but the crowd which was in attendance agreed that they were more than satisfied.

The visitors led the local team until near the end of the first half, when the gap was closed and the Panthers had a one point advantage when the whistle sounded. Going into the second half the locals opened up a dazzling passing attack which completely bewildered Camden. Williams caged baskets from all angles and completely outplayed his man. L. Radabaugh got the tip off consistently and played a good defensive game. He also made three nice goals The guards Wolcott, Roberts and Thornton stopped practically all the opposing players. A new player by the name of "Van" practically unknown here established himself as a favorite when he passed up individual achievement for the good of team play.

The local team will play Kellers Montpelier, Ohio Orioles here the first week in January. North Adams will journey to Montpelier to oppose this team next Thursday in their first out of town game.

"Severe backaches, pain over hips and in my side, dizziness, floating specks, irregular painful bladder action. Very miserable! Foley Pills, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys, gave me prompt comforting and permanent relief."
(signed) F. M. Platte,
Peoria, Ill.

What
FOLEY PILLS
have done for others
they will do for you
Take Them When Tired

Clyde S. Wertz, North Adams

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John Hicks of this village were very pleasantly surprised on Tuesday at 11:00, this being the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. A party of old friends and neighbors to the number of 38 gathered at the Hicks home where the day was spent in delightful sociability.

At noon a chicken-pie dinner was served and all did ample justice to the spread. As mementos of the occasion Mr. and Mrs. Hicks were presented with a nice chair and a bridge lamp and Mr. Hicks very fittingly responded with remarks thanking the donors. Mr. and Mrs. Hicks have resided in this village nine years, coming from Hoxie and during that time have made a host of friendships among our citizens, in fact all who know Mr. and Mrs. Hicks have the best possible regards for them. The crowd was mostly composed of old neighbors and acquaintances from about Hoxie and west of the village. Those from away were Bert Williams and wife of Jonesville. Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Martha Brisbin are sisters of Mrs. Hicks. Congratulations were received from friends at Jackson and Saginaw.

Capital Punishment

Capital punishment has been abolished in Norway, Holland, Italy, Rumania and Portugal.

Early History of China

By the year 2200 B. C. the Chinese were a civilized nation in the valley of the Yellow river, whence they soon spread to the Yang-tse-Kiang and the sea. Traditional records begin with the "Five Monarchs." These were successively followed by the dynasties known respectively as Hia, Shang, and Chow which lasted from 1122 B. C. to 255 B. C. The last is the only one of the group that is truly historical.

Anyone Who can wind a watch

Now commands the air with

THE NEW ERLA MONODIC RECEIVER

Here is news for the whole family: Mother, Brother, and even little Sister can get new "thrills"—new stations they never could before. One after another stations come in with "next-door" clarity and volume. Selectivity is now razor keen

Radiation, or the annoying broadcasting of squeals into neighboring antennae is eliminated removing one of the most prolific causes of radio interference and dissatisfaction.

Harshness and fuzziness of tone resulting from regeneration are eradicated. Even under full pressure, reproduction of voice or music is entirely natural and undistorted.

Mosher's Radio Shop

93 South Howell Street. HILLSDALE, MICH.

Dawn Theatre Hillsdale
A Butterfield Theatre

December 23 and 24
THURS. and FRIDAY
Richard Dix in
"SAY IT AGAIN"

Christmas Day
BUCK JONES in
"GENTLE CYCLONES"

December 26 and 27
SUNDAY and MON'Y
ALICE TERRY in
"MAKE NOSTRUM"

December 28 and 29
TUESDAY and WEDNES
FORD STERLING in
"THE SHOW OFF" also in
"GRASS"

Thursday, December 30th
DORIS KENYON in "MISMATES"

SOME DELICIOUS DRINKS FOR DRY DAYS

A BIG, juicy, sun-kissed pineapple is one of the best sources of delicious drinks, punches and ices that we have today. In fact it might well be termed the "little brown jug" of Volstead days containing as it does Nature's own "kick" in its amber liquor.

If Rip Van Winkle had gone to sleep in the Hawaiian Islands and had awakened one of these fine mornings near a pineapple plantation he would have thought the little men with their kegs of whiskey had turned into plants and their kegs into new and odd shaped brown jugs with stoppers in the tops from which green pointed leaves were sprouting.

Many delicious drinks that Rip Van Winkle never heard of are made from the liquor yielded by these little brown jugs. There are pineapple lemonades, fruit punches and ices as well as the plain iced pineapple juice, so agreeable to the palate and so beneficial to the health. The juice from a can of sliced pineapple may be used in these drinks, the fruit being reserved for salads, desserts, or fruit cocktails. Or the canned pineapple juice may be purchased without the fruit. Here are three excellent drinks that may be made from this juice:

PINEAPPLE JULEP

3 cups water
1/3 cup sugar
1½ cups Hawaiian pineapple juice
3 tablespoons lime juice
3 tablespoons minced mint

Boil the sugar and half the water for ten minutes. Cool, add remainder of the water, fruit juices and the mint. Allow to stand one hour, strain, add ice and garnish with fresh mint leaves.

PINEAPPLE EGGNOG

½ cup pineapple juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
1 egg
¼ cup crushed ice

Dissolve sugar in pineapple juice and lemon juice mixed together, add beaten egg, pour into glass of crushed ice and sprinkle with nutmeg.

PINEAPPLEADE

1 cup water
1 cup sugar
1 cup Hawaiian pineapple juice
1/3 cup lemon juice
1 quart ice water

Dissolve the sugar in the water, or, better still, boil the sugar and water for ten minutes. Cool, add the pineapple juice, lemon juice, and ice water.

WERTZ'
'Twas the night
Before Xmas

------and all through the house not a person stirred but mother..---- and she was busy preparing for the Holiday. Cakes and Cookies to bake
------preparations for the dinner------and ever so many other things!

CANDIES You wiil find my Complete lines to be the best in quality that is obtainable.

Filled Candy, Satin-finished, per pound 40c
Peanut Brittle golden brown lb. 19c
Wertz' Mixed, choice bright, hard, per lb. 17c
Hoe Cake per pound 39c

For the Christmas Feast

Bread, delicious White Loaf. 10c
Wertz' Real Coffee, lb. 48c
Cranberries finest Cape Cod 12c
Fruit Cake rich and tasty $1.25
Dates, per pound 15c

NUTS excellent quality. Low!

Finest Selected Extra Large Brazil Nuts, lb 29c
Choice Assortment Mixed Nuts, lb. 29c
California Oranges Sweet, juicy, dozen 48c

BRAZILS, WALNUTS, PEANUTS.

Four Pounds Sugar FREE
With three pounds Monarch Coffee at the regular price per pound of 55c TOTAL PRICE $1.65
For Friday, Saturday and Monday Only

CLYDE S. WERTZ

THE NORTH ADAMS ADVOCATE

Vol. XXXI | NORTH ADAMS, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1926 | No. 31

THE
Greendale Dairy
North Adams, Michigan
For the past year Associated with
The Franklin Creamery Company
Now operated by
The Franklin Creamery Company
Come in and let us serve you

THE CITIZENS BANK
[Unincorporated]
North Adams, Mich.
Resources Over $500,000
H. M. WILCOX, Pres. J. M. WILLIAMS V, Pres
A. J. HOFFMAN, Cashier
MRS. GRACE DOOLITTLE, Assistant Cashier
Co-Partners
J. M. WILLIAMS C. W. BLEECH A. WILLIAMS EST
A. J. HOFFMAN H. M. WILCOX B. I. LYNCH

[a] Safety on your money
[b] Yield on your money

I.—SAFETY : Building and Loan societies put 100 per cent of their investments in Real Estate. It is estimated that there are 9,000,000 share holders in Building and Loan Societies, having $5,000,000 in assets. Wayne county Savings Bank has $74,204,528 in savings :$41,140,576 is invested in Real Estate. The Central Savings and Trust Company has $28,961,093 in Savings, $27,294,298 are invested in Real Estate. The New York Life Insurance Company has $151,000,000 in assets invested in Illinois.

$94,000,000 Real Estate
$21,000,000 Railroad Bonds
$35,000,000 Public Utilities
$1,000,000 Municipal

Surely these facts are conclusive evidence of the safety of Real Estate.

II.—YIELD : In yield one cannot find so generous a return anywhere. In ten (10) years the following yields have been realized : Detroit 630 per cent; New York 217 per cent; Chicago 195 per cent; Atlanta 162 per cent; San Francisco, 159 per cent; Boston 137 per cent; Minneapolis 131 per cent; Kansas City 129 per cent; St. Louis 124 per cent; Cleveland 119 per cent; Philadelphia 116 per cent. Detroit yields three times as much as its next ranking city.

See DICK McBAIN, Moscow.

B. E. TAYLOR, Realtor
Community Builder
521-529 Ford Bldg. DETROIT, MICH.

Happy New Year
We want to thank our patrons one and all for their patronage the pasyear and hepa we can satistactorily serve you the coming year of 1927.

H. E. Young & Son
NORTH ADAMS, MICH.
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING

Local News

Patronize the item box at the post office.

Mrs. J. Jones is confined to the house by illness.

Frank Holcomb is reported as seriously ill at his home.

Dr. C. J. Howe, Optometrist—Comfortable glasses, Hillsdale. 42tf

Miss Donna Lynch of Detroit is spending the holidays at home.

The Woman's Club will meet with Mrs. Ettie Corey Monday afternoon January 3rd.

Will Scrivens and wife took christmas dinner with Jonn Williams and family on Saturday last.

John Duguid Jr., and wife of Boyne City, Michigan, yisited relatives here last week and part of this.

Laurence Wylie returned to Albion Tuesday, having spent part of his holiday vacation with his parents in this place.

Mrs. Fred Baker and daughter Rosene and Glen Baker and family took christmas dinner with Gurn Baker and wife.

Henry Schoolcraft of Chicago and Dr. Stoner and wife of Adrian spent Christmas with C. J. Knapp and wife and J. Jones and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Scrivens entertained on Sunday their children J. Ross Scrivens and family and Ralph Scrivens and family of Ypsilanti.

If you know yourself to be in arrears on the Advocate, please call in and get your calendar. It is here, and we are glad to present every subscriber with one.

Norman Sharp and wife entertained for Christmas on Saturday Mrs. Arthur Othoudt and son, Richard, and daughter, Gwendolyn, and mother, Mrs. Snow of Hanover, Claude Sharp and family, Lafern and Bondale Lyons of Adrian.

George Newman and son, Howard have traded the farm east of this village and the home here to Russel Peterson for the latter's 160-acre farm on Bacon Street Road two miles east of Hillsdale and parties will take possession March 1st. We are sorry to leran that both Newman families are to leave this vicinity.

Postmaster VanWert is rejoicing over the results of the visit of Postoffice Inspector Howe on Thursday. Mr. Howe gave the business a thorough inspection from A to Z, and was pleased to write "very good" at the end of his report. This means a heap at the wind-up of the busy holiday season when for two weeks the mails have been crowded, held up and delayed.

The Social Improvement club was held with Mrs. Kate winchell with 19 members present. Following a potluck dinner a program, roll call favorite songs. paper, "Xmas in foreign lands", Mae Bauman; talk "Then and Now" Mrs. Woolston; violin solo Mrs Eunice Norris with Mrs. Lola wilcox at the piano; this was followed by an exchange of presents which caused quite a little merriment.

Arthur Wells had a narrow escape Tuesday morning. When driving in, he undertook to stop to avoid a collision with a switch engine coming from the south, on the Chicago street crossing of the Fort Wayne branch, His car skidded and did several other tricks, finally stopping neighbor to a telephone pole. Neither car or owner hurt.—Jonesville Independent.

The Advocate is glad to acknowledge the receipt of one of the finest calendars of the season from the New York Central Terminal at New York. This is along the usual line, a splendid view of the "Twentieth Century Limited" passing through the picturesque Hudson River Valley in the shadow of the Palisades. For several years the Company has put out these splendid paintings of their brag train, reproduced from the original by Walter Greene. You bet we like it.

On Wednesday a mock wedding and shower occurred at the home of Miss Geraldine Cox in honor of her friend Mrs. Earle Williams (nee Margray Hayhoe) who had been wedded the previous Friday evening The ceremony was fittingly performed with Miss Marjorie Young as bride, Geraldine Cox as groom, Pauline Wells and Frances Young as father and mother of the bride. Misses Ruth Steveson and Donna Lynch acted as father and mother of the groom. Ruth Williams was the officiating clergyman. A Christmas tree graced the room and Christmas decorations were of the gay holiday attire. Miss Lillian Pendell acting as Santa Claus very appropriately presented the presents for the company of which many useful and beautiful were received. Dinner was served at 12:30.

For Sale—Twenty five Pullets Inquire at Dietz Store, North Adams Mich.

Wellington Lawrence and family spent Christmas with John Lawson and family in Hudson.

Miss Marjorie Young spent Sunday and Monday at the home of Miss Neva Bailey of Pittsford.

Mrs. Carrie Bailey and daughter Neva were dinner guests of Harold Young and family Monday evening.

Marcus Collins of Detroit and George Durga and wife spent Christmas at the home of their parents.

Mrs. Annabelle Gray and son Judd Jr. spent Christmas with the former's parents, George Gilcrist and wife of Quincy.

H. W. Helmick and wife entertained for Christmas W. C. Chadwick and wife of Saginaw, Everett Williams, wife and baby Betsy Jane.

There was a meeting of the Trustees of the Congregational church at the home of Mrs. Henry Fowler Wednesday evening and the funds for the church debt will be fully subscribed in a few days.

The Epworth League is planning a watchnight service for New Year's eve. at the Methodist church. The earlier part of the evening will be occupied with social activities and election of officers for the coming year.

Christmas exercises were held at the J. L. Buck school last Friday evening. There was a very good attendance. The program consisted of songs, recitations, dialogues and a pantomine which was well given. Santa Claus assisted by some of the pupils distributed presents from a well filled tree.

Death of Mrs. S. J. Vaughn

Mrs. Amaratha Vaughn of Battle Creek, passed away at her home on Winter street in that city at 4:30 a. m., Sunday last after an illness dating back to August 1st, at which time she sustained a shock of paralysis. From this she partially recovered and was able to visit her daughter in Chicago but two months ago she became worse and failed rapidly.

Mrs. Vaughn was 82 years of age, the widow of Samuel J. Vaughn ormerly of Moscow township where they resided for several years, and she was well a favorably known. She died on her birthday, and also Christmas eve marked her fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Two years ago last August she was widowed by the death of Mr. Vaughn, after having resided in Battle Creek since 1902.

She was born in Lodi Township Washtenaw county, Michigan, December 26, 1844, and had never lived outside of the state. During her residence in Moscow township shs was chosen Matron of Moscow Chapter O. E. S., and der membership is still in that order.

She is survived by four children, two daughters, Mrs. Jennete Wetherell of Chicago, Mrs. Mayte D. Smith of Gougac Lake, two sons, Judge Walter H. North of the Calhoun Circuit Court and Jay R. Vaughn of the Gougac Lake district, eight grand-children and one great-grand child. She is the last of her generation.

Funeral services were held at the late home in Battle Creek Sunday at 11:00 a. m. conducted by Rev. William Potter, an old friend of the family and Rev. Alador Tomshany, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of which she was a member.

Burial services were conducted at the grave in North Adams cemetery with the immediate family and a few old neighbors standing by. Mrs. Vaughn was a worthy wife and mother, an estimable citizen and her passing leaves a vacancy in the family circle, sincerely bereaved.

DANCE
TOWN HALL, North Adams
Fri. Jan. 7, 1927
Dance Bill 75c, special

CREAM
We want your Cream.
Tested while you wait.
We pay best marketprice
CRATER & EDINGER

Methodist Church Calendar

REV. H. E. WYLIE, PASTOR
Morning worship 11:00
Sabbath School 10:00 A. M.
Epworth League 6:00 P. M.
Evening Worship 7:00

BAPTIST CHURCH

A. REISER, PASTOR

Preaching service every Sunday at 10:30 a. m.

Sunday school at 11:45

Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:30.

Congregational Church Calendar

E. C. JANDY, Pastor

Regular morning worship at 10:30 a. m. Sunday school 11:45

For Rent—Barn suitable for garage in North Adams. Phone 5001. Mrs. Frances Rickerd. 29t3

Prominent Double Wedding

A very beautiful double wedding took place at the First Congregational church of North Adams Friday evening December 24th at 8:30 when Miss Margray Hayhoe became the bride of Mr. Earle Williams and Miss Oleta Corey the bride of Mr. Clyde Bemis. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Jandy pastor of the church.

Miss Hayhoe wore a lovely gown of pale rose georgette and Miss Corey's gown was of pale green georgette and silver lace. Both brides wore silver and rhinestone bandeaus and carried bouquets of roses.

The auditorium was decorated with evergreen, bittersweet and tall candles tied with white tulle bows. The tables of the dining room formed a hollow square and were decorated in pink and white. The refreshments were served by friends of the brides.

Mrs. Williams is a graduate of the North Adams High School and the State Normal College at Ypsilanti. The groom is a graduate of Hillsdale High School and a prosperous young farmer of the vicinity.

Mrs. Bemis is a graduate of the Jonesville High school and attended Cleary Business College at Ypsilanti. The groom is a graduate of Hillsdale High school also of Cleary Business College and is at present employed at Pinkham & Wright's office in Hillsdale.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams made a honeymoon trip to Toledo, returning on Monday evening to the farm home two miles south of North Adams where they will be at home to their many friends. The bride is at present a teacher in the Bross school near this village.

Mr. and Mrs. Bemis will be at home on Chicago street Jonesville. These four young people are now receiving the congratulations of a number of well wishing friends in North Adams and vicinity, who hope their life's journey will be a succession of prosperity.

Dick McBain of Moscow township was in North Adams on business Tuesday.

Rev. H. E. Wylie and son Edward and Wayne North motored to Coldwater Tuesday.

W. C. Wylie of Fremont Mich. has been spending the Christmas season with his parents in North Adams.

Card of Thanks

Most sincere thanks to the Womans club for their kindly remembrance on my 83rd birthday.

Mrs. E. S. Knowles

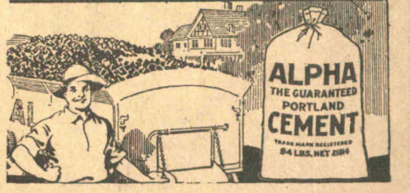
BARBER'S
Regular Prices again start the first of 1927
Good for 30 Days
Muslin by the bolt, per yard 13c and 14c
Pillow Tubing per yard 34c
Challies per yd. 14c
Ten Days' Clearance Price on Ladies' Zipper Boots $3.85
R. A. Barber
North Adams, Mich.

I'm Going to Ed Benge's market Don't Stop me!
Ed always keeps the very best of Meats and Canned Goods, Crackers, Oranges; Candies and Baked Goods
Groceries. A good place to trade
EDSON J. BENGE

20 Extra Quarts of Milk
Count 'em
From Every Sack of
International Special Dairy Molasses Feed
as compared to using wheat feeds or ground grains. We guarantee this increase has been secured in hundreds of actual tests.
INTERNATIONAL SPECIAL DAIRY MOLASSES FEED contains protein, molasses and fat combined in proper proportions to provide the necessary nutrients and energy required for maximum milk production. Both protein and molasses produce milk. Special Dairy contains both.

This great feed is digestible and palatable and is skillfully processed and mixed, thus insuring a big extra gain in milk.
Accept no substitute. Inferior brands offered by other mills cannot produce the same profitable results as Special Dairy.
Ask Your Feed Dealer
INTERNATIONAL SUGAR FEED CO.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA

Prices
One Hundred Pounds International Dairy Feed $1.90
One Hnndred Pounds Hy-grade Corno Oat Feed 1.25
200 pound Cost $ 3.15
100 pound Cost 1.57
F. I. WILLIAMS & SON



Coal That's All Coal—
Hourly Tested Cement
The Famous
POCAHONTAS CLINKERLESS
one of the cleanest burning coals of the Bituminous line
HARD COAL in Chestnut and Egg Sizes, We carry only the best Brands
GRAVES & FORD LUMBER COMPANY

An Especially Interesting Page on Various Subjects

Prepared for all Classes of People in all Walks of Life

PRITCHARD'S WEATHER FORECAST

Week of January 2

Storms of rain, sleet or snow are due to reach most parts of Michigan by the first day of January and will carry over into the first part of this week. Storminess will be more or less general during all the early part of this week with some heavy snowfalls.

About Wednesday temperatures will reach decidedly low readings even for this time of year, but will be of short duration. Because of the formation of another storm area in the western states, Michigan will be getting the effects of the moderation in temperature about Friday of this week.

The temperature changes at end of this week in this state are expected to be more or less marked with a rapid change to quite moderate readings. As a result of this thermal movement the coming storms will produce rain, sleet or snow in most of the counties of the state together with high winds. These conditions will break close to Friday.

General Forecast for 1927

Glancing rapidly over the various weather conditions that are expected to influence the greater part of Michigan during the next 12 months, we foresee generally cool weather with the possible exception of a couple of the spring months. The extremes of weather in the spring months, especially during April, may prove very detrimental to the Michigan farmer.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

The 24 individual National Banks of New York City earned $55,491,000 from June, 1925, to June, 1926.

New York is probably the only city where food inspectors have the power to destroy bad food on the spot. In other cities condemned food must be taken before a magistrate.

New York City pays $14.32 per capita for education, $6.55 for administration, $6.56 for police protection, $3.89 for street cleaning, $2.20 for courts and only 6 cents for food inspection.

The National Association of Credit Men, commenting on waste in business, says many figures are beyond public appreciation, with waste in publishing seeming to lead. Three periodicals suspend daily while four new ones start to help swell the waste.

Each year 2,500,000 Americans born and 1,400,000 die and 1,250,000 become brides.

Statistics show that English women are becoming more inventive. Last year 608 women applied for patents as against 493 in 1924.

Our decreased consumption of Chilean nitrates, as reported by the Department of Agriculture, is due largely to our own manufacture of synthetic nitroegn.

Cuticura Talcum
Is Soothing
For Baby's Skin
Soap, Ointment, Talcum sold everywhere.

MARKS
FURNITURE HOUSE
"Used But Not Abused Furniture"
125 SOUTH DIVISION
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
Some Antiques
When Moving to Grand Rapids Call on Us for Your Furniture.

IT'S A FACT
that notwithstanding the Superior quality of
RED ARROW
bread flour, its price is almost the same as ordinary flour. And it makes wonderful bread
WATSON-HIGGINS MILLING CO.
Grand Rapids, Michigan

Are You "Toxic?"
It Is Well, Then, to Learn the Importance of Good Elimination.
FUNCTIONAL inactivity of the kidneys permits a retention of waste poisons in the blood. Symptoms of this toxic condition are a dull, languid feeling, drowsy headaches and, sometimes, toxic backache and dizziness. That the kidneys are not functioning as they should is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Many readers have learned the value of Doan's Pills, stimulant diuretic to the kidneys, in this condition. Users everywhere endorse Doan's. Ask your neighbor!
DOAN'S PILLS 60c
Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys
Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chem., Buffalo, N.Y.

Reindeer Industry Promises to Be Important to Alaska

The reindeer industry in Alaska promises to become an important factor in the future development of the territory, says the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. It is comparatively a recent undertaking and as a commercial enterprise dates back only a few years. The original stock of 1,280 animals imported from Siberia about 25 years ago has increased to about 350,000, distributed throughout the territory in 110 herds.

The rapidly growing industry requires that scientific studies be made for its best development and under congressional authorization such study was begun by the department in 1920 through the Biological Survey. Improved methods have been recommended to herd owners for handling reindeer and utilizing the range. A study of the range is now being made with a view to inaugurating a permanent system of grazing allotments. Careful and continuous inspection will be required to determine whether an area is being under or overgrazed.

One of the more fundamental of the problems studied has to do with the relation of lichens to grazing.. Plans for future work contemplates studies chiefly along such lines as the development of interior ranges, conditions governing forage and range management, breed improvement of reindeer, and the control of the diseases and parasites to which the animals are subject. In view of the fact that conditions in Alaska are so different from those in the States as regards the kind of animal under consideration, the nature of the forage and the climate, it is particularly important that thorough studies be made.

Full progress in the reindeer industry can come only from the adoption of better management methods, not only in range control and regulation, but in herd management and provisions for transporting and marketing the meat. This involves open herding, reduction of the proportion of bulls in the herds, selection of the best stock for breeding, infusion of new blood by cross breeding with native caribou, adoption of improved methods of corralling and branding, keeping sled reindeer in each herd and providing for herd ownership on the percentage basis for increases, with one registered brand for a community herd.

War Veteran Claims Gas Is Humane Weapon

There has been no weapon in the history of all wars that is more humane, and at the same time more effective than gas, writes George Witten, war veteran, in the Outlook.

Mr. Witten was a casualty four times during the great war—once from a bullet, once from shell fire, once from gas and once from a mine explosion.

"One-third of the casualties of the World War were caused by gas, and of this number less than 2 per cent died; the remainder got well," he writes in The Outlook. "Against this we have the other two-thirds, which were caused by shells and bullets; of this number 24 per cent died, and many of those who escaped death are permanently injured.

"It is foolish to believe that in the event of war any nation will hesitate to use a weapon which is the most effective, and at the same time the most economical, besides being the most humane known in history," Mr. Witten continues.

"No matter what treaties are made, gas in warfare has proved an indispensable weapon, and there is no doubt but that gas will be the chief weapon of the future. It is vitally necessary to the safety of the United States that its troops are adequately trained in the use of gas in war and in protecting themselves against attack by this new weapon."

Sales of Short Wave Radio Sets Increase

The trend of interest in amateur radio circles toward short wave receiving sets is noticeable at this time with sales of short wave receiving sets and parts for the making of short wave sets decidedly on the increase, according to a survey recently completed by a prominent radio manufacturin concern.

Two years ago practically every short wave receiver in existence was entirely of home manufacture, with home wound coils the only tuning devices. Today a number of manufacturers catering to amateurs are making coils and other parts especially designed for short wave receivers, while the assembly of hits for short wave sets boasts half a dozen concerns active in this field.

One prominent radio manufacturer reports decided interest in a low short wave receiver now on the market, while Crosley, noted for low priced apparatus, has announced an adapter which will convert any radio receiving set into a short wave receiver by the throwing of a switch.

The use of short waves for relay broadcasting and as a supplementary means of reaching a wide audience for large broadcasting stations will gradually draw more and more listeners from the crowded lanes of broadcasting with the not impossible future that eventually broadcasting will be conducted on a band of short waves in addition to the channels now regularly used for entertainment programs.

Roberta Risks It

© MARGARET CAMERON LEWIS

SYNOPSIS

P. G. (Piggy)) Brazenose is an amiable young man with a diverting habit of getting into strange escapades—to the discomfort of his Big Business dad. By sheer chance he is placed in a position to be of aid to a spirited young lady, Roberta Scott. Her dad is holding "captive" her younger sister because of a love affair. He threatens to spoil her whole life in his misplaced zeal to "save" her from the lover he disapproves.

Piggy and Roberta elude a detective who is following her—a precaution of her father's—and head for the Scott country home where the sister is held. They use Piggy's car. For safety's sake, Roberta is disguised in widow's weeds. On the way, it develops that her father and Piggy's are business rivals. Undismayed they hurry on to the New Hampshire country place. En route, at a small town, Piggy is "discovered" by a college pal, but manages to shake him. Back on the road, they make a halt and dye his hair black to save him further recognition. Also he dons a chauffeur's costume. Arrived at last at the scene of action, which is carefully guarded, Roberta and Piggy investigate. Without warning Roberta's father speeds into the situation; obviously the attempted "rescue" has been reported to him. He, fortunately, does not recognize them. Here the story pauses while the events leading up to the adventure are cleared. It is shown why Roberta's fiance, Nixon was forced to ask Piggy to help her in his stead. Her father owns considerable stock in Nixon's struggling business and threatens to ruin him if he attempts to help Roberta in her crusade in her sister's behalf. Meanwhile Piggy's father worries over business troubles, chief of which is Scott's threatened invasion of his own field. On the field of action Piggy and Roberta establish a look-out post overseeing the Scott place. They discover that Celia, the younger sister, is being paternally bullied by her inconsiderate father. As they watch they discuss what's to be done. Roberta suggests that her fiance—the man who started Piggy off on the chase—should know what's going on. At which Piggy snorts indignantly. And the plot proceeds to thicken. They go into the nearest village.

And then several things happen—Read on!

Piggy took the road to Keene at a lively clip, but Scott's man, after the manner of chauffeurs driving alone, had been equally expeditious and they did not overtake him. Entering the city at a more discreet speed, Mrs. Smith's car drew up before the most promising-looking dry goods emporium facing the public square and Peter Brown sprang out to open the door of the tonneau. As she stepped to the curb he saluted respectfully and remarked in an undertone:

"Now wrap the draperies of your grief about you and sit down for a pleasant time. It may take me half an hour or so to get around this guy."

CHAPTER TWENTY

Piggy reconnoitered until he discovered Scott's car standing before a garage in a side street. A few minutes later, armed with a couple of packets of cheap cigarettes, he swaggered into the garage, saying:

"Gimme some gas. Fill'er up. Oil, too."

"Hey, you! Git out o' here ef you're a-goin' to smoke!"

"'What's eatin' you?" Piggy haughtily inquired, match in hand. Scott's chauffeur, a few feet away, brinned at him and winked.

"Haint nothin' eatin' me, 'cept a little hoss sense. You city fellers don't seem to know nothin' 'tall. Don't they never learn ye thet gas burns easy?"

"You don't say. Does it? Have one?" He offered the cigarettes to his brother chauffeur, who promptly accepted. "Well, I never burn gas except on the road." Piggy scratched his match.

The garage man advanced threateningly. "Here, you git aout with that!"

"Oh, all right, all right! Keep your hair on. Maybe it ain't very safe to light it around where you are. You might blow up."

This display of wit brought a guffaw from the other chauffeur, and together they strolled outside, Scott's employee already prepossessed in favor of the newcomer.

"Saw you on the road this morning, didn't I?" he asked.

"Ye-ah," Piggy replied, with a grimace caused by the infamous tobacco he was burning in a worthy cause; but the other, attributing it to the divine discontent of an urban chauffeur compelled to negotiate rough, unpaved roads, laughed. "You live around here?"

"Nope. New York. But the old man comes up once in awhile. He owns a summer place over near Jaffrey."

"Jaffrey—let's see. That's near where I met you this morning, ain't it?"

"Ye-ah. We've just come and were looking around a little this morning. The lady I work for, Mrs. Smith, has rented a furnished house at Fitzwilliam."

"Fitzwilliam? Gawd, that's a hot one!"

"Ain't it? Say, what's a guy do for a good time up here? Any theaters or dances or anything?"

"Nix. Church sociables, an' once in a long while a fireman's ball or sump'n. Plenty o' girls, though—such as they are." The man spat derisively.

"Huh! Looks like I'm in for joy. We might stay all winter."

"All winter! What for?"

"Well it's this way. Old Smith died out west about a month ago. I've worked for him three years. An' she's looking for a quiet place where she can mourn all she feels like."

"She's found it, all right. There ain't another damn thing to do up here but mourn. 'Taint so bad in summer, but in winter—why, say! You can't take a car our from November 'til May. When it ain't snow it's mud, up to your hubs. An' ruts? Gawd!"

"That's nice," said Piggy. "What's a guy to do with himself?"

"Chews straws—an' gabs. These rubes up here—say, you wait 'til you know 'em like I do. All winter! Gawd!"

"How long you goin' to stay?"

"Dunno. The old man never tells me nothin', but I hope he takes time to sleep. We drove all night."

"You did? Huh! Not for mine! What's eatin' him?"

"Search me. I guess sump'n happened. I see him out on the terrace this mornin' jawin' Celia. She's his daughter, an' sump'n's wrong with her head."

"Crazy?"

"Well, sort o'. They've had her up here now for pretty near three months, an' they never let her out o' sight day or night. There's somebody with her. She an' Mis' Scott was in Yurrop an' the old man went over an' brought 'em back here. He says the girl ain't crazy yet, but they act like they're scared she's goin' to be. I guess she tries to run away an' kill herself or sump'n, 'cause he's had barbed wire put all around the place an' got some dogs to turn loose at night. They say she's scared of her life of 'em."

"Gee!" said Piggy sympathetically. "That's tough luck."

"Sure is. She's a pretty girl, too. I always liked her."

"Good people to work for? Been with 'em long?"

"Five years. They're all right—some ways. Pay well. But the old man's a Tartar. They call him G. A. down home—Gawd Almighty. He wants to run the earth—an' he comes darn near doin' it. I'll say that for him. But you have to be on the job, all right."

"Day and night, looks like."

"Well, not so much. I guess he's fixed to stay here awhile now. Anyhow, he was at the offce late last night gettin' ready. We never left New York 'til midnight, and we sure did burn up the road to get here quick. He told me to fill up with gas right away, but he alawys does when we get up here. He's a big business man and likely to be called back in a hurry. I guess he's goin' to stay a few days, though. Hope he does, for I want some sleep. Besides, it's goin' to rain. See them clouds over Monadnock way?"

"I hope he does, too," said Piggy. "Then maybe I'll see you again. It's awful lonesome up here. My name's Pete Brown."

"Mine's Jim Cody."

"I ain't goin' to have much to do. Maybe take Mrs. Smith out for an hour or two every day, and tinker at the car. S'pose I drop in to see you some time?"

"Nix on that! The old man don't want strangers 'round. He says they excite Celia. But I could meet you here sometimes."

"All right, you're on. I see you got that new speedometer. How's she work?"

They strolled over to their cars, lingering awhile in techical converse as to their respective merits. With an eye on the New York license plates, Scott's man remarked:

"Thought you said you come from out West!"

"We did—Seattle," Piggy returned evenly. "But we didn't bring our car. Bought this one in New York the other day. Mrs. Smith was in a hurry to get here, so the feller said we could use his license number 'til we got one of our own. I gotta see about that, too ,right away. Well, I'd better be showin' up in the Square. She's shoppin' and might want me. So long."

"See you later." Cody yawned. "Gee! I'm likely to go to sleep on the way home!"

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

After paying the garage man, Mrs. Smith's chauffeur waved his hand and was off, well satisfied. During his report of this interview to Roberta, as they drove toward Greenfield, she cried indignantly:

"Crazy! Celia! What an awful thing to say! But I wonder she isn't. Never a moment alone, day or night—always watched—it's enough to drive anyone insane."

"Never mind. It won't last long now. We'll get her out."

"But how, Peter? HOW?"

"Gosh! you're a dyed-in-the-wool planner, aren't you? How the deuce do I know how? Same way I got next to Cody, maybe. Luck. There's always a way if you watch for it."

At Greenfield he bought a wire-cutter and some heavy brown overalls, which would make him practically invisible in the woods. Leaving Roberta in the car at the station, he disappeared for a while, and came back rundling a serviceable second-hand bicycle.

"What's that for?" she asked.

"Sleuthing stealthily by night," he replied, grinning as he prepared to secure it to the running board. "Makes less noise than a car. Besides, I might get fired if I joyride too much. She's awful economical, Mrs. Smith is, and gas costs money."

"Idiot!" said Roberta; but she marveled at his forethought, not fully appreciating all the values of a college career.

The train came in and a tall, angular figure carrying an old-fashioned portmanteau stepped down to the platform.

"There she is," he said, chuckling. "That's Janet. Now watch."

He strode briskly to meet her, and when she descried him everything about Janet McDougall stiffened—her grip on the handle of the bag, her spine and shoulders, the muscles of her face, her lips. His telegram had alarmed her, and the intensity of her fear for him throughout the day could not have been more accurately gauged than by the force of the grim indignation into which it was transmuted by her first glimpse of his smiling, roguish face.

"Bully for you, Janet! There's the car. Come along." He tried to relieve her of her burden, but she clung to it, her glance sternly taking note of his dyed hair, darkened eyebrows and chauffeur's livery.

"Lat be. I'll no be 'bidin' here," she announced, in the broad Scots into which strong emotion always threw her, though ordinarily her nationality was evidenced only by a burr. "What arre ye at noo, ye gomeral?"

"Sh! Don't give me away. There's a lady over her who's in trouble and I want you to help her."

"I'll no bide tae blink at yer amours, ye deil's buckie."

"Oh, yes you will. Dinna be camsteary, noo." Twinkling, he urged her with a phrase she had used for years in his own obstinate moments. "There are no amours about it. She's an awfully nice girl and nobody but you can help us out. Come on!" He pried her fingers loose from the portmanteau and ran off with it, laughing, and as Janet was a true Scot, she followed her property—with dignity.

He reached the car first and whispered: "Help! A moi! She's balky." Turning to Janet, he added: "In with you now! We've a long drive before us."

"I'll no be gaein' wi' ye. Ye'll be giein' me ma pockmanty—"

"Please, Janet!" Roberta swept aside her veil, disclosing her delicate, anxious face and eyes softly pleading. "We'll be in worse trouble than we are now if you don't. It's my trouble—about my little sister—and Mr. Brazenose is trying to help me. You can't go back tonight, anyway. It's too late. Come with us, and if you want to go home in the morning, you may. I promise. Please!"

"Aweel—gin ye promise . . ."

Piggy gave her a boost from behind, tossed the portmanteau into the tonneau after her, and they shot out of Greenfield at a speed making the old Scotswoman gasp.

Before they reached Fitzwilliam Roberta had confided to her the whole story, and nothing more was heard about Janet's returning to New York. She warned them that no good ever came of defying parental authority and quoted at length from the Guid Buik to prove it; she grimly prophesied a prison cell or the hangman's noose—preferably both—for the scion of the house of Brazenose, and said that both he and the bit lass were loopy limmers—but she stayed.

Undertaking to serve both their moral and physical beings, she swept and dusted, scrubbed and cooked, exhorting them the while to have a care for the salvation of their immortal souls. Anon she sallied forth into the local marts of trade to match wits with the astute Yankee villagers, who found in her a foeman worthy of their steel and respected her accordingly—the more, perhaps, because she refused to gossip about her mistress.

Directly questioned as to her term of service with the widow, she vouchsafed the information that she had worked for the master ever since he was a wee lad. On a later occasion she grudgingly admitted that Brown, the chauffeur, might have been correct in his statement that the decease of the lamented had been recent, leaving his relict crushed and heartbroken. As austerely taciturn as New England itself concerning the affairs and motives of her household, New England recognized and esteemed a kindred spirit, though this by no means assuaged its curiosity. Within a day or two, however, the Smith menage was fully accepted. Janet's dour facade was a guarantee of respectability.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

In the meantime Piggy had decided to sleep at the house instead of at the tavern, as originally planned, but he insisted upon Roberta's dining alone in state in the dining room, while he took his meals from the kitchen table with Janet. He said you never could tell, in a small community, who might snoop up to a window to look or listen, or what excuse might serve for a sudden call.

After dinner that first night he joined Roberta in the living room, where she sat beside a bright wood fire.

"Is there any way we can let Celia know we're around?" he asked. "Hadn't you some signal as kids that we could use now? Think," he urged, when she shook her head. "It'll put grit into her—help her hold out—if she even suspects that you may be on the job. Isn't there something I can whistle, or a code I can rap out, or something?"

"No. Not a thing."

"Darn! That means we can't wait long, then. She's near the breaking point. Where's her room?"

"She used to have the one over the door to the terrace, but they may have moved her now. Why?"

"All right. I'm off. Don't wait up for me."

"Where are you going?"

"Out for a ride on my new bike," he answered, grinning. "Crazy about it. Can't wait."

"ePter! You're not going to try anything tonight? Not with father here!"

"Not likely, but you never can tell. Anyhow, I'll have a look-see. 'Night."

Wearing his new brown overalls and a heavy canvas hunting coat, with sandwiches, an electric torch and a revolver in his pockets, Piggy set out under a black and lowering sky for Birchwood.

Laboriously pedaling through the darkness of the woods, Piggy could have wished that they had established their base somewhat nearer the scene of action. Bicycling had gone out of fashion in his world, and long before he reached the foot of Lookout Hill, as Robert had named their point of observation that afternoon, forgotten muscles were refreshing his knowledge of anatomy. He had a premonition that for a day or two it would behoove him to avoid situations demanding extreme physical agility.

Persevering, however, he made as good speed as the rough road allowed and at last arrived at the fork leading to Birchwood. He could see the lights of the house twinkling through the trees. A little further on he dismounted, extinguished the oil lamp serving as a headlight and concealed the bicycle in a thicket, though it was unlikely that anyone would discover it, as he had found the roads deserted.

By the light of his electric torch, hidden from Birchwood by a spur of the hill, he made his way to the summit, from which he could look down upon Scott's demesne. Only the lower part of the house was lighted and the shades had not been drawn. He cursed himself for not bringing his field-glass, on the remote chance that with it he might have learned which room was Celia's. Presently it began to rain, and shortly thereafter the lower lights went out and others appeared in the second story. Chuckling in the dripping darkness, he reflected that probably the household was going early to bed because G. A. was sleepy. As the luminous oblong rectangles appeared one by one he saw that the shades had already been drawn at the upper windows and that the room over the terrace was occupied, but whether by Celia not even his glass would have told him.

He waited twenty minutes or so after the last light had gone out, and then, assuming that the weary lord of the manor would have sunk into slumber and hoping that Celia had not, he pierced the quiet air with whistled strains of a college song, the refrain of which he thought ought to carry comforting assurance to the imprisoned one.

"Poco, Poco, keep thine eye,
On the fair-haired girl, for she is sly;
You'll be sorry by and by-y-y
You ever had a daugh-ter."

For several minutes he broadcasted his cryptic assurance, diminishing its volume at the end as if he were strolling away. Then, carefully, he crept down the hill toward the fence, intending to make a reconnaisance and determine where, in case a dashing raid became necessary, it would be desirable to cut the barbed wire. But quiet thought he was, the dogs heard him, or perhaps scented him, and forthwith set up a fortissimo chorus.

"Ah, there, my hearties," said Piggy. "Right on the job, aren't you? Good boys, darn you! Well—we'll fix you when the time comes. Shut up, you brutes! You'll have the whole countryside out after me!"

Beating a hasty retreat, he descended the hill on the other side, but even after he had retrieved his wheel and was trundling painfully back toward Fitzwilliam, h heard an occasional indignant woof from Birchwood.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

Roberta met him at the door with anxious inquiries.

"I told you to go to bed," he said.

"I know—but I couldn't. What happened?"

"Nothing except that those blamed dogs raised the deuce of a row before I got anywhere near the fence."

She dropped dejectedly into a chair. "I don't believe we can do it. She's too well guarded. It's all been for nothing."

"Rats! You're tired out. What you need is sleep and plenty of it. Lots of people have escaped from a darn sight tigher places than Birchwood, all by themselves. And with us to help—"

"But she doesnt' know we're here."

"She will. I started something tonight."

"What? How?"

"From the top of the hill. Listen." Twinkling, he whistled the hopeful refrain, and Roberta smiled with her memory of the words. Then she sighed and shook her head.

"Clever, Peter; but I'm afraid she won't understand."

(To be continued.)

When a wise man is too tired to think his talk is sure to sound foolish.

$50 REWARD
$50 will be paid if R. V. Turner's Quick Relief Salve fails to relieve croups, head colds, catarrh, sore throat, headache, earache, eczema, itch, burns, risings, bruises, cuts, sores, rheumatic pains or piles. It is one of the most powerful, penetrating, germ-killing, pain-relieving and healing salves known to science. Removes corns in a few hours without pain; also seed warts. Large box by mail 60c. Agents wanted. Write for special terms. R. V. Turner, Box 1122, Montgomery, Ala.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING
TENNESSEE — CLIMATE, BLUE GRASS, Borden Milk Condensary, superb apple country, cheap land, good schools, college, trucking advantages, center of consuming public of United States. H. B. Blakely, Fayettville, Tenn.

WE TEACH
STEAM ENGINEERING
ELECTRIC POWER
and
HOUSE WIRING
DETROIT
PRACTICAL SCHOOL
23 East Jefferson, Detroit
W. B. MacDonald, M.E.I.C., M.I.E.S
Gus Lender, M.A.I.E.E.; U.C.C. of E., N.A.S.E.

Get Settled
You surely don't intend to stay on your present job all your life. Become a barber the Moler way—from our school to independence in a shop of your own is a short and easy step. Change for better now. Write for free booklet today!
Moler Barber Colleges
33 Years Established 32 Branches
559 Michigan Ave., Detroit.

Earn $12 to $15 a Day
Special Course
SIGN AND SHOW CARD WRITING
Square Deal Sign Co.
"It's time you learned a trade."
445 Abbott St., Detroit, Mich.

Teach Him Its Real Meaning

How many of us know the real meaning of safety? To some the slogan "Don't get hurt" is the beginning and end of the safety movement. "Safety first," which became popular in the early days of accident prevention, also has its limitations. Of course, if safety isn't first there may be no opportunity for anything else, but there are times when it is necessary to relegate safety to second place.

When the lives of others are in danger, disregard of personal safety rises to heights of nobility; when safety is ignored to save a few seconds or to get a thrill from some unnecessary dangerous act, it is plain dumbness.

We adults can usually judge when it it advisable to play safe or take a chance, even though we sometimes disregard common sense in our actions. Experience has taught us a few things, often at a stiff price. The youngsters, however, must learn from our teaching and example. We would hate to see them take some of the fool chances we sometimes boast about. If they get the idea that safety means avoiding all sports in which there is an element of danger, they will either lose their initiative or else regard all safety teaching as bunk. Teach them what you yourself have learned through accident prevention work at the plant—that there is a safe and an unsafe way of doing almost everything. Show them the hazards of the street and playground and how they may be overcome successfully. Teach them to avoid danger when the result is not worth the risk, and to face it squarely and calmly when necessary. There is no place for fear in the safety movement.

But be sure to back your teaching with a good example. Can you expect others to have confidence in you if you talk safety and practice recklessness?

How About Yourself

The late James J. Hill was not only a builder of great national enterprises, but he was also the author of many axioms of philosophy on safe business conduct. Speaking one time upon the virtue of saving, he said:

"If you want to know if you are destined to be a success or a failure in life, you can readily find out. The test is simple and infallible. Are you able to save money? If not, drop out—you will lose—you may thing not, but you will lose just as sure as you live—the seed of success is not in you."

In order to save you must be determined in the matter, willing to personally sacrifice some pleasures and luxuries. Set your mind—be a salesman and sell the idea to yourself and treat yourself and family fairly and at least equally with the installment merchant. In planning monthly payments for the automobile, radio, sewing machine, books, jewelry, furniture and clothing, don't overlook the most important of all—yourself, wife and children.

U. W. No. 766—12-27—1926.

FEDERATED
RADIO TRADE SCHOOL
Here is Your Big Chance to —receive a training in radio, the world's fastest growing industry.
—have the facilities of one of Michigan's best radio testing laboratories at your disposal.
—benefit by a free employment service maintained by the only school in the world owned and operated by the radio industry.
—start in now, with the new classes, for both experienced and inexperienced men.
Send in this coupon
Merle Duston, Director
Federated Radio Trade School,
4464 Cass Avenue,
Detroit, Mich. M2T
Check the course that interests you most, and get full information. It will not obligate you in any way.
Name
Address
City
( ) Day Course ( ) Night Course
( ) Home Study Course

Opportunity -|- Ambition — Success
Through one of the greatest Industrial Developments known, an opportunity has presented itself assuring an ambitious representative in your territory immediate financial returns.
It is impossible for me to handle the prospective buyers in the whole State, so I am seeking a Special Representative in several counties to handle this business. Testimonial upon testimonial will substantiate the enormous profits you can assure your clients. Personal instruction and guidance will be given.
L. W. MARTIN
IDE & MEGINNITY,
2nd Floor
American State Bank Building
Detroit, Mich.

A Page Prepared Expressly For The Rural Home Makers

Farming—Horticulture—Fruit Growing—Stock Raising

MARKETING THE MICHIGAN APPLE CROP

By G. E. PRATER

General Manager, Wolverine Fruit and Produce Exchange

Before going into the details of marketing Michigan apples, it will be well to go over some of the conditions which exist in Michigan that are not found in other sections, as a preliminary explanation of why marketing methods that are successful in other sections can not be applied to this territory.

The apple industry first merely came into Michigan thru the planting of home orchards, very largely with a viewpoint of apples for home use and the near by market. Little thought was given to commercial apple growing and little thought to making a profit out of the orchard.

The average farm orchard usually contained all the varieties the tree agent could cause the farmer to try out and the more varieties he could interest his prospective buyer in the more trees he could sell, so by using the suggestion that possibly one might die the agent usually succeeded in inducing the farmer to plant two of each variety that looked good in the picture book in addition to several baldwin, greening, and northern spy with which said farmer was more or less familiar back in York State.

Land was cheap and the primary object of planting an orchard was to make a little shade for the hogs, a little fruit for the kids, some cider for dad and a little covering or wind break for the buildings.

After the planting of these family orchards, large cities developed right at our door, Chicago and Milwaukee just across lake Michigan, making an overnight run by boat, Detroit with its great automobile industry on the east side of the state and within easy reach by rail. Commission houses supplied the farmers with rubber stamps, free of charge and all that was necessary was to pick the surplus fruit, pack it in some sort of package and ship it to one of the cities, getting a check back in a few days, which represented so many dollars, or cents as the case may be to said farmer, who at that time did not have to figure on high land values, pruning and spraying cost, higher freight rates, higher labor and very much higher cost of packages.

The nearness to market, many times enabled the grower to make a very good profit from his apples and many orchards were planted for commercial purposes, usually however, with the idea of not putting all the eggs in one basket, but to so distribute the varieties as to cover a long season of harvesting, with several varieties for each season, so that if one failed the grower would be reasonably sure of a crop on at least a fair portion of the orchard in such a manner as to fairly well cover the harvesting season.

This has brought about a condition in Michigan, where it is practically impossible to load a straight car of one grade and variety from the orchard and in a measure will explain why the commercial orchardist who is able to pack and load straight cars is inclined to stay out of associations and sell his orchard direct to some dealer or city operator.

Quite true, the San Jose scale has done more than any other three things to correct the evil of the old farm orchard, yet with the exception of very recent commercial plantings, most of the semi commercial orchards are very nearly as bad so far as too many varieties are concerned, many of which are worthless, as were the old hog yard type orchards of our boyhood days.

Assembling the Crop

One of the most important parts of modern day marketing is assembling the crop. There are about 30 points in the state that have a sufficient acreage to make assembling the crop for centralpacking advisable. In this we are including some six or eight large commercial plantings that can well be classed as packing plants.

There are at present three ways of assembling. The oldest is for dealers to buy the orchards, furnish packers and packages, pack the fruit and assemble it in cars after being packed, as nearly in line with the requirements of his customers as possible. He us[illegible] is some outside fellow who buys the orchard at a lump sum or so much for everything B grade or over, then proceeds to make as many A Grade as he possibly can from each orchard. His pack is not a credit to Michigan. It does not help Michigan's reputation.

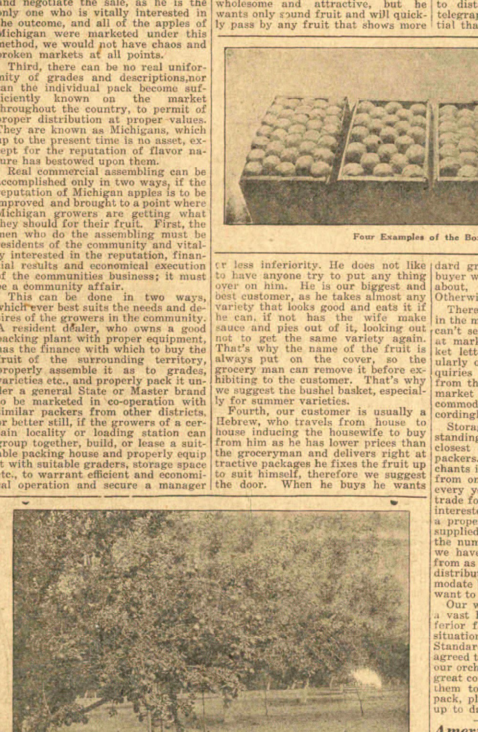
Another method is for the grower either from his own orchard or in company with one or two neighbors to pack their own, assemble the fruit in cars and consign it to some market which seems to him to be quoting the highest prices and while this method many times proves profitable to the individual grower, as a rule it is very detrimental to the apple industry of our state, due to three reasons. First no grower is able to look at his own apple thru the same eyes he would the other fellows and as a rule he takes the benefit of the doubt and frequently studies the law to see how much tolerance he has.

Second, the fundamental principle of marketing any commodity, rules that the owner should name the price and negotiate the sale, as he is the only one who is vitally interested in the outcome, and all of the apples of Michigan were marketed under this method, we would not have chaos and broken markets at all points.

Third, there can be no real uniformity of grades and descriptions,nor can the individual pack become sufficiently known on the market throughout the country, to permit of proper distribution at proper values. They are known as Michigans, which up to the present time is no asset, except for the reputation of flavor nature has bestowed upon them.

Real commercial assembling can be accomplished only in two ways, if the reputation of Michigan apples is to be improved and brought to a point where Michigan growers are getting what they should for their fruit. First, the men who do the assembling must be residents of the community and vitally interested in the reputation, financial results and economical execution of the communities business; it must be a community affair.

This can be done in two ways, which ever best suits the needs and desires of the growers in the community. A resident dealer, who owns a good packing plant with proper equipment, has the finance with which to buy the fruit of the surrounding territory, properly assemble it as to grades, varieties etc., and properly pack it under a general State or Master brand to be marketed in co-operation with similar packers from other districts, or better still, if the growers of a certain locality or loading station can group together, build, or lease a suitable packing house and properly equip it with suitable graders, storage space etc., to warrant efficient and economical operation and secure a manager who will take the same vital interest in results that he would in his own personal affairs all well and good, provided he is an apple man and selected on account of his ability and not by reason of his relationship to one or more of the directors.



The first essential toward securing an adequate price for the Michigan apple crop is to first grow a good crop of apples, and then grade and pack them according to Michigan Standard

We would recommend that co-operative packing houses be established at such points as can be economically and efficiently operated, as there is a certain touch of pride in the grower feeling himself a part of the institution and this method permits of a little closer touch with his cultural methods, which is a very vital part of successful marketing.

We can not, however, overlook the fact, that the closest co-operation between the resident dealers, who buy and pack their neighbors fruit and the co-operative association who elect to do their own assembling is positively essential to the welfare of the Michigan grower, and they must work in harmony in their marketing campaigns if reasonably good results are to be expected.

Co-operative Marketing

Let us picture as an actuality, what we must have before real results can be accomplished and then work out our marketing ideas along sensible lines that will meet and out do the competition that we may have from anyquarter.

Let us view the Fruit Belt of Michigan with co-operatively owned and controlled packing houses, where the sentiment of the neighborhood favors this method, joining hands with dealer owned packing houses in neighborhoods preferring to operate in that manner, and making for Michigan one brand of fruit, which can be made known nation wide and a reputation built that will bring home to the Michigan grower the extra dollar that the superior flavor of Michigan fruit is bound to bring against any competitor regardless of location.

This can only be done with some central head, whose purpose will be to keep in touch with market conditions, properly supervise packing, handling, grading, and marketing the crop in such a manner as to take advantage of a wide distribution and thereby prevent over supplies and gluts developing in any of the markets.

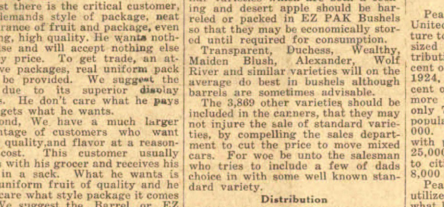
Selling

One of the first essentials in selling, is to know the desires of your customer and then conform to his wishes as much as possible, with the exception of price. We must take into consideration the various classes of trade and what they desire.

First there is the critical customer, who demands style of package, neat appearance of fruit and package, even grading, high quality. He wants nothing else and will accept nothing else at any price. To get trade, an attractive packages, real uniform pack must be provided. We suggest the box, due to its superior display values. He don't care what he pays if he gets what he wants.

Second, We have a much larger percentage of customers who want value, quality,and flavor at a reasonable cost. This customer usually trades with his grocer and receives his fruit in a sack. What he wants is good uniform fruit of quality and he don't care what style package it comes in. We suggest the Barrel or EZ PAK Bushel.

Third, we have the customer who is not so particular as to uniformity of size, so long as the fruit is clean, wholesome and attractive, but he wants only sound fruit and will quickly pass by any fruit that shows more or less inferiority. He does not like to have anyone try to put any thing over on him. He is our biggest and best customer, as he takes almost any variety that looks good and eats it if he can, if not has the wife make sauce and pies out of it, looking out not to get the same variety again. That's why the name of the fruit is always put on the cover, so the grocery man can remove it before exhibiting to the customer. That's why we suggest the bushel basket, especially for summer varieties.



Four Examples of the Box Pack

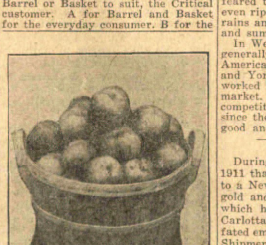
Fourth, our customer is usually a Hebrew, who travels from house to house inducing the housewife to buy from him as he has lower prices than the groceryman and delivers right at tractive packages he fixes the fruit up to suit himself, therefore we suggest the door. When he buys he wants value, when he sells he wants cash. He has no use for expensive and at- bulk. Not loaded with a scoop shovel, or containing fruit that is not worth the freight, but good merchantable apples, loaded in bulk to save the cost of packages and labor of packing.

Fifth, canners, sound apples of good size that look better with the skins off than on.

Sixth, ciders, immaterial whether for vinegar or otherwise, just so you don't get this grade mixed into some of the better ones, if you do, cider prices are all you are entitled to for the lot.

Grades

Michigan has almost as many grades as varieties. Why over three for Commercial market? Fancy for Box, Barrel or Basket to suit, the Critical customer. A for Barrel and Basket for the everyday consumer. B for the bulk trade and immediate consumption. For the love of Mike Michigan growers, dealers, associations and shippers, cut out the Orchard run, A and B Unclassified and all other trade terms which mean nothing else to the buyer but culls mixed with the good ones, because there are not enough good ones to pay to take out.



Varieties

The nature of the variety, has very much to do with what package is most suitable. Strictly desert varieties such as Jonathan, Grimes, McIntosh Snow, Delicious, Banana and similar varieties should be boxed.

Baldwin, Spy, Greening, King, Russett, Wagner, Hubbardson, and similar varieties which are both a cooking and desert apple should be barreled or packed in EZ PAK Bushels so that they may be economically stored until required for consumption.

Transparent, Duchess, Wealthy, Maiden Blush, Alexander, Wolf River and similar varieties will on the average do best in bushels although barrels are sometimes advisable.

The 3,869 other varieties should be included in the canners, that they may not injure the sale of standard varieties, by compelling the sales department to cut the price to move mixed cars. For woe be unto the salesman who tries to include a few of dads choice in with some well known standard variety.

Distribution

A knowledge of the market requirements of each buying territory or city is essential to proper and efficient distribution. Fruits now days are sold to distant buyers by telephone or telegraphic description and it is essential that they are packed under standard grades so the salesman and buyer will know what they are talking about, when making their deals. Otherwise no deals can be made.

There are plenty of buyers, always in the market for what they want, you can't sell them what they don't want at market value. A system of market letters advising the buyers regularly of offerings will bring the inquiries and the salesman can judge from the volume of inquiry, the true market condition and value of the commodity and govern his prices accordingly.

Storage apple selling is the cost outstanding feature, demanding the closest co-operation of all Michigan packers. There are hundreds of Merchants in the smaller towns who store from one to twenty cars of apples every year. They have a regular trade for certain varieties and are not interested in others. To sell them at a proper market price, they must be supplied the varieties they want in the numbers wanted and many times we have filled orders of this nature from as many as six different packers, distributing the orders so as to accommodate our buyers with what they want to sell.

Our western friends have overcome a vast handicap in freight rates, inferior flavor and a general uphill situation by Co-operative marketing Standardization, delivering what they agreed to. What have we to fear with our orchards right in the center of the great consuming population if we beat them to it with an equal or better pack, plus our superior flavor and up to date marketing methods.

American Apples in Syeden

The Goteborg fruit market, as usual, is active at this time of year, states Consul Walter H. Sholes in a report recently received in the Department of Commerce. There is a particularly heavy demand for apples. The Swedish importation of apples, pears, and bananas has increased about fivefold since prewar days, it is claimed. American apples are preferred to those from Czecho-Slovakia on account of the American system of packing, grading and standard marketing, which facilitites the work of importers in selling the fruit. At present, American fruit is not imported via England, which was very frequently the case in recent years. The import to Sweden of American fruits is now also facilitated by direct steamship lines between New York and Goteborg.

Sweden produces principally apples, plums, and pears, but is located too far north to produce durable fruit in sufficient quantities. According to reports published recently, the Swedish crop of these fruits is expected to be under average this year. Besides poor fructification in the spring, it is feared that the winter fruit will not even ripen and get color on account of rains and cold weather during spring and summer.

In Western Sweden, red apples are generally preferred to yellow apples. American apples such as Ben Davis and York Imperial have successfully worked their way into the Swedish market. This year, however, a strong competition is expected from Tyrol since the crop there is reported to be good and unusually large.

FIND TREASURE

During the Mexican troubles in 1911 that government decided to send to a New York bank for safe-keeping gold and jewels valued at $5,000,000 which had belonged to the Empress Carlotta, wife of Maximilian, ill-fated emperor of Mexico in the sixties. Shipment was made on the steamer Media. The Media collided with an American liner, and sank. Two attempts to locate the wreck and salvage the treasure failed, and it was given up for lost. Recently another expedition of treasure hunters, dragging an iron sweep a mile long, caught on the wreck 250 feet down and 54 miles north of Cape Charles. None of the treasure has been recovered, but the treasure hunters think they are "warm."

What we cannot see is how a one-armed man gets married, nowadays, unless he learns to steer an auto with his knees.—Kalamazoo Gazette.

Smaller Cities Offer Room for Expanding Peach Market

Peach growers are advised by the United States Department of Agriculture to develop the small and medium-sized markets. Records on the distribution of 11,922 cars, or 88 per cent of the shipments from Georgia in 1924, show that approximately 90 per cent of the peaches went to cities of more than 100,000 population, while only 7 per cent went to cities with populations between 25,000 and 100,000. Only 1 per cent went to cities with populations between 8,000 and 25,000, and less than 1 per cent went to cities or boroughs of less than 8,000 population.

Peach growers in New York State utilized the smaller markets to somewhat better advantage than did those of Georgia. Only 64 per cent of New York's 1924 peach shipments went to cities of more than 100,000 population, and 17 per cent found a market in cities of between 25,000 and 100,000 population. Eleven per cent of the shipments went to cities of from 8,000 to 25,000, and 8 per cent to cities and towns of less than 8,000 population. New York peaches in carlots reached 107 cities of between 8,000 and 25,000 population. Georgia, on the other hand, with total shipments almost four times as large as those of New York, supplied only 72 cities of that size. A majority of the peach producing States disposed of from 30 to 65 per cent of their shipments in 18 large cities.

While large cities will probably continue to be the important carlot markets for peaches, the advantage of developing the smaller markets, says the department, should not be overlooked.

A New Gravenstein

Red "Sport" from Popular Fall Apple Said to Be Beautiful Addition

Horticulturists at the State Experiment Station at Geneva are calling attention to a new Gravenstein apple which has a solid, dark red color and is a decidedly attractive fruit as compared with the common Gravenstein. This new variety originated as a "sport" of the well-known Gravenstein and is identical in every respect with the parent variety except for color.

In discussing the new variety, Dr. U. P. Hedrick, Station Horticulturist, says, "It differs from the old Gravenstein only in the solid, dark red colored fruits, the parent fruit being light red and much striped with yellow and green. Banks Gravenstein, another sport of Gravenstein, is also striped and much lighter in color than Red Gravenstein, altho handsomer than the original variety.

"These three Gravensteins are most excellent autumn apples, but on the Station grounds the Red Gravenstein is so superior in appearance that in the future its culture alone of the three will be recommended.

"The trees on the Station grounds came from the Washington Nursery Company of Toppenish, Washington, 1911. They have fruited several times so that we are now certain of the new fruit and that it differs only in color. The sport is said to have originated with Van Sent V. Whipple of San Juan County, Washington, about 1907 or 1908. It is now to be had from several nurseries in the Northwest and from the New York State Fruit Testing Association at Geneva."

Americans Lead World As Apple Eaters

Although consumption of apples in the United States is less than the proverbial "apple a day," averaging about 3 apples a week per capita, the American people lead the world as apple eaters, according to the Department of Agriculture, which has been making a comprehensive study of the production and marketing of apples sold in barrels.

Estimates for the British Isles average about 2 apples a week, and in most countries of continental Europe the consumption of apples is comparatively light.

Three States—New York, Michigan, and Virginia—produce nearly one-half the average commercial crop of the barrel region. Leading commercial main-crop varieties of the barreled-apple region are Baldwin and Rhode Island Greening in the North, York Imperial and Winesap in the South, and Ben Davis and Jonathan in the West. Leading fall kinds are Oldenburg, Wealthy, and McIntosh.

Cold storage, in most sections, has largely superseded common storage for long keeping of market apples. Sometimes over one-fourth of the commercial apple crop is reported in cold storage at the height of the season. Barreled apples comprise about half the average stock in cold storage.

The leading markets for New York State apples are Boston, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Newark, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Providence; Chicago and Detroit are the chief markets for Michigan apples; Milwaukee, New Orleans, St. Louis and St. Paul, for Illinois apples; Kansas City, Memphis, Minneapolis, and Omaha for Missouri apples; and Birmingham and Washington for Virginia apples.

Of the fruits exported from the United States, apples rank first in point of value, with total exports as fresh fruit for the year ending June 30, 1924, of 2,032,000 barrels and 6,198,000 boxes, valued at over $23,000,000. The United Kingdom purchases about three-fourths of our surplus apples, while the largest percentage of dried apples goes to the Netherlands, Germany, and Scandinavian countries.

The increasing proportion of high grade fruit in the markets is driving out apples not well grown, well sorted, and well packed. Only the product of the well managed commercial orchards in sections with some advantages of climate, soil, and location seems to have much chance to survive intense competition.

Making Artificial or Synthetic Manure

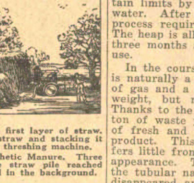
The Outline of an Interesting Method of Utilizing Waste materials to Produce a Fertilizer That Adds to the Organic Content of the Soil.

By DR. F. M. LAWRENCE

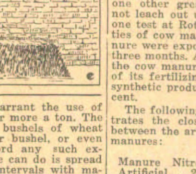
Food is the first need of man. Just now the United States is changing from a nation with a great food surplus to one with a deficit. Soon the present crops will be inadequate to feed our population.

Two courses are open to us. We must import food, which seems unthinkable, or we must increase the yield of our farms. No more virgin soil remains to be opened up. The fertility of our fields is gradually decreasing. There is only one way to increase their yield, and that is by fertilization.

The use of fertilizers in this country has been limited by necessity. Only the "big money" crops like cotton and tobacco warrant the use of fertilizers at $30 or more a ton. The farmer raising 18 bushels of wheat per acre at $1 per bushel, or even $2.00, cannot afford any such expense. The best he can do is spread his fields at long intervals with manure from the barnyard. He would be glad to use tons more if he had it.



(Above) Watering the first layer of straw. (Right) Treating the straw and stacking it as it comes from the threshing machine. (Below) Finished Synthetic Manure. Three months previously the straw pile reached to the top of the wall in the background.



Stable manure, though rated a "low-grade" fertilizer by purveyors of concentrated and high-priced substitutes for it, has virtues all its own. Its value is by no means confined to its fertilizing power, though that is great. Its effects on the texture and water-holding properties of the soil are not less important. For some crops, and particularly in droughty seasons, these count more than fertilizing effect toward insuring a good yield. Farm-yard manure, as it rots down in the soil, serves to restore the humus, which otherwise always tends to oxidize and diminish. Humus, considered merely from the physical side, contributes much to the fertility of any soil. It improves the texture of all lands. To sand it gives cohesion and water-retaining power; while by loosely binding together the finest particles of clay soils it renders them more porous and friable.

Recently the University of Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station conducted careful tests to determine the actual value of a ton of manure. It was found that on field crops it increased the value from $2 to $12, on truck crops up to $18, for every ton of manure used. The average increase was $5.23 on the fields, $8.67 on the truck patches. At the present increased prices of crops these figures would be much higher. On some of the old, worn soils the manure more than doubled the yield.

Unfortunately, the supply of stable manure is constantly decreasing. The horse has almost disappeared from the city, where the old stables have become garages; and even on the farm he is giving place to the automobile and tractor. The high price of grain tends to restrict the number of other domestic animals yielding manure.

England faced a similar problem in acute form during the war. The farms were stripped of horses, while the other live stock had to be butchered to feed the population during the period when famine threatened the island. The ancient grass lands were hurriedly planted with grain. The result was inevitable; next year there was much straw and little manure.

Then the old and famous Agricultural Experiment Station of Rothamsted came to the rescue. Its investigators hit on a new principle, and by doing so inaugurated an agricultural process that is apt to revolutionize fertilization wherever vegetable wasts are available. They found a way to make this refuse into excellent manure without the aid of animals.

For a long time we have known that bacteria are responsible for the breaking down of straw into manure, but nevertheless we have continued to fork straw in and out of stables under the impression that this was the only way to convert it into fertilizer. The English scientists set out to find how the bacteria do this work. It took prolonged research, but they finally solved the puzzle. They found that if supplied with certain chemical foods amid proper surrounding conditions these organisms will convert vegetable wastes into an artificial or "synthetic" manure, which is every bit as good as the stable product, and costs a great deal less.

Without going deeply into the technical nature of the process, it may be said that it is fundamentally biological. If soluble nitrogen compounds are brought into contact with fermentable carbon compounds and fermentation is allowed to proceed under suitable conditions, the nitrogen becomes transformed into insoluble derivatives which are retained by the carbonaceous material. This action is due to certain micro-organisms which take up both nitrogen and carbon and combine them in their own bodies as an insoluble itrogenous derivative. In the presence of the soil this "fixed" nitrogen becomes available and is readily assimilated by plants.

This process can now be carried out on a large scale and the work done by ordinary labor. Each agriculturist will make his own manure. The only prerequisites are enough straw or some other "roughage" and an adequate supply of water. The necessary reagent is provided in powder form. The quantity required varies from 50 to 200 pounds per dry ton of vegetable matter used. This latter is arranged in layers and wetted, each layer in turn being strewn with the reagent and wetted before the next layer is built up. Fermentation soon begins, and the resultant heat is confined within certain limits by the addition of more water. After a few days the active process requires no more attention. The heap is allowed to rot for two or three months and is then ready for use.

In the course of the process there is naturally a considerable evolution of gas and a corresponding loss of weight, but none of plant food. Thanks to the added water, a single ton of waste yields about four tons of fresh and three tons of finished product. This artificial manure differs little from the ordinary kind in appearance. The pile has crumbled, the tubular nature of the straw has disappeared, and in its place is a dark brown, plastic mass almost entirely free from odor. It does not attract flies, it is remarkably free from weed seeds and disease spores, and it has one other great advantage; it does not leach out under heavy rains. In one test at Rothamsted equal quantities of cow manure and artificial manure were exposed to the weather for three months. At the end of that time the cow manure had lost 50 per cent of its fertilizing elements, while the synthetic product had lost but 10 per cent.

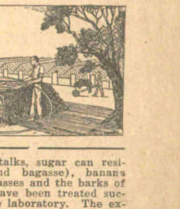
The following table strikingly illustrates the close chemical similarity between the artificial and the natural manures:

Manure	Nitrogen	Phosphorus	Potash
Artificial	....2.19	1.20	0.58
Bullock	......2.45	1.04	2.83
Cow	............2.20	0.99	2.24

It will be noted that with the exception of potash (which could be incorporated, if desired, but, except in special cases, this has not been found necessary), the artificial manure has practically the same formula as natural manure. The composition of the latter, of course, varies considerably, according to the kind of food given the animals.

The crucial test—its ability to increase the growth of crops, is strongly in favor of artificial manure. Extensive field trials have been made in various parts of England and the results carefully checked; and they demonstrate that its fertilizing power is at least equal to that of the farmyard product. Until recently the process has had no trial in the United States, but a number of leading agricultural experiment stations are now testing it. There is every reason to anticipate that the results will be no less impressive than those reported from British sources.

The process is by no means limited to the treatment of straw. Practically any form of vegetable waste can be used. Already dried leaves, bracken, cornstalks, sugar can residues (trash and bagasse), banana leaves, wild grasses and the barks of certain trees have been treated successfully in the laboratory. The experiments still going on are apt to develop yet other sources for manure, but this list is enough to indicate the wide applicability of the process.



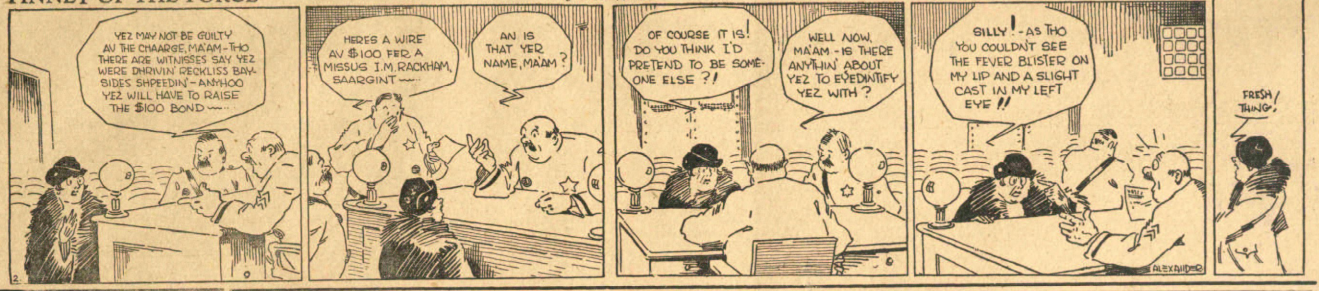
To anyone familiar with the enormouse waste of straw, cornstalks and other "roughage"—more than 50 per cent of the yield of the soil—on our American farms, the tremendous economic importance of this discovery will be apparent instantly. For approximately two dollars a ton, a cost far less than that of producing manure with domestic animals, this waste can be convered into excellent manure. Not only to farmers, but to market gardeners, nurserymen and growers of special crops like tobacco and cotton the process will prove a blessing. The waste thus turned into manure will replace expensive artificial fertilizers, not only with great saving, but with actual betterment to the soil. No longer will the western farmer be forced to burn his surplus straw to get rid of it. He will turn it back into the ground as fertilizer, the first he has ever been able to afford, and by so doing may yet rival the European production of thirty bushels or more to the acre. In corn-planting sections the stalks will answer the same purpose. The cotton fields of the South and the orchards of Florida and California will be fertilized with the cheap manure made from the waste products at hand. The tobacco planter will be able to economize in his use of costly "artificials," replacing them with home-made manure. The waste of the sugar mills, the trash and bagasse, will go back as manure into a soil that needs it badly. Rice straw, heretofore always a waste, will serve the same excellent purpose.

No other recent discovery has offered such possibilities to agriculture.

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

By F. O. Alexander
© Western Newspaper Union

You Could Tell Her Anywhere



YEZ MAY NOT BE GUILTY AV THE CHAARGE, MA'AM-THO THERE ARE WITNISSES SAY YEZ WERE DHRIVIN' RECKLISS BAYSIDES SHPEEDIN'-ANYHOO YEZ WILL HAVE TO RAISE THE $100 BOND—
HERES A WIRE AV $100 FER A MISSUS I.M. RACKHAM, SAARGINT—
AN IS THAT YER NAME, MA'AM?
OF COURSE IT IS! DO YOU THINK I'D PRETEND TO BE SOME-ONE ELSE?!
WELL NOW, MA'AM-IS THERE ANYTHIN' ABOUT YEZ TO EYEDINTIFY YEZ WITH?
SILLY!-AS THO YOU COULDN'T SEE THE FEVER BLISTER ON MY LIP AND A SLIGHT CAST IN MY LEFT EYE!!
FRESH! THING!
2.
ALEXANDER

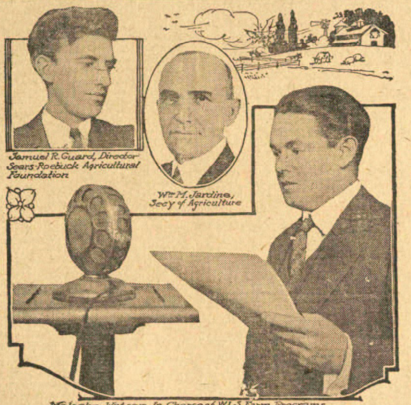
Patronize Our Advertisers

They are all boosters and deserve your business.

Coleridge's Hat His Bank

Coleridge, the writer, had a peculiar way of keeping his money concealed in his hat and kept his manuscripts in the bathtub. For many years he had little enough money and didn't need much room for it, whereas his manuscripts during that time required a spacious container.

WLS Broadcasts Farm School



Samuel R. Guard, Director Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation
Wm. M. Jardine, Secy of Agriculture

Malcolm Watson In Charge of WLS Farm Programs

MALCOLM WATSON, who has known the farm from childhood and who was a practical dirt farmer both before and after his graduation from an agricultural college, has been placed in the role of "the schoolmaster" for the winter broadcast of the United States Farm Radio School from the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation station WLS, Chicago.

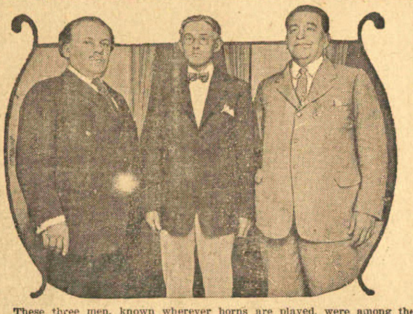
Samuel R. Guard, Director of the Foundation, will supervise the work. One hundred radio stations throughout the country are co-operating in the school that will bring the knowledge of the nation's leading agricultural experts into the homes of more than 1,000,000 American farmers.

Under the direction of the United States Department of Agriculture WLS, known since it first came on the air as "the farmers' radio station," is the only Illinois station to broadcast the feature. This station joins hands with WFAA, Dallas, Texas, and WSB, Atlanta, Ga., in the broadcast of co-ordinated farm programs.

Starting on October 4 the first term runs into the month of June. Livestock, poultry and dairy work will be featured in the broadcast, which will take place each Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening at 6:15 p. m. on the station's regular R. F. D. Supperbell program.

Lectures will be prepared by the department's leading experts and department heads and broadcast by Mr. Watson. Copies of all talks will be furnished the farmer-students without charge. WLS has already sent more than 50,000 enrollment cards to Corn Belt farmers.

The Horn's Triumvirate



These three men, known wherever horns are played, were among the musical folk who gathered in Elkhart, Ind., recently for the annual "music feast" of the Conn Music Center, to discuss the value of instrumental music in the training of boys and girls. At the right is Bohumir Kryl, world-famous cornet virtuoso and leader of the band bearing his name. In the center is C. D. Greenleaf, president of the National Association of Band Instrument Manufacturers, and at the left is Frederick Neil Innes, foremost trombone virtuoso of the eighties and nineties and leader of the famous Innes band. Mr. Innes is now head of the Conn National School of Music in Chicago.

"Country Doctor" at Farmers' Call

RIDING the ether waves instead of driving the time honored horse and buggy, "The Country Doctor" from the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation station WLS, Chicago, is constantly at the call of the farmer.

This radio medical man, whose name is Dr. Hugh MacDonald, is of the modern school. He believes in prevention over cure and his talks stress his belief. Health hints and farm sanitation are stressed as he stands before the microphone.

The radio doctor makes his "calls" each Thursday morning promptly at 11:10 o'clock, bringing with him into the studio the "question box" of all his patients.

The "question box" contains the letters of all the farm and city residents who have written in during the week. One housewife will ask for advice on the proper diet for her two-year-old. Another will ask advice on how to keep Little Johnnie from biting his thumb. No limits have been placed on the questions that may be asked, providing they pertain to matters of health.

Questions are read over the ether wave, and answers are given. The feature is extremely popular with the rural audience, to which WLS devotes most of its attention in keeping with its designation as "the farmer's radio station."

Advocate and MICHIGAN FARMER, both one year $2.15

W. C. T. U. Column

LAURA WALWORTH, EDITOR

Truth of the Matter

Will you give me space to call attention to the fact that the so called success of the wets in many of the elections is really a dry victory. All the election has proved is that New York state, Chicago, Illinois and San Francisco remain wet, but with reduced chances of influencing national legislation. Missouri, California, Colorado and Montana were the only states with a legal referendum on the liquor laws and in the first three states the dry majorities were tremendous Montana alone repealing the state laws.

Chicago, an outstanding wet spot supported George E. Brennan for the senate. He asked for votes on his personal promise to give the people wine and beer and was defeated by more than nine hundred thousand dry votes cast against him.

Illinois had a useless referendum which attracted 500,000 wet votes to about 300,000 dry votes, with more then 700,000 drys failing to vote at all.

The country elected 35 senators, all dry but nine; and of the 435 members of the house 296 have dry records. Massachusetts elected a bone dry governor and New York's senatorial election is a tremendous blow to near sighted republicans who want to pledge the G. O. P.

In the dry south and dry middle west election results will tighten state and community dry laws. The only real wet victory is the repeal of the state liquor laws in Montana Bootleggers and moonshiners may now operate in Montana without interference by the police, and the nation now has the spectacle of a state without a penalty even for selling liquors to minors. Let the Association Against the Prohibition take full responsibility for the results.—Union Signal

Newspapers Have Changed

The majority of our readers will remember when Pitchers Castoria and Hostetter's Stomach Bitters were standard ads in all the newspapers but the day is long past and with the trend of the times the styles of advertising have also become far more classical. If you should turn back to the days of Benjamin Franklin you would find considerable advertising of much the same goods as today but as a rule most of the famous "patent medicines" of our boyhood days are absent. Nobody thinks they are a panacea for every complaint flesh is heir to, hence they have gradually disappeared from the drug store shelves. The other day we were shown copies of early newspapers in the time of George Washington and some of the items seem very ridiculous today. For instance an old paper dated 1840 published the following:

"Joy to the World! North and south, east and west—approved by all old and young—Old Dr. Bone's Bitters and Pills—to the incurable sick and feeble, will strengthen the stomach, create an appetite, purify the blood and regulate the whole system. This medicine has been used by Old Dr. Bone for seventy years in the most miraculous cures Thousands can testify to the genuine virtue of the bitters and pills. For curing the following diseases it has no equal: diseases of the heart, lungs, liver and kidneys, jaundice, dyspepsia, dropsy, fits, pulmonary and liver complaints, nervous diseases, palsy, St. Vitus Dance, hysterics, gout, rheumatism, all scrofulous humors, erysipelas, prickly heat, fever, sores, pimples and itch."

As will be seen there was very few ills which this medicine would not conquer but to the modern reader this is little short of a circus. Read the following from the New York Post 1757:

"To be seen at the sign of the Golden Apple, at Peck's Slip, price sixpence, children four coppers, a large snake skin, 21 feet long and four feet one inch wide. It was killed by some of Gen. Braddock's men by firing six balls into him, close by the Alleghany Mountains supposed to be coming down to feed on dead men. When it was killed, there was found in its belly a child, supposed to be four years old, together with a live dog! It had a horn on its tail seven inches long, and it ran as fast as a horse. All gentlemen and ladies desirous to see it may apply to the subcriber at Peck's Slip"

Or this from the New England Weekly Journal:

"For sale—Likely negro wench 16 years old; docile disposition, good worker, especially good for cotton picking; weight 145 pounds stout and well. Inquire of John Stebbins Gainesville Georgia."

And here's another from a good citizen in trouble with his wife:

"Whereas James Moor of Woodbridge has stated in this Gazette, as well as by papers sent out and posted up, that his wife, Deliverance, has eloped from his Bed and Board. These are to certify, that the same is altogether false, for she has lived with him above eight years under his tyranny and incredible abuses, for he has several times attempted to murder her and also turned her out of doors, shamefully abusing her, which is well known to the Neighbors and Neighborhood in Woodbridge."

Now-a-days the high brow's nose usually goes up about six inches when you mention the name of an ex-saloon keeper or bootlegger, but in 1850 they looked at it differently and this is the way a certain Massachusetts paper laid the wet dispenser away:

"As we feared on hearing that the doctors had been called in, the life of our esteemed fellow citizen, Jake Moffat, ebbed out on Wednesday last just after we had gone to press. Jake was every inch a scholar and a gentleman, upright in all his dealings, unimpeachable in character, and ran the Front Street Saloon in the very toniest style consistent with order. Jake never fully recovered from the year he spent in the county jail at the time of the Ryan-Sternberg fracas. His health was shattered, and he leaves a sorrowing widow and nary an enemy." Poor Jake may his grave never be dishonored by the depredations of snake or a gopher.

Greetings For The New Year

We stand at the entrance of a strange year and as we look in to the dawn—its name we know nothing of its history. Soon will the pages all spotless and fair be ready for our use. Of what shall they be written? Ere crossing the threshold we linger looking backward across the years of time to the sweetness of life's friendships that never grow dim. To the power of kind words that brightened the days when our sky was dark and our faith perishing; to the fragrance of good deeds that extends far in the distance, and its endurance is perpetual; and over all the blessing that have fallen as rays of sunshine to lighten and brighten our way while we were passing through the shadows.

Across the landscape of life how frequently the shadows fall while it is hard to understand why some of our hearts are torn and bleeding and our life work blighted through years of suffering. We have learned that it takes courage to brave life's tempest of unfortunate things and walk over the wreck age laid waste by the storm.

In human life the wind blows and frequently the frosts are cruel. I am sure there are many homes in our own beautiful America where life's painting portrays the lights and the shadows that need the master stroke of an artists' hand to place the proper colors and paint the beauty of Faith, Hope, Love and Charity in.

In memory's book of life are recorded the names and donors of every good and perfect gift. As we scan the pages of friendship, love, kindness and cheer it is with gratitude we seal the covers of the history of the years and cross the threshold of the New Year, trusting we may have a part in brightening darkened lives and making a sunshine of peace where the clouds hang low, the shadows play and the storms beat wildly.

May the Old Year take your sorrow and your troubles all away, and the New Year we are greeting, bring you happiness to stay.

Happy New Year to All
Della M. Crowell and Mother

Correct English

MONTHLY MAGAZINE

Authoritive Exponent of English for 24 Years

Edited and founded by
JOSEPHINF TURCK BAKER
Famous World English Authority

Send 10 Cents for Sample Copy
Correct English Publishing Company
Evanston, Illinois
Agents Wanted Everywhere

F. E. Caswell D. V. M.

Veterinarian

Office at Residence, West Main St
Private Phone 45

North Adams, Mich.

Dr. L. R. ULRICH

DENTIST

Private Office in Room over Perkins' Restaurant

Thursdays hours 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.
Plate Work a Specialty

O. G. McFarland M. D.

North Adams, Mich.

OFFICE HOURS: 8:00 to 9:00 a. m.
1:00 to 4:00 p. m.
7:00 to 8:00 p. m.

Prepare For The 1927 Training Camp

Colonel Raymond Sheldon Chief of Staff of the 85th Division, is now preparing for 1927 Training Camp activities and wishes to announce that last year's camp was a big success as claimed by the government inspectors, who are so well pleased they have designated Colonel Sheldon as commander next season. The government is strongly persuaded to abolish the camp at Fort Bready in the Upper Peninsula and send all citizens for military training to Camp Custer for the year. The full quota for 1927 has not yet been given out but it will not be any smaller than last season and training will begin in June. The Colonel thinks that it is one of the finest schools of discipline in the world for the young men and officers of Michigan and he respectfully asks that every citizen of the state do his or her best to help put the deal over next summer. Headquarters for this precinct is 438 Book Tower Detroit Michigan.

Those of us who tuned in on New Orleans Last Saturday evening had the pleasure of hearing one of the finest concerts from the studio of WSMB also an organ recital by Miss Ada Reeves. Mrs. J. A. Starr president of the Louisiana Womans Peace League addressed radio fans on the possibility of abolishing war. It is rather surprising to know that speeches from New Orleans and Atlantic Beach, New Jersey are fully as intelligable as they are from WJR.

Fresh Water Makes Oysters Look Fat

The oyster, when transferred from sea water, where it normally grows, and where it has its home, to water free from salt, it has at first a tendency to absorb comparatively large quantities of fresh water, swell up, and look fatter and smoother than is actually the case. In this bloated condition such an oyster commonly impresses the purchaser as more attractive in quality than its real condition warrants.

With a view to protecting oyster consumers a conference was recently held at the Department of Agriculture at which it was agreed that any process of washing or floating oysters should be so conducted as not to increase unduly the normal water content, and further that oysters which contain excess water should not be offered for sale. Any process of washing or of floating before shucking, which results in the incorporation of excess water, will bring the product within the prohibition of the Federal food and drugs act, says the department.

Repairing Ocean Cables

Sometimes it is very hard to find the damaged spot in a broken cable. When the cable is known to be broken or damaged a ship sails along it and from time to time raises it and communicates over it to a station on shore. By this means it is possible to finally locate the broken place.—Exchange.

The Detroit Community Fund, which annually administers the distribution of over a million and a half dollars to deserving charities of all kinds, recently devoted an entire number of its publication "The Community Fund News" to a description of the House of the Good Shepherd, one of the important social agencies with a religious background which shares in its budget.

Prefacing the description is the explanation that, since the Sisters of the Good Shepherd never seek publicity, many contributors to the Fund have no conception of their work, with the result that it is often misunderstood. The Detroit institution, the publication states, is one of 280 similiar refuges scattered throughout the world. Sheltered by high walls, its gates are always open to the unfortunate girl, the erring woman or the helpless child seeking refuge from a world that has turned a cold shoulder upon her wretchedness.

Established 42 years ago, in one of old Detroit's famous mansions, the home of Captain Eber Ward, Michigan's fisrt millionaire, the institution has grown until its buildings now cover an entire city block. And, the writer says, if its exterior is somewhat grim and forbidding, then appearances are deceiving, for the place fairly throbs with life not unmixed with laughter.

World Shut Away

The Sisters are 32 in all—patient, self-sacrificing women who have renounced the world and consecrated their lives to the service of others. The brick walls that surround the square mark the boundaries of their universe; what goes on outside they know only by report. Yet they are content. They do not complain even, when the smoke from neighboring factories leaves a sooty trail across their courtyard. And it is worth noting that, in spite of such handicaps, their white habits are always immaculate. Behind the walls, designed not so much to keep the world out as to shut themselves in, 350 women and girls dwell peaceably together, content in their work and happy in their [illegible]

THE DAIRY

COWS AND HEIFERS FED SPROUTED OATS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Six virgin dairy heifers that had failed to get with calf after being repeatedly served by different sires at the United States Department of Agriculture dairy experiment farm, Beltsville, Md., were fed sprouted oats in an effort to correct their barren condition. According to R. R. Graves, in charge of the experiment, five of the six heifers were settled in calf after 30 days of this special feeding. Six dairy cows that had raised calves but had apparently become unable to conceive were fed sprouted oats also with the result that five of them got with calf after 19 to 48 days of feeding. Similar tests made at the Oregon experiment station upon the suggestion of Mr. Graves gave equally favorable results.

Feeding sprouted oats to overcome nonconception in dairy heifers and cows was suggested to Mr. Graves by a study of the work done with small animals at the University of California in which it was discovered that a fifth vitamin had a bearing on the fertility and reproductive organs. This vitamin, named vitamin E, was found in such feeds as green leaves of lettuce and alfalfa.

Whether or not the fertility results obtained in heifers and cows fed sprouted oats is due to a vitamin has not been determined, nor have enough trials been made to conclude definitely that the method will always give positive results. Mr. Graves points out that animals in their undomesticated state have a breeding season closely allied with the spring flush of new grass; and that under modern methods of management, cows and heifers are bred at all times of the year. Many of the cases of nonbreeding may be due to functional disorders brought about by a high state of domesticity in which the natural breeding season is ignored. The beneficial effects of sprouted oats may be due to a simulation of natural dietary conditions at the normal breeding season.

Registered Dairy Bulls Found Most Profitable

Heifer calves from common cows, sired by a registered bull, will produce 50 per cent more milk than the old cows and the second generation heifers, sired by a registered bull, will produce fully 75 per cent more milk and fat than the original common cows. This is not a theory but a fact that has been demonstrated at the experiment station at Ames, as well as at other similar institutions and on farms where work of this sort has been carried on.

Registered dairy bulls can be secured at very reasonable figures and those who are in the dairy business are losing a great opportunity if they do not take advantage of getting registered sires for their herds. Intelligent dairying is profitable; hit-and-miss dairying, without a constructive plan back of it, is certain to lead to discouragement and ultimate failure.

Clip Dairy Cattle That Are to Be Exhibited

Dairy cattle that are to be shown this fall, particularly young animals, should be clipped all over at least six weeks previous to fair time. Clipping should be followed with a good washing with soap and water and a fairly light blanket. No further clipping will be necessary until just before showing, when the head, ears and tail should be trimmed up. Training in leading will do much toward improving the animal's appearance in the show ring. Fitting will do much to improve an animal's chance of winning, but good type individuals of large size for their age are of primary importance.

Dairy Hints

The summer silo is the best insurance against lack of feed during dry hot summer days.

Harley Voorhees

FUNERAL DIRECTOR
HANOVER MICHIGAN

Calls attended promptly day an night. Having the best of equipment, I can serve and please you.

Any of our friends who wish our servces, can reach u day or night bycalling Moscow Central.

HARLEY VOORHEES
Hanover, Mich.

Always at Your Service for Printing Needs!

Is there something you need in the following list?

Birth Announcements
Wedding Stationery
Envelope Inclosures
Sale Bills
Hand Bills
Price Lists
Admission Tickets
Business Cards
Window Cards
Time Cards
Letter Heads
Note Heads
Bill Heads
Envelopes
Calling Cards
Leaflets
Statements
Milk Tickets
Meal Tickets
Shipping Tags
Announcements
Briefs
Notes
Coupons
Pamphlets
Catalogues
Blotters
Circulars
Invitations
Posters
Folders
Checks
Blanks
Notices
Labels
Legal Blanks
Menu Cards
Placards
Dodgers
Post Cards
Programs
Receipts

Prompt, careful and efficient attention given to every detail

Don't Send Your Order Out of Town Until You See What We Can Do

Hillsdale-Jackson Bus Line

Four Round Trips each Day
Two Round Trips Sunday

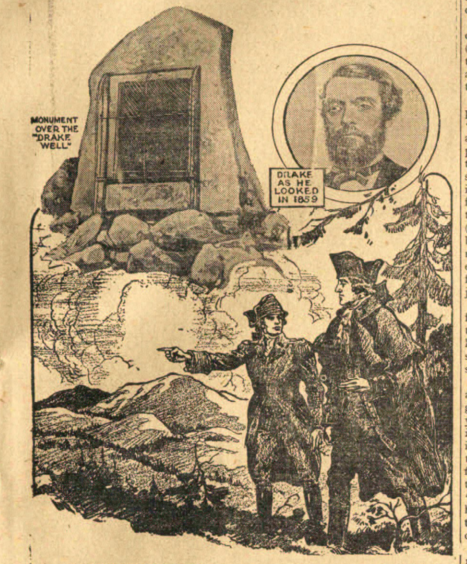
NORTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams 6:45 a. m
" " " 1:15 p. m

SOUTH BOUND
Leaves North Adams 8:15 a. m.
" " " 4:20 p. m.

SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS
Bus north at 5:15 p. m.
Bus south (via Jonesville) 11:20

Those who listen nightly to the wonderful concerts sent by radio from New York City and many other large cities in the United States must concede that the radio is one of the greatest discoveries in the recent years. To sit comfortably in an easy chair in warmth of one's own home and listen to programs by some of the world's greatest artists is certainly the height of real comfort and luxury. Do we appreciate the times in which we live or do we accept some of the present conveniences as those of the commonplace? Even the most isolated farm home may have its radio and is no longer shut off from the outside world. They may hear the latest in song, plays and news just as readily as those who live in the thickly settled communities. It is a great blessing. Statistics show that one out of every six farmers in the country now has a radio set and a good one.

Washington's Early Adventures Now Assuming New Significance



MONUMENT OVER THE "DRAKE WELL"
DRAKE AS HE LOOKED IN 1859

By HENRY BOTSFORD

AFTER well nigh a century and three-quarters a new interest has recently been aroused in the earliest military adventures of George Washington. When barely twenty-one years old, in 1753, Washington was sent by Governor Dinwiddie of Virginia into the far northwestern wilderness—that is, northwestern Pennsylvania—to warn the French that they must cease their efforts to occupy that region. Recent researches have given a new historical significance to that expedition, during which Washington, always reckless of his personal safety, had one of his narrow escapes from death at the hands of a treacherous Indian guide.

The French at that time occupied Canada and claimed the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys. Though the fringe of English speaking colonies along the Atlantic contained the chief European population, France maintained sovereignty over most of North America's area. They were apparently determined to occupy northwestern Pennsylvania, partly because it was known even then to be rich in petroleum.

Region's Wealth Known

Pioneers and missionaries, English, French, German and Dutch, had all reported to their governments that the petroleum was of great potential value. There is, however, no reason to believe that Washington knew of its existence or value until his adventure of 1753. Then he learned that the oil had long been used by the Indians and the pioneering whites for fuel and light, for medicine and in making war paint. Washington was so much impressed with its possibilities that he later became owner of a large area of oil-bearing lands. Although the petroleum industry in its modern form was then undreamed of, Washington was so sure that a fortune resided in his oil-bearing lands that in his will he listed them as his most valuable holdings. In the property schedule attached to the will he wrote:

"This tract was taken up by General Lewis and myself on account of the bituminous spring which it contains, of so inflammable a nature as to burn as freely as spirits and as nearly difficult to extinguish."

The Will of Washington

Some historians declare that in an earlier will Washington dedicated this "burning spring" to the public. At any rate, it had passed from his ownership before his death. He sold this tract for $200,000, but, suspecting it might revert to his estate under a mortgage, he warned his heirs that should it do so it would be worth much more than the $200,000.

Although Washington's first knowledge of petroleum was gained within a few miles of the place where the first oil well in the world was drilled, that first well was not opened until one hundred and six years later, 1859. In that year Edwin Laurentine Drake bored the first well, just south of Titusville, Pennsylvania, and really started the modern petroleum industry.

A Development Wonder

Today the American industry is the major part of the world's oil business. Americans are directing oil developments all over the world. It is all part of the huge problem: to make sure that the tomorrows shall see America's requirements met. Every decade the production of petroleum has doubled. Science and technical progress have met all demands. Foreign investment and development are in the nature of insurance for the future.

In the days of Drake and the industry's beginnings petroleum's value lay in lubricants and kerosene. The age of machinery was only beginning, with its insatiate demand for lubricants, while kerosene, though the best illuminant ever known, was dangerous because poor refining left gasoline that was liable to explode. It is difficult nowadays, when the world is being combed for more petroleum to make more gasoline, to realize that gasoline was once a nuisance and a menace. The internal combustion engine created the demand for gasoline, now the primary product of petroleum. The demands of millions of motor cars increasing constantly, invention and chemistry were set at work by the captains of the industry to make the barrel of petroleum turn out a larger and larger proportion of gasoline. This was done by the cracking process, through which every year now sees a larger proportion of crude oil turned into gasoline.

High and Growing Demands

Today well-nigh 2,500,000 barrels of petroleum are required every day to satisfy the demand for motor cars, tractors, trucks, buses, artificial gas plants and the innumerable by-products. Invention is constantly finding new uses, as enterprise just as constantly finds new supplies of petroleum. The wonderful and rather mysterious fluid has revolutionized social habits and industrial methods; yet it is only two-thirds of a century since the industry had its feeble beginning in the Pennsylvania oil country.

This year the country will use about 750,000,000 barrels of petroleum. The country will use 700,000,000 gallons of gasoline and will export 1,900,000 more. The production, processing and marketing of petroleum is probably second only to agriculture among American industries.

Roundly, 70 per cent of the world's petroleum industry is American. Ten billions of capital is invested in it—half the valuation of the national railroad system. It employs just about 1,000,000 people. The petroleum pipe line system, gridironing a good share of the country, aggregates about 85,000 miles. Petroleum revolutionized naval warfare by bringing in the oil burning ship; it is fast revolutionizing merchant marines in the same fashion. Multiplication of motor cars, along with the special taxation of their gasoline, has made possible the modern highway system.

A True Social Service

Perhaps the most nearly revolutionary result of Drake's modernization of the petroleum industry is to be found in the change it has brought in the life of rural America. It has carried the city to the country, the country to the city. It has, by making possible the cheap and quick transportation that everybody nowadays enjoys, enabled country and city to know and understand each other as they never did before. It has brought social and educational privileges to country dwellers that a few decades ago seemed absolutely denied to them. On the one hand it has enabled the cities to spread out into suburban areas and the zone of country estates; on the other, it has enabled the people of the open country to have neighbors, society, church and school privileges, intimate acquaintance.

It is a historic fact that the tendency toward division of interest and understanding between city and country is the most serious internal menace to the security of nations, to the integrity of society.

More than anything else, country and city need to know and understand each other and each other's problems. The easy transportation, the ready opportunity for association and acquaintance that have come with the Age of Petroleum have made possible, in this favored country at least exactly this new intimacy and understanding

Peritonitis

When the famous screen idol, Rudolph Valentino, recently died of inflammation of the peritoneum, there was much talk about the condition and speculation as to its cause.

Everything from the absurd idea of "too much sodium bicarbonate" (baking soda) to a possible "rupture of an abcess" was considered as the cause of death from "peritonitis."

The recognition of the fact that peritonitis is the result of some "accident" and that it does not arise spontaneously shows that people have grasped the fact that the peritoneum is as a rule very safely walled off and secluded. It is a good thing that it is remote from the danger of infection. Since the peritoneum is a membrane (soft and smooth and lubricated like the lining of the lips and mouth) which extends over considerable area it must be protected from the danger of inflammation just as far as may be.

Many a person has been thankful during an attack of pharyngitis that a human throat is not as lengthy as that of a giraffe. One is sick enough as it is, with only a small area infected and inflamed.

The peritoneum lines the entire abdominal cavity and coats the organs lying there. Consequently as you can see, it is as extensive as its coats, plus many more square inches given over to other structures. If a small throat when inflamed can rise the temperature to fever height, and make a person "all tired out," sick and miserable how much more sick shall he be if that surface called peritoneum becomes inflamed.

Diseases in which germs are carried in the blood stream or by other means here and there throughout the body may be the cause of peritonitis. Tuberculosis is one of these and is perhaps more susceptible to treatment than the others.

Peritonitis is a very grave condition. It makes the patient seriously ill regardless of the cause of it and when the cause too is serious then the hazard to life is extreme.

Rupture of an organ and the spilling of its contents into the peritoneal territory causes peritonitis. An ulcer of the stomach may burst through. Ulcers of the intestines may do the same. Typhoid ulcers may eat through the wall of the intestines and spill all sorts of bacteria onto the peritoneum. Abscesses may burrow close to the peritoneal cavity and rupture into it pouring pus therein. A ruptured abscess of the appendix is a common cause of peritonitis. Trouble in the pelvic organs finding its way upward may eventually cause inflammation of the peritoneum.

Regardless of the cause of inflammation of the peritoneum, early treatment by competent physicians is imperative. While in some instances suffering may be relieved though life cannot be saved, in others by prompt care the serious condition need not prove fatal.

Michigan Is An Ideal Resort

That Michigan's lakes and rivers are among the most picturesque in the world and her summer climate is not excelled by any state in the Union has been admitted by most of the writers but we never suspected that we could become a secondary District of Columbia. In addition to considerable local advertising Governor-elect Fred Green and Mayor Smith recently visited Washington and of course they thought it sort of indecent to come away without calling on honest Cal Coolidge so they went up to the White House and took luncheon with Cal. Among other matters they became interested in talking of summer possibilities and Fred casually mentioned to Cal that Michigan was sure a winner in scenery and cool breezes along in the hot period, so would he not come down and spend the summer with us? Cal allowed he'd like to. Finally they got right down to brass tacks and the more they talked the more Mrs. Coolidge got interested. At last Mr. Coolidge promised he would consider establishing his summer residence in Michigan somewhere—nobody knows just where—but more than likely in the region of the Straits. Mrs. Coolidge is very enthusiastic over Mackinaw and its traditions, so in all probability we'll be it. Let's hope so. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge would not be bad citizens and no doubt Mr. Coolidge would enjoy fishing in the northern Michigan streams with their trout and pickerel.

As Gamblers See It

Felix Isman tells an amusing story of the psychology of gamblers. Two men went to a gambling house and played for some hours. When they left, one berated the other: "Why didn't you do as I told you? You wouldn't have lost. "But," said the other, "you lost just as much as I did." "Yes, I did, but mine lasted longer than yours."—The Outlook.

ADVOCATE AND McCALL'S MAGAZINE Both $2.25

and Any 5 of this list of leading MAGAZINES $2.25 Why Pay More?

Get Your MAGAZINES NOW AT COST!

Take Your PICK 19 to Select From

Never before and probably never again will you have such an extraordinary money-saving opportunity. Note carefully the large selection of choice reading—all at a price to fit your pocketbook. Renewals will be extended one year from date of expiration. No need to wait.

CLIP AND USE THIS COUPON

Gentlemen: I wish to take advantage of your Magazine Bargain Offer. I am enclosing the above amount in payment for a one year subscription to your paper and the FIVE Magazines I have marked with an X below.

Name

Town State

St. or R.F.D.

☐ American Needlewoman
☐ American Poultry Advocate
☐ Blade & Ledger
☐ Capper's Farmer
☐ Farm & Fireside
☐ The Farm Journal
☐ Farm Life
☐ Gentlewoman Magazine
☐ Good Stories
☐ Home Circle
☐ Home Friend
☐ Household Guest
☐ Household Magazine
☐ Illustrated Mechanics
☐ Mother's Home Life
☐ Pathfinder (weekly) 26 issues
☐ Today's Housewife
☐ Tractor & Gas Engine Review
☐ Woman's World

CHOOSE Mark this coupon now and bring or mail it to our Business Office TODAY

RELIGIOUS BORN OF REVOLUTION

Madams of the Sacred Heart Thrived on Persecution of French Gov't

Few persons, comparatively speaking, are aware that the academies for young women now conducted by the Religious of the Sacred Heart, in almost all the large centers of the United States, are practically a direct outgrowth of the French Revolution. Many things can be laid directly at the door of the revolution, but only those who are familiar with the history of the "Madames of the Sacred Heart," as they are sometimes known, would dream of attributing to it a distinct aid to the Catholic educational system in America.

In 1792 all religious orders were suppressed in France, with the result that Catholic education suffered what appeared to be a death blow. The Catholics however, were not content to let matters rest in this fashion. In place of the suppressed orders, most of which had existed for hundreds of years, they set about forming new societies which would be more likely to exist under the stern laws which then prevailed.

The Princess Louise de Bourbon Conde and the Archduchess Marie Anne, of Austria, with the aid of a Father Tournely attempted to found an order devoted to the education of girls and young women, but Father Tournely died before anything definite could be accomplished. He confided his ideas, nevertheless, to another priest, Joseph Varin de Solman, who some years later was able to put them into practice through the aid of Madeleine-Sophie Barat.

Began in Paris

In 1800 the first members of the new congregation entered upon the religious life in Paris and, a year later, the first convent school was opened in Amiens under the direction of Mlle. Loquet. Mother Barat soon succeeded Mlle. Loquet as superioress of this school, a post for which she was well fitted by both temperament and training. At this period the members of the order called themselvs the "Dames de l'Instruction Chretienne," as it was feared that any reference to the Sacred Heart in the title might provoke the wrath of the govrnment then in power.

From this beginning the order grew rapidly ,and in 1804 the second convent and school was established and Phillipine-Rose Duchesne, a former member of the Visitation Order, was received as a novice. This nun was destined to carry the order far beyond the limits of France and the Old World. Mother Duchesne and a number of other members of the Visitation Order found it impossible to carry out the ideals of that order [illegible] the existing laws and she and her companions were received into the new congregation.

During the period from 1804 until 1818 the new order progressed in many ways. A constitution was drawn up and approved by the Bishop of Grenoble. The aims contained in this document have been preserved substantially to the present day. Strife over the adoption of amendments threatened the existence of Mother Barat's little flock for a time, but this difficulty was finally settled although the settlement cost the struggling order one of its convents.

Came to America

In 1818 Mother Duchesne introduced the order into the United States, making foundations in Louisiana and in Missouri. It was in the Sacred Heart Grande Coteau, in Louisiana, that Mother Mary Aloysia Hardey, under whose supervision most of the convents of the order now existing in the United States and Cuba were founded, received her early education. Mother Hardey was born of old Maryland Catholic stock. Her mother was a Spalding, a member of that family whose name has played such an important part in the history of American Catholicism.

In 1825 she entered the order of the Sacred Heart and, with another nun, was subsequently sent to New York City to open the first school in that place. This school is still in operation, on Aqueduct avenue. In 40 years of ceaseless laboring Mother Hardey established 30 schools and convents, among them those in Grosse Pointe and in Detroit. She spread the order into Cuba and into the eastern part of the United States, where it has prospered greatly. Mother Hardey, in the course of this work, was obliged to make 10 trips to Europe and five to Cuba. She provided 25 free schools in the U. S. and Canada.

Religious persecution in France and Italy discouraged the efforts of the Sisters and many of their houses were closed, after being pillaged by the troops. Whenever a convent was closed, however, another was almost sure to be founded in some other part of the world so that the growth of the new order was encouraged rather than hampered by these laws. Houses were opened in the following countries during the latter part of the nineteenth century: Italy, Belgium, England, Ireland, Canada, Germany, Austria, Spain, Chile, the British West Indies, Cuba, New Zealand, Australia, Egypt, Japan, Switzerland, Poland, Holland, Algiers and in some South American countries.

Seized and Pillaged

In 1848 houses in Rome were searched and pillaged and at Loretto, St. Elpidio, Perugia suffered in 1860. The religious were expelled from Genoa, Turin, Saluzzo, and Pignerol. German houses were closed by the May laws of 1873 and between 1903 and 1909 forty-seven French houses were closed and many of them seized by the government.

The work of Mother Hardey in America was compensating for the trials suffered by the Order in Europe and in 1871 she was appointed as-

A new Catholic church, located not far from the center of the city in an old established neighborhood was opened in Detroit recently when the Brewster Congregational Church at Trumbull and Warren avenues, for years a prominent Protestant house of worship, was purchased by the diocese and turned over to the Dominican Fathers.

Several times in the history of the city Protestant churches have been purchased and converted into Catholic edifices. Holy Rosary church was once the property of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan, while St. Aloysius, the downtown Catholic church on Washington boulevard, was originally a Presbyterian church. The members of the Brewster Congregational have merged with the new Pilgrim church in the northwest section of the city.

The opening of St. Dominic's church crowns with success five years effort on the part of the Rt. Rev Michael J. Gallagher, D. D., Bishop of Detroit, to establish a new parish in this thickly-populated locality. It also marks the realization of another ambition of the Bishop, namely, to establish the Dominican Fathers in the diocese. Father Vincent F. Kienberger, O. P., formerly of Providence, R. I., and two assistants have taken charge of St. Dominic's.

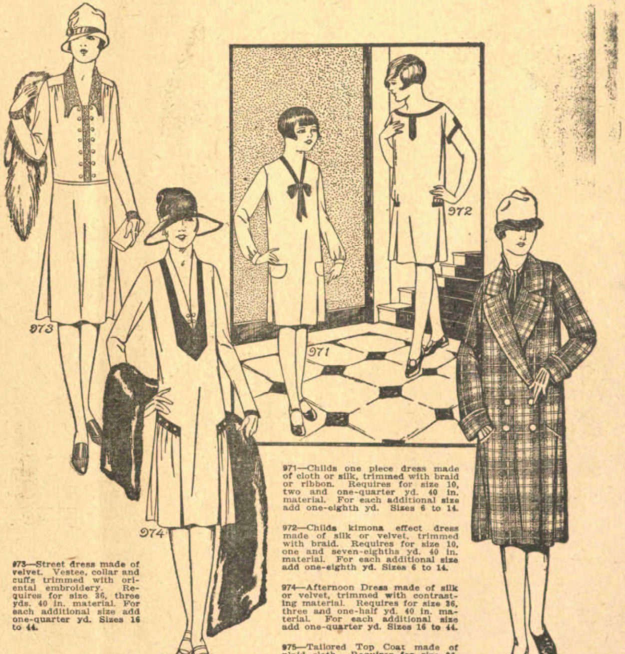
All of the fittings of the church including one of the finest organs in the city, were taken over by Father Kienberger. He has made no change in the structure of the auditorium except to erect a beautiful medieval altar, which occupies the spot where the console of the organ formerly stood.

While the limits of the new parish have not yet been decided upon, it will relieve the congestion which has existed for some time in three large parishes, St. Leo's, SS. Peter and Paul's Cathedral and Holy Rosary. Ultimately, it is planned to erect a school building and a rectory wherein the Dominican Fathers in this part of the country will make their headquarters.

The cornerstone of the new St. Mary's parochial school, at New Baltimore, Mich., was recently blessed by the Rt. Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, D. D., Bishop of Detroit, assisted by a large number of clergymen. Ground for the new school was broken July 4, by Mr. and Mrs. George Martz, who are defraying virtually the entire cost of the structure. It will be ready for occupancy in February, 1927.

The school will consist of six class-rooms, private offices and music rooms, an auditorium seating 500 persons and a gymnasium. It is of brick and stone modern fireproof construction throughout. St. Mary's is in charge of the Dominican Sisters. The Rev. Fr. Charles J. Koenig, has been pastor at New Baltimore for 32 years. He was ordained by the late Bishop Foley, in 1895, and was immediately assigned to the post which he now holds.

EXCLUSIVE "PRACTICAL" FASHIONS



973—Street dress made of velvet. Vestee, collar and cuffs trimmed with oriental embroidery. Requires for size 36, three yds. 40 in. material. For each additional size add one-quarter yd. Sizes 16 to 44.

971—Childs one piece dress made of cloth or silk, trimmed with braid or ribbon. Requires for size 10, two and one-quarter yd. 40 in. material. For each additional size add one-eighth yd. Sizes 6 to 14.

972—Childs kimona effect dress made of silk or velvet, trimmed with braid. Requires for size 10, one and seven-eighths yd. 40 in. material. For each additional size add one-eighth yd. Sizes 6 to 14.

974—Afternoon Dress made of silk or velvet, trimmed with contrasting material. Requires for size 36, three and one-half yd. 40 in. material. For each additional size add one-quarter yd. Sizes 16 to 44.

975—Tailored Top Coat made of plaid cloth. Requires for size 36, three and one-quarter yd. 54 in. material. For each additional size ad one-quarter yd. Sizes 16 to 44.

When the whole family is getting its wardrobe together all at once, there is much rustle of fabrics, snipping of shears, whining of the sewing machine. It is fortunate then that Practical Patterns are handy, for these smart and useful patterns are designed for mother and big and little sister as well, and embody style correctness with effectiveness of design. There is a smart afternoon dress with tailored lines waiting to be cut after Practical Pattern Number 974.

A dress for the most difficult of all ages to fit is Number 973, which is especially suitable for Miss 16 to 20. While it is a frock for slender figures, however, this fashion can be adapted to the lines of the larger figure as well.

Both dresses pictured on this page can go under the smart topcoat which is Number 975. This is a sport coat designed to meet the possibilities for chic that rest in the gorgeous plaids that are being shown this season.

"PRACTICAL" PATTERN ORDER COUPON

FASHION EDITOR:

Enclosed please find twenty-five cents, together with two cents for mailing, for which please send me the following "Practical" Patterns:

Style Number.................Size...................

Please Print Name and Address.

Name.......................................

Street and Number..........................

City and State.............................

If more than one pattern is desired, enclose 25 cents plus postage for each pattern.

An Interesting Page Prepared For Our Lady Readers And The Home Beautiful

"Market" Where Babies Were Sold for $25 Is Probed in Cincinnatti

FOR SALE TODAY
BARGAIN

Cincinnati, Ohio.—The district attorney's office is investigating an alleged "baby market," declared to have been doing a flourishing business in Cincinnati and Covington, Ky., across the Ohio river.

Prices paid for babies were from $25 to $40 police told, with boys in greatest demand.

In suing for a divorce, Thomas Brummer Samuels, a railroad fireman, declared that two of the three children of which it was supposed he was the father, were obtained by his wife through the alleged "market." His wife denies it. One of the children now is dead.

Doctors may be implicated in the case, as birth certificates were issued for all three.

The business derived a profit by taking nameless and orphaned children and placing them in the homes of childless couples, it is said, and wives were aided in deceiving husbands.

An old clock is made useful in the sick room by setting the hands at the time the patient is to receive the next dose of medicine.

NEW USE FOR MOTH BALLS

Four barrels of camphor balls are to be shipped from Astoria, L. I., to Calgary, Canada. After they have been stained light blue—which photographs white—they will be used to produce a hail storm in a film, "The Canadian," which is being appropriately "shot" in Canada. After that, perhaps, they may still be put in overcoat pockets.

KISSING DISCOVERED EARLY

A young Cretan fondly embracing a pretty maid who shyly rests her head on his shoulder is sculptured on a vase recently exhumed on that Grecian isle. It proves that kissing was a popular pastime fifteen centuries before Christ and that modern sheiks and flappers could teach the Cretans nothing about the "soul kiss." Ages ago the Cretan civilization was buried on this island—perhaps by an earthquake. Now excavations are bringing to light many evidences of the joys, sorrows and loves of the domestic and social life of its ancient inhabitants. They were people much like us.

Hoss Doctor Was O. K.

He was dug out of the wreck and carried into the nearest doctor's office. "I can't do anything for this man," said the doctor. "I'm a veterinary surgeon."

"You're the right man, doc," said the amateur motorist, coming to, "I was a jackass to think I could run that machine."

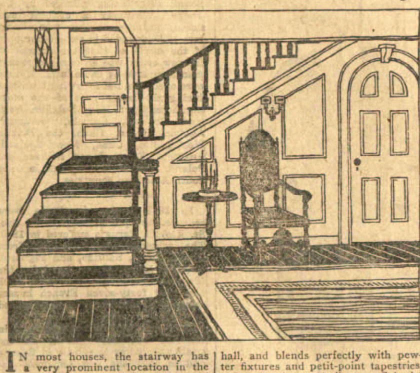
He was No Weakling

Father was quizzing daughter about the young man who had taken a shine to her.

"Is he a good worker? Does he take hold of things that interest him?"

"Does he? Say, Pop, you ought to hide behind the sofa some night."

The Charm of the Stairway



IN most houses, the stairway has a very prominent location in the entrance-hall or living-room, and consequently is the first object that meets the view of all who enter. This means that the appearance of the stairway is responsible, in a great degree, for the reputation of the whole house.

The stairs must be well and strongly made to withstand hard and constant usage, the materials must be good, and the finish must be carefully maintained for both economy and beauty.

The color scheme for the stairs should blend with those of both upper and lower floors, and, if the house is of period design, it should be in harmony with the period.

For the house of English or Mission or chalet type if the hall is well lighted and the rest of the house schemed to permit it, the woodwork and stairs may be of a soft nut brown, rubbed to a dull gloss. This finish is at its best in a rather stately hall, and blends perfectly with pewter fixtures and petit-point tapestries.

In the house built on Colonial lines, and in fact in many other types of houses, ivory enamel, in any one of its many tones, with the fresh severely simple atmosphere it carries with it, will transform the hall beyond belief.

Where the paneled woodwork and doors of the hall, the risers and slender spindles of the stairway are of ivory, ebony treads and handrail will be found a delightful variation of the conventional mahogany.

Just below the stairway may be placed to advantage a table and chair of mahogany, beautifully finished so that the charm of the fine old wood will show to greatest advantage and at the same time be kept in an excellent state of preservation. Other appropriate articles of furniture may find a place in the foyer, but as a rule it is best to use only a few pieces and place those few to the best advantage.

Store Canned Goods In Cool, Dark Place

Storing your "canning" in the right place may mean a better product on your table this winter.

Here are some suggestions on the storage of canned goods offered by the Wisconsin department of home economics:

Canned products should be kept in a cool, dark place. The cellar of a furnace-heated house is too warm unless a section can be tightly shut off. However, the canned goods must not be allowed to freeze. Tubs of water in the cellar during extreme weather will help to protect the fruit from freezing.

If the cellar is very light, cans of products which fade easily, such as strawberries, cherries, spinach and beets, may be wrapped in papers. Labels, with the name printed in large, plain letters, are a convenience in identifying the food quickly in a cellar which is somewhat dark.

When cold, the jelly will have shrunk enough to leave room for a coating or paraffin. Run the point of a knife around the edge, loosening the jelly about a quarter of an inch deep, then pour melted paraffin over the top and down into this groove. Cover with tin covers or paper tied over the top. Label plainly and store in a cool dark place.

A small coffee pot or tea pot is a very convenient thing in which to melt paraffin; melt it very slowly, over a low fire or in a saucepan of hot water.

Freshly made jelly has a better flavor than jelly which has been stored. For this reason, many people can or bottle the fruit juices in season and make them into jellies from time to time during the winter and spring. This not only insures fresh jelly, and prevents crystals forming, but it also helps to economize on storage space.

Young Children in Rural Schools

Children whose first school year is spent in the kindergarten are fortunate. Since the one-room school cannot offer kindergarten work country children of kindergarten age should be kept at home. According to information received by the Bureau of Education, Department of the Interior, parents in rural districts in increasing numbers realize that children should wait until they are approximately six years of age before entering school.

Teachers appreciating the injury often inflicted by the change from the active outdoor life so essential to health and physical development to the sedentary life of the schools are doing much to make school life less sedentary, and the transition from the free pre-school life to the more exacting demands of the school gradual and easy. They see to it that children get exercise, physical relief, and education in using such materials as construction paper, paste, crayola, scissors, clay, blocks, and a set of type for printing. Where school boards have not furnishes such supplies money is often raised for their purchase through the efforts of parent-teacher associations and other organizations. Young children are taught to talk freely, play games, and to sing. Older children read aloud to them and tell them stories; thus getting needed practice and at the same time arousing in their listeners a desire to learn to read.

Activities of this kind while apparently delaying children's progress in learning to read really hasten it. It is becoming quite general for children sufficiently mature to profit by first grade work to enter rural schools in the fall and after attending regularly for nine months to read through several primers and first readers before the year closes.

Do You Really Think?

We pay a great deal or respect to "thinking," and seldom or never regard it as we do action as being foolish and wasteful. If you see a person in a thoughtful mood you tiptoe lest you disturb him. Yet these processes of thought can be as useless and idle as the aimless actions to which people so often take exception. Indeed, ninety per cent of the average man's thinking is idle and consists of musing, day-dreaming — of imagining himself in fine situations, or justifying himself to his own satisfaction. A large part of the balance of his thinking is given to finding reasons for his beliefs and his prejudices. Of actual creative thought there is in the life of the average man only a very, very small percentage. These are not the men, however, who make any original contribution. They accept things as they are. The marvels that make possible their comfort, their travel, their entertainment, their livlihood, is something they never think about. All around them are wonders of nature and miracles of science into which they never inquire. Their religious beliefs, their political loyalties, their patriotism they have accepted from others, when they think it is only to find arguments and reasons for what they already believe.

Something Amiss

"Who shall I say is asking for him?" inquired central of the man in the booth.

"Mr. O'Cohen."

"Mr. Who?"

"Mr. O'Cohen."

"Wait a minute—the wires are crossed."

Movie Notes

Claude Gillingwater, veteran character actor of the screen, will play the important role of the Father in Pola Negri's next starring vehicle, "Barbed Wire."

In this war drama of the prison camps, adapted from Hall Caine's masterpiece, "The Woman of Knockaloe," Gillingwater portrays the character of a kindly Frenchman who, tolerant of his fellow man and human frailties, becomes violently embittered against all Germans when he hears his son has been killed at the front. His consuming hatred plays an important part in the development of the drama, and provides him with one of the great opportunities of his film career.

Rowland V. Lee will direct "Barbed Wire" as his first picture for Famous Players-Lasky. It is to be an Erich Pommer production, the second made for Paramount in America by the former head of UFA. Members of the cast previously chosen include Clive Brook, Paramount featured player, who will appear opposite Miss Negri in the role of the prisoner; Einar Hanson, who plays the brother, and Clyde Cook.

Wellman luck is becoming proverbial, at least in San Antonio, Tex., where Paramount is making the two big road show productions, "Wings," directed by William Wellman, and "The Rough Riders," directed by Victor Fleming.

During the first eleven days that the Fleming company was in San Antonio overcast skies and rain held up production to such an extent that out of the eleven days only three days' work was actually done.

From the day that the "Wings" company arrived, however, weather conditions have been ideally suited to production and Wellman has been sailing along with no weather delays. In fact things began to look too good, for sequences were being approached that required mud and lots of it for the scenes in wartime France. It was then that the Wellman luck most clearly demonstrated itself, for the billowy clouds that each day had given composition to the sky background, bunched and practically without warning let loose a torrent of rain that flooded the huge flying field.

What had been Texas dust a few moments before, became French mud through which Wellman gleefully sent his players as he "shot" the sequences toward which he had been working for a week.

"Wings" tells the story of the aerial side of the World war and centers about the St. Mihiel drive. It is adapted from the original story by John Monk Saunders and features in the cast Clara Bow, Charles Rogers, Richard Arlen, El Brendel, Richard Tucker and Gary Cooper.

Pola Negri's newest starring picture, "Hotel Imperial," is based on an actual incident in the life of a newspaperman. This is the revelation of Lajos Biro, author of the novel and stage play, "Hotel Imperial," which was adapted to the screen for Pola.

Although already launched on a career of fiction writing, Biro was the front line correspondent for four European newspapers during the war, 'Bester Lloyd" and "Vilag" of Buda pest, and the "Neue Frei Presse and "Vossische Zeitung" of Berlin.

He was with the Hungarian army in the victorious counter attack which drove the Russians out of Galicia in 1915 and stopped at a hotel in the small town of Tarnow on the Galician frontier.

When the Russians seized the town of Tarnow, the general made the chambermaid the manager of the hotel, and when Biro heard the story it gave him the germ of the plot for "Hotel Imperial"

At the close of that campaign he wrote the stage play which became an instant sensation. It was produced in Budapest with Sari Fedak, second wife of Franz Molney, another famous Hungarian playwright, in the role which Pola Negri is portraying on the screen. The popularity of the play swept the entire nation. It was produced everywhere in Hungary and has since been translated, as has the novel, into several languages.

Its production was forbidden in Vienna and throughout Austria, however, on the ground that it was pacifist in its appeal and would incite reaction unfavorable to the cause of the central powers.

The importation of screen players, which is putting a strain on the linguistic abilities of many American movie directors, does not disturb Herbert Brenon. The latter recently directed Lya de Putti, the sensational Hungarian actress, and Adrienne d'Ambricourt, formerly of the Comedie Francaise, in a scene from "God Gave Me Twenty Cents," giving instructions to the one in German and to the other in French. He also speaks Italian.

As soon as she finishes her role in support of Florence Vidor in "The Popular Sin," which is being directed by Mal St. Clair, Greta Nissen is to leave for the coast. She will play opposite Adolphe Menjou in "Blondes or Brunettes." She will return east immediately after this picture.

Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton are featured as a pair of gobs in the Paramount war comedy. Others of the featured cast are Chester Conklin, Tom Kennedy, Lorraine Eason and Donald Keith. Edward Sutherland is directing.

Puss In Boots, Jr.

By David Cory

Puss in Boots, Junior, and Mary in the Garden

"Mistress Mary, quite contrary
How does your garden grow?"
Sang Puss in Boots, Junior
As he doffed his hat
To the cockle-shells all in a row.

It was a lovely garden, full of flowers and shrubs, and in one corner was a little girl playing with pretty shells on a pile of sand.

"Come in and play with me," said she. So he jumped over the garden wall, but he didn't stay very long, for he wished to find his fortune, you know.

Well, after a while, as he journeyed on he came to a bridge, and, all of a sudden, whom should he meet but Sir Launcelot of the Lake, that noble knight whom you remember he had met a long time ago. And when Sir Launcelot had reined in his great charger he cried out in a loud voice:

"Come with me, kitten!" So Puss in Boots, Junior, sprang up lightly behind the noble knight and together they rode across the bridge and out upon the King's highway. And after they had gone for many miles, they came across Little Miss Muffet who sat on a tuffet. But this time she wasn't running away from the big cruel spider who had sat down beside her.

"Whither are you bound, little maid?" asked the knight. And then without waiting for an answer he leaned over and lifted her up into the saddle beside Puss in Boots, Junior. And wasn't she glad to see our little traveler again? Well, if you had only been there you would have laughed with joy, for she was so happy that she hugged him again and again.

After a while they came to an old mill where the rusty, dusty miller ground the corn for the farmers. "Please let me down here," said little Miss Muffet, "for mother asked me to bring home some meal." So the kind knight pulled in his great steed and little Miss Muffet ran into the mill.

But Sir Launcelot didn't wait, for he wasn't going back, you see, so he and Puss in Boots, Junior called out good-by and went upon their way. And the sun shone down and glitteron the bright armor of the noble knight and Puss in Boots, Junior felt very proud to be riding with him.

"You shall go with me to King Arthur's Court," said Sir Launcelot, "for little friend Tom Thumb is with my good king and he has told all the knights what a good comrade you are."

Toward evening, they came to the Court of King Arthur where all the knights were eating their evening meal at the great round table. But when they heard the hoof beats of Sir Launcelot's great horse, they ran outside to greet him. Puss in Boots, Junior, was taken into the great dining hall and placed on the right hand of King Arthur and merry was the feast that followed, for they had all heard of brave Puss in Boots, Junior, and loved him and Mother Goose, although they had grown up to be a great strong knights.

And next week you will hear what had happened after that—unless—
The friendly clock upon the wall
Should strike out three times playing ball.

One Way of "Selling"

It is a good thing for a boy who plans to be a salesman to be sure that he makes friends easily. You'll find that one of these traveling salesmen you see 'on the road" has friends everywhere he goes. His customers are not only customers; they are friends who trust him. Through long years, perhaps, he has held their confidence. They look forward to his visits and are glad to buy from him.

I know a salesman who went to a town one day and found that three children were sick in the home of one of his customers; their mother was sick too, and the father had to remain in his store.

"I'll give you your choice, Bill," said the salesman. "I'll run the store or try to take care of the children, just as you say. I've got children of my own at home."

"Run the store," said the customer, and for three days, the traveling man ran the store and ran it well. He clinched a friend and a customer for life.—May Boys' Life.

TIMELY HINT

Now that summer is over and light clothes put away, many women have a few pairs of white hose that do not look so well with dark dresses. If you store them for next season wrap them in blue tissue paper, as that will preserve the color. If you wish to change their color, however, so that you can wear them, try the following methods: In a basin of warm water add a cup of strong tea essence. The amount of tea may be varied according to the shade desired. Rub the stockings well as if washing them in the solution. Care must be taken that every part is colored evenly and not streaked. This method is vouched for by a practical housewife who says she and her daughter each now possess hose varying from taupe to a dark tan dyed by this method.

TODAY'S RECEIPTS

Rice—Take one cup rice, two and one-half quarts cold water and one level tablespoon salt. Place rice with water and salt in three-quart pan. Cover and place in oven with rest of meal. When removed from oven place in colander, pour boiling water over, drain and serve at once. Place bits of butter and dash of paprika on top.

Maple Mousse—One cup maple syrup, bring to boil and pour over youks of two eggs. Let come almost to boil again and pour over one tablespoon of gelatin which has been soaked in a little water. Mix and cool. Beat one-half pint of cream, also whites of eggs, and fold in. Chill.

Foods For Your Children

The proper feeding of young children is a tremendous responsibility, since so much of their future health and happiness depends upon it. For these tender plants are easily blighted, if not actually destroyed, by careless or injudicious feeding.

In selecting the right foods for the little folks, two things should be given first consideration—digestibility and perfect sterilization. The best cooked foods are the most easily digested, and none are better cooked than the products put up in cans. In the home kitchen, foods cannot be cooked at the high degree of temperature attained in the great boiling-tanks of the canneries.

Nor can home-cooking accomplish sterilization, since that requires complicated machinery such as no home possesses. The high degree of temperature attained in the cannery destroys all harmful organisms, while at the same time serving another purpose. For canned foods are cooked in sealed containers. The cans are filled with the raw food and the contents heated to a degree that expands them to brimful capacity before the cans are capped. The tops are clamped on by machinery, hermetically sealing the cans, which are then cooked sufficiently to preserve them, after which they are plunged directly into cold water. In cooling, a vacuum is created in the can. The escape of vitamins, under this process, is practically impossible. And all the original qualities are retained indefinitely, as scientific experimentation has proved.

There is nothing safer, therefore, for little children, than these scientifically processed foods which come in cans. They contain all the elements necessary to the human system, are freed from harmful bacteria and are cooked to the point of perfect digestibility, needing only to be reheated before serving.

Children need variety in their diet, the same as grown people. And this variety can most safely and conveniently be given them from a well-chosen supply of prepared foods. Not only milk for the younger babies now comes in powdered, evaporated form, to be quickly reliquified or diluted with water, but many nutritious and delicious articles of food may now be had in prepared form, which are essential to the diet of children who are just beginning to take solid food.

Canned creamed potatoes, for instance, are very good for little children, supplying their systems with various necessary elements. And these may now be obtained in cans, needing only to be heated through, to be ready for little Johnnie's or wee Mary's tray. Then there are the various fruits, which all children should have, but which ought to be thoroughly cooked before they eat them. So Mother should have on hand a supply of canned peaches, canned grapefruit canned applesauce, and similar seedless fruits. Even figs now come in cans, although these should be given to a child in small quantities.

There are various excellent soups, too, that now come all prepared and ready to serve after a quick re-heating. Most of these are very nourishing for the little folks. So, also are fruit juices, especially when cooked and these may easily be drained from the canned fruit and given the children to drink, or poured over some simple cornstarch or custard pudding, making it doubly delicious.

Many canned foods may now be obtained in small-sized cans, so that a single can will contain just enough for a child, and there is no waste. However, any leftovers in the form of vegetables or chicken may be added to soups, thereby improving the flavor of the latter and at the same time practising economy.—Courtesy American Housewife's Bureau, 119 West 40th Street, New York City.

COURT UPHOLDS BEGGAR'S WILL

Judge Guy A Miller decided that Mrs. Mary Ronowski's hoard of $5,000 worth of nickels, dimes and pennies which she has begged on streets during the last 31 years and which she willed to her friend, Mrs. Margaret Kuratkowski, 991 Superior street, when she died March 12, 1924, should be given to Mrs. Kuratkowski and not to a half-sister who was trying to break the will. Mrs. Ronowski who was 88 years old when she died lived at 680 Brady street.

It is believed, however, that more trouble is in store for Mrs. Kuratkowski when she goes to collect. Her name was signed to the will as a witness and it is doubtful if the will will be admitted to probate.

The half-sister, Mrs. Maryanna Inda, 66 years old, wife of a farmer living near Port Austin, Mich., tried to break the will on the ground that Mrs. Ronowski was unduly influenced but Judge Miller thought the money was due to the woman who had befriended her rather than to relatives with whom she was not friendly.

Western Normal Graduates Class

Western State Normal graduated a class of 56 at the close of the fall term. Of this number five received the degree of bachelor of arts. The others with the exception of one, who completed a three-year course, finished the work of the regular two-year courses.

The December class included:

Early Elementary Life Diploma — Marion R. Clifford of Traverse City, Bernice M. Hoover of Fennville, Marian J. Mouw of Holland, Mary Garnette Hughes of Traverse City, Katherine VanHoutum of Grand Rapids, Dorothy V. Whitacre and Ilah Verle Whitacre of Allegan.

Junior High Life Diploma — Grace Bentall of Grand Rapids, Irene Charlton of Hastings, Marion R. Chase of Boyne City, Claudine E. Guy of Woodland and Lavina E. Stratton of Grand Rapids.

Later Elementary Life Diploma — Mary Loretta Barnard of Trufant. Edith A. Campbell of Grandville, Audrey Albright Hall of Sturgis, Norma C. Murray of Coopersville, Ethel J. Stirling of Evart and Lucille F. Scott of Fremont.

Senior High Life Diploma—Florence A. DeJonge of Grand Rapids and Audrey V. Hynes of Woodland.

State Life Dijploma—Anna R. Hess of Grand Rapids.

Limited Certificate — Reathel C. Dodge of Newaygo.

Ionia Free Fair "Makes" International Association

Secretary Fred A. Chapman of Ionia received notice that the Ionia Free Fair association has been admitted to membership in the International Association of Fairs on the strength of the local showing of receipts in the past two years.

In order to get into this organization receipts must exceed $40,000, which the local exhibition did two years ago.

* * *

Doctors are healthy as a rule—but, then, they never take their own medicine.

—LEARN—
BRICKLAYING
In a School run by Building Contractors.
Catalog Free.
Associated Building Employers
13-21 McConnell St., Grand Rapids

CARPENTER'S The Original LIQUID COURT PLASTER
15
Antiseptic!
Protects & Heals
AT ALL DRUG STORES

Windustite
KEEP THE COLD, SOOT and DUST OUT
Installing "American Windustite" weather strips saves coal, makes housecleaning easier, gives more comfort from your furnace, and protects furnishings and draperies from outside dirt, soot and dust.
Storm-proof, Dirt-proof, Leak-proof and Rattle-proof
Made and Installed Only by
AMERICAN METAL WEATHER STRIP COMPANY
144 N. Division Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Manistee Seizes Assets Of Toilet Goods Company

The city of Manistee, through City Attorney Howard L. Campbell, seized the assets of the Youth's Own Products company, manufacturers of toilet lotions and perfumes, of this city pending settlement of a $1,000 claim the city has against the company, and claims of other creditors.

The company moved here last July from Grand Rapids, and as an infant industry was loaned $1,000 by the city. This sum was to be given outright to the company if at the end of one year a minimum payroll list of 15 persons had been kept at all times, but was to become due immediately when the force fell below that number, according to an agreement, the city officials state.

The company, unincorporated and managed by Dwight Shepherd, used a by-product of the salt plants here. Mayor John Radmaker was personally interested in the company, having helped to finance its move here. Several employes were wondering when they will be able to collect back pay they claim is due them.

Board of Commerce officials state that the company has been hampered by lack of finances ever since it came here, but that its products were well received wherever introduced. Local capital may be induced to take over the plant and operate it.

Trade Bureau Used As Means to Cure Ludington Kickers

The Ludington Trade bureau has just closed its third year with all bills paid and a cash balance. The bureau enjoys the unusual distinction of being an active commercial body with no salaried officers. Officers are elected semi-annually and those just elected are: President, W. H. Cuthbertson; vice president, Martin Abrahamson; secretary, A. N. Kinney; treasurer, A. David Gibbs. There are no standing committees. The president names committees as occasion requires.

The frequent change of officers, no one is re-elected, brings out talent in the community and forces all business men eventually to devote time and ability to community affairs. If a kicker develops he gets an office wished on him and is forced to exert himself to make good.

P. M. Brakeman Is Partially Paralyzed By Peculiar Accident

G. H. McAlpin, 26 and married, of Saginaw, brakeman on a P. M. freight train, is in Doherty hotel at Clare suffering with concussion of the brain and partial paralysis as the result of an unexplained accident.

McAlpin was found unconscious on the floor of the way car by a member of the train crew and carried to the hotel. When he revived he said his last memory was of being about to break the air hose coupling on his train.

It is believed the host struck him over the head, and that while in a dazed condition he walked alone to the car where he was found.

Traverse Second City In West Michigan, Population 13,110

Traverse City population has increased 20 per cent since 1920, and today is 13,110, according to figures gotten in a painstaking survey, just completed. This cit yis the largest in west Michigan, north of Grand Rapids. In 1920 the population was 10,925. In the six-year period, the school enrollment has increased from 2,075 to 2,495. All figures are exclusive of the Traverse City State hospital, which houses 3,000 persons.

Ben Gives Captor Another Memento

"King Ben" Purnell of the House of David rewarded his captor with another trophy. Detective Herman W. Kays of the state police received a gold tie pin with a moonstone setting.

An accompanying letter, signed "House of David, per E. M.," said:

"This pin is one that was especially prized by Benjamin and was one of his special likes."

When the aged cult leader was being taken to jail immediately after his capture he untied a yellow bit of ribbon from his long gray hair and presented it to Kays, promising another souvenir later.

* * *

A shiftless man can always blame his wife for his failure to make good.

* * *

Women are far more heroic, than men—as any shoe dealer will tell you.

George has gone away with the angels up above,
He used one arm to drive, and the other one to love.

A Legal Reserve Automobile Insurance Policy at Lower Rates—No Assessments
REPUBLIC
Automobile Insurance Underwriters
WE WANT AN AGENT IN YOUR VICINITY
2163 Jefferson Ave., East, at Dubois
Detroit, Michigan

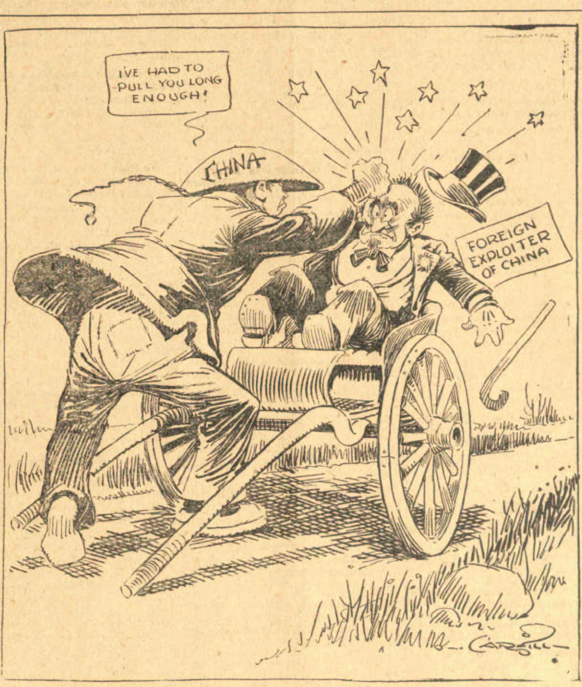
THE BEST RECOMMENDATION
—FOR—
BARE-TO-HAIR
Is the number who are trying to imitate it. If Bare-to-Hair was not growing hair on bald heads there would be no imitators. If there is baldness or signs of it you can't afford to neglect to use "Forst's Original Bare-to-Hair."
Correspondence Given Personal Attention
E. J. Jahn Barber Supply Co.,
1267 Park Place, at Grand River,
Detroit, Michigan.

NEWS FEATURE PAGE

Happenings From Here and There and Everywhere.

Educational, Interesting and Helpful.

Another "Hoss" Kicks Over the Traces



SEWAGE DISPOSAL PROJECT HALTED

The city of Saginaw is thwarted in its efforts to comply with the state mandate that sewage disposal plant plans be carried through to completion within a short period of time, because the legislature killed the enabling provision in the special session early this year, according to City Attorney Frank A. Picard, who has advised the health authorities at Lansing that the city is unable to continue with the project.

The Saginaw river, one of the most heavily polluted streams in the state, has been a source of irritation to health authorities for many years. Since the anti-pollution campaign was started by the state, after the 1925 legislature passed an enabling bill, municipalities on the Saginaw river were instructed by John Baird, director of conservation, and Dr. R. M. Olin, state health commissioner, to prepare for sewage disposal plants immediately.

City Attorney Picard in informing the city council that the legislature removed the enabling clause that would allow the city to raise the money for the project, takes the position that the legislature should be requested to revive the issue and pass legislation that will permit Saginaw and other cities of less than 70,000 to raise funds for the sewage disposal.

C. W. Matheson Is New Sales Manager Of Kelvinator, Inc.

A. H. Goss, president of Electric Refrigeration corporation of Detroit, announced that C. W. Matheson has been made vice president of Kelvinator, Incorporated, and director of Kelvinator sales.

Mr. Matheson was for 10 years with Dodge Brothers' sales department and during 1920 to 1922 he acted as their sales manager and vice president. After leaving Dodge Brothers he became assistant to Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors corporation.

For two years Mr. Matheson has been vice president and director of sales of the Oakland-Pontiac division, G. M. C. He produced nearly a 100,-car sale increase in 1926 over 1925.

Ionia After $1,0000 To Fight Corn Borer

"The European corn borer is as near Ionia county as Ingham and Shiawassee counties," says W. B. Heath, cashier of the State Savings bank of Ionia, who is interested in the extension work and is deeply concerned over the ravages of the latest farm pest.

Mr. Heath has made an appeal for funds to aid the local work. About $1,000 is needed to complete the budget for this year, which ends some time next spring. Plans are being made for a canvass in Ionia.

Albion Glee Club Jaunts Being Set

Leslie Lee of Pontiac, manager of the Albion Glee Club, has plans well under way for two trips. The first jaunt will be between semesters from Jan. 28 to Feb. 6 and the other trek out into the state will be at spring vacation time, March 24 to 31. Tentative plans for the second trip will include Muskegon, Charlotte or Eaton Rapids, Grand Rapids, Greenville, Grand Haven, Benton Harbor, Niles and Coldwater.

In addition to 21 singers the club will carry two musical entertainers, still to be selected, the accompanist and Clement Yinger of Grand Rapids, who will appear in the role of a reader.

M-78 May Be Included in Route to Indiana

Eaton county's state road, M78, one of the smallest links in the Michigan highway system, may become an important interstate trunkline highway, according to plans to extend it to reach from Lansing to Indianapolis.

At present M78 extends only from the center of Charlotte to the soldiers' monument in Pennfield township, a few miles from Battle Creek, where it connects with M79 for that city, this being the shortest route from Lansing and Charlotte to Battle Creek.

The proposed route of the Michigan section of the road to Indianapolis is from Battle Creek south to Athens and Leonidas, about six or seven miles west on M60 and then south to Sturgis and the Indiana boundary. The proposal has been placed before the advisory board of the Michigan state highway department for sanction which is said to be virtually assured.

Being planned as a capital-to-capital highway, it undoubtedly would be necessary to make two transfers of present paved highways to M78, including the first section of M26, from Lansing to Charlotte, and the southern terminus of M79, from the present end of M78 to Battle Creek. The present M78 is to be paved next year.

The new route would include Fort Wayne, Ind., and at Indianapolis it will merge with the Dixie highway to Florida and other points in the south. It may be extended north from Lansing to Owosso, Saginaw and Bay City.

Lake Michigan Storms Severe Blow to Fishers

Capt. Nels Palmer has never seen so prolonged a period of continuous storms on Lake Michigan as this autumn. He has been in the coast guard service on the lake 26 years.

The storms during the last few weeks have been a severe blow to shipping, and specially to commercial fishermen operating out of the ports in this section. The fishermen have been able to operate only one or two days a week.

November was an exceptional month in this section. The mean temperature was 35.5 degrees, the lowest in 15 years.

ARRANGES TO LIGHT MICHIGAN AIR ROUTE

George Carter Miller, representing the department of commerce at Washington and sent to Michigan to establish landing fields and locate beacons for the Minneapolis-Buffalo air route, has completed his work and returned to Washington.

Out of Grand Rapids the first beacon will be on the hill south of Cascade, the next on the landing field, on M16, provided by the citizens of Lowell. Another beacon will be built near the Rudd oil station, two miles west of the Bellevue road, then at Portland, Eagle, Lansing, Okemos, Webberville and Howell, all on M16.

At Brighton the air route ceases to follow the pavement and the lighthouse will be south of that town. The next will be at the landing field west of South Lyon. Then Plymouth and the terminal, which is at the Ford airport at Dearborn.

Miller said the government soon will advertise for bids on the erection of the towers and construction work will start early in March.

Cash Settlement Frees Jeweler

The charges of manslaughter and negligent homicide against Russell Meyers, a Saginaw jeweller, were disposed of when an order of nolle prosse was issued by Judge James S. Parker, of the Genesee county circuit court, on recommendation of Prosecutor Brucker, because the complaining witnesses withdrew their case after a cash settlement was made. This is the first time in the history of Saginaw county that so serious a charge has been nolle prossed after settlement on a civil basis had been effected. Meyers was the driver of an automobile that collided with another machine on the Gratiot road more than a year ago and two persons were killed in the accident.

Golf Links Among Items Suggested for Fremont

The Chamber of Commerce questionnaires sent out to members to get suggestions for improvements indicate the members feel that a golf course should be constructed, tourist and resort facilities should be enlarged and improved, agriculture strengthened and assisted and city conditions be generally improved.

Determination of the chamber's principal activities for the year will be voted upon at the next meeting.

Embezzlement Charge Starts Investigation

James Whitman, chief auditor of the auditor-general's department, has opened the investigation into the circuit court records for the years 1921 and 1922, the investigation having been started after charges were made of embezzlement and falsifying the records against Samuel J. Burns, county clerk-elect.

State to Question Lenawee Firebug

A new phase in the case of Grover Pauter, of Hudson, charged with arson, developed when the state of Michigan entered the case. Van Loomis of Jackson, representing the fire marshal's office, arrived to talk with Pauter concerning his startling confession made recently which cleared away the mystery surrounding 21 fires in Lenawee and Hillsdale counties since 1924. He is believed to be a pyromaniac.

As the result of state action, the arraignment of Pauter will be held up several days in order to give the state fire marshal's representative ample time to get a complete statement from the Hudson man. It is hoped that Pauter will give in detail his activities since Thanksgiving, 1924, when the torch was first applied at Pittsford in the beginning of a series of half a dozen fires which filled the district with fear, made enemies of neighbors and even broke up family ties. Every effort to get information on Pauter's actions prior to 1924 has failed.

Pauter seems to react to the word fire and bursts into tears whenever the word is mentioned. According to Pauter, he has handled dynamite for a long time and was perfectly familiar with dynamite fuses, which gave him 25 minutes' time to get away when he applied the torch. He worked many years for the Southern Michigan Light and Power company as a fireman at the power plant and he understood firing and boiler operation very well. He also spoke of an accident several years ago in which he was severely shocked. He states that he always attended fires when he could.

Pastor's Slander Case Thrown Out

The case in which Rev. George VanWingerden, pastor of the M. E. church here, is charged with libeling former Sheriff Noble McKinley was thrown out of circuit court here when Judge Joseph Barton ruled the warrant illegal inasmuch as it contained too many charges against the clergyman.

The case was brought into circuit court an appeal after VanWingerden was found guilty in justice court and fined $5. The pastor is said to have repeated an alleged statement of a former woman pastor here to the effect McKinley once was taken from an automobile in an intoxicated condition while he was sheriff. The reputed author afterward denied having made the statement. VanWingerden is reported to have made the quotation during McKinley's recent campaign for another shrievalty term.

Holland to Hear Noted Archaeologist in Lecture

Dr. Melvin Grove Kyle, president of Xenia Theological seminary of the United Presbyterian church at St. Louis, will be in residence for two weeks in February at Western Theological seminary to give a series of lectures on Biblical archaeology. Dr. Kyle is a famous archaeologist, whose books have a wide sale and are considered standard. He also has led several expeditions to excavate in Palestine. Last year he headed the Xenia expedition which excavated the old city of Kirjath-Sepher.

Details of the lectures will be announced later. They will be delivered in the afternoon and will be open to students, teachers, ministers and the public.

Alcohol From Dough

An Italian engineer named Andrusiani is the inventor of a device whereby fermenting bread dough can be made to yield 75 per cent alcohol, it is asserted. This mechanism invented by Andrusiani is simple in construction and works automatically, its chief function being to collect and distil vapors which have escaped through the chimney flues.

Experiments conducted in a Berlin bake shop are said to have yielded one liter (1.05 quarts) of alcohol through conservation of fumes escaping from 200 one-pound loaves of bread in the process of baking.

* * *

"I am struck with the wonderful lives of the women in America. I shall take home a vision of the wonderful work that women do here, while at the same time they are having a glorious time of it."—Queen Marie, speaking at St. Louis.

The state of women in the United States is a favorable one—and we of the check-writing sex sincerely wish to keep it so and make it better. There are times in the lives of some of us when a little more than the customary reciprocation would be welcome.

WILL REROUTE MACKINAW TRAIL

The Mackinaw trail is to be straightened between Tustin and Cadillac, according to an announcement from the state highway department. As traffic now is running between these two points, west from Tustin and north and then east around the Cadillac lakes, the distance is 17 miles. The new route, cutting off a mile south and three-quarters east from Tustin runs due north into Cadillac, a distance of only 11 miles. This project likely will not be completed before 1928, the field work just being completed. Bids probably will be advertised for and contracts awarded next year.

The survey revealed the original line of the Pennsylvania was laid through this valley, but was abandoned because of the heavy grades at this end. An easy grade all the way will be maintained except at the outskirts of the city.

Farmers along the proposed route six miles south of here are objecting because it crosses their farms, they maintaining the highway should follow section lines. A petition to this effect now is being circulated among the farmers.

Company is Fined $5,000 For Marine Law Breach

The Peninsula & Northern Navigation Co. steamer United States has been ordered to return to Canadian waters. The company has been fined $5,000 by the Government for violating the marine law. The boat was seized several months ago and the company which operated between Grand Haven, Muskegon and Milwaukee was forced to suspend operations.

The complaint charged that a majority of the stock was Canadian-owned, while the boat operated in American waters.

Estate of Grocer May Reach $500,000

The will of the late William Judson, retired wholesale grocer, of Grand Rapids, filed in probate court, named his wife, their daughter, Mrs. Edgar H. Johnson, wife of a Grand Rapids attorney, and latter's two sons, William and Sidney, as the sole beneficiaries. The grandchildren will come into possession of the estate, which may reach $500,000, following the death of Mrs. Judson and Mrs. Johnson. The daughter or her husband are given the exclusive right to vote all the corporate stock belonging to the estate.

Mute's Sign Plea of Guilty Refused

The deaf and dumb man held by the sheriff, charged with breaking and entering the house of George Ray, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace P. M. Haller, and pleaded guilty. The man indicated that he understood what was being said to him, it is said. The justice, however, would not accept the plea, and ordered a plea of not guilty to be entered.

Mothers Treat Colds The New "Direct" Way
No Longer Necessary to "Dose" Children With Internal Medicines to Break Colds.
Children's digestions are easily upset by too much "dosing." Vicks VapoRub being externally applied, does not upset little stomachs.
At the first sign of croup, sore throat, or any other cold trouble, apply Vicks freely. There is nothing to swallow—you just "rub it on."
VICKS VAPORUB
Over 21 Million Jars Used Yearly

WANTED!
Men, mechanically inclined, who want a real education in
GREER COLLEGE OF AUTOMOTIVE & ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
We get you a job, while you attend night classes, paying you
$25.00 to $40.00 PER WEEK
See or Write W. L. GEORGE
250 Pearl St., Daily or
7 to 8 p. m. Tues., Thurs., Sat'day
Grand Rapids, Michigan

OPPORTUNITY
We will put you in the Tire business in your city, without any investment on your part, furnish you a complete stock of High Grade, Guaranteed, Nationally Known and Advertised Tires and Tubes, to be paid for only as you sell them, if you are well known in your community, and can furnish good references as to your character and ability as an ambitious worker. This wonderful opportunity will produce for a real worker an established business with a highly profitable return.
Address P. O. Box 525, Grand Rapids, Michigan

DR. E. HENRY MORIARTY
at the
MORIARTY CANCER SANITARIUM
Specializing in the treatment of cancer without the use of knife or electricity.
Reference given on request.
1411 E. FULTON ST. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

THANK YOU!

We are Taking this opportunity to thank the people of North Adams and surrounding country for their patronage during the past season and during the Xmas Time which we appreciate very much, and hope we may be of better service to you the coming year.

We wish you all a
HAPPY NEW YEAR

SWAIN'S, North Adams

Useful

for the farmer as well as the BUSINESS MAN

New Grosley Radio

Get the Market Reports. know what your hogs, cattle and eggs are worth on the city markets, hear Ernest Seton Thompson, Eddie Guest and other notables on the air. Let us demonstrate to you.

PAYNE & GREEN CO.

Authorized Agents

The second quarterly communion service will be held at the Methodist church next Sunday morning January 2.

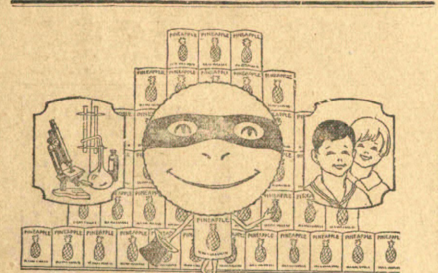
Henry Porter left for Sacramento California on Monday where he will spend the witner. He will linger in Chicago sightseeing for a short time thence to Salt Lake City where he wants to inspect the great Mormon Temple built by the Sainted Joseph Smith, thence Mr. Porter will go to the Pacific Coast, calling at Los Angeles and San Diego and visiting other points of interest. He has a sister in Sacramento.

Postmaster Claude VanWert reports that his sales of stamps this season exceeded anythiug ever known here. 16 percent more stamps were sold than during the same season last year but the sale was distributed over three days this season while last year it all came in a bunch. The Christmas card craze is blamed for the great rampage on postage stamps. It is a fact that this craze was carried to extremes

Hotels MADISON and LENOX
DETROIT

These twin hotels, conveniently located downtown, offer you accommodations of great excellence at most reasonable rates...

MADISON AVE. NEAR GRAND CIRCUS PARK



VITAMINS IN CANNED PINEAPPLE

CAPTURING vitamins and keeping them is the greatest game of food scientists today. In the case of canned pineapple, sunshine captures the valuable vitamin and canning keeps it. After that the game is easy—any one can eat pineapple because pineapple is easy to eat.

Over there in Hawaii, whence comes our canned Hawaiian pineapple, great plantations of pineapple are spread out like a magic carpet in the sunshine of the tropics. There the fruit absorbs sunshine for eighteen months. Being an "air plant," it lives on air and sunshine, and sunshine scientists tell us is largely responsible for the presence of vitamin D. This particular vitamin is beneficial for children since the presence of it prevents rickets.

Other mysterious forces, which only Nature understands, are busy in the meantime capturing two other vitamins, found especially in fruits—Vitamin B and Vitamin C. The former is very essential for children because experiment shows that without Vitamin B young animals soon cease to grow and finally die.

Once captured, the next step is keeping these vitamins. Just as soon as the pineapple is fully ripened in the fields, it is rushed to the big canneries, canned quickly, so that even that most volatile of vitamins, Vitamin C, may have no chance of escape. Canned foods retain vitamins in greater amount than home-cooked foods, recent research at Columbia University has established, due to the intense heat used in the quick process of canning and certain conditions in the sterilizing process.

Two Snbscriptions to McCall's and one Advocate 1 yr. $2.75

CORRESPONDENCE

Jonesville

Milton J. Ward and wife were in Kalamazoo Christmas.

Miss Catherine Riggs is at home from Saginaw for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Swan and granddaughter Virginia are in Detroit this week.

Miss Margaret White is at home from Lake Forrest Illinois for the holiday vacation.

Miss Bernice Tiffany of Detroit is spending the Holiday vacation with her sister Mrs. Wm Wetmore.

Dr. Idella Graves of Cleveland is a visitor at the home of her brother F. W. Graves West Chicago St.

Mrs. Angie Spencer and son Horace are in Detroit this week for a visit with her son Warren and wife.

Mrs. Wm Hodges left last week for an indefinite stay at the home of her daughter Mrs. Emery Nye of Alicia.

Mrs. D. J. Donahue and three children of Toledo are here for a visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Massey.

Fred T. Reed and wife of Hastings were called here Tuesday by the serious illness of his father John T. Reed.

Jay Graham with his family of Chicago is spending the week at the home of his mother Mrs. Anna T. Graham.

The Misses Arlene Spinner and Gladys Austin are at their homes here from South Bend where they are attending college.

The Annual Mother's Club Christmas Tree was held Friday evening at the George Godfrey home on West street. The Fathers and Grand parents were guests at this time.

HOXSIE

Mrs. Ely has been quite sick the past week.

Mae Chapman was in Hillsdale on business Tuesday.

F, M. Thompson visited his brother in Jackson Wednesday.

John Ferguson has been very ill the past week but is some better.

Mrs. Emma Henvy of Pittsford is spending a few days with Mae Chapman.

Arch Smith and family spent Christmas Day with her people near VanWert Ohio.

Wm Wattles of Detroit came Christmas Day for a week's vacation with his people.

Mrs. Gertrude Thompson is spending a week with her daughter Mrs. Pauline Carney of Detroit.

Mae Chapman has decided to continue the store business and it is now open for patronage.

Mae Chapman spent Christmas Day with her cousin Evarts Kennedy and wife of Cement City.

Floyd Smith and family of Detroit came Christmas eve for a week's vacation with their relatives here.

Mrs. Orpha Hoxie was taken quite ill Tuesday and was taken to her daughter's Mrs. Bernice McBain of Moscow.

Miss Marjorie Rice, Arch Marks and family and Mae Chapman spent Sunday with A. J. Marks and wife Paul Marks was also home for the week end.

A J. Marks and family spent Christmas day at Jackson with Mrs. Marks sister Mrs. Mary Bills other relatives to the number of about 35 were present from Detroit Adrian, Tecumseh, Brooklyn, Napoleon and Jackson. 4 generations being present.

Jerome

Jay Pullen and family entertained about 50 relatives from various parts of the state Sunday.

Clifford Baker, wife and son Herold of Wayne visited Christmas with Eugene Baker and wife.

Blenn Tower of Cleary's Business College Ypsilanti and Margaret Tower of Fort Wayne College are spending the week at the S. L. Tower home.

Chas McGregor and family recently received a letter from Earl Scott and wife of Vermontville stating that Mrs. Scott had been elected president of the County Epworth League.

G. J. Pullen presented the young folks of the community with about 75 one pound sacks of candy Saturday evening. The real Santa Claus had left in the afternoon for the north pole and Grant Sawdey was on the sick list so Harry McClanahan substituted in their stead.

Town Line

Mr. and Mrs. Draper entertained their children Xmas day.

Glen Baker and family and Mr. Gamble spent Xmas with Gurn Baker and wife.

Mr. Lowe of Ohio was a recent guest of his sister Mrs. Howard Wells and family.

Mrs. Carrie Jennings and daughter Lila ate Xmas dinner with Fred Giddings and wife.

Mark Rutan and wife of Somerset Center were guests Sunday of Carrie and Lila Jennings.

Harold Youngs and family of North Adams were guests of Randell Westcott and wife Christmas, Miles Hudnutt and family of Manitou Beach were at the Frank Hudnutt home for Sunday dinner.

Miss Marcie Sipe and Mr. Wheaton of Woodstock spent Sunday evening with C. H. Jennings and wife.

Mrs. Grace Westcott spent Xmas at the Percy Wells home. J. Westcott and wife at the Cleve Westcott home.

Dell Fuller and wife, Charles Payne and wife of Battle Creek visited Sunday at the C. H. Jennings home.

Mrs. Sterling of Viele district had a nice Xmas tree Wednesday evening and the exercises were very much enjoyed.

John Sommers, wife and daughter Laura were in Jackson with their daughter Mrs. Lapham and family, Christmas.

Grover Mallory and family of Toledo and Mrs. Mallory of Moscow were Sunday guests at the Glen Baker home.

Fred Giddings, wife and daughter Gail, and son Frank attended the Eastern Star dance at North Adams Tuesday evening.

Christmas, Arch Branch, Mrs. Rolands and daughter Helen of Somerset spent the day with Mrs. Kate Beecher and Miss Kempton.

Christmas guests at the Abner and C. H. Jennings home were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Southard of Addison, Harold Fuller and family of Adams and Eugene Culbert and wife of Town Line.

The family of John Horton and wife were all at home for Sunday evening, they planned to get there in the morning but Mike and Zaril had a car accident when starting out from Blissfield and had to return home for repairs.

Fowler District, Wheatland

Geraldine Cox, Teacher

School will commence January 3rd.

We are proud to have new stage curtains.

Anna Hoyt received 100 percent in spelling during December.

Kenneth Woodby and Anna Hoyt tied in our Spell-down last week.

Recent visitors were: Charles Fowler and little Naomi Hoyt.

The children passe-partouted Biblical Pictures as Christmas gifts to their parents.

Wayne Reimschisel has returned to school having been absent a month because of illness.

Ilah Groom, Pearl Beveridge and Richard Iveson received pencils for perfect reading lessons this month.

The eighth grade have completed Turkington's, "My Country." They are making a rapid review of the book now.

Window decorations were; White Crepe Paper curtains trimmed with holly and bells and a Santa Claus in each window.

Those receiving half holidays this month were—Theron Post, Anna Hoyt, John Iveson, Richard Iveson Pearl Beveridge and Ilah Groom.

About eighty five people attended our Christmas program, Wednesday evening December 22. The children exchanged presents. Miss Cox, the teacher, received many gifts.

The eighth grade have completed a poster illustrating by circle graphs how the United States ranks in production with the rest of the world. The graphs represent iron, copper, gold, silver, tobacco, cotton corn, wheat and oil.

We have in our school three large framed pictures borrowed from the Michigan Picture Loan Association State Library, Lansing Mich. These may be used throughout the school year. Freight charges are the only expense. This makes it possible to have new pictures for the school room each year. May this be of interest to other schools.

The Womans Missionary Union of the Congregational church will meet with Mrs. M. Kempton Wednesday January 5th in the afternoon.

Monday evening was Past Masters night at the Adams Lodge F. & A. M. and Lawrence Spratt was given the degrees A banquet was served and about 65 were present

Chancery Notice

State of Michigan, First Judicial Circuit, In Chancery. Suit pending in said court wherein Thompson Savings Bank is plaintiff and James F. Sutfin and Carrie Sutfin are defendants. In pursuance of a decree of the circuit court for the county of Hillsdale, in chancery, made and entered on the 29th day of November, 1926, in the above entitled cause, I, the subscriber, a circuit court commissioner for the county of Hillsdale, shall sell at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the courthouse in said city of Hillsdale, in the County of Hillsdale, on the 15t day of January, 1927, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, Central Standard time all those certain land and premises situate and being in the Township of Pittsford, county of Hillsdale ond state of Michigan, and described as follows to-wit; the east one-half of the northeast quarter of Section 3, Township 7 south, Range 1 west, containing eighty acres of land more or less.

Dated, December 2, 1926.

Glenn E. Miller,
Circuit Court Commissioner
in and for the County of Hillsdale
B. D. Chandler,
Attorney for Plaintiff, 27t6
Business Address, Hudson Mich.

Anyone Who can wind a watch

Now commands the air with

THE NEW ERLA MONODIC RECEIVER

Here is news for the whole family: Mother, Brother, and even little Sister can get new "thrills"—new stations they never could before. One after another stations come in with "next-door" clarity and volume. Selectivity is now razor keen

Radiation, or the annoying broadcasting of squeals into neighboring antennae is eliminated removing one of the most prolific causes of radio interference and dissatisfaction.

Harshness and fuzziness of tone resulting from regeneration are eradicated. Even under full pressure, reproduction of voice or music is entirely natural and undistorted.

Mosher's Radio Shop

93 South Howell Street. HILLSDALE, MICH

Dawn Theatre Hillsdale

A Butterfield Theatre

December 31
FRIDAY
Olive Borden & Geo. O'Brien
in
"FIG LEAVES"

January 2 and 3
SUNDAY and MON'Y
COLLEEN MOORE in
"IT MUST BE LOVE"

New Years Day
FRED THOMSON in
"ALL ROUND THE FRYING PAN"

January 4 and 5
TUESDAY and WEDNES
EMIL JENNINGS
in
"VARIETY"

The most outstanding industrial accomplishment since the war

Thus does Hon. Herbert C. Hoover characterize the achievements of the American railways since 1920 in the Annual Report of the Department of Commerce for 1926. In this report he says:

"Probably the most outstanding single industrial accomplishment since the war has been the reorganization of our American railways.

"Our transportation . . . . had suffered from chronic car shortages and insufficient service not only after the war but for many years before.

"The annual loss from this periodic strangulation in transportation was estimated in the department's annual report of 1925 to amount to hundreds of millions a year.

"The insufficiency of transportation interfered with steady industrial operations, created intermittent employment, increased the costs of production and, through periodic strangulation, caused high prices to the consumer.

"Manufacturers and distributors were compelled to carry excessive inventories as a protective measure, thus not only increasing the amount of capital required in the business, but multiplying the danger of loss by price fluctuation.

"The railways, during the past five years, not only have built up adequate service and given a complete correction to these ills, but they have, by great ability of their managers, greatly reduced transportation costs and thus made rate reductions possible which would not have been otherwise the case."

New York Central

NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES

"We Serve Michigan"

Have We Reached The Danger Line in Taxation?

AMERICAN railroad taxes are mounting to new Alpine heights this year, the latest estimate for 1926, being that they will aggregate somewhere between $400,000,000 and $420,000,000, which may be expressed in various ways, although meaning the same heavy load:

That they will average from $1,005,800 to $1,150,675 a day.

That they will involve a charge per hour between $45,659 and $47,945.

That from six cents to six cents and four and a half mills out of every dollar taken in will go towards taxes.

That the railroads in 1926 will have to devote more than the net earnings of one mile out of every four for the payment of taxes.

The national government has cut down the national debt from January 1, 1920, to January 1, 1926, by about $4,250,000,000—four and a quarter billions.

In the same interval, the debts of state and local governments have increased by about 6¾ billions—$6,750,000,000.

During this period of federal debt reduction, the state and local governments have been incurring obligations 20 times as fast as they paid off the old debt. During this same period, debts of state and local governments combined have been incurred 4½ times as fast as they were before the war.

The total public debt of all forms of government in this country is higher than at the peak of the war debt in 1919.

The national debt is being reduced at the rate of three quarters of a billion dollars a year—$750,000,000.

State and local debt is being increased at the rate of more than a billion and a quarter dollars a year—$1,250,000,000.

From January 1st, 1920, to January 1st, 1926, national government expenditures were reduced about two billion dollars—$2,000,000,000.

During the same period current expenditures by state and local governments increased more than two billion dollars a year—$2,000,000,000—and they are still increasing.

Rising taxes are one of the initial moving forces of the vicious circle of rising costs, Labor asks for higher wages, Producers and distributors pass along the accumulating burden to swell the family budget of the ultimate consumer. This, too, involves higher rents (or home ownership cost), higher food, fuel and clothing costs, etc.

After all, railroads are like any other industry. The farmer does not look forward to his tax bill with more anxiety than does the railroad.

Have we not reached the danger line?

Is it not time to retrench state, county and local expenditures?

MICHIGAN RAILROAD ASSOCIATION